Joseph McLaughlin has brought an action against Edward E. Naugle, William H. Holcomb, and Alfred P. Hopkins to recover $125,000 commissions for services rendered in securing the contract for the construction of the Tennessee Central Railroad. Justice Leventritt granted an order directing service of the summons and complaint by publication.

Schooner Lily Lost; Her Crew Saved.

ORLEANS, Mass., Jan. 3.—The Nauset Life Saving crew to-day had one of the fiercest battles with the elements in their experience, in trying to reach the three-masted schooner Lily of Windsor, N. S., which went on the bar here. They were unable to launch their boat, but the Captain and nine sailors from the schooner, finding their vessel going to pieces, took chances in their own boat and were driven ashore by the breakers, where all were rescued by the lifesavers. The vessel will be a total loss. The Lily was of 478 net tons and was built at Hantsport, N. S., in 1882.

GOV. ODELL'S ECONOMIES.

His Plans, if Carried Out, Would Save the State $750,000.

ALBANY, Jan. 3.—A careful estimate of the amount that would be saved by the State if all of Gov. Odell's suggestions are carried out is $750,000, or three-quarters of a million. Here is the schedule of offices he proposes to abolish:

Fish, Forest and Game	$17,000
Forest Preserve	5,000
Legal advisor, (no appointment)	6,000
Legal advisor (expenses)	4,000
Prison Commission	4,000
Sealer Weights and Measures	500
Charities Board	6,000
Labor Statistics, Chief	3,000
Mediation and Arbitration	9,000
Mediation and Arbitration, Secretary	2,000
Lunacy Commission decreases	750,000
Total	$805,500

To carry on the work of the offices proposed to be abolished would cost, it is estimated, allowing good-sized salaries for single-headed departments, about $55,000 at the outside, thus effecting a saving of about $750,000, besides simplifying the work and fixing the responsibility.

Wants the Raines Law Repealed.

ALBANY, Jan. 3.—Assemblyman Julius Harburger will introduce, at the meeting of the Legislature on Wednesday next, a bill to repeal the Raines Liquor Tax law and to re-enact the old excise law which was repealed in 1896, and which provides for local excise boards. It is the same bill he introduced last year, and which failed to pass.

Deputy State Treasurer Reappointed.

ALBANY, Jan. 3.—State Treasurer Jaeckel to-day reappointed Barnet J. Davis of Wayne County his deputy for a term of two years.

EMPIRE COMPANY'S OFFER.

Would Take Over Real Estate of Anglo-American Association.

Joseph N. Dickey and Edward B. Dickinson, receivers of the Anglo-American Savings and Loan Association, yesterday afternoon, in the Supreme Court, Brooklyn, submitted to Justice Maddox for his approval a proposition of the Empire Real Estate Company to take over the real estate of the Anglo-American Company, and thereby conserve some $2,000,000 worth of property which would be sacrificed if sold under foreclosure. The Empire Real Estate Company is a corporation recently formed.

It is claimed that if the plan is approved by the court the present owners of Anglo-American stock will be permitted to share in any profit resulting from the real estate until the property is sold at private sale. Justice Maddox referred the application to ex Justice George G. Reynolds to take testimony regarding the character and capacity of the Empire Company and also as to the condition of the real estate of the Anglo-American Company.

Application was also made to Justice Maddox late yesterday afternoon by the receivers of the Anglo-American Company for permission to pay $510 interest due on a mortgage for $17,000, which fell due on Dec. 28 last. This application was granted.

It is thought that Justice Maddox may appoint a permanent receiver for the Anglo-American Association to-day, as it is understood that neither Mr. Dickey nor Mr. Dickinson cares to continue in that capacity.

PLATT'S SON GETS A PLACE.

Succeeds R. G. Butler as General Superintendent of the United States Express Company.

Edward T. Platt, son of United States Senator Thomas C. Platt, yesterday was elected General Superintendent of the United States Express Company in place of Randall G. Butler, who resigned by request. Senator Platt is President of the company.

For some time it is said, the corporation's officers have been dissatisfied with Mr. Butler. On Tuesday Senator Platt sent for Mr. Butler and informed him of allegations concerning him which special agents of the company has made in a report covering two months. Mr. Butler admitted that facts had been stated.

"Then I will accept your resignation, to take effect at once," the Senator remarked. Mr. Butler wrote it out on the spot and handed it to the Senator.

Senator Platt is in Washington, Edward T. Platt was not at home, and Mr. Butler's home address is not in the City Directory. Those acquainted with Mr. Butler professed to be ignorant of his residence.

WOMEN'S SABBATH ALLIANCE.

Meeting of the National Society at Mrs. W. E. Dodge's Home.

The house of Mrs. William E. Dodge, 262 Madison Avenue, was thrown open yesterday afternoon for a drawing room meeting of the Woman's National Sabbath Alliance. Mrs. E. A. McAlpin of Sing Sing was the speaker of the afternoon.

"Our Sabbath," she said, "is becoming a day of frivolity, almost of rioting, especially with our young people. We cannot put them under the bondage of Sabbath law, but we must reach them by pure and holy living. Let the Christian mothers of this city open the doors of their beautiful homes to the young men who have no homes and who meet countless temptations on the street. If they then see to it that these hours are employed as they should be on God's day no one can tell what good may come."

In closing Mrs. McAlpin asked a blessing upon the work of the alliance and upon the place of meeting "the Christian home where for so many years there has been beautiful Christian living."

NEW CORPORATIONS.

Campbell & Clute Machine Company of Cohoes; capital, $50,000. Directors—John Clute, Seth T. Harshaw, and F. E. Wilson, Cohoes.

Excelsior Machine Company of Cohoes; capital, $10,000. Directors—Leroy Vermilyea and J. H. Neary, Cohoes, and J. A. Buck, Crescent.

Bolton & Seeber Drug Company of Watertown; capital, $5,000. Directors—Edgar Seeber, Lucy M. Bolton, and Flora Seeber, Watertown.

J. I. Prentiss & Co. of Buffalo, to carry on a general grocery business; capital, $300,000. Directors—J. I. Prentiss, C. E. Hawley, and E. H. Prentiss, Buffalo.

New York Beer Pump and Faucet Company of New York City; capital, $5,000. Directors—William Bruenig, August Streitwolf, and D. G. Brennan, New York City.

Niagara Heating and Ventilating Company of Niagara Falls; capital, $150,000. Directors—H. D. Ferky, Niagara Falls; Charles Cluthe and F. W. Cluthe, New York City.

Lindsy-Jacobsen Company of New York City, to deal in optical and photographic supplies; capital, $25,000. Directors—Walter L. Lindsy, William G. Bliss, and John Jacobson, New York City.

American Hatters and Furriers' Corporation of New York City; capital, $100,000. Directors—C. D. Parks, James E. Walsh, and Lawrence A. Douglas, Danbury, Conn., and Ode Comeau, New York City.

International Economist Company of New York City, to publish newspapers and carry on an international trade bureau; capital, $8,000. Directors—Daniel L. Robertson, Glens Falls; O. R. Perry, Brooklyn, and J. F. Perdue, New York City.

The Solvay Process Company of Solvay has filed a certificate of increase of capital stock from $4,000,000 to $5,000,000. The amount of capital of the corporation paid in is $4,000,000, and the amount of its debts and liabilities is $2,737,000.

Incorporated in New Jersey.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Jan. 3.—The Compensating Valve Company filed articles of incorporation here to-day with the Clerk of Union County. The company is capitalized for $100,000. The plant will be located at Garwood. The company will manufacture and sell locomotive and car equipment, and all parts and accessories thereof. The incorporators are Harry B. O'Brien, Edward A. Bodamer, Jr., and William B. Smith, all of Garwood.

NEWARK, N. J., Jan. 3.—The New Jersey White Lead Company recorded articles of incorporation here to-day. The principal offices of the company will be at 758 Broad Street. Charles A. Feick will act as agent. The capitalization is fixed at $1,000,000, divided into 10,000 shares of the par value of $100 each. The object of the company is stated to be to purchase, develop, and carry on works for smelting and refining, and for the manufacture of lead in all commercial forms, and also linseed and castor oils.

TRENTON, Jan. 3.—The Commercial Investment Company, with an authorized capital of $1,000,000, was incorporated here to-day, to operate in Porto Rico. The incorporators are F. L. Strong, Frederick Rusenberg, John Herman, all of New York, and O. L. Dubleman of Jersey City.

Real Estate.

10c. per line 3 times 24c 7 times 42c Double for display.

THE LAWYERS' TITLE INSURANCE COMPANY
OF NEW YORK,
37 and 39 Liberty Street,
44½ and 46 Maiden Lane.

Under its system doubtful points in titles are submitted to its Committee of Counsel, consisting of well-known real estate buyers. This protection makes its policies the strongest issued.
Losses in thirteen years of business, $24,346.37.

City Real Estate for Sale.

10c. per line 3 times 24c 7 times 42c Double for display.

AMSTERDAM AV.—Elegant corner building, with stores; rented, $4,700; growing fast in value; bargain price; also adjoining houses. THOMAS P. PAYNE, 96 Broadway.

COLD-WATER TENEMENT, WITH STORES, 100th St., near 5th Av.; always rented, finest tenants; $2,100; price $21,500; easy terms. THOMAS P. PAYNE, 96 Broadway.

9TH AV., NEAR 59TH ST.—Elegant corner; old buildings, 125x100; rare bargain for investment or alteration. THOMAS P. PAYNE, 96 Broadway.

11TH AV., NEAR 48TH ST.—Fine full-sized corner building, with store; always rented; bargain; $25,000; also 8th Av. bargains. THOMAS P. PAYNE, 96 Broadway.

BARGAIN.—Handsome private dwelling, East 50th St.; price right; little cash needed; might exchange. GEORGE PURVIS, 156 Broadway.

411 WEST 21ST ST.—Large, deep four-story brownstone, handsomely decorated, cheap. W. GILHOOLY & Beekman St.

LOTS.—Bronx bargains; Tremont, Woodycrest, Aqueduct Avs.; Fordham Road; three Woodlawn corners. GEORGE PURVIS, 156 Broadway.

ATTENTION, BUILDERS! LOT 50x140; AMSterdam Av., near 130th St.; might exchange. DUROSS, 242 West 14th St.

HOUSE WEST 22D ST., SOLD TO CLOSE ESTate; $1,000 cash; bargain. ATWATER, 156 Broadway.

Brooklyn Real Estate for Sale.

10c. per line 3 times 24c 7 times 42c Double for display.

QUEENSBOROUGH IS THE MOST VALUAble from an investment point, and the cheapest in price of any of the Boroughs of New York City. We have the best and cheapest. A single lot of one hundred acres. WHEELER BROTHERS, 16 Court St., Brooklyn.

CHEAPEST IN BROOKLYN; $3,300; EASY terms; 722 Sackett Street, near 5th Avenue, (Park Slope;) 2-story and basement; brick; 9 rooms; all improvements; decorated; cozy home; sacrifice. DEWSNAP, 150 Nassau Street, Manhattan.

WHEELER BROTHERS.
Investments Queensborough.
16 COURT STREET, BROOKLYN.

Mortgage Loans.
New York and Brooklyn Property.
DIOSSY & CO., 5 COURT SQ., B'KLYN.

New Jersey Property for Sale.

10c. per line 3 times 24c 7 times 42c Double for display.

$17 A LOT.

Adjoining Lakewood, N. J., the famous Winter resort; we offer plots containing 5 lots for $85; small weekly payments. Special trip to property Sunday, Jan. 13. R. HALLEY & CO., 2 East 125th St.

$18 BUYS 2½ ACRES.
$35 BUYS 5 ACRES.
Almost given away, to close estate at once; installments, 50 cents weekly. APPLEBY, 10 Wall.

Country Real Estate for Sale.

10c. per line 3 times 24c 7 times 42c Double for display.

WANTED—A GENTLEMAN OF STRICT INtegrity to build with me two adjoining homes, at White Plains, using building loan; excellent plot. I will put up all necessary cash. K., 624 Elton Av.

ALL COUNTRY REAL ESTATE A SPECIALty; bargains and exchanges all directions. PHILLIPS & WELLS, Tribune Building.

To Let for Business Purposes.

10c. per line 3 times 24c 7 times 42c Double for display.

STORES, LOFTS, AND OFFICES
TO LET AT LOWEST RATES.
JACOB A. KING, 491 B'WAY—81 E. 125TH ST.

A STORE AND BASEMENT TO LET.—Large windows; 19 Beekman St., near Nassau. RULAND & WHITING, 5 Beekman St.

6TH AV., 238.—Large floors, all modern improvements; will alter to suit tenants; ring janitor's bell.

10TH ST., 423 WEST.—Large store, with three rooms and plate-glass front; newly decorated; $18.

40TH ST., 438 AND 440 WEST.—Large stores, with plate-glass fronts; two rooms; decorated; $15.

Brooklyn.

STORE FOR TAILOR, HABERDASHERY, butcher, groceries, $18; good business location. 164 Hamilton Av., near Columbia St.

BROOKLYN, 368 HICKS ST.—Large store, with dwelling rooms; will decorate to suit; $16.

Instruction.

10c. per line $4.50 per line for 30 times.

FREE LECTURE ON LEARNING GERMAN.

On Friday and Saturday, Jan. 4th and 5th, at 11 A. M., 4 and 8 o'clock P. M., Prof. W. Irving Colby will give free lectures in Cortina's Academy of Languages, 44 West 34th St., explaining and illustrating his modern method for imparting a practical speaking and reading knowledge of the German language in five weeks. Prof. Colby is the author of several German text books, and both he and his system are very strongly indorsed.

SPANISH THOROUGHLY TAUGHT; EXPERIenced teacher; translation; English, Spanish, French. CABALLERO COE, 162 East 84th St.

ISAAC PITTMAN; SHORTHAND; PRIVATE and class lessons; best instruction; reasonable rates. Metropolitan School, 289 4th Av.

FRENCH, SPANISH, ITALIAN INSTRUCTION; best method; expert teachers; terms moderate. Prof. J. M. PELLERIN, 207 West 25th.

Musical.

10c. per line 3 times 24c 7 times 42c Double for display.

AT 112 EAST 18TH ST.....The ONLY
N. Y. CONSERVATORY, 112 East 18th,
...BETWEEN 4TH AV. and IRVING PLACE.
The FAMOUS MUSIC SCHOOL.....
.....The FIRST in the COUNTRY.
Lessons DAY and EVENING...Years on 14th St.
....GRADUATES PROVIDED with POSITIONS.

MRS. CAROLIN'S
MUSICAL BUREAU,
ARTISTS FOR SOCIAL FUNCTIONS.
2 WEST 33D ST.

VIOLIN ARTISTICALLY TAUGHT, EITHER residence; terms reasonable; not payable in advance; references exchanged. CHADWICK, 2 Chambers St.

PAULINE ELLIOTT RYDER.—Violinist for concerts and musicales; highest social, musical references; pupils accepted. Address 43 W. 34th.

MRS. EDWIN DUSTIN RUGGLES, ACCOMpanist for concerts and musicales. Apply to MME. CAROLINE, 2 West 33d St.

SOMETHING NEW!—Piano taught in 8 months without notes; accompaniments a specialty; PROMONTORY, 150 West 14th St.

VIOLIN STUDIO, 160 WEST 23D ST.—Advantage to beginners and advanced pupils; private or classes; terms reasonable.

MUSICAL.—COWEN, 327 East 16th, near 2d Av. Park. PIANO LESSONS, 24 for $5; single 25c. ESTABLISHED.

Dancing.

10c. per line 3 times 24c 7 times 42c Double for display.

HARVARD DANCING ACADEMY, 158-162 W. 125th St.—Waltz, schottische, two-step, polka, lancers; waltz quadrille guaranteed in 5 private and 4 class lessons, $5; 4 class lessons, $1.

BRADY'S 1,408 Amsterdam Av., 135-137 West 125th St. WALTZ

PROF. D. C. LESTER.—Dancing and polite deportment. Colonial Hall, 101st St. and Columbus Av. Offices hours, 2 to 10 P. M.

Medical.

SPITTING AND RELAXED THROAT.—Writs for appointment with private gentleman, who cured himself in three days. No medicines. Fee $5 at interview. R., Box 300 Times Up-town Office.

Horses, Carriages, &c.

10c. per line 3 times 24c 7 times 42c Double for display.

MANUFACTURERS SELL HANDSOME SURrey! Runabout! almost new, top wagon; coal wagon. McGUIRE BROS., 175 East 119th St.

Apartments to Let—Unfurnished.

10c. per line 3 times 24c 7 times 42c Double for display.

THE IOWA,
135 West 104th St.
JUST COMPLETED.
ELECTRIC ELEVATOR & HALL SERVICE. THE FINEST 6 & 7 ROOM APARTMENTS. With all up-to-date, modern improvements; every room large, light, and beautifully decorated; large, handsome entrance hall and reception room, richly and tastefully furnished, about 300 feet from 104th St. station; express trains; Broadway and Amsterdam Av. electric cars. For further particulars apply on premises.
PAUL B. PUGH & CO., Builders and Owners.
STABLER & SMITH, AGENTS,
974 COLUMBUS AVE., 93D ST.
TELEPHONE 79 RIVERSIDE.

71ST, 342 WEST.

New apartments, 7, 8, 9 extra large rooms, with pantry, two bath rooms each, parquette floors, elevator, electric lights, telephone; $1,200 to $1,500. SUPERINTENDENT.

BACHELOR AP'TS.
112 West 44th St.
2 large, light rooms and bath.
ASHFORTH & CO., 1,509 BROADWAY.

85TH ST., 223 EAST.—New apartments, 3, 4, 5 rooms; baths and bedrooms heated; hot water; open plumbing; ranges; hardwood finish; decorated; $12 upward. Janitor.

DOWNTOWN.—Elegant (second) apartment; 8 rooms; bathroom; all improvements; $38. 41 3d Av., near 10th St.

FIRE INSURANCE AT LOWEST RATES. JACOB A. KING, 81 E. 125TH ST., 491 B'WAY.

City Flats to Let—Unfurnished.

10c. per line 3 times 24c 7 times 42c Double for display.

HALF MONTH'S RENT FREE.
234 West 122d Street, elegant apartments; 8 rooms, newly papered and decorated; steam heat and hall service; $30 and upward. See janitor.

52D ST., 432 WEST.—Only apartment left; five large, light rooms, newly decorated; private hall; improvements; $14.

10TH ST., 224 EAST.—Three-room apartments; hot water, gas, and coal ranges; decorated; $12-$14.

JONES ST., 7, NEAR WEST 4TH ST., 6TH AV. —3-4 room apartments; decorated; $10-$14.50.

124TH ST., 230 WEST.—Large apartment; 6 rooms, bath; newly decorated; price, $16.

Brooklyn.

HICKS ST., 363.—Desirable apartments of two and three rooms; prices, $7 and $8.

Coal and Wood.

THOMAS STOKES,
Coal Dealer. Best grades of house coal, fresh mined, standard weight, lowest prices. Yards, 10th Av. and 42d St., 10th Av. and 54th St., 6th Av. and 34th St. Telephones 244 38th St., 203 Columbus.

STOKES BROS.'
HARLEM COAL YARD,
121st St. and 6th Av. Telephone 131 Harlem. A trial will insure best of service at lowest prices. Superior quality and weight guaranteed.

When in Need of Coal, Remember
LEONARD BROTHERS,
COAL AND WOOD.
245 WEST 125TH STREET.
Tel., 344 Harlem. Yard and Wharf, Mad. Av., 135th & 136th Sts., (Harlem River.)

ESTABLISHED 1843.
GUEST & CO.,
COAL AND WOOD.
Yards, 7th Av., cor. 49th St. Telephone 435 Columbus. 306 West 43d St. Telephone, 2,279 38th St.

BUY YOUR COAL & WOOD AT THEDFORD'S,
27th St. and 9th Av. Quantity, quality, service. Telephone, 386-16th St.

Try J. DOBBINS for COAL AND WOOD.
138th St. and Madison Ave., Harlem River. Telephone, No. 537 Harlem.

T. H. Thorn & Co.
Best grade of red and white ash coal. Yard, 2d Ave., cor. 29th St. Tel. 1422 Madison Sq.

MURRAY HILL WOOD YARD
26TH ST. AND FIRST AV. Tel. 279 Madison Sq. Selected Pine and Oak for kindling. Pine Knots and extra dry Hickory for Grates and Andirons. Inspection solicited. Satisfaction guaranteed.

Pianos and Organs.

10c. per line 3 times 24c 7 times 42c Double for display.

WISSNER PIANOS
Used by Eminent Artists.
BROOKLYN: COR. FULTON ST. & FLATBUSH AV. NEW YORK: 25 EAST 14TH ST.
Second-Hand Uprights of Good Makers.
$85—$125. Grands, $175—$300.

CALENBERG PIANOS
Are among the
VERY BEST
Over 10,000 in use
Tuning, Repairing, Renting
Easy Terms. Open evenings.
23 East 14th St.

THE PIANOTIST
PIANO PLAYER.
An Ideal Holiday Gift.
The Only Player Awarded Medal at Paris Exposition of 1900.
Plays Any Piano. Any One Can Play It. Easily fitted to any piano. Endorsed by leading musicians. Recitals daily. Cash or Installments. THE PIANOTIST, 503 Fifth Av., Cor. 42d St.

MATHUSHEK & SON and OPERA PIANOS.
The balance of our Holiday stock at reduced prices. You can obtain a bargain from our large stock of slightly-used pianos recently taken in exchange, including some celebrated makes; rents, $4 up.
MATHUSHEK & SON, B'way cor. 47th St.

THE BIG WEST SIDE PIANO HOUSE.
A small cash payment secures for you a fine piano stool and scarf; delivered free; balance on easy payments; rents, $4 up.
741-743 8th Av., near 46th St.

OPEN EVENINGS UNTIL 10 O'CLOCK.
PIANO SPECIALS: 6 small uprights, $40 to $60; $3 monthly until paid. Steinway, $50; Bradbury, $40; Gilbert, $25; $2 monthly until paid. Organ bargains. GOETZ & CO., 81-87 Court St., Brooklyn.

Buy of manufacturer; reliable Connor Pianos; easy terms; renting; exchanging; repairing. Open evenings. 4 East 42d St.

WINTERROTH PIANOS. CASH, INSTALMENTS, $125 UPWARD. 1035 EAST 14TH ST. & 95 5TH AV. Open Evenings

MARSCHEIDER, 19 East 14th St.—Guaranteed high-grade pianos; easy terms; bargains in used pianos; price on every piano. Open evenings.

EMERSON PIANOS.—Beautiful new designs; several slightly used; at unusually low prices. Steinway Parlor Grand; rare bargain. GEO. W. HERBERT, 10 East 17th St.

BARGAINS.—Upright pianos, $100 upward; more value for money than elsewhere guaranteed; square, $20 upward; rented, exchanged; easy payments. CHRISTMAN, 21 East 14th St.

ELEGANT MAHOGANY UPRIGHT PIANO, slightly used, for $175; easy payments if desired; fully guaranteed. W. F. TWAY PIANO CO., 94 5th Av.

STEINWAY; EVERY IMPROVEMENT; BEAUtifully carved; great sacrifice. Elegant Upright, only $75. BIDDLE'S, 7 East 14th St.

SPECIAL SALE OF FINE UPRIGHT PIANOS this week, extraordinary bargains for cash. HAHN, 105 W. 23d St.

PIANO INSTRUCTION AND ACCOMPANYING. Miss ISABEL B. BUCKINGHAM, 10 West 38th St.

$200 New piano stool and scarf; $7 per month. Call at 1,509 B'way, cor. 47th St.

Lawyers.

DIVORCE $50 entire expense. Lawyer GEO. ROBINSON, 30 Nassau.

Business Opportunities.

10c. per line 3 times 24c 7 times 42c Double for display.

BUSINESS MEN, ATTENTION!
For one week to get your trade.
$5 Buys 500 Letterheads worth 2.00
500 Envelopes " 1.75
500 Billheads " 2.00
500 Bus. Cards " 1.75
7.50 Worth for 5.00 Cash with order.
M. B. ATKINSON, Printer,
1,127 Park Row Building, City, Op.P.O.

ADVICE FREE.—Patents promptly procured; Inventors' Guide free. EDGAR TATE & COMPANY, Patent Attorneys, 245 Broadway.

For Sale.

10c. per line 3 times 24c 7 times 42c Double for display.

TYPEWRITERS.—Remingtons, Smith Premiers, and all standard makes rented, kept in repair; stands and ribbons free. Sold 25% to 75% less than manufacturer's prices. No relics of past ages carried in stock. Every machine sold kept in repair for one year free. F. S. WEBSTER CO., 317 Broadway. Telephone, 1,338 Franklin.

SPECIAL! CUT THIS OUT!
I have an order for 50 TONS OF OLD METAL and PAPER; if you have any to sell, no matter how large or small a quantity, send me a postal card and I will call promptly. BORNSTEIN, 84 Centre St.

PATENTS ON PAPERHANGER'S COMBINAtion tool and paperhanger's folding table for sale; an excellent chance for party with capital. Address ROBERT G. ODELL, 7 James St., Peekskill, N. Y.

TYPEWRITER, (NEW,) $40; REMODELED Remingtons, Smiths, $35; rentals reduced; repairing, (telephone.) CONSOLIDATED TYPEWRITER EXCHANGE, 241 Broadway.

15 CENTS A POUND paid for old pewter, britannia and plated ware; 5 pounds or 5,000 pounds bought; call or send postal. I will call. BORNSTEIN, 84 Centre St.

TYPEWRITERS.—Remingtons, Smiths, Blickenderfers, Hammonds, Williamsees, Jewetts, Franklins, Caligraphs, sold, rented, exchanged, repaired. GORMAN, 79 Nassau St.

TYPEWRITERS REPAIRED BY EXPERTS; rented, sold, exchanged. Telephone for estimate. DURRANT, McLEAN & CO., 265 Broadway.

TYPEWRITERS SOLD AND RENTED; EXpert repairing done. GENERAL TYPEWRITER EXCHANGE, 1 Park Place. 'Phone, 1673 Cortlandt.

PHONOGRAPHS BOUGHT, SOLD, AND EXchanged; cash or $1.00 weekly; gramaphone records $2.50 dozen. 148 East 58th St.

LEOPOLD TUCHFELD, 1,736 MADISON AV.—Practical upholsterer; cabinet maker; draped curtain hanger; work guaranteed; mail orders.

TYPEWRITERS RENTED, BOUGHT, SOLD; expert repairing. R. & G. TYPEWRITER CO., 202 Broadway. Telephone, 999 Cortlandt.

TYPEWRITERS.—All makes; guaranteed; rented $2, $3 monthly; ribbons, stands free. CENTRAL TYPEWRITER EXCHANGE, 203 Broadway.

$10.00 UP—BARGAINS THIS WEEK.—Domestic, New Home, Singer Sewing Machines. Cash buyers. BROWN, 39 West 125th St.

REMINGTON TYPEWRITER FOR SALE.—Call or address ROSE, 112 Greenwood Av., near East Fourth St., Brooklyn.

HIGHEST CASH PRICES PAID FOR SECOND-hand furniture, carpets, pianos, &c. Address LENOX, 61 West 125th St.

AT 344 6TH AV. AND 172 WEST 23D ST.—Foot Knitting Co.; stocking refooted; underwear repaired.

A RARE CHANCE FOR A YOUNG MAN TO engage in business at 231 Washington St.

Watches and Jewelry.

WATCHES AND DIAMONDS ON SMALL weekly or monthly payments; large investment; goods guaranteed; holiday goods a specialty. NATIONAL DIAMOND AND WATCH CO., 177 Broadway.

R. V. HURD, LATE WITH WILLIAM MOIR, saves you money on diamonds, watches, and all repairing; old gold, jewelry, gems bought, exchanged or remodeled, 128 West 23d St., bet. 6th and 7th Avs.

CREDIT WATCHES, $1 WEEKLY; DIAMONDS, silver novelties lowest prices; strictly confidential; oil paintings. MANHATTAN DIAMOND CO., 37 Maiden Lane; take elevator.

WEEKLY PAYMENTS; FINE DIAMONDS, watches; goods guaranteed; lowest prices; business confidential. WATCH SUPPLY, Three Maiden Lane.

EASY PAYMENTS.—Watches and diamonds; reliable goods only. AMERICAN WATCH AND DIAMOND CO., 19 Maiden Lane.

Furs.

FUR GARMENTS REMADE, REDYED, BLENDed into fashionable shapes. Seal Sacques a specialty; estimates given. THE BARKER FUR CO., 111 West 29th St.

A. D. WOLF, 31 WEST 125TH ST.—Practical Furrier; Seal Garments Altered and Repaired, a Specialty. Lowest Rates.

L. PASTER, 42 WEST 125TH ST.—Practical furrier; seal garments altered and repaired, a specialty; lowest rates.

Groceries, Liquors, &c.

KAHN BROTHERS, WINES AND LIQUORS.—Lowest prices. 2,035 Third Avenue, near 112th. Handsome pocketbooks given away.

HARRIS'S WINE AND LIQUOR WAREHOUSE, 1,706 Madison Av., cor. 113th.—Special reductions, holiday wines and liquers.

PURE WINES AND LIQUORS AT THE COlumbus Wine and Liquor Warehouse, 2,103 3d Av. Present to each purchaser.

FRED LEVY, FAMILY LIQUOR WAREHOUSE, 1,776 Madison Av., near 116th St. Elegant SOUVENIRS FOR HOLIDAYS.

L. KUEHN, DELICATESSEN, WINES, LIQuors, bottled beer, 2,176 5th Av., near 118th St. Prompt attention all orders.

FOR FINEST TABLE DELICACIES IN CITY go to B. MEIER, 2,189 Third Avenue, near 119th. DELICATESSEN.

NIEDENTHAL & CO., 1,744 MADISON AV., near 114th.—Wines, liquors, and beer; special prices for holidays.

Storage.

10c. per line 3 times 24c 7 times 42c. Double for display.

AT MORGAN & BROTHER'S
STORAGE WAREHOUSE,
232, 234 & 236 WEST 47TH ST.,
near Broadway, separate rooms for furniture, pianos, baggage, &c. PADDED VANS FOR REMOVAL OF FURNITURE, &c. Boxing, shipping promptly attended to; estimates furnished. Telephone, 113—38th.

UNIVERSAL STORAGE WAREHOUSE COMpany, 202-208 East 88th St., near 3d Av.—Storage of furniture, pianos, &c.; separate compartments; estimates given for packing, shipping, moving, city or country. Telephone, 28-79th.

CONTINENTAL STORAGE WAREHOUSES, 313-319 W. 43d St., just off 8th Av. Tel. 2,597 38th St.

Dentistry.

10c. per line 3 times 24c 7 times 42c Double for display.

ARTIFICIAL TEETH OF CONTINUOUS GUM Highly Improved.—These teeth represent the highest art in dentistry. They restore form and expression to the face. The gums and roof of mouth, without seam or crevice, (all one piece, porcelain on platinum,) are a perfect reproduction of nature, even in color. Dr. DEANE, Dentist, 454 Lexington Av., cor. 45th St., received highest award Columbian Exposition.

Detective Agencies.

BAYERS'S INTERNATIONAL DETECTIVE Agency, former detective, Police Department, licensed and bonded, 220 Broadway, Rooms 717-718; telephone 3631 Franklin; all civil and criminal cases attended to by expert detectives; male and female.

Dogs and Birds.

10c. per line 3 times 24c 7 times 42c Double for display.

BELGIAN HARES—BUY FROM FIRST hands; largest breeders in the world; fancy stock; low prices. ROCKY MOUNTAIN BELGIAN HARE COMPANY, 208 Quincy Building, Denver, Col. Agents wanted.

Purchase and Exchange.

10c. per line 3 times 24c 7 times 42c Double for display.

BOOKS OF EVERY DESCRIPTION BOUGHT, sold and exchanged; small parcels or libraries purchased; highest cash prices paid; call at residences free; send postal. LOVERING'S NEW YORK BOOK EXCHANGE, 823 Broadway, near 12th St. Open evenings.

HOUSEHOLD FURNITURE, CONTENTS OF houses and flats, pianos, carpets, &c. J. L., 113 University Place.

Clothing.

HIGHEST PRICES PAID FOR LADIES', GENtlemen's, and children's fine discarded Clothing, Jewelry, Furs, Bric-a-Brac, Furniture, Carpets. Mr. or Mrs. NAFTAL, 744 6th Av.

MADAME BLUM.—Absolutely highest prices for ladies' cast-off evening and street costumes; also furs. 759 6th Av.

MRS. COHEN, 629 6TH AV.—Highest prices paid for ladies' street and evening costumes, jewelry, furs.

Machinery.

DYNAMOS AND MOTORS, ALL SIZES IN stock, direct from factory of Triumph Electric Co.; send us postal, we do the rest. CH

LATEST OVERCOAT SALE BULLETIN: Every salesman busy. Extra men called in. First eight hours sales amounted to considerably over 1000 overcoats.

INDICATIONS: Every size still remains—32 to 46 chest. Every color—blue, brown, black and Oxford; both rough and smooth. Some of the highest priced overcoats—$25 and $28 ones—still plainly in evidence.

Sizes 32 to 34, $10 and $13.
Sizes 35 to 46, $12.50 and $15.

ROGERS, PEET & COMPANY.

258 Broadway, cor. Warren, and 7 and 9 Warren St.
849 Broadway, cor. Prince.
1260 Broadway, cor. 32d, and 54 West 23d St.

We fill orders by mail.

WILD PANIC AT A TENEMENT FIRE.

Sick Child Burned to a Crisp Near Her Bed.

Mother Makes Frantic Efforts to Rescue Her—Many Persons Rescued from Roofs and Fire Escapes.

Fire, discovered at 10 o'clock yesterday morning in the ladies' tailoring establishment of Mrs. Annie Hirschowitz, on the ground floor of the six-story tenement at 121 and 123 East Third Street, burned a sick child to a crisp and created a wild panic among the tenants of the building. The victim of the fire was the six-year-old daughter of Mrs. Hirschowitz, and from the position in which the body was found after the conflagration it was conjectured that the child had tried to crawl out of bed when overtaken by the flames and killed.

The fire started in the tailoring establishment, no one knows how. Mrs. Hirschowitz went down to the basement, leaving her sick child and her son Charles, twenty-three years old, asleep in the living rooms in the rear of the store. Charles was awakened a few moments later by a dense smoke, and ran out of the house, giving the alarm. The fire spread with great rapidity, the heat breaking the large plate-glass windows and flaming up along the front of the building.

Young Hirschowitz after getting to the outer air remembered that his sister was still in the house, and groped his way back to the sleeping room in search of her. He was driven back by the smoke and flames, and managed to get out through the hallway, with his hands and arms badly burned.

The mother, had by this time come up, and, realizing that her daughter was asleep in the place, rushed frantically to the hallway door and attempted to enter, but was driven back by a sheet of flame. She then ran around to a side door, and in her frenzy smashed in a glass panel and tried to unfasten the door. A bystander, seeing that the woman was only cutting herself with the glass, pulled her away, she fighting desperately all the while. The mother's shrieks and cries so aroused fifteen-year-old Annie Friedman that she started to rush into the smoke and flame filled hallway to rescue the child, but was restrained by the firemen.

There were at least thirty-six families living in the house, and there was a wild panic, the fire escapes swarming with seething masses of struggling, fighting humanity, while many excited persons ran to the roof, where some in their terror threatened to jump off. A policeman ran up to the roof of the house next door, and with a short ladder bridged the intervening space between the buildings and rescued more than a score of people. Some of the women, with their children, on the fire escapes, were preparing to jump, and were only prevented by the firemen scrambling up the ladders and taking them down. In the excitement and clamor mothers went about searching for their children, from whom they had become separated. The police were finally compelled to bundle a number of distracted mothers into a hallway and hold them there to prevent them from rushing into the burning building.

After the fire had been subdued, the firemen found the body of the Hirschowitz child, burned to a crisp, near the bed on which she had been lying. The fire gutted the first and second floors and part of the third and fourth floors, doing $5,000 damage.

When the firemen went through the building after the fire they found a man asleep on the third floor. When awakened and told of the fire he became so frightened that he was with difficulty restrained from jumping out of the window. How the man withstood the smoke is a mystery.

FORGOT BABIES IN PANIC.

Six Children, Left by Mothers, Rescued from Burning Tenement.

Fire starting in the cellar of the six-story double tenement at 108 and 110 Allen Street at 11 o'clock yesterday morning caused a panic among the twenty families living in the building and resulted in a loss of about $3,000.

The cellar and ground floor were occupied by Max Myerson as a paper warehouse. Next is the butcher's store of A. Tuck, and above are the living apartments. The cellar where the fire was discovered was filled with paper of all kinds, and in a few minutes the building was filled with dense smoke.

The tenants in the house made a rush to escape, many women in their excitement and terror leaving their children behind. Fred Kuhlule of 13 East One Hundred and Eighteenth Street and Michael Manning of 320 East Eleventh Street, employes of the Consolidated Gas Company, were passing at the time and they rushed into the building. They found on the third floor in different apartments two children, one six months and the other a year old, who had been abandoned by their fleeing mothers.

The children were taken to the street, where they revived. Four policemen of the Eldridge Street Station each found an abandoned child on one or the other of the upper floors of the burning structure and carried them to safety. Six children in all were rescued thus. A second alarm was sent out, as the firemen had great difficulty in subduing the flames.

WOMAN PERISHES IN A FIRE.

Policeman Who Rescued Several Persons Is Overcome by Smoke.

SIMPSON, CRAWFORD & SIMPSON

January Sale of

Men's High Class Underwear

Heavy natural wool Shirts and Drawers, all sizes—Value $1.00—Special, each.	69c
Medlicott full fashioned heavy natural wool Shirts and Drawers—Value $1.25—Special, each	79c
Norfolk and New Brunswick full fashioned white wool Shirts and Drawers—Regularly $2.00—Special, each	1.25
Dunham Hosiery Co.'s Cashmere Shirts and Drawers, natural, tan and light blue—Formerly $2.00 and $2.25—Each,

Special, 1.25 and 1.50

Nineteenth St. 6th Avenue. Twentieth St.

homeless. Several persons were carried out of the burning buildings by Patrolman Edward O'Connor, who was himself overcome by smoke on his last search of the third building. He was rescued by two firemen and speedily recovered.

Among those saved were Mrs. Minnie Arnacker and her infant child, who was born on New Year's Day. They were taken to the home of a relative.

It was supposed that all the inmates had escaped, and Mrs. Devine's death was not known until her body was found by a fireman at the foot of a ladder leading from the roof of 129. As she lived in 131, it is supposed that when she found her escape cut off by the stairs of the building in which she lived she fled to the roof, descended through the scuttle of the other building, and was then overcome by the smoke and was suffocated where she fell.

The fire originated in the cellar of 129, but the cause was not ascertained. The buildings are owned by Lawrence Purcell, Anthony Dubois, and Michael Zimmer. The total loss will not exceed $2,500.

KILLED BY A FIRE ENGINE.

Elderly Man Run Down and Instantly Crushed to Death.

While Engine Company No. 12 of the station at 261 William Street was responding to an alarm for a fire at 64 Bayard Street yesterday evening, it ran over and instantly killed Louis Balboni, sixty-seven years old, a retired Italian watchmaker. The man's head was almost severed from his body and he was otherwise mangled by the engine's wheels. Toby Marks, the driver, was arrested, but was quickly paroled by Coroner Fitzpatrick.

Balboni, who lived at 202 First Avenue, had just left the store of P. C. Volta & Son, at 25 Mulberry Street. He tried to cross Park Row at the corner of Worth Street, but walked directly under the engine horses' feet, after going past the line of surface cars which had stopped to let the fire apparatus get by. Driver Marks says he could not see Balboni coming from behind the cars.

$30,000 Fire in a Cloak Factory.

A citizen passing the six-story building at 828 Broadway at 2 o'clock yesterday morning saw smoke coming from the two upper floors of the structure. He notified a policeman, who sent in a fire alarm. The fire proved to be in the premises occupied by Salomon & Klapper, wholesale dealers in cloaks. The fire had gained much headway before it was discovered, and $30,000 loss was caused before it could be extinguished.

BIG DOCK FIRE BURIAL SUIT.

Trustees of Cemetery Where Victims Were Interred Sustained.

Judge Otto Crouse of the First District Court, Jersey City, yesterday rendered a decision sustaining the Trustees of Flower Hill Cemetery, in North Bergen Township, who had been charged by the health officers of the township with violating the law in the burial of victims of the great steamship fire in Hoboken on June 30 last. It was alleged that the bodies were interred in a common grave, while the township ordinance requires that there shall be a wall of earth at least twenty inches in thickness between each two graves.

Judge Crouse held that the ordinance, while it might be reasonable, clearly was unreasonable in an emergency such as the steamship companies and the cemetery officials were called upon to deal with, and he pointed out that a strict interpretation of the law would prevent the burial of a mother and child in one grave.

"It is not shown that any nuisance resulted," said the Judge, "or that the manner of burial was in the least detrimental to the public health. The complaint is simply that the terms of the ordinance were violated. Had these terms been complied with, many of the bodies would have remained unburied until they became a serious menace to the health of the community, and the objection is without reason viewed from the standpoint either of science or practical common sense."

MISS GOULD BUYS PROPERTY.

Purchases a Plot from New York University Dean for $27,152.

Miss Helen M. Gould bought yesterday from Charles H. Snow, Dean of the New York University, the property at the corner of Loring Place and One Hundred and Eighty-first Street, or University Avenue as it is called at that point. The property is on the northwest corner, 100 by 188 feet, and the price mentioned in the deed was $18,152 over a mortgage of $9,000.

Miss Gould's secretary when questioned last night in regard to the purchase said that it had nothing to do with the university.

"Miss Gould has a residence on Loring Place adjoining this piece of property," she said, "and she wishes to increase the size of the grounds around it. She saw that this piece of property was for sale and bought it. That is all that the purchase amounts to. It is not significant of anything in regard to the university."

A PROMOTER ARRESTED.

John A. Barham Accused of Conversion by an English Investor.

John A. Barham, a promoter, was arrested yesterday on an order signed by Justice Leventritt of the Supreme Court. Bail was fixed at $2,500.

The arrest is the result of a suit brought against Barham by John W. Richardson of London. In his complaint Richardson says that in 1897 he gave Barham $2,435 with which to purchase a one-fifth interest in a syndicate formed to buy up English patent rights in an acetylene bicycle lamp. The negotiations fell through, and Richardson asserts that he has never been able to get his money back from Barham. He therefore brings suit to recover it, and charges Barham with conversion.

ALLEGED STOCKBROKER HELD.

Wrote Anxious Client Not to Lose Sleep Over His Money, but Failed to Pay.

Walter H. Gates, a member of the firm of G. A. Dew & Co., was arrested yesterday on an order issued by Justice Leventritt, in the Supreme Court, and in default of $1,500 bail was locked up in the Ludlow Street Jail. The arrest was made at the Consolidated Stock Exchange. The complainant in the case was William G. Rhoades.

Rhoades says he received a circular from Gates on the letterhead "G. A. Dew & Co., Bankers and Brokers." The circular

M'DONNELL NERVOUS AT THE PRICE INQUEST

His Attorneys Try to Prove a Case of Self-Defense.

Only Five Witnesses Examined When the Case Is Adjourned—Prisoner's Wife in Court.

Coroner Hart yesterday began the inquest into the death of George Price of 215 East One Hundred and Twenty-second Street, who was shot and killed in the Onawa Café, Park Avenue and One Hundred and Twenty-fifth Street, on last Friday morning by Miles McDonnell. McDonnell and Thomas Kennedy of 161 East One Hundred and Twenty-fifth Street were sworn enemies. The latter, with Price, Eugene Courtney of 592 East One Hundred and Thirtieth Street, and Charles McGuinness entered the saloon about midnight of the morning of the shooting and found McDonnell there. McDonnell called Kennedy aside, an argument followed, Kennedy's friends surrounded the disputants, and the shooting ensued. When Policeman Maher, revolver in hand, ran in, Courtney, groaning on the floor with a bullet in his abdomen, and McDonnell, nonchalantly leaning against the bar holding a smoking pistol, were the only persons in sight.

Not until the next day was it known that three others were injured.

Assistant District Attorney Henry A. Unger and Abraham Levy represented McDonnell, who sat nervously tugging at his mustache and whispered many questions to his counsel. Assistant District Attorneys Le Barbier and Carr appeared for the people.

Patrolman Maher was the first witness. He told of arresting McDonnell, who said as he gave up his revolver: "They tried to do me, and I did them." McDonnell's pistol was a five-chambered weapon. All cartridges had been discharged. Some showed marks of having been struck twice. Two bullet holes were in the ceiling behind where McDonnell stood, one was in the bootblack's stand, and there was a hole in McDonnell's coat just below the lower button.

Dr. Frederick Brower of 100 East One Hundred and Twenty-third Street told of treating Price about 2 A. M. Friday morning. He said there was one wound in his left breast below the heart. He had not probed for the bullet he said.

"Why didn't you probe?" asked Mr. Levy.

Mr. Le Barbier objected.

"I want to show that the man died from neglect, having had no treatment from the time he was shot at midnight until 2 o'clock," said Mr. Levy. Mr. Levy's examination further on indicated that a plea of self-defense will be set up.

Coroner's Physician Weston stated that the wound was fatal, and that no operation could have saved Price's life.

Henry Lankenau, cashier of the Onawa Café, described the shooting. McDonnell was in the saloon, when Kennedy with a party of friends came in. Jurgen Jeutz, the bartender, called his attention to the two men and said that there might be a fight, as there was bad feeling between them. McDonnell beckoned Kennedy and the two talked together. Lankenau thought they were going to make up. He heard McDonnell say: "You bring me the man who says I carry tales." He heard no reply, and the argument grew hotter and hotter. Witness ran to the door to summon the police and a shot was fired.

"Did you hear McDonnell say: 'Now, Tom, you mustn't believe all these stories you hear?'"

"Yes."

"Did you hear Kennedy reply?"

"No."

"Did you hear Abraham Pfizer say: 'Now you've got him, Tom, throw it into him?'"

"No."

"When Pfizer interfered, didn't Kennedy's friends, six men in all, form a semicircle around him?"

"They were all in a bunch."

"How many shots did you hear?"

"About five."

Jurgen Jeutz told a similar story. McDonnell, he said, had told the other barkeeper: "Don't be afraid, there won't be any fight."

"Did you see any struggling?"

"Yes."

"Did you hear anybody say: 'Now I've got you cinched'?"

"No, but I heard McDonnell say: 'What do you mean? Have you come here to do me?'"

After Jentz's testimony Coroner Hart adjourned court until to-day.

JUDGE COMPLIMENTS GARDINER

Calls Grand Jury's Attention to the Late District Attorney's Administration.

Judge Foster, in discharging the December Grand Jury, yesterday, took occasion to compliment former District Attorney Gardiner's conduct of the public prosecutor's office and also to predict a proper and conscientious discharge of the duties of the office by District Attorney Philbin.

"You enjoy a unique distinction," said Judge Foster to the Grand Jury. "You were the last Grand Jury in this county during the nineteenth century and you are the first of the twentieth century. When charging the July Grand Jury I had occasion to say that never before in the history of the General Sessions Courts had the public business been so nearly abreast of the times.

"Since that time the late District Attorney has called to my attention some statistics which may be of interest. When the late District Attorney began the discharge of his official duties there were pending 3,000 indictments. On the 1st of July last there were still pending only 313 of these 3,608. During these three years the District Attorney subpoenaed to the different courts and the Grand Jury over 150,000 witnesses, a total of about 200 a day.

"To-day there are pending only 485 untried indictments, and there are only 396 complaints awaiting the action of the Grand Jury."

"I am neither praising nor criticising. I

JAMES McCREERY & CO.,
BROADWAY AND 11TH STREET.

ANNUAL SALE OF

Tailor-Made Suits.

Commencing on Friday, January 4th.

Extensive stock of Winter Suits,—various models and colors.

Broadcloth, Zibeline, Cheviots and Novelty Fabrics.

Lined throughout with silk.

$13.50, $17.50, $22.50, $27.50 and $32.50;

Former prices $20.00 to $60.00.

Flannels.

Scotch Flannels,—blue-and-white, red-and-white,—or grey-and-white stripes,—suitable for Waists or Pajamas,

25 cents per yard;

Value 45 cents.

Printed French Flannels,—figured stripes,

Waist lengths of 2 1-2 yards,

$1.00 each;

Formerly $2.00.

Shirt Waists.

MANUFACTURER'S ENTIRE STOCK.

French Flannel Waists,—light, medium and dark colors and black.

Tailor made—braided and finished with Taffetas Silk,—"dress" or bishop sleeves,

$1.85;

Value $3.75 to $6.75.

JAMES McCREERY & CO.,
BROADWAY AND 11TH STREET.

LEGAL NOTES.

WHEN DECLARATIONS BY MORTGAGEE ARE INADMISSIBLE.—Eliza Beidleman, a maiden lady, who in the Summer of 1895 was eighty-four years old, had lived by herself on her farm, in Chemung County, until the last two or three years of her life, when occasional sicknesss required some of her relatives to visit her, and at times to remain with her for indefinite periods. In July, 1895, she assigned to John D. Merkle a mortgage for $700, executed ten years previously by her nephew, James F. Beidleman. After her death, the following November, Merkle brought an action to foreclose the mortgage, and Beidleman set up the defense that by a verbal agreement between him and his aunt in 1889 he was to render certain services to her, in looking after her farm and general interests, in consideration of which she was to surrender the mortgage to him, as being paid. Merkle testified that when the mortgage was assigned to him, he agreed to take Miss Beidleman to his own home and care for her the remainder of her days, and he was to pay doctor's bills, furnish medicines, render any help that was necessary to take care of her, and pay funeral expenses and any debts she might leave unpaid. Judgment of foreclosure rendered by the trial Judge was reversed by the Appellate Division, at Albany, which held that the declarations of Miss Beidleman, sought to be proved by the defendants, were improperly ruled out. The Court of Appeals has reversed the Appellate Division, holding, by Judge Bartlett, that the proper disposition of the case was made at the trial in allowing the nephew for his work on her farm an amount equal to the unpaid interest on the mortgage and allowing Merkle judgment for the principal.

***

NEW PROMISE AFTER BANKRUPTCY DISCHARGE.—What amounts to a new promise sufficient to enforce a debt after the debtor has been discharged in bankruptcy, was recently passed upon by the Court of Appeals. Byron E. Hazen, who, in May, 1897, gave a promissory note to Mary Elizabeth Tompkins for $400 at 7 per cent., was discharged in bankruptcy about five years later. On the trial of a suit brought in 1897 by Mrs. Tompkins against Hazen in Cold Springs, N. Y., she testified that he said, "when the City of New York paid him for his property here, he would surprise me and settle with me the whole amount;" and also, "if you will hold on a little longer, until the New York folks pay me, then I will pay you." After making this promise, Mr. Hazen made five different payments in money, and gave Mrs. Tompkins two $10 checks; and afterward sent an order authorizing her to trade at a store to the amount of $15. In the accompanying letter he stated, "This will help you a small amount till I can do better." With a second like order, the accompanying letter stated, "Please keep account of what I have paid you." A judgment rendered for plaintiff for $1,105.33 was affirmed by the Appellate Division in Brooklyn, which held (presiding Justice Goodrich dissenting) that the jury had authority to find a waiver of any condition by Mr. Hazen, and an intention on his part to pay the debt. The Court of Appeals, in directing a reversal, now holds, by Judge Bartlett, that the letters, standing by themselves, contained no promise in writing to pay the note, and did not, with the oral declarations, constitute a subsequent or new promise in writing to pay it.

***

DUTIES OF WATER COMPANIES.—The supply of water furnished by the Kingston Water Company to the premises of Girard L. McEntee of the City of Kingston, where he resided with his wife and children, had lessened in quantity and pressure from 1883 up to the beginning of 1897, and at times wholly failed, in consequence of the increased number of consumers of the company's water, so that at times it was insufficient for his family's needs. Because of the company's failure to furnish the needed supply, Mr. McEntee refused to pay a bill rendered, and then the company shut off the water from the house. A preliminary injunction obtained by Mr. McEntee at Special Term of the Supreme Court in his action to restrain the company from cutting off the water was vacated, and the action was dismissed, and that decision was affirmed by the Appellate Division at Albany. In ordering a reversal, the Court of Appeals, in an opinion by Judge Bartlett, holds that as the company was charged to supply the city and its inhabitants with water, and it having failed under its implied contract with Mr. McEntee to do so, the company would be enjoined from cutting off the customer from its water system, as the rights of the parties must be determined by the court.

JOHN PFIRSIG DISCHARGED.

His Wife Says He Was Not in the House When She Was Shot.

John Pfirsig of 301 East Eighty-third Street, the husband of the woman who lies

A BRIDE HIS PRIZE.

Young Man Makes a Contract to Economize and Be Good for Two Years.

Edward Reynolds, twenty-six years old, who said he was employed in a bank in Newark, N. J., and Angeline Le Marre, twenty-four years old, of Burlington, N. J., called on Justice George L. Seymour of Hoboken yesterday. The Justice supposed they wished to be married, but when he asked them the nature of their business he found that, while marriage was their ultimate object, they had come on a somewhat different mission.

They had been engaged for some time, Reynolds said, but the young woman's parents, who were wealthy, objected for two reasons. First, his salary was only $10 a week, and, secondly, they did not consider him steady enough. They were willing the engagement should continue, but demanded that he should first give proof that his love for their daughter was sincere. To this end, they desired Reynolds to live on $5 a week for two years and save $5 a week, the latter to be paid into a fund, to which Miss Le Marre's parents were to contribute $10 weekly for her. If Reynolds lived up to this agreement for two years they would then withdraw their objections to the marriage.

Justice Seymour drew up the necessary agreement. Two copies were made, and, after they had been duly signed and witnessed, one copy was given to each of the contracting parties, and they returned to Newark.

Amusements.

MADISON SQ. GARDEN
TO-NIGHT
HUNGARIAN PEASANT BALL
THE MERRIEST BALL OF THE SEASON.
Mock marriages, divorces, jail, and general fun,
AND FROLIC IN HUNGARY.
Box office open all day. Admission: Gentlemen $2, Ladies $1, including hat check.

Proctor's 23d St. 5th Ave. 58th St. 125th St. | Continuous Performance. | 15, 25, 50c Vaudeville.
Geo. W. Monroe, Clifford & Huth, Staley & Birbeck, Grapewin & Chance. Papinta, Marcel's Living Statuary; Ross Coghlan & Co., Finneys, Lew Hawkins. Newsky Troupe, 3 Mortons, 3 Yosscarrys, Geo. Day, St. Onge Bros., Etc. Russell Bros., Lew Sully, Backe & Winona Winters, John E. Camp, Etc.

BIJOU. B'way & 30th St. Mat. Sat. Ev., 8:20. Tel. 2224 Mad. Madge Smith. MAY IRWIN
TUES., JAN. 15—
AMELIA BINGHAM presents her COMPANY in Clyde Fitch's latest modern play, THE CLIMBERS

EDEN MUSEE. WORLD IN WAX. New Groupe. CINEMATOGRAPH. Extra Holiday Attraction, Jas. R. Adams Pantomime Co. "HUMPTY DUMPTY." Neapolitan Troubadour Orchestra

BROADWAY Theatre, 41st St. & B'way. Evgs. 8:15. Sat. Mat. 2:15. FUNNIEST OF FUNNY MEN! JEFFERSON DE ANGELIS in Klein & Francis's Laughing Hit, A ROYAL ROGUE. MATINEE TO-MORROW.

HERALD SQUARE THEATRE. Every Eve'g 8:20. LAST MAT. T-M'W. FAREWELL—LAST 2 NIGHTS. Augustus Thomas' Masterwork, ARIZONA. Next Monday, 8 Sharp—Seats Selling—THE GIRL FROM UP THERE.

SKATING RINK
69 WEST 66TH STREET.
HOCKEY MATCH.
CUTLER SCHOOL vs. POMFRET SCHOOL,
Saturday, Jan'y 5th, 8:15 P. M.
Music. Admission, 50 cts. Skates free.

KNICKERBOCKER. Broadway & 38th St. —ADA— REHAN Evs. at 8:25. Mat. Sat. 2:15. "SWEET NELL OF OLD DRURY."

14TH ST. THEATRE, nr. 6th Av. Mats. Wed. & Sat. Last Week of THE VILLAGE POSTMASTER. Next week Mr. CHAUNCEY OLCOTT in a new play, "GARRETT O'MAGH." All new songs.

THE DEWEY E. 14th St. MATINEE TO-DAY. RAMBLER BURLESQUERS. NEW LIVING PICTURES. This Sunday Night—Grand Concert, 25c., 50c.

Amusements.

METROPOLITAN OPERA HOUSE. GRAND OPERA SEASON 1900—1901. Under the Direction of Mr. Maurice Grau. To-night at 8—FAUST, (in French.) Mmes. Melba, Brédewell; MM. Jean and Ed. de Reszke and Scotti. Conductor, Mancinelli.
Sat. Aft., Jan. 5, at 1:45—DIE WALKURE, (in German.) Mmes. Gadski, Schumann-Heink, and Ternina; MM. Van Dyck, Blass, and Bertram. Conductor, Damrosch.
Sat. Ev'g, Jan. 5, at 8, at Popular Prices—IL TROVATORE. (in Italian.) Mmes. Nordica and Olitzka; MM. Campanari, Journet, and Dippel. Conductor, Fion.
Sun. Ev'g, Jan. 6, at 8:15—Grand Popular Concert. Soloists: Mmes. Suzanne Adams, Marylli, and Bridewell; Messrs. Saléza, Campanari, and Plancon, together with entire Met. Opera House Orchestra. Conductor, Mr. Damrosch.
Mon. Ev'g, Jan. 7, at 8—AIDA, (in Italian.) Mmes. Gadski and Homer; MM. Jean and Ed. de Reszke, Journet, and Scotti. Conductor, Fion.
Wed. Ev'g, Jan. 9, at 8—LOHENGRIN, (in German.) Mmes. Nordica and Schumann-Heink; MM. Jean and Ed. de Reszke, Muhlmann, and Bispham. Conductor, Damrosch.
Fri. Ev'g, Jan. 11, at 8—LA BOHEME, (in Italian.) Mmes. Melba and Fritzi Scheff; MM. Saleza, Gilibert, Journet, and Campanari. Conductor, Mancinelli.
WEBER PIANOS USED.

FRENCH BALL of the CERCLE FRANCAIS DE L'HARMONIE, Madison Square Garden, TUESDAY, January 8.
Boxes and tickets at Clubhouse, 24 West 26th St., and principal hotels.

MENDELSSOHN HALL. Tuesday Afternoon, January 8, at 3, and Thursday Afternoon, January 10, at 3. MR. and MRS. GEORG HENSCHEL VOCAL RECITALS. Res. Seats, $1 & $1.50, at Schuberth's, 23 Union Sq Management.....Henry Wolfsohn

MENDELSSOHN HALL. SAT., JANUARY 5, AT 3 P. M. THIRD PIANO RECITAL GABRILOWITSCH. Seats $1.00 and $1.50, on sale at Schuberth's, 23 Union Square, and on after Dec. 24. EVERETT PIANO USED.

MENDELSSOHN HALL. Second Concert. Tues. Ev'g, Jan. 8th, at 8:15 KNEISEL QUARTET. Assisted by Mr. George Proctor, Piano. Res. Seats, $1.50, now at Schuberth's, 23 Union Sq

SOUSA CARNEGIE HALL. Matinee Saturday, Jan. 5th. Evenings, Saturday and Sunday, Jan. 5th and 6th. POPULAR PRICES. SEATS NOW ON SALE.

CASINO B'way & 39th St. Ev., 8:15. Mats. Saturday. FLORODORA

Amusements.

EMPIRE THEATRE. B'way & 40th St. Evgs., 8:20. Matinées, 2:15. "Decided Success."—Herald. Mats. Wed. & Sat. Empire Theatre Company in MRS. DANE'S DEFENCE

GARDEN THEATRE. 27th St. & Mad. Av. Evgs. 8:20. Mats. 2:15. E. S. WILLARD. Every Evg. This Week—DAVID GARRICK. Matinée Saturday—The Professor's Love Story. Nxt Wk every ev'g—Mr. Willard in "Tom Pinch" Matinées Wednesday & Saturday, David Garrick.

Charles Frohman's HARE. CRITERION THEATRE, Broadway & 44th St. Last 8 nights. Mat. Saturday. The Gay Lord Quex

GARRICK THEATRE. 35th St. & B'way. Eves. at 8:15. Matinées, 2:15. Matinées Wednesday and Saturday. WM. H. CRANE as David Harum

MADISON SQ. THEATRE. 24th St. & B'way. Last 2 Nights. Last Matinée To-morrow. THE HOUSE THAT JACK BUILT. Tuesday Next. Seats Ready. Kelcey & Shannon in "My Lady Dainty."

DALY'S B'way & 30th at 8:15. Dan'l Frohman, Mgr. Mats. Wed. & Sat. 2. "A credit to Daly's."—Press. "So good a play sure to last."—Times. Lady Huntworth's Experiment. By R. C. Carton. Author Lord & Lady Algy

WALTER DAMROSCH PIANO RECITALS and Lectures on THE RING of THE NIEBELUNGEN OPERAS Fridays and Tuesdays, Jan. 18, 22, 25 and 29. 2.30 P. M.

LYCEUM 4th Av. & 23d.....At 8:30. Daniel Frohman.....Manager. Matinées Thurs. & Sat., 2:15. ANNIE RUSSELL in A ROYAL FAMILY. A ROYAL FAMILY.

Hammerstein's 42d St., B'y & 7th Av. VICTORIA DRESSLER. Ev. 8:30. Mat. Sat. 2:15. Gen. Adm. 50c. Matinée Prices, 50c, 75c, 1.00. Vaudeville Surprise, MISS PRINNT

ACADEMY OF MUSIC. 14th St. & Irving Pl. QUO VADIS. Wilton Lackaye, Elita Proctor Otis, Aubrey Boucicault. Prices, 25, 50, 75, 1.00. Mats. Wed. & Sat. 2. Ev. 8

THE NEW YORK, B'way, 45 St. Ev. 8:15. Mats. Wed. & Sat. New special vaudeville features. Followed by Sydney Rosenfeld's Successful review, The GIDDY THRONG.

MANHATTAN THEATRE. 33d & B'way. Evg., 8:15. Mats. Wed. & Sat. THE BURGOMASTER.

WEBER & FIELDS' MUSIC HALL. Evgs, 8:15, Sharp. Mats. Tues., Sat., 2 and Burlesques of Gay Lord

O'Neill's.

Special January Clearing Sale of Misses' and Children's Coats.

CHILDREN'S BOX REEFERS, made of fine Kersey, Tan, Castor, Blue or Red, formerly 10.00,

Reduced to 7.98 each.

CHILDREN'S LONG BOX COATS, of fine Kersey, Castor, Blue or Red, formerly 15.00,

Reduced to 12.98 each.

MISSES' BOX JACKETS, of Oxford Cheviot, velvet Collar and stitched Reveres, formerly 14.00,

Reduced to 9.98 each.

Semi-Annual Sale of Women's Muslin Underwear Still Continues.

Sixth Avenue, 20th to 21st Street.

January Clearing Sale of Blankets, Commencing Friday, January 4th.

White Blankets,
For single size beds,
$2.50, $3.25, $5 per pair.
For full size beds,
$2.75, $3.50, $5, $6 per pair.
For extra size beds,
$5, $7.50, $12 per pair.

Lord & Taylor,
Broadway & 20th St.

Annual FINANCIAL REVIEW THE NEW YORK TIMES

THE Annual Financial Review of January 7, 1901, will contain:

Elaborate tables showing the fluctuations during the present year of the important securities, listed and unlisted, and of the principal staples;

Accurate accounts of the exports and imports of the country for the year, and statistics of the precious metals;

A survey of world conditions in finance and trade;

Special articles and interviews with men of note, showing the outlook for business in this country at the opening of the new year;

Signed articles by specialists giving the best attainable information as to the condition of the principal industries of the United States at the close of the present year and the promise for 1901;

And also a comprehensive review of conditions in the principal countries of the world, with particular reference to American trade, by special correspondents and governmental officers in these lands.

Order in advance from your newsdealer.

THE NEW YORK TIMES
Daily 1 Cent. Sunday 3 Cents.
"All the News That's Fit to Print."

SUNDAY, THREE CENTS. DAILY, ONE CENT.

"All the News That's Fit to Print."

The New York Times.

THE WEATHER.
Fair and colder; brisk northwesterly winds.

COPYRIGHT, 1901, BY THE NEW YORK TIMES COMPANY.

VOL. L...NO. 15,911. NEW YORK, SATURDAY, JANUARY 5, 1901.—Fourteen Pages and Supplement. ONE CENT In Greater New York, Jersey City, and Newark. } Elsewhere. } TWO CENTS.

ISSUE WITH VENEZUELA FEARED AT WASHINGTON

This Government May Have to Interfere in "Asphalt War."

MR. LOOMIS'S SECRET DISPATCH

Bermudez Company Fortify the Lakes —President Castro May Use His Troops Against Them.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—A dispatch from Minister Loomis at Caracas received to-day at the State Department has convinced the Administration that the so-called "asphalt war" is rapidly assuming serious proportions This much was admitted, although the dispatch was withheld. The gravity of the situation was in fact given as a reason for suppressing Mr. Loomis's news. There is a strong probability that the asphalt war will shortly cease to be a fight between two corporations and become an issue between the United States and Venezuela.

It is reported that the New York and Bermudez Company has armed its employes and is fortifying the asphalt lakes. The owners of the Felicidad concession have the backing of the Venezuelan Government. There have for several days been rumors that the Venezuelan President would support the Felicidad people by force of arms. The fortification of the lakes is regarded by President Castro, it is said, as rebellion. In case he attempts to put down this rebellion by force the United States will warn him to desist.

The New York and Bermudez Company obtained a concession from Venezuela which the company construed as covering all asphalt lakes in the Department of Bermudez The Venezuelan Government construed it as covering only certain lakes, and subsequently the Government granted another concession, the one called La Felicidad, to a company which took that name. The New York and Bermudez Company announced its determination to resist any attempt by the Felicidad people to take possession of the territory covered in the new concession The Felicidad Company appealed to the Government of Venezuela for support. In the meantime suit had been brought to determine the Government's right to grant the second concession, and this suit is now pending before the courts.

The United States holds that both parties and the Venezuelan Government should await the decision of the Court before taking any action. If, therefore, President Castro, in advance of the Court's decision, shall attempt to crush the New York and Bermudez Company by the use of the National Army, the United States will certainly protest. This much being known, the withholding of the admittedly serious dispatch of Minister Loomis gives rise to many surmises. It is suspected that he has reported the intention of President Castro to attack the fortified position of the New York and Bermudez Company.

On Wednesday a dispatch was received from him announcing that the trouble at the Bermudez Lakes had been "thwarted." The curious use of the word "thwarted" gave rise to the impression that there was a telegraphic error in the dispatch. It is now known that the dispatch was correct and that the trouble then referred to had been averted. This trouble was a threatened conflict between the forces of the two companies.

Minister Loomis's second dispatch, received to-day, cannot, therefore, refer to a fight between the two companies, and it is almost certain that it refers to some action or contemplated action by the Venezuelan Government. It is admitted at the State Department that the situation is more serious than ever before.

The United States is represented in Venezuelan waters by the Scorpion, the Hartford and the Buffalo. The Scorpion was reported at La Guayra to-day.

FRENCH RECIPROCITY TREATY.

Measure Likely to Be Pressed with Earnestness at This Session of Congress.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—The French reciprocity treaty which was before the Senate at the last session of Congress, and the time for the ratification of which was extended because of the failure of the Senate to take it up, will be pressed with some earnestness at this session, and it is said that those who are convinced that its provisions will be beneficial to both countries will present arguments additional to those urged a year ago.

It is known, however, that the manufacturers of woolen goods, who are enjoying very high protection, and the manufacturers of knit goods expect to repeat with success their arguments of last year against the ratification of this or any reciprocity agreement that will injuriously affect the protection secured in the Dingley bill.

One argument to be urged for the adoption of the reciprocity treaty is that the rates of the Dingley law, to which the McKinley law was a mild dose of protection, and the tariff law of 1883, a free trade measure, have both become practically obsolete and burdensome with the development of some of the industries that now produce goods to be sold abroad at lower prices than they can be purchased at home.

The knit goods manufacturers boasted here last Winter that they prevented the ratification of the reciprocity treaty, and that they would come back here again to defeat it if it was taken up. The objection of this interest to the treaty is that it offers some advantage to the French manufacturers of knit goods of high grade which the American manufacturers have not yet produced in quantities or in quality equal to the French product, and that they need the support of the consumers of knit goods by a subvention before they can compete with France.

New Name for the Kaiser Wilhelm II.

BERLIN, Jan. 4.—Emperor William has consented to a change in the name of the steamship Kaiser Wilhelm II. of the New York-Genoa division of the North German Lloyd Line, to "Hohenzollern." He will permit his own name to be given to one of the great vessels being constructed for the company at the Vulcan yards at Stettin.

TO-DAY,
FOURTEEN PAGES
WITH REVIEW OF BOOKS AND ART.

INDEX TO DEPARTMENTS.

Stocks strong. Financial Affairs.—Pages 10 and 11.
Wheat, No. 2 red, 82¼c; corn, No. 2 mixed, 46c; oats, No. 2 mixed, 28½c; cotton, middling, 10⅛c; iron, Northern, No. 1 Foundry, $16; butter, Western creamery, 25c. Commercial World.—Page 12.

THINKS AGUINALDO IS DEAD.

Benjamin Ide Wheeler Says He Has Information from the Philippines —Lopez Ridicules the Report.

Benjamin Ide Wheeler, President of the University of California, believes that Emilio Aguinaldo, the Filipino chief, is dead. Prof. Wheeler, who is at the Waldorf-Astoria, has under his charge the children of several leading Filipinos, and he received the information of Aguinaldo's death from letters sent to his charges by their parents. He considers the information trustworthy.

CHICAGO, Jan. 4.—"This is about the fortieth time Aguinaldo has been killed," laughed Señor Sixto Lopez, the Filipino agent, when he was shown the report today that the insurgent leader was dead, which had come through President Wheeler of the University of California, and was based upon the statements of Filipino students in his charge.

"I think it would be very foolish to attach any importance to the prattle of these students," continued Mr. Lopez. "I know the Buencamino family in Manila, and I am certain they are not in a position to be intrusted with great secrets by the Filipinos. Before the Americans came Buencamino was very loyal to the Spanish. Then he became a Filipino leader for a short time, and now he is an American.

"Do you think it is likely he could get information of this kind, so long before it came to the ears of Gen. MacArthur? All that I can say definitely about the matter is that Aguinaldo was alive when I received my last advices.

"But the death of Aguinaldo would really not make so very much difference in carrying on the campaign. There are other Generals in the field who are just as capable as Aguinaldo, and if he was killed the war would go right on just the same. Indeed, there is a very strong element among the aristocracy of the Filipinos who would prefer to have a leader of their own class. Aguinaldo was not a member of the aristocracy, but his services have been so great that no very strong opposition has been made to him on that account. If he could be succeeded by a member of the aristocracy, however, it would give satisfaction in a great many quarters."

Mr. Lopez thought the war likely to continue indefinitely, unless some terms of settlement could be agreed upon. He described the organization of the Filipinos as very strong and their determination to win independence as unchangeable.

FILIPINO OFFICERS CAPTURED.

Admiral Remey Reports a Big Haul at Cavite Viejo—Gens. Wheaton and Bates Active.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—The following dispatch was received at the Navy Department this afternoon from Admiral Remey:

Manila, Jan. 4.

Bureau of Navigation, Washington:

An attack on the morning of the 3d by the Fourth Infantry, marines, and navy at Cavite Viejo, resulted in the capture of one Lieutenant Colonel, two Majors, five Captains, one Lieutenant, forty-eight private insurrectos, and four Ladrones.

REMEY.

MANILA, Jan. 4.—Gens. Wheaton and Bates report many small captures, the destruction of insurgent camps, and the seizure of supplies, animals, and other necessities. Among the captures in Smith's district was Col. Techon, the insurgent Governor of Tarlac.

Gen. Grant is personally in command of a mounted expedition in the mountains of Southern Pampangas, which, he says, is the only locality where the insurgents are in force in his district.

Insurgents entered Gapan and San Isidro, in Gen. Funston's district, at night time, and burned a score of houses. Their firing was ineffective.

Gen. MacArthur has commuted several death sentences by military courts to imprisonment.

The enactment of the School bill has been deferred on account of the desire of the Filipinos to be heard on the bill as completed. It differs radically from the one prepared by Superintendent Atkinson and indorsed by Gen. MacArthur. The latter appropriated $1,650,000 outright, to be disbursed through Mr. Atkinson under the supervision of Gen. MacArthur. The completed bill directly appropriates only $40,000, and reserves to the commission authority over plans for schoolhouses and also requires Mr. Atkinson to report to both Gen. MacArthur and the commission.

The commission has authorized the Department of Public Instruction to proceed with the business intrusted to its administration.

Many inquiries have been received here from the provinces concerning the Federal Party. The organizers are establishing a daily newspaper and three weeklies, to be published in Spanish and Tagalog, in the Province of Pampanga.

The Philippine Commission has passed a bill appointing trustees to institute legal proceedings to determine whether the ownership and control of the San José Medical College, established in the seventeenth century, are vested in the Church or in the United States Government.

BROOKLYN CAR LINES WIN.

Railroad Commissioners Without Authority to Compel Transfers—The Gates Avenue Complaint.

ALBANY, Jan. 4.—The State Board of Railroad Commissioners to-day rendered two decisions on complaints made by the Broadway Board of Trade of Brooklyn against the Brooklyn Heights Railroad Company. The board decides that it is without jurisdiction to compel the granting of transfers on the street surface cars operated by the company at Myrtle Avenue and Broadway and at Lorimer Street and Broadway, and that complaint is dismissed.

The other complaint was that the company has failed to run all Greene and Gates Avenue cars through to Ridgewood, and in relation to that the board, in its decision, says:

We are officially informed by the President of the Brooklyn Heights Railroad Company that heretofore and up to the time when this change in operation was made at a point on the Gates Avenue Line, between Throop and Sumner Avenues, the company operated sidings laid the broad way of the street. As a result of legal proceedings instituted by property owners of the vicinity, the company was compelled to take up these sidings.

Recently, however, negotiations have been had with respect to the re-establishment of these sidings at a point a little further east, a citizen offering to lease to the company the right to lay its sidings in front of his property. The negotiations for this purpose are now under way, and the President of the railroad company has informed the board that he will use all diligence in putting the former system into operation again. This will obviate the complaint so far as it relates to lack of shelter at this point while making transfers in inclement weather.

FIVE FIANCEES IN ONE CHOIR.

The Rev. William Sanft, pastor of Zion Lutheran Church, at McAdoo Avenue and the Hudson Boulevard, in the Greenville district of Jersey City, said yesterday that he expected to have almost an entirely new choir in his church by midsummer.

When asked the reason, he said he had been informed that five young women who now form part of the choir were to be married during the Spring and early Summer. He did not give their names, nor the names of the bridegrooms-to-be, but added that the latter did not belong to the choir

THAMES STEAMBOAT SERVICE.

LONDON, Jan. 5.—The Daily Express, which continues to publish instances of British and other European contracts for

ST. PAUL RAILROAD DEAL

President Earling Disposes of All His Holdings.

FROM NEW YORK TO THE COAST

Great Northern Interests Now Dominate the Situation—Rockefeller and Morgan Interested.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 4.—President Albert J. Earling of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway, to-day sold his 20,000 shares of stock in the road, thereby confirming beyond question the report that the St. Paul had been acquired by the Great Northern interests.

James J. Hill will enter the Directory in a few days and within a month it will be part of a continuous line under one control from New York to Seattle. The Baltimore and Ohio Road may be the Eastern link.

Mr. Earling's sale of his stock to the triumvirate of railroad magnates sets the seal of certainty upon the scheme which up to to-night was only a rumor.

Earling was not the only big Chicagoan to part with his stock. Marshall Field is reported to have disposed of his stock, amounting to $3,000,000. The Alexander Mitchell estate parted with $2,000,000 worth, and the heirs of the late George T. Smith, the eccentric Scotchman, are said to have disposed of $5,000,000 more.

The line has passed into the control of J. J. Hill, J. Pierpont Morgan, and John D. Rockefeller. The great transcontinental system for which these giants have been bending their energies for months is now in sight.

MORE VOTES FOR QUAY.

B. F. Welty Will Support the Ex-Senator —Mahon to Join His Forces.

WAYNESBOROUGH, Penn., Jan. 4.—Benjamin F. Welty, one of the two Republican Representatives from Franklin County in the Pennsylvania Legislature, announces that he will cast his vote for Mr. Quay for United States Senator on Jan. 15.

Mr. Welty did not participate in the caucus at Harrisburg on Tuesday night, when Mr. Quay was the unanimous choice of the 123 Republicans present, and his name is on the pledge signed by the anti-Quay legislators. Mr. Welty acknowledges that he signed both Quay and anti-Quay pledges, but that he has determined to abide by the pledge to support the caucus nominee which he signed before receiving the nomination.

The Quay leaders claim that the accession of Mr. Welty gives them the 127 votes necessary to elect, those who were not able to participate in the caucus being certain to vote for Mr. Quay.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Jan. 4.—It is reported in political circles to-night that Representative Mahon of the Third District of Luzerne County will vote for Quay for United States Senator on joint ballot. Mr. Mahon did not vote for Speaker Marshall, and refused to enter the Senatorial caucus. In following this course, the friends of ex-Senator Quay claim that Mahon has fulfilled any pledges he made to the anti-Quayites and that now he can follow his own judgment in voting for Senator.

Mr. Mahon was not elected by anti-Quay votes. Fuller Hendershot, an avowed anti-Quay man, ran against him, and it is said this will be Mr. Mahon's reason for change of base, should he, as rumored, decide to vote for Quay.

DEMOCRATS TO FIGHT GORMAN.

He Has Little Chance for Senatorship— J. K. Cowen May Be Elected.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Jan. 4.—The Independent Democrats who led in the fight against Gorman's re-election to the United States Senate four years ago will take the same stand this year.

One of the leaders of this influential element in the party said to-day that Postmaster Warfield and others who control a large enough vote to hold almost the balance of power between the regular Democratic and Republican Parties would fight Gorman again if he became a candidate for the Senatorship. It is doubtful if John K. Cowen would support Gorman.

The fact that President Cowen of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, as a leader of the Independent Democrats, is working with United States Senator McComas to secure from President McKinley the appointment of Theodore Marburg, the wealthy tobacco manufacturer and a leading Republican, as Minister to Vienna, is taken to mean that the old alliance between the independent Democrats and the Republicans has been renewed.

Whether one of its purposes is the election of Cowen to the Senatorship to succeed Wellington in the event of the Republicans securing control of the Legislature through the aid of the Independents remains to be seen. McComas and Cowen are close friends.

Senator Baker Gives Up His Fight.

TOPEKA, Kan., Jan. 4.—United States Senator Lucien Baker this afternoon withdrew as a candidate for re-election. Mr. Baker issued the following statement:

"After mature investigation, I am satisfied that I cannot be elected. To those of my friends who have stood by me I am under deep and lasting obligations." This apparently leaves the nomination assured to J. R. Burton.

Baseball Situation in Baltimore.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., Jan. 4.—Charles Sommers of the Cleveland Club, American League, had a conference to-night with McGraw and Robinson over the new league plans. It was said after the meeting that an American League would go right ahead and seek no compromise with the National League. The fact, however, remains that McGraw is in frequent communication by wire and letter with National League magnates. He holds the key to the whole baseball situation. The papers of incorporation of the Baltimore Baseball and Athlete Company were filed in court to-day. The Rev. John D. Boland, a prominent Catholic priest, a close friend of McGraw, together with Conway Sams, the noted bicycle league man; James P. Shannon, a hotel proprietor, and McGraw and Robinson, are among the incorporators. Grounds will probably be leased next week. The stock of the new company, 400 shares at $100 a share, has all been subscribed.

Black Laborers for Rhodesia Mutiny.

BEIRA, Portuguese East Africa, Jan. 4.—On the arrival of the German steamer Hertzog at Beira, 136 Abyssinians and Somalis for the Rhodesian mines, the "boys," as they are called, were informed

FIREMAN'S COLD RIDE.

He Was Bathing When Alarm Sounded but Drove His Truck Though Attired Only in a Rubber Coat.

NEWARK, N. J., Jan. 4.—Herman Hanke, the driver of Truck No. 4, distinguished himself yesterday afternoon by driving his apparatus to a fire attired in nothing but a rubber coat. He was taking a bath on the upper floor of the truckhouse when the gong clanged for a fire at 82 Darcy Street. The horses ran to the pole, and the men took their places, and Capt. O'Brien was about to mount the seat and drive when Hanke shot down the brass pole absolutely naked and leaped to his seat. As he did so he slipped on his rubber coat, and with it only partly buttoned pulled the release cord, and the apparatus rolled out so quickly that Capt. O'Brien only recovered from his surprise in time to catch on to the rear and swing himself onto the ladders.

Within two minutes the driver's hair was frozen stiff; he had not even waited to put on a cap. The water on his legs froze, but with one bare foot upon the gong and the other upon the brake he sent his horses flying down the street. Half way to the fire an old countryman driving a horse and wagon became confused and stopped his rig directly in front of the truck. Hanke by quick work carried his horses around, and the tillerman succeeded in getting his end past the frightened countryman by a couple of inches.

The fire was soon out, and Hanke was supplied with a pair of rubber boots and a couple of coats, one of which was wrapped about his legs, and thus drove his truck back to the house. When the house was reached Hanke resumed his bath.

YOUNG JEFFERSON RAN AWAY.

Grandson of the Actor Taken in Out of the Cold Near Yonkers.

YONKERS, N. Y., Jan. 4.—Joseph Jefferson, son of Thomas Jefferson of Montclair, N. J., and grandson and namesake of the actor, was a guest of the Yonkers police for several hours this morning. About midnight last night the operator in Tower No. 16 of the New York Central Railroad heard some one rapping on the tower house door, and, on opening it, found a boy. The lad was cold and tired, and was admitted to the room.

When questioned he told who he was and who and where his father was and lived, and also about his grandfather. He went on to say he was twelve years old, and had been taken to Dobbs Ferry to attend a military school. He did not like the school, so early last evening departed. He walked as far as Tower No. 16, and, being cold, asked for shelter. Detectives Robinson and Connolly went up to Tower No. 16 and took him in charge, in response to the request of the operator, telegraphed here. The boy was fed and made comfortable. This morning Manager Bright of the Yonkers Theatre took charge of him and took him to Montclair.

PASTOR RESIGNS TO TEACH.

Leaves His Church to Be Independent of the Officials.

Special to The New York Times.

GREENWICH, Conn., Jan. 4.—The Rev. William W. Davidson, until now pastor of the Congregational Church at North Mianus, has resigned his pastorate to devote his time to teaching the North Mianus Italians the English language.

It will be remembered that some weeks ago the officials of the church refused the pastor's request that he be allowed to open a night school for the Italians in the church. Mr. Davidson will now open a school independently of the church or public school authorities, and has already secured a room with the aid of his friend, Henry O. Havemeyer.

ANOTHER USE FOR CATFISH.

New Orleans Shipper Declares They Are Largely Sold as Sturgeon.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 4.—The demand of the salmon canners for an investigation by the United States Fish Commission of the truthfulness of the story that Louisiana catfish are being shipped North to be chemically treated and substituted for canned salmon caused A. P. Rabito, a leading fish shipper of this city, to give some information to-day. He said:

"I have never shipped catfish North to be turned into canned salmon, but I do know beyond a doubt that great quantities of catfish are now being sent East from this State to be prepared and sold as sturgeon. I now have one order alone for one carload of catfish from a big sturgeon dealer in the East, who will sell them as sturgeon. The catfish and sturgeon are similar in many respects, and the substitution is easy.

"No; I won't tell who the dealers are that substitute catfish for sturgeon, but there are so many of them in the East that it would not make much difference, anyway."

TO COMMAND THE ILLINOIS.

Capt. Robley D. Evans the New Battleship's First Commander.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT NEWS, Jan. 4.—According to current gossip around the shipyards Capt. Robley D. Evans will be the first commander of the new battleship Illinois, which is rapidly nearing completion in Newport News. Capt. Evans is also scheduled to succeed Admiral Schley as commander of the South American station after Schley returns to the United States preparatory to being retired.

OSSIFIED MAN IS DEAD.

W. A. Bloomer's Strange Affliction Ends Fatally in St. Luke's Hospital.

William A. Bloomer, who achieved fame as the ossified man of St. Luke's Hospital, died yesterday afternoon in the hospital, after a long illness, at the age of thirty-five. The case was considered a most remarkable one, and attracted much attention from physicians all over the country.

Nearly three years ago Mr. Bloomer suffered from acute rheumatism, which became so aggravated that he had to be removed to St. Luke's Hospital. Very soon ossification set in, his feet being the first parts of his body to be attacked. The malady spread over his whole body, until he was perfectly helpless, and unable to take anything but liquid food. He, however, retained all his senses, except that of touch, until the last. Mr. Bloomer was at one time an engineer in the Government service, and was in charge of the engines of the Dolphin during the Cleveland Administration. The Dolphin was the boat on which Mr. Cleveland made his famous duck-shooting excursions.

AMBASSADOR STARTS FOR ITALY.

George von L. Meyer to Sail on the Fuerst Bismarck To-day.

BOSTON, Jan. 4.—George Von L. Meyer, United States Ambassador to Italy, left Boston for New York to-day.

He was accompanied by Mrs. Meyer, children, and a corps of servants. They will sail from New York to-morrow on the steamer Fürst Bismarck.

All Ferrouh Reinstated at Washington.

LONDON, Jan. 5.—"All Ferrouh Bey, who

BEARS IN WILD PANIC SCRAMBLE TO COVER

A Record-Breaking Day on the Stock Exchange.

Recorded Transactions Reach the Unprecedented Total of 1,827,400 Shares —Enormous Trading in St. Paul.

Wall Street yesterday was treated to a phenomenal display of strength and activity in the stock market. In point of activity, indeed, all past records were surpassed. Actually recorded transactions ran to the largest total ever known—1,827,400—while, if stop orders and other unrecorded transactions were to be included, the total business for the day would, it was estimated, easily reach the enormous aggregate of 2,500,000 shares. In one stock alone, and that St. Paul, which led the market's advance, no fewer than 251,000 shares were dealt in—more than the total sales of all stocks for a full day while the dullness of last midsummer ruled. The buying was on a tremendous scale all through the list, with Morgan, Hill, Vanderbilt, and Standard Oil interests conspicuous as purchasers.

It was more than a bull market; it was a bear panic. Many traders and operators who, on the day previous, when the sharp break in prices occurred, had been persistent short sellers of stocks, were at some time or other during the day forced to cover; and the longer they deferred the covering the greater were their losses. Shortly after the market opening, when St. Paul began to show resistance to the pressure put upon it, a number of the shorts hastened to cover their commitments, but, on the other hand, most of the large Western operators who were short of the market undertook to fight the advance by putting out a fresh line of short stock. Under the impetus of the enormous buying by the large financial interests, however, augmented later by purchases for commission house accounts, the market went higher and still higher, until, at the close, the bears were in full rout and were wildly scrambling in their endeavor to cover their contracts. The scene on the floor then, as, indeed, all day long, was one of great excitement, and much difficulty was experienced in executing orders.

The opening of the market gave little indication or suggestion of what was to follow. In sympathy with the lower London prices—the market there being disturbed by the fears of higher money and suggestions of foreign complications growing out of the Chinese situation—prices here opened down from a point to a point and a half below the close of Thursday. At first the upward movement was slow, but as the buying orders accumulated and were put into the market, the figures began to soar, until, as indicated, prices at the close were in many cases from two and three to thirteen points higher than the final figures of Thursday.

The advance of St. Paul was the feature of the market. From a low figure of 145 it rose almost by leaps and bounds to a high figure of 158¾, closing at 158½, a net gain of 12¾ points. The trading in the stock was on an enormous scale, one block of 12,000 shares coming out, while blocks of 5,000 were not unusual. The buying was attended by numerous reports, the one receiving most credence being that the road was to be leased to Northern Pacific and Great Northern, a common stock, now paying 5 per cent. dividends, being guaranteed 6 per cent. for the first two years and 7 per cent. thereafter. Incidentally, Northern Pacific rose 6⅛ points, and Great Northern 6.

In the early afternoon, to add to the excitement, a report, apparently coming from good sources, told of further announcements shortly to be made in relation to the coal roads, whereupon the coal stocks became strong and active under the leadership of Jersey Central, which rose sharply 8¼ points, the quotation at one time jumping 2¾ points between transactions.

Sugar Trust stock also had a sensational rise, appreciating 5 points on the reports of the likelihood of an early settlement of the trade war.

The story of the day, however, is best told by the advances themselves, some of the more important of which are here given:

RAILROAD STOCKS.

Atchison	1¾	Trie 2d pf	2¼
Atchison pf	2⅜	Great North	6
Balt. & Ohio	2¼	Illinois Central	3½
Jersey Central	8½	Iowa Central	2
Burlington	3⅞	Iowa Central pf	3½
Chi. Great Western	1½	Louisville & Nash	1⅜
Chi. Gt. West. pf., B.	3	Missouri Pacific	3½
St. Paul	12¾	New York Central	2¾
Northwestern	4	Northern Pacific	6½
Rock Island	4	Pennsylvania	4⅜
Three Cs	2½	Reading	4⅜
Del. & Hudson	5½	Reading 1st pf	2½
Lackawanna	2	Reading 2d pf	2½
Erie	1½	Union Pacific	2½
Erie 1st pf	3⅜	Union Pacific pf	1⅜

STEEL STOCKS.

Steel & Wire	1	National Steel	1⅛
Tin Plate	3½	National Tube	1½
Colorado Fuel	1¾	Tennessee Coal	1¾
Federal Steel	2¼

OTHER INDUSTRIALS.

Sugar	4⅞	Continental Tobacco	1⅝
American Tobacco	1½	National Biscuit	2¼
Consolidated Gas	2¾	People's Gas	2½

LOCAL RAILWAY SHARES.

Brooklyn Rapid Tr.	2	Metropolitan	1½
Manhattan	1⅝

The transactions already recorded for the three business days of this year amount to 4,091,778 shares, more than double the amount traded in during the same period last year. In bonds the increase is almost as great, the total this year being $10,756,150, against $5,416,700 for the like number of days a year ago. Back in November, 1876, the shares of the St. Paul Road could have been purchased on the New York Exchange at 18½, and during the great boom of 1881 the top notch price was 129½, figures that were not again passed until 1899, when 136⅛ was touched. In 1890 St. Paul sold at 44, in 1893 the lowest price was 46⅝, in 1895 53⅛, and in 1896 50⅞. These were nearly all times of great weakness, in which St. Paul suffered in common with all other railroad properties. From 1880 to 1884 the dividend rate on the common shares was 7 per cent., in 1885 it fell to 4, in 1886 rose again to 5. In 1888 only 2½ per cent. was paid, while from that time until 1892 nothing was paid. In the latter year 2 per cent. was declared. In 1893 and 1894 the rate was 4 per cent., in 1895 2 per cent., in 1896 4 per cent., and since then 5 per cent.

TRAGEDY IN MOBILE, ALA.

Painter Kills a Man for Calling on His Divorced Wife.

MOBILE, Ala., Jan. 4.—This afternoon near the centre of the city Oscar Mann, a painter, killed Claude Norden, a clerk. Norden was reproving an associate for using foul language on the street, when Mann reached over his shoulder and thrust a long knife into his jugular. Norden died in about five minutes.

Mann was arrested, and denies that he cut Norden. The animus of the attack is said to be that Norden had been visiting Mann's divorced wife.

Will of Charles Higgins of Chicago.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 4.—The will of Charles Higgins, filed for probate to-day, disposes of an estate estimated at $200,000.

CANADIAN FISHING RIGHTS.

Modus Vivendi with the United States Renewed for Another Year

Special to The New York Times.

OTTAWA, Jan. 4.—The modus vivendi in respect to United States fishing vessels on the Atlantic Coast has been renewed for another year, that is, for 1901, by the Dominion Government, by order in council.

The act provides that United States fishing vessels may for the year 1901 purchase bait, ice, seines, lines, and all other supplies and outfits. It also makes provision for the transshipment of catches and the shipping of crews. The fee charged for such is to be $1.50 per ton on actual registered tonnage, and the term to expire on the 31st day of December, 1901.

EXPLOSION KILLS THREE MEN.

Blowing Up of Dynamite Destroys New Jerseymen at Thompson's Point.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 4.—A terrific explosion occurred about noon to-day in the "tawning" building of the Repauno Chemical Company's powder works, at Thompson's Point, N. J., on the Delaware River, twenty miles below the city.

Three men are reported to have been instantly killed by the explosion, the force of which was felt for many miles around.

The building in which the explosion occurred was a one-and-a-half-story frame affair, and was apart from the other portion of the works. The dead men had been punching the dynamite into eight-inch paper shells for use in blasting. Fragments of the men were picked up over a hundred feet away from the wrecked building.

Officials of the company say they cannot estimate the loss, but it is thought it will not be over $5,000.

OFFICERS FLEE FROM SHOTGUN

Was in the Hands of a Woman Who Once Killed a Man.

PLAINFIELD, N. J., Jan. 4.—Constables Rockafellow and Mattox went to New Providence this morning to serve a dispossess notice on Mr. and Mrs. Fingerhut. Thomas Murphy has been trying to get the Fingerhuts out of his house for three months, and finally obtained the notice. The constables found Mrs. Fingerhut at home, but she refused to accept the summons to appear in Justice Mosher's court, and the constables alleged that she seized a shotgun and threatened to kill them. The officers then fled.

The notice reads that the Fingerhuts must vacate the house by Jan. 9. Mrs. Fingerhut killed Charles Roehrich of New York while he, with the aid of several men, was trying to dispossess her from one of his houses, but was pardoned after serving six months of her sentence.

HONDURAS SYNDICATE SUIT.

Testimony Taken in a Case Which Concerns Many Well-Known Persons.

NEWARK, N. J., Jan. 4.—Taking of testimony in the great Honduras contract litigation commenced this afternoon in the Prudential Building before Nicholas W. Bindseil, representing the United States District Court. The action is instituted by the Honduras Company of Georgia against the Honduras syndicate of New Jersey. It is claimed that the law firm of Stetson, Tracy, Jennings & Russell were retained as general counsel for the company, and that late in 1896 it was discovered that they had abandoned it for the syndicate, which was organized by Senator Chauncey M. Depew, H. Walter Webb, W. Seward Webb, John Jacob Astor, and others.

The complainant asks, among other things, that the syndicate be directed to transfer to it every beneficial interest it may have in the contracts with Honduras, which are understood to cover railroad building, banking, immigration, and tremendous special privileges of various kinds. Jacob R. Shipheard, organizer of the Georgia company, was the first witness. He introduced many exhibits.

CHIEF DEVERY IN HARLEM.

Calls on Capt. Dean and Has a Consultation with Him.

Chief Devery visited the East One Hundred and Twenty-sixth Street Police Station at 1:30 this morning and asked for Capt. Dean.

Sergt. Delancey, who was on duty, informed the Chief that the Captain had retired, but immediately sent a patrolman to awaken him.

Capt. Dean and the Chief were in consultation for some time, but the nature of their conference could not be learned.

It is said that a number of gambling houses exist in Capt. Dean's precinct and the conference may have been in relation to them.

$50,000,000 MORTGAGE FILED.

Instrument Recorded in White Plains Covers Third Avenue Railway.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Jan. 4.—One of the largest mortgages ever recorded in the Register's Office of Westchester County was filed here to-day. The mortgage is for $50,000,000, and is the one given by the Third Avenue Railroad Company to the Morton Trust Company as part of the plan under which the Third Avenue Railroad was leased by the Metropolitan Street Railway Company in May last.

The mortgage had to be recorded in this county in order to cover the property of the Westchester Electric, the Yonkers, the Southern Boulevard, the Tarrytown, White Plains, and Mamaroneck Street Railways, and the Union Railway, which are controlled by the Third Avenue line. There were $17,500 worth of revenue stamps attached to the instrument.

RUBBER TRUST CUTS PRICES.

Makes a Reduction of 5 Per Cent. on Its Products.

BOSTON, Jan. 4.—The United States Rubber Company has cut the prices of its products, beginning to-day, 5 per cent., and the company will rebate to its jobbers 5 per cent. on all goods now on hand.

Negotiations which have been pending with the fourteen independent companies have been declared off, and no further effort will be made to combine the outside interests, it is said. The present cut in prices is accompanied by the announcement that another and more severe cut will be made in April. April 1 is considered the opening of a rubber trade war.

BERLIN'S SWANS IN DANGER.

They Got Caught in the Ice, but the Fire Department Saved Them.

BERLIN, Jan. 4.—It is zero weather here. The Spree was frozen over so suddenly that the ice inclosed thirteen of the city's swans, and the Fire Department was called out to release them.

Cold Weather Throughout Europe.

LONDON, Jan. 4.—A cold snap is appearing throughout Europe. There have been severe snowstorms in Eastern Galicia and Southern Russia, accompanied by gales.

BISHOP POTTER SAYS HE WAS APPROACHED

Declares a Croker Emissary Tried to Close His Mouth.

TALK AT CITY CLUB DINNER.

Members Criticised for Indifference— Mark Twain and Other Notable Speakers Heard.

"The Causes of Our Present Municipal Degradation" was the subject that was discussed from many standpoints at a dinner given by the City Club last night. Not only were the causes the subject of discussion, but the speakers presented plans for the betterment of the city, prominent among them being those put forward by Bishop Potter and Samuel L. Clemens, (Mark Twain.)

The dinner was a large one, and Wheeler H. Peckham presided. With him at table were Bishop Potter, Samuel L. Clemens, Charles Sprague Smith, Senator Le Grand Tibbitts, St. Clair McKelway, John E. Parsons, George F. Seward, Frank Moss, Paul Dana, R. R. Bowker, the Rev. Thomas R. Slicer, and the Rev. Grenville Merrill. Bourke Cockran had accepted an invitation to speak, but was detained at the last moment, while letters of regret were read from Gov. Odell, Abram S. Hewitt, District Attorney Philbin, Charles Stewart Smith, Robert C. Morris, William H. Baldwin, Charles R. Miller, and Joel B. Erhardt.

Bishop Potter came in while the dinner was under way, and at once the diners rose and gave him a cordial welcome. Throughout the course of his address, which was his first public utterance on the police question since he sent his letter to the Mayor, the Bishop was constantly interrupted by applause. Several of his statements caused a sensation, notably the one in which he declared that just before he sent his letter to the Mayor calling attention to the conditions on the east side, and when it was known that such a letter was being prepared, he was visited by a man who said he represented Richard Croker, and was asked if he would be satisfied to let the matter of the Rev. Mr. Paddock drop—drop the whole question, in fact—if Capt. Hertihy and Inspector Cross were removed from their positions on the police force.

Many other emissaries of various persons and interests came to see him, Bishop Potter said, to try to make terms with him for the abandonment of the crusade, the terms to be such as would satisfy what the emissaries thought was the Bishop's personal vengeance.

Bishop Potter told the diners that he had not come to the dinner to say pleasant things, and was not going to say them. He called them to account for not having done something to carry out the plan he had proposed in St. Paul's Chapel, and which they had seemingly applauded, to form an individual vigilance corps, in which each citizen struggling for the general welfare should see to it that those charged with duties under the municipal government performed them. He contended that that was the key of the situation, and that out of it alone could grow great reforms.

Mark Twain said that he held the whole matter of reform in his hands; that he knew all about it, and that he was going to tell his hearers just how to bring it about. He told about an organization of which he was a member fifty-one years ago—when he was fourteen years old—which had been dubbed the "Anti-Doughnut Party." In the course of his address he dwelt on the fact that just such a party was needed now, and it was the opinion of those who heard him last night that the "Anti-Doughnut Party" would be one of the slogans in the next municipal campaign.

THE NEED OF MEN.

In his introductory address, Wheeler H. Peckham said that one of the causes of the present municipal degradation was that the men in control were bad, wholly and irredeemably bad, and that no men strong enough had yet come to the fore who could oust them and change matters. Men with the determination and morality to put out the wrongdoers and to put in others who would see that the misrule should cease, Mr. Peckham said, had not yet shown themselves.

"The issue," said Mr. Peckham," is simply one of men. You cannot remedy matters by law nor by system, you have got to remedy it by the simple expedient of turning out the maladministrators and putting in their places men who are honest and capable. We must organize a power that will overcome present conditions and put in office men who are capable and aggressively so. Vice, that has awakened such an outburst of public opinion, is but one of the things that must go."

Mr. Peckham then introduced Bishop Potter, who, he said, had done more to awaken the sense of the community to the enormity of present conditions than any other man in the city.

Bishop Potter began his address by making a plea for tolerance. He said that conditions as they existed were largely the result of the complexities of human nature. He was not prepared to maintain, he said, that the police as a body were corrupt, and said he believed that there were among them as many men who had aspirations toward good and aims that were commendable as among any other body of men of the same size that greed and passion to get out of every office every possible emolument, and a powerful organization at the top that allows this to go on.

"I suppose that it will be no surprise to you to learn that before the letter which I wrote was sent to the Mayor I was approached by a great many persons, emissaries representing all sorts of interests, to know what sacrifice it would be necessary for them to make to satiate my desire for revenge. I desire to disclaim here any feeling of that kind, or, in fact, any feeling arising out of the personal discourtesy shown to one of my clergymen. That was in itself a small matter.

"The point lay in the spectacle of a person going to the men for protection who were supposed to be conservers of the laws and the peace of the community and being deliberately insulted. It was the spectacle of the police ranging themselves on the side of crime and degradation against the decent element of the community that was intolerable.

"Among those who came to me was a man who said that he represented Mr. Croker. He asked me if I would be satisfied to drop the matter if Capt. Herlihy and Inspector Cross were beheaded. I told him that this was not a question of men. These men did but the bidding of those above them, and those above them in their turn were the creatures of those still higher.

"I told him that it was a system we were opposing, not a man or men, for he knew as well as you and I that the policeman does not hold his place through devotion to duty or honesty, but wholly and solely by the favor of those above him, who are responsible for the system.

"Some time ago I stated, and there were many criticisms on my statements—that money was the root of all the evil. A condition of society where gain excuses all doings must naturally affect the mechanism which runs a city such as this. There must be some higher aim.

"There must be some loftier motives. We must recognize in all who are worthy a striving for the right. The feeling must be fostered and nurtured. There must be personal sacrifice and vigilance, and when you can achieve that there comes the awakening of a great enthusiasm. The rest will be an easy matter."

MARK TWAIN'S REMEDY.

Mark Twain, who was the next speaker, and who, Mr. Peckham said, would view the matter from a different standpoint, took issue with Bishop Potter at once. He said that there was lust for gain and dishonesty, but that it must be admitted that if such a condition was universal this country could not survive. He said that he believed that forty-nine out of every fifty men were honest, and asked if this were true why it was that the forty-nine honest ones could not have their way. Answering this own question, he said it was simply because the fiftieth man was organized and the forty-nine were not. The whole matter simplified, he said, was that the wrong man was in the position of authority.

"Now I am here," said Mr. Clemens, "with the utmost seriousness of manner to tell you what's to be done, and how to do it. I have exercised the trade of unsalaried statesmanship for years. I am a statesman not for reward, but for the peace of mind it brings me. I am too old to learn, but I am not too old to teach.

"Now, to set this whole thing right is very simple. I know all about it. It has been said by somebody, and if it hasn't it will be now, that we must learn wisdom out of the mouths of babes and sucklings or something of that sort. The whole solution of the question rests just there. Fifty-one years ago, when I was fourteen years old, I was a member of a party of a peculiar sort, and it is my belief that if we could have such a party now we would soon clear the political atmosphere. I bring it to you here now for the salvation of this town. The party was called the Cadets of Temperance.

"Its members wore red merino scarfs and walked in church parades and picnics. On entering it a boy had to promise not to smoke,' said Mr. Clemens, removing the cigar from his mouth, 'never to drink or gamble, to keep the Sabbath, and not to steal watermelons. In fact, you promised to leave behind all the liberties that were of any value, and pursue a career of virtue that was irksome to yourself and a reproach to all other people.

"There were thirty-four members of the party, and they were divided into two factions, the reds and the blues. Five of the members were purchased, and they had to be purchased every month, when there was an election. Four could be secured on reasonable terms, but the fifth held out for war prices. The bribes were paid in the shape of doughnuts and chewing gum. There were two boys—the most incapable of the lot, but the most enterprising, who were always to the fore. There was Croker Brown on one side and Platt Higgins on the other, and one or the other managed to get himself elected every time. The good boys stood no show at all. They couldn't get elected.

THE ANTI-DOUGHNUT PARTY.

"When we had stood this thing a long time we got an idea. We good boys stepped out when we saw the balance of power with the purchasables and formed another party. We called ourselves 'the incorruptibles,' but we were not always known by that name. We had obloquy heaped on us, and we got the name of the 'Anti-Doughnut Party' because we couldn't be approached on the usual terms. Well, we started wrong by putting up one of our members for office, and of course he got licked.

"But we stuck together, we twelve, and enunciated new principles. They were that none of us would ever accept office of any kind. We are here, we said, to put some virtue into the gang, and we're going to do it. We won't take office, but we warn you—meaning the other two parties—that you've got to put up your best men for office or you won't get our support. We were strong enough to make those terms, and that was the end of the strokers and the Platts. The good boys were put up, and when we picked the best one we voted for him and he was elected.

"There's the problem, gentlemen, solved. What we want to-day is an 'Anti-Doughnut Party' that won't take office, but will keep the other parties safe. I am sure that it can be done. In a modified form it has been done by the mugwumps, of which body I am the only living representative. An 'Anti-Doughnut Party' of 80,000 or 80,000 can do the trick. It would spread from the city to the country, and in time it would dictate the nomination of every office holder from constable to President. All it would ask for was the best possible man, and its support would mean the best man's election.

"Not long ago we had two men running for the President. There was Mr. McKinley on one hand and Mr. Bryan on the other. If we'd have had an 'Anti-Doughnut Party' neither would have been elected. I didn't know much about finance, but some friend told me that Bryan was all wrong on the money question, so I didn't vote for him. I knew enough about the Philippines to have a strong aversion to sending our bright boys out there to fight with a disgraced musket under a polluted flag, so I didn't vote for the other fellow. I've got that vote, and its clean yet; ready to be used when you form you 'Anti-Doughnut Party' that will want only the best men for the offices, no matter what party they belong to and which solve all your political problems."

John Jay Chapman gave what some considered an announcement of the Citizens' Union that they would insist on Controller Coler being nominated for Mayor on the reform ticket. "The Democratic machine wants the emoluments of office, and so does the Republican machine," said Mr. Chapman.

"It seems to me that the most practical way to win a victory for honesty and civic righteousness is by commencing a year ahead. Let us take a man like Coler, for example, and announce our candidate and say to the public, 'Here is our man.' Let us stand together without compromise. Let us say we stand for Coler and no compromise. People may sneer at the Citizens' Union and their efforts at organization, but it is the only way practicable to bring about an end of misrule in municipal government."

Others who spoke to the subject of the evening were St. Clair McKelway, Charles Sprague Smith, and Frank Moss.

PRIVATE BANK IS CLOSED.

NORFOLK, Va., Jan. 4.—The Bank of Berkley, a private institution conducted in Berkley by R. L. W. Brooks since 1897, failed to open its doors this morning. Mr. Brooks having made an assignment late last night to W. W. Old of Norfolk, trustee. The bank's liabilities are upwards of $13,000. Of the indebtedness, about $6,000 is said to secured.

The bank had no large depositors. The largest amount on its books to any one person's credit is said to have been hardly more than $500. It was patronized largely by the small Jewish merchants of Berkley and South Norfolk.

Lincoln Monument Finished.

Special to The New York Times.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Jan. 4.—The reconstruction of the Lincoln Monument, which has been in progress for a year, and has cost the State $100,000, is practically finished. The Board of Control will soon set the date for removing the bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Lincoln from the temporary vault to the permanent receptacle under the obelisk. The monument will probably be dedicated on May 30. In outward appearance it is the same as before, except that twenty feet added to it is a decided improvement. The interior arrangement is the same. The drainage system and ventilation are of the latest pattern.

CONGRESSIONAL BOOZ INQUIRY.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 4.—The Booz Congressional Committee, which was recently appointed by Speaker Henderson for the purpose of making inquiry into the cause of the death of Oscar L. Booz and to investigate hazing in general at the Military Academy, began the taking of testimony to-day. Three sessions were held, covering a period of time from 9 o'clock in the morning until midnight.

The committee, which consists of Messrs. Dick of Ohio, Chairman; Driggs, New York; Wanger, Pennsylvania; Clayton, New York, and Smith, Iowa, went to Bristol, Penn., the home of Booz's family, this morning and heard the testimony of four members of that family. In the afternoon four physicians who attended Oscar Booz were heard. To-night in Philadelphia two more physicians and two other witnesses received an opportunity to tell what they knew of the case.

Most of the evidence adduced has already been brought out by the military board of inquiry, appointed by the War Department.

One of the most important points learned was the fact that one of the physicians had attended Oscar Booz for acute laryngitis previous to his going to West Point. The administration of tabasco sauce, it was testified by a throat expert, was sufficient to cause an irritation of the affected part of the larynx which would have made Booz less able to resist tuberculosis germs.

A physician who examined the cadet previous to his entrance to West Point testified that his lung expansion was not normal, and that he was not what might be termed a good specimen of physical manhood. A great mass of medical testimony was heard in relation to Booz's general physical condition.

Sigmund S. Albert, an ex-cadet, who was a classmate of Booz, was one of the witnesses called in this city. Albert's testimony before the military board was read to him. The witness at that hearing declined to answer certain questions, and he was asked to-night why he declined, but he could give no satisfactory response.

Albert said he was forced to do 150 "eagles," and was also hung by the hands from an iron bar. He also had to do "setting up" exercises, and "wooden willies." He never saw any one else hazed, but knew from hearsay that other cadets were being treated like himself. Booz, Albert said, was "cut" by many of the cadets because of his alleged cowardice in his fight with Cadet Keller.

Albert said he was "very much unsuccessful" in his contest, and was snubbed somewhat, because some of the upper class men said he did not fight long enough. His opponent, he said, was Lieut. Peyton, who he thought was now in the Philippine Islands.

Albert subsequently stated that he was in two fights. His second contest was with a cadet named Doyle, of his own class, whom Albert called out for insulting him. He did not remember for what offense he had himself been called out. He said each class had a "fighting committee," which was appointed by the class.

Albert said he was more severely hazed than other cadets of his class. He was asked why, and answered: "Principally because of my religion."

Albert, who is a Jew, said he resigned from the academy partly because life there was unbearable and partly because he disliked military life. Albert further said that if a fourth class man incurred the displeasure of an upper class man, the sentinels, who were mostly cadets of the upper classes, would enter false demerits against the victim, and in many cases the unfortunate cadet would thus be forced out of the academy.

Albert firmly believed that he was ostracized at West Point because of his being a Jew. He testified that he had been called "a damned Jew" by Cadets Meyer and Jordan of the third class. Albert at first refused to give the names of these men.

The Congressional Committee will again go to Bristol to-morrow morning to hear other witnesses, and later in the day will sit in this city. Ex-Mayor Breth of Altoona, Penn., whose son, it is alleged, died from an ailment indirectly due to hazing at West Point, and former Cadet Burnham of Kentucky, a classmate of Booz, will appear before the committee to-morrow. If the investigators conclude their work here by to-morrow night they will begin taking testimony at West Point on Monday morning.

GEN. ALGER EXPLAINS.

DETROIT, Mich., Jan. 4.—Discussing the statement made by Gov. Pingree in his last message, that Gen. Alger's ignoring the claims of the great steamboat interests, with representatives in New York, for the shipping of the Spanish soldiers to Spain, was responsible for much of the opposition to him, the ex-Secretary said to-night that there were no bids made by any American line. Gen. Alger said:

"There were eight bids entered, all by foreign steamship companies, aside from the Spanish bid, and all were exactly similar in every provision. All asked $110 for transporting the officers to Spain, and $35 for the enlisted men and employes. No American line was in position to submit bids, as the War Department had control of all of their large ships at the time.

"The fact of all the bids received being the same in every way led the department to believe that there was a combine among the steamship companies to prevent the cutting of rates. Therefore, the Spanish bid, which was $55 for officers and $20 for enlisted men and employes, was accepted.

"A Spaniard, whose name I have forgotten, told me afterward that the knowledge that they would be shipped home in Spanish steamers had influenced the Spaniards not a little in surrendering. It relieved the dread that they would be brutally treated by the Americans, as many of them feared. The idea of awarding the bids to the Spanish firm was my own.

"About this time the New York papers seemed to redouble their attacks on me. Whether this had anything to do with it I do not know. Vice President Wright of the International Navigation Company had no occasion to make any statements in relation to this matter, as his company entered no bids at all."

DEBATE ON BAKERS' STRIKE.

The striking Hebrew bakers and the non-union men remaining at work, between whom a feud has arisen, held rival meetings yesterday afternoon, and each adopted resolutions denouncing the other. The strikers met at their usual headquarters, Liberty Hall, 257 East Houston Street, where it was announced that Joseph Barondess has issued a challenge to the Master Bakers' Association to prove in a joint debate that any of the bakers were earning more than $7 or $8 a week.

The non-union men, 400 in number, met in Victoria Hall, 80 Clinton Street, Aaron Green presiding. The meeting refused to hear Walking Delegate Bogatsky of the Hebrew Bakers' Union, Bogatsky being ejected when he tried to speak.

Late yesterday afternoon the Boss Bakers' Association announced that President Perlun of the association had accepted the challenge to a debate by Joseph Barondess. The two will meet in joint debate in Victoria Hall next Friday.

THE WEATHER.

LOCAL FORECAST.—Fair and colder; brisk northwesterly winds.

Local snows have fallen in the Dakotas, Montana, and the northern and eastern portions of the lake region, and rains on the Pacific Coast and in the middle and northern plateau regions; elsewhere the weather has been generally fair. Generally fair weather is indicated for to-day, except occasional snows in the lake region and northern Rocky Mountain districts, and rain on the Pacific Coast, with falling temperatures eastward of the Dakotas and the eastern portions of Nebraska and Kansas. Fresh to brisk west to northwest winds are indicated for the Middle Atlantic and New England Coasts, and north to northeast winds along the South Atlantic Coast.

The record of temperature for the twenty-four hours ended at midnight, taken from THE NEW YORK TIMES's thermometer and from the thermometer of the Weather Bureau, is as follows:

	—Weather Bureau—		TIMES.
	1900.	1901.	1901.
3 A. M.	19	17	22
6 A. M.	19	17	22
9 A. M.	20	19	26
12 M.	28	27	31
4 P. M.	32	34	35
6 P. M.	32	33	35
9 P. M.	30	31	34
12 P. M.	29	30	33

THE TIMES's thermometer is 6 feet above the street level; that of the Weather Bureau is 285 feet above the street level.

Average temperatures yesterday were as follows:

Printing House Square	29°
Weather Bureau	26
Corresponding date 1900	26
Corresponding date for last twenty-five years	30

The maximum temperature was 34 degrees at 4:45 P. M., and the minimum 17 degrees at 5 A. M. The humidity at 8 A. M. was 64 per cent, and at 8 P. M. 60 per cent. The barometer at 8 A. M. was 30.49, and at 8 P. M. 30.16.

AT THE HOTELS.

ALBEMARLE—William Barnes, Jr., Albany.

FIFTH AVENUE—George W. Dunn, Binghamton; Lewis Sperry, Hartford.

GILSEY—Gov. B. E. Bushnell, Ohio.

WALDORF-ASTORIA—H. J. McConnell, Pittsburg; Gen. H. S. Hawkins, United States Army.

TRIAL OF CAPT. HERLIHY

Young Woman Testifies Before the Police Commissioners.

Says Women of the Street Openly Urged Her to Join Them—Ex-Judge Pryor Ill.

It was not all comedy at the hearing in the trial of Capt. John D. Herlihy, at Police Headquarters, yesterday afternoon. The testimony related to general conditions in the Twelfth Precinct, and there was an impressive moment when Miss Rebecca Goodman, a young milliner, was on the stand.

She lives in Allen Street, and had testified to what she observed on the street as she came home from work. She told of women accosting men.

"Did they ever speak to you?" asked Mr. Olcott.

"They passed remarks about me as I came along," answered the witness.

"What did they say?"

"One of the women said, 'Come in; there'll be room for you to-morrow.'"

"And what else did she say?" asked Mr. Olcott.

The girl hung her head, and her face grew a deep scarlet. Her hand sought her face, nervously, but she did not answer.

"Don't hesitate," said Mr. Olcott; "you know you are here to tell us."

"I don't like to say."

There was more coaxing, and then the witness told how she had been openly urged to adopt a disreputable life.

Mr. Sexton was the only one of the Commissioners absent when the hearing began. Ex-Judge Roger A. Pryor was again absent, and Mr. Grant said that he had not withdrawn from the defense, but was ill.

John Becker, of 81 Madison Street, was the first witness called by Mr. Olcott. He said that he was an overall manufacturer at 55 Allen Street. He testified that women whistled to men who passed by 48 and 50 Allen Street from the windows. Conditions improved somewhat, he said, a week or two before the election. At this point Mr. Grant interrupted with an objection.

"Don't you instruct the witness," shouted Mr. York.

"Well, I'm going to make an objection," said Mr. Grant, with rising emphasis.

"You are not going to instruct the witness," answered Mr. York, emphatically.

There was another wrangle when Mr. Olcott produced a letter which had been attached to a report made by Capt. Herlihy on Feb. 7. He asked the witness if he was among those who signed the letter, which was a complaint addressed to the Mayor, and was answered in the affirmative.

The witness then said that conditions remained unchanged after Feb. 7, 1900.

Considerable amusement was caused during the cross-examination of the witness by Mr. Grant.

"How do you know those women were bad?" he asked.

"Oh, I'm not a baby," answered Mr. Becker, and there was a general laugh.

Rebecca Goodman was then called. She said she lived at 47 Allen Street, where her father manufactures overalls. Before living at that address the family lived at 52 Allen Street. The witness testified that she had seen women calling to men on the streets every day up to two weeks before the election. They stood about the stoops of the different houses.

The letter attached to Herlihy's report was shown to her and she was asked if she had signed it. Upon answering that she had, Mr. Olcott asked her to point out her name. "But that is B. Goodman," he said.

"Yes. You see they call me Becky. Here I notice you say Rebecca," she answered, naively.

"Did you ever notice how the women were dressed," asked Mr. Olcott.

"In loose tea gowns," was the answer. Then followed the testimony outlined above. After Mr. Grant had questioned her, without altering her testimony materially, she witness was excused.

Mr. Olcott then asked if Mr. Grant would admit that Capt. Herlihy had not asked for a Chief's warrant, under Section 318 of the charter, and the lawyer said he would not answer the question at present.

The hearing will be resumed at 4 o'clock on Monday.

The question has been raised at headquarters whether legislation which will put the present Commissioners out of office will render the proceeding so far useless. Mr. York said a few days ago that it would not have such an effect. Mr. Olcott said yesterday, however, that there was no doubt in his mind that an act of the Legislature making an entirely new commission would wipe out the proceedings entirely.

POLICE BOARD CONFERENCE.

Commissioners Say the Police Situation Was Not Discussed—The Committee of Fifteen.

Police Commissioner Sexton was confined to his home yesterday through an ailment of the throat, and his colleagues, Messrs. York, Hess, and Abell, met after the adjournment of the trial of Capt. Herlihy and were in session nearly two hours. All denied that other than minor police business had been transacted or that any reference whatever was made to the police situation or the status of Chief Devery.

"You can quote me," said Commissioner Hess, "as saying that Chief Devery's status has not been discussed in my presence by my fellow-Commissioners in any way since my return from illness to official duty. So far as I can judge, present conditions may continue while they may be changed by legislation or events yet to come, and toward which no step has been taken to my knowledge. I have no idea what Chief Devery's intentions are, and have no reason to believe that I have ceased to share the confidence of the other Commissioners."

District Attorney Philbin said yesterday that neither he nor his assistants were preparing indictments against police officials, and that no evidence which might be submitted to a Grand Jury had been submitted to him by any committee.

The Committee of Fifteen made no announcement yesterday. Speaking for himself, William H. Baldwin, Jr., said that he knew of no movement to depose him and place John D. Crimmins on the committee.

"Mr. Crimmins," he continued, "is a good man on or off the committee. As far as the story that Mr. Crimmins has been slated for the Chairmanship, this is the first I have heard of it. You may rest assured it is absolutely without foundation."

Mr. Baldwin said he did not know whether the Committee of Fifteen would place any evidence before the January Grand Jury. Its efforts would be first directed against vice in tenements and the different forms of gambling, as well as against the relations between the police and the lawbreakers. Bucket-shops might fall within the scope of its work. What the committee's attitude toward tax evaders would be he had not learned.

In regard to a story that the Committee of Fifteen might in some way ally itself with the Tammany Investigating Committee, Mr. Baldwin said that there was no basis for it. The Committee of Fifteen would keep strictly out of the sphere of politics.

ARRIVAL OF BUYERS.

Representatives of Out-of-Town Firms Now in the City.

Almond, C. H., Dry Goods Company, Lynchburg, Va.; F. H. Almond, dry goods; Hotel Imperial.

Hawley, C. R., & Co., Bay City, Mich.; C. R. Hawley, dry goods, notions, furnishing goods, cloaks, and carpets; Hotel Normandie.

Gutman, Nathan, & Co., Baltimore, Md.; L. N. Gutman, dress goods, cloaks, suits, wash goods, and ribbons; 28 Howard Street; Herald Square Hotel.

Simon, H. D., Nashville, Tenn.; notions, hosiery, and underwear; Hotel Vendome.

Howland Dry Goods Company, Bridgeport, Conn.; H. W. Pettis, gloves, parasols, and laces; 52 Franklin Street; Criterion Hotel.

Gimbel Brothers, Milwaukee, Wis.; F. H. Taylor, shoes; 377 Broadway; Hotel Cadillac.

Hochschild, Kohn & Co., Baltimore, Md.; W. Sondheim, notions; Herald Square Hotel.

Solomon Brothers & Lemport, Rochester, N. Y.; S. B. Solomon, clothing; Victoria Hotel.

Johnson Dry Goods Company, Wilmington, N. C.; W. A. Johnson, notions and furnishing goods; Hotel Albert.

Rowe, C. H., Company, Pittsburg, Penn.; R. W. Hitt, notions and millinery; 43 Leonard Street; Hotel Albert.

Rosenfeld, M., Company, Detroit, Mich.; M. Rosenfeld, notions; 22 West Fourth Street.

Reed Brothers & Co., Cleveland, Ohio.; F. N. Reed, millinery; 621 Broadway.

Wagner & Pardey, Chicago, Ill.; H. W. Pardey, millinery; Hotel Marlborough; G. Wegner, millinery; Hotel Cadillac.

Hammell, L., & Co., Mobile, Ala.; J. Hammell, domestics and notions; 77 Walker Street; Hoffman House.

Butler, W. S., & Co., Boston, Mass.; M. Jowett, millinery; Murray Hill Hotel.

Hendrickson, Lefler & Co., Indianapolis, Ind.; A. F. Hendrickson, clothing; Gilsey House.

SAY M'DONNELL'S LIFE WAS IN DANGER

Witnesses' Evidence Tends to Prove He Acted in Self-Defense.

Man Who Killed Price Spared Kennedy After the Latter Had Tried to Shoot Him.

Evidence tending to show that Miles McDonnell, who shot and killed George Price and wounded three other men in the Onawa Café, One Hundred and Twenty-fifth Street and Park Avenue, Friday of last week, acted solely in self-defense and drew his pistol only after shots had been fired at him, was given at the Price inquest before Coroner Hart by several eye-witnesses of the affray yesterday. Upon points relating to the aggressiveness of any of the Kennedy party the memories of their sympathizers were unusually bad, though quite clear on any matter relating to McDonnell. The witnesses, who told a plain and straightforward story evinced some hesitation when questioned about Kennedy. They were, it was noised around the courtroom, which was filled with members of the gambling fraternity from up town, "afraid Kennedy would do them."

Sylvester H. Freeland of 49 East One Hundred and Twenty-ninth Street was the first witness. He heard a shot, he said, when he had been in the saloon a short while. Kennedy had his back to the bar, McDonnell was near the cigar counter. Freeland ran toward the two. "When I reached them," said he, "McDonnell had a pistol against Kennedy's side. I grabbed the pistol and turned it aside, saying, 'Mac, what are you doing?' As I did so the pistol went off. I then ran out, and when I came back Courtney was on the floor and McDonnell was leaning against the cigar counter. I knelt down beside Courtney, and he said, 'Mac done it.'"

Charles Meyer of 116 East One Hundred and Twenty-third Street, who runs the restaurant attached to the Onawa Café, was at the lunch counter when the shooting began.

"I heard one shot," said Meyer, "and I dropped down behind the lunch counter. I was in the cellar when the second shot was fired."

"Why didn't you look around?" asked Coroner Hart.

"Well, in 1873," replied the witness, "I was in a place where there was a little shooting, and I stood up and looked at it. I caught a bullet in my ear that time, and I have never cared about looking at shooting since."

The testimony of other witnesses tended to show that McDonnell did not shoot then until after Price, the dead man, fired at him, the shot striking John McGuinness, standing in front of him.

Charles Garthe, the night cashier in the Onawa Café, gave testimony favorable to McDonnell's prospective plea of self-defense.

"I heard Peyser, Kennedy, and McDonnell arguing at the bar," said he. "Then I heard McDonnell ask, 'Did you bunch come here to do me?' and Kennedy replied, 'Yes, you ——,' and pulled his gun. McDonnell grabbed it and it went off in the air. McDonnell drew his own pistol then and said: 'Now, Tom, I've got you, but I'll spare your life for your children's sake.' I then ran for a policeman and told him Kennedy did the shooting."

Robert H. McKay, a bartender of 1,913 Lexington Avenue, said he heard McDonnell say: "Somebody has been telling tales about me to Tom Kennedy. I would like to know who that man is. It looks as if you had come in here to do me." Then Peyser said: "Don't stand for that, Tom, give it to him." Kennedy then drew his revolver. It went off in the air twice while McDonnell was holding it. Price then pulled a revolver and fired at McDonnell. The shot either went wild or struck McGuinness. Then McDonnell reached for his weapon.

Abraham Peyser was now called to the stand. He said that he, Tom Kennedy, Price, Courtney, and John Kennedy entered the Onawa Café after McDonnell did. "McDonnell said to Kennedy," swore Peyser, "'somebody has been carrying tales about me to Tom Kennedy,' and he looked at me. I said 'What are you looking at me for? Do you think I am a tale bearer?' Kennedy then pushed me away, saying, 'Keep quiet.' I turned my back, heard a shot, and was pushed out of the place."

"Were you scared?" asked Mr. Levy.

"Well, I was a little kernooded," answered Peyser, while the Harlem contingent snickered.

McDonnell, the witness continued, had Kennedy in a kneeling position, and held a pistol pointed at him. He couldn't remember anything that was said by either.

"You have a very high opinion of yourself?" asked Mr. Levy.

"I have."

"Your hearing is not defective?"

"No."

"Not as defective as your conscience?"

"No."

John McGuinness of 169 East Ninety-fifth Street stated that McDonnell had started from the Onawa Café at 11:30 o'clock for his home in City Island, and had missed the last train. Returning to the saloon with him McDonnell met Price and Price said: "You can't get out of here without seeing Tom Kennedy." McDonnell called Kennedy aside. A shot was fired, and McGuinness saw McDonnell standing holding Kennedy's wrist in the air. Kennedy held a pistol. The pistol was discharged twice in the air. Peyser ran toward the two men, drawing from his overcoat pocket something that looked like a pistol. McGuinness, thinking that Peyser intended harm to McDonnell, shoved him aside, and he fell down. While standing by McDonnell a third shot was fired and struck McGuinness, penetrating his overcoat, coat, and vest, and grazing his breast just above the heart.

Anticipating McDonnell's exoneration, Kennedy's friends declare that if this happens he will be arested for felonious assault as he leaves the courtroom. Abram Levy says that if this happens the action will be followed by the arrest of six men on charges of assaulting McDonnell with intent to kill.

"Rummage Sale" for Charity.

Another "rummage sale" is on in Brooklyn, and anything in any line of articles connected with the household or of fancy work or wearing apparel, half-worn or otherwise, will be acceptable if sent to 56 Myrtle Avenue, at any time between Jan. 8 and 11. Housekeepers are requested to send "rummage" for the benefit of the Brooklyn City Mission and Tract Society. The sale will be held at 56 Myrtle Avenue on Jan. 9, 10, and 11.

LOSSES BY FIRE.

GALVESTON, Texas, Jan. 4.—The Galveston factory of the National Biscuit Company and a grain elevator belonging to Jokusch, Davison & Co. were burned last night. The loss is $60,000; partly insured.

ITHACA, N. Y., Jan. 4.—Connelly's Alhambra Hotel, on State Street, was almost entirely destroyed by fire early this morning. The place had long been a students' resort, and was formerly known as "Casey's."

BUFFALO, Jan. 4.—The Holland and Howard Buildings, six-story brick structures, devoted to light manufacturing and mercantile business, were, with their contents, damaged by fire and water early this morning to the extent of $150,000. The losses on the buildings and their contents are said to be covered by insurance.

BALTIMORE, Jan. 4.—A fire which originated on the fifth floor of 117 West Baltimore Street and spread to the adjoining building, No. 115, at 4:45 this afternoon, damaged the stock of Silberman & Todes, dealers in notions and furnishing goods, occupants of No. 117 and of the three upper floors of No. 115, to the extent of about $50,000, mostly by water. The Roxbury Rye Company, dealers in whisky, occupants of the lower floors of No. 115, were damaged to the extent of about $10,000, and the buildings sustained damage to the extent of probably $10,000 or more. All the losses will be covered by insurance. The origin of the fire is unknown.

YESTERDAY'S FIRES.

(From 12 o'clock Thursday night until 12 o'clock Friday night.)

6:30 A. M.—138 Ludlow Street; Jacob Rosenfelt, owner; damage, $1,000.

10:05 A. M.—126 Broome Street; Samuel Klein, owner; damage slight.

10:15 A. M.—Daly and Riverside Avenues; Joseph H. Goodwin, owner; damage, $65.

10:15 A. M.—784 Amsterdam Avenue; Michael E. Keusick, owner; damage, $300.

10:15 A. M.—208 Ninth Avenue; John Sadys, owner; damage slight.

2:10 P. M.—109 West Fortieth Street; Frank Armitage, owner; damage, $100.

2:20 P. M.—21 Batavia Street; Christo Schute, owner; damage slight.

4:30 P. M.—288 East Fifty-eighth Street; Mrs. Jacobs, owner; damage, $5,000.

5:20 P. M.—290 Broome Street; Joseph Webber, owner; damage trifling.

7:45 P. M.—267 West Twenty-second Street; owner, Mrs. Rielly; damage, $10.

10:25 P. M.—204 East Twelfth Street; owner, F. H. Wing Sons; damage, $200.

Tiffany & Co.

Pottery and Glassware

Special sale of incomplete sets, odd dozens and choice single pieces in rich china and glassware left over from the holiday trade.

Patrons will find in this collection many richly decorated dinner, soup, fish, game and entree plates, tea, coffee and bouillon cups and saucers and other pieces marked at nominal prices.

UNION SQUARE
NEW YORK

LABOR HERE AND IN ENGLAND.

British Trades' Unions Delegate Contrasts Conditions.

Peter Curran, who came here five weeks ago as the fraternal delegate of the British trade unions to the convention of the American Federation of Labor, spoke last night in Arlington Hall, under the auspices of the Social Democratic Party, on Socialism and trade unionism in England.

He said he had been traveling through many of the great industrial centres in this country during the past five weeks. Among other places, he had visited a packing house in Chicago, the like of which he never wanted to see again.

"Your employers," he continued, "are getting more work out of the workingmen than are the employers in the old country, and the manner in which you rush in this country would not be tolerated for a single moment in England. There is one thing that I want to impress upon your minds, and that is that your manufacturers are dumping their commodities in our market cheaper than they can be made over there. That goes to show that you are more efficient slaves.

"The number of wealth-producing people in Great Britain is much larger in proportion to the population than is the number here. The money that is handed out in Wall Street and is stored in that thoroughfare represents the unpaid wages of the working classes.

"The strike weapon has proved beneficial to us in the settlement of our grievances in the field of battle. Another channel of redress is through political action, and I want to say right here that I have no use for the man either in England or America who says that the wage earner should keep aloof from political action.

"I detest a monarchy, though I have no personal dislike for the good old lady, the Queen, yet it is a relic of barbarism. However, from what I have observed since I came here, I tell you frankly that if by a wave of my hand in England I could bring about a republic then I would cease to wave my hand."

WOMAN'S SUICIDE BY FIRE.

She Pours Kerosene Over Her Clothes and Bedding, Then Applies a Match.

Sophie Winkler, forty years old, committed suicide in her room at 234 East Fifty-third Street yesterday afternoon by pouring a gallon of kerosene over her dress and bed and setting fire to it.

Her shrieks brought other lodgers, who put out the blaze with water, and the woman, in a frenzy of delirium, was taken to the Flower Hospital and then to the insane pavilion at Bellevue, where she died without making any lucid statement.

She had lived in the house for six months, and had long been seeking employment without success.

Mr. Bliss Refuses to Serve.

Cornelius N. Bliss, ex-Secretary of the Interior, who on Thursday night was elected to the Presidency of the Business Men's Sound Money League, has declined the office on the ground that he cannot give to the position the necessary time. The organization purposes taking an active part in local politics. It is said that either John B. Claflin, George D. Haven, or A. D. Juilliard will be chosen President of the body, which will be incorporated as the Business Men's Club.

SHIPPING AND FOREIGN MAILS.

Miniature Almanac—This Day.

A. M.	P. M.	P. M.
Sun rises...7:25	Sun sets...4:46	Moon rises...5:55

High Water This Day.

A. M.	A. M.	A. M.
S. Hook...7:36	Gov. Isl'd...8:06	H. Gate...10:02
P. M.	P. M.	P. M.
S. Hook...8:14	Gov. Isl'd...8:37	H. Gate...10:33

Outgoing Steamships.

TO-DAY, (SATURDAY,) JAN. 5.

	Mails Close.	Vessels Sail.
Antilla, Nassau	12:30 P. M. *1:00 P. M.
Alene, Jamaica, &c	10:00 A. M. *10:30 A. M.	12:00 M.
Astoria, Glasgow	10:00 A. M.	12:00 M.
Buffon, Northern Brazil, &c	11:30 A. M.	2:00 P. M.
British Queen, Antwerp
Concho, Galveston		3:00 P. M.
Etruria, Queenstown	2:30 A. M.	6:00 A. M.
Fuerst Bismarck, Naples	9:00 A. M.	11:00 A. M.
Hildur, Curacao	9:00 A. M. *9:30 A. M.	12:00 M.
Jefferson, Norfolk		3:00 P. M.
Martello, Hull
Minneapolis, London
Morro Castle, Havana	10:30 A. M.	1:00 P. M.
Norman Prince, Argentine Republic, &c	9:00 A. M.	11:00 A. M.
Proteus, New Orleans		3:00 P. M.
San Juan, Porto Rico	9:00 A. M.	11:00 A. M.
Staatendam, Rotterdam	8:00 A. M.	10:00 A. M.
Trinidad, Bermuda	8:00 A. M.	10:00 A. M.
El Dorado, New Orleans		3:00 P. M.

SUNDAY, JAN. 6.

Leon XIII., Genoa, &c
Pretoria, Hamburg		6:00 A. M.

MONDAY, JAN. 7.

Princess Anne, Norfolk		3:00 P. M.

TUESDAY, JAN. 8.

Algonquin, Charleston		3:00 P. M.
El Cid, New Orleans		3:00 P. M.
Finance, Colon	9:30 A. M.	1:00 P. M.
Hamilton, Norfolk		3:00 P. M.

WEDNESDAY, JAN. 9.

Belvernon, Inagua and Haiti	9:30 A. M.	12:00 M.
Cymric, Queenstown	5:00 A. M.	8:30 A. M.
Grenada, Grenada and Trinidad	9:00 A. M.	11:00 A. M.
Jamestown, Norfolk		3:00 P. M.
Kensington, Antwerp, via Southampton	8:30 A. M. *10:00 A. M.	12:00 M.
Orizaba, Havana, Yucatan, &c	12:00 M.	3:00 P. M.
San Marcos, Galveston		3:00 P. M.

*SUPPLEMENTARY MAILS.—Additional supplementary mails are opened on the piers of the American, English, French, and German steamers and remain open until within ten minutes of the hour of sailing.

TRANSPACIFIC MAILS.

Mails for Australia, (except West Australia, which goes via Europe, and New Zealand, which goes via San Francisco,) and Fiji Islands, via Vancouver, parasole, close here daily at 6:30 P. M. up to Jan. 15, inclusive, for dispatch per steamer Warrimoo, (supplementary mails, via Seattle, close at 6:30 P. M., Jan. 16.) Mails for Hawaii, Japan, China, and Philippine Islands, via San Francisco, close here daily at 6:30 P. M. up to Jan. 11, inclusive, for dispatch per steamer Gaelic. Mails for Hawaii, via San Francisco, close here daily at 6:30 P. M. up to Jan. 11, inclusive, for dispatch per steamer Zealandia. Mails for China, Japan, and Philippine Islands, via Tacoma, close here daily at 6:30 P. M. up to Jan. 15, inclusive, for dispatch per steamer Olympia. Mails for Hawaii, China, Japan, and Philippine Islands, via San Francisco, close here daily at 6:30 P. M. up to Jan. 18, inclusive, for dispatch per steamer Hongkong Maru. Mails for Australia, (except West Australia,) New Zealand, Hawaii, Fiji, and Samoan Islands, via San Francisco, close here daily at 6:30 P. M. after Jan. 16 and up to Jan. 18, inclusive, or on day of arrival of steamer Campania, due at New York Jan. 16, for dispatch per steamer Sonoma. Mails for China and Japan, via Vancouver, close here daily at 6:30 P. M. up to Jan. 22, inclusive, for dispatch per steamer Empress of Japan, (registered mail must be directed "via

WHITNEY BALL A SPECTACLE OF SPLENDOR

Ex-Secretary of the Navy Throws Open His Fifth Avenue Palace.

Society Assembles in Force for the Coming Out Festivities of Miss Barney, His Niece.

Ex-Secretary of the Navy William C. Whitney gave last evening at his residence, 871 Fifth Avenue, on the corner of Sixty-eighth Street, a ball for his niece, Miss Helen Tracy Barney, daughter of his sister, Mrs. Charles Tracy Barney, who was Miss Lilly Whitney. The ball had attracted an unusual amount of anticipatory attention and interest in the New York modish world, and some 400 guests were present out of the 600 to 700 invited. Those who were not present remained away through illness, mourning, or were unavoidably absent.

The entertainment, in addition to being the formal coming out of Miss Barney, marked the opening, on its final completion, of Mr. Whitney's mansion, one of the largest and handsomest of New York's number of superb houses, and also its owner's re-entrance into social life, after his period of mourning for the late Mrs. Whitney. It had been Mr. Whitney's first intention to give a ball solely for the débutantes of the season, but his large acquaintance and the pressure of intimate friends, who influenced him to give the New York social world an opportunity to see his art treasures, decided him to make the ball a general one.

The Whitney house was originally built by the late Robert L. Stuart, the millionaire sugar merchant. Mr. Whitney purchased it from Mrs. Stuart some five years ago, and, on securing possession, called in architects and decorators to alter its interior and to build a large addition on adjoining lots in East Sixty-eighth Street, which he had secured. These alterations and additions have been under way for some years, and it has been Mr. Whitney's occupation in his leisure hours and his vacation periods to supervise them and to secure, both abroad and in this country, the rarest and most remarkable furnishings, decorations, and paintings procurable. The purse of a Fortunatus, combined with rare good taste and judgment, has enabled him to transform the Stuart house into a palace filled with art treasures.

The mansion is a consistent example of the art of one period—that of the Italian Renaissance. To decorate an interior in this style is far more difficult and costly than if the ordinary periods are followed. When the decorations are all original antiques the task becomes impossible, except through the employment of a large amount of money and time. None of these requisites is lacking in the adornment of the Whitney house, with the result that its owner has as near an approach to a Venetian or Florentine palace of the days of Leonardo da Vinci and Michael Angelo as it is possible to obtain.

There is hardly a piece of modern work to be found in the house, while each detail is the most perfect of its kind that could be secured. The chimney pieces, for instance, are nearly all elaborate works in marble from old Italian palaces; the hangings are from similar sources, the ceilings of several rooms have been taken bodily from famous buildings in Europe, and the furniture and much of the woodwork are of the same unique character.

THE ROOMS AND HALLS.

It is impossible in limited space to describe the various rooms and hallways of the Whitney residence at all adequately, or in detail. The principal hall on the second floor, is approached through hall on Sixty-eighth Street by two sweeping marble stairways—which were not used last night—a temporary flooring, used to increase the floor area of the main hall having been built over them. The guests last evening, after having left their wraps in the dressing rooms off the entrance hall, ascended by the lower or entrance marble stairway at the rear of the entrance hall.

In this large hall on the right hangs a superb portrait of Charles I. by Van Dyck, a most important work, in which the King is painted seated on a white horse. On the left wall there is a large example of the early Italian school—an altar piece by Lorenzo Costa. Suspended from the ceiling between these paintings is a splendid silver hanging lamp, a masterpiece of old Italian craftsmanship. One of the finest of the many cassoons which Mr. Whitney owns is in the hall. It is attributed to one of the early Italians, and resembles the work of Pinturicchio, and is in as good condition as when made some 500 years ago. The portieres and other draperies of the hall are of old figured velvet, the general color scheme being red and white.

Opening out of the main hall, to the right, is the dining room, and on the left are the library and a picture gallery, or salon. The dining room has its wall space covered with Italian mural paintings of the sixteenth century. The chimneypiece is a rarely fine piece of work, and holds two great bronze fire dogs, said to be the finest in America.

The most notable features of the library are its carvings of old oak and its splendid hangings of rich brocaded velvet, which are unique of their kind, and which it has for many years been a labor of love on Mr. Whitney's part to collect. The pictures in the library are few but choice. They comprise the beautiful example of Sir Joshua Reynolds, "Portrait of Miss Jacobs," which Mr. Whitney purchased at the Blakeslee-Fischoff sale last Winter, and a portrait of a man by Gaetano. There is also on the library table a delightful and remarkably well preserved little panel, two three-quarter length standing figures, by Cranach the elder.

The salon in the rear of the library and also opening out of the main hall has only recently been completed. On its walls, which are covered with rich figured crimson velvet, there hang a number of superb paintings, notably the Van Dyck, "Portrait of the Duke of Villiers, Viscount Grandisson," which Mr. Whitney recently purchased for the largest figure ever given for a canvas imported to this country, with the single exception of that for Millet's "Angelus." Happner's "Dancing Girl," shown last Winter at the Democratic Club display, a portrait of a man by Tintoretto, and a large and fine example of the French decorative painters of the Eighteenth Century, a female portrait which can be attributed to Boucher, Nattier, or even to Mignard.

There is also a large and fine portrait of a male member of the Medici family, by Stusterman. The Van Dyck portrait of Viscount Grandisson, was the centre of interest last evening, and there were few of the guests who did not study it. The portrait is a full-length standing one, and depicts the young Viscount in a Court dress of the period, with gold brocaded doublet and breeches, long boots of brown leather with flaring tops, and a plumed cavalier's hat of gray felt held in his left hand.

THE BALLROOM.

Entrance to the ballroom was made through the long corridor in the rear of the dining room. The walls of this corridor, as said above, are panelled with old carved wood. The ballroom itself is a magnificent apartment of the Louis XIV. period. The walls are panelled in high relief, and were taken from the château of Phoebus d'Albert, near Bordeaux; thence they were taken to Paris, in the time of Louis Philippe, and in Paris Mr. Whitney secured them. The ceiling was also taken from an old château.

The feature of the great ballroom and its decorations is the marvelous tapestries by Boucher and Dechaise. These in texture, design, and color are among the most beautiful decorative tapestries in the world. The scene in this ballroom, when the cotillion was being danced, was reminiscent of some Court ball in a European palace.

The rooms opening off the lower entrance hall do not call for special mention, except the Marie Antoinette room, which was used last night for the women's cloakroom. This room, on the left of the hall as one enters, is one of the most artistic in the house. Its walls are covered with paneled mirrors, surrounding a number of remarkably good copies of Boucher, Nattier, Lancret, Pater, Watteau, and other painters of the eighteenth century.

The most effective apartment in the house, with the possible exception of the grand ballroom, is the magnificent hall on the second floor, which extends the whole depth of the house, save for the marble stairway in the rear. This hall has a ceiling two stories high, beautifully decorated, and its fittings are all of marble and carved woods. In its centre last night the table of honor was placed for the supper, and at it were thirty or forty chosen guests.

The other tables for the supper were placed here and in other rooms opening out of it. The scene when the supper was at its height, with hundreds of beautifully gowned women, decked with flashing jewels and surrounded by Old World treasures of art, was more suggestive, save for the modern costumes, of a banquet in some old Venetian palace in the time of the Doges than one in the metropolis of the New World.

The house called for little floral decoration last night, but in the entrance hall, to the right as the guests descended the steps, was a brilliant spot of color, made by the bright red blossoms of the poinsettia, a few of which were placed against the wall. There were also several pots of Boston fern, and at the foot of the back stairway, by which the guests ascended to the second floor, was placed another small bank of the poinsettia, its red blossoms lighting up the cold marble of the stairway. The large office and the reception room at the left, on entering, were used for cloak rooms—the office for the men, the reception room for the women.

After doffing their wraps and ascending to the second floor the guests passed through the main hall to the salon, where Mr. Whitney, assisted by his sister, Mrs. Charles T. Barney, and her daughter, Miss Helen Tracy Barney, received them. Mrs. Barney's gown was of mirror velvet and brocade. The court train was of the velvet by a soft red hue, and the petticoat was of silver cloth, embroidered in pink roses of different shades. She wore pearls in her coiffure and about her neck. Miss Barney's gown was of white mousseline de sole, delicately embroidered in gold, and trimmed with white flowers.

THE SUPPER AND BALL.

There was general dancing before supper, for which Lander's and Franko's Orchestras played alternately. The supper was served about 12:30. The tables, which were laid and decorated on the third floor, were brought down ready for the guests. They were decorated with pink and white orchids, and there were corsage bouquets and boutonnières of these flowers for the guests.

There were about forty-five tables in all, and these were placed in the salon, the parlor, library, main hall, everywhere in fact on the second floor, save the ballroom. During the supper Sherry's Hungarian orchestras played in the halls. The supper was served by Sherry, and the menu was as follows:

Bouillon en Tasse.
Terrapin.
Canvas-back duck.
Poussins Grillés a la Diable.
Pate de Croute.
Salade.
Glace.
Gateaux. Bonbons.
Café.
Champagne. Apollinaris.

After supper the cotillion was danced to the music of Lander's and Franko's orchestras, which played alternately, by about one hundred couples in the large Louis XIV. ballroom. The chairs were arranged two deep. The decorations were simple. The windows were filled with Southern smilax, with baskets of pink begonias depending from the centre of each, and large clusters of electric lights, of which there were fourteen, were covered with diaphanous white material, which, in turn, was veiled with asparagus vine, in which were placed pink and white orchids.

There were six favor designs, the figures for which were very handsome. Several charming novelties in figures were introduced by Worthington Whitehouse, who led the cotillion, dancing with Miss Barney. For the girls there were favors of sashes of liberty silk, jeweled and trimmed with heavy gold fringe, and for the men ribbons of different shades to match the sashes, from which depended jeweled orders. There were also in another figure large lanterns of gilt filled with mica in different shades. These lanterns were furnished with electric batteries, and were carried lighted. In this figure there were watchman's silver rattles for burglar alarms, old English in style, for the men.

One of the novelties was the hunt figure, when three stage horses, ridden by three little but real jockeys, walked in. These horses represented Ballyhoo Bey, Kilmarnock, and Prince Charlie, Mr. Whitney's racers, and the jockeys wore the Whitney colors—pale blue and chocolate brown. They distributed riding crops to both the men and the women. In another figure superb bunches of artificial flowers of all sorts, to which were attached long loops of ribbon by which they could be suspended from the girls' arms, were given, and boutonnières to match were distributed to the men.

Another favor was flags of all nations in silk on gilded poles. Yet other favors were missal bags in deep red velvet exquisitely embroidered with crests and trimmed with silver and gold galloon, and tied with gold cord, while for the men there were tabard horns of nickel, covered with red velvet, to which were attached banners of red, with Ms embroidered on them in gold.

The balloon figure was another of Mr. Whitehouse's novelties. These balloons were large enough for the men to get inside of, and covered them down to the heels. They were of tissue paper in various colors, and when a girl selected a balloon that pleased her she tore open the paper and took out her partner. Still another novelty was the fan figure. An immense fan, 6 feet high and 15 feet wide, was rolled in, closed, on a standard; it was then unfurled, and the men went to the one side and the girls to the other. Tiny fans were then given the women, who held them high above their heads, and from the other side the men, seeing the fans only, selected such as pleased them, and their holders were their partners.

The cotillion did not finish until after 3 o'clock this morning. A number of the older guests left after the first figure. The younger element remained with few exceptions until the dancing ended, and departed laden with favors.

STRIKING COSTUMES NOTED.

The gowns worn were unusually handsome and rich. Many of them were worn at the opera before the ball. Some of the more striking ones were as follows:

Mrs. Astor was in black velvet and wore all her superb diamonds.

Mrs. John Jacob Astor was in white tulle, embroidered in gold.

Mrs. W. Bayard Cutting wore blue velvet.

Mrs. W. Storrs Wells was in blue, embroidered in seed pearls and silver.

Mrs. Edmund L. Baylies wore cream colored lace over satin, trimmed with tiny sprays of pink roses, and wore diamond ornaments.

Mrs. Frederic Neilson wore a Princesse gown of white satin.

Mrs. Richard Irvin was in black lace over white satin, trimmed with black velvet roses embossed.

Mrs. Charles A. Post wore black Chantilly lace and emerald ornaments.

Mrs. Stanford White was in white satin.

Mrs. Spotswood Schenck was in black tulle, embroidered in silver.

Mrs. Luther Kountze wore mauve panne velvet, trimmed with cream guipure lace and diamond ornaments.

Mrs. Goodhue Livingston wore a red velvet gown and diamond ornaments.

Mrs. Lloyd Bryce wore white satin, covered with lace, and pearl and diamond ornaments.

Miss Rosamond Street was in white satin, the bodice covered with silver and pearl embroidered net.

Miss May Gallatin wore a gown of pale blue satin veiled with white tulle spangled with silver and garlanded with small bunches of blue and white flowers, and a spray of the same flowers in her hair.

Miss Justine Cutting was in delicate mauve chiffon over silk.

Miss Helen Kountze wore pink silk, covered with embroidered tulle.

Miss Nathalie Schenck wore white satin embroidered in pearls.

Miss Caroline Wilmerding was in light-blue satin veiled with white tulle and trimmed with white hyacinths.

Miss Nathalie Henderson was in white satin embroidered in gold, and had lilies of the valley on her corsage and in her hair.

Miss Edith Post wore a white lace frock over white satin, decorated with sprays of scarlet geraniums.

Miss Barbara Sedley was in white satin embroidered in silver.

Miss Natalie Wells was in white tulle delicately embroidered.

Miss Eleanor Sedley wore a pink crepe frock beautifully embroidered.

Miss Marie de Neufville wore cream-colored lace over white satin, spangled with gold, and a yellow sash.

Miss Kathleen Neilson wore white tulle over white silk, the frock was trimmed with camellias.

Miss Claire Bryce was in white satin and white lace.

Miss Lelia Bryce was in light-blue satin, with lace trimmings.

The three Misses Cryder, the triplets, wore frocks of white lace over white satin, trimmed with red geraniums.

Mrs. Herbert Eaton was in gray silk, trimmed with green velvet, and cape sleeves of velvet of the same color.

Mrs. Frederic Gebhard wore one of the most striking and effective gowns seen. It was a princesse gown of steel gray silk, and she owre diamond sunbursts on the bodice.

Mrs. James A. Burden, Jr., was in light green panne velvet, and on the bodice a bunch of deep red roses.

Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish wore a gown of steel gray panne velvet, paillietted in silver, and wore also superb strings of pearls.

Lady Cunard was in white liberty satin, brocaded with gold.

Mrs. W. D. Sloane was in white brocaded silk.

Miss Lila Sloane wore pale-blue chiffon.

Mrs. George Crocker was in white silk, brocaded, and many jewels.

Miss Rutherford was in light-blue mousseline de sole.

Mrs. John J. Wyaong was in white, brocaded in gold.

Mrs. Oliver Harriman, Jr., was in white lace, with superb jewels, chiefly pearls.

Mrs. Frank Witherbee wore white silk, trimmed with exquisite lace.

SOME OF THE GUESTS.

There were between 350 and 400 guests, among them being:

Mrs. Astor,
Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Astor,
Mr. and Mrs. James A. Burden, Jr.,
Mr. and Mrs. H. Mortimer Brooks,
Mr. and Mrs. Heber R. Bishop,
Mr. and Mrs. James L. Breese,
Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Baylies,
Mr. and Mrs. R. Fulton Cutting,
Mr. and Mrs. Henry Clews,
Mr. and Mrs. Bayard Cutting,
Mr. and Mrs. A. Cass Canfield,
Mrs. William P. Douglass,
Mrs. Ogden Goelet,
Mrs. Griswold Gray,
Mrs. Frederick Gebhard,
Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Harriman,
Cooper Hewitt,
Mr. and Mrs. Herbert M. Harriman,
Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Harrison,
Mr. and Mrs. Russell Headley,
Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Hamilton,
G. G. Haven,
Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Iselin,
Mr. and Mrs. William Jay,
Mr. and Mrs. J. Fred Kernochan,
Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Kernochan,
Mrs. Adolph Ladenburg,
Mr. and Mrs. J. F. D. Lanier,
Mr. and Mrs. John R. Livermore,
Mr. and Mrs. Goodhue Livingston,
Mr. and Mrs. Prescott Lawrence,
Mrs. Charles H. Marshall,
Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Mackay.
Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Miller,
Mr. and Mrs. S. Mortimer,
Mr. and Mrs. L. H. Morgan,
Mrs. F. Nelson,
Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Norrie,
Mrs. Hermann Oelrichs,
Mrs. E. C. Post,
Mr. and Mrs. F. Pendleton,
Mr. and Mrs. Whitelaw Reid,
Mr. and Mrs. T. J. O. Rhinelander,
Mr. and Mrs. S. D. Ripley,
Mr. and Mrs. V. Sorchan,
Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Sloane,
Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Stevens,
Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Satterlee,
Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Stevens,
Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Smith,
Mr. and Mrs. F. Sturgis,
Baron and Baroness Sélillere,
Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Thompson,
Mr. and Mrs. J. Lee Tailer,
Mr. and Mrs. H. McK. Twombly,
Mrs. Richard Trimble,
Mr. and Mrs. F. Egerton Webb,
Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Wharton,
Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Webster,
Mr. and Mrs. Stanford White,
Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Wells,
Mr. and Mrs. Ormo Wilson,
Mr. and Mrs. Whitney Warren,
Dr. and Mrs. W. S. Webb,
Mr. and Mrs. F. Y. Watriss,
Mr. and Mrs. C. Vanderbilt, Jr.,
Lady Cunard,
Mr. and Mrs. S. Le G. Cromwell,
Mr. and Mrs. P. Dana,
Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Dodge,
Mr. and Mrs. H. Le R. Emmet,
Mr. and Mrs. S. Fish,
Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Jaffray,
Mr. and Mrs. P. Lawrence,
Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Moore,
Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Norrie,
Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Winthrop, Jr.,
Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr.,
Mr. and Mrs. J. Norman de R. Whitehouse,
Miss Brooks,
Miss Claire Bryce,
Miss Bishop,
Miss Burden,
Miss Justine Cutting,
Miss Fannie Cottenet,
Misses Cryder,
Miss Callender,
Miss Cushing,
Miss Sybil Douglas,
Miss Dorothea Draper,
Miss de Neufville,
Miss Alice De Goicouria,
Miss Anna Dodge,
Miss Susan Ellis,
Miss Fish,
Miss Mamie Field,
Miss Gerry,
Miss Mabel Gerry,
Miss Edith Greenough,
Miss Goelet,
Miss Mary Gwynee,
Miss May Gallatin,
Miss Marion Haven,
Miss Mary Hartman,
Miss Hall,
Miss Nathalie Henderson,
Miss Eleanor Hewitt,
Miss Beatrix Hoyt,
Miss Hester Hone,
Miss Louise Hoilister,
Miss Therese Iselin,
Miss Edel Irvin,
Miss Nora Iselin,
Miss Eleanor Jay,
Miss Josephine Johnson,
Miss Mary Kernochan,
Miss Helen Kountze,
Miss Sybil Kane,
Miss Caroline Livingston,
Miss Jacquelin de C. Livingston,
Miss Rosie Moran,
Miss Annie Morgan,
Miss Bettie Metcalf,
Miss Kathleen Neilson,
Miss Elsie Nicholas,
Miss Alice Olin,
Miss Julia Olin,
Miss Lily Ogilvie,
Miss Helen Porrish,
Miss Edith C. Post,
Miss Rogers,
Miss Pauline Robinson,
Miss Anna Sands,
Miss E. Sloane,
Miss Lila Sloane,
Miss Nathalie Schenck,
Miss Street,
Miss Mildred Stokes,
Miss Florence Twombly,
Miss Eunice Terry,
Miss Hilda Tiffany,
Miss Caroline Wilmerding,
Miss Frederica Webb,
Miss Nathalie Wells,
Miss Marian Whitaker,
Miss Babcock,
Miss Susan Butler,
Miss Ruth Morgan,
Miss Sara Van Alen,
The Misses Wetmore,
Miss Marie Winthrop,
Miss Eva Barbey,
Miss Gurnee,
Miss Wyckoff,
F. W. Andrews, Jr.,
I. W. Appleton,
Archibald Alexander, Jr.
R. Brooks,
Francis C. Bishop,
Ogden M. Bishop,
David Wolfe Bishop,
J. Townsend Burden, Jr.,
William P. Burden,
R. Livingston Beeckman,
E. H. Bulkley,
I. D. R. Baldwin,
H. W. Bull,
Andrew A. Bibby,
S. P. Blagden, Jr.
R. L. H. Betts,
J. Searle Barclay, Jr.
H. G. Barbey,
I. Phil Benkard,
J. Gerard Benkard,
Milton S. Barger,
Ashbel H. Barney,
George S. Brewster,
S. D. Babcock, Jr.,
John Cross,
Redmond Cross,
John Cadwalader,
Bourke Cockran,
J. de W. Cutting,
W. Bayard Cutting, Jr.,
William Cutting,
T. F. Cushing,
Ogden Codman, Jr.,
O. De Lancey Coster,
Philip A. Clark,
R. Bayard Cutting,
F. V. G. d'Hauteville,
P. G. d'Hauteville,
Cornelius M. Depew,
Charles D. Draper,
John Ross Delafield,
Tracy Dows,
Ralph N. Ellis,
H. F. Eldridge,
W. T. Eldridge,
Rudolph Flinch,
Charles S. Forbes,
Gilbert Francklyn,
Jordon Fellows,
Blair Fairchild,
Robert L. Gerry,
F. Gray Griswold,
George Griswold, Jr.,
Charles W. Gould,
Goelet Gallatin,
Walter Gurnee, 3d,
Eliot Gregory,
Lawrence Gillespie,
Count Gheradesca,
Robert Goelet,
Robert W. Goelet,
Chester Griswold, Jr.,
Le Grand Griswold,
Center Hitchcock,
G. Beekman Hoppin,
Meredith Howland, Jr.,
Winfield S. Hoyt,
Franklin C. Hoyt,
Alexander M. Hadden,
Archibald C. Harrison,
Erskine Hewitt,
Eugene Hale,
Cyril Hatch,
De Ruyter Hollins,
Joseph H. Hunt,
Lawrence Houghton,
E. O. Holter,
George Iselin,
Duncan G. Harris,
Ford Huntington,
Ernest Iselin,
Arthur Iselin,
Edwin Iselin,
Phoenix Ingraham,
E. Townsend Irvin,
Bradish G. Johnson,
F. A. Juilliard,
Julian Kean,
W. De Lancey Kountze,
Barclay W. Kountze,
F. H. Kinnicutt,
G. Herman Kinnicutt,
Frederic Kernochan,
Herbert King,
F. de P. Livingston,
Cambridge Livingston,
D. McC. Livingston,
Robert L. Livingston,
R. B. Livingston,
Louis J. Livingston,
Townsend Lawrence,
P. M. Lydig,
Stuyvesant Le Roy,
C. March,
Peter Marié,
Thomas Myers,
D. O. Mills,
C. A. Munn,
John Minturn,
George C. Munzig,
Monson Morris,
Alfonse de Navarro,
Francis J. Otis,
Frank L. Polk,
R. A. Potter,
Alonzo Potter,
Gordon Paddock,
Harper Pennington,
f. Metcalf Polk,
James V. Parker,
R. K. Richards,
Burnet R. Ruggles,
Arden M. Robbins,
Allan A. Robbins,
H. P. Robbins,
R. Renalds,
John S. Rogers,
Lothrop Randolph,
Gould H. Redmond,
Moncure Robinson,
Messrs. Robinson,
Julian A. Ripley,
Ogden M. Reid,
R. C. Sands,
Lispenard Stewart,
J. G. Stokes,
William Sloane,
E. A. Stillman,
E. Nail Stebbins,
Arthur Street,
Fitzhugh Townsend,
Percy Turnure,
Chas. L. Tiffany, 2d,
Robert J. Turnbull, Jr.,
Prince Troubetskoy,
Robert Terry, Jr.,
W. K. Vanderbilt,
R. B. Van Cortlandt,
G. Creighton Webb,
W. F. Whitehouse, Jr.,
E. L. Winthrop,
F. Bronson Winthrop,
H. Roger Winthrop,
Craig Wadsworth,
J. M. Waterbury, Jr.,
F. Delano Weekes,
Henry de F. Weekes,
Stewart Waller,
J. Barton Willing,
C. D. Wetmore,
J. T. Woodward,
Percy Warren,
Lucius Wilmerding, Jr.,
E. Coster Wilmerding,
Fernando Yznaga,
Harry Lehr,
Henry D. Macdona,
Gerald D. Morgan,
R. K. Prentice,
Ralph Pulitzer,
Tiffany Richardson,
Prince Ruspole,
G. W. Smalley,
Grant B. Schley, Jr.,
Kenneth Schley,
Vander B. Schley,
Charles E. Whitehead,
Arthur Weeks,
Harold Weeks,
A. Murray Yaunge,
Charles F. McKim,
Archibold M. Brown,
Fred Baldwin,
Henry Bebby,
W. Scott Cameron,
Hy. de Beaux,
Rudolph Flinsch,
Henry A. Floyd,
Sumner Gerard,
Julian Gerard,
Francis E. Lathrop.

CROWD OUTSIDE THE HOUSE.

Many People Wait for Hours to Catch a Glimpse of the Guests.

Interest in the ball was not confined to the invited guests. Early in the evening a little fringe of men and women gathered about the entrance and on the sidewalk opposite, commenting on each new comer, speculating as to their identity, and discussing such part of the decoration as was observable from without. The awning, which stretched the entire length of the entrance, served to attract the attention of casual passers-by, many of whom stopped and joined the groups on the sidewalk.

The entire upper portion of the house was in gloom. Not a light shone from the windows on the third floor, but on the second a soft glow filtered through creamy curtains. Over the main door there is a broad span of wrought iron work, and through this could be caught glimpses of the green onyx vestibule lighted up by three immense chandeliers of bronze.

Through the great bay window at the east end of the house the crowd on the sidewalk caught sight of the flowers and palms decorating that end of the hall room, and when the lights were turned on fully the spot glowed like a great ball of fire.

Capt. Titus, with three detectives, stood on the sidewalk. Two other plain clothes men had been assigned to do duty inside. At the entrance there were also five policemen had been assigned to do duty inside of the Twenty-fifth Precinct Police Station. Beyond cautioning an occasional enterprising woman who encroached too closely, the policemen had little to do.

By 11 o'clock many of those who had waited to catch a glimpse of the dresses had grown impatient and went away. Others continued to linger, however, until the flash of the carriage lamps and the clang o. the motor gongs told that the guests were beginning to arrive in numbers. Then they crowded forward eager to see all that was to be seen, and exclamations of admiration greeted each new arrival.

HUNGARIAN PEASANTS' BALL.

Gay Festival of Transplanted Magyars in Madison Square Garden.

Madison Square Garden, the scene of so many and varied festivities, blossomed out last night as a Hungarian village. The Hungarian peasant ball was in progress, with hundreds of guests in attendance. Quite a number of people well known in society were in the boxes in the early part of the evening, but later, when the dancing was in full swing, many mingled with the Magyars on the floor and enjoyed themselves to the fullest extent.

The Hungarian ball is quite an elaborate affair, and when the transplanted Magyar sets out to remind himself of the Fatherland, he does it with whole soul. Last night, as last year, the scenes depicted were those of a Hungarian village during ejection time. At the Fourth Avenue end of the Garden stood the village, a collection of mushroom buildings, and extending far to the other end was a fence inclosing the village green.

The spectacles began at 11 o'clock, when soldiers took possession of the "public buildings," which was the Town Hall. Then followed Hungarian dances and the singing of national hymns, the ceremonies finally ending with a mock marriage and the "Csardas," the national Hungarian dance. After that the ball was on, and peasants in short dresses, soldiers, cowboys, and plain New York citizens mingled indiscriminately. At 2 o'clock the floor, littered with confetti, was filled and the fun was fast and furious.

SINGER OUTWITS HER MANAGER

Member of the New Orleans Opera Company, Saves Her Contract.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Jan. 4.—Miss Electra Gifford of Chicago, chanteuse legère of the Berriel French Opera Company, outwitted her manager at the Opera House last night and saved her contract for the rest of the French opera season.

Under the terms of the contract formal notice of dismissal should have been given by midnight last night, the end of her first month's engagement; otherwise the company is bound for a second month. It was Manager Berriel's intention to terminate the engagement last night.

At the end of the third act, just as Miss Gifford was leaving the stage, she was met by M. Berriel's secretary, who said:

"M. Berriel wishes to see you in his office."

"Very well," replied Miss Gifford. "I wish first to get a glass of water," and stepping behind the wings she passed from the secretary's sight. Then, quick as a flash, the singer snatched up her robe, threw it over her shoulders, drew a veil over her face, and fled down the stairs to the street, followed by her maid.

Near the curb was a carriage. Miss Gifford leaped into it and drove swiftly away into the night.

The manager sent men in search of the singer, but she eluded them all until a few minutes after midnight, when she was found warming her slippered feet before a fire in her apartments.

LYNCHING IN FLORIDA.

Two Colored Men Taken from Jail and Hanged.

MADISON, Fla., Jan. 4.—Two colored men, Jim Denson and a half-brother, were taken last night from the county jail here by persons unknown, carried into the woods about a half mile from town, and hanged. The bodies were also riddled with bullets.

A few weeks ago the negroes were charged with killing Frederick Redding, a farmer. They fled to Georgia, were arrested, brought back to this State, and confined in the jail here.

While attending an entertainment at the Opera House last night, the Sheriff was informed that some one wished to see him. On reaching the street the keys of the jail were demanded of him. He refused, but several men seized him and secured them. The men then went to the jail and executed their purpose. Few of the citizens knew of the lynching until this morning.

CANADIAN EXPRESS THEFTS.

Messenger Confesses to a Series of Robberies Extending Six Months Back.

HALIFAX, N. S., Jan. 4.—W. H. McGowan, a Canadian express messenger, was arrested to-day and is said to have confessed to a series of robberies extending back six months.

About July last banking houses in Montreal, Ottawa, and Toronto complained that packages of money transmitted from Halifax banks were arriving short of the amount they should contain. The packages appeared to be intact, and the loss at first was supposed to have occurred in the banks. Then large sums began to disappear. By accident, it was found that the packages were being tampered with by cutting the end of the envelopes with a very sharp knife and cutting the string close to the seal. After the money was abstracted, the apertures were cleverly sealed.

THE LONDON AND GLOBE SMASH.

Rumors of Deals to Enable the Corporation to Pay a Dividend.

LONDON, Jan. 5.—The Marquis of Dufferin and Ava spent a long time yesterday at the offices of the London and Globe Finance Corporation, Limited. It is reported that he is a heavy personal loser by the difficulties, but that Whitaker Wright quite recently loaned £50,000 to the company, and is its largest creditor.

All kinds of rumors are current as to deals to enable the company to pay an immediate dividend, but The Times, in its financial article, says: "We are able to deny that either the Yerkes group or the London and Southwestern Railway Company has purchased the Baker Street Line, although we are not able to say whether a sale has actually occurred."

Both The Times and The Daily Telegraph advise the London and Globe shareholders to insist upon a compulsory winding up of the company's affairs.

GIRL WEDS ON SMALLPOX BED.

Clergyman Officiates Outside the Window of the Sickroom.

Special to The New York Times.

PLEASUREVILLE, Ky., Jan. 4.—Bourbon Sanford, a veteran of the Spanish-American war, and Miss Carrie Hall were married here yesterday afternoon under the most extraordinary circumstances.

The wedding, which was to have been celebated on New Year's Day, was broken off by the fact that Miss Hall was suddenly stricken with smallpox. The prospective bridegroom was refused admittance to the sickroom, and as he was thought to be infected, having been constantly with Miss Hall for several days, he was shunned by all the people of the town.

He had the alternative of returning to Cuba, where he had settled at the close of the war, or of being married to the stricken girl and nursing her back to health. He chose the latter, and yesterday forced his way into the sickroom. He obtained Miss Hall's consent and a minister, who had been previously placed outside the window, performed the ceremony. Two friends of Sanford stood outside with the minister and witnessed the ceremony.

Mrs. Sanford's chances of recovery are regarded as very good.

ANEMIA

The pale—face girl, who has less strength than belongs to her frame, has too little red in her blood.

It is vital force, that is lacking. Scott's emulsion of cod liver oil will supply it.

We'll send you a little to try, if you like.
SCOTT & BOWNE, 409 Pearl street, New York.

SURE OF HOWARD'S GUILT

District Attorney Clarke Confident He Can Convict Him.

Alleged Bigamist Said to Have Lived Here with His Cambridge Wife—Record of a Divorce.

District Attorney John F. Clarke declared last night, when seen with regard to the case of George W. Howard, who is charged with having more wives than the law allows, that he was confident that he could convict Howard of bigamy even without the assistance of the woman in East Cambridge, who, it is alleged, the accused man married in 1890.

"I shall not go to East Cambridge myself to make inquiries in this matter," said Mr. Clarke. "My agents will pursue the investigation there. It seems from the statements made by the woman in East Cambridge that she will not aid in the prosecution of Howard. I am confident, however, that we can convict him without any assistance from her. They are doing everything to frustrate our efforts to make a case, but we are gathering together evidence, nevertheless.

"There is no doubt as to the genuineness of the marriage certificate of Howard and the Kay woman, filed in Massachusetts. There is also every reason to believe that the Howard whose name appears in that certificate is the Howard who married Miss Hawkes. The answers given to the questions asked when such a certificate is made out are the same in both instances."

Helen Hawkes Howard, whom Howard married in September last, made a statement yesterday, in which she declared that her life with Howard was anything but the blissful thing it has been pictured as having been. She said that she and her husband quarreled frequently and that he would use violent language toward her. Many of their quarrels, she said, were over his trips to Cambridge, although she did not suspect her husband. Mrs. Howard added that her husband kept a loaded revolver in his bureau, and she was afraid of him. Once she extracted the cartridges from the pistol.

Detective Jacob Hamburger, who has been searching into the past life of Howard, said yesterday that Howard had lived here in New York with his alleged Cambridge wife almost up to the time of his marriage to Miss Hawkes. Hamburger said that Howard came here with his Cambridge wife in 1896, and went to live at 152 East Forty-eighth Street. Later, he said, he moved to Ninety-first Street, near Amsterdam Avenue. Howard, Hamburger declared, sent his alleged wife back to Boston to live with her married sister shortly before the time of his marriage to Miss Hawkes in Brooklyn.

BOSTON, Jan. 4.—The marriage records at the State House show that George W. Howard was twice married in this State. The name of the bridegroom is identical in both cases, and so is the place of the bridegroom's birth. In one record his father's name is given as James A., while in the other it is James H., but this may be only a clerical mistake.

The first record shows that on July 7, 1879, George W. Howard, twenty-one years old, a brakeman, born in Reading, son of James A. and Eliza J. Howard, was married by the Rev. H. P. Whittaker, a Methodist minister of Chelsea, to Delia M. Perry, seventeen years old, a resident of Chelsea, but a native of Rockland, Me., and the daughter of Joseph A. and Mary J. Perry.

In the second certificate, that of his marriage to Anna R. Kay, eleven years afterward, he described himself as thirty-three years old.

From court records it appears that the first Mrs. Howard obtained a divorce on the grounds of adultery, cruelty, and abusive treatment, on May 13, 1887, and that the custody of the child was given to her. There was also another charge which did not figure in the decree.

KILLS A GIRL WITH A RAZOR.

Young Man Meets Her in a Field and Assaults Her—Mob Prepare to Lynch Him.

MARIETTA, Ohio, Jan. 4.—One of the most brutal of crimes was committed this evening at Hackney, Morgan County, by which Miss Nellie Morris, aged nineteen years, handsome and accomplished, lost her life. As Miss Morris was returning home from the Post Office, by way of a path through the fields, she was accosted by Walter A. Weinstock, a young man, aged eighteen years, who lived near her home. She immediately started to run, but he grabbed her and threw her to the ground. She screamed and fought hard, finally getting to her feet. Weinstock draw a razor from his pocket and cut her across the neck, severing the neck muscles and laying bare the jugular vein.

Miss Morris seized the razor with her hands, and they were cut into pieces in her mad attempt to rescue herself from the man. Her fingers were cut off and her wrist badly cut, as well as her entire right arm and left arm badly disfigured. Her dress was torn from her in shreds, and when people arrived she was almost naked. She died from the effects of her wounds shortly after the assault. She was the daughter of Benjamin Morris, a business man of this city, and is prominent in society in this city and Parkersburg.

Weinstock was seized by a crowd of men, who bound him with ropes hand and foot and removed him to a building where more than 1,500 men watched over him. A telephone message was sent to McConnellsville for officers to come and get him, but the people were getting ready to start for Marietta at 10 o'clock to-night with their man and place him in jail.

There is talk of lynching him, and as late as 11 o'clock to-night the people of Hackney are all up, and a mob is being organized to hang Weinstock. A tree has been selected and a rope is in the hands of people who will do what they say. Weinstock recently returned from the reformatory, where he served a term for attempting to kill his father, Jacob Weinstock, a rich farmer of Morgan County. He is a young man of powerful build.

TO DISCUSS SPELLING REFORM.

Subject Will Come Up at National Education Association Meeting.

CHICAGO, Jan. 4.—A partial programme of the meeting of the department Superintendents of the National Education Association, which will be held in Chicago on Feb. 26, 27, and 28, has been issued by Secretary Shepard.

The question of promoting good spelling by simplifying the method of teaching will come up for discussion on a resolution to be offered requiring the Board of Directors to appropriate $1,000 yearly for the next five years, to be expended in simplifying English spelling. This is to be done under the direction of a commission to be named by the Superintendents.

The Wanamaker Store The Wanamaker Store The Wanamaker Store

Refined GARMENTS in WHITE

Made in Such Faultless Styles as Tasteful Women Dictate

HERE is economy in elegance, as well as on the low-priced, easily valued garments—and a very real economy. You may not be at all interested in 38c Night Gowns; but you will be glad to save fifty to seventy-five cents on a night gown worth two dollars. Most any store can get some hundreds of catch-penny bargains, though without our regard for the way they are made and finished. But the women of taste that compose the Wanamaker constituency value most the much larger savings that are offered on the medium to the exquisite garments that are as much under value as the more modestly priced pieces. Of these there is broader variety than is approached anywhere else; and the garments are made with generous and artistic care that is unknown in underwear made by other than our own dictation.

The economy is immediate, if you want the best. True, this sale will last all month—but all the goods will not; and our purchases this year were so varied in style that quantities of each sort are much smaller, though aggregate lots are greater. Some styles may be closed out this week. The choicest and best of the offering will naturally go to those who select early in the sale.

There is no rush or confusion with the large selling. Ample space is provided on the Second floor, as well as the big special store in the Basement. Complete assortments of most popular lines are found at both places.

Women's COATS

This relates of Newmarkets—the most stylish as well as the most sensible garments of the season. And here's richest choosing. The materials in this extensive variety of Newmarkets are in every possible weight. And whatever the fabric, there's the best of the latest styles of making and trimming.

There's a bargain, too, in the collection that one would hardly look for just at this period. It's a handsome garment, in newest style, at $25, instead of $35. Elegant Newmarket coats of Kersey, in tan and black, at $30; some at $42, and at $55.

Second floor, Broadway.

Reduction in Girls' Imported COATS

Here are tidings of two groups of elegant imported out-door garments for girls of 12 to 16 years, which offer an opportunity, seldom available, to obtain such beautiful wraps at half their former reasonable prices. It's simply time for them to go, and they won't survive this pointed invitation long. All sizes are contained in each group, but not in every style represented. The first group consists of

Coats that Were $22 to $25, Now $15

They are box coats of handsome double-faced cloths, in best-liked shades of red, gray and tan; some with stitched velvet collars and cuffs, others with strappings of cloth. These are among the smartest coats that foreign makers have produced this year. The other group contains

Velour Jackets that Were $43.50, Now $22

Extreme stylishness characterizes these blouse jackets, made of velour of almost the softness and depth of sealskin. They have high collars of colored velvet, are handsomely trimmed with narrow gold braid, and richly lined with pink, red or blue satin.

Second floor, Ninth street.

Fancy Eiderdowns Low-priced

Many a seeker after mid-winter comfort may provide herself with cold-defying garments at an almost nominal price, from this timely offering. It comprises 106 pieces of these soft, warm fancy eiderdown flannels, in white, cream, red, pink, light blue and gray grounds, with figured, fancy and serpentine stripes. They are all new, bright goods, 27 inches wide, and made for this season's selling, at 37½c and 50c a yard. Here, and now, at

25c yd. for the 37½c kind 28c yd. for the 50c kind

Fourth avenue and Tenth street.

Eiderdown Robes

Many handsome styles of these warm, cozy gowns. Two of them are deserving of particular mention. One is priced $3.25—a very good value. It is of excellent quality, in solid colors—red, pink, gray and light blue; bound with satin; frogs, girdle and ribbon.

The other is $5. It's of ripple eiderdown—soft, warm, luxurious. All the usual solid colors. Attractively bound with satin in matching colors. Other finer, more elaborate robes up to $13.50.

Second floor, Fourth avenue.

Flannelette WAISTS

This concerns a belated lot. They were intended for the holiday selling. Didn't arrive in time for that, but not too late, by any means. The styles are ours alone—made for us. The flannelette is of good quality, navy blue, red or lavender grounds with stripes or white dots. The fronts are full, the backs fitted and neatly plaited; dress sleeves; flare cuffs. Attractive, warm. One dollar.

Second floor, Fourth avenue.

Two Rare Offers In CORSETS

Both of these lots are imported corsets of wide popularity. Rather limited in quantity, as they were the last on hand of certain kinds, and they came to us away below their worth; and can be sold this way to-day:

C. P. Corsets, Regularly $2.75, at $1

Made of light-weight batiste, in pink, blue, lavender and white; low bust, short hips; prettily trimmed with lace and ribbon.

P. D. Corsets, in two grades; in white, drab and black;

$1.75 kind at $1 $2.75 kind at $1.25

Main floor, near Tenth street elevators.

A Sale of Marshmallows

What delicious bargains! Not old—for they've been made within ten days—but cut in price so they won't get old. We have eight or nine hundred pounds more than our regular selling requires, and this excess is offered to-day—

Fresh, Delicious Vanilla Marshmallows at 18c a pound

If we had only an ordinary quantity these would be 25c a pound, as the same goods will be when these are sold.

Butter Wafers at 20c a pound

These are made of the highest grade sugar—"Mould A"—and the finest, purest butter. Made by candy experts that know how to mix, and boil and flavor so as to obtain the very best results. Butter Wafers are pure and palatable. Pound box of 8 flavors at 20c.

Basement.

These illustrations of values offered:

Night Gowns at $1—

Made of fine muslin, generous length, full, comfortable width; finely and neatly stitched, all seams nicely finished; yoke of clusters of fine plaits between rows of hemstitching; neck and sleeves trimmed with embroidery.

Other Night Gowns at 38c to $9.

Petticoats at $1—

Of good muslin, liberal in width and length, with deep ruffle of lawn, trimmed with three rows of lace insertion.

Other Petticoats at 35c to $20.

Drawers at 50c—

Of cambric, in full, generous width, with umbrella ruffle, trimmed with edging and insertion of torchon lace. Other styles of Drawers at 10c to $6.50.

Chemises at 85c—

Of nainsook, with round neck and arm-holes trimmed with edging and insertion of Valenciennes lace, run with narrow ribbon.

Other Chemises at 25c to $4.50.

Corset Covers at 50c—

Of cambric, in full shape, with drawing string at waist; square neck trimmed with point de Paris lace and insertion; run with ribbon.

Other Corset Covers at 8c to $3.75.

Short Petticoats at 50c—

Of cambric, trimmed with torchon lace, with clusters of plaits above; neatly finished at every point.

Other Short Petticoats at 25c to $2.75.

These six speak for as many hundreds.

A Sale of Stragglers in SILKS and Velvets

Nineteenth century laggards are to be hurried out of this silk store. Sharp, radical action has been taken, such as these handsome fabrics scarcely deserve. Of course there are odd pieces, odd colors sometimes, and odd quantities; but oddest of all is the price—

fifty-five cents a yard for silks and velvets of every grade included in the collection. And there are remarkable fabrics offered at this price. Read on:

Velvets that were $1.50 and more—

And the colors are gray, reseda, mousse, emerald, bronze, medium blue, bluet, lilac, pink, old rose and magenta—not over ten yards in any one color; but they'll do wonders in remodeling a dress. Wonderful value at 55c a yard.

Peau Nitas, worth $1.50—

A rich Ottoman back ribbed satin, in three browns, two tans, three blues, red, cerise and green—and plenty of all these colors. Now 55c a yd.

Crepe de Chines that were $1 to $1.50—

Ten yards and less in a piece. Colors are Nile, pink, ciel, navy blue, brown, tan, lilac, old blue, red, old rose, gray, white and black. Now 55c a yard.

Figured Satins originally 75c—

In dark shades, plain or in double colors—blue, red, turquoise, old blue, brown, green, all shot with black; also solid colors of green, brown, blue and tan. All at 55c a yard.

A group of worthy Silks that should make a busy time in the Rotunda to-day.

Men's OVERCOATS And Trousers

Two important announcements come from our Clothing Store this morning. One about Trousers that will interest every man, no matter how well he is supplied; the other about Overcoats, that will make many men discard the old overcoat, when a handsome new coat costs so little as to-day.

This is the news in detail:

Men's $18 to $25 Overcoats at $15—

Box overcoats and Raglans of the season's choicest, handsomest fabrics—rough-faced Oxford and brown-mixed cheviots; some serge-lined, others with wool-body lining and satin-lined shoulders. Sizes broken though all sizes are in the lot. Splendid overcoats to buy at such a price—$15 each.

Men's $7.50 Trousers at $5—

A special purchase of fine and handsome pure Worsteds brings this splendid offering to-day. The stripes are smart and refined, the worsted is of the highest character, and the tailoring is the very best. They are the best Trousers we have ever offered at the price, and this store is famous for five-dollar trousers.

Second floor, Fourth avenue.

Sets of Books in the "Hurt Book" Sale

There are thousands of bargains in this offering. New lots added this morning, as attractive as any that have yet been placed on the tables. And they're not all "hurt" books, by any means. Many of them are absolutely without fault. Brought into this sale, only because of little lots. The collection embraces the entire field of literature. Especially rich in reference works; and sets like these:

Dickens' Works; good edition, 30 vols., $13.50; cheaper edition, 15 vols., $2.60.
Bulwer Lytton's Novels, 13 vols., $2.25.
Waverley Novels, 12 vols., $2.15.
Thackeray's Works, 10 vols., $1.90.
Washington Irving's Works, 8 vols., $3.
Emil Gaboriau, 6 vols., $2.50.
Shakespeare's Works, 7 vols., $1.
Macaulay's Essays, 3 vols., 75c.
Macaulay's History of England, 5 vols., $1.25.
Prescott's Conquest of Peru, 2 vols., 55c.
Prescott's Conquest of Mexico, 2 vols., 55c.
Prescott's Ferdinand and Isabella, 2 vols., 55c.
Samuel Smiles' Works, 5 vols., 75c.
George Eliot's Works, 6 vols., 85c.
Alexandre Damas' Works, 8 vols., $1.25.
Viking Age. By Paul Du Chaillu. 2 vols., $1.35.
Reference Books—very few sets of each left.
Standard American Encyclopædia; cloth binding; 8 vols., $5; half morocco binding, 8 vols., $6.50.
Enclycopædia Britannica, with American supplementary matter; cloth, 25 vols., $28.50; half morocco, $40.

Book Store, Ninth street.

Men's COLLARS

They are new linen collars in correct shapes, and they're 55c a half dozen. The sale has been in progress now for a week. Its duration will be limited by the supply of collars we'll be able to get. They're made by the same manufacturer that turns out our unmatched two-for-a-quarter collars. Of good quality—much better than any one could reasonably expect at the absurdly little price. In 9 styles: The high turnovers are shown in 4 heights; the straight standing in 3 heights; the turn-points, or "white wings," in 2 heights. All sizes from 14 to 18. Sold only by the box of a half dozen, at 55c a Box

Men's Store, Broadway and Ninth.

Men's SHIRTS

This is a lot of shirts of excellent percale, in good tasteful patterns, that were made to sell at $1 and $1.25 each. They would be considered reasonably priced if so offered to-day. But the stock became ours at a figure that makes possible this new price—

Sixty Cents Each

Sale began several days ago, and there's been extensive distribution since. Quantities are rapidly shrinking, but assortments are still unimpaired as we begin to-day's selling.

Men's Store, Broadway and Ninth.

Boys' CLOTHING Radically Reduced

Some of these are only little lots. They are all big bargains. They represent the lines that, becoming depleted during the holiday time, will not be again replenished. Small stocks fret this clothing chief. They must be disposed of in a hurry. His methods are simple—effective—as illustrated in to-day's offerings:

These double-breasted suits of cheviots and cassimeres are regularly $10 and $11; now they're $5. All good patterns. 9 to 16-year sizes.

Three-piece suits, with double-breasted vests, are reduced to $4.25, from $5, and $5, from $7.50. They're of stylish mixed cheviots; 9 to 16 years.

Sailor suits that were $7 and $7.50 are now $5. They are of serge and cheviot, neatly trimmed with braid. Sizes 3 to 12 years.

Besides these, there are storm-collar reefers, at $5; and Russian hood ulsters, lined with red flannel, at $8.50.

Second floor, Ninth street.

SHOES Under-price

Very little money buys very good shoes in either of our bargain shoe stores. Very few people wear fine shoes all the time. The more practical sorts wear longer, and there is so little difference in the matter of looks, that, for every-day wear, it hardly pays to miss such economy as these shoes offer. This word of special offerings to-day:

Shoes for Men—In the annex store, 4th avenue corner of 9th st., opposite main store:
Shoes in satin calf at $1.30 Box and wax calf and patent leather, $1.90.
Patent, enamel, kid and calf, $2.85. And a saving of at least one-third on every pair.

Women's Shoes—In the basement.
At $1—Odd sizes and widths in fine lines. It may take some time to find your size, but a rare saving if you do.
At $1.60—Kidskin boots, laced and buttoned, with tips; welted and stitched soles.

Children's Shoes—
75c, 85c, 95c and $1, according to size; you may be sure of saving a third on any you choose.

UMBRELLAS

This splendid offering concerns both men and women. There are about 200 fine umbrellas for each, and the price is only a small part of the actual value. The women's 26-inch umbrellas are of pure silk, with fancy handles in fully twenty styles. Some are of pearl and of ivory, some trimmed with gold-plating set with colored stones, some of fine Dresden, and so on.

The men's, all 28-inch, are also of fine, pure silk, and have handles of fancy horn, ivory and silver-trimmed natural wood.

There are umbrellas in the lot—a fair proportion, too—that sell regularly at $7. None is worth less than $5.

Broadway. Choice, Men's and Women's, $2.75 Each

BOX COUCHES $14 Kind at $9.75

Told of these couches on Thursday, and a large quantity have been sold; still some dozens more are available at the same remarkably low price. Spacious wardrobe storage inside, excellent workmanship and handsome upholstering on the outside. In detail this:

At $9.75 instead of $14—Box or wardrobe couches; 6 ft. long, 30 in. wide, 7 in. box; the box space is full size of couch, is muslin lined; top is tufted and is made of best quality springs, and upholstered in tow and moss; covering is imitation Bagdad in several patterns; lid has self-opening spring attachment.

This brief telling should take the balance in a jiffy.

Fourth floor.

Reductions in Hemstitched Handkerchiefs

Especially noteworthy among the throng of exceptional values which the White Sale brings with it, is this offering of men's and women's Handkerchiefs at prices which range from two-thirds down to less than a half of former values. They're fresh, perfect handkerchiefs, beautifully hemstitched, and—trite statement, as they're Wanamaker handkerchiefs—pure linen. These qualifications, which fit them for your favor, are enhanced by their extremely low prices:

For Men—
Handkerchiefs at $4.50 dozen for $12 quality.
Handkerchiefs at $3.75 dozen for $7.80 quality.

For Women—
Handkerchiefs at $2.50 dozen for $4.20 quality.
Handkerchiefs at $2 dozen for $3 quality.

Main aisle, Broadway.

Formerly A. T. Stewart & Co.

JOHN WANAMAKER

Broadway, Fourth Avenue, Ninth and Tenth Streets.

THE SENATE DISCUSSES NEED FOR LARGER ARMY

Mr. Hoar Wants a New Philippine Commission Appointed.

SENATOR TELLER'S ATTACK

Says Bill for Temporary Army of 200,000 Men Would Pass in 48 Hours—Alaska Dispute Discussed.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—For five hours to-day the Senate discussed the Army Reorganization bill. The debate took a wide range at times, but was confined principally to the question of the necessity for the increase in the regular army provided for in the pending measure.

The Philippine question was thrashed over at great length, but few really new points were advanced. It was urged by the supporters of the Army bill that the situation in the Philippines demanded the increase of the army proposed. This was controverted by the opposition Senators, who, while they were willing, in a general way, to provide for such temporary force as might be needful, were vigorously opposed to the creation of a permanent standing army of 100,000 men.

Speeches were made by Mr. Carter, (Rep., Mon.) Mr. Teller, (Silver Rep., Col.,) Mr. Hoar, (Rep., Mass.,) Mr. Stewart, (Rep., Nevada,) and Mr. Caffery, (Dem., La.) One of the sharpest colloquies of the session was between Mr. Carter and Mr. Wellington, (Rep., Md.,) and in the course of it the Alaskan boundary dispute was brought forward prominently, the Maryland Senator charging that the President had relinquished sovereignty over territory the title to which, he maintained, was vested clearly in the United States.

Mr. Hoar advanced a proposition to create a commission, to be composed of all shades of political opinion, to investigate the entire Philippine question and report its findings to Congress, in order that a basis might be formed for intelligent action.

The discussion of the bill began when the resolution offered yesterday by Mr. Pettigrew, (Silver, S. D.,) calling for information with reference to the Philippines, was laid before the Senate, and Mr. Lodge moved that it be referred to the Committee on the Philippines. In pressing the adoption of the resolution, Mr. Pettigrew said the President maintained there was no war in the Philippines. The Military Committee declared that war existed there and that at least 60,000 men would be required to suppress the rebellion. "As the President and the Military Committee disagree," said Mr. Pettigrew, "it seems to me we ought to have the facts before we create an army of 100,000 men."

He urged that the adoption of the resolution would facilitate the passage of the Army Reorganization bill. Inasmuch as the Senate had a right to the information requested, he hoped it would be adopted instead of being sent to "that graveyard, the Philippines Committee." After Mr. Hawley (Rep., Conn.,) had said the immediate effect of the resolution would be to delay the Army bill, as it would require a long time to prepare the information, the resolution was referred to the Philippines Committee.

Another of Mr. Pettigrew's resolutions, calling upon the President for information as to the necessity for an increase in the strength of the army, was referred, on motion of Mr. Aldrich, to the Committee on Military Affairs, after Mr. Hawley, Chairman of the committee, had said it would be brought before the committee to-morrow morning.

When the Pettigrew resolutions had been disposed of and the direct consideration of the Army bill had begun, Mr. Carter, (Rep., Mont.,) a member of the Military Affairs Committee, asked unanimous consent that the unobjected amendment to the bill be considered and passed upon. To this Mr. Pettigrew objected, declaring that as his efforts to obtain information from the regular channels had been thwarted he proposed to have time to obtain it in some other way.

Mr. Carter urged that Mr. Pettigrew did not state correctly the conditions. There was no proposition to increase the army. It was already an army of 100,000 men, and it was perfectly evident to any person of ordinary intelligence that a condition existed for the maintenance of a considerable force in the Philippines.

WELLINGTON DISCUSSES ALASKA.

After directing attention to some of the statements of Mr. Carter made yesterday, Mr. Wellington demanded to know the intention of the Administration with reference to the Philippine Islands. If it was to force an annexation of the Philippines then a large army would be necessary. He declared the country had been assured at the beginning of the Philippine trouble that it could be put down in five or six weeks. Two campaigns had been fought and the situation was worse than ever.

"Those people cannot be put down," declared Mr. Wellington. "Is it the purpose of the Administration to try to deprive them of self-government? If so, I am opposed to any increase of the army."

In reply Mr. Carter said the pith of Mr. Wellington's question was that the Administration, to satisfy him, must declare its present and future policy with respect to the Philippines. "The Senator can consult the record of Congress for an answer to his question," continued Mr. Carter. "The President has no authority to decide what shall be done with the Philippines."

Mr. Carter then reviewed the action of Congress through which the Philippines were acquired. "At the moment the treaty of peace was ratified," he said, "that moment it becomes the supreme law of the land. If the President had refused to maintain the sovereignty of the United States there he would have made himself liable to impeachment."

"Has he not already given up sovereignty over a portion of Alaska?" inquired Mr. Wellington.

Mr. Carter replied that what the President had done as to the Alaskan boundary had been accomplished through a modus vivendi, a purely temporary arrangement.

"It is nevertheless a fact," declared Mr. Wellington, "that territory over which we had undisputed sovereignty has been abandoned. The British flag has been raised over it, and it is controlled by British constabulary. That is the fact."

"That is the alleged fact only," replied Mr. Carter.

Mr. Wellington, continuing, said the Alaskan boundary was distinctly marked by stones, and the territory acquired by the United States from Russia was clearly the property of this country. If the President should be impeached if he relinquished territory in the Philippines, he should likewise be impeached for relinquishing sovereignty in Alaska.

"Do you approve of the relinquishment of territory in Alaska?" inquired Mr. Carter.

"I do not," replied Mr. Wellington.

"Then do you approve of a relinquishment of the Philippines?" asked Mr. Carter.

"That is quite a different matter," replied Mr. Wellington.

"Does the Senator understand," inquired Mr. Spooner, (Rep., Wis.,) "that Congress or the President has authority to dispose of territory? Is not that a question to be determined solely by Congress?"

Mr. Wellington replied that of late it seemed that the question had resolved itself into the ability of the President's getting what he wanted, despite Congress.

Mr. Spooner said Congress no more would attempt to declare the intention of the President than the President would attempt to declare the intention of Congress. "I say," he continued, "that the Philippine archipelago belongs to the United States."

"That is where we differ," retorted Mr. Wellington, "just at that point." He reiterated his charge that he had been deceived into voting for the appropriation of $20,000,000 for the purchase of the Philippines, and concluded with the assertion that the United States did not have possession of the islands and could not obtain possession of them with an army of any size. Mr. Carter declared it was the intention of the United States to maintain the laws in the Philippines, to restore order, and to protect property. Beyond that point Congress would determine what the ultimate disposition of the islands would be.

TELLER ATTACKS THE BILL.

Mr. Teller (Sil. Rep., Col.) sharply criticised the pending measure and the committee for reporting it in its present form. He was opposed to a large permanent standing army. This bill fastened for all time a system upon the country that, in his judgment, was vicious. "You'll want not 100,000 men," he declared, "but you'll want 200,000, and you will want them for a hundred years. This measure is not intended merely to meet an emergency, but to fix upon the country a great standing army."

Mr. Teller added that it would be easily possible to pass a bill in forty-eight hours that would provide for an army of 100,000 men, or 200,000 men, for service in the Philippines, provided it was made to apply to purely emergency service and for a definitely limited time. He attacked the Philippine Commission now in Manila, declaring that its actions were the grossest form of imperialism.

"The Czar of Russia," said he, "is an absolute Czar. He has a Council of sixty men who sit with him, but these men are Russians. They have the sympathy and ambitions of Russians. But these Americans in the Philippines are strangers to the country and to the people. Under the law, they have a right to be there, but under God's law, which is higher, they have no place there at all. Their actions are the worst form of imperialism."

Mr. Caffery (Dem., La.) inquired whether Mr. Teller would vote to maintain the authority of the United States in the Philippines.

"As Mr. Lincoln announced in regard to the Mexican war," replied the Colorado Senator, "a war that he did not believe in, he would vote for such a force as the Government needed. So, I have no doubt, that, as long as our flag floats in the Philippine archipelago, I will (reluctant as I may be) vote to maintain the army and the flag there. If that is illogical, it is illogical because there is no better way out of it."

Adverting again to the manifestation of "imperialism" in the Philippines, Mr. Teller said: "The President has assured us that there is no danger of imperialism, but if imperialism can be made worse than it is now in the Philippines, you'll have to increase the ability of the human mind for absolutism."

Replying to Mr. Teller, Mr. Proctor (Rep., Vt.,) said he thought the Colorado Senator was under a misapprehension as to what the Army bill proposes to do. As he (Proctor) regarded the matter, the maximum force authorized by the bill was to be used only in the present emergency, and there would be a return to the minimum of 54,000, which was the peace footing force of the bill. No one could tell when more troops might be needed in Alaska, Hawaii, Porto Rico. Likewise there was possibility of the need of a larger American force in Cuba, at the request of the Cubans themselves. And as for the Philippines, no one could doubt that for a considerable time, even if all demands should be granted, a large force of our troops must be kept in those islands.

Mr. Jones (Dem., Ark.) asked Mr. Proctor if he would consent to an amendment limiting the maximum of troops authorized to the present exigency, striking out of the bill the provision "or until Congress may otherwise direct."

Mr. Proctor replied that individually he would be willing to have the provision modified so as to make it read "until Congress otherwise directs." He said, however, that he had no authority to speak for the committee. It had not occurred to him that there was any chance that the maximum force would be used after the expiration of the present emergency.

Mr. Culberson (Dem., Texas,) read an extract from President McKinley's letter of acceptance of his second nomination, in which the President said that but for the false hopes aroused in the hearts of the Filipinos by Democratic campaign promises a considerable reduction of the army in the Philippines could then have been effected. In view of this statement and taking into account the fact that the election had resulted in favor of the Republicans, Mr. Culberson asked whether it was not now possible to make the reduction suggested by the President.

Mr. Proctor replied that he was not prepared to discuss the political phase of the question, his information being confined entirely to the military situation.

SENATOR HOAR'S SUGGESTIONS.

Mr. Hoar (Rep., Mass.,) suggested a general amendment to the bill looking to the conciliation of the Filipinos, and he expressed the opinion that in time of peace this country should have one soldier to each 1,000 of population. He did not, therefore, he said, oppose the bill on the score of increase, but he did oppose it because of the avowed policy of military control of the Philippines. "It is idle," he added, "to tell us that these people are not fit for self-government." He quoted the President and naval officers to show that the Filipinos are an intelligent people, and added: "The way to prepare them for liberty is to set them free."

The United States, Mr. Hoar predicted, would be a miserable failure in its management of other races until it learns to let nature work out its own problems. Continuing, he said that if the facts could be known there would be no two opinions as to what should be done in the Philippines, for he believed that if the people were generally convinced that the Filipinos were as capable of self-government as they are they would make no effort to continue the subjugation of those people in the interest of trade.

Mr. Hoar urged that it would be most desirable to have appointed a commission representing all phases of political life, men of the highest character and standing, to ascertain the facts as to the Philippines and make them known to Congress and to the people. He hoped such a commission would be appointed before the close of the present session.

He proposed, he said, referring to his amendment, to afford the leaders of the Filipinos a hearing. "Let them come here," he said. "Let them state their case. They can come and go in peace and honor. If we say to the Filipinos that we will not consider their case until they go down on their knees, lay their hands upon their hips, and their lips in the dust, this war will go on, if there is a spark of spirit and principle in their breasts, until every Filipino of one sex is exterminated and until the women among them take up the fight and are exterminated also."

Mr. Stewart (Rep., Nev.,) supported the pending bill. The rebellion, he declared, should be crushed as an Indian uprising in the West would be, and in the end liberty and its blessings would be extended to the people of the Philippines.

Mr. Caffery argued against the pending bill, denouncing the creation of a large permanent standing army.

The Senate then devoted an hour or more in perfecting the Army bill by the adoption of part of the committee amendments, to which no objection was raised. Among the amendments passed over for future consideration was that relating to the establishment of a veterinary corps.

After Mr. Tillman (Dem., S. C.,) had made an explanation of an error into which he had fallen yesterday in his statement concerning the transportation home of soldiers discharged in a foreign country, the Senate, at 5:20 P. M., on motion of Mr. Pettigrew, went into executive session, and at 5:50 P. M. adjourned.

AMENDMENTS OFFERED.

The amendment offered by Mr. Hoar was in the shape of a general proviso, as follows:

Provided, That no further military force shall be used in the Philippine Islands, except such as may be necessary to keep order in places there now actually under the peaceable control of the United States, and to protect persons or property to whom, in the judgment of the President, protection may be due from the United States until the President shall have first proclaimed amnesty for all political offenses committed against the United States in the Philippines, and, if in his power, shall have agreed upon an armistice with persons now in hostility to the United States, and shall have invited such number, not less than ten, as he shall think desirable, of the leaders or representatives of the persons now hostile to the United States there to come to the United States and state their wishes and the conditions, character, and wishes of the people of the Philippine Islands to the Executive and Congress, and shall have offered to secure to them safe conduct to come, abide, and return, and shall have provided, at the public charge, for the expenses of their transportation both ways and their stay in this country for a reasonable and sufficient time for such purposes.

Senator Proctor suggested the following amendment to the bill, at the instance of the War Department:

That when vacancies shall occur in the position of chief of staff, corps, or department, the President may appoint to such vacancies by and with the advice and consent of the Senate officers of the army at large not below the rank of Lieutenant Colonel, and who shall hold office for a term of four years.

When a vacancy in the position of chief of any staff corps or department is filled by the appointment of an officer below the rank now provided by law for said office, said chief shall, while so serving, have the same rank, pay, and allowances now provided for the chief of such corps or department.

And any officer now holding office in any corps or department who shall hereafter serve as chief of a staff, corps, or department and shall subsequently be retired, shall be retired with the rank, pay, and allowances authorized by law for the retirement of such corps or department chief; provided, that so long as there remain in the office officers of any staff, corps, or department holding permanent appointments the chief of such staff, corps, or department shall be selected from the officers so remaining therein.

Mr. Money (Dem., Miss.,) suggested an amendment limiting the increase of three years' time, and Mr. Bate (Dem., Tenn.,) an amendment providing for a company formation for the Signal Corps similar to that of the Corps of Engineers, and limiting the signal force to ten such companies.

INTER-STATE COMMERCE COMMISSION'S REPORT

Argument in Favor of Legislation Permitting Pooling.

SPIRIT OF LAW NOW VIOLATED

The Policy Pursued Cannot and Will Not Prevent Vicious Discrimination.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—In the fourteenth annual report of the Inter-State Commerce Commission the recommendation is made to Congress that there be legislation permitting railroads to make pooling contracts. The report was submitted to Congress today. In it recent railway consolidations are discussed at length. The policy of such larger roads as wish to merge smaller and connecting lines is outlined, and the changes in rates that have taken place during the past year are reviewed. Uniform classification through the whole country is favored by the commission as heretofore.

Concerning the grain pool between New York and Buffalo, the commission recommends "further investigation." No opinion as to the legality of the pool is expressed, nor is there any direct comment on the fact that the railroads are contending that business between New York and Buffalo is not inter-State traffic, and is therefore not subject to the clause in the inter-State commerce law which prohibits pooling.

It is pointed out that when railroads make slight advances in freight rates, although these advances are not noticed much by the public, the resulting increase of the revenues coming to the roads is enormous. So it is that 1 cent a bushel added to all the grain shipped by rail in the United States would aggregate something more than $10,000,000. In connection with the now well-known Danville rate case, the commission says:

Another excellent illustration of the importance of these slight discriminations is found in the case of the City of Danville. The commission directed a comparatively small reduction in the Danville rate as compared with that in the rate to Lynchburg, and the Southern Railway thereupon filed a statement showing what these reductions would amount to as applied to the traffic actually handled in and out of the City of Danville during 1899. From this statement it fairly appeared that the little community of Danville paid during that year at least $50,000 more than would have been paid at the rival city of Lynchburg, only sixty-six miles away, for corresponding transportation. Similar conditions exist in many parts of the country.

According to the report, most of the complaints of unreasonable rates refer to a wrong adjustment of tariffs. On this ground a plea is made for control over the making of joint rates.

Regarding pooling and its present legal status, the synopsis of the report says:

The act to regulate commerce seems to favor associated action by competing roads for purposes of this kind. True, its prohibits pooling—that is, the actual division of competitive traffic or the earnings derived therefrom—and even this provision is believed by many to be practically inconsistent with uniform charges to all shippers and the fair adjustment of rates between different communities and different articles of traffic.

Whatever view may be held as to the degree of incompatibility between the prohibition of pooling and the other provisions of the act, it was generally understood, after the act was passed, that mutual agreements, respecting the matters above mentioned, not involving the division of tonnage or revenue, were in no respect made unlawful by the act, but were regarded rather as aids to its proper observance. Accordingly, numerous associations were formed and many features of the railroad service more or less subjected to common control by carriers otherwise in actual competition. The tendency and intended results of these arrangements were to remove the practices and charges included in their terms from the field of competition.

These conditions are said to be materially changed, in their legal aspects at least, by the passage of the anti-trust law and the interpretation which that law has received. The prohibition against railway association is no longer limited to the pooling of competitive traffic or the revenue therefrom, but extends to every form of combination which directly restrains competitive freedom. While this does not mean that every such agreement violates the anti-trust law, it does mean that all such engagements as actually restrict competition are void from their inception and subject those who make them, or who connive in efforts to continue them, to the hazard of criminal prosecution.

It is evident that railroad managers generally have made no attempt to conform their practices to the spirit of this law. They may keep within its letter and succeed in avoiding its penalties, but they claim that they are virtually compelled to counteract its aim and evade its observance. Thus it happens that some of the most important and useful incidents of railway service are maintained by methods which are believed to be inharmonious with, if not in actual violation of, a Federal statute. This is more than the question of pooling contracts between rival carriers—it is the question of such agreements as relate to classification, terminal charges, and the like—concerning which uniformity, certainty, and stability are of manifest benefit and convenience to the public.

Under the conditions now existing it is inevitable that frequent discriminations should occur and endless acts of injustice be committed. Theoretically it is possible for each road to observe its published schedules in every particular, but this in many cases must be done, if done at all, only at the loss of needed traffic, unless all rivals and competitors with equal promptness and honesty conform in like manner to their published rates. The idea of public regulation implies certain standards of correct conduct to which all carriers shall conform. It also implies some measure of supervision and control over those subject to its requirements, to the end that these standards may be observed and practices made to conform thereto. This, without doubt, is inconsistent, to some degree at least, with actual and constant competition as that term is commonly understood.

If, as is alleged, that competition is compelled in all things by one law which is binding upon the carriers, it can hardly be supposed that another law of more or less diverse and opposing tendency will at the same time be obeyed. It is universal experience that capital takes advantage of competition. If public transportation can be bought and sold like a commodity, the largest purchaser will, some of the time, if not all of the time, get the best terms. It is idle to suppose that railroads will actually and all the while compete with each other as to every item of service or facility and do the same time expect that all their patrons, small and large, will be treated exactly alike. Such a result has never yet been realized, and practically will not be realized. The policy now pursued can not and will not prevent an outcome of vicious discrimination. And what is unfortunate of all, those discriminations favor the few and place the many at disadvantage. They aid the strong, who have no need of assistance, and handicap the weak with burdens which by comparison are always unjust and often destructive.

The present state of the law and the facts here referred to have undoubtedly furnished a great incentive to the consolidation or unification of rival lines, which is at once the most conspicuous and the most significant result of current railroad financiering.

Favorable comment is made upon the way in which the laws relating to safety appliances on railway cars have been observed and regulations tending to insure the traveler against accident generally regarded. On June 30, 1899, there were 928,924 persons employed on United States railways. During the year ended that date 2,210 of such employes were killed and 24,923 were injured in railway accidents. The number of killed and injured in coupling and uncoupling cars was somewhat less in that year than in the year preceding. Tables given in the report comparing accident statistics in 1893, 1897, 1898, 1899, and partial statistics for 1900, show on the whole some decrease in the number of accidents in 1898 and 1900. In 1893, in coupling and uncoupling cars, the ratio of killed and injured to the number of employed was: Killed, 1 in 349; injured, 1 in 13. In 1899 these ratios were: Killed, 1 in 563, and injured, 1 in 22.

Speaking of the extent of railroad combinations, the commission says that "there were absorbed in various ways between July 1, 1899, and Nov. 1, 1900, 25,311 miles of railroad. There are in the whole United States something less than 200,000 miles of railroad, and more than one-eighth of this entire mileage was, within the above period, brought, in one way and another, under the control of other lines."

BILL TO RETIRE GREENBACKS.

Congressman Hill Introduces a Measure to Change Them Into Gold Certificates.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—Representative Hill (Rep., Conn.,) to-day introduced a bill to change United States notes into legal tender gold certificates. It provides that when United States notes and Treasury notes are redeemed from the reserve fund they shall be canceled and destroyed, but the Secretary of the Treasury is to place in the reserve fund a like amount of gold coin, against which gold certificates shall be issued.

The bill also provides for the maintenance of the gold reserve at 33 1-3 per cent. of the United States notes and Treasury notes outstanding, and at 5 per cent. additional of the silver dollars outstanding. Authority is given to the Secretary of the Treasury to issue 3 per cent. bonds, payable in gold, to meet the requirements of the bill.

HOUSE DEBATES SUFFRAGE

Olmsted Resolution to Investigate Sent to Census Committee.

SPIRITED STRUGGLE OVER IT

Southern Members Defend Disfranchisement of Negroes—The Reapportionment Bill Considered.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—The House today had another spirited struggle over the Olmsted resolution to investigate the abridgment of the suffrage in certain Southern States, with a view to reapportionment upon the actual basis of suffrage. It was finally referred to the Census Committee, where the opposition desired it to go originally. Some of the Republican leaders were not in sympathy with the resolution. Mr. Olmsted tried to get Mr. Hopkins to agree that the committee would consider the resolution within a week, but the Chairman of the Census Committee declined to make any pledge to that effect.

The debate upon the resolution was marked by exceeding frankness. Some of the Southern members avowed that the attempt to enfranchise the negro bad been a lamentable failure, and the action of certain States in legally eliminating the blacks as factors at the polls, they said, was in the interest of civilization and progress. Mr. McDermott of New Jersey asserted that every State in the Union either added to or subtracted from the Constitutional requirements of voters and challenged any member to show one that did not.

After the resolution had been thus disposed of, the Reapportionment bill was taken up and debated by Mr. Hopkins of Illinois and Mr. Shafroth of Colorado. An attempt to agree upon a time for the final vote on the bill failed, although the general impression is that the debate will conclude early next week.

Mr. Dalzell (Rep., Penn.,) called the House to order in the absence of Speaker Henderson, who was detained at his home by a severe cold which he contracted while in New York during the holidays. Much time was consumed in wrangling over minor business and by filibustering against the Olmsted resolution. Mr. Olmsted became angry and tried to force a direct vote upon the measure. The previous question was ordered, 102 to 98, and this action under the rule gave twenty minutes' debate on a side. Mr. Olmsted yielded five minutes to Mr. Shattuc, (Rep., Ohio,) who had read a resolution which he had introduced.

The resolution recites that the right of representation is denied in many of the States to male citizens over twenty-one years of age, in direct violation of the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution, and is an evasion of the rights and dignity of the House of Representatives. The resolution further declares that Massachusetts, Maine, Connecticut, Delaware, California, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Wyoming, Oregon, and other States deny the right to vote to certain male citizens of full age, and that "such denial in certain of the said States extends to more than one-half of those who, prior to the last apportionment of representation, were entitled to vote in such States." The resolution calls for an investigation by a select committee of five chosen from the Census Committee, and a report within twenty days with a bill "apportioning membership in the House of Representatives based on the provisions of the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution."

SPEECHES BY SOUTHERN MEMBERS.

Mr. Olmsted then explained that his resolution had been offered, not in antagonism to any of the reapportionment bills or to any section or State, but in order that the reapportionment might be based upon the Constitutional provisions.

"Is it the gentleman's idea that the information he seeks to elicit can be obtained for action at this Congress?" asked Mr. Pearson, (Rep., N. C.)

"I think so," replied Mr. Olmsted.

"I am informed at the Census Bureau that this information will not be available in the next ninety days," stated Mr. Pearson.

Mr. McDermott (Dem., N. J.,) cited the Constitutional requirement that voters shall be males, twenty-one years of age, citizens of the United States, and citizens of the State, and asked if there was any State in the Union in which additional qualifications to vote were required.

"There are ten additional requirements in North Carolina," interposed Mr. Pearson.

"The object of this resolution is to inquire into that subject," said Mr. Olmsted.

Mr. Grosvenor (Rep., Ohio,) called attention to the Ohio law, which required that a man should have resided in the State one year and in the county thirty days before he can vote. He wanted to know how the number of persons disfranchised by that law could be ascertained. Mr. Olmsted replied that it would be the duty of the committee to inquire into that very subject.

Mr. Underwood (Dem., Ala.,) made a warm speech in opposition to the resolution. He had hoped, he said, that such a resolution would not appear in the House. The real purpose of the Fourteenth Amendment had been to enfranchise the negro. It had failed. The Fifteenth Amendment had been successful for a time, but in the end it had proved a lamentable failure. Both amendments had been mistakes, not only to the Democratic but to the Republican Party.

The time had come now, he continued, after the bitterness of the war was over, when the people of the South, in fairness and justice to themselves and the negro race were trying not to oppress the negro race, but only to protect themselves and their property against maladministration. But when gentlemen on the other side brought in this firebrand they did more to injure the black race than anything since the adoption of the Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments. He admonished his friends from the North that they did not live among the negroes and did not understand the problem to be solved. "We of the South," said he, addressing the majority, "are trying to solve it fairly to both races, and I appeal to you, if you are in favor of upbuilding the negro race, if you are in favor of protecting the investments which the North has sent there, to send this resolution to a committee and let it die there."

Mr. Williams (Dem., Miss.,) was exceedingly ironical. He said that of recent years some of the people of the South had listened to the siren voice of the North that sectionalism was dead. They had been warned that as soon as the Republican Party grew strong enough it would show the cloven foot. It was doing so now. It was the party of the black men in the South and the enemy of the white man's civilization. This resolution would pluck from the eyes of those who had been partially deceived the veil that had been placed over them. After declaring that the resolution was stupid and impracticable and citing the voting requirements of various other States he made an ardent defense of the course of Mississippi and other Southern States.

"There is no man who loves American civilization," said he, "who is not glad in his heart that by Constitutional and legal methods—analogous to those adopted in Massachusetts, Rhode Island, and other States—the South has solved this troublesome and almost unsolvable problem."

Mr. Olmsted, (Rep., Penn.,) the author of the resolution, said he did not want the resolution to die, but he would move its reference to the Census Committee if the Chairman of that committee would agree to call the committee together to consider it within one week.

Mr. Hopkins, (Rep., Ill.,) Chairman of the committee, said he was not in the mood to make a "bargain" to-day, but assured Mr. Olmsted that his committee would do its duty. Mr. Olmsted then made the motion to refer, and it was carried without division.

REAPPORTIONMENT BILL UP.

The resolution out of the way, Mr. Hopkins immediately called up the reapportionment bill. He sought to make an arrangement to vote on the bill on Monday. A long wrangle followed. Just as it appeared probable that an agreement would be reached to vote on Tuesday, Mr. Mann (Rep., Ill.,) smashed all prospects by a final objection. Accordingly Mr. Hopkins opened a debate in favor of his measure. He made a careful explanation of all its features along the line of his report, which has been printed. He stated that the majority of the Census Committee favored keeping the membership down to the present number, 357, from considerations of economy and intelligent legislation. Mr. Hopkins was besieged with questions.

Mr. Shafroth (Sil., Col.,) wanted Mr. Hopkins to explain how it was that Colorado would gain one Representative under the system adopted if the total number was 350 or 358, but would not if it were 357.

Mr. Hopkins replied that the fact which Mr. Shafroth cited was what was called years ago the "Alabama Paradox." No system, he said, would deal out exact justice to every State. What was desired was to adopt the system which minimized the inequalities. The membership was arbitrarily fixed at 357, which made the basis of representation 208. Dividing the population of the States by this division, 335 members were assigned. The other 22 were assigned to those States having the largest major fractions.

The States which were opposing this bill, he said, were those which lost Representatives under its operation. He claimed that the bill of the minority showed favoritism to Nebraska and Maine, each of which would gain one Representative. Those two members, he said, were deliberately filched by the Burleigh bill from New York and Pennsylvania. He declared that a more unfair bill was never presented to the House than that fathered by the gentleman from Maine, (Burleigh.)

The Burleigh bill, he said, gave Maine a Representative for each 175,617 inhabitants. If this ratio were taken in New York, Pennsylvania, and Illinois, New York would have five, Pennsylvania three, and Illinois three more Representatives than the law allows them.

Mr. Hopkins spoke for almost two hours. Mr. Shafroth followed, citing the case of Colorado, to show that the system upon which the bill was predicated was unjust. He also contended that a larger House was not a menace to legislation, and cited the popular assemblage of European Parliaments to show that a larger House would not be cumbersome.

At 5 o'clock the House adjourned.

PROTECTION OF ABORIGINALS.

The So-Called "African Resolution" Adopted by Senate—Urges Treaties to Prevent Sale of Intoxicants.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—In the Senate today Mr. Lodge (Rep., Mass.,) favorably reported from the Committee on Foreign Relations the following resolution, and asked for its immediate consideration:

That in the opinion of this body the time has come when the principle, twice affirmed in international treaties for Central Africa, that native races should be protected against the destructive traffic in intoxicants, should be extended to all uncivilized peoples by the enactment of such laws and the making of such treaties as will effectually prohibit the sale by the signatory powers to aboriginal tribes and uncivilized races of opium and intoxicating beverages.

Mr. Sewell (Rep., N. J.,) expressed a desire to have more light thrown upon the resolution, but as it was about to be sent to the calendar the New Jersey Senator said he had no wish to delay the resolution, and it was adopted.

The Committee on Foreign Relations, while considering the resolution, had before it petitions, signed by numerous individuals and associations in twenty-three States, which were presented by the Reform Bureau. It was claimed that one of the petitions presented represented ten millions of people. It was not in support of the Lodge resolution specifically, nor for the United States alone, but asked all the Governments that have twice united, in the treaties of 1890 and 1899, in protecting natives in Africa and Asia, and senates to take further action, separately and together, to so protect all uncivilized races, as recommended by the President. The petition is to be withdrawn and carried by a deputation to all the prominent Governments of the world after Congress adjourns.

Ex-President Harrison, instead of signing the petition, sent a letter to the Reform Bureau, in which he said:

"I have made it a rule not to sign petitions or appeals to members of Congress for legislation. I have expressed myself upon the subject in a public address. It does seem to me as if the Christian nations of the world ought to be able to make their contact with the weaker peoples of the earth beneficent, and not destructive, and I give to your efforts to secure helpful legislation my warmest sympathy."

THE CASE OF MAJOR HEISTAND.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—In the Senate today Mr. Jones (Dem., Ark.,) offered a resolution directing the Committee on Military Affairs to inquire upon what alleged facts the charges against Major H. O. S. Heistand of the United States Army, by Erastus L. Hawkes, are based and to report to the Senate.

Mr. Hoar (Rep., Mass.,) said the resolution placed the Senate in an extraordinary position. This great body, representing forty-five States, was asked to pass upon a matter without intimation of its public importance and public interest being afforded. He objected to the resolution.

Mr. Spooner (Rep., Wis.,) moved to refer the resolution to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. Jones said that the charges made by Hawkes against Major Heistand were matters of common knowledge to newspaper readers. An army officer had been removed because of some alleged bad conduct. The charges indicated that the army officer who remained in the service was as guilty as he who was removed. If so he ought to be removed too.

The resolution was finally referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Nominated by the President.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—The President to-day sent the following nominations to the Senate:

Nolen L. Chew of Indiana, Deputy Auditor for the Post Office Department.

Cyrus F. Adams of Illinois, Assistant Register of the Treasury.

To be Brigadier Generals in the Volunteer Army: Col. Samuel M. Whiteside, Tenth Cavalry; Lieut. Col. James R. Campbell, Thirtieth Infantry, United States Volunteers; Major Charles Bird, Quartermaster, United States Army.

Navy—Commander John J. Hunker to be Captain; Lieut. Commander C. K. Curtis to be Commander; Lieut. J. G. Leutze to be Lieutenant Commander; Surgeon W. A. McClurg to be a Medical Inspector; First Lieut. H. C. Davis to be a Captain in the Marine Corps. Second Lieutenants to be First Lieutenants Marine Corps—L. M. Harding, R. M. Cutts, E. C. Snyder, O. H. Rask, J. C. Turrill, H. Mather, H. L. Roosevelt, A. M. Salladay, M. Rabb, and H. C. Reisinger. Herbert C. Shiffert of Pennsylvania to be Assistant Surgeon, J. F. Hatch of Vermont to be Assistant Paymaster.

Postmasters—New Jersey—W. S. Leaming, Cape May; William M. Jernee, Jamesburg. New York—Thomas Liddle, Amsterdam; William B. Bundy, Andover; E. C. Ferdis, Croton-on-Hudson.

Congressional Notes.

A joint resolution was adopted yesterday by the Senate appointing George Gray of Delaware a member of the Board of Regents of the Smithsonian Institution, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of William L. Wilson.

Senator Pettigrew yesterday introduced a resolution condemning the Secretary of War for not sending to the Senate, as requested, the report of A. L. Lawshe in relation to the receipts and expenses in Cuba. Consideration of the resolution was postponed until to-day.

Representative Naphen of Massachusetts has introduced a bill to amend the War Revenue act so as to return to all religious, charitable, and educational institutions all moneys collected to this date under the provisions of the act. The amount proposed to be returned is the tax on inheritances, bequests, &c.

The Senate Committee on Foreign Relations has agreed to report favorably the reciprocity treaties with Nicaragua, British Guiana, and Ecuador, and also a supplementary extradition treaty with Great Britain, making the obtaining of money under false pretenses, the obstruction of railroad trains, and other crimes extraditable offenses.

Representative Payne of New York has introduced a bill amending the National Banking act so as to permit National banks to become depositaries for receipts from duties and imports in Alaska, the Hawaiian Islands, and other islands under the jurisdiction of the United States, and also to be financial agents of the Government in respect to these islands.

THIS WEEK ONLY.
"Standard of Highest Merit."
FISCHER PIANOS.
"The embodiment of tone and art."
In addition to our regular styles of Grand and Upright Pianos, we offer this week a number of odd styles of new Fischer Pianos at REDUCED PRICES.
Also several not quite new and second-hand Pianos of our own and other celebrated makers, taken in exchange during the Holidays on the purchase of new Fischer Pianos. All have been thoroughly renovated and will be sold at very low prices. Cash or Instalments.
33 Union Square—West
Between 16th and 17th Streets, New York.

THE
"Household" Tool Chest,
With Tools Fit to Use.
FOR SALE BY LEWIS & CONGER
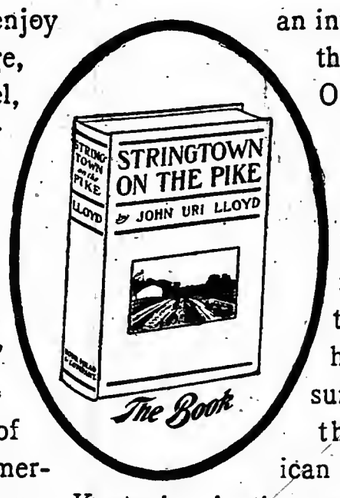
130 & 132 W. 42d St., 135 W. 41st St.

New Publications. | New Publications.

If You Have Not Read
Stringtown on the Pike
You will enjoy an introduction to the Judge, the Colonel, the Parson, Old Cupe, and other characters of which book, all are drawn with such vivid-ness that "String-town on the Pike" has al-ready assumed the position of the most original Amer-ican novel of recent years. Kentucky is the scene of the story whose scope is as wide as the country itself.



8th Edition. Stringtown on the Pike By John Uri Lloyd 12mo - Cloth. Illustrated - $1.50 8th Week.

DODD, MEAD & CO., Publishers, New York

The Religion of Democracy
By CHARLES FERGUSON
The Most Startling Book of the Decade
"Probes as deep as Carlyle, and smites with the strength of Ruskin . . . it will make a profound sensation." —Boston Transcript.
"Nobody is expecting such a book; it is a work of genius." —Gerald Stanley Lee.
"Since Emerson, nobody has gone so straight to the point. . . . Comes nearer expressing the religious thought toward which the age is blindly tending, than any other one work of the last quarter of a century." —Times, Washington, D. C.
"The book is a protest against much that is, and a plea for all that ought to be. It is a ringing call for the race to move on to its higher destiny."—Theodore F. Seward.
12mo, Cloth. Price, $1.00. Post-paid

Spiritual Knowing or Bible Sunshine
By THEODORE F. SEWARD. 12mo, Cloth, $1.00.
Treats upon the relations of human thought and life to the truth that God is an ever-present Being, a Heavenly Father, whose nature and essence is Love.

The Royal Houses of Israel and Judah
By Prof. GEORGE O. LITTLE, D.D. 8vo, Cloth, $3.00.
An interwoven history of the royal houses of Israel and Judah, beginning with the Israelites' demand for a king, and ending with the return of the exiles from captivity.

FUNK & WAGNALLS COMPANY, Pub'rs, 30 Lafayette Place, NEW YORK

THE UNITED SERVICE.

Army.

Major John Van R. Hoff, Surgeon, and Major William R. Davis, Surgeon, are detailed as members of the board of officers appointed Sept. 28, vice Major James C. Merrill, Surgeon, and Major Edward C. Carter, Surgeon, who are relieved from duty as members of the board during the examination of Capt. Adrian S. Polhemus, Assistant Surgeon, only. Upon completion of the examination of Capt. Polhemus Messrs. Hoff and Davis are relieved from further duty with the board.

Changes in the stations and duties of officers of the medical department:

Capt. Irving W. Rand, Assistant Surgeon, is relieved from duty in the Philippine Islands and will proceed to Fort Hancock, New Jersey, and report to the commanding officer of that post for duty and by letter to the Commanding General, Department of the East, to relieve Capt. Deane C. Howard, Assistant Surgeon. Capt. Howard upon being thus relieved will proceed to San Francisco and report to the Commanding General, Department of California, for transportation to Manila, where he will report to the Commanding General, Division of the Philippines, for assignment to du

The New York Times.

"All the News That's Fit to Print."

PUBLISHED EVERY DAY IN THE YEAR.

NEW YORK, SATURDAY, JAN. 5, 1901.

OFFICES:

NEW YORK:
Publication Office.....41 Park Row
All American District Telegraph Offices.
WASHINGTON.....515 Fourteenth St.
SWITZERLAND, Geneva: P. Drehmann, Librairie Nouvelle, Itue du Mont Blanc.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.
BY MAIL, POSTAGE PAID.

DAILY, per Month	$0.50
DAILY, per Year	5.00
DAILY AND SUNDAY, per Year	7.50
SUNDAY, per Year	1.50
MONDAY, with Financial Supplement, per Year	1.00
DAILY AND SUNDAY, per Month	0.65
THE NEW YORK TIMES SATURDAY REVIEW, per Year	1.00

For postage to foreign countries add 80 cents per month.

FOURTEEN PAGES
AND REVIEW OF BOOKS AND ART.

THE COMMITTEE OF FIVE.

When the Committee of Five appointed by Mr. CROKER to aid in the purification of the city from vice was first named, we think that the general impression of the public was that its task was like that of lifting one's self by the boot straps. The committee is doing what it can, apparently, to dissipate that impression, and the more thorough and efficient its efforts are the more cordial will be the recognition by the press and by the people. The evil from which the city is suffering is a monstrous one, and there cannot be too many sincerely at work to repress it. Those who give real help will not be grudgingly thanked, whether they come from the inside of Tammany or from the outside.

There is some confusion in the public mind as to what committees like that of Tammany and that appointed at the Chamber of Commerce meeting can accomplish or ought to undertake. For this the papers are to some extent to blame because of the terms they have applied to the committees—"anti-vice committees," "vice hunters," "the crusade against vice," &c. The readers of the papers have from such phrases got the notion that the purpose of the committees is to abolish vice in New York. And the form of Mr. CROKER'S commission to his committee justified the same conclusion. But whatever the apparent mission of the committees, it is plain to every person of sense that vice cannot be abolished in a community of three millions of people, and that any movement having the abolition of vice as its chief end will prove quixotic, and be doomed in advance to failure. This is, indeed, so obvious that some people have declared that the Tammany committee was intentionally formed to fail, and thus to give the public the impression that all like movements were in effect mere fighting of windmills. If Mr. CROKER had any such subtle idea in his mind—and he is quite capable of it—his committee does not seem to share it. If at any time it did share it, the device would be defeated by the energetic manner in which the Committee of Fifteen has taken up the only really practical work in connection with the present disgraceful situation.

This really practical work is the abolition, not of vice, but of police and political protection of vice. Undoubtedly, if this protection could be got rid of, there would be a sensible diminution of vice, for it would be driven to hiding. Those who wished indulgence in it would be obliged to seek it and to take the risks of the seeking. The open and terrible contamination that is now spread by protected vice would be repressed. The police would restrain the flagrant and public operations of the vicious that now prevail. The vile traffic which is carried on in the streets would in great measure cease. Neither gambling nor other forms of vicious business would have their agents working under the eyes of patrolmen, and complaints to the Captains would not be met by insult. In a word, vice, instead of being safe, defiant, and shameless, would become timid and cautious, and would proportionately dwindle.

The Tammany Committee of Five is so far acting as if it understood these facts, and, after getting the evidence of illegal resorts permitted by the police, is proceeding to secure the trial before the Commissioners or the indictment of the officers chiefly responsible. This is clearly the right way to proceed at the start. But we assume that the members of the Tammany committee realize that they cannot go far in this direction without striking a trail that will not stop at a police officer, or even at the commission. The Commissioners could have prevented the abuses now exposed; they could not possibly have been without knowledge of them. The Mayor could have held the Commissioners responsible for permitting the abuses, and he also could not have been ignorant of their existence. Commissioners and Mayor alike were swayed by a power above them, a power that created them politically and held them in its iron grip. It is with that power in the long run that the people will have to deal, and will deal. In the meantime, the facts are what are needed and the Committee of Five is to be congratulated on the way in which it is helping to bring them out.

THE ARMY BILL.

It is gratifying to observe that no Senator was found, when the question actually arose, to oppose the taking up of the Army bill, or to "antagonize" it, as they say in Washington, with the Ship Subsidy bill. It would have needed a Senator of brazen boldness, a very Gorman, to insist upon preferring a scandalous private job to a measure of National urgency.

The Army bill is even now in a much belated condition. It ought not to be before the Senate at all, but before a committee of conference. In form the bill which has passed the House is an amendment to that which passed the Senate at the last session. In substance it is entirely different, but the enactment of some measure, such as is so urgently needed, would apparently have been much facilitated if the Senate had treated the House measure as the Senate bill with House amendments which it purports to be. What the Senate committee has done is to take Mr. ROOT'S bill, wipe the reforms all out of it, even such as had been spared by the House Committee and the House, and report it for debate as a substitute for the House bill. This was the most time-wasting course that could have been pursued with a measure the urgency of which is admitted on all hands.

No man alive has a better right than the Secretary of War to exclaim: "A plague on both your houses." If any vestige is left of the reforms which he tried to secure in the bill that passed the House, it has been removed in the pending bill. The system of transfer between staff and line, which the Spanish war showed to be so essential, and the importance of which has been emphasized by the service of our troops in the Philippines and in China, is ignored. Even the regimental organization of the artillery, which is manifest absurdity, and for which nobody pretends to offer any argument, is retained. And yet the House bill is as completely ignored as the Secretary's bill. The pending bill is virtually a new measure, inviting a long debate in the Senate, and a long series of sessions in conference, at the end of which it is much to be apprehended that it will be impossible to get it in working order in time to fill the places of the troops that are to be recalled within a few months. And yet the virtually treasonable machinations of GORMAN have brought it about that the failure of Congress to enact new legislation will leave the authorized strength of the army at less than a third of the number that everybody knows and admits to be needed.

It seems that, if the Military Committees of the House and the Senate could agree upon anything, it would be a good thing for them to agree upon the extension of the existing organization and the existing authorized strength, say for one year, as an avowedly provisional measure. That would tide us over the emergency and Congress could then wrangle at its leisure, and without National danger, over the details of reorganization. The existing organization is theoretically very weak, but the conscientiousness and ability with which the President has used the powers conferred upon him by it have reduced its practical mischievousness to a minimum. And it is, even including the absurdity of employing so-called "volunteers" for the garrisoning distant possessions, as good a measure as there seems to be any chance of getting through the present Congress. It is a grievous thing that Mr. ROOT'S careful and intelligent projects of reform should have been baffled. But it is only fair to Congress to remember that it is largely because a certain number of nominal officers of the army have shown themselves as greedy and unscrupulous politicians as the Congressmen who do not pretend to be anything else. The more attempts at army reform are thwarted, "because of the importunity" of such officers, the clearer does the necessity of reform become.

WORK FOR THE LEGISLATURE.

Counting chickens before they are hatched notoriously leads to unsafe statistical conclusions. The public therefore will receive with due allowance the itemized tables of the savings to be effected in the State administration by adopting the recommendations of the Governor's message. It will be time to count the saving when the reform bills have passed the Legislature and are signed by the Governor.

It is true that a good deal of money can be saved, and economy in public expenditure makes lower taxes. But the money saving is not the chief end. The abuse of power for partisan gains is the primary evil exposed by Gov. ODELL. The vicious and contaminating Republican practice of creating needless offices and authorizing the payment of large sums in fees to persons hired to do the work for doing which other persons draw liberal salaries is the parent of the vices against which his crusade is directed. In that way the machine makes the Treasury pay the living expenses of its workers and heelers. It is that that stirs the public indignation, even more than the evident waste of money.

The Legislature will have need of intelligent men to guide it in the work of carrying out the Governor's suggestions of reform. Gov. ODELL is a man of business experience and capacity. A Legislature dominated by narrow-minded rural statesmen or scheming demagogues would not understand or be in sympathy with his recommendation of more liberal corporation laws for this State. Delaware has prostituted its State powers by offering scandalous privileges and immunities as an inducement to corporations to organize there, and New Jersey, profiting by our needless harshness, is doing a roaring trade in incorporations, from which it receives a large annual revenue. We lose the revenue and we lose control of the corporations by driving them to other States for their licenses to do business. Considering the vast number and enormous capitalization of the corporations of National scope that do business and have their principal offices in New York, and, considering also the need of supervision and regulation, it is worth while to raise the question whether it would not be a wise public policy not only to encourage incorporation here, but within Constitutional limitations to discourage incorporation elsewhere.

Gov. ODELL has views about taxation. There is about as little chance that any given Legislature will have a member capable of drafting a sound tax bill as there is that it will have one who can write a presentable opera or a great epic poem. A bill has been prepared by a committee of the Chamber of Commerce. We hope the Legislature will show its enlightenment by giving the bill careful consideration. Gov. ODELL perceives the defects of the franchise tax law, as well as the soundness of the general principle that the class of corporations it affects should pay in some just ratio for the privileges they enjoy. The present law was misshapen through the accidents of birth and the inherited taints of a scrofulous and yellow journal parentage. It is impossible under its provisions to be sure that property of the same class is assessed uniformly. The assessors themselves refuse to tell what method of assessment they employ. The natural inference is that they have no method. They guess at values. Such a law is, of course, a very bad and vicious law, a bungling and harmful effort to apply in legislation a just principle.

Gov. ODELL perceives the economic unsoundness of the tax on mortgages, and recommends its abolition. He also believes that ability to pay is a good rule for the assessment of taxes. That is true, but the moment the assessors begin to determine ability to pay by the exercise of their own judgment in each case they find themselves floundering in the bogs of unreason and injustice. Before any legislation is attempted on this important and difficult subject we hope the Governor and some members of the Legislature will come to a clear understanding of the fundamental principle that a tax laid upon property that cannot escape the assessor and laid with uniformity upon all property of the same class will by a natural law impose itself upon the individuals of the community in substantial proportion to their ability to pay, as to which the legislator need then give himself no further concern. Any tax, like the personal property tax, which does not respect this law is unsound and the atempt to impose it should be abandoned.

The concern of the public is now mainly about the Legislature. The Governor evidently has the disposition and the ability for reform achievements. He may even inspire the Legislature with his own spirit. The doubtful point is the capacity of its members for intelligent legislation.

MR. BOUTWELL'S ADVICE.

The Hon. GEORGE S. BOUTWELL is a wise and consistent adviser of the anti-imperialists. Some dreamer sent him the working plans for a new party, based on anti-imperialism, the gold standard, tariff reform, civil service reform, and the hunting down of the trust octopus. He replies that none of these things interests him save anti-imperialism alone, the supreme issue, the only question worthy the atention of the wisest and best.

"The question, Republic or empire?" says Mr. BOUTWELL, "is of more importance than all other questions that now challenge the wisdom, or that at any time in their history have challenged the wisdom, or commanded the best thought and judgment of the people of the United States."

The moderation of the statement and the wisdom of the accompanying counsel, so to speak, jump upon the understanding. Why drag in puny, sniveling things like the tariff, the spoils system, and the trusts? Give the middle of the road to anti-imperialism. You must not bend that giant issue to fit the beliefs of men who are confusing their minds with Dingleyism and monopoly. Besides, there is no homogeneity in the plan. Some of the rampant gold standard men are aflame with the desire to see WILLIAM MCKINLEY sitting on a horse with a crown on his brows and an imperial scepter in his hand—his ear to the ground, of course—and there are open and notorious free traders who deny that we ought long ago to have surrendered to AGUINALDO. Such discordant elements would make the party factional and colicky.

Besides, why stop with the tariff, the trusts, the currency, and the civil service? COXEY is not forgotten, we hope, and there is DEBS. BRYAN, too, the official leader of anti-imperialism, what is the matter with him? And when the door is once open. Christian Science, woman suffrage, and anti-vaccination will clamor for admission.

Mr. BOUTWELL is right. "First of all, let us save the Republic from the grasp of imperialism." Precious little we shall care for the merit system and a low tariff when we are all huddled together under the yoke of an Emperor.

We advise the anti-imperialists to stick to Mr. BOUTWELL. He is about the only man among them who keeps his eye on the main thing.

PEACE SESSIONS AT PEKING.

Whatever may be thought of the procedure of the allies at Peking in beginning with an ultimatum, and with an ultimatum that covered all the essential points in dispute, the acceptance of it by China stops any other Power from protesting at this stage. If consequences injurious to the allied cause are shown to proceed from any of the demands, the proclamation that they are "irrevocable" will not prevent them from being modified beyond recognition. That is to say, the Powers will reserve to themselves an entirely free hand in the negotiations.

It is to be hoped that the representatives of all the Powers will bear in mind that it cannot be to the advantage of any of them that the Chinese Government should "lose face" with the Chinese people. That would mean the establishment of anarchy in China. It is one of the distinctions of our own Government in this Chinese matter that it has steadily kept this danger in view and endeavored to avert it. And it has now become obvious to foreigners, even to those who began by talking about us as uninstructed interlopers in international affairs, that we have seen further into this question than any other Government, and that it is we who most accurately represent Christianity and civilization. We have really obtained, by the intelligence and moderation we have shown, a leadership at Peking which it will be our own fault if we throw away.

When we say it is not to the interest of any Power that anarchy should prevail in China, we ought perhaps to except Russia. Russia now holds what may be called a retainer for China, apparently in return for a Chinese agreement not to disturb Russia in her possession of Manchuria. Notwithstanding that agreement, the terms of which we have published, Russia is interested to weaken China in every possible way, and most obviously by depriving her of any foreign support against the execution of any present or future aggressive designs of Russia herself. The dreams of St. Petersburg will not be realized until all North China is reduced to the subserviency of the khanates of Central Asia. Such a result would not in the least suit any of the commercial nations, not Japan nor Germany any more than Great Britain or the United States. Hence the negotiations that are now about to begin are likely to promote the interests of commerce and Christianity and civilization precisely in the degree to which they are marked by a deep distrust of Russian designs and propositions upon the part of the other high contracting parties.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

—Our contention that the so-called revelations in regard to Bellevue Hospital were not revelations at all, but very old stories, to no small part of the New York community, is strikingly corroborated by an editorial article in the current number of The Medical Record. "The necessity for reforms in the management of Bellevue Hospital," the writer of the article begins, "has been painfully apparent for a long time." And again he says: "Bellevue was so much behind in this respect [the abolition of cruelty from its insane wards] that she required a gross and horrifying scandal to bring her to her senses." He regards it as "a matter for congratulation that the truth has come out at last," thereby confirming our other contention that newspaper publicity is the only publicity that counts, and at least suggesting an inquiry as to why the medical profession and its organs have waited till now before denouncing, and demanding the reform of, evils the existence of which they have known for years. There is little profit, however, in discussing that phase of the subject; it is better worth while to hear what The Medical Record has to say about the cause of the trouble. It declares that the adverse influence against which the hospital has contended—unsuccessfully—can be defined in a single word—politics. "This has been proved," asserts the expert, "in every part of its government, from the appointment of an attending physician or surgeon to the employment of the lowest menial. A medical man may be ever so well qualified for a position, but if he has no friend in the councils of the dominating party, or is not connected with some medical school, his chances for preferment are almost invariably discounted. So long as politics rules our hospital, so long will preventable abuses show themselves. At times there will be attempts to remedy existing evils, but the lapsing into old conditions is inevitable when party interests are at stake and favorites must be served. There is really no excuse for politics as such in the management of our hospitals. As charity has no creed, science should have no political complexion." Commissioner KELLER, that boldest advocate of spoils politics, should read this with attention.

—There is little to create either exultation or hope in the announcement of the New York Central officials that they are considering the construction of a tunnel and sub-station at Forty-second Street for the use of their suburban trains. They have said as much several times before, but always in a way cautiously vague, and, as the present declaration of intention is accompanied by a hint that nothing can be done until some satisfactory substitute for steam motors can be found, it is easy to see that relief of the existing conditions is delayed, not by mechanical difficulties, but by lack of inclination to act. The Grand Central corporation had to excuse and explain its refusal to let the Rapid Transit Commission carry its tunnel northward under the railway tracks instead of westward along Forty-second Street, so it trots out once more its own tunnel and substation scheme, taking care at the same time to exploit its peculiar and unique disbelief in the practicability of any of the electric motors now in use. To be sure, those motors work well enough on other roads in the United States and England, but there is something queer about the New York air, and the Grand Central people are convinced that machines of a different sort are required here. We do not doubt that they really are thinking of the plan they mention, but we deeply fear that they are thinking of it only as something to be deferred just as long as possible, and finally to be put in operation when the traffic simply cannot be handled under the present arrangement. We will get that sub-station when the interests of the two roads directly require it, for then alone will the selection of a motor become easy. Meanwhile the passengers have that beautiful marble waiting room, and, with that to monopolize all their attention, of course they will not notice little things like delays in the tunnel and trains starting half an hour behind time.

—A passenger who reached the New York end of the big bridge the other day on a Putnam Avenue car was much impressed by the skill with which the motorman made the frequent stops and starts incidental to rounding the terminal curve. Of course the car was crowded, and this particular passenger had not been fortunate enough to secure even the aid of a strap in maintaining his verticality. He, therefore, expected to be much tossed about before reaching the point of disembarkation, but the motorman manipulated the force at his command with such art that all the usual shocks were avoided and the standing passenger was able to maintain both his temper and his dignity. So notable did the motorman's achievements seem that the passenger, on reaching his office, sat down and wrote a letter to the General Superintendent of the Brooklyn Heights Railroad Company, detailing his experience and inclosing a dollar as a New Year's gift to the adroit and considerate employé, whose number he had been thoughtful enough to keep in mind. This letter must have made something of a sensation in the company's headquarters, for it was doubtless the only one of its kind that ever arrived there, but the General Superintendent, who promptly acknowledged its receipt, was fairly successful in keeping all evidences of excitement or surprise out of his reply. "We are always exceedingly glad," he wrote, "when any of our employés earn the approbation and commendation of our patrons, and I wish to thank you for your expression of your appreciation of this motorman's efforts. I have forwarded your inclosure to the Division Superintendent, requesting him to hand the same to Motorman JOSEPH SMITH, No. 2,009, and at the same time to read to him your letter. Allow me also to thank you in the name of Motorman SMITH." Now, if the road would start a training school for motormen, and make Mr. JOSEPH SMITH, No. 2,009, the head of the faculty at a good salary, the episode, already charming, would attain artistic perfection.

—Gov. PINGREE looks strangely far for an explanation of the fall of his friend ALGER. According to the inventor of the municipal potato patch, the cry that drove Gen. ALGER from the War Office was raised by certain New York steamship owners who had combined to make excessive profits out of the Government's necessities, and whose purpose was sternly thwarted when the contract for carrying home the Spanish prisoners was awarded to foreign bidders. Now, unless our memory is utterly at fault, the pressure which caused Gen. ALGER'S retirement from office was brought to bear on the President, not by steamship owners, but by the people at large, acting with marvelous and almost complete unanimity. And the people at large were not disturbed at all, or more than very faintly interested, in the award of that particular transportation contract. We recall, in regard to it, only expressions of mild satisfaction that the selection of Spanish ships to do the work relieved us of most of the responsibility for any deaths that might occur on the homeward voyage, and saved us from possible blame for the condition in which the prisoners reached their native shores. The demand for the Secretary's official head was prompted by other causes than the disappointment of the shipping men. Public sympathy with the latter was not warm at the end of the Cuban war, and Gen. ALGER would have been quite safe had he excited no hostility except theirs. If Gen. ALGER was the victim of anybody, he was the victim of the American people, who, in their own way, charged him with incompetency and worse, and to their own satisfaction convicted him of the charge. And surely Gov. PINGREE, of all men, ought to be content with the decision of the American people.

THE KIP'S BAY PLAYGROUND.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The Kip's Bay Playground, the latest opened by the Out-door Recreation League, has done a notable work during the last six or eight months, under the direct supervision of the Friendly Aid Settlement, at 248 East Thirty-fourth Street. It occupies merely the space of three ordinary house lots on Thirty-fifth Street, between First and Second Avenues, but it has nevertheless afforded an opportunity for healthful exercise and manly training for many hundred children in the brief period during which it has been open. It is now in imminent danger of being closed for lack of funds. Its closure would be a serious blow to the neighborhood, and indirectly to the city. The sum of $500 is needed immediately. Cannot the good will, appropriate at least to the holiday season, be counted upon to induce the subscription of the $500?

Checks may be sent to Mary K. Simkhovitch, 248 East Thirty-fourth Street, New York City. P.

The Spitting Nuisance.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

May I have a little space in your valuable paper to air my grievance against the two-legged beasts who defile our sidewalks from one end of the city to the other with their sickening expectorations? It seems to me that the dog nuisance, about which your correspondents are so much exercised, cannot be compared in filthiness and unhealthfulness to the nuisance constantly committed by men.

The elevated stairways and the steps of the surface cars are so disgusting with this nuisance that it is almost impossible for a lady to pass over them without soiling her clothing. Every intelligent person knows that consumption, catarrh, and other diseases are communicated by spittle, which, when dry, is blown into the air we breathe. No wonder so many suffer with these complaints! Where is the Board of Health?

New York, Jan. 2, 1901. I. L. F.

NUGGETS.

Sagacity.

"Would you rather be wise or beautiful?" asked Fate of the Coy Young Maiden.

"Beautiful," replied the damsel.

"Ah, you are wise already," commented Fate, as she tied up a package of cosmetics.—Baltimore American.

On Short Acquaintance.

"Bigsby has an offensively familiar way about him."

"What's the new illustration?"

"Why, every time he alludes to the twentieth century he calls it 'old twenty cent.'"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Next Visitor with Advice.

Church—What do you think of an Englishman coming over here to tell us how to run our newspapers?

Gotham—The first thing you know, some blasted Britisher will be coming here to tell us how to get rid of fog.—Yonkers Statesman.

His Sight Not Offended.

Styles—I do hate to see a woman hanging on to a strap in a street car.

Barton—And so you always give a woman a seat when you have one to give.

Styles—No, I never go quite so far as that. I give my whole attention to my newspaper, you see. In that way my sight is not offended by the poor, weary woman. —Boston Transcript.

THE WAY OF THE ARGONAUT.

Fred T. Elkin in Denver News.

Oh, rough is the way of the Argonaut,
And vain is his quest, unless
His heart be ready and iron-wrought
In the upheaved wilderness.
It's a hole in the rock and a man in the hole
And a hope that stubbornly seeks its goal,
Though chanceful and danger-fraught;
It's the "ring-ca-ring" of the single-jack—
It's a bead on the brow and a bend in the back
That make luck for the Argonaut.

Oh, his camp rests upon the mountain side—
A cluster of homes and hells;
To saints and to sinners open wide,
While the mad boom seethes and swells;
For he says ('tis a cool philosophy)
"Things will settle 'emselves if you let 'em be,
Don't croak such a dismal tune;
Hades and heaven will get their own,
Despite the gait of a mining town,
Despite church or saloon."

And when success on his toil attends
And a "pay streak" he acquires,
He is cheek to his poorer friends—
A hope to the help he hires;
For he says of a genial impetus,
"If you'll act the man there'll be two of us,"
And a wage that is fair he gives;
He has learned this truth of his own hard strife,
That a mere existence mismomers life;
As a man earns, so he lives.

Then here's to the lads of the dynamite,
To the boys who drill and blast;
May they always have a mine in sight
And strike it rich at last.
Yes, it's here's to the lads in the ragged jeans,
Who can hope on a diet of pork and beans,
And join in a laugh when "broke,"
For they build to the Nation day by day
In that they pioneer the way
For the less courageous folk.

NATIONAL ACADEMY OF DESIGN.

Annual Exhibition in the Galleries of the Society of American Artists.

The most impressive sign just now about the Academy of Design is its vitality. Divorce from house and home has no effect in the way of abatement of zeal, nor does the fact that it is still a tenant of the Society of Artists in the Fine Arts Building, on West Fifty-seventh Street, put a damper on its activity. On the contrary, the awkward predicament of having no galleries of its own has furnished an excuse to free the exhibition of much undesirable material on the line, which used to be there according to Academy rules and in pursuance of immemorial privilege. The present show has been reduced to less than 300 pieces, including a dozen sculptures. The result of this hard-heartedness, combined with finesse, is a single row of paintings on many walls—and rarely, if ever, more than a double row. The pictures can be studied with comfort, and are decidedly worthy of a visit for other and more important reasons than ease of examination.

To speak of the newest thing first, the gold medal given in honor of the late George Inness by his son has been awarded for the first time, and the winner is Mr. Bruce Crane, the painter of snowy reaches in Connecticut, of crocus-colored sunsets, and bare fields of stubble, glorified by the afterglow. The medal goes to the best landscape in the exhibition, but the honor is qualified by a proviso on the part of the Academy that no picture shall receive two prizes. Mr. Crane's "Golden Grain" and "The Year's Wane" are pleasing, but not strong. One could not quarrel with a person who prefers Arthur W. Dow's "The Incoming Tide," with its feeling for the inequalities of level on the marsh and its skilful handling of tender pinks and greens; or Gifford R. Beal's "Cloud Shadows," apparently a landscape from Peconic Bay, very justly and spiritedly wrought; or A. T. Van Laer's "Connecticut Hillside," a really noble landscape, fashioned on a big scale; or F. Ballard Williams's "Vermont Landscape," with its massive impasto, like the work of Jules Dupré; or J. Alden Weir's "New England Village," with its simple, true tones and ease of handling, a picture from 1897; or Leonard Ochtman's "The Solitary Road," with its grave and quiet sky, touched with violet, and its rows of pensive Autumn trees. But the awarding of a gold medal for the "best landscape" in an American exhibition is so difficult a task that one is loath to suggest to a jury that a better choice might have been made, more especially when the jury has wisely kept itself strictly incognito. Suffice it that Mr. Crane's work here and in former exhibitions has been worthy of some particular distinction.

Speaking of landscapes, one reverts naturally to the big canvas by Horatio Walker, an Academician worthy of the name. "Ploughing—The First Gleam" continues his triumphs in the same line, but with a difference in the handling. We have the Canadian French farmers guiding the plow and the double yoke of oxen, but the nearer figure is, if anything, more primitive and massive; the oxen are straining at the yoke, and the sky is partly mantled with black clouds, partly lit in charming tones with the beginning of sunrise. The composition recalls other plowing scenes by Walker, but it is bolder and grander, while his technique, broad and measured as never before, has advanced in the same degree. The canvas is a splendid effort, which recalls the old Dutch and British masters rather than the French landscapists of 1830.

In the Vanderbilt Gallery, two portraits dispute the interest of connoisseurs with this fine specimen of Horatio Walker, portraits by Vinton and Collins. The likeness of Mr. John Harsen Rhosdes, by Frederic P. Vinton, N. A., chronicles a change in the methods of the painter, which makes him a lively competitor for honors with John S. Sargent. He seems to have left behind a certain stiffness or dullness of handling that often prevented a hearty admiration of his work. Unfortunate and perhaps a little unfair to the other likenesses is the glass that covers the canvas. While it gives a smoothness, a feeling of unity to the figure, it is, on the other hand, distinctly disagreeable, in that the surface reflects the room and the persons present like a mirror. Yet one perceives through it all that here is a quiet, dignified, vitalized likeness on the best plane of the portrait maker's art. There is nothing to carry the attention aside; the picture stands or falls on the inner qualities of drawing, color, and expression, and is distinctly a masterpiece. Excellent also is the likeness of Mr. John M. Bowers, by Alfred Q. Collins, Associate Academician. The modeling of forehead, eyes, and lower face will be sure to please professional judges. Very different from these two portraits, but charming in its way, is the subtler fashion of Arthur de Ferraris, who has something old-time, something of Joshua-like, in his half-length portrait of a lady with blonde hair, a boa about her shoulders and roses in her gown. The roses are kept discreetly low in tone, yet do their part in the picture. Still another vein—and how different from those of younger men!—is that of the former President of the Academy, Mr. Daniel Huntington. His Bishop Cleveland Coxe is a reminiscence of past Academy exhibitions. Sweet, mild yet alert, the Bishop is posing, studious in hand, before his desk and his cherished books with old-time illustrations. There is a feeling of inadequacy in the figure; there is a general smoothness in the painting of rosy face and white hair that is not at all to the taste of the later portraitists who have made their mark; but one has often seen less successful likenesses by Mr. Huntington than this, and one readily yields to surprise that at his advanced age he should be found wielding the brush with all his old ease and more than his old correctness.

A portrait that might be named third in the series of Vinton's and Collins's is the standing likeness of W. Ritschl, by Irving R. Wiles. It belongs to the romantic school of portraits; face, clothes, and attitude call the attention to something unusual in the sitter, perhaps to a foreign flavor suggested by his Bavarian name. Mr. Wiles is free in this case from a prettiness that often gives a cloying note in his figures of young women, as was the case in the picture that took the Shaw Prize at the exhibition of the Society of American Artists last year. To the foregoing may be added the portraits of Mr. John Kendrick Bangs and Mr. John Reid of the St. Andrew's Golf Club and of the lady in a plain white dress, (full length standing,) all by Frank Fowler, N. A. Nor should the portrait of the old painter Newman be forgotten, which the maker, Miss Clara McChesney, has called "A Good Story." The fresh, humorous face in the left-hand upper corner of the canvas is balanced by the light tones of the beer mug which he holds in his hand on the table in the right lower corner of the picture. The picture has deservedly won the Second Hallgarten Prize of $200. If a criticism should be hazarded, it would be that the black chapeau is not quite definite enough against the dark background; in trying to make it unnoticeable Miss McChesney has almost caused it to disappear.

The First Hallgarten Prize of $300 goes this year to W. Elmer Schofield of Ogontz, Penn., for a township with water, called "Winter Evening"—snow on the ground, bare trees, a cloudy, greenish sky with the broken moonlight giving the snow a greenish hue. This is a very fine work, and the jury is to be congratulated on the taste shown in its selection. It has all the feeling of indistinct outlines and cold that belongs to such a season and time of day. The Third Hallgarten Prize of $100 is not so happy a choice; it is "Repose," by Miss Matilda Browne.

The Thomas B. Clarke Prize of $300 is won by William Fair Kline, with a "Flight Into Egypt" that is more a landscape than a figure piece. Yet as a landscape it is impressive—a cool, diffused, moonlit country, rugged and stern, while the figures, though small, are very charmingly put in. The Norman W. Dodge Prize of $300 for the best picture painted by a woman goes to Miss Mary Theresa Hart. She shows a portrait of her father, James M. Hart, the painter, and, conjointly with her sister, a portrait study of two maidens.

GOV. ODELL'S CHARITIES' PLAN.

Reduction of Membership in State Board Constitutional, He Says.

ALBANY, Jan. 4.—Gov. Odell's attention was called to-day to allegations that it will be unconstitutional to reduce the membership of the State Board of Charities to a single-headed commission, and to legislate the present prison commission out of office and create in its stead a commission composed of one appointed member and State officers designated by the Legislature.

Gov. Odell replied that the point had been considered carefully before he wrote his message, and he was of the opinion and had excellent legal advice to the effect that the changes recommended would be perfectly Constitutional.

FEARS RISE IN TAX RATE

President Feitner Expects an Increase of Twenty Points.

Budget for 1901 Will Be $7,000,000 More Than That for 1900, and Assessors Are Uneasy.

President Thomas L. Feitner of the Department of Taxes and Assessments fears a twenty point increase in the tax rate for 1901. This information leaked out yesterday through a statement made by officials of the Department of Taxes and Assessments that the real estate assessments would not be raised this year except where the property showed a natural increase in value. The importance of this statement becomes apparent when it is stated that the Tax budget for 1901 will be at least $7,000,000 more than the budget for 1900, caused, in a large measure, by the passage of the Davis school bill by the Legislature, which added nearly $4,000,000 to the burdens of the taxpayers every year.

Another matter which the officials of the Department of Taxes view with alarm is the chance of the franchise tax law, passed by the Republican Legislature, being declared unconstitutional. This would create a further deficiency of at least $2,500,000 to be met, and the only way to make up this sum would be to either increase the assessments on real estate, collect more personal taxes, or increase the tax rate. The tax officials anticipate this dilemma, and their plans are being laid accordingly. They will charge that the condition and the increased burdens which the property owners of New York must bear have been caused by acts of the Republican Legislature. President Feitner says that if the Franchise Tax law had been left in the shape in which it first passed the Legislature, under which all franchises were taxed as real estate by the local Department of Taxes and Assessments, a share of the cost of City Government would have been shifted before this time from real estate to corporations owning franchises.

A twenty-point rise in the tax rate would make the property owners of Manhattan and the Bronx pay $2.45 on each $100 of valuation, and Brooklyn property owners would pay in the neighborhood of $2.55. President Feitner, when asked yesterday whether there would be any change in the system of collecting personal taxes so as to relieve real estate, said:

"I know of no changes. We will try to collect all we can on personal property. At the present time the holdings of many wealthy families are well known through court proceedings, and the Department of Taxes will see that the estates are taxed accordingly."

"What is your outlook on the tax rate for 1901?" was asked.

"If the franchise tax law is declared unconstitutional by the courts the tax rate will be twenty points higher this year. But even if the law is allowed to stand the tax rate will be higher anyway. The realty valuations have reached such a high figure now, owing to the charter provisions requiring the equalization of real estate valuations throughout the city, that the department cannot increase them any further. Extensive increases will be made in the valuation of personal property, but alone the increase will not be enough to meet the increase of $7,000,000 in the tax rate." President Feitner then said that the tax rate for 1901 would not be fixed for some time, and any figure announced now would be purely a guess. "If you are guessing on the tax rate, guess above that of last year," remarked President Feitner.

The Commissioners of Taxes will meet on Monday next to receive the report of the Assessors, and go through the form of equalizing real estate valuations through the city. The books showing the real estate and personal assessments will be opened to the public on Jan. 14. From that day until May 30 any taxpayer may visit the Department of Taxes and Assessments and learn on what property and for what amount he has been assessed for 1901. From April 30 the books will be closed to make out the final tax rolls. On July 1 the assessment rolls will be transmitted to the Municipal Assembly.

The Tammany officials do not like the outlook of going into a municipal campaign with a high tax rate. Mayor Van Wyck has made the head of every department place what is known as "permanent improvements" out of the tax budget, and the money is raised by the issue of bonds. By this means over $10,000,000 of bonds have been issued, and in the budget each year there appears only the interest to pay for the issues. Many improvements, which under previous administrations were included in the tax budget, have been by Mayor Van Wyck paid for by bond issues in order to keep the annual tax rate as low as possible.

TO REGULATE PAWNBROKERS.

Provisions of Senator Wagner's Bill to Supervise Small Loans.

ALBANY, Jan. 4.—The bill introduced by Senator Wagner for the regulation and supervision by the State of certain loan associations and pawnbrokers, besides providing for incorporation, forbids certain loans of money, property, or credit. It states that in any county of more than 25,000 population five or more persons may organize for the purpose of aiding such persons as shall be deemed in need of pecuniary assistance, and may negotiate for loans not exceeding $200, on personal property.

The corporation must file a certificate, and also a bond amounting to one-tenth of the capital stock of the corporation, and the bond must not be less than $5,000, with the Superintendent of Banks, who shall have authority to examine such corporations at least once a year. The Superintendent or his agents shall have free access to all books, and all information asked for shall be freely furnished to him. A reward of $250 is offered for information of any violation of this law on the part of any incorporated loan association.

The interest or discount must not exceed 3 per cent. a month for two months or less; after two months the interest or discount must not exceed 2 per cent. A sum not exceeding $3 shall be charged for the first examination of property to be pledged or mortgaged, and for drawing and filling the necessary papers. It will be unlawful for any of these corporations to declare dividends exceeding 10 per cent., and it will be unlawful to have a surplus of over 25 per cent. of the actual capital of such corporations. When the surplus reaches 25 per cent. of the capital or over, the Superintendent of Banks will issue an order reducing the rate of interest and charges. Violations of this law will be considered misdemeanors, and will be punished as such.

Senator Wagner believes that he will be able to secure the passage of his bill at the present session. It will be introduced next Wednesday evening in the Assembly.

REPORT ON NAVAL MILITIA.

Capt. Miller Submits His Annual Statement to the Governor.

ALBANY, Jan. 4.—The annual report of Capt. J. W. Miller, commanding the Naval Militia of the State, has been transmitted to the Governor by Adjt. Gen. Hoffman. After referring to the work of the year, including inspections and cruises, Capt. Miller says:

"In my last report reference was made to the necessity for an armory for the Brooklyn battalion. I am now happy to state that the City of New York has decided to construct an armory on the Brooklyn water front at the foot of Forty-third Street. The plans for this armory are now being considered by the city authorities, and I understand a portion of the building will be erected during the coming Winter.

"With some reluctance and after full consideration and with the approval of the Governor, it was deemed advisable last Summer to forego the tour of duty on the vessel provided by the Navy Department for the exercises of the Naval Militias of the various States and to give our instruction in home waters under their own officers.

"The prizes for general figure of merit this year have been awarded as follows:

"First Prize—First Division, First Battalion.

"Second Prize—Second Division, First Battalion.

"Third Prize—Fourth Division, Second Battalion.

"The brigade prize has been won by the Second Battalion."

THE CHINESE INDEMNITY

America Trying to Secure Harmony of Action.

IMMENSE DEMANDS EXPECTED

Bill of Germany Will Probably Be the Largest—Mr. Choate Sees Lord Lansdowne.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—The State Department is making a strong effort to secure an understanding among the powers to serve as a basis for the adjustment of the question of indemnity to be paid by the Chinese Government.

It appears from Mr. Conger's reports that it is hopeless to expect the foreign Ministers at Peking to reach an agreement on this important subject, and if the problem is to be solved at all, it must be removed from the Peking council and dealt with by direct diplomatic exchange, as was successfully attempted in the case of the preceding serious differences between the Ministers. Therefore, the State Department is in correspondence with other foreign offices respecting this subject, though the negotiations have not proceeded to a point where it can be said that a successful termination is in sight.

The principal difficulty in the way is believed to be the enormous indemnities demanded by the European powers. The efforts of the Chinese Government to secure better terms, so far as they tend to protract the negotiations, are also expected to have the result of adding considerably to the sum total which must be paid in the end. This is because the expenses of maintaining the foreign military establishments in China will probably be assessed against the Chinese Government, and the cost of keeping foreign troops in Peking at this season of the year, and in a country where every necessity of life has to be imported from a distance, will make the bill very heavy.

It is believed that the bill of Germany will be by far the largest, and it is a significant fact that the German Government has allowed its officers on service in China fivefold their regular salaries, a rate of pay hitherto unknown in military history. The Chinese, however, are expected to pay for this.

LONDON, Jan. 5.—The interview between Mr. Choate and Lord Lansdowne when the canal treaty amendments were presented yesterday was chiefly devoted to an expression of Lord Lansdowne's views on China's answer to the demands of the powers. It is understood that Secretary Hay desired to know what Great Britain thought of those points which China, in her answer, said she was unable to fulfill at present.

No difference of opinion appears to exist between Secretary Hay and Lord Lansdowne. While further negotiations between the powers are necessary, it is believed that there are no very serious difficulties in the way of a settlement that will be satisfactory to all nations.

"Russia," says the Peking correspondent of The Daily Mail, "will demand a huge indemnity for the damage to the Manchurian Railway."

ST. PETERSBURG, Jan. 4.—The Novoe Vremya characterizes the Chinese acceptance of the peace terms of the powers as being a formality due to China's inability to oppose the European armies. The paper adds that the next catastrophe is probably not far distant, and that it will far surpass the recent occurrences.

The entire Russian press prophesies pessimistically, and fiercely attacks "German plundering, vandalism, and the destruction of the libraries and other monuments of the ancient civilization by German and British troops."

WALDERSEE ALIVE JAN. 1.

Report That the Field Marshal Has Been Killed an Old One, and Discredited in Berlin.

BERLIN, Jan. 4.—The officials of the Foreign Office absolutely discredit the story that Field Marshal Count von Waldersee has been murdered by an officer of the allied troops.

It is semi-officially declared that a rumor to that effect has been current for a week past, but the Government has no corroboration of it. Count von Waldersee reviewed the British soldiers on Jan. 1.

RUSSIAN EXPLANATION WANTED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—The attitude of Russia in Manchuria has given rise to considerable apprehension here. As indicated in recent news dispatches, a series of regulations has been promulgated by the Russian Government for the administration of affairs in Manchuria, which would seem to the officials here to warrant an apprehension that a permanent occupation of that territory, with its population of 20,000,000, is in contemplation.

It is believed that some representations either have been or will be made on the subject to the Powers.

When the Russian Government announced its intention to withdraw its troops from Peking, it also solemnly declared that "As soon as lasting order shall have been established in Manchuria, and indispensable measures taken for the protection of railway construction, which, according to formal agreement, China assured, Russia will not fail to withdraw her troops from these territories of the neighboring empire, provided the action of the powers does not place any obstacle in the way of such a measure."

The contention of the Russian representatives here is that the conditions laid down in this pledge have not yet been realized, and they insist that there is nothing in the published regulations which would warrant the assumption that Russia is not acting in perfect good faith in this matter.

To clear up any doubt that may remain on this point, however, it is probable that an explicit official declaration from Russia will be invited on this point.

LANSDOWNE THANKS AMERICANS.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—The British Ambassador has communicated to the Secretary of State a dispatch recently received by him from the Marquis of Lansdowne, commending the gallant conduct of certain Americans who distinguished themselves last Summer during the attacks on the Legation quarter in Peking. The text of the dispatch follows:

"My Lord: With reference to my preceding dispatch of this day's date, I have to inform you that Sir C. MacDonald has brought to my notice the conduct of certain gentlemen who particularly distinguished themselves during the attacks on the Legation quarter, and who gave invaluable assistance both to him personally and to the defense in general.

"Sir Claude mentions the names of the Rev. F. D. Gamewell of the American Methodist Mission, and Mr. Herbert Squiers, Secretary of the United States Legation.

"He states that the Rev. F. D. Gamewell carried out the entire defenses of the British Legation, and that these defenses have excited the admiration of the officers of various nationalities who have since inspected them.

"As a tribute to their excellence, he mentions that, notwithstanding a constant rain of rifle fire during the five weeks of the siege, not a single woman or child in the Legation suffered. He adds that a deep debt of gratitude is owed to him by all the besieged.

"Mr. Herbert Squiers acted in the capacity of Sir Claude's chief of staff after the death of Capt. Strouts of the Royal Marines. Sir Claude mentions that his earlier services in the United States Army were of great use in the defense, and that he cannot speak too highly of his zeal and ability.

"The barricades on the Tartar wall were designed and carried out by him, and under Sir Claude's orders he drew the plan for the entry of the troops, which was conveyed to Gen. Gaselee by a messenger let down from the wall.

"I request that you will bring the names of these two gentlemen to the favorable notice of the United States Government, and express the appreciation felt by Her Majesty's Government of their eminent services.

"I am, &c.,

"LANSDOWNE."

MORE PUNITIVE EXPEDITIONS.

PEKING, Jan. 3.—Col. Tulloch, with a force of Baluchis, a detachment of Australians, and a company of Japanese, is about to start on a punitive expedition to Kao-li-Ying, from which place shots were fired at a patrol, the officials sending insulting messages to the allies on Dec. 15.

The sending of the expedition is looked upon as the correct thing, despite the acceptance of the joint note by the Chinese.

SHANGHAI, Jan. 4.—The French intend to send a force overland from Tonkin to Chen-Tu, should the Chinese Court go there.

"It is reported on the best authority," says the Chinese newspaper Chung-Wei-Jih-Pao, "that a foreign power, probably the British, will resort to force, first seizing Chu-Ran, unless the persons guilty of the massacre of Christians at Chuen-Ow are beheaded."

It is considered possible that Sir Ernest Mason Satow, British Minister to China, is moving in the Chuen-Ow affair.

No "Mutiny" on the Barfleur.

LONDON, Jan. 4.—The Admiralty officials say it is not true that a mutiny has occurred on board the British battleship Barfleur, as reported from Hongkong. They say a "minor disturbance took place on board the Barfleur, implicating a few men. They were repudiated by the rest. Three men are held under arrest."

Chinese at Their Old Tricks.

SHANGHAI, Jan. 4.—Among the banknotes which the Chinese paid to the foreign Consuls as indemnity for the missions destroyed at She-Klung were £5 notes that had been raised to £15 notes and £10 notes that had been raised to £100 notes.

"FAUST" ONCE AGAIN.

Gounod's Masterpiece Sung at the Metropolitan Opera House.

The season of opera at the Metropolitan Opera House is now really under way. There can be no further room for doubt that the public held off till it was certain that the favorite tenor, Mr. Jean de Reszke, would sing again and that the sad London tales of the loss of his voice were not true. On Monday night he came, he saw, and he conquered, and the result was that last night, when he made his second appearance, the auditorium was packed. The opera was Gounod's "Faust," which had not been heard since the English company gave it. Of course, that hearing did not count in the reckoning of the public which patronizes the "regular" season, the opera, plainly, was not the secret of the size of the audience last night. Were this London, it would be safe to say that the combination of Mme. Melba and Mr. Jean de Reszke in the cast was the cause of the delicious milk in Mr. Grau's yellow cocoanut, and, in that case, the auditors would have been invited to celebrate their joy by paying increased rates of admission. But in New York joint appearances of the Australian soprano and the Polish tenor are regarded as ordinary occurrences. It is pretty safe to say that the removal of Mr. de Reszke from last night's cast would have reduced the house to workaday proportions and robbed the evening of its festal air.

That being the case, it becomes the duty of a newspaper to make its first comment on the second appearance of the greatest representative of Gounod's rejuvenated doctor known to our day. Mr. de Reszke was in better voice than he was on Monday night, and his lovely tones came out with a comforting plenitude, and with that old, winning quality which has always reached our hearts. In the first act last night the artist stone out at once, for the simulacrum of the aged philosopher mourning for his lost youth was that of a master. In the garden scene Mr. de Reszke sang with an art whose exquisite finish was a source of joy and wonder to those capable of perceiving the nicety of its details and the infinite variety of its nuances. No prodigal of tone, Mr. de Reszke made his effects by the most delicate touches, but he was ready to peal a trumpet note to delight the gods when that was needed. Indeed, his whole impersonation was, to sum it up in a single statement, worthy of Jean de Reszke.

Mme. Melba sang the music of Marguerite irregularly. Some passages were given with uncommon beauty and others—as in the cathedral scene—recklessly. But on the whole the quality of her lovely voice is so well suited to the music that it is a pleasure to hear it sung by her. Mr. Edouard de Reszke was the old familiar Mephistopheles, tall, sardonic, and sonorous, while Mr. Scotti was a graceful and impassioned Valentine. He sang admirably. Miss Bridewell's Siebel will not add to her reputation, for she did not sing her one solo well. The other features of the performance were too familiar to call for comment, though it should be noted that the moonlight, as usual, came long before the moon and from another direction. Mr. Mancinelli conducted.

Henry W. Savage Returns.

Henry W. Savage of the Metropolitan English Opera Company arrived in this city yesterday from Chicago. He will remain here about two weeks, during which time he will settle up the affairs of his organization, which will disband in Washington on Jan. 26. During the forenoon Mr. Grau and Mr. Savage held a long conference, the result of which neither would disclose. Mr. Savage stated, however, that they positively intend to carry out their plans in all the cities they are scheduled to appear in up to Jan 26, and the reports from many of them show that the advance sale is very large.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

The début of Miss Florence Reed, who is to appear at Proctor's in a sketch written for her by Sydney Rosenfeld, has been postponed until Jan. 14 on account of Miss Reed's illness. Miss Reed is the daughter of Roland Reed, who has been ill in this city for a long time.

The special meeting of the Vaudeville Managers' Association of America, which has been in session for the past two days at the headquarters of the association in the St James Building, was brought to a close yesterday afternoon. Many matters were discussed and settled, and considerable detail work was accomplished. One of the most important things done was the adoption of a resolution whereby all the members pledged themselves not to engage or play any vaudeville road attractions next season. It was said this action of the association would practically kill attractions of this kind.

Manager Alfred E. Aarons of the Savoy Theatre claims to be the originator of an idea that will have a tendency to cause considerable inconvenience to the irrepressible pass fiend that of late years has made life a burden to the average theatrical manager. For some time the Savoy Theatre has been greatly annoyed by the presentation of passes that were either forged, limitated, or sold to ticket scalpers. To put a check to this imposition Manager Aarons now issues passes, the face of which is similar to those heretofore used, but on the back appears conditions that the pass is not transferrable, and the party accepting the pass must agree to sign his or her name, which must correspond with the one already written upon the pass. Managers do not look favorably upon the idea.

Gifts to School of Design Students.

The New York School of Applied Design for Women had an unusual Christmas present from a member of the Advisory Committee, Miss E. B. Grigsby, in the shape of fifty tickets to the Grand Opera for the use of the students. The President, Thomas B. Clarke, has also presented the Endowment Fund with $500.

English Lacemakers on the Tunisian.

LONDON, Jan. 4.—The Allan Liner Tunisian, which sailed from Liverpool yesterday for Halifax and Portland, Me., has on board fifty lacemakers, bound for Zion City.

Dr. von Miquel to Retire?

BERLIN, Jan. 4.—Dr. von Miquel, Prussian Minister of Finance, has declared, according to the Frankfürter Zeitung, that he will retire from office in the coming Spring.

Councilman Rice of Passaic Dead.

PASSAIC, N. J., Jan. 4.—Carl H. A. Rice, a member of the Common Council from the First Ward, died this morning at his home from a cancer. He had been ill many months. He is the fourth Councilman from the First Ward to die while in office. All the deaths have taken place within the past two years.

Aid for the Haganey Family.

THE NEW YORK TIMES has received $2 from M. E. B. and $2 from "Delta" in aid of the Haganey family.

LAURIER AS MEDIATOR IN THE TRANSVAAL

Suggestion that He Be Asked to Intervene in South Africa.

Little News as to the General Situation in Cape Colony—Three Columns Pursuing De Wet.

LONDON, Jan. 5.—The Daily Chronicle advises that favorable attention should be given to a movement, reported by its Montreal correspondent, to induce Sir Wilfrid Laurier, the Dominion Premier, provided the Colonial Office consents, to proceed to South Africa as a Commissioner empowered to intervene with a view to the restoration of peace.

There is no further news from Lord Kitchener, who, according to a Cape Town dispatch, is calling for 5,000 men to guard the Rand mines. Enlisting in Cape Colony continues active, and 500 men will leave Cape Town for the North within the next few days.

Information regarding the invasion is scanty. Col. Williams attacked the eastern invaders on Jan. 1 near Middelburg, but failed to dislodge them. He has since been joined by Lieut. Col. Grenfell, and the Boers have retired.

Gen. Brabant has arrived at Graaf Reinet.

Advices from Maseru, Basutoland, dated yesterday, say that three separate columns are still pursuing Gen. De Wet, but with no success beyond taking twenty-eight prisoners. Cannon firing is continually heard.

All the British have deserted Ficksburg, taking their stocks of grain across the border, and the Boers have looted the town.

CAPE TOWN, Jan. 4.—Two hundred Boers have recrossed the Orange River, going north.

The Russian Commandants, Petrowsk and Du Plooy, were killed in the fighting at Utrecht on Dec. 20.

A quantity of ammunition has been captured from sympathizers with the invaders in the neighborhood of Paarl.

SOUTH AFRICAN GOVERNORS.

Milner to Administer the Transvaal and Major Goold-Adams the Orange River Colony.

LONDON, Jan. 5.—The following Colonial Office appointments were announced last evening:

Sir Alfred Milner to be Governor of the Transvaal and British High Commissioner.

The Hon. Sir Walter Francis Hely-Hutchinson to be Governor of Cape Colony.

Lieut. Col. Sir Henry Edward McCallum to be Governor of Natal.

Major Hamilton John Goold-Adams to be Lieutenant Governor of the Orange River Colony.

It was announced some weeks ago that Sir Alfred Milner was to be Governor of the "captured territory," and this was naturally supposed to mean both the Transvaal and the Orange River Colony. Sir Alfred was born about forty years ago, and, after an extraordinarily brilliant career at Oxford, became a barrister, but instead of entering on the practice of law, engaged in journalism. Afterward he was private secretary to Mr. Goschen when the latter was Chancellor of the Exchequer, and then was definitely attached to the service of the Government. Lord Salisbury and the members of the Cabinet are said to regard Sir Alfred as one of the most valuable men at their disposal for diplomatic and administrative work.

Sir Walter Francis Hely-Hutchinson was born in 1849. He is the second son of the late Earl of Donoughmore. He was educated at Cambridge and after leaving college entered the Diplomatic Service. He was appointed Governor of the Windward Islands in 1889, and in 1893 was sent to Natal to inaugurate the system of "responsible government," becoming Governor of that colony and of Zululand.

Sir Henry Edward McCallum has had a most distinguished career, both in the army and the Colonial service. He was born in Cornwall in 1852, and has served in various administrative capacities in every quarter of the globe. At present he is Governor of Newfoundland.

Major Hamilton John Goold-Adams, whose appointment, in view of the earlier announcement as to Sir Alfred Milner, is a complete surprise, served in the army until he became Resident Commissioner of the Bechuanaland Protectorate, about five years ago. His new appointment is probably in the nature of a recognition of the valuable service he recently rendered in inducing the warlike Bechuanas to preserve neutrality.

Earl Roberts Will Take No Holiday.

LONDON, Jan. 5.—Earl Roberts of Kandahar and Pretoria is already immersed in his arduous new duties at the War Office. He will take no holiday.

CANAL TREATY AMENDMENTS.

Handed by Ambassador Choate to the British Foreign Secretary.

LONDON, Jan. 4.—United States Ambassador Choate presented the Hay-Pauncefote treaty amendments to the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, the Marquis of Lansdowne, to-day. No discussion took place, and the nature of Lord Lansdowne's answer was not indicated. Mr. Choate simply notified the Secretary that he brought a document forwarded by the State Department.

An answer will probably not be sent until the Cabinet discusses the matter fully.

BERLIN, Jan. 4.—The Kreuz Zeitung, resuming its discussion of the vote in the United States Senate on the Hay-Pauncefote treaty, says:

"American statesmen have been trying for years to abrogate the Clayton-Bulwer treaty, but the Senate now does so at one stroke. This is the same as if the Assemblée Nationale of Bordeaux were to adopt the Frankfort treaty after striking out the clause ceding Alsace-Lorraine. If, however, John Bull complains of Uncle Sam's perfidy, it can reasonably be answered, 'Measure for measure'!"

Had an "Academy of Illinois" Diploma.

BERLIN, Jan. 4.—Franz Bernhard, pretending to have a doctor's title from the "Academy of Illinois," was ordered by the police to remove his title from his sign. The case went into court, and the officials asked the German Consul in Chicago to investigate. He reported that Dr. Winter and Dr. Ungelenk, whose names figured in the diploma, could not be found by him. The Supreme Administrative Court has now dismissed Bernhard's appeal on the ground that the "Academy of Illinois" is a fraud and that Winter and Ungelenk are not entitled by American law to grant the Doctor's degree. Bernhard's alleged doctorate was in dentistry.

No Treaty Shore Settlement Yet.

LONDON, Jan. 4.—Stories in the Paris newspapers to the effect that the Newfoundland shore dispute has been settled by the exchange of Gambia for French interests in Newfoundland are quite unfounded. Beyond conversations expressive of a mutual desire for a settlement, nothing has occurred, and no details whatever have been discussed.

The Plague at Vladivostock.

LONDON, Jan. 4.—The reports of an outbreak of the plague at Vladivostock are confirmed. There have been nineteen cases, of which fifteen were fatal. Four plague patients are still in the hospital, and numbers are isolated. Owing to a recrudescence of the plague at Smyrna, a quarantine has been imposed by Turkey and Greece on arrivals from that port.

Bulgariane Kill Eight Soldiers.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Jan. 4.—In the course of a serious affray near Ishtib, originating in an attempt to arrest a number of Bulgarians suspected of being emissaries of the Macedonian Committee, eight soldiers were killed. The troubles continue.

Berlin Academy Honors Mr. White.

BERLIN, Jan. 4.—United States Ambassador White has been elected a member of the Berlin Academy of Science.

PLANS FOR NEW UP-TOWN OFFICE BUILDING

To Be Erected by New York Central in Forty-second Street.

Corner Now Occupied by Annex to the Station—Involves a Change of Original Plans.

The New York Central Railroad has decided to erect a large office building on the property at the corner of Depew Place and Forty-second Street, which is now occupied by the "annex" to the Grand Central Station, and which is used exclusively for incoming trains. The building will be erected as soon as circumstances will permit. The plans have not yet been completed, but it was stated yesterday that the building would be something of a skyscraper. The offices which it will contain are to be used in part by the railroad company, and in part they will be let out to tenants. The offices in the present Grand Central Station building are becoming insufficient for the constantly growing needs of the various departments of the company. Besides, the property is considered too valuable to remain much longer in its present semi-occupied condition.

The two-story structure is now occupied by a small waiting room and the office of the train master on the ground floor, while the second story is used by the Third Avenue elevated line as a station.

When the plans for the recently completed waiting room in the Grand Central Station were drawn, provision was made for the erection of a three-story addition on the space occupied by the "annex." This addition was to have contained a restaurant, private dining rooms, and other accommodations for passengers. Owing to the change of plans, however, this addition has been abandoned, and instead the modern office building will be erected.

The improvements which have been made in the Grand Central Station in connection with the new waiting room are now almost completed. The old waiting rooms in the Vanderbilt Avenue wing of the station have been transformed into a commodious baggage room for outgoing baggage, so that the oldest commuter would not recognize them. The tracks for incoming trains in the "annex" have been moved back, and the only thing which remains to be done is the extension of the broad concourse in the main station through the "annex" to Depew Place, so that it will not be necessary to leave the building in order to reach the outgoing tracks from the incoming platform.

It is not likely that the underground station for local trains, of which so much has been said, will be realized in the near future. In fact, it was stated yesterday that nothing in this direction would be attempted until a practicable motor had been found. The compressed-air company is making experiments with more powerful motors than those used by street cars, but so far they have not succeeded in getting up anything that could fulfill the demands of the New York Central's experts.

WHAT IS DOING IN SOCIETY.

The last day of January's first week finds New York society resting after the great Whitney ball of last evening. The afternoon trains will carry a number of people out of town for a Sunday holiday in the country. There is not much going on in town to-day. The Saturday Evening Dancing Class will hold its third meeting at Delmonico's, and there will be the second meeting of Mrs. Pratt's senior dancing class at Sherry's. The event of the afternoon will be the reception to be given by Dr. W. Seward Webb and Mrs. Webb to introduce their daughter, Miss Fredericka V. Webb. This reception will mark the return of Dr. Webb and Mrs. Webb to the social world, from which, through mourning, they have for some time been absent. Mrs. Isaac L. Kip will give a luncheon for the fiancée of her son, Miss Elisa Strong, and Mrs. Charles Lea will give a coming-out reception for her daughter, Miss Marjorie Lea.

***

Mr. and Mrs. John Jacob Astor gave the second of their two large dinners at their Fifth Avenue house last night. Covers were laid for twenty-four, and the guests were Mrs. Astor, Baron and Baroness de Sellière, Mr. and Mrs. W. Starr Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, Mr. and Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Edmund L. Baylies, Mr. and Mrs. Ogden Mills, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Mackay, the Misses Anna Sands, Atherton Blight, Evelyn Burden, and May Goelet and Centre Hitchcock, Henry W. Bull, Barton Willing, Fernando Yznaga, and Alfonso de Navarro.

***

Mrs. W. Storrs Wells gave the first of her Fridays at home yesterday. Mrs. Wells and Miss Wells will receive on Fridays through January. There was a coming-out reception given by Mrs. Henry A. Crosby of 20 Washington Square, to introduce Miss Beatrice Crosby, and in the evening the second meeting of Mrs. Snedeker's dancing class at Sherry's.

***

Mrs. David Morrison of 20 East Forty-ninth Street gave a dance last evening at her residence for her daughters, the Misses Nathalie and Lillian Morrison. This dance was for the very young set, as Miss Nathalie Morrison will not come out until next season, and Miss Lillian a year later. The guests were received by Mrs. Morrison and her two daughters. Miss Nathalie Morrison wore pink crepe de chine trimmed with pink roses and Miss Lillian was in white crepe trimmed with white lace. The house was decorated with palms and pink flowers. There was informal dancing, for which Brooks & Denton's quartet furnished the music. There was no cotillion. Between 12 and 1 a seated supper was served. The guests included Mrs. W. S. G. Prentice and the Misses Susie Street, Adeline Havemeyer, Mary Park, Kate Richardson, Katherine Barney, Jessie Sloane, Helen Macy, Beth Clarke, Julia Trowbridge, Edith Poor, Molly Lefferts, Anita Peabody, and Oscar Edgerton Stevens, Harold Talbot, Sinclair and F. Richardson, Milton Cornell, Theodore Crane, James and Duncan Miller, John Aierbach, Theodore Dixon, Alfred Ely, Jr., Edward Tinker, Theron Strong, William Boulton, Kenelm Winslow, H. L. Burnett, Jr., and the Messrs. Williams.

***

A large dance was given at the Country Club at Lakewood, N. J., last evening. This dance was preceded by a number of dinners. The patronesses were, among others, Mrs. George J. Gould, Mrs. Charles D. Kingdon, Mrs. Frank M. Freeman, Mrs. Arthur B. Claflin, Mrs. Dwight Miller Harris, Mrs. Henry Lloyd Herbert, Mrs. J. Russell May, Mrs. Frederic R. Coudert, Mrs. Thomas L. Watson, Mrs. Ernest C. La Montagne, and Mrs. William Arthur Hamilton.

***

Miss Grace Dobson, who attracted attention last Winter by her drawing-room recitations and cantillations, will give this evening at the Astoria a recital. In this she will be assisted by Miss Anna Otten, the violinist. Miss Dobson will recite a number of poems in the French-Canadian dialect, and also give some cantillations. The entertainment is under fashionable patronage, and the audience will be in evening dress. The recital will begin at 9 o'clock.

***

On the Fuerst Bismarck, sailing to-day for Genoa and Naples, via Gibraltar, there are booked among others, Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Andrews and Miss N. Andrews, Mrs. Sackett M. Barclay and the Misses Beatrice and Cornelia Evelyn Barclay, Miss Emily V. Binney, Mr. and Mrs. Adolphe de Bary and the Misses Leonie and Anita de Bary, Mrs. George H. Daniels, Miss Harriet M. Daniels, Mrs. Andrew J. Davis and Miss Jessica E. Davis, Mr. and Mrs. John E. Dwight and the Misses Mabel and Ruth Dwight, Miss Eleanor M. Ferguson, Mr. and Mrs. J. Swan Frick, Mr. and Mrs. Harlow N. Higinbotham, Harry H. Higinbotham, and the Misses Florence and Alice Higinbotham, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Iden, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. William P. Ketcham, E. W. Longfellow, the Misses Rebecca and Mary C. Longstreth, Mr. and Mrs. I. Z. Leiter and Miss Leiter, Major Frank W. Oakley and Mrs. Oakley, Miss Margaret H. Potter, H. Richardson, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Dillon Ripley, the Misses Julia D. and Mary W. Strong, Mr. and Mrs. James K. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Stockton, Miss Patty Stockton, and Masters Gilbert, Richard, and Bayard Stockton, Mr. and Mrs. William P. Ketcham and Miss Ketcham, Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Wendell, Miss Clara A. Sanborn, the Rev. W. W. Webb, Le Marquise Rodolphe de Voelki, William B. Winslow and the Misses Helen B., Pauline M., and Marie L. Winslow, Mr. and Mrs. William Wallace, Jr., and Miss Wallace, and Mr. and Mrs. Elisha Dyer, Jr.

***

Mrs. Spotswood Schenck of 284 Lexington Avenue gave a dinner last night for her daughter, Miss Nathalie Schenck, from which she and her guests went to the Whitney ball.

***

Mrs. Maturin L. Delafield of 475 Fifth Avenue is to give a dinner on Jan. 11. It will be the second in a series that Mrs. Delafield is giving. Mrs. Henry F. Dimock, whose daughter, Miss Susan Dimock, is to be married to Cary T. Hutchinson in the Spring, has issued cards for Mondays in January.

***

Bourke Cockran will give a large house party at his residence, at Sands Point, over to-morrow. The guests will go down by the afternoon train. Mr. Cockran has been giving a series of these house parties during the Autumn and early Winter.

***

The house last night at the opera was the most brilliant of the season from the social standpoint, not even excepting the first night. The production of "Faust," with Melba, Jean and Edouard de Reszke, and Signor Scotti, drew an audience that not only filled every box and seat, but crowded the spaces back of the orchestra stalls and behind the boxes on the grand tier. While there were several notable absentees, their places were taken by others quite as prominent. The majority of the women in the parterre boxes and a number of those in the grand tier, and even in the orchestra stalls, were going on later to the Whitney ball, and the audience studied with eagerness the remarkably rich and handsome gowns which they were and the unusual display of jewels. Col. Herbert Eaton and Mrs. Eaton were in the Astor box. In the Whitney box were Mrs. Richard Irvin and Mrs. Frederic Gebhard. Both were superbly gowned, and Mrs. Gebhard attracted all eyes. She wore a clinging princesse gown of white silk, very decolletée, and long black gloves. Lady Cunard, who was with Mrs. F. H. Leggett in the Van Nest box, looked remarkably well in white satin trimmed and brocaded with gold. Other women who attracted attention by their gowns and jewels were Mrs. W. D. Sloane, Mrs. Frank Witherbee, Mrs. James A. Burden, Jr., Mrs. Frederic Neilson, Mrs. Lloyd Bryce, and Mrs. Oliver Harriman, Jr. It was reported that the Duke of Manchester was in one of the boxes with his secretary, Melville Ellis, but the report could not be confirmed. The Earl of Clonmell, Prince Henri de Croy, and Count Gherradesca were among the beaus who called from box to box.

SOCIETY IN WASHINGTON.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—Mr. and Mrs. Edward M. Padelford gave a dinner this evening in honor of Miss Esther Morris Hunt of New York, whose engagement to Mrs. Padelford's son, George Woolsey, was announced on New Year's Day. Among the guests to meet Miss Hunt were Commander and Mrs. William S. Cowles, Mr. and Mrs. Bradley, Baron Gevers, the Minister from the Netherlands, and Miss Lay.

Senator Kean and Miss Kean gave a dinner this evening, their guests being Justice McKenna, the Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. Gage, Senator and Mrs. Elkins, Senator and Mrs. Foraker, Senator and Mrs. McComas, and Paul Tuckerman.

Mrs. Augustus Tyler and Mrs. James H. Hopkins gave large dinner parties this evening, the guests being young people, who later attended the meeting of the "small and early" dancing class, at Rauscher's. The patronesses of the dance were Mrs. Archibald Hopkins, Mrs. James W. Wadsworth, Mrs. Newlands, Mrs. Carlisle, and Mrs. Charles J. Bell.

VANDERBILT-FRENCH WEDDING.

Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt Expected in Newport on Tuesday.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., Jan. 4.—Mrs. Perkins, the housekeeper for Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, arrived from New York this evening with a number of servants, to prepare The Breakers for the reception of Mrs. Vanderbilt and her family.

The work of preparing The Breakers for the family is progressing very well, and the house is thoroughly heated. By Monday everything will be in readiness for their reception. It is understood that Mrs. Vanderbilt will arrive on Tuesday with her daughter, Miss Gladys Vanderbilt, and her son Reginald Vanderbilt, who is coming up from Yale. Mr. and Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney will join the family about Thursday.

GEN. POSTLEY DEAD IN A CAR.

Prominent Retired Lawyer Suddenly Stricken While Returning Home from a Morning Walk.

Passengers in an east-bound Fifty-ninth Street car which reached Madison Avenue at a few minutes before 11 o'clock yesterday morning were greatly surprised to see a well-dressed, elderly man slip from his seat and fall heavily on the floor of the car. Dr. A. R. Kleeberg of 61 West One Hundred and Fourteenth Street was a passenger on the car, and, bending over the man, saw he was dying. With the help of several others he carried the sufferer into a drug store on the corner, where he died in a few minutes and before the arrival of the ambulance summoned from Flower Hospital.

Isaac Elliott of 43 East Sixty-second Street identified the body as that of Gen. Brooke Postley, who occupied a magnificent mansion at 817 Fifth Avenue, with his son, Clarence A. Postley. The doctors agreed that death was due either to apoplexy or heart disease. The conductor said that Gen. Postley, who had gone out for a morning walk in the Park, had boarded the car at Eighth Avenue. He noticed at the time that Gen. Postley seemed ill, shivering and if he had a chill and buttoning his overcoat close about his throat. The conductor secured a seat for him, as the car was crowded, until Madison Avenue was reached, when many persons were transferred. Among those to get out were Gen. Postley's neighbors, who had been supporting him on either side. He had probably been stricken several minutes before this, for when they left he sat with his head bowed on his breast as though asleep until the car started, when the motion threw his unconscious figure to the floor.

Clarence A. Postley was summoned to the police station by telephone, and was so much overcome that for a time he was able to tell little about his father. The body was removed to the East Fifty-first Street Police Station, pending the arrival of the Coroner. Gen. Postley was an eminent lawyer of this city, but retired more than twenty years ago, and lived quietly with his wife and son, who survive him. He was eighty-four years old and was born in this city, where he had always lived. His military title came from his interest in the New York State militia, with which he had been connected in one way or another from boyhood. He was an active Republican, and when Abraham Lincoln was a candidate for the Presidency Gen. Postley was Grand Marshal of the "Wide Awakes," a prominent political organization which supported Mr. Lincoln. Gen. Postley was a member of the New York Club and the Larchmont Yacht Club, and was a familiar figure at the theatres.

J. L. SULLIVAN'S MANAGER DEAD.

Henry Phillips, Promoter of Boxing, Stricken with Apoplexy.

Henry Phillips, well known in sporting circles, and manager for John L. Sullivan when that great fighter was at the height of his success, was stricken with apoplexy in his room at the Delevan House before daylight yesterday, and died a few hours later in Roosevelt Hospital without recovering consciousness.

Mr. Phillips's home was in Montreal, where he conducted a hotel. Only recently he came to New York, and since Dec. 29 had been stopping at the Delevan, because of his friendly relations with "Tom" O'Rourke, the proprietor. Mr. Phillips complained of feeling ill on Thursday and retired early. He was heard to fall heavily at about 1:30 A. M. by occupants of an adjoining room, who notified Mr. O'Rourke. Dr. Sickles, the resident physician, was promptly on hand, but could do nothing.

DEATH LIST OF A DAY.

Gen. Richard Napoleon Batchelder.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—Gen. Richard Napoleon Batchelder, Quartermaster General of the Army from 1890 to 1896, died here this afternoon at 2:25 o'clock.

Gen. Batchelder was not a graduate of the Military Academy. Born in Lake Village, N. H., on July 27, 1832, he received his education in the town of Manchester, that State. At the age of twenty-nine he enlisted as a Lieutenant and Regimental Quartermaster in the First New Hampshire Volunteers. This was in 1861. He did not remain long with his regiment, for within a few months he was made a Captain and Assistant Quartermaster of Volunteers, a position that he held until January, 1863. Then he was promoted to the grade of Lieutenant Colonel, becoming a Colonel in the following year. In 1865 he was commissioned a Captain in the Quartermaster's Department of the regular army. From that time until 1882 he rose steadily in the department. In 1882 President Harrison promoted him over the heads of four Colonels, he being a Major at the time, and made him a Brigadier General.

During the years that he was Quartermaster General at Washington he effected many improvements in the service. Change of boots and shoes was provided for the privates in the army; the new style of rubber blanket was adopted; a canvas legging for the mounted trooper in the Southwest was put into use; sanitary methods in the collection and distribution of garbage at army posts were introduced, crematories and sanitary carts being provided; the architecture of the new posts was made far superior to any hitherto known in this country; the water supplies of the different posts were replenished, and the National cemeteries were beautified and laid out in the proper order. In the Quartermaster's Department he instituted many innovations, such as the use of typewriters and the abolition of a large part of the red tape that had before his time hindered business.

In the six years of his term he spent for the Government $43,000,000, which was said to be a very small amount when the results were considered.

Personally the General was known as a man of austere manners, almost unapproachable to strangers and having very few intimate friends. He was never married. When in this city he lived at the Union League Club. Among the other clubs of which he was a member were the Army and Navy Club and the New England Society. He was retired from active service on July 27, 1896. When he ceased to be Quartermaster General it was said that never before during an administration of that office had there been a period of such efficiency or of such personal unpopularity on the part of the head of the corps.

Obituary Notes.

RUSSELL HUNTLEY, one of the leading residents of Ilion, N. Y., for thirty years, formerly a member of the hardware firm of Russell Huntley & Son, died at his home in Ilion, N. Y., yesterday morning, aged eighty-two years. A son, Charles Huntley, is Superintendent of an electric company in Buffalo.

MISS BLANCHE BERARD, Postmistress of West Point, N. Y., for over forty years, died at her home, in Hackensack, yesterday from the effects of a stroke of paralysis, which she had on Tuesday last. Miss Berard was known to almost every army officer passing through the Military Academy as a cadet, and she was much thought of by every one stationed at West Point.

ALFRED L. BLACK, President of the Farmers' National Bank of Mount Holly, N. J., died suddenly yesterday of apoplexy. Mr. Black, who was 71 years of age, succeeded his father as President of the bank, which is one of the oldest banking institutions in the State. Mr. Black was a wealthy retired farmer and lived in the old homestead next to the Pierre Lorillard farm.

JOHN WHARTON died at his residence, 1,011 Broad Street, Newark, N. J., of heart disease, at noon yesterday, after one week's illness. Mr. Wharton was President of Wharton & Co.'s hat manufactory, in Commerce Street. He was born in Bellville in 1825 and moved to Newark, engaging in the hat business when he was quite young. He is survived by a widow, Mary Grenwald Wharton, and five children, all married.

Mrs. SOPHIA MUNCH died at her home, 51 West Side Avenue, Jersey City, on Thursday, from a complication of diseases. She was born in New York June 5, 1821, and when she was seventeen years old she sang in the choir of Trinity Church, and later at St. Paul's Church. She was a teacher of music until twenty years ago, when she went to live at the home of her son, John F. Murch, in Jersey City, at the death of her husband. Besides this son she also leaves a daughter, Mrs. Mary S. Burgess of San Francisco, Cal.

ELI T. BANGS, a well-known contractor and millionaire, died yesterday morning at his home at Fayetteville, N. Y., after a

F. ARTHUR WESTBROOK FOUND DYING IN BED

Expires Soon After Reaching Roosevelt Hospital.

Was a Well-Known Up-the-State Lawyer and Had Often Talked of Suicide.

F. Arthur Westbrook, thirty-five years old, of Kingston, N. Y., died at the Roosevelt Hospital yesterday afternoon from heart disease, resulting from an overdose of trional. He was found in a semi-conscious condition in his room at the Rossmore Hotel, at 10 o'clock in the morning, and a physician was summoned. The man's purse was very low, denoting that the drug had been taken many hours before the physician's arrival. An ambulance was summoned from Roosevelt Hospital, where the patient died fifteen minutes after his arrival.

He was a lawyer by profession, and a son of the late Judge Frederick Westbrook of Ulster County. He was elected District Attorney of Ulster County when only twenty-eight years old, and declined a renomination for the office to take up a private practice. He was rated as one of the ablest lawyers in that section of the State. He was a bachelor, devoting every hour of his time to study and his practice.

"His close application to work," said Mr. Stevens, the bookkeeper at the Rossmore "brought on insomnia. He dreaded doctors, and refused to consult them, taking trional to induce sleep after a hard day's work. He had been in the city about ten days, attending to some legal business. Last night he told me that he had about finished his work, and expected to return to Kingston to-day. He looked tired out, and evidently took a dose of trional to make him sleep well, as he had often done before."

Mr. Stevens also said that there was no foundation for the suspicion of suicide, as the young man was the possessor of considerable wealth, had no troubles, and had a bright future before him.

At the hospital the Superintendent said that a sister and the mother of Westbrook, living at Kingston, had been notified. "There is no mystery," said he, "whatever in the death. I believe it to have been purely accidental, as nothing was found to indicate the young man contemplated taking his own life. I do not understand that trional is considered to be a poison. It is used to some extent, I am told, as a soporific, and is not dangerous when administered moderately."

Special to The New York Times.

KINGSTON, N. Y., Jan. 4.—F. Arthur Westbrook was a son of the late Frederick L. Westbrook and a cousin of the late Supreme Court Justice Theodoric R. Westbrook. He completed his education in Paris. He served as District Attorney of Ulster County for three years, and was an important factor for several years in Democratic politics. He was engaged in some of the most important litigation in the Third Judicial Department, and as counsel of the Board of Supervisors was pressing the claim of Ulster County against the State under the act to refund to counties taxes paid by the towns for constructing railroads. This was a test case.

He was despondent in later years, imagining that every one was his enemy. For some time he was a chloral user, and once when under its influence attempted his life. He was fond of talking about committing suicide, and frequently threatened to do so. His father was for many years counsel for the New York Central Railroad and an important corporation lawyer. Mr. Westbrook was a Tammany man, and a member of the Democratic Club of New York.

NEWS OF THE RAILROADS.

STEEL RATES TO TIDEWATER.

Tariff from Pittsburg and from Buffalo to be About the Same.

Traffic Managers of the Eastern Trunk lines met yesterday at the rooms of the Trunk Line Association, in order to consider freight rates on steel from Pittsburg to tidewater. The committee which was appointed some time ago to consider this matter reported yesterday, and its report was accepted. The report is practically the same as the one previously submitted, and proposes a reduction which will make the rates from Pittsburg very much the same as those from Buffalo. The reductions proposed include a reduction of the differential rate which Philadelphia, Baltimore, and similar ports have enjoyed. The meeting yesterday did not conclude its work of rearranging the tariff, and adjourned until Jan. 15, when it is thought all matters still unsettled will be rounded out. The rates on which no agreement has as yet been reached are mainly those to New England points.

Brief Railroad Items.

The meeting of the Trunk Line Passenger Committee next Tuesday will consider the equalization of differentials between New York and Chicago and the abolishment of second-class fares to Chicago, St. Louis, and other Western points.

The next quarterly meeting of the Transcontinental Passenger Association is to take place at New Orleans on Jan. 15.

The Twentieth Century number of The Street Railway Journal, which is issued to-day, contains among a number of articles one of general interest on the new electric power plant of the Manhattan Railway Company in this city.

TRAMP SYMBOL ERASED.

Rev. Henry Bosch of Brooklyn Learns How He Was Imposed Upon.

"At last! At last!" exclaimed the Rev. Henry Bosch yesterday afternoon, as he stood on his front stoop, at Prospect and Sixth Avenues, Brooklyn. "No more tramps for me."

He held a sponge in his hand and washed off the top step a complicated mystic symbol. He had seen the thing there before, but, until some knowing one informed him yesterday morning, he did not know that it was the fraternal script of the "Order of the Sons of Rest, or Brotherhood of Hoboes." It was soon after acquiring this information that he took the sponge and began to scrub away the symbol.

It seems that Mr. Bosch's first tramp acquaintance came to see him several weeks ago. This individual told the reverend gentleman that it was a bad thing to go without food for three days at a time and that it was even worse for one's fifteen children to go without sustenance. Mr. Bosch was all sympathy. He gave his visitor so much food that all the tramps in all the lodging houses in the tramp quarter of Tillary Street are said to have had a bite. So, after that, the mystic symbol made its appearance on the minister's doorstep. Then more tramps came, and still more, until the benevolent giver of food found that to accommodate all his guests he must have an extra supply of provender prepared each day.

Finally, when he began to remark to his friends how hard the times seemed to be and how many more poor people there were in the world than he had hitherto thought, somebody did what the tramps would call "putting him next." In short, his eyes were opened. He conferred with the police. He declared that he would feed no more tramps.

So it happened that when a rusty-looking fellow appeared at the door yesterday morning and asked for something to eat, he was met, not by the minister, but by a detective whom Capt. Lawson of the Fifth Avenue Station had detailed to put a stop to the tramp nuisance in the Bosch household. This detective told the visitor that he was the private secretary. He and the tramp exchanged compliments. The visitor was taken into the study, where the "private secretary" played with him for a while. At last the visitor was taken to the police station, where he was told that the Sergeant was a benevolent man and would not let him go hungry.

Later, when the tramp was taken to the Butler Street Court, he was sent to jail for ten days for vagrancy. He said his name was John Ford and that he lived nowhere. Simultaneously with his departure for the jail the last trace of the mystic sign vanished. At the same time the tramps in the law places of Tillary Street sent up a wail of sorrow

THE TILDEN CLUB.

Organizers Have Assurances of Support, They Say, from Distinguished Democrats.

A meeting of the men who intend to organize the new Democratic Club will be held next week. It was announced yesterday that a change would be made in the articles of incorporation, and that instead of the organization being known as the Samuel J. Tilden Democratic Association it would simply be called the Tilden Club. Ex-Senator Jacob Cantor said yesterday:

"We will hold a reception some time in February, and expect to have present such prominent Democrats as ex-President Cleveland, David B. Hill, William C. Whitney, and Daniel Lamont. In fact, the club would not have been started unless we received assurances of support from these men."

Ex-Senator Cantor wanted the impression corrected that the club was organized for the sole purpose of fighting Tammany Hall. He said that in certain contingencies the club would support Tammany candidates. One of the leading men in the new club is Henry D. Hotchkiss, formerly a Sachem of Tammany Hall, who for many years was a personal friend of Richard Croker. It was stated yesterday that one of the objects of the club would be to allow the members free speech at all meetings. If any members wanted to denounce William J. Bryan or Richard Croker, they would be given plenty of opportunity to do so. A house will be leased in the neighborhood of Seventieth Street and Broadway and will be fitted up for club purposes.

TENANTS PROFIT BY DISPUTE.

Pay No Rent for Two Months While Owner and Mortgager Quarrel About Its Collection.

The luxury of free rent has been enjoyed for the past two months by thirty tenants of an apartment house situated in the Borough of the Bronx, all on account of the legal dispute as to who should collect the rent. This special boon was ended yesterday by a decision handed down by Justice Leventritt in the Supreme Court. Hereafter the tenants will have to pay rent to a receiver appointed by the Court or else undergo the inconvenience of being dispossessed.

The property over which this controversy has waged is the five-story apartment house, 710, 712, and 714 East One Hundred and Seventy-first Street. Daniel D. Cordes built the house and soon had it filled with tenants. Incidentally he executed a mortgage in favor of Joseph E. Gallagher. This mortgage had not been paid, neither had Mr. Cordes paid for all the interior fittings of the house, notably for the ranges, so he made an assignment of the rents to James and Joseph Benson for the benefit of the Syracuse Stove Company.

The Messrs. Benson were about to collect the rents, when, on Nov. 27, Mr. Gallagher, through the Supreme Court, had George B. Stoutenburgh appointed receiver for the rents. Mr. Cordes and those to whom he assigned the rents insisted that the receiver had no standing, as the assignment had been made before his appointment. The all-important janitor was really the umpire of this dispute, and he sided with the owner and the assignees, and refused to recognize the receiver. The janitor held the keys, the tenants recognized him as above even the courts, and were inclined to pay him the rent due, but after further consideration decided that the best policy would be to decline to pay money to either side, and this plan was followed, much to the inconvenience of all who were financially concerned.

The receiver, through his counsel, Stephen P. Sturges, brought an action before Justice Leventritt for contempt of court. The action was brought in the name of Mr. Gallagher, and was directed against Mr. Cordes, the assignees of the rent, and the janitor, Charles S. Simpkins appeared for the defendants.

Justice Leventritt in his decision held that the receiver was entitled to the keys of the apartments, and that he was the only person authorized to collect the rents, and that from now on the tenants would have to pay rent to him. The justice declined to punish the defendants for contempt of court. No provision was made for the receiver to collect the rents for November and December.

THE ORTHOPAEDIC HOSPITAL.

Bishop Potter and Col. Roosevelt Address the Annual Meeting.

The annual meeting of the New York Orthopaedic Hospital was held in the building of the institution, 126 East Fifty-ninth Street, yesterday afternoon, and was addressed by Bishop Potter and Vice-President-elect Theodore Roosevelt. Both spoke of the good accomplished by the hospital, and expressed the hope that a country sanitarium might soon be added to the present equipment.

Bishop Potter also made an indirect allusion to the recent exposures in connection with the Bellevue Hospital, by asking the trustees to give serious consideration to the relationship which ought to exist between them and the hospital as an institution like the hospital created for the patient, or the patient for the hospital? Was the object to be attained the providing of a course of training for the physicians or the treatment of the patients?

"The dangers of our modern life," continued the Bishop, "lie in the great number of our institutions. What is needed to prevent abuses in these is a stronger bond of human sympathy—the touch of love."

Ex-Governor Roosevelt spoke briefly. Nothing, he said, was more touching than the infinite pathos of a suffering child, and in its work of relieving infant infirmities the Orthopaedic Hospital deserved cordial support. Pity for human sufferings was easy to arouse, but unless action also followed it was but sentimental bric-a-brac, which was worthless.

The report of the surgeon, Dr. Russell A. Hibbs, which was read, showed that the total number of patients treated in the Dispensary during the year ending Sept. 30 1900, was 3,244. Nine hundred and seventy-five were suffering from tuberculous disease of the spine and joints, and the remaining 2,269 represented a large variety of deforming diseases, such as lateral curvatures of the spine, various forms of paralysis, rachitic deformities, bow legs, knock knee, club foot, etc.

END OF DR. EVANS'S WILL SUIT.

Surrogate Thomas Dismisses Objections to Filing of Dentist's Will.

What appears to be the end of the litigation over the will of Dr. Thomas W. Evans, the famous dentist, who died in Paris in 1897, came yesterday, when Surrogate Thomas dismissed the objections to the filing of the will in this county, which had been made by David Keane, a lawyer, who in the original contest had represented a number of persons who were fighting the will until agreement was entered into by which the contestants received considerable money from the estate. Mr. Keane objected to this settlement on the grounds that he had a lien on the claims of each one of his clients, and therefore he objected to any settlement unless he received the money due him on these liens.

Surrogate Thomas, in his opinion dismissing the claims of Mr. Keane, says that it has long been the practice of the Court to permit contestants to withdraw their objections to a will at any time, regardless of the protests of attorneys claiming liens for services. He also says that the lawyer's only remedy in the present case is a civil action to recover from his clients for services rendered.

The estate which was in controversy represented several millions of dollars. A number of relatives of Dr. Evans who received small bequests began the contest, which was eventually settled at Philadelphia. A copy of the will was filed here because considerable real estate of the testator was in this county.

BROISTEDT WILL STANDS.

Justice Marean Decides That Document Probated in 1874 Is Valid.

Justice Marean of the Brooklyn Supreme Court yesterday handed down a decision that ended, at least for the time being, the Broistedt will contest. William Broistedt died in 1874, leaving a large estate. From then until last Spring the income of the property was enjoyed by his widow, Caroline Broistedt, nobody opposing any objections.

When the widow died last March, Mrs. Caroline Quade, one of the testator's daughters, brought action to have the will declared null and void, because of an entail intended to benefit the testator's grandchildren. Justice Marean said that he saw no reason why the will should be set aside

RELIGIOUS NEWS AND VIEWS

The Rev. Dr. Cadman Accepts Central Congregational Call.

Pastor of the Metropolitan Temple Decides to Change His Church Relations.

The Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, pastor of the Metropolitan Temple, at Seventh Avenue and West Fourteenth Street, has accepted the pastorate of the Central Congregational Church, Hancock Street, near Franklin Avenue, Brooklyn. His predecessor in the place was the late Dr. A. J. F. Behrends. The congregation of the church invited Dr. Cadman to their pulpit three weeks ago.

There are only two Congregational churches in Greater New York that have larger incomes than the one of which Dr. Cadman takes charge. They are the Tompkins Avenue Church, in Brooklyn, and the Broadway Tabernacle. The former's yearly revenues amount to $51,000, the latter's to $48,000. The annual income of the Central Congregational Church is $42,000.

Since Dr. Cadman received the call of the Congregationalists it has been known that every effort would be made to keep him in the Methodist Church, and it has been said that he was promised a Bishopric in 1904. Now that he has decided to accept the Brooklyn pulpit, the Trustees of the Extension Society, which manages the Metropolitan Tabernacle, are thinking of a new pastor for that church. One of them said yesterday that he and his associates keenly regretted Dr. Cadman's departure, but that they had in their midst many who were familiar with the work of the Tabernacle and who would be able to provide for its successful continuance.

It is understood that Dr. Cadman will assume his new duties in April. His letter accepting the call has been mailed to the committee which issued the call. The letter will be read to the congregation tomorrow morning.

Another vacant pulpit, that of the Westminster Presbyterian Church, in West Twenty-third Street, will be filled shortly. The congregation will meet on next Wednesday to take action, and it is thought that a call will be sent to the Rev. Dr. John Lloyd Lee of East Liverpool, Ohio. Several others, however, are being considered for the position, which was left vacant by the resignation of the Rev. Dr. R. F. Sample. Dr. Sample is now representative and financial agent of Lincoln University. The Rev. Dr. Lee was born in Ohio, went to college in Scotland, and studied later in the Princeton Theological Seminary. He has written extensively on subjects connected with Presbyterianism.

Dedication services of the Evangelical Zion Church, at One Hundred and Fortieth Street and Seventh Avenue, will begin on Sunday morning at 10 o'clock. There will also be services in the afternoon and evening, and the ceremonies will be continued on Monday and Wednesday evenings. On Tuesday evening a concert for the organ fund will be given. The services will be conducted by the Rev. H. Noehrin, the pastor of the church, assisted by the Rev. W. Pismer of Brooklyn and the Rev. C. Mueller of Buffalo. The first story of the new church has just been completed, and will be used for the present. Later it is the intention to complete the edifice. The lot on which the church stands cost $11,250, and $1,750 has been spent on the building thus far.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON.

Notes of the International Series Selection for Jan. 13, 1901.

Copyright, 1900, by John R. Whitney.

SUBJECT.—The Triumphal Entry. (Matthew, xxi., 17.)

GOLDEN TEXT.—Blessed Is He That Cometh in the Name of the Lord. (Matthew, xxi., 9.)

"The triumphal entry" is a very unfortunate title to give to the entrance of Jesus of Nazareth into Jerusalem at this Passover time. For it was in no sense a triumph. It neither marked the overthrow of opposition, nor the inauguration of new and more successful methods. He had often come into the city before, but it was on foot, and either alone, or attended only by His chosen twelve. That He now came "sitting upon an ass," and attended by a multitude shouting "Hosanna, to the Son of David," was not because He had assumed any new position, or put forth new claims, or because the people had learned to understand Him better and appreciate Him more, but "all this was done that it might be fulfilled which was spoken by the prophet, saying, Behold, thy King cometh unto thee, meek and sitting upon an ass, and a colt the foal of an ass." (Matthew, xxi., 4-6; Zecharish, ix., 9.) This was the distinctive peculiarity of this entrance into the city. A more correct title for the event would therefore be the prophetic entry.

For it fulfilled prophecy, and it was prophecy. While the people ignorantly and unintentionally brought to pass by their cry, "Blessed is the King of Israel, that cometh in the name of the Lord," that which had been foretold more than 500 years before, they just as ignorantly and unintentionally proclaimed that which would eventually be acknowledged in all places, and in all time, that Jesus of Nazareth was in truth "King of Kings and Lord of Lords."

The first of all the events to occur in the momentous "six days" to which our attention was directed last week was this entry of Jesus into Jerusalem. The account of it is given to us by St. Matthew, (xxi., 1-17,) St. Mark, (xi., 1-11,) St. Luke, (xix., 29-38,) and St. John, (xii., 12-19.)

It is generally recognized that Jesus and His companions arrived at Bethany late in the afternoon of our Friday. With the evening of that day the Jewish "Sabbath" began, and its hallowed hours were probably spent by our Lord in the restful enjoyment of the hospitalities of His beloved friends. "On the next day," (John, xii., 12,) which would be our "Sunday," this entry into Jerusalem took place. The day is known as "Palm Sunday," because then the people "took branches of palm trees, and went forth to meet Him." (John, xii., 13.)

FULFILLING A PROPHESY.

Early that morning Jesus sent two of His Disciples into Bethphage, or some other neighboring village, with very special and peculiar instructions. He had never done anything like it at any previous visit. But then at no previous visit was there a prophecy to be fulfilled. Now there was. So Jesus directed them to go into this village, and although He had not been anywhere in the neighborhood for from three to four months, He told them "as soon as ye be entered into it" (Mark) "ye shall find an ass tied and her colt with her," (Matthew,) "whereon yet never man sat." (Luke.) These animals they were to deliberately loosen and bring to Him, but He instructed them, "If any man say unto you, Why do ye this?" (Mark,) "ye shall say—The Lord hath need of them and straightway he will send them." (Matthew.) So "they that were sent went their way." (Luke.)

They found everything exactly as He had said they would, and they did just as He had directed, with exactly the results He had promised. The colt was "tied by the door, in a place, where two ways met." (Mark.) "As they were loosing the colt the owners thereof said unto them, "Why loose ye the colt? And they said the Lord hath need of him." (Luke.) This was significant. No objection was made to the taking away of the animals, no payment demanded for their use, and no promise exacted for their return. It was enough for the owners to know that the Lord had need of them to freely and gladly let them go.

Now "all this was done," St. Matthew says, "that it might be fulfilled which was spoken by the prophet." (xxi., 4.) These unknown men, were in this unknown village, on this particular morning, resting from their labors, or waiting to find employment for their ass and her colt, that the Word of God, spoken more than 500 years before might be fulfilled. And Jesus not only knew this, but He sent His messengers on this morning to these particular men, for the express purpose of bringing every detail to pass.

It is a very striking illustration of the great difference between the way in which He fulfilled prophecy, and the way in which it was fulfilled by every one else. When Joseph fled from Herod into Egypt with the young child Jesus, he fulfilled prophecy. When Herod slew tha children of Bethlehem he did the same. When Joseph returned to Nazareth he did the same. So did John the Baptist when he began to preach in the wilderness of Judea. So did the owners of this ass and her colt. So did the chief priests and Pilate when they crucified Jesus. So did many others. But in every case they did it unconsciously. Not one of them had any intention of fulfilling it, and no knowledge that they had done so until after it had been done, and not always then.

With Jesus, however, it was exactly the reverse. He always knew of the prophecy. He knew just when it was to be fulfilled. He took every step necessary to bring about its fulfillment with a full consciousness of what He was doing, with a knowledge of what the results would be, and for the express purpose of securing those results. "No one can peruse the record of the Lord's life," says the Rev. George Smeaton, in "Our Lord's Doctrine of the Atonement," "without being peculiarly struck with the marked distinction in this respect between Him and His disciples. The latter remembered what they had done to Him at a subsequent time, and then saw an accomplishment of prophecy, (John xii., 16,) whereas the Lord Himself, with a wholly different view, consciously connected past prediction and present fulfillment at every step." (John xiii., 18, Mark xiv., 27.) All this speaks volumes for His person and His work.

UNCONSCIOUS AGENTS.

It is also interesting and instructive to notice in the case now before us that probably the owners of this "ass and her colt" never had the most remote idea that either they, or their dumb animals, would ever be called upon to become important factors in the carrying out of God's purposes. But they were. They thought that they were simply meeting the ordinary experiences of life and carrying out their own wills. So they were. But God ordered everything concerning them to work together so that His word should not fail. Without doubt He could have accomplished His purpose without taking the "ass and the colt" of these poor men, but then these poor men would not have had the privilege of being "workers together with Him." (Second Corinthian vi., 1.) He needed them, and He needed their property, that they themselves might be honored and blessed.

So it is with us all, and every day. God "needs" men, and all they have. The common things which we call "our own," "the ass and the colt," the chisel, the plow, the pen, the occupation we pursue when we are busy, the patient waiting to be hired when out of work, the need of rest when we are fatigued, are all needed to carry out His beneficient designs toward men. If these men had not been in their appointed places, at the appointed time, and been willing to give up their animals when they understood that "the Lord had need of them," they would have, unwittingly perhaps, but truly frustrated or hindered the plans of God, and they would themselves have lost a high position among His servants. But obedient to the duties belonging to their calling, and yielding promptly to the demand made upon them, although it came suddenly and unexpected, even they were instruments for the accomplishing of His will, honored links in the chain of events leading to the world's redemption. If we could enter into the full appreciation of this fact in connection with all that we are, and have, holding everything as of the Lord, to be used for Him, or yielded up to Him, as He may require, our lives would be filled with both peace and praise far more than they are.

But this "need" on the part of God for man, rises to a higher plane than that of the earthly things which He has put into our hands. It is a blessed spiritual significance, well expressed by the Rev. Horatius Bonar:

> Jesus, Thou needest me,
> Even me, Thou Light Divine;
> O Son of God, Thou needest me,
> Thou needest sins like mine.
>
> Thy strength, my weakness needs,
> Thy grace, my worthlessness;
> Thy greatness needs a worm like me
> To cherish and to bless.
>
> This evil, froward soul
> Needeth a love like Thine;
> A love like Thine, O Christ,
> Needeth a soul like mine.
>
> It was Thy need of me
> That brought Thee from above;
> It is my need of Thee, O Lord,
> That draws me to Thy love.

When the Disciples brought the "ass and the colt" to Jesus, they formed rude saddles for them out of their own garments, and seating Jesus upon the colt the journey from Bethany began. By some means not recorded, it was soon noised abroad that He who had raised Lazarus from the dead was approaching the Holy City. (John xii., 18.) At once an enthusiastic interest was awakened, and "much people that were come to the feast took branches of palm trees and went forth to meet Him." (John xii., 12.) The enthusiasm was very contagious, and rapidly spread. Every token of joy and homage was exhibited. They stripped off their outer garments and laid them in His path, and they "cut down branches" (Mark) "from" (Matthew) "off the trees and strewed them in the way," (Mark,) after the Oriental way of welcoming a King.

THE ENTRY TO JERUSALEM.

"And when He was come nigh, even now at the descent of the Mount of Olives, the whole multitude of the Disciples began to rejoice and praise God with a loud voice, for all the mighty works they had seen." (Luke xix., 37.) Then as "the multitude that went before," cried "Hosanna, to the son of David," they "that followed" answered back, "Blessed is He that cometh in the name of the Lord," and again, those in the front ranks replied, "Hosanna, in the highest." (Matthew.) So like the services in the Temple, probably, one part of the company responded antiphonally to the other in singing the grand anthem of praise, "Hosanna. Blessed is He that cometh in the name of the Lord. Blessed be the Kingdom of our father, David, that cometh in the name of the Lord. Hosanna in the highest." (Mark.) "Blessed be the King that cometh in the name of the Lord. Peace in Heaven and glory in the highest." (Luke.)

"And when He was come into Jerusalem, all the city moved, saying, Who is this? And the multitude said—This is Jesus, the prophet of Nazareth of Galilee." (Matthew.) Even the children in the Temple were affected by the general rejoicing, and they took up the cry—"Hosanna to the son of David." (Matthew.) But the Pharisees, and the chief priests, and scribes, "were sore displeased." Some of them said: "Master, rebuke Thy disciples," and others in the same tone, said of the children, "Hearest Thou what these say?" But He answered them: "Yea, have ye never read, Out of the mouths of babes and sucklings thou hast perfected praise?" (Matthew.) "I tell you that if these should hold their peace, the stones would immediately cry out." (Luke.)

So, to the Apostles, and to all the people, this was a day of great rejoicing. Jesus, however, was unaffected by all of their enthusiasm. He knew that all of this zeal was only temporary and worldly; that the "Hosanna" of to-day, would be "Crucify Him" to-morrow. He craved then, as He does always, the love and homage of human hearts, rather than the praises of human lips.

So, when the Holy City lay before Him in all the splendor of its sacred buildings, and with its teeming population, knowing all that should come upon it and upon them, He gave vent to His feelings in a flood of tears as bitter as those which Peter shed when he heard the cock crow, (Matthew, xxvi., 75)—for the same Greek word is used to describe both (Young)—and He said, "If thou hadst known, even thou, at least in this thy day, the things which belong unto thy peace! But now they are hid from thine eyes. For the days shall come upon thee that thine enemies shall cast a trench about thee, and compass thee round, and keep thee in on every side, and shall lay thee even with the ground, and thy children within thee, and they shall not leave in thee one stone upon another, because thou knewest not the time of thy visitation." (Luke xix., 42-44.)

So "The King" came into His holy Temple filled with compassion for His people who did not know Him, or in their hearts receive Him. He wept over them, but He could not save them because they were not willing to be saved.

QUESTIONS ON THE LESSON.

Why is the title "The Triumphal Entry," an unfortunate one for the incident of this lesson, and what could be more appropriate, and why?

When did this entry into Jerusalem take place, and why is it called "Palm Sunday"?

What unusual thing did Jesus do that morning, and what is said of it?

What is said of the difference between the way in which Jesus fulfilled prophecy and the way in which others fulfilled it?

What is said of God's need of men, and how is it illuatrated in this lesson?

In what higher sense does He need men, and how is it presented by the Rev. H. Bonar?

What did the disciples do with "the ass and the colt," and what awakened the enthusiasm of the people?

What was their song of praise, and how was it probably sung?

How was Jesus received in Jerusalem and in the Temple?

How was He affected by this reception, and what did He say of the city?

What is the conclusion?

Ice Company Must Pay Pier Rent.

A letter from President James Jackson of the Manhattan Ice Company declining to pay rent for the piers leased by the company last December caused much adverse criticism at the meeting of the Dock Board yesterday afternoon. The reason assigned by Mr. Jackson was that river ice is brought to the city at this season of the year by rail, navigation being closed. He suggested that the rent should begin in April. The board instructed Secretary Burke to notify Mr. Jackson that unless the back rentals were paid the permit would be revoked.

Religious Notices.

BAPTIST CHURCH OF THE EPIPHANY, Madison Av. and 64th St., Rev. Howard L. Jones, pastor.—Services 11 A. M. and 8 P. M. All welcome.

CALVARY CHURCH, WEST 57TH ST.—Dr. MacArthur preaches 11 and 8. Evening, "Christ and Confucius. First in course on "The Ethnic Masters," and the Divine Masters.

CENTRAL BAPTIST CHURCH, 42D, WEST of Broadway, Frank M. Goodchild, pastor.—11 A. M., "An Earnest Life." 7:45 P. M., "The Return Home," last sermon in course on "Prodigals of To-day." Baptism at night.

FIFTH AVENUE BAPTIST CHURCH, 6 WEST 46th St., Rev. W. S. Richardson, Assistant.—Services at 11 A. M. and 8 P. M. Preaching by Rev. John R. Brown of Kansas City, Mo. Prayer meetings Monday and Friday evenings at 8.

MADISON AV. BAPTIST CHURCH, cor. 31st St.—Rev. Henry M. Sanders, D. D., pastor, will preach at both services; morning, 11; evening, 8.

MEMORIAL BAPTIST, WASHINGTON Square.—Morning, Dr. Judson; evening, Mr. MacMurray; special evangelistic services during the week of prayer, Jan. 6-13. Preaching every night.

BROADWAY TABERNACLE CHURCH, Corner Broadway and 34th St.
Regular services at 11 A. M. and 8 P. M. The pastor, Rev. CHARLES E. JEFFERSON, D. D., will preach. At 5 P. M., Bible class, conducted by William H. Thomson, M. D. Prayer meeting Wednesday evening at 8.

MANHATTAN CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH, S. W. Corner Broadway and 83d St., Rev. H. A. Stimson, D. D., Pastor.—Morning service at 11; Sunday school at 12:15.

PILGRIM CHURCH, 125TH ST. AND MADISON Av.—Hours of service, 11 A. M. and 8 P. M.; communion at morning service; preaching by the pastor, Rev. Frank E. Ramsdell, in evening. All welcome.

Sunday Afternoon Praise Service.

4 o'clock—Broadway Tabernacle, Broadway, cor. 34th St. Address by Rev. George A. Gordon. Come and bring your friends.

ALL ANGELS' CHURCH, WEST END AV. and 81st St., Rev. S. De Lancey Townsend, Ph. D., Rector.—Services 8, 11, and 4.

ALL SOULS' CHURCH, MADISON AV. AND 66th St.—Rev. R. Heber Newton will preach at 11 A. M. Evensong 8 P. M., (seats free.) Rev. Walter E. Bentley will preach; subject, "How Many Days in a Year?" followed by a brief organ recital.

AT THE CHURCH OF THE DIVINE PATERNity, Central Park West and 76th St., Charles H. Eaton, D. D., Pastor.—Services, 11 A. M. and 8 P. M. Morning subject, "Religion for Business Men." Evening address by the Rev. C. F. Patterson. Subject, "Image Breakers."

CHURCH OF ST. MARY THE VIRGIN, EPIPHany.—Masses for communion 7:30, 8:15, 9; solemn mass and sermon, 10:45; solemn evensong, 4; solemn processions.

Church of the Ascension, Fifth Av. and 10th St. Rev. Percy S. Grant, Rector:
Morning service, 11 A. M.
Musical service, 4 P. M.
Anthem, "On High the Stars Are Shining"..... Rheinberger.
Offertory, "Evening Hymn"..... Reinecke
Evening service 8 P. M.
Sittings free at all services.

CHURCH OF THE HEAVENLY REST, Fifth Avenue, above 45th St.
8 A. M., Holy Communion. 11 A. M., morning prayer, Holy Communion, sermon by the rector. 4 P. M., evening prayer, sermon by Rev. John Williams.

CHURCH OF THE TRANSFIGURATION, 5 East 29th St.—Communion 7, 8, and 9 o'clock. Choral CELEBRATION 10:30; Choral EVENSONG, 4 o'clock. Rev. A. B. Conger delivers his FIRST CONFERENCE, 8 P. M.

ST. ANDREW'S, 5TH AV. AND 127TH ST.—Dr. Van De Water will preach appropriate New Year sermons at 11 A. M. and 7:45 P. M. Special musical service.

ST. BARTHOLOMEW'S CHURCH, MADISON Av. and 44th St. The Rev. David H. Greer, D. D., rector. Service in the morning at 11 o'clock. Afternoon service, 4 o'clock. The Right Rev. Sidney C. Partridge, D. D., will preach in the morning.

ST. JOHN'S CHAPEL, TRINITY PARISH, Varick St., Below Canal.—Sunday services, 7:30, 10:30 A. M., 7:30 P. M. Seats free.

ST. MATTHEW'S CHURCH, 84TH ST., NEAR Central Park West, Rev. ARTHUR H. JUDGE, Rector.—8 A. M., holy communion; 11 A. M., litany, holy communion, and sermon; 8 P. M., evening prayer and sermon.

ST STEPHEN'S CHURCH, 122-128 West 69th St. Rev. NATHAN A. SEAGLE, Rector.
Services 8, 11 A. M.; 4, 8 P. M.

ST. THOMAS'S CHURCH, 5TH AV. AND 53D St.—Holy communion at 8 o'clock; morning prayer, sermon, and holy communion at 11 o'clock; evening prayer and sermon, 4 o'clock; Rt. Rev. Thomas Underwood Dudley, D. D., LL. D., Bishop of Kentucky, will preach in the morning.

THE REV. CORNELIUS B. SMITH, D. D., rector emeritus of St. James's Church, will preach in the Church of the Holy Sepulchre, 74th Street, near Park Avenue, on Sunday morning, at 11 A. M.

EVANGELICAL LUTHERAN CHURCH OF the Advent, 2,307 Broadway, above 83d St. Rev. G. F. Krotel, D. D., pastor. Service, 11 A. M. Sunday school, 9:30 A. M.

EVANGELICAL LUTHERAN CHURCH OF St. James, Madison Av. and 73d St., Dr. J. B. Remensnyder, Pastor.—Morning service, 11; evening, 8. Series on "Heroes of Faith."

EVANGELICAL LUTHERAN CHURCH OF the Holy Trinity, 21st St., Near 6th Av., Rev. C. Armand Miller, Pastor.—Services, 11 A. M. and 8 P. M.

JANE STREET CHURCH, NEAR 8TH AV.—Rev. T. S. Bond, at 11 and 8. Union Revival meetings every night.

PERRY STREET CHURCH, NEAR GREENwich St.—Rev. Geo. E. Mayer, at 11 and 8. Union Revival meetings every night.

METROPOLITAN TEMPLE PARISH.

METROPOLITAN TEMPLE, 7TH AV. AND 14th St.—Dr. Cadman will preach at 11, 4, and 8. Union Revival Meetings every night. Illustrated lecture on "Quo Vadis" Tuesday night.

People's Church 81st St., near 3d Av. Rev. E. A. DENT, Pastor. Services, 11 and 8.

ST. ANDREW'S METHODIST EPISCOPAL Church, 76th St., west of Columbus Av.—Dr. J. O. Wilson, pastor, will preach at 11 A. M., and 8 P. M. Morning subject: "On the Eve of Battle." Evening subject: "Your Enemy and You." Special evangelistic services every night next week, except Saturday. Short talks by Dr. Wilson.

ST. JAMES'S METHODIST EPISCOPAL Church, Madison Av. and 126th St., Rev. E. S. Tipple, D. D., Pastor.—10:30 A. M., sermon by Dr. Tipple. 7:45 P. M., sermon by Rev. Egerton R. Young. Special music. Evangelistic services daily at 3:30 and 7:45 during coming week. Mr. Young will assist.

ST. PAUL'S METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH West End Av. and 86th St.
Rev. GEORGE P. ECKMAN, Ph.D., Pastor. Preaching, 11 A. M. and 8 P. M., by Pastor. Prayer service, Wednesday evening, 8 o'clock.

AT SCOTCH PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH, Central Park West, 96th St., Rev. Dr. Wylie, pastor; Rev. Mr. Gantz, Assistant.—Services 11, S. Sabbath school 2:45. Welcome.

BRICK CHURCH,
Fifth Avenue and 37th Street.
Rev. Maltbie D. Babcock, D. D., Pastor.
Services, Sunday, January 6th.
Dr. Babcock will preach at 11 A. M. and 4:30 P. M.
Sacrament of the Lord's Supper
at close of morning service.
Sunday school, 9:45 A. M.
Young Men's Bible Class, 10 A. M.
Weekly evening service Wednesday at 8 o'clock.

CENTRAL PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH, NO. 220 West 57th St., Near Broadway. Rev. Wilton Merle Smith, D. D., Pastor; Rev. Walter Lowrie, Assistant.—8 A. M., morning prayer; 11 A. M., morning service, Dr. Smith preaches; 4:30 P. M., afternoon service, Mr. Lowrie preaches; 8 P. M., evening service, preaching by Dr. Smith; Sunday school at 3 P. M.; Christian Endeavor Monday evening, 8; devotional meeting Wednesday evening at 8.

FIFTH AVENUE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH, 5th Av. and 55th St.—The pastor, Rev. George T. Purves, D. D., will conduct the services on Jan. 6th at 11 A. M. and 4 P. M. Afternoon topic, "Christ's Call to Busy Men." Services during the week of prayer at 5 P. M. on Monday, Tuesday, Thursday, and Friday; on Wednesday at 8 P. M. The public is cordially invited.

MADISON AVENUE PRESBYTERIAN Church, Corner 53d St.—Howard Agnew Johnson, D. D., pastor, preaches at 11 A. M., "At the Threshold of the Century"; 8 P. M., "The Prayer of Jabez." Union week of prayer services at 4 P. M. in this church. Prominent speakers.

MADISON SQUARE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH, Madison Av., corner of 24th St. Sabbath services at 11 A. M. and 8 P. M. The pastor, the Rev. C. H. Parkhurst, D. D., will preach. Bible school in chapel, 10 A. M.; classes for adults.

NORTH PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH, CORNER 9th Av. and 31st St.—Rev. Wilson D. Sexton, pastor-elect, preaches at 10:30 A. M. and 8 P. M. Morning subject, "Worship and Service." Evening, "Man Complete in God." Communion at 4 P. M. Christian Endeavor at 7 P. M. All are welcome.

RUTGERS PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH, Broadway, cor. 73d St.—Services at 11 A. M. and 8 P. M. Preaching by the Rev. Charles L. Thompson, D. D., Secretary Board Home Missions. Subject of evening sermon, "A Message from Porto Rico." Weekly service Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock, conducted by the Rev. A. F. Schauffler, D. D.

Religious Notices.

The "Old First" Church,
5th Avenue, 11th to 12th Street.
Howard Duffield, D. D.
11 A. M.—
4 P. M.—
WELCOME

FAST TROTTER RAN AWAY

Commodore Porter Creates Excitement on the Speedway.

ROADBED IN GOOD CONDITION

James Murphy Will Ship His Horses to Chicago for Brushing on the Snow Courses.

The roadbed of the Harlem River Speedway was in condition for speeding yesterday afternoon, for the first time since Sunday, and the consequence was an unusually large gathering of fast steppers, who furnished some lively sport in the stretch.

The most exciting incident of the afternoon was a runaway, which occurred while the driving was at its height and came near ending very seriously. The runaway was one of the best-known horses on the road, the trotter Commodore Porter, with a mark of 2:13. Hugh Reilly, the owner of the animal, was driving, and had just finished a lively go with a black trotter. As he turned to jog back the animal took fright and bolted. Mr. Reilly clung to the reins and tried vainly to control the animal, when a sudden lurch of the rig threw him out. At the same time one of the front wheels of the sixty-pound speeding wagon collapsed. This frightened the horse more than ever, and, swerving from side to side, he continued north at a furious pace. There was a general scattering of vehicles to get out of the maddened animal's way. About a hundred feet north of High Bridge two women driving in a surrey had a narrow escape from being run down by the runaway, and only escaped by turning short into a narrow path used by the Speedway employes. By this time the wagon was a complete wreck, and Mounted Policeman Bergmann was close behind the runaway. Several times the officer made a grab for the bit, but each time the frightened animal dodged him. Finally leaning as far out of his saddle as his balance would permit, Bergmann grabbed the spurs into his own horse and compelling the beast to overtake Porter caught him by the bit and, after a brief struggle brought him to a standstill. The horse was cut, but fortunately Mr. Reilly was unhurt, with the exception of a few scratches and bruises.

James Murphy of Chicago, the owner of one of the finest strings of road horses that have ever been seen on the Speedway, made his last appearance on the road for this Winter yesterday afternoon. He intends to start for Chicago to-day, and will ship his horses to-morrow. He says that all of them with the exception of two which he purchased in New York last Fall are good snow horses, and that there is fine sleighing in Chicago. Mr. Murphy scored one notable victory during the afternoon, and that was with Amy Wilkes, who defeated Vera G., 2:14¾, driven by Isaac Fleming. It was by far one of the prettiest and most hotly contested brushes of the afternoon. Both horses were turned to a fairly good start, Vera G. setting the pace. Amy Wilkes did not lose a foot, and made no attempt to close up the gap until within about 300 feet of the finish line, when she made a spurt that gained for her a lead of a head, which she held across the line, finishing in good form. Amy Wilkes was then turned with the famous roan mare Moth Miller, driven by her owner, David Randall, but this time she was not equal to the occasion, and, although she held the gelding for a quarter, lost by an open length.

Barney Kirkland, 2:23¾, driven by L. Fluecklinger, did some fast work, and gave Moth Miller a very pretty race, but was not able to hold to pace. But if Mr. Fluecklinger could not beat Moth Miller he had the satisfaction of beating Dr. Randall's gray pacer "Mr. B.," 2:10¾, by a head in a very fast half-mile brush. The pacer Grant, 2:17¼, fell a victim to the speed of Barney Kirkland, and Moth Miller distanced him completely.

Lady Dell, 2:28, driven by Robert Wigger, gave the team composed of Erin G. and Windsor, driven by P. Armour, an interesting brush, and lost only by a short margin, the team making a spurt near the finish that Lady Dell was unequal to, and which won for them the race.

About the only three-cornered brush of the afternoon was between Moth Miller, Barney Kirkland, and Amy Wilkes. The start was very poor, but before a quarter had been covered the three horses were almost on even terms. They came down the stretch at a furious pace under the whip. Moth Miller finally gained a lead of a head, and in trying to recover lost ground Amy Wilkes broke and spoiled her chances of winning. An exciting race for first between Barney Kirkland and Moth Miller, there being only a half length separating them. When almost upon the line Moth Miller made one of her famous spurts and won easily. Royalto, driven by Trainer Jack Curry, defeated Richmond, driven by M. Jarvis, and Royal Rene, 2:20, driven by W. Kilpatrick, led Maud L., 2:15½, driven by M. Wilbur, home in a hot brush. T. Maxfield's team, composed of Monpol, 2:09¼, and Amokin, Jr., 2:14½, were on the road, but did not start.

Among other fast steppers were Jonny Aguan, 2:05¼, driven by A. C. Bostwick; Tom and Lotus, driven by James Murphy; Bel Esprit, 2:12½, driven by Charles Reilly; David B., 2:09¾, driven by J. W. Cornish; Albert C., 2:24, driven by J. C. Harriman; Jim, driven by J. O. Hearn, and Frank and Belle, the pacing team, driven by Charles Wardell. Dr. David Randall arranged a friendly brush for to-morrow morning, matching Moth Miller, 2:07, against Red Lawn, a green pacer, owned by David Lamar. Although only half broken, Red Lawn when in good humor is one of the fastest animals on the Speedway.

CORRIGAN'S ENGLISH STABLE.

Twelve American Thoroughbreds in New York Waiting Shipment Abroad.

Twelve American-bred race horses are in New York quartered in a livery stable in West Thirty-sixth Street, awaiting shipment to England early next week, where they are to be raced by their owner, Edward Corrigan, who formerly was a conspicuous figure as a turfman and owner of Western race tracks. Corrigan, who raced with some success in England last season, has disposed of all his breeding and racing establishments in the United States and has even retired from any part in the management of Chicago race tracks, intending to devote himself entirely to the turf in England. Of the horses he will take abroad, however, a number are of his own breeding on his California ranch. Corrigan is remembered in New York chiefly for the litigation he engaged in over the disqualification of his colt Huron as a starter in the Futurity of 1891, when the Coney Island Jockey Club decided the colt was ineligible to run, and Corrigan got an order from court compelling the association to permit Huron to start. Huron ran second, but was overlooked in the placing of the horses. Corrigan carried on a fight for a share of the stakes, and the case was in court for years, ultimately being decided against Huron's owner. Corrigan has figured prominently in many other turf disputes, but in England he seems to have curbed his aggressive disposition and has made many friends abroad. He is enthusiastic about the opportunities English racing offers, and the successes he achieved last year.

The horses on the lot he now has in New York waiting to be sent to England include nine California-bred animals. The individuals are Corsine, five years; Sardine, four years; a bay colt by Artillery-Mabel, and nine two-year-olds, one by Bassetlaw, one by Golden Dawn, three by Indio, three Riley, and one by Watereress. Of the number Corsine is well known, he having won the California Derby in 1899, and later at Louisville won the Clark Stakes. The horses will supplement a stable already owned by Corrigan in England.

Opposition to Breeders' Association.

Special to The New York Times.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Jan. 4.—"The breeder who would attempt to place a mare back into the stud after she had been sold out of the breeding business by the American Breeders' Protective Association," said Vice President Milton Young, referring to the case of Silk Gown, the dam of Garry Herrmann, reported to have been found, "would be ostracized by the breeders of this country. It is true that should Silk Gown be located her produce could be entered into the stud book and raced despite anything the association could do, but no breeder would dare undertake such a thing."

The case of Silk Gown has brought to light the fact that there is much opposition among the breeders themselves as to the merits of the association, such noted breeders as J. B. Haggin, James R. Keene, August Belmont, J. D. Neet, J. N. Camden, John E. Madden, and others refusing to have anything to do with it. Mr. Haggin did join, but withdrew his name. Many others say that the opposition to the association is sufficiently strong to warrant the reinstallment of any worthy mare sold by the association into obscurity when found.

New Race Track for St. Louis.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Jan. 4.—The deal for the purchase of the new race track site on Delmar Boulevard, just beyond the city limits, has been closed by John G. Cella of Chicago and Joseph Adler of Fort Smith, Ark. The price is given as $100,000. The new jockey club to be organized by L. A. Cella, Sam Adler, and C. A. Tilles, and capitalized at $150,000, probably will open the new track about May 1.

Race Track Results.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Jan. 4.—Belle of Orleans, four years old, one of the most useful animals in John J. McCafferty's string, broke down in the third race to-day. The weather was fine, and the track very heavy. Uhlers and Ida Ledford, who shared honors with Ben Chance and Horseshoe Tobacco, were the winning favorites. Summaries: Mile and seven yards. Uhlers, 115, (McGinn,) 1; Orion, 118, 2; Indign, 113, 3. Time—2:00. Six furlongs. Menace, 96, (Cochran,) 1; Woodstick, 99, 2; Gray Dally, 105, 3. Time—1:22. Mile and an eighth. Monk Wayman, 112, (Dale,) 1; False Lead, 99, 2; Belle of Orleans, 105, 3. Time—2:09½. Handicap; one mile. Ida Ledford, 93, (Cochran,) 1; Ben Chance, 105, 2; Boomerack, 92½, 3. Time—1:53. Seven furlongs. George B. Cox, 105, (Wickfield,) 1; Henry of Franstamar, 95, 2; Bandy, 86½, 3. Time—1:38. Six and a half furlongs. Horseshoe Tobacco, 110, (Dale,) 1; Palarm, 100, 2; Handcuff, 105, 3. Time—1:29¼.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 4.—Favorites again fared badly at Oakland to-day, two of them getting the money. The Buffoon, a 20-to-1 shot, took the fourth event, and long-priced horses were successful on two other occasions. Lennep beat Bill Garrett by a nose in the mile and fifty yards event, and in the last imported Broadbrim won by the same margin from Cascade. Rain fell all day and the track was very sloppy. Results: Futurity course—Harry Thatcher, 101 pounds, (Mounce,) 1; Faul Play, 111, 2; Orpheus, 113, 3. Time—1:15¼. One mile and seventy yards—Alicia, 103, (O'Connor,) 1; Spike, 100, 2; Ulm, 105, 3. Time—1:49. Mile and fifty yards, purse—Lennep, 109, (O'Connor,) 1; Bill Garrett, 106, 2; Goafales, 109, 3. Time—1:45. Mile and seventy yards—The Buffoon, 101, (Phelan,) 1; Sam Howard, 104, 2; Charlotte M., 104, 3. Time—1:48½. Six furlongs—Gibraltar, 109, (Bullman,) 1; Mocorito, 98, 2; Prestidigitator, 90, 3. Time—1:14. Seven furlongs, purse—Imported Broadbrim, 113, (Jones,) 1; Casdale, 109, 2; Dunfree, 94, 3. Time—1:30.

PENN'S BASEBALL PROSPECTS.

Candidates Will Report for Practice on Jan. 14.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., Jan. 4.—Candidates for the University of Pennsylvania baseball team have been asked to report to Capt. Flavell at Franklin Field on Jan. 14, and a strong nine is expected. The team will take a longer Southern trip this season, going to North Carolina and taking two weeks to play its six games.

Arthur Irwin will again coach the men, and he is pleased with the outlook.

"Although the team will lose Sharpe, Huston, and Orbin," he said, "we have good men in Newman, Bennett, Ludes, and Marshall. The former was the star outfielder on the Brown University team two years ago, and is especially strong in batting. Bennett and Ludes of this year's football squad have never played college baseball, but have fair records as preparatory school players. Marshall should make a valuable addition to the pitching squad. We will be without the services of Theodore Brown this year, as he has not yet recovered from a severe illness, and will not be fit to play this season.

"All the Winter practice will be devoted to batting and throwing, principally the former, as I consider that the most essential point in the development of a good ball team. I hope to have the men outdoors about the 1st of March."

The schedule is now in the hands of the Faculty Committee for approval, and will be finally acted upon next week. The University of Chicago has been dropped, because they were so late in applying for games that Pennsylvania had no open dates left, except those upon the close of the college year, and the baseball management would not consent to so long a trip so late in the season. The Southern trip will be taken during the first two weeks in April, being a week longer than usual.

The Baseball Committee has decided to change the position of the diamond on Franklin Field from the east to the west end, using the west stand as a grand stand.

CRESCENTS DEFEAT QUAKERS.

Philadelphia Hockey Team Lost by the Score of 5 Goals to 1.

Philadelphia's crack hockey team, the Quaker City Hockey Club, captained by George Orton, the former champion distance runner of the University of Pennsylvania, were beaten in the Clermont Avenue Ice-Skating Rink, Brooklyn, last night by the Crescent Athletic Club team by the score of 5 to 1.

Dobby scored the first goal of the match for Brooklyn, unassisted. Shiebler scored the next goal, catching the rubber on the rebound from Wall's stick and tallying for Brooklyn amid wild cheers. Hard, fast play marked the rest of the half. Orton and Turney of the Quakers' line played the hardest game for their side, but despite three near goals, all of which were stopped in turn by Drakeley, Randall, and Goodwin, they were unable to score. The Crescents, having the lead, simply played on the defensive, and the first period of play ended with the tally standing: Crescent Athletic Club, 2 goals; Quaker City, 0.

The second half of the match was played very roughly, and the spectators hissed some of the Crescents' plays. There were no qualifications, however, Orton continued to be the star of the visiting seven, and Dobby, Wall, and Shiebler and Kennedy did the main work for the home team, Dobby especially being cheered for his hard skating and heavy checking. The Quakers were again unable to tally until the half was nearly up, while for the Brooklyn team three more goals were scored, Dobby tallying on a pass from Wall in after nearly eight minutes of hard play, then Orton shooting the Quakers' only goal of the match in ten minutes' play on a pass from Gorman. Line-up:

Crescent A. C., 5.	Position.	Quaker City H.C., 1.
Goodwin	Goal	Rhodes
Randall	Point	Robertson
Drakeley	Cover point	Gorman
Wall, (Capt.)	Forward	Devine
Dobby	Forward	Orton, (Capt.)
Kennedy	Forward	Varney
Shiebler	Forward	Rodgers

Referee—C. De Casanova, Hockey Club of New York. Umpires at goal cages—Mr. Russel, Hockey Club of New York, and Mr. Ellis, Hockey Club of New York. Timekeeper—J. Allan Smith, Clermont Hockey Club. Goals—Dobby, (3,) Shiebler, (1,) Kennedy, (1,) Orton, (1.)

Sail Plans of the Boston Boat.

BOSTON, Jan. 4.—The blue prints of the completed sail plan of the Boston cup defender have been given to Wilson & Silsbee by Designer Crowninshield.

Mr. Wilson says that the light sails already were under way, and that he expected that they would soon be finished. The material for the heavy sails are ordered, and work will be started on them as soon as possible, but it will not be rushed. There is plenty of time to turn out the sails, and no effort will be spared on them.

At the Atlantic Works a large force of men have been put at work on the new shed, and the promise that it would be finished within a week seems likely to be fulfilled. The workmen are now boarding it in.

F. W. Lawley and Mr. Daniels are still busy with the laying down of the boat. They have completed the work in straight lines, and are now at work on the frame. It is necessary that the results of this work be very accurate, and on this account the laying-down process seems slow.

Schoolboy Hockey Games.

Schoolboy hockey players of the New York Interscholastic Athletic Association have arranged their schedule of championship games for the season.

Dwight and Drisler Schools will be the competitors in the opening game, to take place at the St. Nicholas Rink on Feb. 1, at 12:30 P. M. The following day Berkeley is scheduled to measure strength with Columbia Institute. Feb. 8, in the evening, Cutler will meet the winner of the first game, and a week later Columbia Grammar will line up with the victor of the second contest. On Feb. 27 the final game for the championship will take place at the local rink between the two winners of the semi-final games.

Yale Hockey Team Beaten.

PITTSBURG, Penn., Jan. 4.—In the third game of the hockey series to-night, Yale was skated off her feet in the first half by the Keystones, the score standing 4 to 1. The better condition of the collegians helped them materially in the second half, enabling them to hold the locals down to one goal, scoring one themselves. Final score: Keystone, 7; Yale, 2.

WOMEN ON THE LINKS.

Mixed Foursome at the Lakewood Country Club—New Record by Wilson.

Special to The New York Times.

LAKEWOOD, N. J., Jan. 4.—Mrs. Charles R. Naething and N. Mallouf, the Syrian lad who is now a student in St. Paul's School, Garden City, won the first prizes to-day in the mixed foursome tournament at the Lakewood Country Club. They were practically the scratch competitors, for their handicap of four was the lowest of the field, and their gross record of 99 was far below the second best, 112, made by Miss Sophie Downer and Clarence H. Robbins. Miss Rene Coudert and Miss Clarisse Coudert were among the contestants.

Handsome prizes were presented by John M. Bowers, Clarence H. Robbins, and the club for first and second pairs. These trophies, however, possessed little drawing power, for only five couples took part, and the event, therefore, was almost as frosty as the day. The players and results were:

	Gross.	H'c'p.	Net.
Mrs. Charles R. Naething and N. Mallouf—
Out	6 5 5 7 6 6 6 6 5—52
In	6 4 6 5 5 6 5 4 6—47—	99	4 —95
Miss Sophie Downer and C. H. Robbins—
Out	7 3 6 7 7 6 6 7 6—55
In	6 7 8 6 6 5 6 6 6—57—112	6	—106
Miss Rene Coudert and W. H. Davis.		113	6 107
Mr. and Mrs. Frank D. Beard		121	12 109
Miss Clarisse Coudert and A. W. Black		128	8 120

R. B. Wilson, the club professional, established a new record for the links, which have been increased a few yards over last year. He played the course in 79 strokes, as follows:

R. B. Wilson—
Out	5 3 5 4 5 4 5 5 4—40
In	5 3 4 4 4 4 4 7 4—39—79

Golf Notes of Interest.

John Duncan Dunn, head professional of the clubs forming the Florida West Coast Golf Association, will leave for the South on Jan. 13, and he will not return to this city until the close of the season there, early in April.

Charles M. Chapin, a well-known member of the Morris County Golf Club and President of Somerset County Polo Club, has gone to Thomasville, Ga., for the Winter, where he will devote considerable attention to hunting and golf.

The Birmingham Golf Club of Alabama has just opened a nine-hole course, 2,500 yards in length, and its officers have extended a general invitation to all Northern golfers who pass through Birmingham to stop over and have a game on their links. A. S. Dayton is the club's professional.

James Norton, a brother of Willie Norton, the Lakewood professional, has been engaged for the Winter to take charge of the Nassau golf links in the Bahamas, one of the courses in the Florida East Coast series. James Norton was professional at the Hollywood links, near Long Branch, during this Summer. The Nassau course has been increased to nine holes, as last year it had only six.

To stimulate new golf material in the Nassau Country Club at Glen Cove, a cup has been offered by Elijah R. Kennedy for Class C players. The competitions will be played on each Saturday in January and February, and scoring will be on the point system, the first three in each event counting, and the member having the largest number at the close of the games will receive the cup.

The Oakland Golf Club, California, it is said, will hold an open professional tournament on March 1 and 2, and the San Francisco Club is planning one for both professionals and amateurs on March 5 and 6. The Chicago "profs." Smith and Bell, who are now in Southern California, will undoubtedly play in both events, and Horace Rawlins, one of our Eastern professionals, will also be in the lists, as he now has charge of the Oakland course.

The Palm Beach course, one of the Florida East Coast series, has swung into line with an eighteen-hole course, about 4,500 yards in length, short for eighteen holes, but undoubtedly sufficient to be called the finest eighteen-hole course in the South. The series of the East Coast tournaments will begin about the first part of March, starting at Nassau and working up the coast, terminating at St. Augustine with the usual championship.

The Southern California Golf Association intends to have the most successful year in its history, and several big tournaments have been arranged, which will keep golf very busy in that part of the world. Chief among them are: Jan. 25 and 26, inter-club team contest, at Pasadena; Feb. 21, 22, and 23, men's championship of Southern California, at Los Angeles; Feb. 1 and 2, women's championship of Southern California, at Los Angeles; March 8 and 9, open championship of Southern California; seventy-two-hole medal play, at Los Angeles; March 15 and 16, team tournament, at the Redlands Country Club. C. E. Orr of Pasadena holds the amateur championship of that locality at the present time. He, with C. E. Maud, the former holder, has just returned from a few months spent in Scotland, where they both did considerable golfing. Orr is a Scotch-bred player, having learned the game on the old St. Andrews links.

THE NEW YACHT'S BEAM.

This Detail Will Allow for Greater Sail Area Than the Columbia.

Special to The New York Times.

BRISTOL, R. I., Jan. 4.—From what was learned yesterday in connection with the cup defender under construction at Bristol, a fair idea can be obtained of the beam breadth of the new boat. It is from a knowledge of the sweep of bilge curve of one of the frames that is to be placed in the forward section of the boat that the inference is drawn. From its upper end, a tapeline drawn straight inboard so as to be plumb with the shank or butt of the frame when the latter is set up in place on the keel in vertical position, will measure 11 feet 11½ inches. This is not exactly a half breadth, as there is an intervening space at the butt of the frame the width of the lead keel, as nearly as can be estimated, 15 inches.

These matters go to show that the width obtained from measurements from the outboard end of this particular frame to a plumb line is almost half the beam at that point. Plus that amount is 23 feet 11 inches, and 15 inches added would give the total as 25 feet 2 inches at that point, which, it is said, is not the broadest by 2 inches.

From these figures, which cannot be verified officially at this time, the greatest breadth of beam of the boat will be 25 feet 4 inches. The greatest breadth of beam of Columbia is 24 feet 2¼ inches, which shows that she is not as wide as the Belmont syndicate racer by 1 foot 1½ inches.

This matter considered it is safe to assume that the concentration of the big bulb of lead so far forward in the lead keel of the new boat, with a wider beam than Columbia's, will give the craft much more power, and consequently a greater sail area than that of Columbia.

Money for Centreboard Yacht.

QUINCY, Mass., Jan. 4.—Charles E. Hanley, the head of the syndicate which is to build the ninety-foot centreboard yacht as a candidate for the America's Cup defense, when asked to-day concerning the report from Chicago that Roland C. Nickerson of East Brewster had given $25,000 toward the new yacht, denied positively that such was the fact. Mr. Hanley said that while he did not feel at liberty to disclose the identity of those associated with him as yet, he could state that Mr. Nickerson was not a contributor. Mr. Hanley said his plans were progressing favorably.

Notes for the Yachtsmen.

A course of lectures on navigation by Capt. Howard Patterson will be given at the Yachtsman's Club on Monday evenings, beginning Jan. 7.

The prizes and trophies won by the fleet of the Indian Harbor Yacht Club will be exhibited at the annual meeting of that club at the Yachtsman's Club on Jan. 8.

The South Shrewsbury Iceboat and Yacht Club has elected the following officers for the coming year: Commodore, B. P. Morris; Vice Commodore, C. P. Irwin; Secretary, A. W. Cubberly; Treasurer, J. J. Manoli; Measurer, E. E. Taber. Regatta Committee—J. Manoli, D. G. Edward, George A. Lippincott. Board of Trustees—W. A. Seaman, E. E. Taber, E. W. Price, J. J. Manoli, and A. W. Cubberly. The first race of this season for the challenge pennant will be sailed to-day.

The Lighthouse Board announces that on or about Jan. 10 a fixed white lantern light will be established on the southerly end of the breakwater at the westerly side of the mouth of the Patchogue River, northerly side of the easterly part of Great South Bay, Long Island. Its focal plane will be fifteen feet above mean high water, and the light will be shown from a white shelt on a black post with white top and black ladder.

Local Boxers to Go to Pittsburg.

The New West Side Athletic Club is arranging an entertainment for the purpose of raising funds to send one or more of its best boxers to Pittsburg to compete in the annual boxing and wrestling championships of the Amateur Athletic Union, which will be held at the Avenue Theatre, Pittsburg, on Jan. 17, 18, and 19. It is probable that the Pastime Athletic Club and Union Settlement Athletic Club also will be represented.

There is also considerable activity among the wrestlers. William Nelson of the St. George's Athletic Club will be a competitor in the 105-pound class, and C. C. Mitchell of the Knickerbocker Athletic Club will try for honors in the 158-pound class.

Entry blanks and full information may be obtained from T. H. Luddey, Jr., 507 Wood Street, Pittsburg, Penn., with whom the entries close Jan. 12.

ON LOCAL BOWLING ALLEYS.

Fidelias Lose Last Chance for First Place in National League Tournament.

By losing one game to Our Council, Royal Arcanum, last night, the Fidelias lost their last chance for first place in the National League tournament and will now finish second to the Orientals. Had they won all three games last night they would have tied the Orientals for first place, and would have had another opportunity to win first prize. The scores:

FIDELIA B. C.	1st.	2d.	3d.	OUR COUNCIL, R. A.	1st.	2d.	3d.
Koster	183	195	169	Bullwinkle	169	175	188
Timm	156	202	147	Schroeder	162	170	147
Rothermel	178	158	174	Cantrell	208	167	170
Amann	199	166	237	Wilkins	187	185	148
Forge	150	145	193	Dent	141	213	157
Total	866	866	920	Total	853	909	810

Suburban Council won three games from Fordham Council in the Royal Arcanum tournament of the Borough of the Bronx, on Pump's Northside Palace alleys, last night. The scores:

FORDHAM COUNCIL.	1st.	2d.	3d.	SUBURBAN COUNCIL.	1st.	2d.	3d.
McNulty	165	154	158	Denier	194	176	169
Beekman	157	188	112	Bartheim's	143	175	120
Loos	146	124	188	Volbracht	164	158	166
Stocker	114	179	180	Hecht	147	170	158
Van Hoff	150	156	203	Korndorfer	154	184	164
Total	722	751	739	Total	802	863	777

The Royal Arcanum team won two of three games with the Palace bowlers in the exhibition series on Thum & Ehlers's Palace Alleys, Brooklyn, last night. Excellent scores were made, all but one of the six totals passing the 900 mark. The score:

PALACE B. C.	1st.	2d.	3d.	ROYAL ARCANUM.	1st.	2d.	3d.
Ehlers	202	188	189	Arps	191	183	179
G. Moore	148	190	181	Whitbeck	173	198	166
W. Moore	159	212	180	Medicus	179	147	214
F. Beinert	191	200	202	Cordes	235	182	214
Jackson	178	170	184	Ebbits	158	197	191
Total	878	960	946	Total	936	912	964

All three teams broke even in the Columbia League tournament on Schlusing's Columbia alleys last night, each winning one game and losing one. The Empire City team was short a man until the second frame of the second game was reached. The scores:

FIRST GAME.—Yonkers Council, Royal Arcanum—Barnes, 154; Brewer, 140; Hunt, 167; Kellock, 172; Anderson, 160. Total, 793.

Empire City Bowling Club—Naugle, 147; Braisted, 215; Knuspel, 171; Gross, 157. Total, 690.

SECOND GAME.—Empire City Bowling Club—Naugle, 201; Braisted, 154; Knuebel, 171; Gross, 160; Partridge, 124. Total, 810.

Wang Bowling Club—M. Silberstein, 155; Pinover, 163; Strauss, 136; Cohen, 154; A. Silberstein, 183. Total, 791.

THIRD GAME.—Wang Bowling Club—M. Silberstein, 172; Pinover, 155; Strauss, 157; Cohen, 172; A. Silberstein, 210. Total, 866.

Yonkers Council, Royal Arcanum—Barnes, 143; Brewer, 154; Hunt, 157; Kellock, 167; Anderson, 152. Total, 773.

The Lotus Club bowlers outrolled the Audubon and Friendship teams, in the Harlem League tournament, on Thum & Kahlsdorf's Harlem Palace alleys, last night, and the Friendships beat the Audubons. The scores:

FIRST GAME.—Lotus Bowling Club—W. Gerdes, 202; Sieberg, 153; Brick, 155; Modersohn, 130; F. Gerdes, 188. Total, 837.

Friendship Bowling Club—Dewes, 169; Speck, 177; Brodbeck, 169; H. Ebling, 156; E. Ebling, 138. Total, 809.

SECOND GAME.—Audubon Bowling Club—Maher, 191; Farley, 165; Smith, 170; Brand, 140; McGuire, 146. Total, 812.

Lotus Bowling Club—W. Gerdes, 173; Sieberg, 177; Brick, 169; Modersohn, 145; F. Gerdes, 148. Total, 815.

THIRD GAME.—Friendship Bowling Club—Dewes, 146; Speck, 167; Brodbeck, 160; Higbie, 169; H. Ebling, 147. Total, 789.

Audubon Bowling Club—Maher, 188; Farley, 121; Smith, 144; Brand, 136; McGuire, 192. Total, 781.

The Spartan team defeated the Empire and Arlington fives, the latter by one pin, in the American National tournament, on Thum's Germania alleys last night, and the Arlingtons beat the Empires. The scores:

FIRST GAME.—Empire Bowling Club—Stoff, 155; Potts, 128; Nissen, 165; Schmidt, 182; Williamson, 192. Total, 822.

Spartan Bowling Club—Maier, 194; Keppler, 181; Westberg, 181; Schultz, 184; Lehrbach, 149. Total, 889.

SECOND GAME.—Arlington Bowling Club—Rempel, 168; Kelly, 177; Ebbitts, 213; Wolfmann, 170; Meyer, 190. Total, 919.

Empire Bowling Club—Stoff, 175; Potts, 157; Nissen, 123; Schmidt, 214; Williamson, 146. Total, 825.

THIRD GAME.—Spartan Bowling Club—Maier, 159; Keppler, 168; Westberg, 166; Schultz, 157; Lehrbach, 186. Total, 856.

Arlington Bowling Club—Rempel, 146; Kelly, 174; Ebbitts, 176; Wolfman, 162; Meyer, 178. Total, 835.

The Herald and Bulletin teams broke even in the Morning Newspaper League tournament on Thum's Germania alleys yesterday afternoon, each winning one game and losing one. The scores:

FIRST GAME.—Commercial Bulletin—Hughes, 183; Hill, 190; Halligan, 210; Sanders, 165; Valentine, 100; White, 186; Flanagan, 159; Melville, 166. Total, 1,177.

New York Herald—Nutahorn, 137; Anecht, 152; Carroll, 117; Long, 142; McCandless, 126; Gillespie, 133; Dewes, 143; Allen, 156. Total, 1,106.

SECOND GAME.—Commercial Bulletin—Hughes, 171; Hill, 118; Halligan, 161; Sanders, 117; Valentine, 141; White, 166; Flanagan, 193; Melville, 158. Total, 1,168.

New York Herald—Nutzhorn, 162; Anecht, 147; Carroll, 155; Long, 139; McCandless, 188; Gillespie, 170; Dewes, 168; Allen, 156. Total, 1,285.

LOCAL BOWLERS AT CHICAGO.

New York and Brooklyn Clubs Well Represented in Championships.

The entry list of the National championship bowling tournament, which begins at Chicago Tuesday and lasts until the following Saturday, shows that the New York and Brooklyn bowlers will be represented by eleven five-men teams, sixteen two-men teams, and twenty-nine individual competitors. The schedule for the local bowlers is as follows:

TUESDAY, JAN. 8.

Five-Men Teams.—Cyclone Bowling Club, Rosedale Bowling Club.

WEDNESDAY, JAN. 9.

Five-Men Teams.—Palace Bowling Club, Imperial Bowling Club, Corinthian Bowling Club, Elephant Bowling Club, Monarch Bowling Club, Fidelia Bowling Club, Empire Bowling and Metropolitan Bowling Club, and Prospect Bowling Club.

THURSDAY, JAN. 10.

Two-Men Teams.—Corinthian team, C. Sievers and A. Sievers; D. Koster and P. Baumeister, W. Cordes and E. Silver, T. Johannmeyer and F. Prior, H. Bellmer and H. Mesloh, G. Moore and W. Moore, Ehler and Bernard, E. Funcke and G. Selt, H. Timm and A. Mitchell, W. Rothermel and F. Schultz, O. Hammer and J. Smith, O. Foege and J. Koester, J. Lindley and J. Breen, J. Voorheis and C. Starr, D. Shiman and W. Linden.

FRIDAY, JAN. 11.

Individuals.—L. Voorheis, H. Bellmer, A. Sievers, W. Linden, J. Thum, C. Sievers, C. Johannmeyer, N. Thyne, G. Selt, F. Clinch, W. Rothermel, D. Hammer, F. Kessler, J. Voorheis, F. Bienert, G. Young, A. Seyd, O. Foege, H. Timm, E. Silver, H. Schaeffer, D. Koster, J. Breen, C. Starr, H. Mesloh, J. Koster, D. Shiman, J. Helles, and W. Cordes.

Knickerbocker A. C. Billiards.

John A. Hendrick won the Billiard match last night in the fourteen-inch, balk-line championship tournament at the Knickerbocker Athletic Club. He scored his 300 points in 53 innings, against 253 for Dr. L. L. Mial in the same number of innings. The victor made one excellent run of fifty, but with that exception the game was steady and uneventful. The scores were:

John A. Hendrick—3 0 2 0 1 0 4 0 4 4 4 12 2 0 4 7 16 50 18 3 1 0 0 1 2 8 1 0 6 1 2 10 6 9 4 0 7 2 0 0 4 0 19 5 3 0 0 16 15 3 3 9 16. Total, 300. Average, 5 66-83; highest single run, 50.

Dr. L. L. Mial—0 8 1 0 0 0 6 5 0 7 2 15 6 2 3 3 1 0 8 1 10 12 2 0 0 0 2 1 6 3 4 3 1 8 15 0 15 20 0 0 0 1 0 1 0 12 0 3 8 14 1 0 0 4 17. Total, 235. Average, 4 23 53; highest single run, 35.

The last game will be played this evening between Dr. A. B. Miller and John A. Hendrick.

Entries for Billiard Tournament.

The entries for the championship tournament of the National Association of Amateur Billiard Players, which begins at the Hanover Club, Brooklyn, Jan. 14, are as follows: J. Ferdinand Poggenburg, champion Liederkrans Club and intercity title holder; J. Byron Stark of Wilkesbarre, Penn., former Class B champion; Frank A. Keeney, former champion Crescent Athletic Club; Arthur Townsend, Hanover Club; Frank Gardner, Crescent Athletic Club champion; and Edward Gardner of the Aquaquanock Club, Paterson, N. J.

Sweetland to Coach Syracuse.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Jan. 4.—E. R. Sweetland was to-day engaged to coach the Syracuse University crew and football teams for 1901. C. H. MacCormick will coach the track men.

Most boys like clothes made on the same lines as their dad's.

Here's something for your boy—

A lot of Overcoats and Raglans that are built on the same plan as Pa's—of gray and Oxford rough faced materials—some that sold for $12 and some $15.

Choice now—$8.75.

Sizes 14 to 18.

A lot of boys' sack suits in Cheviots, Tweeds and Worsteds also at $8.75.

WM. VOGEL & SON,
Broadway, Houston St.

Sporting Goods.

SKATES. SKATES. SKATES.

AMERICAN CLUB SKATES

75c. to $5.00 per pair.
HOCKEY & RACING SKATES.
Skates hollow ground, 25c. per pair.
J. C. HOPKINS & CO., 119 Chambers St.

ANOTHER BASEBALL WAR.

National League Determined to Down Ban Johnson with American Association.

Special to The New York Times.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Jan. 4.—According to information which has reached here, the two side organizations of the National and American baseball leagues are off, and it will be war to the knife between the National League and "Ban" Johnson by a third organization, nearly equal in strength to the National League.

The news comes in a vague yet seemingly reliable way that at the recent meeting in Chicago of former American Association leaders, including Quinn, Richter, Al Spink, and others, and representatives of the National League, plans were mapped out for the rehabilitation of the American Association under the control of and backed by the National League. A meeting is to be held probably to-morrow, but just where cannot be learned, at which more definite arrangements are to be made. Certain it is that John J. McCloskey, who was to have had the Western League franchise in Louisville, has received word that instead a larger team is to be placed here.

The story is that the American Association is to be composed of the following cities: New York, Baltimore, Washington, Boston, Louisville, St. Louis, Milwaukee, and Indianapolis. Grounds and teams are arranged for in Washington, Boston, Louisville, St. Louis, and Minneapolis. The resolution of the National League to limit players to sixteen to each team will make available good reserve men to the number of ninety-six, besides which one entire strong team of the American League is to be brought over bodily.

Arthur Irwin, with the Charles River Park, is the Boston end. The Wagners have Washington, Harry D. Quinn will have Milwaukee, and "Al" Spink St. Louis. In Louisville the National League will turn over its lease of the grounds to some one hereafter to be named. The Indianapolis team is already selected, and the National League will place the other teams in the towns named.

According to the story there have been at least two traitors in the "Ban" Johnson camp. It only developed when Sommers in his recent visit to Irwin in Boston discovered that he had league backing, and that one of the best-drawing American League teams of last year had come over to the League side.

BASEBALL AT COLUMBIA.

The Season's Schedule Will Start with a Long Southern Trip.

The schedule for the Columbia University baseball team has been nearly completed by Manager John Marcus, and is the largest and most important ever undertaken by the University. The season will probably be opened by a Southern trip as far South as Georgia, where games with the University of Georgia and Emory College will be played. On the way home some of the larger colleges will be played. Games will be played in this city with all of the more important Eastern colleges except Harvard, who has been omitted from this year's schedule. Last year's trouble with New York University has been smoothed over, so a game will be held with that institution.

A feature of the season will be a championship series of three games with the University of Pennsylvania, two games being scheduled in Philadelphia and one in New

FINANCIAL.

Hanover National Bank
Capital $3,000,000. Surplus and profits, $5,000,000
9 and 11 Nassau St.

Colonial Trust Company
CAPITAL, SURPLUS, AND UNDIVIDED PROFITS, $1,800,000.00.
ST. PAUL B'LD'G 222 B'way.

Bankers' Cards.

Spencer Trask & Co.
BANKERS,
27 & 29 Pine Street, New York.

Transact a general banking business; act as Fiscal Agents for corporations, and negotiate security issues of railroads and other companies. Execute commission orders and deal in

INVESTMENT SECURITIES.

Members New York Stock Exchange.
Branch Office: 65 State St., Albany.

DOUGLAS & JONES,
Members New York Stock Exchange.
ESTABLISHED 1866.
24 Broad St., New York City.
STOCKS AND BONDS BOUGHT AND SOLD ON COMMISSION AT THE NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE AND CARRIED ON MARGIN.
Daily Market Letter on Application.
CORRESPONDENCE INVITED.

L. F. MEAD. T. H. CURTIS.
I. F. MEAD & CO.,
44 & 46 BROADWAY, N. Y.
Twenty-five years' membership in N. Y. Stock Exchange.
STOCKS AND BONDS
Bought and Sold for Cash or on Margin.

P. J. Goodhart & Co.,
Dealers in
Bank & Trust Co. Stocks
Members N. Y. Stock Exchange.
38 WALL STREET.

LEHMAN BROS.
NOS. 16-22 WILLIAM ST., NEW YORK.
Deal in investment securities, and execute orders on New York Stock Exchange.
Members of the Stock, Cotton, Coffee, and Produce Exchanges, New York.

FINANCIAL.

CITY TRUST CO
OF NEW YORK.
36 WALL STREET.
OFFICERS:
JAMES ROSS CURRAN, President.
JOHN D. CRIMMINS, Vice-President.
GEORGE R. SHELDON, 2d Vice-Pres't.
ARTHUR TERRY, Secretary.
WALTER W. LEE, Asst. Secretary.
STATEMENT DECEMBER 31ST, 1900.
RESOURCES.

U. S. Bonds	$300,437 50
N. Y. City Bonds	1,883,841 17
Other Bonds and Securities	529,337 71
Bonds and Mortgages	243,000 00
Bills Purchased	291,295 53
Loans on Collaterals	8,702,406 98
Cash in Vault and Banks	2,045,647 26
Overdrafts	459 15
Interest, etc., Receivable	66,325 84
	$14,063,301 14

LIABILITIES.

Capital	$1,000,000 00
Surplus	1,000,000 00
Undivided Profits	322,924 98
Deposits	11,632,453 85
Interest, etc., Payable	107,922 31
	$14,063,301 14

To the Stockholders
OF THE
AMERICAN STEEL AND WIRE CO.

PROXIES.

At the request of the holders of a large amount of the preferred and common stocks of this company, we solicit the co-operation and support of all stockholders who desire the election of an efficient Board of Directors at the next annual meeting to be held on the 19th day of February, 1901. We are prepared to receive proxies entitling us to vote stock at said meeting.

Blank forms of proxies can be obtained at our office.

WELLES, HERRICK & HICKS,
15 Wall St., New York.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT THE Trustees in Dissolution of the AMERICAN LIGHT AND FUEL COMPANY will sell at public auction, by Frank Stevens, Auctioneer, on Thursday, January 24th, 1901, at 12:30 P. M., in the Jersey City Board of Trade Room, No. 65 Montgomery Street, Jersey City, New Jersey:
200 shares Preferred Capital Stock of Sing Sing Gas Manufacturing Company.
100 shares Common Capital Stock of Sing Sing Gas Manufacturing Company.
1,281 shares Capital Stock Brockton Gaslight Company.
Terms and conditions of sale made known at time of sale, or may be had on application to the undersigned attorneys.
AMERICAN LIGHT AND FUEL COMPANY,
by SAMUEL B. LAWRENCE, President.
DAVIES, STONE & AUERBACH, Attorneys,
No. 32 Nassau Street, New York City.

WE LOAN MONEY TO PEOPLE IN ANY kind of business; also on salaries. 150 Nassau St. Office 729.

Copartnership Notices.

NEW YORK, DECEMBER 31ST, 1900.
I beg to announce that from this date I retire as active partner from the firm of ADOLPH BOISSEVAIN & CO., Amsterdam, but shall be interested in that firm as special partner. The firm of BLAKE, BOISSEVAIN & CO., London, will transfer its business to the London Agency of the Swiss Bankverein, of which institution I am one of the Directors.
The business of my New York office will be taken over by the new firm of BOISSEVAIN & CO., composed of Messrs. D. G. BOISSEVAIN and A. MURRAY YOUNG, General Partners, and J. L. PIERSON, of ADOLPH BOISSEVAIN & CO., Amsterdam, Special Partner.
A. A. H. BOISSEVAIN.

New York, December 31st, 1900.
We beg to announce that we have this day established the firm of BOISSEVAIN & CO., which takes over the business of A. A. H. BOISSEVAIN. The firm of BOISSEVAIN & CO. will continue to represent Messrs. ADOLPH BOISSEVAIN & CO., Amsterdam, and will be the correspondents of the Swiss Bankverein, London, which Bank takes over the business of Messrs. BLAKE, BOISSEVAIN & CO., London.
D. G. BOISSEVAIN,
A. MURRAY YOUNG,
General Partners.
J. L. PIERSON, Special Partner.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT THE partnership lately subsisting between CHARLES M. TILLMAN and ASA FELLERMAN, under the firm name of TILLMAN & FELLERMAN, conducted at No. 25 Walker Street, New York City, was dissolved on the 2d day of January, 1901, by mutual consent.
All debts owing to the said partnership are to be received by the said ASA FELLERMAN, and all demands on the said partnership are to be presented to him for payment.—Dated New York, January 3d, 1901.
CHARLES M. TILLMAN.
ASA FELLERMAN.

New York, January 4th, 1901.
WE BEG TO ANNOUNCE THAT THE UNdersigned have this day formed a co-partnership under the firm name of GUTMANN, LEVY & CO., for the purpose of carrying on the business of importing and Manufacturing LACE CURTAINS, etc., at 475 Broadway, New York.
ISAAC GUTMANN,
JOSEPH E. LEVY,
ALBERT ARNSTEIN.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT THE FIRM of SIMON & EPSTEIN has been dissolved Dec. 31st, 1900, by mutual consent, by the withdrawal of RUBEN SIMON. LOUIS EPSTEIN is authorized to collect all debts and is responsible for all obligations. LOUIS EPSTEIN.

OFFICE OF VERNAM & COMPANY,
36 New Street,
New York, January 2d, 1901.
We beg to announce that Mr. JOSEPH B. BOURNE has this day been admitted a partner in our firm. VERNAM & COMPANY.

FINANCIAL.

THE TRUST CO. OF AMERICA,
149 BROADWAY.
CAPITAL, $2,500,000. SURPLUS, $2,745,894.13.
Statement December 31st, 1900.

RESOURCES.

United States Bonds	$2,313 75
New York City Bonds	2,131,265 96
Railroad Bonds and Stocks at Cost	3,051,148 96
Bonds and Mortgages on Real Estate	182,500 00
Amount Loaned on Collaterals	11,175,034 83
Bills Purchased	210,337 18
Interest Accrued	107,048 21
Due from Trusts	10,720 91
Internal Revenue	941 68
Furniture and Fixtures	30,000 00
Cash on Hand and in Banks	956,072 59
		$17,857,384 07

LIABILITIES.

Capital Stock	$2,500,000 00
Surplus	2,500,000 00
Undivided Profits $333,394 13
Less Dividend No. 1	87,500 00
	245,894 13
Gen'l Deposits and Deposits in Trust	12,584,286 35
Rent Accrued	2,916 66
Interest Accrued on Deposits	24,286 93
		$17,857,384 07

Appointed by the State Bank Superintendent a Depository of Lawful Money Reserve for the Banks of the State of New York. Named as a Depository of the Moneys of the City of New York. Designated as a Depository of the Cotton, Coffee and Produce Exchanges of New York on contracts. INTEREST ALLOWED ON DEPOSITS.

OFFICERS:
ASHBEL P. FITCH, Pres. WM. BARBOUR, V. Pres.
WM. H. LEUPP, V. Pres. H. S. MANNING, V. Pres.
R. J. CHATRY, Sec. T. C. CLARKE, Jr., Asst. Sec.
A. L. BANISTER, Treas. W. HUNT HALL, Asst. Treas.
LAWRENCE O. MURRAY, Trust Officer.

DIRECTORS:
Ashbel P. Fitch, William Barbour, H. S. Manning, Samuel A. Maxwell, Myron T. Herrick, Charles F. Cutler, Emerson McMillin, James M. Donald, George Crocker, Edward C. Schaefer, S. C. T. Dodd, William E. Spier, Anson R. Flower, Henry S. Redmond, Jno. R. Hegeman, C. I. Hudson, Joel P. Freeman, Philip Lehman, Edward F. Cragin, George Blumethal, Frank Jay Gould, Willard Brown, William A. Clark.

LOUIS MESIER, Auctioneer.
REGULAR AUCTION SALE OF
STOCKS AND BONDS
By ADRIAN H. MULLER & SON,
WEDNESDAY, JAN. 9TH, 1901.
At 12:30 o'clock, at the New York Real Estate Salesroom, No. 111 Broadway.
BY ORDER OF EXECUTORS.
560 shs. Reading Co. 1st Prefd.
30 shs. Reading Co. 2d Prefd.
10 shs. Reading Co. common.
20 shs. Chicago Terminal Transfer Co. common.
25 shs. Chicago Terminal Transfer Co. Prefd.
25 shs. Distilling Co. of America common.
100 shs. Iowa Central R. R. Prefd.
$1,000 St. Nicholas Club 2d Mtge. Bds.
100 shs. Produce Exchange Trust Co.
172 shs. Menantic Steamship Co., (managed by Messrs. T. Hogan & Sons, No. 21 State Street, N. Y. City.)
50 shs. Manhansett Improvement Co.
10 shs. American District Telegraph Co.
300 shs. Ohio & Indiana Consld. Natural & Ill. Gas Co.
$5,000 United New Jersey R. R. & Canal Co. 4 p. c. Bds. 1941.
FOR ACCT. OF WHOM IT MAY CONCERN.
10 shs. William Haaker Co., (Hypd.)
1 share New York Life Ins. & Trust Co.
25 shs. Westchester Trust Co.
100 shs. Nashville & Chattanooga R'way Co.
50 shs. National City Bank.
20 shs. Natl. Bank of Commerce.
100 shs. Manhattan Trust Co.
25 shs. National City Bank.
$11,000 Indiana Natural & Ill. Gas Co. 1st 6 p. c. Bds.
$10,000 Ohio & Indiana Gas Co. 1st 6 p. c. Bds., 1926.
$7,000 Logansport & Wabash Valley Gas Co. 1st Mtge. 6 p. c. Bds., 1925.
117 shs. Ohio & Indiana Consld. Natural & Ill. Gas Co.
10 shs. Bank of Commerce.
20 shs. National City Bank.
50 shs. 4th National Bank.
25 shs. Importers & Traders' Natl. Bank.
$29,000 Florida Central & Peninsular Consld. Mtge. 5 p. c. Bds. 1943.
$23,000 Lou., Nashville, New Orleans & Mobile 2d Mtge. 6 p. c. Bds., 1930.
2 shs. Guaranty Trust Co.
3 shs. Atlantic Trust Co.
10 shs. Holland Trust Co.
5 shs. Continental Trust Co.
17 shs. National City Bank.
25 shs. Trust Co. of New York.

LOUIS MESIER, Auctioneer.
By ADRIAN H. MULLER & SON.
WEDNESDAY, JANY. 9TH, 1901.
At 12:30 O'CLOCK, at the New York Real Estate Salesroom, No. 111 Broadway.
FOR ACCOUNT OF THE REORGANIZATION COMMITTEE OF THE CINCINNATI, JACKSON & MACKINAW R'WAY CO.
41,000 shs. The Cincinnati Northern R. R. Co. Prefd.
26,100 shs. The Cincinnati Northern R. R. Co. common.
1,500 shs. Jackson & Cincinnati Ry. Co. common.
15,000 shs. Detroit, Toledo & Milwaukee R. R. Co.
$300,000 Jackson & Cincinnati Ry. Co. 1st Mtge. 5 p. c. Bds., March, 1890, Coups. on.
$1,500,000 Detroit, Toledo & Milwaukee R. R. Co. 1st Mtge. 5 p. c. 50-year Gold Bds.
THE SALE OF THE ABOVE SECURITIES WILL BE ADJOURNED TO WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 30TH, 1901, AT SAME TIME AND PLACE.

Denver and Southwestern Railway Company
General Mortgage 5 Per Cent. Bonds.
Notice is hereby given, pursuant to the terms of the trust deed dated December 1, 1899, that the undersigned, as Trustee, will receive sealed proposals up to Three P. M. of the 15th day of January, 1901, for the sale to it of bonds, as above described, sufficient to use the sum of $7,918.
CONTINENTAL TRUST COMPANY OF THE CITY OF NEW YORK, Trustee.
New York, January 4, 1901.

Meetings and Elections.

The Puritas Mineral Water Company.
Office of the Secretary,
New York, January 4, 1901.
The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Puritas Mineral Water Company, for the election of three Directors for the ensuing year, and two Inspectors of the next election, and for the transaction of any other business that may be brought before the meeting, will be held at the office of the Company, No. 400 West 57th Street, Borough of Manhattan, New York City, N. Y., on the second Monday, (being the 14th day) of January, 1901, at eight o'clock P. M. The poll will be open at 8:15 o'clock P. M., and remain open until all present shall have voted or shall have had an opportunity to vote.
ALBERT B. QUENCER, Secretary.

Columbia Bank,
Fifth Avenue and Forty-second Street.
New York, December 26th, 1900.
The annual meeting of the shareholders of this Bank for the election of Directors for the ensuing year, and for the election of three Inspectors of Election to serve for the following annual election, will be held at the Banking House on Tuesday, January 8th, 1901, between the hours of 12 M. and 1 P. M.
W. S. GRIFFITH, Cashier.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN THAT THE ANnual meeting of Stockholders of THE ELLIOTT & HATCH BOOK TYPEWRITER COMPANY will be held at the Company's office, 256 Broadway, New York City, Wednesday, January 16, 1901, at the o'clock P. M., for the election of five Directors, and for the transaction of such other business as may properly come before the meeting.
E. H. SCHLEY, Sec'y.

THE ANNUAL MEETING OF THE A. D. Farmer & Son Type Founding Company will be held at the office of the Company, 63-65 Beekman Street, in the City of New York, at eleven o'clock A. M., January 12th, 1901, for the election of Directors and the transaction of such other business as may come before it.
S. M. WEATHERLY, Secretary.

Pacific Bank,
New York, Dec. 12th, 1900.
The annual election of Directors of this bank will be held at the banking house, No. 470 Broadway, on Tuesday, January 8th, 1901, between the hours of 12 M. and 1 P. M.
S. C. MERWIN, Cashier.

The National Butchers and Drovers' Bank.
New York, December 7th, 1900.
The Annual Election for Directors of this Bank will be held at the Banking rooms, No. 683-685 Broadway, on Tuesday, January 8th, 1901, between the hours of 12 M. and 1 P. M.
WM. H. CHASE, Cashier.

FIFTH NATIONAL BANK.
New York, Jan'y 4, 1901.
The annual meeting for the election of Directors of this Bank for the ensuing year, will be held at the Banking House on Tuesday, January 8th, 1901. Poll open from 12 M. to 1 P. M.
A. THOMPSON, Cashier.

THE ANNUAL MEETING OF THE CORPORAtion of the Babies' Hospital of the City of New York will be held at 659 Lexington Av. on Tuesday, Jan. 8, 1901, at 4:30 P. M. All members (persons having subscribed $10 or more during preceding fiscal year) are invited to attend.
B. OGDEN CHISOLM, Sec.

The Plaza Bank,
New York, December 28th, 1900.
The annual election for Directors of the Plaza Bank will be held at the Banking House, 5th Avenue and 58th Street, on Tuesday, January 8th, 1901. Polls open from 12 M. to 1 o'clock P. M.
C. W. PARSON, Cashier.

Mechanics' and Traders' Bank.
New York, December 21, 1900.
The annual election of Directors of this Bank will be held at the banking house, 486 Broadway, on Tuesday, January 8th, 1901, between the hours of 12 M. and 1 o'clock P. M.
A. M. DEDERER, Cashier.

ANNUAL MEETING STOCKHOLDERS ROME Mining Company will be held at office of J. C. Thompson, 95 Liberty St., New York, TUESDAY, January 15, 1901, at 12 o'clock noon.
ALFRED H. BROWN,
For the Directors.

FINANCIAL.

Meetings and Elections.

New York Produce Exchange Bank.
Notice is hereby given that the annual meeting of the stockholders of said corporation will be held at the New York Produce Exchange Bank, in the Borough of Manhattan, city of the City of New York, on TUESDAY, the 8TH DAY OF JANUARY, 1901, at one o'clock P. M., to elect twelve Directors to serve as such during the ensuing year, also to act upon the proposition to amend the Articles of Association so as to authorize the opening and maintaining of one or more branch offices for the purposes permitted by Chapter 410 of the Laws of 1898, and of amending the several sections of the Articles of Association relative to the number and qualification of Directors, and to change the time of the annual election to correspond with existing laws. Also for such other business as may lawfully be brought before such meeting.
WM. A. SHERMAN, Cashier.

OFFICE OF
WM. A. MILES & CO.,
55, 57, and 59 Chrystie Street.
Established 1826.
New York, Dec. 28th, 1900.
To the Stockholders of Wm. A. Miles & Co.:
Take notice that the regular annual meeting of the stockholders of this company and the regular annual election of its Directors will be held at the office of the company, at 57 Chrystie St., on Monday, the 14th day of January, 1901, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon of that day, and that the transfer books will be closed, for the purpose of said election, at the close of business on the 31st day of December, 1900, and opened on the morning of Jan. 15th, 1901.
JAS. W. TAYLOR, President.

Fidelity Bank.
New York, December 24th, 1900.
The annual meeting of the shareholders of this Bank for the election of Directors and Inspectors of Election and the transaction of such other business as may properly come before said meeting, will be held at the Banking House, southwest corner of Madison avenue and 75th St., on Tuesday, January 8th, 1901. Polls will be open from 3 to 4 P. M. Transfer books will be closed from December 28th, 1900, to January 9th, 1901.
FREDERICK FOWLER, Cashier.

CONSOLIDATED GAS COMPANY OF NEW YORK, 4 Irving Place.—December 31st, 1900.—The Annual Meeting of the stockholders of this Company for the election of the Trustees to serve during the ensuing year will be held at this office Monday, Jan. 21st, 1901. Polls open from 12 M. to 1 P. M. Transfer books will close Saturday, January 5th, at 12 M., and reopen Tuesday, Jan. 22d, 1901.
O. F. ZOLLIKOFFER, Secretary.

GERMAN EXCHANGE BANK, N. Y.
New York, December 14th, 1900.
The annual election for Directors of this Bank will be held at the banking house, 330 Bowery, on Thursday, January 10th, 1901, between the hours of 12 o'clock M. and 2 o'clock P. M.
CHAS. L. ADRIAN, Cashier.

The Merchants' National Bank
OF THE CITY OF NEW YORK.
1370. December 6, 1900.
The annual election for Directors of this bank will be held at the banking room, No. 42 Wall Street, on Tuesday, January 8, 1901, from 12 M. to 1 o'clock P. M.
JOSEPH W. HARRIMAN, Cashier.

The Lawyers' Surety Company of New York,
No. 32 Liberty Street.
New York, December 28th, 1900.
The annual meeting of the stockholders of this Company will be held at this office on January 8th, 1901, at 12 M. for the election of Directors and the transaction of such business as may come before it.
JOEL RATHBONE, Secretary.

Garfield National Bank,
New York, December 27th, 1900.
The Annual Meeting of the Stockholders of this bank, for the election of Directors and such other business as may come before said meeting, will be held at the Banking House, 23d Street and Sixth Av., on Tuesday, January 8th, 1901, between the hours of eleven A. M. and twelve M.
R. W. POOR, Cashier.

The Peoples Bank of the City of New York,
December 20th, 1900.
ELECTION.—The annual election for Directors of this Bank and Inspectors of Election will be held at the banking house, Nos. 393 and 395 Canal St., on Tuesday, January 8th, 1901, between the hours of 12 M. and 1 P. M.
WILLIAM MILNE, Cashier.

Lincoln National Bank,
32-42 East Forty-second Street,
New York, December 24, 1900.
The annual meeting of the shareholders of this bank for the election of Directors for the ensuing year will be held at the banking house on Tuesday, January 8, 1901, between the hours of 12 M. and 1 P. M.
W. T. CORNELL, Cashier.

The Bank of America.
New York, December 24th, 1900.
The Annual Election of Directors and Inspectors of Election of this bank will be held at the banking house on Tuesday, January 8th, 1901. The polls will be opened at 1 o'clock P. M. and will close at 2 o'clock P. M.
The transfer books will be closed from January 5th to January 9th. W. M. BENNET, Cashier.

Cosmopolitan Range Company.
The annual Stockholders' Meeting will take place on SATURDAY, January 12th, 1901, at 8:00 P. M., at the office of the Company, Nos. 26 and 28 Sullivan St., where the President's and Treasurer's report will be heard; also the election of officers for the year 1901. Transfer book will be closed January 5th.
A. ZUCCA, Secretary.

The Western National Bank
OF THE CITY OF NEW YORK,
7th December, 1900.
The Annual Meeting of the stockholders of this Bank, for the election of Directors, will be held at the Banking House, No. 15 Nassau Street, on TUESDAY, January 8th, 1901. The Polls will be open from 12 M. to 1 P. M.
H. A. SMITH, Cashier.

The Bank of New York,
National Banking Association.
New York, December 7th, 1900.
The annual election for Directors of this bank will be held at the banking house, No. 48 Wall Street, on Tuesday, January 8th, 1901.
The polls will be open from 12 M. to 1 o'clock P. M.
CHAS. OLNEY, Cashier.

Office of the Eagle Fire Co.,
NEW YORK, December 29, 1900.
The Annual Election for Directors of this Company and for Inspectors will be held at the Company's office, No. 71 Wall Street, on TUESDAY, JANUARY 8, 1901, commencing at 12 o'clock M., and closing at 1 o'clock P. M.
THOS. J. GAINES, Secretary.

The Mechanics' National Bank
of the City of New York,
Dec. 8th, 1900.
The annual election for Directors of this Bank will be held at the banking house, No. 33 Wall St., on Tuesday, January 8th, 1901, between the hours of 12 M. and 1 P. M.
G. W. GARTH, Cashier.

Fourteenth Street Bank,
3 East 14th St.,
New York, Dec. 26, 1900.
The annual election for Directors of this bank will be held at the banking house on Tuesday, Jan 6, 1901, between the hours of 9:30 and 10:30 A. M.
IRVING C. GAYLORD, Cashier.

The Hanover National Bank
OF THE CITY OF NEW YORK.
New York, December 7th, 1900.
The annual election for Directors of this Bank will be held at the banking house, 9 and 11 Nassau Street, on Tuesday, January 8th, 1901, between the hours of 12 o'clock M. and 1 o'clock P. M.
WILLIAM LOGAN, Cashier.

The National Citizens' Bank of the City of New York.
New York City, Dec. 21st, 1900.
The annual election for Directors of this bank will be held at the banking house, No. 401 Broadway, on TUESDAY, Jan. 8th, 1901, between the hours of 12 M. and 1 P. M.
W. M. WOODS, Cashier.

THE ANNUAL MEETING OF THE STOCKholders of the Sebastian Wagon Company, for the election of Trustees for the ensuing year, will be held at the Company's office, 224 East 44th Street, on Monday, January 14, 1901, at 10 A. M.
CHAS. A. STADLER, President.

FINANCIAL.

Savings Banks.

EMIGRANT
INDUSTRIAL SAVINGS BANK,
51 Chambers St., New York.
New York, Dec. 19th, 1900.
DIVIDEND.—The Trustees of this Bank have ordered that interest be paid to Depositors entitled thereto for the six and three months ending December 31st, 1900, at the rate of Three and One-Half Per Cent. per annum on all deposits up to the limit of Three Thousand Dollars, ($3,000.)
Interest will be credited under date of January 1st, 1901, and will be payable on and after Monday, January 21st.
JAMES McMAHON, President.
DAVID LEDWITH, Comptroller.

Metropolitan Savings Bank
1 and 3 THIRD AV., (opp. Cooper Institute.)
Chartered 1852.
95TH DIVIDEND.
New York, Dec. 11, 1900.
INTEREST FOR THE HALF YEAR ENDING DECEMBER 31, 1900, at the rate of FOUR PER CENT. PER ANNUM
will be credited to depositors entitled thereto under the by-laws of the bank on sums from $5 to $3,000. INTEREST PAYABLE JANUARY 16TH, 1901.
MONEY DEPOSITED on or before January 10 will draw interest from January 1, 1901.
JONATHAN B. CURREY, President.
EDWARD SHERER, Secretary.

Siegel-Cooper & Co.,
Bankers,
6th Ave., 18th and 19th Sts.
Interest at the rate of 4 per cent. per annum credited to depositors on January 2, 1901, for the three and six months ending December 31, 1900.
Deposits made before the 10th day of any month draw interest for full month.
Banking hours 9 A. M. to 5:30 P. M.

EAST RIVER SAVINGS BANK,
NO. 3 CHAMBERS ST.
105th SEMI-ANNUAL DIVIDEND.
NEW YORK, Dec. 10, 1900.
A DIVIDEND at the rate of FOUR PER CENT. per annum has been declared for the six months ending Dec. 31 upon all accounts entitled thereto, from $5 to $3,000, payable after January 10, 1901.
DEPOSITS made on or before Jan. 7 will draw interest from Jan. 1.
WILLIAM H. SLOCUM, President.
CHARLES A. WHITNEY, Secretary.

SEAMEN'S BANK FOR SAVINGS.
74 and 76 Wall Street.
The Trustees have ordered that interest be paid to depositors entitled thereto under the by-laws, and in accordance with the savings bank laws, for the six months ending December 31, 1900, as follows:
On accounts not exceeding three thousand dollars at the rate of FOUR PER CENT. per annum.
On accounts larger than three thousand dollars and which exceeded said amount prior to the limitation of deposits by statute, at the rate of TWO AND A HALF PER CENT. per annum.
Payable on and after Monday, January 21, 1901.
WILLIAM C. STURGES, President.
DANIEL BARNES, Cashier.
New York, December, 22, 1900.

THE BANK FOR SAVINGS.
280 Fourth Avenue, New York.
Dec. 31st, 1900.
THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES HAVE DECLARED the usual interest under the provisions of the by-laws for the six months ending Dec. 31st, as follows:
At the rate of FOUR (4) PER CENT. per annum on all sums of $5 and upward not exceeding $3,000, payable on and after the third Monday, being the 21st day of January.
The interest is carried at once to the credit of depositors as principal on the 1st inst., where it stands exactly as deposit.
It will be entered on the passbooks at any time when required on and after the 21st inst.
MERRITT TRIMBLE, President.
ROBERT S. HOLT, Secretary.

THE NEW YORK SAVINGS BANK,
8TH AV., N. W. COR. 14TH ST.
The trustees have ordered that the interest to be credited to depositors Jan. 1, 1901, shall be at the rate of THREE AND ONE-HALF PER CENT. PER ANNUM on all sums from $5 to $3,000.
Deposits made on or before Jan. 10 will draw interest from Jan. 1.
PETER A. WELCH, President.
RUFUS H. WOOD, Treasurer.
WILLIAM FELSINGER, Secretary.

IRVING SAVINGS INSTITUTION
115 Chambers St., New York City.
The Trustees of this institution have declared interest on all sums remaining on deposit during the three and six months ending Dec. 31, 1900, at the rate of FOUR PER CENT. per annum on amounts from $1 to $3,000, payable on and after Monday, Jan 21, 1901. Deposits made on or before Jan. 10th will draw interest from Jan. 1st.
W. H. B. TOTTEN, President.
G. BYRON LATIMER, Secretary.

Union Dime Savings Institution
BROADWAY, 32D ST. & SIXTH AVENUE.
GREELEY SQUARE, NEW YORK.
Interest THREE AND ONE-HALF PER CENT. from $5 to $3,000. Credited January 1st, payable January 17th or any time later.
Money deposited on or before January 10th draws interest from the first.
CHARLES E. SPRAGUE, President.
GEORGE N. BIRDSALL, Treasurer.
FRANCIS M. LEAKE, Secretary.

Dividends.

UNITED STATES RUBBER COMPANY.
9-15 Murray St., New York, January 3, 1901.
The Board of Directors of the United States Rubber Company has this day declared a dividend of ONE PER CENT. on the Preferred Stock of this Company as the second quarterly dividend from the net earnings for the fiscal year beginning April 1st, 1900, to stockholders of record at 3 P. M., January 15th, 1901, payable January 31st, 1901.
The Preferred Stock Transfer Books will close at 3 P. M. January 15th, 1901, and reopen at 10 A. M. February 1st, 1901.
CHAS. R. FLINT, Treasurer.

Texas Central Railroad Co.
A dividend of five per cent. on the Preferred Stock of this Company for the year ending 31st December, 1900, has been declared payable at the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company on 15th January, 1901.
The transfer books for the preferred stock of this Company will be closed on 5th January, 1901, at 12 o'clock noon, and reopen on 16th January, 1901, at 10 o'clock A. M.
D. COMYN MORAN, Assistant Secretary.
New York, 28th December, 1900.

The Denver & Rio Grande R. R. Co.,
New York, December 6th, 1900.
The Board of Directors has this day declared a semi-annual dividend of TWO AND ONE-HALF (2½%) PER CENT. out of the net earnings on the Preferred Capital Stock, payable Jan. 15, 1901.
The transfer books of the preferred stock will close at 3 o'clock P. M. on January 2, and reopen on the morning of January 16, 1901.
GEORGE COPPELL,
Chairman of the Board.

Rubber Goods Manufacturing Co.
Third Common Dividend.
The Directors have this day declared dividend No. 3 of ONE PER CENT. on the Common shares out of the earnings, payable January 15th, 1901, to holders of record January 5th.
The transfer books will be closed on Saturday, January 5th, at 12 o'clock, and reopened January 15th.
Cheques will be mailed to registered addresses.
BARING, MAGOUN & CO.,
December 4th, 1900. Transfer Agents.

The American Stoker Company,
New York, December 10, 1900.
The Directors have this day declared quarterly dividend No. 11 of TWO PER CENT. on the preferred shares out of the earnings, payable January 15th, 1901, to holders of record December 31st inst. Transfer books will be closed on Monday, December 24th, at 12 o'clock, and reopened on Thursday, January 17th. Cheques will be mailed to registered addresses.
C. J. PEABODY, Treasurer.

Office of the United Gas Improvement Company.
N. W. Corner Broad and Arch Streets.
Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 12, 1900.
The Directors have this day declared a quarterly dividend of two (2) per cent., ($1.00 per share,) payable January 15th, 1901, to stockholders of record at the close of business December 29th. Checks will be mailed.
LEWIS LILLIE, Treasurer.

Montana Ore Purchasing Co.
The Trustees of the Montana Ore Purchasing Co. have declared the regular quarterly dividend of $1.00 PER SHARE and an extra dividend of $2.00 PER SHARE, payable at the New York office of the Company on January 21st, 1901. Books close January 10th.
ARTHUR P. HEINZE, Secretary.
New York, December 27th, 1900.

National Biscuit Company.
The regular quarterly dividend of ONE PER CENT. on the common stock has been declared payable January 15th, 1901. Transfer books will be closed from January 6th to January 15th, both inclusive.
J. A. LEWIS, Asst. Treasurer.

FINANCIAL.

Dividends.

John B. Stetson Company.
Philadelphia, Dec. 27, 1900.
The Board of Directors of the JOHN B. STETSON COMPANY have this day declared a semi-annual dividend of FOUR PER CENT. upon the Preferred Stock and an annual dividend of TWELVE PER CENT. upon the old Common Stock, and an extra dividend of THREE PER CENT. upon said old Common Stock; also a regular dividend of SIX PER CENT. upon the new issue of Common Stock, and an extra dividend of ONE AND ONE-HALF PER CENT. upon said new issue of Common Stock, all payable January 15, 1901, to stockholders of record January 9, 1901. Books will be closed from the close of business January 9 until January 15. Dividend checks will be mailed to stockholders.
J. HOWELL CUMMINGS, Secretary.

COMMONWEALTH (FIRE) INS. CO. OF NEW YORK.
68 William St., Jan. 3, 1901.
The Directors have declared the following DIVIDENDS: THREE PER CENT upon the Capital Stock, payable on demand on or after Jan. 7, 1901;
FIVE PER CENT. Interest upon the outstanding Scrip payable on demand on or after Feb. 19, 1901; and TEN PER CENT. in Scrip upon the Participating Policies expired in 1900. Certificates for which will be issued on demand on or after May 21, 1901.
The Transfer Books will remain closed until the 10th inst. CHAS. S. BARTOW, President.

OFFICE OF THE
American Smelting and Refining Co.,
71 Broadway, New York, Dec. 18th, 1900.
PREFERRED STOCK DIVIDEND NO. 6.
The Directors of the American Smelting and Refining Company have this day declared a dividend of ONE AND THREE-QUARTERS PER CENT. upon the Preferred Capital Stock of the Company, payable Jan. 8th, 1901, to stockholders of record, at 12 o'clock noon, Dec. 22d, 1900. The books for the transfer of the Preferred Capital Stock of the Company will close at 12 o'clock noon, Dec. 22d, 1900, and be opened Jan. 9th, 1901.
EDWARD BRUSH, Secretary.

The Lake Shore and Michigan Southern Railway Company.
Treasurer's Office, Grand Central Depot,
New York, December 20th, 1900.
The Board of Directors of this Company have declared a semi-annual dividend of THREE AND ONE-HALF PER CENT. on its Capital Stock, payable at this office on Monday, the 28th day of January next, to the stockholders of record at 3 o'clock P. M. on Monday, the 31st instant.
There will be no closing of the transfer books for the purposes of this dividend.
E. D. WORCESTER, Treasurer.

UNITED FRUIT COMPANY.
DIVIDEND NO. 6.
A quarterly dividend of two and one-half per cent. on the capital stock of this Company has been declared, payable January 15, 1901, at the office of the Treasurer, 60 State Street, Boston, Mass., to stockholders of record at the close of business, December 31, 1900.
CHARLES A. HUBBARD, Treasurer.

American Tin Plate Company.
A quarterly dividend of One and Three-Quarters (1¾) Per Cent. has been declared upon the Preferred Stock of this Company, payable on January 31st, 1901, to stockholders of record at close of business January 16th, 1901. The transfer books will be closed as to the Preferred Stock from January 17th to 31st, both days inclusive.
New York, January 4, 1901.
F. S. WHEELER, Treasurer.

American Steel Hoop Company.
A quarterly dividend of One and Three-Quarters (1¾) Per Cent. has been declared upon the Preferred Stock of this Company, payable on January 31st, 1901, to stockholders of record at close of business January 16th, 1901. The transfer books will be closed as to the Preferred Stock from January 17th to 31st, both days inclusive.
New York, January 4, 1901.
F. S. WHEELER, Treasurer.

NO. 1 BROADWAY.
Office of Pennsylvania Coal Company.
The Transfer Books of this Company will be closed on January 8, 1901, at 3 P. M., and opened January 16, 1901, at 10 A. M.
MORRIS B. MEAD, Secretary.

UNLISTED MARKETABLE SECURITIES
A SPECIALTY.
DAVID PFEIFFER, 18 WALL ST.

BROWN BROTHERS & CO.,
NO. 59 WALL ST.,
ISSUE INTERNATIONAL CHEQUES, COMMERCIAL and TRAVELERS' CREDITS AVAILABLE IN ALL PARTS OF THE WORLD.

ERIE TELEPHONE TRANSFERRED

Controlling Interest in the Company in New Hands—To Issue $7,500,000 in Notes.

BOSTON, Jan. 4.—A circular has been issued by the Erie Telephone and Telegraph Company, announcing that to meet a floating indebtedness of $6,000,000, coming due within the next eight months, and to provide for necessary improvements, it was proposed to issue $7,500,000 in one-year notes, bearing 5 per cent. interest. It was learned to-day that the note issue will be financed by the Old Colony Trust Company of this city, on behalf of a bankers' syndicate, and that in order to accomplish this it was necessary for the Telephone, Telegraph and Cable Company of America to part with a large part of its holdings of Erie stock, which aggregated $10,000,000.
The transfer of the controlling interest in the Erie Company is not denied by the officials, who say that while the Boston syndicate has obtained a managing interest, the change will not affect the Erie Company nor its subsidiary interests.
The Erie report for 1899 showed that the subsidiary companies earned $53,215.78 more than they paid out in dividends, while Erie showed an actual surplus over its dividend of $217,000.
The present difficulty is said to be due to the fact that last Summer the rate of dividend was increased from 4 to 5 per cent. Interested parties claim that, instead of paying an increased dividend, the company should have provided for the payment of its floating indebtedness.

TAXAT

Rate of discount in the open market, 4¼@4⅜ per cent. for short and 4⅜@4½ per cent. for three months' bills.

Foreign exchange was strong. Nominal rates were $4.82½ for sixty days and $4.87 for demand. Rates for actual business closed as follows: sixty days, $4.82⅛; demand, $4.86⅛@$4.86¼; cables, $4.87; commercial bills, $4.81@$4.82¼.

Continental exchange was quoted as follows: Francs, 5.18⅞ less 1-16@5.18⅝ and 5.15⅝ less 1-16; reichsmarks, 94⅛@94 1-16 and 95⅛@95 3-16, and guilders, 40⅜ and 40⅝.

Exchange on New York at domestic centres: Chicago—Par. Boston—Par@5c discount. New Orleans—Commercial, 50c discount; bank, par. San Francisco—Sight, 35c premium; telegraphic, 17½c premium. Charleston—Buying, par; selling, 1-10c premium. Savannah—Buying, 1-8c discount; selling, par. Cincinnati—Between banks, 14⅜@15c premium; over the counter, 50c premium.

THE LONDON MARKET.

LONDON, Jan. 4.—The supply of money for large quotations did not respond to-day to the firmness of discounts. The latter were somewbat unsettled. Operators are considering measures for maintaining or raising outside rates.

The gloomy feeling at the opening of the Stock Exchange corresponded with the overhanging fog out of doors. Consols were the lowest for the year. Home rails were weak, partly in sympathy and partly through fears of dearer money.

Americans opened dull, and afterward relapsed well below parity on pressure to sell, due to the nervousness of professionals regarding liabilities elsewhere. Those who had beared Americans hailed the decline with delight, though the largest operators, whether bulls or bears, expressed fears that if the panicky selling was persisted in a grave crisis might be caused. Later there was an all-around good recovery, especially after the receipt of the New York prices. New York's large buying produced an all-around better feeling, and the close was stronger. Kafirs were irregular and dull, the peace overtures at Pretoria having less influence than were expected. There were excited dealings in Americans on the curb. Milwaukees jumped 5 points above the Stock Exchange closing price, and Erie preferred went up 2 points above the closing price.

The course of the Stock Exchange to-day indicates the keen anxiety prevailing in financial circles. Nearly all the houses are drawing in their horns and preparing to meet the next settlement, Jan. 16. Fear exists as to the effect of the recent London and Globe crash being felt more severely on that date than even on last settling day. Possibly the precautions taken will discount the source of danger. In the meantime the public is giving the market a wide berth and is leaving the professionals to get out of their difficulties as best they can.

The Directors of the London and Globe Finance Corporation, Limited, met to-day and drew up a circular, to be sent to the shareholders, requesting proxies, and saying they are unable to announce the liabilities, "owing to the innumerable dealings and ramifications on the Stock Exchange," until the meeting of Jan. 9. Negotiations are going on to get funds to satisfy the claims or allow a gradual realization.

Consols for money, 97; consols for the account, 97 5-16; Atchison, 46¾; Canadian Pacific, 93; St. Paul, 140¾; Illinois Central, 131; Louisville, 87½; Union Pacific preferred, 83½; New York Central, 146⅛; Erie, 25¾; Pennsylvania, 75¾; Reading, 13⅝; Erie first preferred, 63⅝; Northern Pacific preferred, 88¼; Grand Trunk, 7¼; Anaconda, 6⅜; Rand Mines, 3⅞.

Bar silver quiet at 29-5-16d per ounce.

Honey, 3½ per cent. Rate of discount in the open market for short bills, 4¼@4⅜ per cent., and for three months' bills, 4⅜@4⅝ per cent.

Spanish 4s, 69¾.

The amount of bullion withdrawn from the Bank of England on balance to-day was £20,000. Gold premiums are quoted as follows: Buenos Ayres, 130.50; Madrid, 34.35; Lisbon, 38.50.

In Continental Centres.

PARIS, Jan. 4.—Business commenced hesitatingly on the Bourse to-day, but prices grew firmer on the favorable impression produced by the great demand for rentes, owing to the re-employment of 110,000,000f. by the strong banks. Internationals were firm, and Spanish 4s were in particular request. Rio Tintos started dull, but recovered sharply, closing firm. Kaffirs opened weak and advanced considerably. They were harder after the close of the Bourse.

Three per cent rentes, 102f 22½c for the account. Exchange on London, 25f 11c for checks.

Spanish 4s closed at 71.70.

BERLIN, Jan. 4.—Prices on the Boerse to-day were flat, in response to New York and Western Bourses, especially in the case of Americans and locals, while internationals were comparatively steady. Spanish 4s were harder, on Paris advices.

Exchange on London, 20 marks 45 pfenings for checks. Discount rates, short and three months' bills, 4 per cent.

MADRID, Jan. 4.—Spanish 4s closed to-day at 78. Gold was quoted at 34.65.

IMPORTS OF DRY GOODS.

The imports of dry goods at the Port of New York for the week were valued at $2,116,015, against $1,945,772 last week and $2,368,076 last year. The value of dry goods marketed was $2,290,508, against $1,989,223 last week and $3,583,902 last year.

NEW CORPORATIONS.

Canisteo Tabis Factory of Canisteo; capital, $11,000. Directors—P. R. Roblee, C. S. Langley, and E. E. Darrow, Canisteo.

Diamond Cut-Glass Company of Jamestown; capital, $50,000. Directors—George H. Ahrens, H. W. Odell, and R. C. Sheldon, Jamestown.

S. B. Welsh & Co. of Buffalo, to manufacture cigars and tobacco; capital, $5,000. Directors—S. B. Welsh, A. J. Best, and C. G. Best, Buffalo.

L. R. & C. J. Clark Company of Utica, to deal in coal and wood; capital, $15,000. Directors—C. J. Clark, William L. Clark, and A. C. Davis, Utica.

Bath and Cameron Telephone Company of Bath; capital, $400. Directors—Albert Crandall, A. J. Annabel, and A. C. Annabel, North Cameron.

Knights of Columbus Hall Association of Brooklyn; capital, $5,000. Directors—James T. Wafer, Michael H. Collins, and Thomas D. Scanlon, Brooklyn.

Eisenhut Brothers' Produce Company of Brooklyn, to deal in farm produce; capital, $10,000. Directors—Otto Eisenhut, Harry Eisenhut, and F. J. Harnisher, Brooklyn.

Norfolk Construction Company of Norfolk, to do a general contracting business; capital, $2,000. Directors—Charles R. Remington, Charles H. Remington, and George B. Kemp, Watertown.

Berkshire Box and Paper Company of New York City; capital, $350,000. Directors—George A. Maginn, Devil's Lake, N. D., and James C. Weston and Edmund W. Yard, New York City.

Havana Post Publishing Company of New York City, to carry on a newspaper publishing and printing business; capital, $30,000. Directors—George S. Bixby, W. C. Rodger, and A. C. Jopling, New York City.

The Brigham Casler Company of Buffalo, to manufacture lading and children's wearing apparel; capital, $25,000. Directors—F. B. Brigham, New York City; E. D. Bughee and C. E. Joyce, Springfield, Mass.

Seneca River Navigation Company of Baldwinsville, to operate freight and passenger boats on Seneca, Oneida, and Oswego Rivers, the Oswego and Erie Canals, and Onondaga and Oneida Lakes; capital, $10,000. Directors—W. Judson Smith, Syracuse; W. F. Marvin and C. H. Iverlaw, Baldwinsville.

Incorporated in Delaware.

WILMINGTON, Del., Jan. 4.—These charters were secured at Dover to-day:

The Telephone Company of America of Washington, D. C., to manufacture telephones and telephone supplies and to operate machine shops and foundries; capital, $5,000,000.

Quaker City Apartment House Company of Philadelphia, to build and manage apartment houses; capital, $750,000.

Von Wagner Company of Cleveland, to acquire real estate and engage in general merchandising; capital, $750,000.

Freight Boat on Fire at Her Dock.

Fire was discovered yesterday in the hold of the Holland-American freight steamship Inchmaree, lying at the foot of Seventh Street, Hoboken. Considerable excitement followed the alarm, owing to memories of the great steamship fire of June 30 last; but the blaze was extinguished by the steamship hands before the firemen arrived. The Inchmaree arrived from Calcutta on Thursday, being mainly laden with jute, and the fire was discovered when the hatches were taken off. How it originated could not be learned.

FINANCIAL ANNOUNCEMENTS.

Dividends, details of which will be found in another column, have been declared by the Commonwealth (Fire) Insurance Company of New York, the American Tin Plate Company, and the American Steel Hoop Company.

OUTSIDE SECURITIES.

Yesterday's transactions in the outside market were even smaller than those of the previous day., Prices, however, in many instances recovered sharply from the low figures of Thursday, the strength being due in large part to the phenomenal strength of the inside market. Many fractional net gains were recorded, and in not a few stocks advances of a point or more showed in the final figures. Yet the trading was so light that little interest appeared to be taken in the market.

***

DISTILLING OF AMERICA, which declined sharply at the close on Thursday, followed a directly opposite course in the last hour of yesterday's market. Not only did it recover the previous day's loss, but both issues advanced considerably higher, and closed at about the top. The common was rushed up to 7¼, and later sold at 7, closing at 7 bid, a net gain of 1½ points. The preferred stock sold as high as 31½, and closed at 31 bid, a net advance of 2 points. As the previous decline had been without special cause, so yesterday's gains seemed due to nothing more substantial than manipulative purchases.

***

AMERICAN BRIDGE was stronger, and a small net gain was made in the preferred stock, which closed at 95 bid. Trading in the stock was light, as indeed was the case in nearly the entire list yesterday.

***

CONSOLIDATED EQUIPMENT, which declined nearly a point on Thursday, recovered part of this loss. It closed at 13 bid, after having been fractionally above that price.

***

BUFFALO GAS bonds showed much strength, and made a large net gain. The offerings were light and the bid advanced without drawing out many bonds. They closed at 72½ bid, with none offered under 75.

***

RUBBER GOODS common sold ex-dividend of 1 per cent. The full amount of the dividend was recovered during the day's trading, and, after selling as high as 30, the stock closed at 29½ bid, a net gain of 1 point. The preferred stock was quoted higher, but was dull. On Thursday Rubber Goods were unfavorably affected by the break in United States Rubber, but the still further decline in the latter stock yesterday was without influence on the Rubber Goods stocks.

***

CAST IRON PIPE, preferred, was in good demand at the close, and advanced nearly three points to 32½ bid. The common stock was unchanged at 5 bid.

***

GENERAL CARRIAGE was offered down at the close to 4, and closed with a net loss of a quarter of a point at 3¾ bid. The other transportation stocks were neglected.

***

STANDARD OIL sold between 796 and 800, but the transactions were no heavier than usual.

***

Closing quotations yesterday, compared with those of Wednesday, were as follows:

Industrial and Miscellaneous.

	Jan. 4. Bid.	Asked.	Jan. 3. Bid.	Asked.
Am. Agricultural Chem..	27½	28½	27½	28½
Am. Agricult. Chem. pf.	79	80	79	80
American Banknote.....	50	53	50	53
American Bicycle	5¼	6¼	5¼	6¼
American Bicycle pf....	26	27¼	25¾	27
American Bicycle bonds.	73	75	73	75
American Bridge	45	45¼	45	45⅝
American Bridge pf.....	95	95½	94¾	95¼
American Chicle	83	88	83	88
American Chicle pf.....	76	81	76	81
Am. Hide & Leather.....	10	11	10	10½
Am. Hide & Leather pf.	35½	39	36	40
Am. Hide & Leather 6s.	90	90½	90¼	90½
*American Thread pf....	4	5	4	5
Am. Typefounders.....	57	62	57	62
Anthracite Coal	8½	9	8⅝	8⅞
Arlington Copper.....	4	5	4	5
*British Columbia Copper	22¼	22½	22¼	22½
British Exch. 3s.....	98½	99	98½	99
California Copper	1½	1¾	1½	1¾
Cast-Iron Pipe	6	8	5	5½
Cast-Iron Pipe pf.....	32½	34	30	31
Central & So. Am. Tel..	102	104	102	104
Central Fireworks.....	22	25	22	25
Central Fireworks pf....	70	75	70	75
Compressed Air	40	45	40	45
Con. Ice, R. & E.....	13¼	13¾	12⅝	12⅞
Con. Rubber Tire	2½	4	2½	4
Con. Rubber Tire pf....	28	32	28	32
Continental Tobacco deb.	104	106	104	106
Crucible Steel	20	21	20¼	21¼
Crucible Steel pf.....	79½	81	79½	81
Cramps' Shipyard	82	84	82	84
Dist. Co. of Am. tr. rcts.	7	7⅛	5½	6
Dist. Co. of Am. pt. tr. rcts	31	32	29	29¼
Electric Boat	29	29½	29	29½
Electric Boat pf.....	49	50	50	51
Electric Vehicle	18	17	18	18
Electric Vehicle pf.....	40	44	40	45
Electric-Pneumatic	2⅞	3	2⅞	3
Flemington Coal & Coke.	21	23	21	23
General Carriage	3¾	4	4	4¼
General Chemical	61	65	62	65
General Chemical pf....	97	98½	97	98½
German Treasury 4s.....	100¼	100⅞	100¼	100⅜
Havana Commercial	10	12	10	12
Havana Commercial pf..	43	44½	43	44½
Hudson River Tel.....	117	119	117	119
Illinois Transportation..	¾	1	¾	1
International Silver pf..	45	50	45	50
Inter-State Oil	10	15	10	15
Iron Steamboat	2	3	2	3
Iron Steamboat bonds...	55	65	55	65
Joseph Ladue Mining pf.	½	1	½	1
Lorillard pf.....	100	105	100	105
Markeen Copper	1½	3	1	3
Mex. Nat. Construct. pf.	13½	14	13½	14
Nat. Enamel & Stamp...	17	20	17	20
Nat. Enam. & Stamp. pf.	80	84	80	84
National Gramophone ..	5	12	5	12
Nat. Sugar pf.....	100	102	100	102
New England Transport.	3¼	3⅝	3½	3⅝
N. Y. Transportation ...	6	7	6¼	7
Otis Elevator	29	30	29	30
Otis Elevator pf.....	90	91⅝	90½	92
Peo. Dec. Evans.....	1	1½	1	1½
Pitts., Bess. & L. Erie..	28½	29½	28½	29½
Retsof	32	32	..	..
Retsof bonds.....	78	85	78	85
Royal Baking Powder pf.	94	95	94	95
Royal Copper	11	12	11	12
Rub. Goods Mfg.	29½	30½	29½	30½
Rubber Goods Mfg. pf...	79	80½	78½	80
Saftey Car Heat. & Light.	115	118	113	116
St. Louis Transit.....	19	19½	18½	19½
Seaboard Air Line 4s....	71	73	71	73
Seaboard Air Line.....	10	11	10	11
Seaboard Air Line pf...	27	28	27	28¼
Sheet Steel pf.....	76½	77	77¼	77¾
Singer Mfg	250	275	250	275
Southern Light & Trac..	32	35	32	35
Standard Coupler	33	38	31	38
Standard Coupler pf.....	120	125½	120	125½
Standard Oil of N. J....	795	801	800	810
Storage Power	10	12½	10	12½
Tennessee Copper	16½	17½	16½	17½
Tel. Tel. & Co. of A., $15 paid	6¼	7½	6¼	7½
Trenton Potteries	5	8	5	8
Trenton Pot. pf.....	55	60	55	60
Union Copper	4¾	5	4¾	5¼
Union Typewriter	37	38	37	38
Union Typewriter pf....	112	114	112	114
Union Typewriter 1st pf.	112	114	112	114
Union Typewriter 2d pf.	112	114	112	114
United Rys. of St. L. 4s.	86	86½	86	86½
United Rys. of St. L. pf.	67½	68¾	68	69
Va. Coal, I. & C.....	5	7	5	7
Va. Coal, I. & C. bonds.	37	38	38	40
Westinghouse Air Brake.	370	380	370	380
Worthington Pump pf....	111	114	111	114

*Selling dollars per share. Par value $5.
†Selling dollars per share. Par value $10.

Street Railways.

Broadway & 7th Av.....	230	235	230	236
Broadway & 7th Av. pf..	102½	102½	102½	102½
Broadway & 7th Av. 2d..	110	114	110	113
Broadway Surface 1st 5s.	115	116	115	110
Broadway Surface 2d....	102½	103½	102½	103½
Brooklyn City R. R.....	232	234	231	233
Brooklyn B. & W. E. 5s.	101½	102	101½	103
Cent. Park, N. & E.....	200	202	199½	201
Cent. Park, N. & E.R. 7s.	104½	105½	104	105½
Columbus Railway.....	34	37	32½	35
Columbus Railway pf....	90	92	89	92
Con. Traction of N. J....	58	60	58	60
Con. Traction 5s.....	109	109	108	109
Eighth Avenue Railroad.	390	400	390	400
42d St., M. & St. N. Av.	1st.	113½	115	114½	115
42d St., M. & St. N. A.	2d.	99	100	99	100
Grand Rapids St. Ry....	27½	30	27	30
Grand Rapids St. Ry. pf.	80	78	80	78
Jersey City, Hob. & P..	20	21¼	20	21¼
Jersey C., H. & P. 4s..	82½	83	82½	83
Nassau Electric 4s.....	89½	89	87	90
New Orleans Traction...	22	..	22	..
New Orleans Traction pf.	94	98	94	98
9th Av. R. R.....	198	205	198	205
North Beach St. R.R. 4s.	83½	84½	83½	84½
North Jersey St. R. R..	24	25	24	25
Orange & Pas. V. bonds.	93	95	93	95
Second Av. R. R. consols.	118	119	118	119
Sixth Av. R. R.....	200	210	200	210
Steinway Ry. Co. 1st 6s..	116½	118	116½	118
Syracuse Rapid Transit..	15	20	13	20
Syracuse Rap. Transit pf.	37	43	39	43
28th & 29th St. 5s, 1906.	113¾	114½	113¾	114½
Union Ry. 1st 5s.....	111	113½	111	113½
United Trac., Providence.	109	111	109	111
United Traction bonds...	113½	115	113½	116
Worcester (Mass.) Trac..	33½	35½	33½	35½
Wor. (Mass.) Trac. pf...	107	108	107	108

Gas Companies.

Bay State Gas	1¼	1⅝	1¼	1⅝
Buffalo (N. Y.) Stock...	7	9	8	9
Buffalo, N. Y. 1st 5s....	72½	75	65	70
Central Union 5s, gtd..	108½	109½	108½	109½
Columbus Gas 5s.....	106	107	106	107
Con. Gas of Newark.....	..	..	55	..
Con. Gas of New'k bds..	104	106	104	106
Con. Gas of New Jersey..	10	15	10	15
Con. Gas bonds of N. J.	80	85	..	80
Con's'rs Gas (J. C.) bds.	105¼	106	105¼	106
Denver Gas	18½	20	18½	20
Denver Gas 5s.....	61	63	61	63
Essex & Hudson Gas....	35	40	35	40
Indianapolis Gas	50	60	50	60
Indianapolis Gas bds. 6s.	89	91	89	91
Mutual Gas of N. Y.....	295	299	295	299
Madison (Wis.) stock....	70	75	70	75
New Amsterdam Gas.....	106¾	110	109¾	109¾
N. Y. Gas & Coke.....	14	15	14	15
N. E. Gas & Coke 5s....	70	71	70¾	72
N. Y. & E. R. Gas Co. 1st.	112¼	114	111	114
N. Y. & E. R. Gas Co.con.	106	109	106	109
Northern Union 5s.....	105¼	106	105¼	106
Nor. Hud. L., H. & P. Co.	55	56	55	56
Nor. H.L.,H. & P.Co. bds.	107	109	107	109

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE.

Complete Transactions in Stocks—Friday, Jan. 4, 1901.

Closing. Bid.	Asked.	Sales.		First.	High.	Low.	Last.	Net Change.
91⅞	92	15,425	Amalgamated Copper.	90½	92½	90⅝	91⅞	+ ⅝
28	23¼	2,550	Am. Car & Found. Co.	22½	23¼	22	23	+ 1⅛
72⅜	72⅞	3,110	Am. C. & F. Co. pf..	71½	72⅞	71¾	72⅞	+ 1⅜
30¾	31	700	American Cotton Oil.	30½	31	30¾	31	+ ⅝
183	190	253	American Express ...	188	188	186	186	- 3
39¾	40	1,000	American Ice Co.....	39½	39⅞	39¼	39⅞	+ ⅝
7	7⅛	140	American Linseed Co.	7	7	7	7	.....
36⅞	38	475	Am. Linseed Co. pf..	35	37	35	37	+ 1½
4⅞	5	100	Am. Malting Co	4⅞	4⅞	4⅞	4⅞	- ⅛
26½	27	300	Am. Malting Co. pf...	26⅞	27	26⅞	27	+ ⅜
55¾	56	9,925	Am. Smelt. & Ref. Co.	54⅝	56¼	54⅛	55⅝	+ 1
96⅜	97	700	Am. S. & R. Co. pf.	95¾	96⅜	95¾	96⅜	+ 1⅝
31½	32	4,900	Am. Steel Hoop Co..	30½	32	30	31½	.....
77½	78	700	Am. Steel Hoop Co. pf.	77½	77½	77¼	77¼	.....
44⅞	45	15,600	Am. Steel & Wire.....	43	45	42⅞	45	+ 1
87	88	2,300	Am. Steel & Wire pf..	87	88	87	88	+ ½
140⅞	141	92,000	Am. Sugar Ref. Co....	136	142	136	140⅞	+ 4
118	119	300	Am. Sugar Ref. Co. pf.	118½	118⅝	118¼	118⅝	+ ⅝
..	..	700	American Woolen Co.	21½	21½	20⅞	20⅞	- ⅝
..	..	12	Am. Woolen Co. pf...	75¼	75¼	75¼	75½	.....
58¼	58½	16,567	American Tin Plate..	55	59	55	58⅝	+ 3½
90	92	100	American Tin Plate pf.	89½	89½	89½	89½	- 1⅜
113⅝	113½	14,060	American Tobacco ...	111½	113¾	111½	113½	+ 1
138	139	30	American Tobacco pf.	139⅞	139⅞	139⅞	139⅞	.....
47¼	47⅜	900	Anaconda Cop. M. Co.	47	47¾	47	47¼	+ ¼
57½	58½	100	Ann Arbor pf.....	57½	57½	57½	57½	- 1
46⅝	46⅞	29,000	At., T. & S. F.....	44⅞	47⅛	44⅝	46⅞	+ 1⅝
89½	89¾	37,700	At., T. & S. F. pf....	86¾	89¾	86⅝	89⅞	+ ⅜
85	85⅛	13,225	Baltimore & Ohio....	82	85	81¾	85	+ 2½
85¾	86	1,662	Baltimore & Ohio pf.	84½	86	84½	85⅞	+ ¾
84	84¼	42,885	Brooklyn Rapid Tran.	81	84½	81	84¼	+ 2
57	57⅛	3,700	Canada Southern	55¾	57½	54½	57¼	+ 1⅛
91⅝	92¼	500	Canadian Pacific	91	91¾	91	91⅜	.....
41⅛	41¼	16,095	Chesapeake & Ohio....	39⅞	44½	39⅝	41⅞	+ ⅝
38⅜	39	3,100	Chicago & Alton	37¾	39⅝	37½	39	+ 1
74½	74⅞	1,300	Chicago & Alton pf...	72½	74½	72½	74¼	+ ¾
142⅜	142⅝	28,650	Chi., Bur. & Quincy..	138¾	143¼	138¼	142⅞	+ 3
92	95	200	Chicago & East. Ill..	92	92	92	92	.....
120½	..	200	Chi. & East. Ill. pf..	121	121	121	121	+ ½
17	17¼	8,780	Chicago Great West.	16	17¼	16	17¼	+ 1¼
44⅝	45	1,100	Chi. Gr. West. pf., B.	42⅝	45	42⅝	45	+ 3
91⅜	91⅞	25	Chi. Gr. West., deb...	90½	90¼	90¼	90¼	.....
25	25¼	300	Chi., Ind. & Louis....	25⅜	25⅜	25	25	+ ⅛
60	61	850	Chi., Ind. & Louis. pf.	60½	61½	60	61	+ ¼
158¼	158½	253,725	Chi., Mil. & St. Paul.	145	159¾	145	158½	+ 12¾
190	..	400	Chi., Mil. & St. P. pf.	187½	189	187½	189	.....
173⅜	177½	7,220	Chicago & Northw....	169½	174⅝	169½	174	+ 4
..	..	100	Chi. & Northw. pf....	220	220	220	220	+ 2
121⅜	122	57,550	Chi., R. I. & Pac.....	117¼	122½	116⅞	122	+ 4
128	129	200	Chi., St. P., M. & Om.	128½	128½	128¼	128½	+ ½
12⅜	13	800	Chicago Term. Trans.	12	12	12	12⅜	+ ⅜
34⅜	35	800	Chi. Term. Trans. pf.	33¼	34¾	33¼	34⅜	+ 1½
77½	79	4,000	C., C., C. & St. L....	74	77½	74	77½	+ 2½
115	118	75	C., C., C. & St. L. pf.	118	118	118	118	.....
27¾	28	100	Cleve., Lor. & Wheel.	28	28	28	28	.....
69	70	200	Cleve., Lor. & W. pf..	70	70½	70	70½	+ 1½
54⅝	55	5,710	Colorado Fuel & Iron.	53¼	54⅝	53¼	54⅝	+ 1¾
7½	8	3,400	Colorado Southern....	7½	8	7½	8	+ ⅛
42	43	850	Col. Southern 1st pf..	42	43	42	43	.....
16¾	17½	100	Col. Southern 2d pf...	16½	16½	16½	16½	- ½
..	..	700	Col. & H. C. & Iron...	15⅞	16¼	15⅞	16¼	+ 1¼
193	193½	985	Consolidated Gas	191	193	191	193	+ 2¾
40½	40¾	13,575	Con. Tobacco Co....	38⅝	40⅝	38⅜	40⅝	+ 1¾
93⅝	94	850	Con. Tobacco Co. pf..	93¾	94	93¾	94	.....
132	132½	7,300	Delaware & Hudson....	128	132	128	132	+ 1½
188¼	190¼	1,700	Del., Lack. & West...	188¼	190¼	188¼	190¼	+ 2
30¼	31¼	5,100	Denver & R. G.....	29¾	31¼	29¾	31¼	+ ½
81	83½	2,910	Denver & R. G. pf....	81	83½	81	83½	+ 1⅝
18½	19½	300	D. M. & Ft. Dodge....	18½	19½	18½	19½	+ ½
24⅝	27	64,500	Erie	24⅝	27	24⅝	26⅞	+ 1½
54,970			Erie 1st pf.....	61¾	66¼	61¾	66	+ 8⅞
43¼	43⅝	9,600	Erie 2d pf	39¼	44½	39¼	43¼	+ 2½
44	44	30	Evans. & T. H.....	44	44	44	44	.....
81½	82	200	Evans. & T. H. pf....	81½	81½	81	81½	- 1½
53⅝	56½	25,310	Federal Steel	53⅝	56½	53⅝	56½	+ ¼
76⅞	77	590	Federal Steel pf.....	76½	76⅞	76¼	76⅝	+ ¼
25	26½	450	Ft. Worth & R. G....	25½	26	25½	26	- 1
..	..	100	Gas & El., Bergen Co.	73	73	73	73	+ ¼
187	188	1,390	General Electric	186	189¾	185	188½	+ ⅝
51¼	51¾	780	Glucose Sugar Ref....	50½	51½	50½	51½	+ 1
194½	195	3,970	Great Northern pf....	188	195	188	195	+ 6
41½	42	100	Hocking Valley	41¾	41¾	41¾	41⅞	+ ¾
71½	71½	2,440	Hocking Valley pf....	70	71½	70	71	.....
131½	132	4,950	Illinois Central	129	132	129	132	+ 3½
25½	25⅝	1,100	International Paper...	24⅞	25½	24¾	25¾	+ ¾
73	73½	810	Internat. Paper pf...	73½	74	73¼	73¼	.....
55⅞	56	700	Internat. Power Co...	55⅝	56	55⅝	56	- ¼
10	10⅜	3,400	International Silver..	8⅝	10¼	8⅝	10¼	+ 1
27½	28¼	300	Internat. Steam Pump.	28	28	28	28¼	- ¼
26½	27	4,800	Iowa Central	24½	27	24½	27	+ 2
53¼	53¾	1,930	Iowa Central pf.....	53½	54	51½	53⅝	+ 1
24	26	200	Kanawha & Michigan.	22	22	22	22	.....
13¼	14	100	Kansas City Southern.	13½	13½	13½	13½	- ¼
36⅜	36	200	Kansas City South. pf.	35	35¼	35	35	+ ¼
6	6½	200	Keokuk & D. M.....	6	6	6	6	+ ¼
43	44½	500	Lake Erie & West.....	43	44	43	44	+ 2¼
87½	87½	12,870	Louisville & Nashville.	84½	87½	84½	87⅛	+ 1⅝
113⅞	114	18,523	Manhattan Elevated..	111½	114⅞	111¼	114	+ 1⅝
168½	169	4,700	Met. Street Railway..	165	169	165	168½	+ 1½
..	..	2,150	Met. St. Ry., rights..	1	1¼	1	1¼	+ ⅛
15	15⅞	3,100	Mexican Central	15	15⅝	14⅝	14⅝	- ⅜
69⅞	70	200	Minn. & St. Louis....	69¾	69¾	69¾	69⅞	+ ⅛
102	102½	200	Minn. & St. Louis pf..	102	102¼	102	102¼	+ ⅜
15⅞	16	2,400	Mo., Kan. & Texas....	15½	15⅞	15¼	15⅝	+ ⅛
45¼	45½	8,500	Mo., K

IN THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Good Volume of Dealing in Vacant Property and Dwellings—The Day's Results in the Auction Room.

Hall J. How & Co. have sold for Erastus Titus two lots on the north side of One Hundred and Twelfth Street, together with two abutting lots on the south side of One Hundred and Thirteenth Street, 350 feet east of Lenox Avenue.

L. J. Phillips & Co. have sold for Joseph A Farley to Henry F. Schwartz for $15,000 the five-story American basement dwelling 305 West One Hundred and Sixth Street.

Max Marx has bought, through Clarence M. Fowler, from Myer M. Hodge, the six-story store and loft building, 289 Bleecker Street, 28.11 by 75, giving in exchange the country seat known as Hollman's, with eighty acres of land, on the Easton Turnpike, near Barkan, N. J.

Warren & Skillin and Charles S. Kohler & Bro have sold for John J. Schwartz for about $42,000 the five-story apartment house, 128 West One Hundred and Fourth Street.

It is reported that the Clark estate has sold the plot of four lots on the south side of Fifty-sixth Street, between Broadway and Seventh Avenue. This property is at the rear of the Van Corlear apartment house, at the southwest corner of Seventh Avenue and Fifty-sixth Street, which is also owned by the Clark estate.

Louis Stern has sold the two five-story double flats, 308 and 310 West One Hundred and Twenty-ninth Street, each 25 by 80 by 100.

The Association for the Relief of Respectable Aged Indigent Females has sold the plot at the rear of its home, on Amsterdam Avenue, between One Hundred and Third and One Hundred and Fourth Streets. The plot sold is estimated about 200 feet east of the Avenue and has frontages of 62 feet on One Hundred and Third Street and 75 feet on One Hundred and Fourth Street.

Oesenzweig & Klingenstein have sold to Jacob Weinstein the vacant lot on the north side of Eighty-second Street, 305 feet east of Third Avenue, 16.5 by 102.2.

Sale of property sold for the estate of Herman Fleitman by William Carlin to the Pan on the south side of Eighty-fourth Street, 37.6 feet east of Broadway, 50 by 102.2.

Standelbaum & Lewine have bought from the estate of Barbara Stier the four-story brick building 73 East Fourth Street, 25 by 100; also from the Heilbrung estate 75 Thompson Street, adjoining No. 73, to which they recently took title.

The property 221 and 223 East Eighth Street, 40 by 93.11, has been sold, through Max Kramer, to a Mr. Goodman, for improvement.

Herrmann & Elawoni have sold for Bernhard Freund to John Kliegmeyer the two apartment houses, 256 and 258 West One Hundred and Twenty-ninth Street. Mr. Freund taking Jersey City property in part payment.

John R. Davidson and George W. Campbell report the following sales: For Louis N. Narbonne, the five-story flat (62) West One Hundred and Fifth Street, 32.10x90 by 100.11; also, for Nellie Murphy, the five-story flat 240 West Sixty-second Street, 25 by 80 by 100.

Chames & Losere have sold to an investor for $27,000 the five-story brick flat on the south side of Teasdale Place, 100 feet east of Third Avenue.

Thomas & Son have sold for C. E. Campbell to E. T., William and Henry Mason a plot of about thirty lots on Jarvis Lane and Grand View Avenue, Far Rockaway. The Messrs. Mason will build three Summer residences on the property.

G. W. Nichols has sold for J. S. Bache his country seat at Tarrytown, consisting of a large dwelling and various outbuildings, on a tract of sixteen acres. The buyer is Frank A. Seiz of this city.

Charles Griffith Moses & Brother, in conjunction with J. Romaine Brown & Co., have sold for Richard C. Masten to Marie Bostwick the lot, 100.11 by 100, on the south side of One Hundred and Fifty-seventh Street, 100 feet west of Amsterdam avenue.

Parsons & Singer have sold for the estate of John M. Dinkel the five-story tenements 206 East Houston Street and 99 First Street, to an investor

Results at Auction.

Yesterday's offerings in the Trinity Building Salesroom resulted as follows:

By William M. Ryan.

Rosedale Avenue, West Farms, east side, 150 feet north of Tacoma Street, 25 by 100, two-story frame dwelling; foreclosure sale, to the plaintiff, Susan A. Ther.. $2,000

212 and 214 West One Hundred and Second Street, south side, 99.11 feet east of Broadway, 50 by 100.11 and irregular, two five-story brick flats; foreclosure sale, to the plaintiff, Veronika Elton.... 55,765

By Thomas C. Smith.

Tract on the west side of a proposed road running westerly from the Macomb's Dam Road, adjoining the lands of Elizabeth Schwab, 127.3 by 287 and irregular; foreclosure sale, to Mary Mahoney..... 15,500

THE BUILDING DEPARTMENT.

List of Plans Filed for New Structures and Alterations.

One Hundredth Street, north side, 100 feet east of Second Avenue, for eight five-story brick flats, each 25 by 87; James Gault, owner; Stern & Gross, architects; cost, $160,000.

Twelfth Avenue, northeast corner of Nineteenth Street, for a one-story frame office, 22.6 by 17.4; J. J. Duffy of 462 West Eighteenth Street, owner and architect; cost, $250.

Eagle Avenue, east side, 425 feet south of One Hundred and Sixty-fifth Street, for a four-story brick tenement and store, 50 by 54; A. Mannello of 4580 Eagle Avenue, owner; Wm. Wickop, architect; cost, $9,000.

Hoffman Street, southeast corner of One Hundred and Eighty-seventh Street, for a one-story frame store, 19 by 20; Kate Walsh, premises, owner; C. S. Clark of 709 Tremont Avenue, architect; cost, $300.

Alterations.

No. 123 University Place, to a five-story brick bakery and laundry; Childs Unique Dairy Company, owner; J. C. Westervelt, architect; cost, $100.

No. 598 Ninth Avenue, to a four-story brick store and dwelling; Charles Beck, premises, owner; James W. Cole of 403 West Fifty-first Street, architect; cost, $200.

No. 212 West Twenty-second Street, to a four-story brick dwelling; Katherine Grill of 783 Prospect Avenue, owner; W. Hartwig of 708 Lexington Avenue, architect; cost, $150.

Nos. 618 and 640 West Thirty-ninth Street, to a one-story brick storage house; Mrs. P. M. Wilkens of 116 East Thirty-sixth Street, owner; cost, $300.

No. 162 East Forty-sixth Street, to a five-story brick tenement; William Hunter of 206 Broadway, owner; W. H. C. Hornum of 871 Brook Avenue, architect; cost, $3,000.

No. 470 Fourth Avenue, to a two-story brick store and dwelling; Morrell estate of 10 Hubert Place, owner; W. T. Totten of 113 West Broadway, architect; cost, $50.

No. 152 Henry Street, to a three-story and basement brick tenement; Bernard Gordon, premises, owner; Horenburger & Straub of 122 Bowery, architect; cost, $5,000.

No. 35 West Seventy-second Street, to a four-story brick dwelling; J. S. Bernheimer, premises, owner; Buchman & Fox of 11 East Fifty-ninth Street, architects; cost, $3,000.

No. 18 East One Hundred and Twenty-fifth Street, to a four-story brick dwelling; Joseph B. Hart estate of 32 Frankfort Street, owner; T. E. Reid of 105 East Fourteenth Street, architect; cost, $800.

REAL ESTATE TRANSFERS.

In the following list "mtg" stands for mortgage and "R S" for revenue stamps. The war revenue law provides that stamps shall be placed on all conveyances at the rate of 50 cents for each $500 of consideration. This "consideration" has been held to mean only the equity above the mortgage, except in the rare cases where the purchaser assumes payment of the mortgage. The amount of the mortgage plus 1,000 times the value of the revenue stamps on the conveyance should therefore show the true consideration.

Friday, Jan. 4.

AMSTERDAM AV, n w corner of 159th St, 74.11x120x irregular; Bernhard Klingenstein and another to Lilly Herb, (R S $18, mtg $36,000) $1

AVENUE D, 67, w s, 19.5x82.5x18.3x82.5; Morris Jawbowitz to Betty Oluck, (R S $1, mtg $7,500) 1

ALL TITLE which grantor owns in the United States, and personal property; William Paine to Mary H. Bischoffsheim, (R S $21) 1

DEMILT AV, n w s of Catharine St, 133.8x100x133.8x98.2; George D. Sloatman to William T. Mapes, (R S $1, mtg $1,000) 1

EAST BROADWAY, 29, 25x87.6; Joseph M. Alexander and others to Samuel Remer 37,100

EAST BROADWAY, 171, 26x100; Harris Hernstein to Isaac Goldberg 39,500

EAST BROADWAY, 31, s s, 25x75; Joseph M. Alexander and others to Herman Gersten, (R S $17.50, mtg $10,000) 27,250

EAST BROADWAY, 33, s s, 25x75; Joseph M. Alexander and others to Herman Gersten, ½ part, (R S $0.50) 14,850

EAST BROADWAY, 33, s s, 25x75; Sarah Alexander and husband to Herman Gersten, ½ part, (R S $7.50, mtg $17,000) .. 16,000

GRAND ST, s w corner of Chrystie St, 50.6x75; Caroline M. Hilliard, heir, &c., to William B. Davenport, (R S $12) 12,000

INDEFINITE ALLEY, s s, running e from Sullivan St, 12.3 ft w of land conveyed by Stewart to Langdon, runs s 24.6x w 3.8x n 24.6x e 3.9; Louisa Axton to Peter Roberts, quitclaim 75

KINGSBRIDGE ROAD, n e corner of 167th St, 54.1x114.3x50.1x108.1; Solomon Bertiner to J. Allen Townsend, (R S $15) 100

KINGS BRIDGE ROAD, w s, Lots 19 and 20, map of 473 lots of Haight estate, 25 x100; King's Bridge Road, n w s, 79.2 ft n e of the dividing line between lands of Ryan & O'Brien, 25x100; Mary E. Canning to Catherine O'Reilly, 1-6 part, Gift

LUDLOW ST., 22, 25.1x87.6x25.3x87.6; Nathan Levy and others to Pearl Kornblum and others, (mtg $12,000, R S 50c) 1

LUDLOW ST. 22, 25.1x87x25.3x87; John S. Scully and another, executors, &c., to Pearl Kornblum and others 25,000

LOT 22, Block C, map of Lester Park; George Silkworth to Barbara Silkworth, (R S 50 cents) 1

LOT 513, map of Van Nest Park; Maria Liparello to George Lahrmann, (mtg $2,200, R S 50c) 45

LOTS 20 and 21, map of 66 lots of part of Cook Tract, William C. Schwarz to John O'Leary, (R S $3.50) ..... Exchange

MACY PLACE, 1,648, 25x94.9; Theodore M. Macy and others, individually and as executors, &c., to Percy T. D. Elphick, (mtg $4,000, R S $7.50) 7,200

MADISON ST, 270 and 272, 31.4x100; Harris Fischel to Beni Leipzig and another 55,500

MADISON AV, e s, 50.11 ft s of 115th St, 25x70; William Bertsche to Samuel Kahn and others, (mtg $18,000, R S $25) 1

MADISON AV, w s, 52.2 ft n of 75th St, 25x95; William J. Schieffelin and another, executors, to Edwin Parsons, (R S $51) 51,000

MINNEFORD AV, s w corner of Beach St, 25x100; Main Pl e s, 50 ft s of Beach St, 25x100, City Island, Annie C. King and others to William McCarthy 1,350

MOTT AV, e s, 76.9 ft n of 165th St, 26 x79.9x irregular; Mary Smith, widow, to Nellie F. Cantwell, (R S $1) 1

MULBERRY ST, 166 to 170, e s, 73.3x100 x77.3x100; Milton S. Gutterman, referee, to Harris Mandelbaum and another, (R S $1, mtg $65,000) 83,000

SHERIFF ST, 126, 25x100; Adolf Mandel to Oscar Dobroczynski, (mtg $30,000, R S $12) 42,500

UNION AV, 1,075, w s, 20x100; John F. O'Leary to William C. Schwarz, (R S $3.50, mtg $5,000) 1

WARREN ST, 7 and 9, s s; the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company, trustee, to Mary E., individually, and Mary H. Bischoffsheim, as trustee, ½ part, (R S $11) 1

57TH AV, e s, 25.5 ft s of 120th St, 25x 100; Jacob Bookman to James N. Smith, (R S $17) 100

57TH AV, s w corner of 130th St, 24x99.11; August Finck and others to Emilie Schwarzwalder, as part 40,000

167TH ST, 284 to 290 East, 100x92.3; Louis Bachrach to William and Julius Bachrach, (mtg $110,000, R S $56) 100

167TH ST, 284 East, 25x92.3; William Bachrach to Herman Feinchel, (R S $4, mtg $27,000) 1

11TH ST, 507 East, 25x103.5; Edward Ensfelder, executor, &c., to Adolph Reichmann 19,000

11TH ST, n e s, 252.6 ft n w of 2d Av, 25.6 x100; Albert Lindenstein to Jacob Klingenstein, (mtg $17,700, R S $.6) 1

24TH ST, 15 West, 26x92; John A. Callender to Amelia Callender, 1-6 part... Gift

25TH ST, n s, 150 ft e of 2d Av, 50x98.9; Julius Braun to William Oppenheim, R S $15, mtg $40,000) 1

27TH ST, s s, 225 ft w of 6th Av, 18.9x 98.9; Morris J. Warnstadt to Florence Coleman, (R S $14.50) 100

29TH ST, 213 East, 19x98.9; Julia K. Dunphy to Edward Blandish 9,000

35TH ST, 41 West, 18.9x98.9; Hyman M. Lazusk to William Weis, (RR S $22.50, mtg $22,000) 42,500

35TH ST, n s, 150 ft w of 9th Av, 25x98.9; Henry Zoelch to Frederick Schenck, (R S $15, mtg $6,000) 100

36TH ST, 123 East, 14x98.9; Maria L. Douglas and another to Charles A. Manson, (R S $8, mtg $15,000) 1

39TH ST, 449 West, 25x98.9; Frederick Roefner to Adolph Rossbach, (R S $5, mtg $7,000) 100

44TH ST, 419 West, 25x100.5; Louisa Essig to Margaret M. Fritz, (R S $12, mtg $14,000) 25,800

44TH ST, 541 and 543 West, 50x100.5; John Rulger to Julius Dietz, (R S $10, mtg $30,000) 1

47TH ST, n s, 100 ft e of 9th Av, 275 100.5; William Astheimer, executor, to Samuel Schumacher, (R S $29.25) 29,250

48TH ST, s s, 100 ft e of 9th Av, 25x100.5; William Astheimer, executor, to Henry J. Schumacher, (R S $15.75, mtg $15,000) 30,750

57TH Av, e s, 50 ft n of 130th Av, 25x 100.5; Louisa and Emilie Schwarzwalder to August Finck, ⅔ parts 26,667

63D ST, s s, 225 ft e of West End Av, 25 x100.5; William J. Hinton to Abraham Greenberg, (R S $6.50, mtg $14,000) 1

63D ST, s s, 200 ft e of West End Av, 25 x100.5; William J. Hinton to Mollie Steinhardt, (R S $6.50, mtg $14,000) 1

69TH ST, 52 East, 18x88.11; Walter J. Suydam and another to Mary A. Barrett, (R S $35) 35,000

71ST ST, 414 East, 25x100.4; Vincent Petrik and another, heirs to Dominick Petrik, (R S $3, mtg $15,000) 17,400

77TH ST, s s, 125 ft w of Central Park West, 25x102.2; Jacob F. Cullman to Louis Fleischman, (R S $50) 50,000

80TH ST, s s, 147.1 ft w of 2d Av, 20x irregular; Pincus Lowenfeld and another, executors, &c., to Pincus Lowenfeld and William Jaeger; Peter J. Clancy, trustee, (mtg $8,000, R S $2) 1

80TH ST, e s, 247.1 ft w of 2d Av, 18.11x 102.2; Peter J. Clancy to Pincus Lowenfeld and another, (R S $2, mtg $6,000) 7,750

80TH ST, 153 West, 17.8x102.2; James A. Smith to Jacob Bookman, (R S $13, mtg $45,000) 100

82D ST, 156 East, 16.8x87; Henry H. Peters, Jr., to the Collins Building and Construction Company, (R S $1, mtg $11,789) 1

82D ST, 225 East, 25.5x102.2; 82d St, n s, 305 ft w of 2d Av, 0.5x102.2; The Salvation Army, a corporation, to Ransom Caygill, (R S $3, mtg $7,500) 3,000

82D ST, 225 East, 25.5x102.2; 82d St, n s, 25.5 ft w of 2d Av, 0.5x102.2; Ransom Caygill to Bernhard Klingenstein, (R S $11.50) 11,182

83D ST, n s, 110 ft e of 1st Av, 20x102.2; Christian Jackle to Rose Jackle, (R S $3, mtg $5,000) 100

84TH ST, n s, 100 ft e of Amsterdam Av, 20x102.2; Sarah Marx-Nathan Company to Moses Bachman, (R S $3, mtg $7,500) 100

87TH ST, s s, 102.2 ft e of 5th Av, 127.6x 100.8; Isaac H. Clothier to Francis K. Pendleton, (R S $150) 1,000

87TH ST, n s, 107.9 ft w of Park Av, 25.6x100.8; Sarah Blumberg to Sarah Levy, ½ part, mtg $28,000) 17,500

87TH ST, n s, 107.9 ft w of Park Av, 25.6x100.8; Sarah Levy to Lena Blumberg, ½ part, (mtg $28,000) 17,500

88TH ST, s s, 157 ft w of Avenue A, 25x 100.8; Philip Schulang to Louis Lese, (R S $9.50) 9,500

92D ST, 146 West, 16.8x100.11; Mary A. Barrett to Walter L. Suydam and another, (R S $12) 12,000

97TH ST, 212 to 220 East, 127x100.11; 97th St, 212 East, 25x100.11; 97th St, 220 East, 25x100.11; 97th St, 224 East, 25x100.11; Giovanni Lordi to Rosa Janpole, (R S $3, mtg $59,500) 1

106TH ST, n s, 100 ft e of Amsterdam Av, 50x100.11; Augusta C. von Elten and another to Michael C. Gross, (R S $2, mtg $30,500) 1

111TH ST, 15 and 17 West, 54x100.11; Louis Torock to Henry D. Greenwold and another, (R S 50c, mtg $47,000) 1

113TH ST, n s, 36 ft e of Park Av, 16x 100.11; Isaac Davis to Kate Egan, (R S $1, mtg $6,000) 1

118TH ST, s s, 360 ft e of Lenox Av, 100x 100.11; Charles M. Rosenthal to Donald Robertson and another, (R S $20, mtg $20,000) 1

127TH ST, 216 East, 18.9x98.11; Lizzie Raymond, executrix, to Annie A. Ayer, (R S $5.50) 5,550

129TH ST, 256 and 258 West, 44.8x99.11; Bernard Freund to John G. H. Klemeyer, (mtg $12,000, R S $14) 100

148TH ST, 660 and 662, e s, 16.11 ft e of Bergen Av, 54x100; Lilly Herb to Bernhard Klingenstein and another, (R S $14, mtg $34,000) 1

151ST ST, s s, 208.4 ft w of Amsterdam Av, 66.8x99.11; John G. H. Lillendahl to George A. Field, (R S $36, mtg $60,000) 1

176TH ST, s s, 50 ft e of Fiestwood Av, 50x125; August Roggenkamp to Alexander Wilson, (mtg $0,000, R S $4.50) 1

187TH ST, 533 West, 19x94.10; Andrew J. Kerwin, Jr., to Amy O. Law, (mtg $7,500) 1

Recorded Leases.

ALLEN ST, 121; Solomon Feiner to Isidor Rieger. 3 years $1,900

SHERIFF ST, 120; Oscar Dobroczynski to Harris Rosenstein and another, 5 years 3,400

UNIVERSITY PLACE, 27; Vito Abbate to Henry Mistor, 6 months 144

1ST AV, 1,196, s e corner of 64th St; John H. W. Doscher to John F. Wurthmann, 5 years 1,000

2D AV, 2,480 and 2,491; Leopold Hellinger to Arthur Schlickerman, 5 years ... 3,384

107TH ST, 383 East; Simon Katzenstein and another to Solomon Finkelstein and another, 3 years 300

Recorded Mortgages.

Interest is at 5 per cent. unless otherwise specified.

ASTEN, Jane, and others to George E. Ketching; Norfolk St, e s, 100.2 ft n of Grand St, 3 years 6,000

AYER, Annie to Lizzie Raymond, executrix; 128th St, 216 East, due July 1, 1901, 4½ per cent 4,500

BENJAMIN, Morris, to Eugene Vallens; 5th St, 320 East, 5 years, 4 per cent... 5,000

BERNHEIMER, Julia G., to New York Security and Trust Company; Manhattan Av, 494 and 496, 3 years, (two mortgages,) 4½ per cent. each 15,000

BERNHEIMER, Julia G., to Simon E. and Max E. Bernheimer; Manhattan Av, 494 and 496, 3 years, (two mortgages,) each 2,500

BLEAKLEY, Elathine A. and Andrew, to George W. Van Winkle; Greenwich St, 270 and 272, 3 years 2,500

BOLGER, Paul S., to Charles F. Buckley and another, executors, &c.; Lexington Av, s w corner of 57th St, 3 years, 4 per cent 15,000

BOLGER, Paul S., to Clark W. Dunlop; Lexington Av, s w corner of 57th St, due May 1, 1902, 6 per cent 4,000

BRACKEN, Mary, to Dollar Savings Bank; Lowmede St, w s, 249 ft s of Gun Hill Road, 1 year 2,000

CANTWELL, Nellie F., to the trustees of the New York Universalist Relief Fund; Grand Boulevard and Concourse, e s, about 70.9 from n s of the approach of said boulevard, &c., at 165th St, 3 years 3,000

CANTWELL, Nellie F., to Oliver E. Davis; Grand Boulevard and Concourse, e s, about 70.8 from n s of the north approach of said boulevard, &c., at 163th St, due April 4, 1901 400

CLARY, Gordon, to Seamen's Bank for Savings; 136th St, s s, 167.6 ft w of 7th Av, 1-year, 4½ per cent 1,500

CLANCY, Peter J., to Pincus Lowenfeld and another; 80th St, s s, 147.1 ft w of 2d Av, ½ year, 6 per cent 300

CARZILLO, Domenico, and wife to Mary T. Lopez; Arthur Av, w s, 258 ft s of Pelham Av, 3 years 1,000

DIETZ, Julius, to Julius Laubheim; 44th St, 541 and 543 West, ½ part, 4 per cent. 3,000

DOBROCZYNSKI, Oscar, to Adolph Mandel; Sheriff St, 120, 4 years, 6 per cent.. 4,000

EISLER, Mary, to Bowery Savings Bank; 8th Av, w s, 24.11 ft n of 143d St, 5 years, 4 per cent 11,000

ELPHICK, Percy T. D., and wife to Theodore M. Macy and others, individually and as executors, &c.; Macy Place, 1,938, Installments 1,800

FEINCHEL, Herman C., William C. and Julius Bachrach; 10th St, 384 East, 8 years, 6 per cent 9,000

FELD, George A., to Charles De Neutville; 129th St, 162 and 164 East; also 131st St, 306 to 310 West, 2 years 10,000

FISCHEL, Bernhard, and Samuel Miller to Harry Fischel; Madison St, 270 and 272, installments, 6 per cent 6,750

LESE, Louis, to Philip Schulang; 88th St, s s, 157 ft w of Avenue A, 2 years ... 8,000

LILLIENDAHL, John G., to Rachel H. Powell; 151st St, 508 West, 3 years 30,000

LILLIENDAHL, John G., to Elsie Powell; 151st St, 510 West, 3 years 30,000

LORDI, Giovanni, to Rosie Lordi; 97th St, 212 to 220, 224, 230, and 234 East, 1 year, 6 per cent 10,500

LUTHY, Margaretha P., to Anne S. Finck; Briggs Av, s s, 245.5 ft e of Southern Boulevard, 1 year, 6 per cent 400

MANDELBAUM, Harris, and Fisher Lewine to Mirium Adler, executrix, &c.; Madison St, 168, 3 years 21,000

MANDELBAUM, Harris, and Fisher Lewine and another to Mirium Adler and another; Mulberry St, 170, 3 years.. 21,000

MANDELBAUM, Harris, and Fisher Lewine to American Mortgage Company; Mulberry St, 168 to 170, 3 years 9,000

MANSON, Charles A., and wife to Maria L. and Orlando B. Douglas; 36th St, 123 East, 4 years 6,000

MAPES, William T., to Alice M. Dexter; De Milt Av, n corner of Catharine St, 1 year, 6 per cent 500

MARX, Julia, to Frances Marx; 78th St, 380 East, 3 years, 6 per cent 2,700

McMANUS, Patrick, to George M. Buck; Lot 450, map of Section A, Vyse estate, 3 years 3,000

METZGER, Eva, to Leon Levy; 52d St, 427 West, demand, 6 per cent 2,000

METZGER, Eva, to Leon Levy; 52d St, 429 West, demand, 6 per cent 2,000

NIEBERG, Louis, and others, to Myron S. Fox; Avenue C, 21 and 23, 5 years .. 48,000

OHRBACH, David, to Conrad Stein's Sons; 1st Av, 2,419, saloon lease, demand, 6 per cent 2,800

OPPENHEIM, William, to Julius Braun; 25th St, n s, 100 ft e of 2d Av, Installments, 6 per cent 5,500

O'BRIEN, James, to the United States Trust Company of New York; 65th St, 25 West, due as per bond 35,000

O'BRIEN, James, to the United States Trust Company of New York; 65th St, 24 West, due as per bond 35,000

O'LEARY, John, to Frank Reilly; Lots 20 and 21, map of 65 lots, part of Oak Tree Plot, Tremont, 3 years 1,800

O'NEILL, Patrick, to the Frank Brewery; Park Row, 30, saloon lease, demand, 6 per cent 1,000

PENDLETON, Francis K., to Isaac H. Clothier; 87th St, s s, 179.8 ft e of 5th Av, 3 years, 4½ per cent 20,000

PENDLETON, Francis K., to Isaac H. Clothier; 87th St, s s, 204.8 ft e of 5th Av, 3 years, 4½ per cent 20,000

PENDLETON, Francis K., to Isaac H. Clothier; 87th St, s s, 102.2 ft e of 5th Av, 3 years, 4½ per cent 20,000

PENDLETON, Francis K., to Isaac H. Clothier; 87th St, s s, 128.2 ft e of 5th Av, 3 years, 4½ per cent 20,000

PENDLETON, Francis K., to Isaac H. Clothier; 87th St, s s, 153.4 ft e of 5th Av, 3 years, 4½ per cent 20,000

PFEIFFER, Norberth, to Clarence L. Barber; Forsyth St, e s, 50 ft s of Houston St, 1 year, 6 per cent 1,000

REICHMANN, Adolph, to Title Guarantee and Trust Company; 11th St, 507 East, 5 years, 4½ per cent 11,000

REMER, Samuel, to Margaret E. Mitchell and others, trustees, &c.; East Broadway, 29, 5 years, 4 per cent 25,000

ROBERTSON, Donald, and Alexander Grant to Lambert Suydam; 118th St, s s, 360 ft e of Lenox Av, 1 year, 6 per cent 4,000

ROACH, Hibbert B., to Abbie T. Park; Tinton Av, w s, 100 ft s of 166th St, 3 years 6,000

ROACH, Hibbert B., to Annie O. and Amy Stabb; Tinton Av, w s, 125 ft s of 166th St, 3 years 6,000

ROBERTSON, Donald, and Alexander Grant, to Charles M. Rosenthal; 118th St, s s, 360 ft e of Lenox Av, 1 year, 6 per cent 6,000

ROOGENKAMP, August, to Robert W. Cooper; 176th St, s s, 50 ft e of Fleetwood Av, 3 years 6,000

SCHAEFFLER, Peter, to Charles Regnault; Lexington Av, e s, 80.6 ft n of 70th St, 2 years 6,000

SCHENCK, Frederick, to Henry Zoelch; 35th St, s s, 150 ft w of 9th Av, 2 years, 4½ per cent 2,500

SCHMITZ, William, to Cecilia Milleg; Anthony Av, e s, 21.3 ft n of 178th St, 3 years 5,500

SCHMITZ, William, to Therese Milleg; Anthony Av, n e corner 178th St, 3 years 7,500

SCHNUGG, Francis J., to Nathaniel Wise; Madison Av, e s, 50.5 ft s of 118th St, 3 years, 4½ per cent 4,000

SCHNUGG, Francis J., to Henrietta L. Warner; Madison Av, s e corner of 118th St, 3 years, 4½ per cent 17,000

SCHNUGG, Francis J., to Henrietta L. Warner; Madison Av, s e corner of 118th St, 3 years, 4½ per cent 26,000

SCHNUGG, Francis J., to Nathaniel Wise; Madison Av, s e corner of 118th St, demand, 6 per cent 4,000

SCHUMACHER, Henry J., and wife to Henry Schumacher; 48th St, s s, 100 ft e of 9th Av, 2 years 6,000

SCHUMACHER, Henry J., and wife to Dry Dock Savings Institution; 48th St, s s, 100 ft e of 9th Av, 5 years, 4 per cent 17,000

SCHUMACHER, Henry J., and wife to Dry Dock Savings Institution; 47th St, n s, 100 ft e of 9th Av, 3 years, 4 per cent 14,000

SOBEL, Elias, and Joseph P. Slater to Isaac Shiman; 1st St, 77 and 79 East, 5 years, 6 per cent 10,000

SHEEDY, Catharine C., to Euphemia S. Coffin; 143d St, n s, 200 ft e of 8th Av, demand, 6 per cent 1,300

SHEEDY, Catharine C., to Joseph C. Levi, Trustee; 143d St, n s, 200 ft e of 8th Av, 3 months, 6 per cent 6,000

SMITH, James N., to American Mortgage Company; 5th Av, e s, 25.5 ft s of 120th St, 1 year 10,000

SPITZER, Estella G., to Mayer S. Auerbach; 20th St., 11 West, demand, 6 per cent 2,000

SPRING, Edward, Jr., to Vincent S. Mulford; 109th St, 79 East; also 109th St, 171 to 175; 2d Av, s w corner of 54th St, and 126th St, n e, 75 ft e of 0th Av, 1-15 part and all title, due May 1, 1903, 6 per cent 1,000

STECKLER, Hortense, to Cornelia D. Earle; 80th St, 58 East, 5 years, 4 per cent 10,000

TOROCK, Louis, to Clarence Tucker and others; 111th St, 15 West, 8 years, 4½ per cent 28,000

VON BEESTEN, Frederick, to Maria L. Thiele; Grand Av, e s, 175 ft w of Mapes Av, Westchester, 5 years 2,200

WALD, Johanna, to Katharine Vetter; 4th St, n s, 397.9 ft w of Avenue D, 1 year, 6 per cent 2,000

WEISS, William, to Hyman M. Lasinsk; 35th St, 41 West, installments, 6 per cent 6,500

WHITE, POTTER & PAIGE MANUfacturing Company, a corporation, to Joseph Millett; Madison Av, w s, 60.2 ft n of 127th St, 1 year, 6 per cent 1,500

WHITE, POTTER & PAIGE MANUfacturing Company, a corporation, to Joseph Millett; Madison Av, w s, 80 ft n of 127th St, 1 year, 6 per cent 1,500

WINDOLPH, Kunigunda, to George, S. Bowdoin and others, trustees, &c.; 127th St, o s, 250 ft e of Boulevard, 2 years.. 2,000

Assignments of Mortgages.

BELL, Enoch C., to Katharina Drechsel.. $3,150

BRAUN, Julius, to Jonas Weil and another ..... Nom

CLAPP, Robert P., executor, &c., to Lucy A. Trippe 10,000

COHN, Sigmund, to Michael J. Albrecht.. 5,000

GEBHARDS, Victor, to Rudolph J. H. Mayer 1,650

GOODMAN, Aaron, to State Bank 4,000

HAMERSHLAG, Joseph, to Bowery Savings Bank, two assignments 47,500

LEASK, George, trustee, &c., to George Leask, trustee 15,000

LEASK, George, as trustee, &c., to United States Trust Company, six assignments ..... Nom

LOEWY, Emily, to Isaac Shiman ..... Nom

MERCANTILE TRUST AND DEPOSIT Company of Baltimore to Louise H. Leclere 10,800

MERCANTILE TRUST AND DEPOSIT Company of Baltimore to Hoffman Miller, administrator, &c., two assignments 3,614

MERCANTILE TRUST AND DEPOSIT Company of Baltimore to George M. Miller 1,386

NEW YORK LIFE INSURANCE AND Trust Company to Alexander O. D. Tayler, administrator, &c ..... Nom

NORCROSS, Arthur W., to Mary E. Norcross ..... Nom

PORTER, Fannie M. and Charles F., executors, &c., to Sarah F. Sanford 4,000

ROSENTHAL, Charles M., to Albert Erdman ..... Nom

RUSSELL, Thomas, executor, &c., to Josephine W. Wuppermann, (assigns two mortgages) 7,500

SWAN, Arthur A., to Eliza A. Finn.... 2,500

TITLE GUARANTEE AND TRUST COMpany to Fannie Rosenthal 5,000

Mechanics' Liens.

AMSTERDAM AV, 45 to 49; Ralph H. Reid against Julia A. Moore, owner; B. Traynor, contractor $32

BLEECKER ST, s w corner of Wooster St, 25x100; John Laura & Co. against Richard P. Ritterbusch, owner and contractor 110

CONDERCLIFF AV, e s, 461 ft n of 176th St, 25x100; Patrick Stanton against Herman Salburge, owner; Eugene W. Varien, contractor 269

28TH ST, 332 West; Ralph H. Reid against Emilia A. de La Rua y Angarica, owner; Dr. Castroverde, contractor. 97

51ST ST, s s, 175 ft w of 10th Av, 25x 100; William E. Dearing against Charles Englehardt, owner and contractor 87

52D ST, 120 to 126 West; Griffen & Brother against George N. Ferguson, owner; George Ferguson & Son, contractor 173

122TH ST, 67 and 69 West; Pephro D. Pike against William H. Welher and others, owners; William O'Connell, contractor 163

BUILDING LOAN CONTRACTS UNDER CHAPTER 78, LAWS OF 1900.

118TH ST, s s, 360 ft e of Lenox Av, 100x100.11; Lambert Suydam, with Donald Robertson and Alexander Grant, 11 payments $44,000

170TH ST, n s, 100 ft w of Bronx Park Av, 25x100; Henry Ackerman, as executor, &c., with August Dienes, 3 payments 3,000

Lis Pendens.

BROOK AV, e s, 52.11 ft n of 149st St, 25x100, new lines; Cornelius Walke, trustee, &c., against Mary E. Bixby and others, (foreclosure of two mortgages;) attorney, P. W. Wilder.

HOFFMAN ST, s w corner of Pelham Av, 201.4 x105.8x201.1x105.8; James T. Phelan against Philip Duffey and others; (foreclosure of mortgage;) attorney, A. Crook.

LENOX AV, 434; Joseph C. Levi, trustee, &c., against Johanna Baumann and others, (foreclosure of mortgage;) attorney, H. H. Simpson.

LEXINGTON AV, e s, 41.11 ft n of 44th St, 19.6 x75; A. Alonzo Teets against Augustina Kennelly and others, (foreclosure of mortgage;) attorney, T. Wandell.

MONROE ST, n s, 141.2 ft w of Jefferson St, 15.5x100x15.4x100; Reginald S. Blake, executor, &c., against Colman Goldstein and others, (foreclosure of mortgage;) attorney, C. A. Wendell.

RIDGE ST, n w s, 175 ft n e of Rivington St, 25 x100; Charles F. Haug and others, executors, &c., against Bernhard Cohen and others, (foreclosure of mortgage;) attorney, W. H. Stockwell.

WASHINGTON AV, w s, 50 ft n e of 167th St, 25x75; Thomas C. Stephens against Martha Brogan and others, (foreclosure of mortgage;) attorney, J. E. Carpenter.

WASHINGTON AV, w s, 75 ft n e of 167th St, 25x75; Anna C. Stephens against Martha Brogan and others, (foreclosure of mortgage;) attorney, J. E. Carpenter.

1ST AV, n w corner of 101st St, 100x100.11; also, 1st Av, s s, 360.3 ft e of 2d Av, 40x98.9; Hannah McGuire against Catharine McGuire and others, (partition;) attorney, W. J. McCormick.

6TH AV, 11d and 112; Joseph C. Levi, trustee, against Johanna Baumann and others, (foreclosure of mortgage;) attorney, H. H. Simpson.

13TH ST, 105, 107, 110, 112, and 122 East; 4th Av, 135, s e corner of 13th St; 50th St, 18 and 20 East; 28th St, 117 West; 3d Av, 411, s e corner of 29th St; 153d St, 516 to 524 West, and 152d St, n s, 275 ft w of 10th Av, 100x99.11; Helene R. Garvey against Union Trust Company of New York, executors, &c., and others, (love and &c.;) attorney, Eaton & Lewis.

44TH ST, s s, 394 ft e of 6th Av, 25x85x18x65; Annie E. Clarkson against Alexander Gilbert and others, executors, &c., (dower, &c.;) attorneys, Wallach & Cook.

51D ST, 226 to 234 East; Joseph C. Levi, trustee, against Philip E. Wolff and others, (foreclosure of mort

BROTHERTOWN INDIANS' CLAIM.

Tribe's Attorney Asserts the Right to Share in $2,000,000 Judgment.

Francis M. Morrison, an attorney of Worcester, Mass., who represents the interests of the Brothertown tribe of Indians in the dispute over the settlement of the Six Nations' two-million-dollar judgment, has sent a communication to THE TIMES in reply to certain statements made by attorney James B. Jenkins of Oneida, N. Y., in a dispatch published in this paper on Dec. 30 last. In this dispatch Mr. Jenkins said he did not apprehend that the case of his clients would be hampered by the claim of the "so-called Brothertowns of New England," who seek to participate in the settlement. He said the "few alleged descendants of the tribe in Massachusetts and Connecticut are half breeds who have emanated from a mixture of negroes, whites, and a remnant of the scattered Indians that were left there." They had, added Mr. Jenkins, received no encouragement in Washington, and everything went to indicate that they would be ignored in the matter.

Mr. Morrison replies to this by saying that his clients' claim will be based, not upon the favor of any one in Washington, but upon facts and upon the law, and that involuntary deprivation of rights in person and property is not permitted under the Constitution. He declares that there can be no question as to the justice of the claim of his clients that they belong to the Brothertown tribe. The people he represents, he says, are the descendants of the pioneers to Wisconsin, who, later, proceeded to Kansas. At the time of the signing of the treaty of Buffalo Creek Jan. 15, 1838, they were part of the people of the Six Nations, settled in Wisconsin. On March 3, 1838, these people were made citizens of the United States.

The judgment of the court, he continues, sets forth the parties entitled to benefit by it. The Stockbridge Indians number about 217, the Munsee Indians number 132, and the Brothertown Indians 360. He denies, therefore, the allegation that his clients are only "a small remnant." It is also common knowledge, adds Mr. Morrison, that the Mohegans and their kin who are styled "half breed negroes and whites," are the purest Indians in the Eastern and Middle States.

Mr. Morrison asks why the payment of $199,874.44 on May 29, 1900, was made by the State Department, and, if the contract has been fulfilled, why the beneficiaries have received nothing under it. An investigation, he concludes, has been demanded and the whole matter laid before the Secretary of the Interior and the Commissioner of Indian Affairs.

THE COMMERCIAL WORLD

CASH QUOTATIONS.

Wheat, No. 2 red	.82⅝
Corn, No. 2 mixed	.46
Oats, No. 2 mixed	.28½
Flour, Minneapolis patents	$4.25
Cotton, middling	.10⅛
Coffee, No. 7 Rio	.07
Sugar, granulated	5.50
Molasses, O. K. prime	.40
Beef, family	11.50
Beef hams	19.75
Tallow, prime	.05
Pork, mess	13.25
Hogs, dressed, 160 lb	.06⅛
Lard, prime	7.30
Butter, Western creamery	.25

CHICAGO, Jan. 4.—Cash quotations were as follows: Flour quiet and steady; No. 3 Spring wheat, 65@72½c; No. 2 red, 75@75¾c; No. 2 corn, 39½c; No. 2 yellow, 39½@39¾c; No. 2 oats, 25½@25¾c; No. 2 white, 29½@29¾c; No. 3 white, 25½@29¼c; No. 2 rye, 52@53c; fair to choice malting barley, 58@63c; No. 1 flaxseed, $1.57; No. 1 Northwestern, $1.57@$1.58; prime timothy seed, $4.70; mess pork, per bbl, $13@$13.10; lard, per 100 lb, $7@$7.02½; short ribs, sides, (loose,) $11.25@$6.85; dry-salted shoulders, (boxed,) 5¾@6¾; short clear sides, (boxed,) $7.05@$7.12½; whisky, basis of high wines, $1.27; sugars, cutloaf, $6.29; granulated, $5.70; confectioners' "A," $5.69; off "A," $5.54; clover, contract grade, $10.50.

COTTON.—In yesterday's cotton market dull speculation did not reach very impressive proportions. On the first call prices went off 1@5 points in response to very disappointing Liverpool cables and in keeping with foreign selling orders. The decline was not of long duration, however, as the lower prices at once tempted in speculative buying and local covering. The market at the close was barely steady, with prices net 3 to 14 points higher. A flurry of profit taking in the last fifteen minutes cut down the lead several points, but on the reaction there was nothing in the way of bear speculation noted. Spot cotton ruled dull, with quotations unchanged, on the basis of 10¼c for middling and 10⅝c for middling Gulf; sales were 60 bales. Southern spot markets were telegraphed as follows: New Orleans firm and unchanged at 9⅞c; Mobile quiet, 1-16c advance, at 9¾c; Savannah quiet, steady, and unchanged at 9¾c; Wilmington firm and unchanged at 9¾c; Charleston firm and unchanged at 9⅝c; Norfolk steady, and unchanged at 9¾c; Baltimore nominal and unchanged at 10c; Augusta firm and unchanged to 1-16c lower, at 9⅝c; St. Louis quiet and unchanged at 9¾c.

Contract prices ranged as follows:

	Open.	High.	Low.	Close.
January	9.09	9.15	9.08	9.80@9.81
February	9.52	9.63	9.50	9.59@9.60
March	9.48	9.57	9.47	9.53@9.56
April	9.42	9.49	9.42	9.52@9.53
May	9.43	9.54	9.43	9.51@9.52
June	9.45	9.49	9.45	9.48@9.50
July	9.35	9.45	9.35	9.44@9.45
August	9.06	9.15	9.05	9.14@9.15
September	8.50	8.59	8.47	8.57@8.58
October	8.18	8.28	8.18	8.27@8.29

LIVERPOOL, Jan. 4.—Spot Cotton—Moderate business; prices, 1-16d lower; American middling, fair, 5 17-32d; good middling, 5⅝d; middling, 5 17-32d; low middling, 5 11-32d; good ordinary, 5 3-32d; ordinary, 4 27-32d. The sales of the day were 8,000 bales, of which 500 bales were for speculation and export and included 6,900 bales American. Receipts, 10,000 bales, including 4,900 bales American. Futures opened easy and closed steady; American middling, low middling clause, January, 5 25-64@5 26-64d sellers; January and February, 5 22-64@5 23-64d buyers; February and March, 5 21-64@5 22-64d buyers; March and April, 5 20-64d sellers; April and May, 5 14-64@5 15-64d sellers; May and June, 5 12-64d sellers; June and July, 5 9-64d buyers; July and August, 5 6-64@5 7-64d buyers; August and September, 4 57-64d value.

BREADSTUFFS.—WHEAT—The local market maintained a strong undertone throughout pretty much all the session, closing a little under the top, but 7⅛c higher than the previous day, with May 82⅝. On the late curb it sold up to 83c, and then at 82⅞c. The advance naturally scared in a lot of shorts, the crowd having generally fought advancing experience and become over sold in so doing. Quotations of cash wheat, free on board afloat basis, were as follows: No. 1 hard, Duluth, 91⅛c, nominal; old No. 1 Northern, Duluth, 89¾c; No. 1 Northern, Duluth, 87¼c; No. 1 Northern, New York, 85½c; No. 1 Northern, Chicago, 84⅝c; No. 2 red, New York, 85⅝c, afloat; No. 2 hard, New York, 86¾c; No. 2 corn, prompt, 46¼c; No. 2 corn, Jan. 15 to 20, 46¼c; No. 2 corn, Jan. 25 to 30, 46c.

MILWAUKEE, Jan. 4.—Wheat—Steady; No. 1 Northern, 76@77c; No. 2 Northern, 72@74c. Rye—Steady; No. 1, 56c. Barley—Firm; No. 2, 60c; sample, 48@58½c.

MINNEAPOLIS, Jan. 4.—Wheat—Cash, 76⅝c; May, 77¾c; July, 78¾c. On track: No. 1 hard, 76¾c; No. 1 Northern, 75⅝c; No. 2 Northern, 72¾@73¾c. Flour and bran—Unchanged.

DULUTH, Jan. 4.—Wheat—Cash, No. 1 hard, 76⅛c; No. 1 Northern, 74½c; No. 2 Northern, 65¼@67½c; No. 3 Spring, 56¼@62¼c. To arrive: No. 1 hard, 77⅝c; No. 1 Northern, 75¼c; July, 78¾c; May, 78¾c. Corn—55c. Oats—25½@25¼c.

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 4.—Wheat—No. 2 red, cash, 73¾c; January, 73⅝c; May, 70½c; July, 75c; No. 2 hard, 71@72c. Corn—No. 2 cash, 35¼c; January, 35½@35¾c; May, 36½c. Oats—No. 2 cash, 24c; January, 23½c; May, 25¾c; No. 2 white, 27@27½c.

FLOUR AND MEAL.—Spring patents were quoted $4.10@$4.40; Winter straights, $3.50@$3.65; Winter patents, $3.70@$4; Spring clears, $3@$3.35; extra No. 1 Winter, $2.75@$2.90; extra No. 2 Winter, $2.55@$2.75; no grade, $1.60@$1.75, spot and to arrive; buckwheat flour, $2.10@$2.20. Rye Flour—Firm. Fair to good, $2.80@$3.15; choice to fancy, $3.15@$3.50. Cornmeal—Firm. Kiln dried, $2.35@$2.40, as to brand. Bag Meal—Firm. Fine white and yellow, 98c@$1; coarse, 90@91c. Feed—Firm. Spring bran, spot, $16.75@$17; sacks, to arrive, 200 lb, $17@$17.50; Spring bran, bulk, $16.25@$16.50; coarse Winter bran, $16@$18; city bran, $16.50@$17; cornmeal, $25; linseed oilcake, $27.50; corn oilcake, $19; hominy chop, $17; oil meal, $28.25.

FUTURES.

NEW YORK PRICES.

Wheat—	Open.	High.	Low.	Close.	Yesterday.
January	..	..	..	80⅞	..
March	81 9-16	82⅞	81 9-16	82⅛	81⅝
May	81⅛	83	81⅛	82⅝	81⅝
July	80	80⅞	80	80⅞	..
Corn—
January	..	..	..	44½	44⅜
May	42⅞	43¼	42⅞	43¼	42⅝
July	..	..	..	43½	..
Lard—
January	..	..	..	$7.42	$7.45

CHICAGO PRICES.

Wheat—	Open.	High.	Low.	Close.	Yesterday.
January	73½	74⅜	73¼	74⅜	73¼
Febru'ry	74⅜	75⅜	74⅜	75½	..
May	76⅜	77⅜	76⅜	77½	76⅜
Corn—
January	35¼	36⅛	35¼	36⅛	36⅛
Febru'ry	36¼	36 7-16	36 3-16	36⅝	36⅛
May	37⅛	37 11-16	37	37⅝	37
Oats—
January	22⅞	23	22⅞	22⅞	22⅞
May	24⅞	24⅞	24½	24⅞	24⅝
Lard—
Jan.	$7.02½	$7.02½	$7.00	$7.00	$6.95
May	7.15	7.17½	7.15	7.15	7.10
Ribs—
Jan.	6.75	6.75	6.67½	6.70	6.65
May	6.80	6.80	6.75	6.80	6.72½
Pork—
Jan.	13.02½	13.05	12.95	13.05	12.82½
May	13.50	13.17½	13.10	13.15	12.97½

PROVISIONS.—PORK—Firm: mess, $12.75@$13.75; family, $14.50@$15; short clear, $14.50@$17. BEEF—Quiet; mess, $9@$9.50; family, $10

Real Estate.

10c. per line 3 times 24c 7 times 42c Double for display.

Insure Your Title.

Don't carry the risk yourself.

Title insurance is cheaper than the old system of counsel's opinion, and protects better.

TITLE GUARANTEE AND TRUST COMPANY.
CAPITAL & SURPLUS - $5,000,000
146 Broadway, New York.
175 Remsen St., Brooklyn.

City Real Estate for Sale.

10c. per line 3 times 24c 7 times 42c Double for display.

AMSTERDAM AV.—Elegant corner building, with stores; rented, $4,700; growing fast in value; bargain price; also adjoining houses. THOMAS P. PAYNE, 96 Broadway.

BARGAIN!—Brownstone, 18-ft. dwelling, near Madison Avenue; hardwood floors; open plumbing; perfect condition; $14,000; easy terms. THEO. ROGERS BRILL, 351 West 59th St.

COLD-WATER TENEMENT, WITH STORES, 100th St., near 8th Av.; always rented, finest tenants; $2,100; price $21,500; easy terms. THOMAS P. PAYNE, 96 Broadway.

9TH AV., NEAR 59TH ST.—Elegant corner; old buildings, 125x100; rare bargain for investment or alteration. THOMAS P. PAYNE, 96 Broadway.

11TH AV., NEAR 48TH ST.—Fine full-sized corner building, with store; always rented; bargain; $25,000; also 8th Av. bargains. THOMAS P. PAYNE, 96 Broadway.

BARGAIN.—Handsome private dwelling, East 50th St.; price $17; little cash needed; might exchange. GEORGE PURVIS, 156 Broadway.

411 WEST 21ST ST.—Large, deep four-story brownstone, handsomely decorated, cheap. W. GILHOOLY, 5 Beekman St.

LOTS.—Bronx bargains; Tremont, Woodycrest, Aqueduct Avs.; Fordham Road; three Woodlawn corners. GEORGE PURVIS, 156 Broadway.

ATTENTION, BUILDERS! LOT 50x140; AMSterdam Av., near 130th St.; might exchange. BURGS, 242 West 14th St.

INDUCEMENT—WEST 94TH ST.; CONVENient three-story house, 11 rooms. OWNER, 142 West 36th St.

HOUSE WEST 22D ST., SOLD TO CLOSE ESTate; $1,000 cash; bargain. ATWATER, 156 Broadway.

Brooklyn Real Estate for Sale.

10c. per line 3 times 24c 7 times 42c Double for display.

FOR SALE OR LEASE, 080 FEET WATER front, foot 39th St. Ferry, South Brooklyn, 2(40x240; yard and building; 22 feet water, low tide; also, for sale, three flat houses, Clinton Av., near Fulton; bargain. PIERSON & WOLFFE, 35 Nassau St. Tel. 583 Cort.

QUEENSBOROUGH IS THE MOST VALUAble from an investment point, and the cheapest in price of any of the Boroughs of New York City. We have the best and cheapest. A single lot of one hundred acres. WHEELER BROTHERS, 16 Court St., Brooklyn.

CHEAPEST IN BROOKLYN; $3,300; EASY terms; 722 Sackett Street, near 5th Avenue, (Park Slope;) 2-story and basement; brick; 8 rooms; all improvements; decorated; cozy home; sacrifice. DEWSNAP, 150 Nassau Street, Manhattan.

WHEELER BROTHERS.
Investments Queensborough.
16 COURT STREET, BROOKLYN.

Mortgage Loans.
New York and Brooklyn Property.
DIOSSY & CO., 5 COURT SQ., B'KLYN.

Long Island Real Estate for Sale.

10c. per line 3 times 24c 7 times 42c Double for display

A RARE CHANCE FOR A FINE PLACE, LESS than cost; new house, 8 rooms; large barn; fruits; 6 acres land on main street; 15 minutes to depot and bay; $2,800; $500 cash, balance to suit. G. PETERSON, Patchogue, L. I.

ISLIP, LONG ISLAND.—FOR SALE, DESIRable corner property, 321x542, in most fashionable part of the town; there is no house on it. J. V. McMANUS, 99 Nassau St., New York.

To Let for Business Purposes.

10c. per line 3 times 24c 7 times 42c Double for display.

135 West 41st Street,
NEAR BROADWAY.

Five light lofts in new building; size about 20x90; suitable for light manufacturing; will rent together or separately.

HORACE S. ELY & COMPANY,
27 WEST 30TH ST. 64 CEDAR ST.

FOR BOTTLER OR LAUNDRY.
Two lofts, concrete floor, unlimited supply hot and cold water; large elevator; low rent on long lease. CHAS. H. EASTON & CO.,
Tel. 795-38. 116 West 42d St.

DESK ROOM, WITH GOOD WINDOW SPACE if desired; private office; in large real estate office; $5 to $15. HALL & SON, 2,193 7th Av.

STORES, LOFTS, AND OFFICES
TO LET AT LOWEST RATES.
JACOB A. KING, 491 B'WAY—81 E. 125TH ST.

A STORE AND BASEMENT TO LET.—Large windows; 19 Beekman St., near Nassau. RULAND & WHITING, 5 Beekman St.

TO LET—DESIRABLE OFFICE; EVERY MODern improvement; $25. Inquire room 701, 290 Broadway, Dun Building, Manhattan.

6TH AV., 238.—Large floors, all modern improvements; will alter to suit tenants; ring janitor's bell.

16TH ST., 423 WEST.—Large store, with three rooms and plate-glass front; newly decorated; $18.

40TH ST., 438 AND 440 WEST.—Large stores, with plate-glass fronts; two rooms; decorated; $15.

Brooklyn.

STORE FOR TAILOR, HABERDASHERY, butcher, groceries, $18; good business location. 164 Hamilton Av., near Columbia St.

BROOKLYN, 368 HICKS ST.—Large store, with dwelling rooms; will decorate to suit; $16.

New Jersey Property for Sale.

10c. per line 3 times 24c 7 times 42c Double for display.

$17 A LOT.

Adjoining Lakewood, N. J., the famous Winter resort; we offer plots containing 5 lots for $85; small weekly payments. Special trip to property Sunday, Jan. 13. R. HALLEY & CO., 2 East 125th St.

$18 BUYS 2½ ACRES.
$35 BUYS 5 ACRES.
Almost given away, to close estate at once; installments, 50 cents weekly. APPLEBY, 16 Wall.

Country Real Estate for Sale.

10c. per line 3 times 24c 7 times 42c Double for display.

A.—FOR SALE—1,600 ACRES OF COAL LAND; also, 7,000 acres; both have 2 veins of coal 4 and 6 feet, the latter being the Pittsburg No. 8; both tracts have river and R. R. frontage; also, 50,000 acres in the Pocahontas District; also, 2,900 acres of fine coking coal in the New River District; all of these tracts can be bought at a very low price, and all are available to good markets. GEORGE H. ALLEN, 1,309 New England Bldg., Cleveland, Ohio.

WE OFFER FOR SALE
farm property, 124 acres,
NEAR PRINCETON, NEW JERSEY.
Fine site for modern mansion; bargain.
CHAS. H. EASTON & CO.,
Tel. 795-38. 116 West 42d St.

ALL COUNTRY REAL ESTATE A SPECIALTY; bargains and exchanges, all directions. PHILLIPS & WELLS, Tribune Building.

Apartments to Let—Unfurnished.

10c. per line 3 times 24c 7 times 42c Double for display.

THE IOWA,
135 West 104th St.
JUST COMPLETED.
ELECTRIC ELEVATOR & HALL SERVICE. THE FINEST 6 & 7 ROOM APARTMENTS, With all up-to-date, modern improvements; every room large, light, and beautifully decorated; large, handsome entrance hall and reception room, richly and tastefully furnished; about 300 feet from 104th St. station; express trains; Broadway and Amsterdam Av. electric cars. For further particulars apply on premises.

PAUL B. PUGH & CO., Builders and Owners.
STABLER & SMITH, AGENTS,
674 COLUMBUS AVE., 93D ST.
TELEPHONE 79 RIVERSIDE.

117TH ST., 360-366 WEST, NEAR MORNINGside Park.—Handsomely decorated, six rooms and bath; steam heat, hot water; private surroundings, near Columbia University and convenient to cable and elevated station; $24-$27. References.

71ST, 342 WEST.
New apartments, 7, 8, 9 extra large rooms, with pantry, two bath rooms each, parquetts floors, elevator, electric lights, telephone; $1,200 to $1,500. SUPERINTENDENT.

BACHELOR AP'TS.
112 West 44th St.
2 large, light rooms and bath.
ASHFORTH & CO., 1,509 BROADWAY.

DOWNTOWN.—Elegant (second) apartment; 8 rooms; bathroom; all improvements; $38. 41 8d Av., near 10th St.

FIRE INSURANCE AT LOWEST RATES.
JACOB A. KING, 81 E. 125TH ST., 491 B'WAY.

City Flats to Let—Unfurnished.

10c. per line 3 times 24c 7 times 42c Double for display.

HALF MONTH'S RENT FREE.
234 West 122d Street, elegant apartments; 8 rooms, newly papered and decorated; steam heat and hall service; $30 and upward. See janitor.

107TH ST., 224 EAST.—Three-room apartments; hot water, gas, and coal ranges; decorated; $12-$14.

JONES ST., 7, NEAR WEST 4TH ST., 6TH AV. —3-4 room apartments; decorated; $10-$14.50.

124TH ST., 230 WEST.—Large apartment; 6 rooms, bath; newly decorated; price, $16.

Brooklyn.

HICKS ST., 363.—Desirable apartments of two and three rooms; prices, $7 and $8.

Coal and Wood.

THOMAS STOKES,
Coal Dealer. Best grades of house coal, fresh mined, standard weight, lowest prices. Yards, 10th Av. and 32d St., 10th Av. and 54th St., 9th Av. and 34th St. Telephones 244 38th St., 203 Columbus.

STOKES BROS.'
HARLEM COAL YARD,
121st St. and 8th Av. Telephone 131 Harlem. A trial will insure best of service at lowest prices. Superior quality and weight guaranteed.

ESTABLISHED 1843.
GUEST & CO.,
COAL AND WOOD.
Yards, 7th Av., cor. 49th St. Telephone 485 Columbus. 306 West 43d St. Telephone, 2,279 38th St.

Try J. DOBBINS for COAL AND WOOD.
138th St. and Madison Ave., Harlem River.
Telephone, No. 537 Harlem.

T. H. Thorn & Co.
Best grade of red and white ash coal. Yard, 2d Ave., cor. 29th St. Tel. 1422 Madison Sq.

MURRAY HILL WOOD YARD
36TH ST. AND FIRST AV. Tel. 270 Madison Sq. Selected Pine and Oak for kindling. Pine Knots and extra dry Hickory for Grates and Andirons. Inspection solicited. Satisfaction guaranteed.

Instruction.

10c. per line $4.50 per line for 80 times.

SPANISH, ITALIAN, AND LATIN
thoroughly taught, best method, by expert teacher, with ten years' experience. Address Dr. CH., Box 112 Times Office.

ISAAC PITMAN SHORTHAND, PRIVATE AND class lessons; best instruction; reasonable rates. METROPOLITAN SCHOOL, 289 4th Av.

SPANISH THOROUGHLY TAUGHT; EXPERIenced teacher; translation; English, Spanish, French. CARALLERO COE, 162 East 84th St.

FRENCH, SPANISH, ITALIAN INSTRUCTION; best method; expert teachers; terms moderate. Prof. J. M. PELLERIN, 207 West 25th.

STENOGRAPHY AND TYPEWRITING; MANuscripts a specialty. Mrs. WHITWORTH, 138 West 104th St., N. Y. City.

Musical.

10c. per line 3 times 24c 7 times 42c Double for display.

AT 112 EAST 18TH ST.
THE ONLY N. Y. CONSERVATORY, 112 East 18th, BETWEEN 4TH AV. and IRVING PLACE. The FAMOUS MUSIC SCHOOL IN THE COUNTRY. The FIRST in the COUNTRY. Lessons DAY and EVENING...Years on 14th St. GRADUATES PROVIDED with POSITIONS.

MRS. CAROLIN'S
MUSICAL BUREAU,
ARTISTS FOR SOCIAL FUNCTIONS.
2 WEST 33D ST.

VIOLIN ARTISTICALLY TAUGHT, EITHER residence; terms reasonable; not payable in advance; references exchanged. CHADWICK, 2 Chambers St.

PAULINE ELLIOTT RYDER.—Violinist for concerts and musicales; highest social, musical references; pupils accepted. Address 43 W. 84th.

SOMETHING NEW!—Piano taught in 3 months without notes; accompaniments a specialty; PROMONTORY, 150 West 14th St.

DESIRE ORATORIO SOCIETY SOPRANO OR equally good reader to complete social quartette. P., 104 East 55th St.

VIOLIN STUDIO, 100 WEST 23D ST.—Advantage to beginners and advanced pupils; private or classes; terms reasonable.

MONSTER PAINTING, BEETHOVEN AND other uncommon musical things. RIVERSIDE, 1,209 Broadway.

MUSICAL.—COWEN, 327 East 16th, near 2d Av. Park. PIANO LESSONS, 24 for $5; single 25c. ESTABLISHED.

Dancing.

10c. per line 3 times 24c 7 times 42c Double for display.

HARVARD DANCING ACADEMY, 158-162 W. 125th St.—Waltz, schottische, two-step, polka, lancers; waltz quadrille guaranteed in 5 private and 4 class lessons, $5; 4 class lessons, $1.

BRADY'S 1,408 Amsterdam Av., 135-137 West 125th St. WALTZ

PROF. D. C. LESTER.—Dancing and polite deportment, Colonial Hall, 101st St. and Columbus Av. Offices hours, 2 to 10 P. M.

AMERICAN, 2,163 8TH AV., NEAR 116TH ST.—Waltz, two-step guaranteed in 10 private lessons for $5.00.

Purchase and Exchange.

10c. per line 3 times 24c 7 times 42c Double for display.

BOOKS OF EVERY DESCRIPTION BOUGHT, sold and exchanged; small parcels or libraries purchased; highest cash prices paid; call at residences free; send postal. LOVERING'S NEW YORK BOOK EXCHANGE, 823 Broadway, near 12th St. Open evenings.

HOUSEHOLD FURNITURE, CONTENTS OF houses and flats, pianos, carpets, &c. J. L., 113 University Place.

Clothing.

HIGHEST PRICES PAID FOR LADIES', GENtlemen's, and children's fine discarded Clothing, Jewelry, Furs, Bric-a-Brac, Furniture, Carpets. Mr. or Mrs. NAFTAL, 744 6th Av.

MADAME BLUM.—Absolutely highest prices for ladies' cast-off evening and street costumes; also furs. 789 6th Av.

MRS. COHEN, 629 6TH AV.—Highest prices paid for ladies' street and evening costumes, jewelry, furs.

Hotels and Restaurants.

10c. per line $4.50 per line for 30 times.

The... Berkeley
Berkeley and Boylston Streets,
BOSTON.
The location is most desirable, being in close proximity to the Back Bay Stations of the New York, New Haven & Hartford and Boston & Albany Railroads, central to all places of amusement, and to the shopping district. Electric cars to all parts of the city and suburbs pass the door.
Special attention paid to the cuisine. Restaurant open till midnight.
JOHN A. SHERLOCK.

THE WALDO "ON THE HEIGHTS" 170 HICKS ST NEAR PIERREPONT BROOKLYN
Newly Furnished and Heated by Steam. Excellent Table. Reasonable Rates. A Delightful Winter Home.
WALDO SPRAGUE, Proprietor.

WHERE TO DINE.
TRAVELLERS' INFORMATION CO.,
3 Park Place (apply to) 25 Union Sq.
A, A la carte; T, Table d'hote; D, Dinner; L, Lunch.

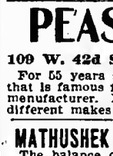
Pompeiian Room, Gilsey House, B'way & 29th New, Original, Unique.
Rector's 44TH ST. AND BROADWAY. Service A LA CARTE.
Dutch Grill & Palm Court, Hotel Navarre, 38th St. & 7th Av. Orchestra. A.
Cafe Boulevard, 2D AVE. & 10TH ST. Tdh. Alc. Hungarian Orchestra.
Burns' World Renowned Rest., 45th St. & 6th Av. Terrapin, Game, Shellfish. Fine Orchestra.
Dorlon's Oyster House, 6 & 7 East 23d St. Open for breakfast at 8 o'clock.
Hotel Metropole, 42d St., B'way. Rathskeller & Palm Garden. A.
Dun Bld'g, Rest. Business Men's Dinner A Café. Lunch. B'way & Reade St.
Maryland Kitchen Don't miss the Maryland Dinner, $1.25. 254 W. 34 St.
Jack's 43d St. & 6th Av., & 74th & Columbus Noted for shell fish and game.
Wallace's Fifth Av. & 19th St. High-class Chop House & Ladies' Rest.
Ye Olde Tavern, 101 Duane. Quaint surroundings. Vidal & Thompson.
Hartmann's Business Men's Lunch. 1 B'way, Mills Bldg. 45 B'way
Cavanagh's 258 W. 23d St. Chops, Steaks, Game, Sea Food. Banquet Rooms.
JACQUIN'S, 54 W. 24th St. A.c. Tdh. (wine) 55c.
Rogers' 6 PARK PLACE. A la Carte. Table d'Hote Dinner, 4 to 7, 50c.
Huber's WILHELMINA CAFE, 7 Av. & 116 St. Lunch & Table d'Hote. A.c. all hours.
West End Hotel, 125th St., near 7th Av. Tdh. D., 50c.; Sunday, 75c. MUSIC
J. PECK, French Tdh., (wine,) 50c. 140 Fulton St



Au chat noir.

32 W. 28th St. Business Men's Lunch, (wine,) 50c.
Table d'Hote, (orchestra,) 75c. A la Carte at all Hours.
And at 551 W. Broadway. Table d'Hote, with wine, 50c.

Pianos and Organs.

10c. per line 3 times 24c 7 times 42c Double for display.

WISSNER PIANOS
Used by Eminent Artists.
BROOKLYN: COR. FULTON ST. & FLATBUSH AV. NEW YORK: 25 EAST 14TH ST.
Second-Hand Uprights of Good Makers.
$85—$125. Grands, $175—$300.

CALENBERG PIANOS
Are among the
VERY BEST
Over 16,000 in use
Tuning, Repairing, Renting
Easy Terms. Open evenings.
23 East 14th St.

THE PIANOTIST
PIANO PLAYER.
An Ideal Holiday Gift.
The Only Player Awarded Medal at Paris Exposition of 1900.
Plays Any Piano. Any One Can Play It. Easily fitted to any piano. Endorsed by leading musicians. Recitals daily. Cash or Installments.
THE PIANOTIST, 503 Fifth Av., Cor. 42d St.

PEASE PIANOS
109 W. 42d St., Just West of 8th Ave.
For 55 years a standard of excellence—a tone that is famous for singing qualities. Direct from manufacturer. Easy terms. Good used pianos different makes $125 up. Write for catalogue.

MATHUSHEK & SON and OPERA PIANOS.
The balance of our Holiday stock at reduced prices. You can obtain a bargain from our large stock of slightly used pianos recently taken in exchange, including some celebrated makes; rents, $4 up.
MATHUSHEK & SON, B'way cor. 47th St.

THE BIG WEST SIDE PIANO HOUSE.
A small cash payment secures for you a fine piano stool and scarf; delivered free; balance on easy payments; rents, $4 up.
741@743 8th Av., near 46th St.

OPEN EVENINGS UNTIL 10 O'CLOCK.
PIANO SPECIALS: 6 small uprights, $40 to $60; $3 monthly until paid. Steinway, $50; Bradbury, $40; Gilbert, $25; $2 monthly until paid. Organ bargains. GOETZ & CO., 81-87 Court St., Brooklyn.

Buy of manufacturer; reliable Connor Pianos; easy terms; renting; exchanging; repairing. Open evenings. 4 East 42d St.

WINTERROTH PIANOS. CASH, INSTALMENTS, $125 UPWARD. 105 EAST 14TH ST. & 98 5TH AV. Open Evenings

MARSCHEIDER, 19 East 14th St.—Guaranteed high-grade pianos; easy terms; bargains in used pianos; price on every piano. Open evenings.

EMERSON PIANOS.—Beautiful new designs; several slightly used; at unusually low prices. Steinway Parlor Grand; rare bargain. GEO. W. HERBERT, 10 East 17th St.

BARGAINS.—Upright pianos, $100 upward; more value for money than elsewhere guaranteed; square, $20 upward; rented, exchanged; easy payments. CHRISTMAN, 21 East 14th St.

ELEGANT MAHOGANY UPRIGHT PIANO, slightly used, for $175; easy payments if desired; fully guaranteed. W. F. TWAY PIANO CO., 94 5th Av.

LIMITED NUMBER OF NEW UPRIGHT pianos; reliable makes; rare chance. Inquire crockery store, 1,047 Broadway, Brooklyn.

STEINWAY; EVERY IMPROVEMENT; BEAUtifully carved; great sacrifice. Elegant Upright, only $75. BIDDLE'S, 7 East 14th St.

SPECIAL SALE OF FINE UPRIGHT PIANOS this week; extraordinary bargains for cash. HAHN, 165 W. 23d St.

$200 New piano stool and scarf, $7 per month. Call at 1,569 B'way, cor. 47th St.

Machinery.

DYNAMOS AND MOTORS, ALL SIZES IN stock, direct from factory of Triumph Electric Co.; send us postal, we do the rest. CHINNOCK ELECT. CO., 39 Cortlandt St., N. Y.

Lawyers.

DIVORCE $50 entire expense. Lawyer GEO. ROBINSON, 99 Nassau.

Lost and Found.

LOST.—LEDGER lost New Year's Eve, between 30th St., Broadway, and Weehawken Ferry; Liberal reward paid for return to H. T. THORN, care Edward Craig Roberts, 18 East 30th St.

GERMAN-AMERICAN SAVINGS BANK BOOK, Sadie Murphy, lost. Finder will kindly return to bank or $20 Broadway.

Horses, Carriages, &c.

10c. per line 3 times 24c 7 times 42c Double for display.

THE DISPERSAL SALE of the entire
BITTER ROOT STUD, property of the estate of the late
MARCUS DALY, will be held at
MADISON SQUARE GARDEN,
Beginning Wednesday evening, Jan. 30.
The sale will include:
"THE GREAT" HAMBURG,
THE CHAMPION TAMMANY, FUTURITY WINNER OGDEN, and nearly 200 other thoroughbred stallions, mares, and horses in training.
The broodmares, just from Montana, are NOW ON EXHIBITION
at
MORRIS PARK RACE COURSE.
They are located in the yearling stables, and can be inspected daily from 10 A. M. to 4 P. M. Special exhibition on Sunday.
WM. EASTON.....Auctioneer
FASIG-TIPTON CO.
Madison Square Garden, N. Y. City.

AT BARGAINS.—BREWSTER RUBBER-TIRED brougham, Daily pneumatic speeding wagon, handsome family surrey, rubber-tired runabout, elegant harness. Private stable, 106 West 16th St.

MANUFACTURERS SELL HANDSOME SURrey! Runabouts! almost new, top wagon; coal wagon. McGUIRE BROS., 178 East 119th St.

Business Opportunities.

10c. per line 3 times 24c 7 times 42c Double for display.

BUSINESS MEN, ATTENTION!
For one week to get your trade.
$5 Buys 500 Letterheads worth 2.00
500 Envelopes " 1.75
500 Billheads " 2.00
500 Bus. Cards " 1.75
7.50 Worth for 5.00 Cash with order.
M. B. ATKINSON, Printer,
1,127 Park Row Building, City, Op.P.O.

FOR SALE—A first-class, well established and paying confectionery and ice cream parlor on Main St., Buffalo, in the very best location; everything in first-class condition; if you wish a business that will pay for itself before the exposition opens investigate this bargain at once; best reason given for selling. For particulars address L. J. WILL, Buffalo, N. Y.

AN EXPERT OF THE HIGHEST ORDER IN stock speculation wishes to associate himself with a live trader on the New York Stock Exchange, with the view of making—not losing; rare opportunity. Thoroughbred, Box 107 Times.

I PAY Cash for any store stocks, fixtures. THOS. TITCHENER, 289 Smith St., Brooklyn.

ADVICE FREE.—Patents promptly procured; Inventors' Guide free. EDGAR TATE & COMPANY, Patent Attorneys, 245 Broadway.

For Sale.

10c. per line 3 times 24c 7 times 42c Double for display.

CREDIT TO ALL WITHOUT SECURITY.
CLOTHING for Ladies, Men and Boys, ready made or to order. Millinery, Furs, &c.
PROGRESSIVE
CLOTHING AND CLOAK CO.,
7 W. 14th St., Bet. 5th & 6th Aves. Open Evenings.

TYPEWRITERS.—Remingtons, Smith Premiers, and all standard makes rented, kept in repair; stands and ribbons free. Sold 25% to 75% less than manufacturer's prices. No relics of past ages carried in stock. Every machine sold kept in repair for one year free. F. S. WEBSTER CO., 317 Broadway. Telephone, 1,338 Franklin.

SPECIAL! CUT THIS OUT!
I have an order for 50 TONS OF OLD METAL and PAPER; if you have any to sell, no matter how large or small a quantity, send me a postal card and I will call promptly. BORNSTEIN, 84 Centre St.

PATENTS ON PAPERHANGER'S COMBINAtion tool and paperhanger's folding table for sale; an excellent chance for party with capital. Address ROBERT G. ODELL, 7 James St., Peekskill, N. Y.

TYPEWRITER, (NEW,) $40; REMODELED Remingtons, Smiths, $35; rentals reduced; repairing, (telephone.) C

LURED BY EMPLOYMENT AD.

Alleged Swindlers Get $500 from Would-Be Employe.

Posed as "Vis Vitene Medicine Company"—Herman L. Cohen, "General Manager," Arrested.

A man who described himself as Herman L. Cohen, and who, the police claim, is a member of a gang of swindlers, was held for examination in the Adams Street Police Court, Brooklyn, yesterday, on a charge of swindling Frank L. Gould of Brentwood, L. I., out of $500.

An advertisement appeared in a Manhattan newspaper on Dec. 16 calling for an industrious young man who was familiar with office work and willing to work for $80 a month. Gould said that he answered the advertisement and received a letter from the "Vis Vitene Medicine Company" of 22 Montague Street, Brooklyn. "Dr. Henry Wilbur" was announced to be President of the company. Gould was requested to call at the Montague Street address, and did so.

He found the company established in well-equipped offices, with a number of clerks and typewriters apparently busy at work. He was greeted by a man, who said he was an officer of the company, and who questioned him about his business experience. This man, Gould says, finally told him that the position advertised was his if he would deposit with the company $500 in cash as security, as it would be necessary for him to handle much money. Gould went home and got the money, his savings of several years, and returned with it next day to the offices of the "company." He claims that he turned the cash over to "General Manager" Cohen, who gave him a receipt for it, and also a mortgage on a farm up in Ulster County, to secure the return of the money.

Gould says that he was told to report for work on Jan. 2. When Gould reached the company's offices on Wednesday morning he was dismayed to find that the company and its stock had disappeared. He hurried to Police Headquarters and reported the matter to Deputy Chief McLaughlin. Detectives Farrell and Roden came across James Coughlin of 305 Henry Street, who had worked in the office of the company as a clerk. Coughlin asserted that he himself had been swindled by the alleged sharpers out of $600. With the aid of Coughlin a decoy letter was sent in some way to Cohen, and his arrest followed.

When arraigned in the Adams Street Court Cohen, who gave his residence as Newark, N. J., pleaded not guilty. The case was laid over to give the police a chance to investigate further. The police expect to arrest the other alleged swindlers.

Coughlin said that the "company" had been carrying on operations in Brooklyn since early in October. He claims that he had turned over $600 to the company and was given a position in the office, but never got any of his money back.

The police believe that the alleged swindlers are members of the Sallg gang of sharpers who have been operating extensively in this city and vicinity for several years.

PHILBIN REDUCES HIS STAFF.

Tryon H. Edwards Resigns—Maurice Blumenthal Refuses to Resign and is Removed.

District Attorney Philbin yesterday requested the resignations of Deputy Assistant District Attorneys Maurice B. Blumenthal and Tryon Hugh Edwards, announcing that the vacancies thus created would not be filled, as the staff of deputies was already large enough. He intimated that he might find it necessary to trim it down somewhat more in the future.

Mr. Edwards, who was appointed about three weeks ago, and who carried Col. Gardiner's answer to the Hummond charges to Albany, immediately submitted his resignation. Mr. Blumenthal refused to do likewise, and protested against the District Attorney's request in a letter, which reads in part:

Referring to our interview at your office this morning in which you requested me to tender my resignation as a member of the professional staff of the District Attorney of this county, at the same stating that there was no reason for your action, I have to say that I respectfully decline to comply with the request.

I take it that the newspapers have quoted you correctly to the effect that removals would be made by you solely on the ground of unfitness. The repeated indorsements of my official conduct by the various Justices of General Sessions, Supreme Court, and Special Sessions, before whom I have appeared on behalf of the People, and to whom I take the liberty of referring you, and my own conscientiousness of a faithful discharge of every professional and public duty ever intrusted to me, impel me to conclude that motives other than a desire to promote public interests prompt your action in this matter.

I do not intend to voluntarily relinquish a public office, my record in which is clear and beyond criticism.

The letter concluded with the intimation that Mr. Philbin's action was prompted by the fact that the writer is a member of Tammany Hall.

Mr. Philbin, upon receipt of the letter, promptly removed Mr. Blumenthal from office. Mr. Philbin said in regard to the intimation that the deputy had been removed because of his affiliation with Tammany Hall that the facts spoke for themselves, as a number of staunch members of that organization had been retained.

John F. Cowan, Deputy Assistant District Attorney, with a salary of $4,000, has been retained. Tryon H. Edwards would have drawn a salary of $3,000 had he remained a year. Mr. Blumenthal, who occupied an office with Croker's nephew, C. E. F. McCann, drew $4,000.

COLER REDUCES OFFICE FORCE.

Dismisses Fourteen Employes Because of Cut in His Allowance.

Controller Coler yesterday announced the following dismissals from the force of the Department of Finance:

Robert McNamara, Deputy Collector City Revenue, salary $1,350.
Otto Stutzbach, warrant clerk, $1,200.
Charles W. Hoadley, inspector, $1,400.
Jacob Manheimer, assistant accountant, $1,200.
Sumner Sweet, John J. Hunify, James H. O'Brien, and Benjamin Karetz, examiners, at $1,200 a year each.
Malachy F. Keane, assistant accountant, $1,200.
Herman Mueller, messenger, $1,000.
Henry Woram, cashier of taxes, Brooklyn, $2,500.
Henry Seeds, assistant accountant, $1,200.
Abram R. Merlette, examining clerk, Bureau of Arrears, $1,250.
William C. Mann, clerk, Tax Office, Bronx, $1,000.

Other dismissals may follow, as Controller Coler's allowance for clerk hire was reduced $30,000 for 1901.

MRS. SCHUTTE WANTS HER CHILD.

Her Husband is Keeping It from Her, and Appeals to the Court.

Charles E. Schutte, the son of Charles Schutte, the brewer, was before Justice Leventritt in the Supreme Court yesterday on a writ of habeas corpus brought by his wife ordering him to produce in court their two-year-old daughter, Veronica Schutte. The child was not in court, and on Mr. Schutte's application the hearing of the writ was adjourned until to-day.

It appears that on Oct. 21, 1897, Charles E. Schutte was married to Gabriella L. White, and that from the date of marriage until February, 1900, they lived together at 305 West Forty-sixth Street. The couple disagreed last February and separated. This was followed by a legal action on the part of Mrs. Schutte, in which she charged her husband with cruelty. He retaliated with an action for absolute divorce.

After these actions were commenced a sort of subsidiary agreement was entered into by which Mr. Schutte was to have possession of the child, but the wife was allowed to have her with her from Saturday to Monday of each week, pending the trial of the various cases in the Supreme Court. Mrs. Schutte claims that this agreement was lived up to until last July, but since then she has not seen her daughter. She says Veronica is now at the home of Mrs. Antoinette Maher, a sister of Mr. Schutte, who lives at 1,188 Park Avenue.

Policeman O'Flaherty's Widow Paroled.

Mrs. Bridget O'Flaherty, who was arrested at her home, 50 Ferry Street, Thursday night, subsequent to the death of her husband, Policeman James F. O'Flaherty, of the Oak Street Station, from the effects of a bullet wound in the head, self-inflicted, the widow claims, because she had upbraided him for leaving his post, was yesterday paroled by the Coroner in the custody of her counsel, pending the inquest into her husband's death. Capt. Vredenburgh of the Oak Street Station said that Mrs. O'Flaherty acted like an innocent woman and that he was inclined to believe her story.

LOST GIRL IS HOME AGAIN.

Mary Radford Explains Disappearance by Saying She Went to Great Barrington.

Mary Radford, a fifteen-year-old girl, of 11 West Ninety-fifth Street, disappeared from home on Thursday morning, and did not return again until yesterday afternoon. In the meantime her father and mother and sisters had wept for her as one dead, or, at least, kidnapped. The police had been told of her mysterious vanishing, the evening papers had announced that she was certainly the victim of some ill-fate, the relatives of the family both in this city and elsewhere had telegraphed that they had not seen her, and the neighborhood of her home had been in a state of wild excitement.

When the lost girl was found she wept and at first refused to say anything as to what had happened to her. At last she said that she had taken a little trip to Great Barrington, Mass., where she had spent the night in a hotel. She did not say what was the name of the hotel. She asserted positively that no one had accompanied her on her journey, saying that she had wanted to get away from home because she had had a quarrel with her older sister.

It was learned that this quarrel took place on Wednesday evening. The older sister, Millie by name, is engaged to be married to a Mr. Bell. He called at the house on that evening. During the early part of his visit Mary was in the drawing room. A conversation between Mr. Bell and Mary is said to have angered the older sister, who, according to the story, lightly tapped the younger on the arm as the latter was passing out of the door. Mary resented the blow, and says that it was the afterthought of this that made her run away.

On the morning when Mary vanished she had an engagement to meet her father on the elevated station at Thirty-third Street, from where they were to go to a physician's office, in Thirty-sixth Street, there to see about having the girl treated for an illness of which she had been complaining for some time. Mr. Radford went to the appointed place and waited for an hour. Then he went home and learned that Mary had left there, ostensibly to meet him, two or three hours before. He immediately took steps to discover her whereabouts. Mr. Radford is well-to-do. He is a real estate broker, and has an office at 152 East Twenty-third Street. There are three children—Miss Millie, Mary, and Annie, the latter being a very small girl.

Mrs. Radford said yesterday, before her lost daughter came home, that Mary was an exemplary girl. Miss Millie said, too, that her younger sister had never done anything that she ought not to have done. Both said that Mary was occasionally late in returning home from school, and that at these times she had told them she rode up town with a friend, spending half an hour or so in that friend's house, in One Hundred and Twentieth Street. Inquiries at the house of the friend showed that Mary had never been there in all her life, so nobody yet knows exactly where she did spend those half hours after school.

REFEREE ALLEGES PERJURY.

Official Appointed to Probe Damage Suit Accuses Lawyer Oppenheim.

Hamilton Odell, as referee appointed by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court to inquire into the charges made by Henry A. Robinson, counsel for the Metropolitan Street Railroad Company against Benjamin Oppenheim, another lawyer, filed his report yesterday. In this report Mr. Odell confirms the charges, but makes no recommendations. The charges grew out of the trial of an accident case.

In May, 1896, Harriet Nugent was injured by a horse car on Madison street, and the next day Mr. Oppenheim began an action for damages. A jury in the Supreme Court awarded $5,000. This case now is up before the Court of Appeals for final decision. Mr. Robinson, in the meantime, made discoveries which he thought warranted asking for a new trial. He presented the facts to Justice Truax, and Wilber McBride was appointed referee. In his report, among other things, the referee said:

"I am convinced that the plaintiff's witnesses, Sadie McDonnell, Mary Langstaff, Ellen O'Reilley and Margaret Fraser, all testified falsely before the jury as to material facts, and that the first two never saw the accident at all, and the last two never saw the things to which they testified. I am further convinced that these witnesses had been coached and schooled in such false testimony by plaintiff's attorneys and that by the latter, to a considerable degree, such testimony was manufactured and inspired."

In the opinion granting the retrial of the case the justices said: "In addition to the perjured testimony, we have the fact that it was inspired and manufactured by one of the plaintiff's atorneys; that he entered into a conspiracy with the witnesses for the purpose of obtaining a judgment, thereoy committing a fraud upon the Court."

It was on these two opinions that Mr. Robinson based his charges against Mr. Oppenheim. The motion for retrial, as well as the appeal from the verdict in the first trial, are still before the Court of Appeals. The findings of Mr. Odell as referee confirm all the charges made as to the procuring of improper witnesses and the manufacturing of false testimony.

LIKE WIFE, HE DIED OF OPIUM.

Police Say Fliege's End Was Due to Use of Drug.

Charles G. Fliege, recently in the employ of a Newark jewelry firm, at 41 Union Square, died yesterday morning in Roosevelt Hospital of opium poisoning. The police say the dead man was a morphine eater, and succumbed to an overdose of the drug while trying to get over the effects of a drinking bout. About 2 o'clock yesterday morning a call on Roosevelt Hospital for an ambulance was made by a woman at 209 West Forty-sixth Street. Dr. Hartshorn responded. He found Fliege conscious. He applied the usual restoratives, and then the patient was taken to the hospital, where he died two hours later.

The police of the West Forty-seventh Street Station investigated the case, and found that Fliege's wife, an artist's model, died of morphine poisoning Sept. 15 last in the New York Hospital. At the time the police described the woman's case as one of suicide. They now say that both Fliege and his wife were addicted to morphine, and that the drug finally got the better of them. Fliege is said to have lived with his sister in West End Avenue.

RUNAWAY BOY IS IN FLORIDA.

Young Grandson of Charles H. Swan Found in Jacksonville.

Charles H. Swan, Secretary of the New York and New Jersey Bridge Company, yesterday was made very happy by the news that his sixteen-year-old grandson, William P. Rockwell, was safe and sound in Jacksonville, Fla. The boy, about four weeks ago, disappeared from Taunton, Mass., where he was staying with William W. Swan, a brother of his grandfather.

Seafaring men in Providence recalled that a boy like young Rockwell had sailed on the three-masted schooner Maud H. Dudley. Mr. Swan sent a letter and picture of the boy to the master of the ship at Jacksonville. The Captain wrote, in reply, that the boy he had shipped was undoubtedly young Rockwell. The lad told him that his father was dead, and that his home was in Jacksonville, so he had given him a passage. The last he heard of him was that he had secured employment in a dry goods store in Jacksonville.

Mrs. Thomas H. Stewart, of the Hotel Cecil, in this city, is the boy's mother, but since the death of his father and her second marriage, he has been cared for by his grandfather, who was planning to secure him an appointment to the United States Naval Academy, at Annapolis. The boy, though he has had no direct communication with his relatives, was found in Jacksonville yesterday and said he intended to stay there. Mr. Swan's associates said yesterday that the lad is bright and honest and will be sure to make his own way wherever he may be.

When you "catch cold," if the doctor isn't handy, take Jayne's Expectorant.—Adv.

Hello! Rogers, Peet & Co.? Say, I'm tied up with a cold; save me one of those marked-down overcoats—guess the $10 kind's good enough.

Pshaw, only for sizes 32 to 34. How much are the bigger ones?

$12.50—well that's about my size.

Hello, what? No, I don't care whether it's rough or smooth, blue or black, so long as it looks well and I'm dollars "in."

!!!!!!!!!!

He didn't give us time to tell him that we had others at $15, small sizes $13; that some of the sensible medium weights were among them, as well as a few ulsters.

ROGERS, PEET & COMPANY.

258 Broadway, cor. Warren, and 7 and 9 Warren St.
569 Broadway, cor. Prince.
1260 Broadway, cor. 32d, and 54 West 33d St.

We fill orders by mail.

LEGAL NOTES.

MEMORIAL MONUMENT JUDICIALLY SANCTIONED.—The refusal of the Supreme Court at Special Term to continue a temporary injunction awarded to Mary L. Parsons, in her suit as taxpayer, to restrain "the Sailors and Soldiers' Memorial Arch Commission of the City of New York" from erecting a proposed monument in Riverside Park, near Eighty-ninth Street, has been sustained by the Appellate Division. Mrs. Parsons claimed that the city held the lands composing Riverside Park upon the trust that they should be kept open as a public square forever, free and unobstructed by any building or other structure upon it which should impede or hinder the view or the free passage of light and air across it, and that the monument, over 100 feet high, would "shut off entirely the view and prospect over or across such lands." Justice O'Brien, giving the unanimous opinion of the court, says it is not shown that the memorial, "situated, as it is, upon the crest of a hill, surrounded by trees and beside a broad driveway on one side and the open river on the other, will impede the free passage of light and air or obstruct the view across the park." The claim that the act of 1893, under which the arch is proposed to be erected, is unconstitutional, as attempting to authorize an expenditure of city money for some other than a city purpose, is discussed at some length, and the Court comes to the conclusion there was "included in the object sought more than the expression of patriotic sentiments, the purpose and effect of the erection of the proposed monument being permanent and actual benefit to the entire community. The erection of a beautiful monument or memorial is serving a public purpose. It is not only an expression of patriotism; it contributes to the education, the pleasure, and the cultivation of the artistic sense of the citizens of the municipality."

***

RIGHTS OF MARRIED WOMEN.—The question whether a creditor of a wife can reach by attachment or judgment her interest in an ordinary policy on the life of her husband, after the policy has matured and before payment of the proceeds, was decided in the negative by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court, in an opinion announced yesterday, upon appeal by the Manhattan Life Insurance Company of New York from a judgment secured against it in a suit brought by Louis Amberg and Sheriff Grell. Nearly two years ago Amberg procured an attachment against Branche Bourbon, which was levied upon her interest in a policy issued by the Manhattan Company on the life of her husband, Emanuel Bourbon, which became due in May, 1899. Then this suit was brought in aid of the attachment, by Amberg as judgment creditor, and the Sheriff levied upon the funds, which were still in possession of the insurance company. The Appellate Division has reversed judgment given in favor of the plaintiffs. Justice O'Brien, giving the unanimous opinion of the court, after reviewing the various statutes granting exemption in favor of a wife, and the leading adjudications upon the subject, says: "If we disregard the ordinary rules applicable to other contracts in which the wife has an interest, and keep in mind what was the intent of the Legislature with respect to a wife, the policy as construed by the courts, we think a distinction must be made 'between a policy which has become payable, with the money to pay it, and the proceeds of such policy when actually paid,' because, if the intent is, as the language seems to imply, that the net amount is payable to the wife, then the exemption of the statute exists until such payment is actually made to her. We regard the reasoning of the cases holding that the interest of the wife in a policy before maturity is exempt as equally applicable to her interest after maturity and before the proceeds are actually paid to her, because to hold otherwise would be to limit the scope of the statute and defeat the legislative intent, which undoubtedly is that the sum or net amount shall be first paid to the wife for her own use, free from the claims of her own or her husband's creditors. The protection of the wife is aimed at; the payment to her the thing guaranteed."

***

STOCK EXCHANGE MEMBERSHIP BY NON-RESIDENT.—The Appellate Division, in the opinion of Justice Rumsey, announced yesterday, holds, in authorizing the dismissal of the writ of certiorari obtained by William Lemmon, that the latter's privilege as member of the Stock Exchange, for which he was assessed for $20,000, was not capital invested in his business, within the meaning of Section 7 of the tax law, and that he was therefore not taxable upon it. It appeared from the papers, among other things, that Mr. Lemmon, a resident of New Jersey, invested no money in his sole business of buying and selling stocks upon commission on the floor of the Exchange. The fact that the privilege of membership might be property did not, the Court says, necessarily make it taxable. The tax law provides that non-residents doing business in the State, either as principal or partner, shall be taxed on the capital invested in such business as personal property at the place where such business is carried on, to the same extent as if they were residents of the State. "When we speak of the capital invested in a business," Justice Rumsey says, "we mean the money which is put into that business with the intent that it shall be used in the transaction of the business. Money cannot be said to be invested in a business when it is used only to buy the right to engage in a business which does not require the use of money, or the privilege to transact business which calls simply for the exercise of skill, experience, or learning. If one buys the goodwill of a partnership, he certainly cannot be assessed for the value of that good-will. So, if a man buys from a physician or a lawyer a portion of his profitable business, no one would ever think of assessing him for the value of the good-will which he bought. But if he were assessed in respect either of his interest in a business firm or his interest which he bought from the physician or the lawyer, he would be assessed for the value of the assets of that firm which were used in the transaction of the business which he bought. So a non-resident who is to be taxed upon his capital is to be taxed 'to the same extent' as if he were a resident. That means necessarily that he is to be taxed upon the same sort of property, and that property is to be valued at the same rate as if it belonged to a resident. That kind of property which is within the jurisdiction of the assessor is that described in Section 2 of the statute. If the non-resident has property of that kind which he uses in the transaction of his business in this State, no matter whether it is real estate or personal property, he is to be assessed upon it as personal property. But he is to be assessed to the same extent as a resident. That is to say, in getting up the amount of the assessment, the same considerations are to apply as to what constitutes property in his hands as apply to a resident, and when it is ascertained what constitutes his property, he is to be assessed at the same valuation and otherwise."

***

THE "STONE LAW" CONSTRUED.—It was only by a bare majority of the members of the Appellate Division that Ralph J. Treat secured from that tribunal a peremptory writ of mandamus requiring the Controller to pay the amount earned under a contract for the construction of sewers in One Hundred and Eighty-second Street, between Washington and Third Avenues, in this city. The prevailing opinion, by Justice Hatch, is concurred in by Justices Ingraham and McLaughlin, the latter basing his concurrence upon the strength of the Rogers case, and stating that but for that case he would vote for an affirmance of the decision of the Special Term refusing to grant the writ. Presiding Justice Van Brunt gives a dissenting opinion, which is concurred in by Justice O'Brien. The refusal of the Controller to deliver the warrant was based upon the claim that Mr. Treat had violated the requirement of the law of 1895, in using upon the work dressed or carved stone not worked, dressed or carved within the State. The Court does not pass upon the constitutionality of the act of 1895, holding that from the terms of the law the contract was not rendered invalid by reason of the fact that the stone used was dressed or worked in a foreign jurisdiction. It would still be competent for the city, Justice Hatch says, to accept the work and pay therefor. "Indeed, the city is bound to pay, if it accepts. That which would work a forfeiture of the contractor's rights under the contract would require a revocation of the contract; and, until this is done, the contract stands. It is conceded that this contract has never been revoked. On the contrary, as we have seen, the city has adopted the same as completed, has certified to its proper completion in accordance with its terms, and is now enjoying the benefits of the contractor's labor. This condition creates a liability to pay in accordance with its terms, and such liability is created entirely independent of any matter which the opposing papers present." The Court adds, in conclusion, that the act of the Controller in delivering the warrant "is a mere ministerial act, and it does not lie in his mouth to question liability under the contract, in the absence of any claim upon the part of the city that the contract price has become forfeited, or affirmative act upon its part or of action upon the part of a person duly authorized to have the contract declared forfeited."

***

EVICTION BY OFFENSIVE ODORS.—In an action brought in the Municipal Court by Esther B. Marks against Nicola Dellaglio, to recover for rent reserved by a written lease, the defense set up was an eviction caused by the landlord suffering a nuisance to be maintained upon portions of the premises not included within the defendant's lease. An order of the Appellate Term reversing judgment of the Municipal Court, dismissing the complaint, has been reversed by the Appellate Division. The proofs showed that defendant kept a barber's shop on the ground floor of 4 Chatham Square. Underneath was a cellar, which was occupied by another tenant, and above the defendant's shop was a lodging house, in which were accommodated about 250 persons. For a long time offensive odors were noticed by the defendant's employes and customers. The attention of the plaintiff's agent was called to this condition, and he promised to rectify the evil. The nuisance became worse and worse, and finally Dellaglio's business was broken up. He abandoned the premises in June, 1897. Justice Patterson, giving the Court's opinion, says: "The only ground of the reversal by the Appellate Term is that the defendant, by retaining possession, waived his right to repudiate or terminate the hiring, and that he was required to act with reasonable promptitude. Without questioning the rule, as a general proposition, we think it is plain in this case that the defendant only waived conditions existing at the time he paid each month's rent, before June, 1897, and that when he then found the condition of the premises to be so much worse than it ever had been before he was justified in leaving and standing upon his legal right to claim that he was evicted."

***

RESPONSIBILITY OF MUNICIPAL COURT CLERKS.—The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court, in dismissing the three charges against Howard Spear, Clerk of the Second Municipal Court, Borough of the Bronx, upon application for his removal for violation of duty, finds that he has been guilty of carelessness and neglect in a degree which calls for censure. Having regard, however, to the circumstances and the evidence given upon the trial, the court concludes that Mr. Spear had not wilfully violated or evaded any duty which devolved upon him, or that he intended to commit a fraud upon the city, or to convert any of the money which he retained to his own use. In conclusion, Justice Hatch, giving the unanimous opinion of the court, says: "To some extent, at least, the facts which have been found in this case call for the censure of the officer by the court, and in calling attention to the matters somewhat in detail, we desire to place upon the record, for the benefit of this clerk and others similarly situated, the views of the court respecting such offenses, and to say that failure to correct such matters after attention has been called thereto may furnish sufficient ground for removal, although they be not more heinous in character than such as appear in the present case. Custom, a somewhat new practice, a loose construction of rules for official conduct, and somewhat strained relations between the clerk and his assistant, are doubtless responsible for the existence of conditions which are here found present. It is quite possible that future misconduct in this respect may not receive so favorable a construction as we have concluded that these acts ought to receive in the present case."

***

MEMBERSHIP IN BENEFIT ORGANIZATIONS.—Because he refused to pay a fine for bringing a suit against the Sciacca Association, in New York, Stefano Marinello was suspended from membership in that organization. An order denying Marinello's application for mandamus against the association compelling his reinstatement has been reversed by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court, in an opinion by Justice O'Brien. The case was decided on Monday last, but the opinion was not made public until yesterday. While the relator was ill in January, 1899, he claimed some sick benefits, which were refused, on the ground that having for a time prior to his illness been in arrears for dues which he had finally paid, he was not entitled, under the by-laws, to receive sick benefits until thirty days had elapsed after he had regained his status as a member of the society in good standing. Marinello threatened suit, and, notwithstanding that he was warned that if he did so he would be fined, he instituted an action, which was dismissed. Not paying the fine which was imposed, he was suspended. The relator's petition showed that the association received dues from him for two successive months after the imposition of the fine, and Justice O'Brien holds that this action was a waiver of any right the association had to resort to the harsh remedy of ejecting the relator from the society, and thus depriving him of all his privileges as a member. The Court says it is doubtful whether a by-law which attempts to interfere with the right of members to resort to the courts is void.

***

CIVIL SERVICE AND MUNICIPAL ASSEMBLY EMPLOYES.—Frank J. Martin, who was removed from the position of clerk in the office of the City Clerk, was yesterday ordered reinstated by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court in an opinion by Justice Patterson. The relator was a clerk of the Board of Aldermen of the old city, and was by virtue of Section 1,536 of the Greater New York charter transferred to the service of the greater city. His contention was that he was entitled to reinstatement upon the ground that he was in the classified civil service, and also that he was entitled to restoration under the provisions of Section 1,543 of the Greater New York charter. It is on the latter position that the court finds for Martin, saying that the relator is expressly excepted from the classified civil service by the provisions of Section 8 of Chapter 370 of the Laws of 1899, defining the classified and unclassified service. Justice Patterson says it cannot be controverted that Martin stood in the position of a regular clerk within the meaning of Section 1,543 of the charter. "His position was one under the Consolidation act, with definite duties assigned to and performed by him. By force of a provision of the Greater New York charter he was retained in the service of the new City Government, and put in a position similar in character to that which he had held under the old municipality. He was regularly appointed, regularly inducted into office, had regular duties to perform, and received a regular annual salary. That is to say, everything connected with his appointment to the position and his compensation to be paid was regulated by law, and he was entitled to the protection which the law gave him from peremptory removal."

***

LIQUOR TAX CASE.—The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court has affirmed a decision of the lower court denying the application of the Rev. John Q. A. Henry for the revocation of the liquor tax certificate issued to Frank E. Moran for a hotel at 501 Sixth Avenue. The clergyman, who is the Superintendent of the New York Anti-saloon League, made charges against Moran of violation of the Liquor Tax law on Sunday, May 6, 1900, and other days. The Justice at Special Term denied the motion to cancel the certificate after testimony had been taken before a referee. The Appellate Division, in an opinion rendered "per curiam," reviewed the testimony, which shows that there were fifteen sleeping rooms in the house, that only male guests were admitted, that seventeen servants were employed, and that the establishment was, apparently, respectable. On the charge that liquor had been sold at forbidden hours, there was a flat contradiction, and the lower court held that the preponderance of proof was not with the petitioner. Another charge was that a view of the barroom was obstructed by screens, or wooden cabinet work, in contravention of the law, on Sunday. It was shown, however, that Moran's instructions to his servants were to remove the panels during forbidden hours. Although this charge is a technical one, the court remarks that it would be the duty of the court to revoke the license if it were satisfactorily proved. But the evidence to sustain such a "technical charge" ought to be such as to satisfy the judgment and conscience of the court. The Justice at Special Term evidently was not satisfied of the sufficiency of the evidence in support of the charge, and, under the circumstances, the Appellate Division does not feel warranted in interferring with his decision. The order is affirmed.

BROADWAY AND 11TH STREET.

Cotton Sheets and Pillow Cases.

SHEETS.

Size,	54 x 90	Hemmed,	40c.	Hemstitched,	48c.
"	63 x 93 1-2	"	47c.	"	55c.
"	72 x 93 1-2	"	52c.	"	60c.
"	72 x 99	"	55c.	"	63c.
"	81 x 99	"	61c.	"	69c.
"	90 x 93 1-2	"	63c.	"	71c.
"	90 x 99	"	66c.	"	74c.

PILLOW CASES.

Size,	45 x 38 1-2	Hemmed,	14c.	Hemstitched,	18c.
"	50 x 38 1-2	"	16c.	"	20c.
"	54 x 38 1-2	"	18c.	"	22c.

JAMES McCREERY & CO.,
BROADWAY AND 11TH STREET.

ANNUAL FINANCIAL REVIEW.

The New York Times

Monday, January 7.

SPECIAL FEATURES:

CONTRIBUTIONS BY

Secretary of the Treasury Lyman J. Gage.
Secretary of Agriculture James Wilson.
Statistical tables showing total exports and imports of the United States for 1900 prepared for THE NEW YORK TIMES by Government experts.
Statement of the crop outlook by the statistician of the Department of Agriculture.
Archer Brown, an authority on the iron outlook.
List of large corporations organized in the United States during 1900, showing capitalization of several billion dollars.
Review and outlook of cotton by President Walmsley of the New Orleans Cotton Exchange.
"The National Balance Sheet," by Maurice H. Muhlemann, Deputy Assistant Treasurer of the United States.
Special articles by experts in their respective lines, reviewing prospects for cotton, coal, corn, wheat, provision, and other markets for year 1901.
Special railroad articles by James J. Hill, President of the Great Northern Road, and S. R. Callaway, President of the New York Central Road.

The New York Times
Daily One Cent.
Sunday Three Cents.
"All the News that's Fit to Print."

Amusements.

NATIONAL ACADEMY OF DESIGN.
76TH ANNUAL EXHIBITION.
American Fine Arts Galleries, 215 West 57th St., January 5 to February 2, inclusive.
9 A. M. TO 6 P. M. 8 TO 10 P. M.
ADMISSION 25 CENTS.

CHILDREN'S THEATRE.
CARNEGIE LYCEUM. 57th St. and 7th Av.
EVERY AFTERNOON AT 3 O'CLOCK.

KEITH'S R. G. KNOWLES, JOHNSTONE BENNETT, JOHNSON & DEAN, CUSHMAN, HOLCOMB & CURTIS, Streator Zouaves, Ward & Curran, etc.

WEBER & FIELDS' FIDDLE-DEE-DEE MUSIC Evgs. 8:15, Sharp. HALL. Mats. Tues., Sat., 2 and Burlesques of Gay Lord Quex and A Royal Family.

METROPOLITAN TEMPLE.
GRAND CONCERT TO-NIGHT.
Junior Orchestra and special talent.

Come To Our Stores.

Yesterday's prices on many of our finest Suits were $28, $25, $22 and $20.

To-day they're down to $15.00, and the full value of the old prices is strikingly prominent in every one of them.

☞ This sale will prove to be a very attractive bid for January buyers and well worth waiting for.

Hackett, Carhart & Co.

3 BROADWAY Stores: Cor. 13th St. Cor. Canal St. Near Chambers St.
Stores Open This Evening.

Silks.

Exhibition of New Foulards and Liberty Satins for the Spring Season.

James McCreery & Co.,
Twenty-third Street.

Amusements.

METROPOLITAN OPERA HOUSE.
GRAND OPERA SEASON 1900—1901.
Under the Direction of Mr. Maurice Grau.
This Afternoon, at 1:45—DIE WALKURE, (in German.) Mmes. Gadski, Schumann-Heink, and Termina; MM. Van Dyck, Blass, and Bertram, Conductor, Damrosch.
To-night, at 8, at Popular Prices—IL TROVATORE, (in Italian.) Mmes. Nordica and Olitzka; MM. Campanari, Journet, and Dippel. Conductor, Flon.
Sun. Ev'g, Jan. 6, at 8:15—Grand Popular Concert. Soloists: Mmes. Suzanne Adams, Maryill, and Bridewell; Messrs. Saléza, Campanari, and Plancon, together with entire Met. Opera House Orchestra. Conductor, Mr. Damrosch.
Mon. Ev'g, Jan. 7, at 8—AIDA, (in Italian.) Mmes. Gadski and Homer; MM. Jean and Ed. de Reszke, Journet, and Scotti. Conductor, Flon.
Wed. Ev'g, Jan. 9, at 8—LOHENGRIN, (in German.) Mmes. Nordica and Schumann-Heink; MM. Jean and Ed. de Reszke, Muhlmann, and Bispham. Conductor, Damrosch.
Fri. Ev'g, Jan. 11, at 8—LA BOHEME, (in Italian.) Mmes. Melba and Fritzi Scheff; MM. Saleza, Gilibert, Journet, and Campanari. Conductor, Mancinelli.
WEBER PIANOS USED.

TOSELLI
CARNEGIE HALL,
TUESDAY EVENING,
JANUARY 15.
The Knabe used.

FRENCH BALL
of the
CERCLE FRANCAIS DE L'HARMONIE
Madison Square Garden,
TUESDAY, January 8.
Boxes and tickets at Clubhouse, 24 West 26th St., and principal hotels.

MENDELSSOHN HALL.
Second Concert...Tues. Ev'g, Jan. 8, at 8:15
KNEISEL QUARTET
Assisted by Mr. GEORGE PROCTOR, Piano.
Programme: DVORAK, Quartet, E flat major, Op. 51; CAESAR FRANK, Quintet for Piano, two Violins, Viola, and Violoncello, F minor; BEETHOVEN, Quartet, C major, Op. 59, No. 3. Res. seats $1.50, now at Schuberth's, 23 Union Sq.

MENDELSSOHN HALL.
SAT., JANUARY 5, AT 3 P. M.
THIRD PIANO RECITAL
GABRILOWITSCH
Seats $1.00 and $1.50, on sale at Schuberth's, 23 Union Square, on and after Dec. 24.
EVERETT PIANO USED.

Proctor's 28d St. | 5th Ave. | 58th St. | 125th St. — Continuous Performance. 15, 25, 50c. Vaudeville. Geo. W. Monroe, Clifford & Huth, Staley & Birbeck, Grapewin & Chance, Papinta, Marcel's Living Statuary; Rose Coghlan & Co., Finneys, Lew Hawkins, Newsky Troupe, 3 Mortons, 3 Yoscarrys; Geo. Day, St. Onge Bros., Etc. Russell Bros., Lew Sully, Banke & Wiesna Winters, John E. Camp, Etc.

ST. NICHOLAS
SKATING RINK
69 WEST 66TH STREET.
HOCKEY MATCH.
CUTLER SCHOOL vs. POMFRET SCHOOL, TO-NIGHT. AT 8:15 O'CLOCK.
Music. Admission, 50 cts. Skates free.

EDEN MUSEE — WORLD IN WAX. New Groups. CINEMATOGRAPH. Extra Holiday Attraction, Jas. R. Adams Pantomime Co. "HUMPTY DUMPTY." Neapolitan Troubadour Orchestra

BIJOU, B'way & 30th St. Mat. To-day, Ev., 8:20. Tel. 2224 Mad. Madge Smith. TUES., JAN. 15 — AMELIA BINGHAM presents her COMPANY in Clyde Fitch's latest modern play, THE CLIMBERS

CARNEGIE HALL.
To-day at 2:15. To-night at 8:15
To-morrow Night at 8:15.

SOUSA AND HIS BAND
Blanche Duffield.....Soprano
Bertha Bucklin.....Violinist
POPULAR PRICES.

BROADWAY Theatre, 41st St. & B'way. Evgs. 8:15. Sat. Mat. 2:15. FUNNIEST OF FUNNY MEN! JEFFERSON DE ANGELIS In Klein & Francis's Laughing Hit, A ROYAL ROGUE. MATINEE TO-DAY.

HERALD SQUARE THEATRE. Every Eve'g 8:20. LAST MAT. TO-DAY. Farewell Performances—Last Time To-night. Augustus Thomas' Masterwork, ARIZONA. Next Monday, 8 Sharp—Seats Selling—THE GIRL FROM UP THERE.

KNICKERBOCKER. Broadway & 38th St. —ADA— REHAN. Evs. at 8:25. Mat. To-day. "SWEET NELL OF OLD DRURY."

THE DEWEY E. 14th St. To-morrow MATINEE TO-DAY. RAMBLER BURLESQUERS. NEW LIVING PICTURES. Night—Grand Concert, 25c., 50c.

Hammerstein's 42d St., B'way & 7th Av. Matinée Prices, 50c. 75c. 1.00 VICTORIA Ev. 8:30. Mat. To-day, 2:15. Vaudeville Surprise. DRESSLER MISS PRINNT

Koster & Bial's 34th St. West — La Loie Fuller — & 20 others. MATINEE DAILY. Sunday Mat. & Eve. Concerts, 1:45-7:45.

MURRAY HILL THEATRE, 42d St. & Lex. Av. Matinee Every Day, 25c. This Week—WHY SMITH LEFT HOME.

Amusements.

EMPIRE THEATRE. B'way & 40th St. Evgs. 8:20. Matinées, 2:15. "Decided Success

The New York Times.

SATURDAY REVIEW OF BOOKS AND ART.

SUPPLEMENT TO THE NEW YORK TIMES.

Copyright, 1901.
THE NEW YORK TIMES COMPANY.

NEW YORK, SATURDAY, JANUARY 5, 1901. SIXTEEN PAGES.

CONTENTS.

Two Biographies. Page.
The Abbé Fouard's "Last Years of St. Paul" and "Brownson's Later Life." Reviewed by the Rev. JOHN WHITE CHADWICK..... 1

City Museums.
Steps Taken for Art in Syracuse and Buffalo—Striking Things Done in England..... 2

Bachelors.
Ten Who Have Been Famous in Several Walks of Life..... 16

Forward Movements.
Mr. Pierson's Summary, with Special Reference to Mr. George's Junior Republic..... 15

American Literature.
Prof. Barrett Wendell's Important Volume in the Literary Histories Series..... 6

Colonization.
History of It from the Earliest Times..... 5

Baroness de Bode.
Interesting Memoirs Relating to the French Revolution..... 12

James II.
An Honest Man, Though an Incompetent King.. 3

London Literary Letter.
By WILLIAM L. ALDEN..... 13

The Hoosiers.
Indiana in History and Literature..... 4

Books That Are Books.
What Parents Should Avoid.—Letters from Readers..... 7

Stephen Phillips.
His Personality, Associations, and Family..... 11

Other Books Reviewed.
"The Works of Robert G. Ingersoll"..... 6
Hartmann's "Shakespeare in Art"..... 2
West's "Edmund Fulleston"..... 6
Mrs. Gilman's "Concerning Children"..... 4
Joaquin Miller's "True Bear Stories"..... 11

The Sketch Club..... 4
The Twentieth Century Critic..... 8
Pater in an Edition de Luxe..... 8
On the Value of Bartlett..... 8
Poor McDonald Clarke..... 8
Mrs. Dorr's Paper on Rowland Robinson..... 9
Topics of the Week..... 1
Notes and News..... 14
Books for the Shy Girl..... 9
Hints from the Mailbag..... 10
Queries and Answers..... 12
Books and Authors..... 14

The New York Times
Saturday Review.
$1 Per Year.

TOPICS OF THE WEEK.

We hear from England that "the Tammany ring in New York are in despair, for Mr. Robert Barr is to expose their iniquities in a two-hundred-thousand-word novel." But far more important is the announcement of a "History of Tammany Hall," by Gustavus Myers, who for the last five years has been industriously engaged in examining every court record, legislative proceeding, and city document which could throw light upon the working of the society. Not the least interesting feature of the forthcoming publication is the difficulty that Mr. Myers has encountered in attempting to secure a publisher. One well-known house, while praising his book and the motive which inspired its writing, replied: "We should hardly feel warranted in locking horns with Tammany." The appearance of the book on Jan. 15 will be due to the efforts of a few public-spirited citizens.

A new novel by Julien Gordon, under the title of "Mrs. Clyde," a story of a social career, is in active preparation at D. Appleton & Co.'s. Broadly speaking, it is a novel of American life, containing glimpses of Boston, Washington, and New York society, and while it is said that certain of the characters are susceptible of identification, there is no final authority for this. It is said to be written in Mrs. Van Rensselaer Cruger's characteristic, insinuating style.

The eloquent address on "Abraham Lincoln," which Ambassador Choate delivered Nov. 13 before the Edinburgh Philosophical Institution will be published in this country with complete text by Thomas Y. Crowell. The fragments of this address which appeared in the cable dispatches at the time show it to have been one of Mr. Choate's finest literary efforts. Apropos of this publication, it is also interesting to note that Lord Rosebery's address, "Questions of Empire," delivered before the students of the university at Glasgow on Nov. 16 last, is also in active preparation at the same house.

An important historical work which Longmans, Green & Co. have in preparation will be W. H. Wilkins's "Caroline of Anspach," in two volumes. The work is intended to be a description of Court life and manners of English society during the reigns of the first two Georges. Prince George of Wales, with his wife Caroline, went after the latter's quarrel with his father to live in Leicester House, where the Princess's crowded receptions afforded abundant material for social portraiture. The Duchess of Marlborough remarked at the time that Queen Caroline "never was half an hour without saying something shocking to somebody or other, even when she intended to oblige, and generally very improper discourse for a public room." The work is believed to furnish much valuable material for the theatre, for it is made up of entertaining dramatic incidents.

The author of "Elizabeth and Her German Garden" may be said to have created a vogue for the garden tale, which we doubt not will increase in intensity with the coming of Spring. "How the Garden Grew," by Maude Maryon, published a short time ago by Longmans, Green & Co., is already in its second edition. "Seven Gardens and a Palace," by E. V. B., published by John Lane, has reached its third edition, while the call for "The Chronicle of a Cornish Garden," by Harry Roberts, also published by Mr. Lane, shows no diminish in the interest of its readers. Apropos of the "Cornish Garden," it may interest some to know that Mr. Roberts is a physician in the Old World Cornish town of Hayle, a few miles from St. Ives. His book shows that he possesses not only extensive garden lore, but also a rarer quality, which almost moves one to rechristen his book "Harry and His Cornish Garden."

Shakespearean scholars of even average means will be glad to learn that the Oxford University Press is about to issue an absolutely correct reproduction of the First Folio of Shakespeare. The work will be a fac simile by the Collotype process. For this purpose the Duke of Devonshire has loaned the Chatsworth copy of the First Folio. Mr. Sidney Lee will contribute a brief introduction and will give a list of all known copies of the First Folio, with entertaining and valuable bibliographical details.

The amount of controversy aroused in orthodox religious circles through the Middle West by the publication of James Lane Allen's "The Reign of Law" is brought to a focus by the appearance of a thirty-two-page brochure published by The Macmillan Company in an appropriate wrapper. In the pamphlet we find an article by President McGarvey of the College of the Bible, in the University of Kentucky; Mr. Allen's reply to the same, a sermon preached in Kansas City by the Rev. J. E. Roberts, an article by Rabbi A. Moses of Louisville, Ky.; a sermon by the Rev. John W. Chadwick of Brooklyn; also opinions are expressed at more or less length by the Rev. E. L. Powell of Louisville, Ky.; the Rev. David Utter of Denver, Col.; the Rev. Leigh Gordon Giltner of Eminence, Ky. The writers in the pamphlet are for the most part mutually antagonistic, and as much fine rhetoric has been expended in attacking Mr. Allen and rehabilitating the College of the Bible as has been put forth in showing that Mr. Allen's novel was a social and not a theological study. And all we can say, after having read the pamphlet, is that "The Reign of Law" was needed.

The Outlook is a monthly magazine which while at first tentatively offered to fill a supposed vacant niche has now made the contents of that niche almost indispensable to persons who desire an admirable contemporaneous record of the development of the various phases of culture, politics, and sociology. The January number is a representative publication of this periodical. It contains, among other features, an article on the pictorial, architectural, and art aspects of the Paris Exposition by F. Hopkinson Smith. Mr. Booker T. Washington presents the tenth installment of "Up from Slavery." There is also a readable article on the work of George Borrow, one on "The American Women's College in Constantinople," and one on "Two German Dramatists," by Edward A. Steiner, while Mme. Blanc has an article on "The French Novel and the Young Girl."

The current number of The World's Work contains an anonymous article entitled "New Tendencies in Publishing." It is evidently the work of a bookbuilder of experience and enterprise. In nervous, terse language it shows how conditions in the writing and selling of books have changed during the last few years. It sheds a few tears over the passing of the old-time bookseller, and it emphasizes the fact that the future opportunities of the United States for the production and distribution of good books are almost infinite. Says the writer: "We have as yet taken no thought of foreign bookselling, * * * but we must soon do so. We sell to the English houses editions of American books, which they in turn sell to the colonies. It certainly will not be many years before we are seeking and finding foreign markets of our own, just as other American manufacturers are doing." This intimation that the book is a commodity, like any other production of skilled labor, may be distasteful to literary artists, but its general acceptance will mean greatly increased profits to those who publish books.

TWO BIOGRAPHIES.

The Abbe Fouard's "Last Years of St. Paul" and "Brownson's Later Life."*

Reviewed for THE NEW YORK TIMES SATURDAY REVIEW
By John White Chadwick.

The Roman Catholic reader will accept this book as entirely trustworthy and enjoy it without any doubts or difficulties whatsoever. It is published with the formal and express consent of the ecclesiastical censor and the Archbishop of New York. The book is written in a attractive manner, though how much of this is due to the original writer and how much to the translator is indeterminable. The original form must have been very admirable if the translation abates anything from its excellence and charm.

For the Protestant reader, and for such a one of this description as has made himself acquainted with that critical study of the New Testament which has proceeded since 1835, and had its "seeds and weak beginnings" even before Strauss's "Leben Jesu" of that date, the book will have an entirely different interest from that with which the Roman Catholic mind will be inspired. It will be useful and instructive to him to see with what fine indifference those opinions at which he has arrived are regarded by the Abbé Fouard, and, with him, by the entire body of the Roman Catholic communion, clerical and lay. For this author, it is as if Strauss had never existed, or Baur or any of the Tübingen school, or Holtzmann or Harnack or any of the writers who have qualified the results of these critics or worked on equally scientific but quite independent lines. There is, indeed, a reference to Harnack and the reader is given to understand that he has reacted violently from the average result of the "higher criticism," so called, in no pretentious sense, but merely to distinguish it, as a criticism of books as wholes, from a criticism that is merely textual. Against such an understanding of Harnack's position the reader must be on his guard. Prof. B. W. Bacon of Yale Divinity School has recently published an "Introduction to the New Testament," the temper of which is quite conservative, and yet his radicalism is far more pronounced as compared with the Abbé Fouard's than that of Baur and Zeller and their kind as compared with Prof. Bacon's.

What Prof. Christie writes of Prof. Bacon's book is true of Harnack's recession and that of others from the Tübingen criticism: "It will be seen that the conservatism is all a matter of detail, and that, measured by precritical days, he gives no comfort to those whose conservatism belongs to the sphere of doctrinal interests." Indeed, Harnack's present position is much more radical in some respects than that of the old Tübingenists. Note, for example, his view of the St. James Epistle as a gnomic anthology drawn from Jewish, Christian, and Greek sources and of a date as late as Hadrian's reign. His opinion of the "Second Epistle of Peter" is as unfavorable to its authenticity as that of Baur. This is equally true of his opinion of the pastoral epistles, and of that to the Hebrews it goes without saying. Indeed, the recession of Harnack from Baur amounts to little more than a cordial acceptance of the Epistle to the Philippians as a genuine Pauline production and a qualified acceptance of the Epistles to the Ephesians and Colossians. So far as the Gospels are concerned, Harnack's recession does not include his adhesion to the Johannine authorship of the Fourth Gospel, and he could no more write of the Epistle to the Hebrews as the Abbé Fouard has written than a contemporary astronomer could entertain the Ptolemaic astronomy.

The relation of the Abbé Fouard's book to the higher criticism is central to its validity as a construction of St. Paul's later life, so elaborate is the use he makes of the epistles traditionally ascribed to St. Paul. One might say of his book as the Koran says of itself: "There is no doubt in this book." Of the fourteen epistles assigned to Paul in the New Testament, thirteen are conceded to him without the least misgiving. As regards the Epistle to the Hebrews there is some slight concession to the unanimity of scientific criticism in oppugnance to its Pauline character. It is confessed that it stands on a somewhat different footing from the other epistles; that it was long before the early Church accepted it so confidently as the others; but the brief discussion comes round to the conclusion that the epistle, if not written by St. Paul, was written, or at least inspired, by "another man of the same name." We are assured that it is not its substance but its form that is non-Pauline. The scientific critics have not so conceived. As the most sacerdotal of the epistles, it is of course the last one of the fourteen that a pious Romanist would be willing to give up.

The Abbé Fouard's chronology of St. Paul's later life, reflecting as it does the traditional conception, fixes the various dates of its events at one extreme, of which Harnack's revised opinion in regard to them represents another. For it will be remembered that Harnack moved back all the dates of Paul's various experience several years, bringing his death within the earlier years of Nero, and throwing it out of all relation to the Neronian conflagration and persecution. To my thinking, there have been criticisms on Harnack's chronology which invalidate its general accuracy. But his discomfiture does not imply a recurrence to the traditional scheme, with a journey into Spain after 64 and the Apostle's death in 67 A. D.

*THE LAST YEARS OF ST. PAUL. By the Abbé Constant Fouard. Translated with the author's sanction and additions by George Barry O'Toole. With maps. 12mo, pp. 384. New York and London: Longmans, Green & Co. Crown 8vo, pp. [illegible]

As with regard to the Pauline chronology, so with regard to the general attitude of the Abbé Fouard toward the subject matter of his book: an ounce of tradition is worth more to him than a pound of historical investigation. Even those traditions which are overstrong for the robust digestion are so palatable to him that he cannot give them up. He is generally persuaded that they represent some bidden truth; that they have some kernel of reality. Like Dean Stanley in his "Jewish Church," he resolves to be very sternly critical, and then, like Rip Van Winkle, he "treats his resolution," and generally succeeds in taking back all he has given away; all, at any rate, that he cares for. So strong is the resemblance of the narrative to the Neronian conflagration and the subsequent persecution to "Quo Vadis?" that one half expects that historical romance to be quoted as an unimpeachable authority. For all his devotion to tradition, (partly because of it,) the good Abbé's method of writing history bears an intimate likeness to that of a writer whom his soul must utterly abhor—Renan! But Renan's genial persuasion that Sts. Paul and Peter met in Rome is here a fundamental fact. (Renan never outgrew his Roman Catholic reliance on traditional elements.) It is superfluous to say, in conclusion, that "the primacy of Peter" is a dominant factor in the representation, and that any violence to the New Testament material that is made necessary by the dogmatic aim is accomplished in the most bland and childlike manner that could be realized or that can be conceived.

Orestes A. Brownson is little more than a name to many of his countrymen, to others not so much as that, now that he has been a quarter of a century dead. Yet in his earlier life the heat of intellectual combustion kept the Boston teapot in a state of lively ebullition, and further on he was a protagonist much prized and then not a little doubted by his coreligionists of the Roman Catholic Church. The first volume of his life, which has been written by his son with a filial piety that does not make him entirely blind to possible defects, brought him by a devious and troubled way to his conversion to the Roman Catholic faith almost simultaneously with J. H. Newman's. During the early course it might be truly said of him that he was "everything by turns and nothing long." No man ever had a more controversial disposition. The punishment which Sydney Smith devised for Macaulay in case of his ill-fortune in another world—to put him in the midst of a lot of disputants and gag him—would have been as intolerable for Brownson as for Macaulay. Once safe within the Roman fold, his disposition was at first that of Newman, who on the day of his submission encountered as the office for the day the story of St. Denis's walking about after his martyrdom with his head under his arm. The good priest offered to omit this as too strong a dose for a beginner, but Newman insisted that he would stick at nothing. So Brownson, who was at first inclined to the opinion of Sir Thomas Browne—"there are not impossibilities enough in religion for the exercise of an active faith." At first he had no inclination to adduce intrinsic evidence as well as external authority for his Roman Catholic belief. His controversial zeal was not exhausted by his attacks upon the Unitarians and others with whom he had walked aforetime. It found objects within the bosom of the mother Church. The Roman Catholics were too catholic for him. They hesitated to say that all Protestants would be eternally damned. So did not he. They were too anxious, he thought, to make their opinions acceptable to Protestants. They would put molasses on the proffered bread. He would dip it in castor oil or "something equally good." One of those against whom he came up with sword and shield was the great Newman himself. Brownson found his development of "Christianity" dreadfully unsound. There was no development. The early Church had a plenum of truth, and that explicitly.

Such was the temper of Brownson's middle course. "It was only after his removal to New York (in 1855) that he was encouraged by those whose opinions he valued in that city to adhere to the plan he entertained of allowing his mind to act more freely and independently. His new friends were Hewit and Hecker and other Paulist Fathers, representing that type of American Catholicism which the Roman curia has lately condemned, in the person of Archbishop Ireland and in Father Hecker's writings. It was Brownson's idea that Catholicism in America must slough a good deal of its European impedimenta and adapt itself to our republican institutions and ideas. Archbishop Hughes was one of the gods who saw otherwise, and Brownson's collisions with him were frequent and occasionally dramatic. Twice the Archbishop berated him in public; once at Fordham, where Brownson had given an oration before the Jesuit College. Having delivered his soul, the Archbishop marched out to a banquet that had been prepared, and the Jesuits followed him obsequiously, leaving Brownson to wait alone and dinnerless for the train that would take him home. Brownson was generally as deep in politics as in religion, and here also found himself in opposition to the Archbishop, and to many other Roman Catholics who were apologists for slavery and disloyal to the Union in the civil war. Brownson himself was not strongly anti-slavery. He hated the Abolitionists, and hardly less such anti-slavery men as Sumner and Seward. But when the war developed he forsook his Democratic friends and joined the Republicans, only to find himself, as usual, in opposition to his new allies, and one of the most venomous censors of Lincoln's policy and character. The domination of American Catholicism by the American Irishry was with him a standing matter of regret.

In fact, the material for a good Romanist was not in him. He fancied otherwise and protested that it would cost him nothing to retract any error authority might point out in his writings. But, whatever he had retracted, he would have reiterated before long or have committed some grosser fault. He was essentially an individualist and independent, and could never rest except as he was on the move. After the discontinuance of his own Review in 1864 he became a frequent contributor to The Catholic World, then the organ of the Paulist Fathers. But soon a tide set in that carried him backward from the liberal views of Hewit and Hecker. They found him an uncomfortable ally, keeping them on "the anxious seat" much of the time. He fell out with them and ceased writing for them altogether. The suspension of his own Review in 186[illegible] had left an aching void which was filled and comforted by its resumption in 1873. His breaking health compelled its discontinuance in 1875, and this, with death and other changes in his family, took him to Detroit, where his son had made his home. There he rallied his strength for an article which was published in the first number of The American Catholic Quarterly Review. It was one more plea, and the last, for reason, with authority, as the foundation of Catholic truth. Even in his ashes lived their wonted fires. After so many shipwrecks he came to port on Easter Monday, 1876. He was a man of strong and restless intellect and unique personality, having the defects of his qualities to an eminent degree.

JOHN WHITE CHADWICK.

Shakespeare in Art.*

As this book does not pretend to be an exhaustive catalogue of all the paintings and illustrations connected with Shakespeare and his work, its value very largely depends upon the quality of the author's discrimination, and perhaps the worst we should say of this is that it does not conform to our own. He seems to have chosen for reproduction if not the least inspiring examples from the large amount of material at his disposal, certainly not the most interesting. In the text, however, he has mentioned many important and beautiful drawings and pictures, a large number of which are comparatively unknown by even the well-informed public. While his critical comment is very unequal, he has one or two noteworthy enthusiasms, for example, Cruikshank's "Life of Sir John Falstaff," which he appreciates with both feeling and discernment. Concerning Mr. Sargent's work, he is unfortunate in his comments, feeling, for example, that it is "impossible" for him "to create a sober, characteristic" portrait, despite the evidence to the contrary afforded by the noble portrait of Booth which hangs in the Players' Club, and which Mr. Hartmann can hardly have missed seeing at one time or another. In the chapter devoted to portraits of actors, it is a pity not to find Humphrey Johnson's dignified and beautiful portrait of Sarah Bernhardt as Hamlet. Although of books about Shakespeare there is no end, there is certainly no reason why one made on the plan of the present little volume should not be both entertaining and informing, and Mr. Hartmann's attempt will at least prepare the way for more comprehensive work in the same field, which, so far as we know, has not yet been covered.

After His Manner.

Tesla, the inventor, promises something new in the way of scientific discovery. He is a very promising young man.—Bridgeport (Conn.) Standard.

---

*SHAKESPEARE IN ART. By Sadakichi Hartmann. Illustrated. Pp. v.-371. 16mo. Cloth. Boston: L. C. Page & Co., 1901.

CITY MUSEUMS.

Steps Taken for Art in Syracuse and Buffalo—Striking Example Set in England.

The inaugural exhibition at the Syracuse Museum of Fine Arts was opened last week, having been briefly delayed. The opening was without formality, but this quiet and unostentatious character of the function was not, perhaps, unbecoming. There are about a hundred pictures on exhibition, the list including enough good works by modern American artists to make a fair display in that field of art. Among the more prominent pictures are Chartran's portrait of Pope Leo XIII., Edwin H. Blashfield's "Angel with the Flaming Sword," which was at the World's Fair, and works by Monet, George Inness, Constable, John La Farge, Kenyon Cox, and others, the list forming an interesting catalogue. The present exhibition is not permanent. Some of the works will remain for a month, some for three or six months, and others for a year. The places of those removed will be filled, and during the Winter it is expected that there will be special exhibitions. The pictures, pending the construction of a gallery—of which there is not an immediate promise—are hung in rooms in the Onandaga County Savings Bank Building, a big fire-proof structure in the centre of the town. The rooms are open daily from 10 A. M. to 10 P. M., and Sundays, Mondays, and Saturdays are designated as free days. At other times an admission fee of 25 cents is charged. For the further maintenance of the museum this year the City of Syracuse has appropriated $10,000, making it thereby a public institution. Thus a very interesting, suggestive, and important step is taken in the establishment in this State, and even in this country, of municipal art galleries in cities of other than the first class, Syracuse having a population of only 108,000. It should be added that the most prominent and active worker for the Syracuse Art Gallery is Prof. George F. Comfort, who, when a resident of this city many years ago, was instrumental in founding the Metropolitan Museum of Art. From that fact the important step gains not a little encouraging promise.

The establishment of a municipal art gallery in Syracuse, with the recent gift of the funds to erect a beautiful art building in Buffalo, makes pertinent some account of the city museums of fine arts in England. These are a striking feature of that higher development of the civil corporation, as compared with ours, which may there be found. When we read of Boards of Aldermen conducting loan and permanent exhibitions of art that are of distinguished merit, we feel that we are reading of a Utopia far removed from the probabilities here. The example of Syracuse suggests, however, that we have been too faint-hearted.

A recent English law favors greatly the establishment of municipal art galleries, classing them with the public libraries as supportable from the rates. A result of this is that the city gallery is to be expected almost as certainly as the city library. But it is to be observed that the law merely supplements private beneficence, not substituting public largess for it. In Birmingham, for instance, where the gallery is very fine, including, perhaps, the best pre-Raphaelite collection, the rates provide only for maintenance. The pictures and other art objects have been either presented to the city, or have been purchased from one of two funds which are themselves the sum of many gifts. The one amounts to $100,000 and the interest alone is available, the other is formed from private subscriptions.

Nearly all the galleries conduct special loan exhibitions from time to time. In Manchester a regular order has been adopted; in having always an exhibition of water colors in Summer, of oils in Winter, of the work of the local artists in Spring, and one of some special character in the Autumn. The temporary exhibitions greatly enhance the instructive value of the gallery, and do much to maintain its popularity. The writer, in a recent tour of English municipal galleries, secured some figures. In Birmingham the first loan exhibition was devoted to pictures by Burne-Jones and George Frederick Watts. It was open for three months, and attracted more than 400,000 visitors. In 1887-8 a collection of pictures by English artists from the Manchester Jubilee Exhibition was shown in the Birmingham gallery, and attracted 100,000 persons a month for three months. In London a Turner exhibition in the Corporation galleries, surrounded as these are by national collections, was attended, in 1899, by 300 persons an hour during the three months it was open. The exhibitions of the work of the local artists are generally turned to account by charging a 5 per cent. commission on the sales, following the Royal Academy plan. In Liverpool pictures valued at $1,000,000 have been sold in twenty-five years, and the city has drawn from commissions and the admission fees to exhibitions some £80,000 from which to make purchases. In the Manchester gallery the rooms on one side of the grand staircase are those of the permanent exhibition, while a suite on the other side is devoted to the loan exhibitions. A sixpence fee is charged for admission to the latter; and the curator, when asked how the local artists felt in regard to the payment of a commission on sales, replied that the plan was acceptable, as they had no other expenses. If an artist sold nothing he had nothing to spend, for the gallery even pays for cartage. It usually also buys at least one picture from the local exhibition, by way of encouragement. Manchester annually appropriates for the purchase of pictures the same sum that Syracuse has given for maintenance. There is no requirement, however, that the £2,000 be spent each year, and the gallery has accumulated from unexpended balances a reserve of several thousand pounds, to be available when exceptional opportunities arise.

In their educational function these English city galleries are not entirely passive. There is little encouragement of copying, and privileges are seldom extended to pupils at the school of art which the public may not also enjoy; but to reach and instruct the public a conscious effort is made. In the corporation gallery at Glasgow important lectures have been given; in Manchester the informal instruction of personal conversation, by the curator or his assistants mingling with the stream of visitors, has been found efficacious. Birmingham pins its faith on penny catalogues, these reaching such large sales that it is possible to make them quite elaborate. There is, also, a general effort to impress the people with the sense of their personal ownership of the gallery and its treasures, and the collections are housed in the centre of the city. Sometimes they are even in the City Hall. The galleries also loan pictures to schools and public institutions.

To the sense of personal ownership is doubtless due the good order uniformly maintained, and the absence of any loss by injury or theft. In Birmingham the gallery had been opened thirteen years and had been visited by more than 9,250,000 persons before a single article was missed. When the Manchester collection was opened thirty policemen were employed. Admission was free, the gallery was centrally situated, and it was not known what respect would be shown to the works of art. After a while the number of policemen was reduced to fifteen, and now only one is on duty, and he sits at the turnstile, and has, he says, nothing to do. Yet the average number of visitors to the permanent collection is fully 300,000 a year. The gallery is open on Sunday, but the attendance is not equal to that on week days. This may be due, however, to local reasons. The English Sunday is very strict, and Manchester is a mere workshop, emptying nearly its whole population into the suburbs at evening and for Sunday.

A glimpse of the history of some municipal galleries may be of interest, as showing their origin and growth. The City of Leicester is not much larger than Syracuse. Twenty years ago it was probably smaller. At that time an Alderman intimated his intention to give £500 with a view to starting a gallery under the auspices of the School of Art. A few public-spirited gentlemen met to talk the matter over, and decided to place the scheme on a broader basis by putting the proposed gallery in control of the Town Council, under the Public Library and Museums act. The Mayor appealed to the public for funds, and about $12,000 was contributed. Then some valuable pictures were given, and in and the gallery was opened as a corporate institution. It is maintained by a grant of about £400 a year from the museum tax, and is managed by a committee of seventeen, of whom nine are members of the Town Council. In addition to the pictures owned there are always some that have been lent, and the familiar cases of art objects which are on loan from South Kensington Museum—that great power house of artistic inspiration to all of England.

The City Art Gallery of Manchester sprang out of the old Royal Manchester Institution, inaugurated at a public meeting in the Exchange in 1823. A resolution was adopted at that time, "that the diffusion of a taste for the fine arts in this populous and opulent district, by establishing a collection of the best models which can be obtained in painting and sculpture, and by opening a channel by which the works of meritorious artists may be brought before the public, are objects highly desirable." The site in Mosley Street was purchased, at a rental of 14d. per square yard, and twenty-one years' purchase. Two years later, in 1825, the present building was begun. The money was raised by subscription, those who gave 40 guineas being made "hereditary Governors," those who gave 25 guineas being made life Governors, and those who gave 2 guineas being made annual Governors. For years the Royal Institution, as it was called for short, was closed for nine months of the year, and, coming before the public with only an Autumn exhibition, proved little more than a private concern. Finally, about twenty years ago, in response to popular interest, the Trustees and the Corporation made an agreement. A new Board of Governors was chosen, in which the City Council had a two-thirds representation, the city agreeing henceforth to maintain the gallery and to appropriate £2,000 a year for purchases for twenty years. The collection has since increased rapidly also through the gifts of citizens, whose civic spirit was aroused when the gallery became thus public property, and the Corporation has now bought land sufficient to double its size.

The Liverpool and Birmingham galleries are much finer than either of the foregoing. A very large nucleus for the one at Liverpool was a gift to the city from Sir Andrew Walker. It is rich in paintings and in drawings of the old seaport that are coming to have local historical value. The Birmingham collection contains art objects of all kinds, as befits an industrial city, and the full list of gifts that have been made to it is most impressive. It should be said, however, that the Governors by no means accept all that is offered. This gallery also dates, in its present form, from 1880, when, through the great generosity of two citizens, a large fund was raised for the purchase of pictures. The present gallery cost £80,000, and the Corporation is now putting up a new and larger building.

In such records as these there is nothing but encouragement, and the movement starting in Syracuse, Buffalo, and Rochester—where also there is public agitation for a gallery—is full of promise.

CHARLES MULFORD ROBINSON.

JAMES II.

An Honest Man, Though an Incompetent King—Miss Seawell Justifies Her Attitude in "The House of Egremont."

To The New York Times Saturday Review:

In a recent issue of THE NEW YORK TIMES SATURDAY REVIEW I find a remarkably fair and appreciative criticism of my new book, "The House of Egremont." I gather from it that THE SATURDAY REVIEW thinks the historical part of the story, and especially the tenderness with which James II. is treated, is open to suspicion. But these doubts are expressed with so much courtesy that it gives me an opportunity to justify my history. I am glad to do this in a journal of THE SATURDAY REVIEW'S standing—the more so as great numbers of otherwise well-informed persons are of the same opinion as THE SATURDAY REVIEW, and for the same reason. This is that popular and current historics concerning James II. and the Revolution of 1688 are for the most part heaps of falsehoods. In fact, it is hard to find anything going by the name of history which gives the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth concerning this particular epoch. The seeker after truth must go to State documents, to private memoirs, and biographies. Of these I searched a great number for the historical background of "The House of Egremont." I am also much indebted to a very valuable modern work, in two volumes—"The Duke of Berwick" and "James II. and the Duke of Berwick," by the late Col. Charles Townsend Wilsun of the Royal Army. It is from these studies I discovered how unworthy of belief was most of what goes by the name of history relating to James II. and William of Orange. The great stock slanders against James II. cannot be proved. You speak of him in your REVIEW as "the butcher of the Bloody Assizes." There never has been the smallest proof produced connecting James II. with Judge Jeffreys's infamies. The Duke of Buckingham, who should know if anybody did, says: "The King compassioned his enemies so much as never to forgive Jeffreys in executing such multitudes of them in the West, contrary to his express orders." But it is of proof that James strongly and publicly condemned Jeffreys, and refused to admit him again into the royal presence after the Bloody Assizes. And it is also of proof that James pardoned Hook, who had conspired to shoot him; Ferguson, who had drawn up Monmouth's declaration, and Story, one of Monmouth's chief supporters, all of whom had forfeited their lives. Besides, he mitigated the sentences of many other persons engaged in Monmouth's rebellion. So much for the "Bloody Butcher."

The execution of the Duke of Monmouth is gravely denounced in school histories as a frightful act of cruelty. But it is difficult to see how any sovereign could have done otherwise. Monmouth had been forgiven once—an act of doubtful morality on James's part. To have pardoned him again would have been a shocking abuse of pardoning power, and would have again plunged the country into civil war.

Of the charge that James wished to impose the Catholic religion upon his subjects, there are not only his own solemn denials—and no man ever impugned James Stuart's word—but a mass of corroborative testimony to the contrary. It is true that in his letter to the Pope James admitted that he wished to spread the Catholic religion, but that is not saying that he meant to impose it upon his people against their will. Col. Wilson says:

Although it has often been stated that James had resolved to restore Catholicism to supremacy, there is no proof of any such determination. Nay, from first to last he asserted that he only meant to procure "toleration and equality of privileges for his Catholic subjects." * * * It is remarkable that those who most bitterly assail James II. for, as they hold, endeavoring to bring about the predominance of a Catholic minority in England shall be the very persons who clamorously advocated the ascendency of a small Protestant minority in Ireland. *** *

The Act of Toleration which cost James his three kingdoms did not apply solely to Catholics, but secured religious liberty to dissenters of all descriptions. In the will made by this alleged bigoted and proscriptive King, three months after the birth of his son and before the landing of William of Orange in England, occurs this charge to his son and successor, that "no man shall be molested in his person and estate for conscience's sake." He also gives this sound advice to his son, to "take no revenge upon his own or his father's enemies, but never to trust them." How great was the inequality of Catholics and dissenters under the law may be found in the penal code of that period. James himself had been in continued danger of being brought to the block, merely because he was a Catholic, and the innocent wife of Charles II. had shared that danger for no greater crime. James had been repeatedly driven from the kingdom, separated from his family and subject to every indignity from the moment he became a Catholic. Nevertheless, he opposed the revocation of the Edict of Nantes, and welcomed over 50,000 Huguenots to England. Lord Clarendon says that both Queen Mary and Queen Anne admitted to him that their father had respected their religious convictions. Col. Wilson says in regard to the Act of Toleration, as it applied to the army: "Protestants occupied every important post in the royal army. Not one of them had been disquieted on that account, but on the contrary, they had all been highly favored by James." The first outbreak against James occurred because of his permitting a few Catholic officers to serve in the army. To prevent this, William of Orange brought over, among other troops, 4,000 Dutch Catholic soldiers and Irish was forcibly escorted from his kingdom by these very Dutch Catholics, a situation not without humor. James II. may be called the father of the British navy. A brave and capable sea officer, he was among the earliest to proclaim that the sea was England's first line of attack and of defense. Marshal Turenne and the Prince de Condé are recorded as saying that he was more insensible to fear than any man they had ever known. That he ran away from England and gave his kingdom to the usurper there can be no doubt. But it is of proof that the shock of his nephew's conduct and the horror of his daughters' behavior unhinged his mind, and he had then the first of those paralytic strokes the third of which carried him off thirteen years later. He had frequent attacks of delirium after the landing of William of Orange, and when he submitted to be sent out of the kingdom he could scarcely be reckoned mentally responsible. Clarendon says the citizens of London beheld "with rage and cursing a British sovereign departing from his kingdom escorted by twelve boatloads of Dutch soldiers." And when Lord Feversham read the inexplicable order of the King disbanding the army, many soldiers wept, others swore. (Ellis's correspondence.) Immediately 25,000 out of 35,000 men deserted. (Luttrell.) The Scots Guards mutinied, and it took three Dutch regiments to subdue them. From this dates the Mutiny Act in the British Army. William of Orange garrisoned London with Dutch troops, and would not permit an English soldier within twenty miles of the town. This is what our old friend Thomas Babington Macaulay calls a popular revolution.

If the notorious treachery of certain Bishops—especially Sancroft, Bishop of London—brought reproach upon the Established Church, many of her Bishops and clergy nobly redeemed it by their uncompromising loyalty to their oaths to King James. One-third of the clergy of all ranks refused to take the oath to William of Orange, and gave up their livings rather than outrage their consciences. And of the most uncompromising Jacobites, not one in a hundred, perhaps, was a Catholic. In James's own bodyguard at St. Germain there were not more than four out of a hundred.

For James as a sovereign not much can be claimed. An honest, well-meaning man, brave as all the Stuarts were, except for the short time he was mentally unhinged, James was nevertheless totally unequal to governing the English people. His brother, Charles II., a much cleverer man, required all his astuteness to do it, and then did not manage it very well. James did it conspicuously ill. But that he deserved the name of villain cannot be found in any single particular. To quote once more from Col. Wilson:

Three days afterward * * * James II. died, bearing himself to the last with a noble fortitude. * * * The misdeeds and weldoing of James II. have not been conceded in these pages. We know him to have been a blind and presumptuous ruler, but we cannot deny that he was a firm friend, a considerate master, a sincerely religious man. If his temper was harsh, no massacre of Glencoe can be laid to his charge. While his political infatuation and private frailties are freely censured, let not the lying, the ingratitude, the unnatural treachery which overthrew him be slurred over, if not absolutely justified. * * * Pen and ink, so merciless to James Stuart, have portrayed William of Orange as an angel of light.

A study of William of Orange must create in every fair mind admiration for his extraordinary genius in the art of governing. But for the character of a cold-blooded villain he is unsurpassed. A bad husband, he used his wife to destroy her father, who was at the same time his uncle. Unlike poor James II., William used liars for his own purposes, but was too sharp to be deceived by them. He robbed the English people for his own benefit and that of his tools, and gave up his loot when compelled to, coolly and without shame or protest. He received from 1688 to 1697 the £50,000 yearly granted by Parliament to his mother-in-law, Mary Beatrice, and put the money in his pocket, while she was scantily clothed and fed at St. Germains. At the peace of Ryswick he was compelled to promise that the Queen of James Stuart should get this money. He made her payment of £11,000, and continued to absorb the grant. When an investigation was undertaken by Parliament in 1695 of the means used by the East India Company to have its charter amended, £10,000 of the company's corruption funds was directly traced to William's pocket. William explained that he thought it was a kind of regulation tip to the sovereign. Nevertheless, he wisely prorogued Parliament immediately. The details of the trial of Sir John Fenwick are worthy of the Borgias. No reason is known for William's bringing this brave old Scotch officer to the scaffold in defiance of the rules of English criminal procedure except that Sir John had laughed at William's strategy in the low countries. Superstitious persons noted that it was a horse of Sir John Fenwick's which gave William his mortal hurt. It would take too long to number the lapses of William of Orange as a husband, a son, a sovereign, and a man, but one instance more may be given. Luttrell, a perfectly credible witness, says, under date of April 24, 1689, that 2,000 Jacobite soldiers "secured and confined in the Isle of Wight are shipped in two of his Majesty's men-of-war, who are to carry them to Hamburg as a present from our King to the Emperor, to be employed against the Turks." Nice way that of disposing of a couple of thousand of honest soldiers.

In Lord Campbell's "Lives of the Chief Justices of England" he notes that in every debate of the public schools and universities on the question "Was the revolution of 1688 justifiable?" it has invariably been decided in the negative. I am not in this communication dealing with so large a question as that; I am only trying to prove that James II. was an honest man, though an incompetent King, and William of Orange, though a great man, was about as bad as they are made.

HOLLY ELIOT SEAWELL.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 31, 1900.

HEROD

A Tragedy in Three Acts, by

STEPHEN PHILLIPS

FIFTEENTH THOUSAND.

Price, $1.50.

"Herod" was produced at Her Majesty's Theatre, London, Oct. 31, by Mr. Beerbohm Tree. Following are some comments by the London press:

THE TIMES:

"That Mr. Phillips has the poet's imagination all who have read 'Paolo and Francesca' must be well aware. Has he the imagination of the dramatist? That was the first question raised by his 'Herod,' and the performance of this tragedy last night leaves no doubt about the answer. Mr. Phillips has not only the technic, the 'fingering,' but also the bold, visualizing imagination of the dramatist.

"Here, then, is a noble work of dramatic imagination, dealing greatly with great passions; multicolored and exquisitely musical. Though it is 'literature' throughout, it is never th literature of the closet, but always the literature of the theatre, with the rapid action, the marked contrasts, the fierce, beating passion, the broad effects proper to the theatre. In other words, Mr. Stephen Phillips is not only a poet, and a rare poet, but that still rarer thing, a dramatic poet."

THE DAILY NEWS:

"The drama possesses the sovereign quality of movement, and it is even prodigal in the matter of dramatic situations. To this we have to add that its dialogue speaks the language of passion and is rarely encumbered by mere descriptive or reflective passages."

THE OUTLOOK:

"Mr. Phillips has done a blank-verse play which is not only poetry of the purest water, but dramatic poetry. In 'Herod' he has given us a poem of rare beauty and distinction, rich in music and color, and in striking thought and image. If he should never write another line, his 'Herod' will remain a pillar of dramatic imagination on which its author and the manager who produced it, and the public who applauded it, may each and all look back with pride."

THE SPECTATOR:

"The purely dramatic quality of the play is surprisingly high. There remains the literary quality of the verse, and here, too, we can speak with few reservations. Mr. Phillips's blank verse is flexible, melodious, and majestic."

POEMS. By Stephen Phillips. Ninth Edition. - - $1.50
PAOLO AND FRANCESCA. By Stephen Phillips. Twelfth Edition. $1.25
MARPESSA. By Stephen Phillips. Illustrated, 50 cts. Leather, 75 cts.

Modern Pen Drawings: European and American.

The special Winter Number of "The International Studio." Small folio. $1.75 net.

A remarkable production for the price. Contains special articles on the illustrators of the various countries of Europe and of America, with a very large number of examples of the works of the artists. Edition limited to 1,000 copies. All the other special numbers of this magazine are out of print.

JOHN LANE, 251 Fifth Avenue, New York

MR. GARLAND'S BEST WORK.

THE EAGLE'S HEART

A Story of the West. By HAMLIN GARLAND. 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

"Displays sincerity and rugged strength."—CHICAGO RECORD.

"The variety of the story is as noticeable as its vigor and dramatic power."—NEW HAVEN PALLADIUM.

"Original, inspiring, and full of humanity."—SPRINGFIELD UNION.

"Race of the West."—DETROIT FREE PRESS.

D. APPLETON & CO., Publishers, New York.

THE SKETCH CLUB.

On looking backward, it seems as if the pioneer artists of New York had better times together than the artists have to-day. The record of their jealousies and strifes—which were many—seems to have been written in a fading ink, but their comradery and their boyish zest of life stand out illuminated by the charm which colors all the past, and is nowhere seen more brightly than in the history of the old Sketch Club, the precursor of the Century Club of to-day.

In Colonial years the club spirit had not been very strong in New York, and of the few clubs which existed at the time of the Revolutionary War, such a large proportion were blighted, or entirely brought to an end, by the hard feeling and excitement of that time that very few new clubs were formed for fifty years afterward. The modern club era may be counted as beginning in 1824, with the formation of the "Bread and Cheese," or "Lunch," club, of which the leading spirits were James Fenimore Cooper, Fitz-Green Halleck, Gulian C. Verplanck, William Cullen Bryant, Robert C. Sands, Philip Hone, Dr. James De Kay, Prof. Renwick, Judge Duer, and Dr. John W. Francis. Bread and cheese were the ballots used in voting for new members, bread being pro and cheese con, and a single piece of cheese decided against admittance. Nearly all the famous Americans of the day and many foreigners were at one time or another entertained by this club, which met fortnightly at some hotel or restaurant. The host of the evening paid all the expenses, and did it in so lavish a way that the club may be said to have eaten its own head off, for at the end of three years the luncheons—which were really dinners—had grown so extravagant that it was thought best to disband it. Lossing says of it: "It had had a happy existence. The inscription on a baby's memorial stone might have been adopted as its own:

"'Since I so soon am done for,
I wonder what I was begun for.'"

But this inscription would have been inapt, for the club seems to have existed both to show what good times bright men can have when they get together and to point a moral against letting the material part of the entertainment overbalance the intellectual, and draw too heavily on the pocketbooks of the members.

This moral was borne almost too distinctly in mind when the Sketch Club was formed, in 1827. C. C. Ingham, its first President, wrote an account of its founding for Thomas S. Cummings, who included it in his "Historic Anoals of the National Academy of Design," for the Sketch Club was, in part, an outgrowth of the struggles of the young academy, and in part of the Bread and Cheese Club.

"The second exhibition of the National Academy of Design was held in the room over Tylee's Baths, in Chambers Street," wrote Ingham. "After the exhibition, the rooms were fitted up with plaster casts and drawing boards, and there the students of the antique school met to receive instruction from the founders of the Academy. One night the teachers were as usual assembled. Previous to the opening of the school, seated in a corner, were Morse, Durand, Cummings, and Ingham. The subject of conversation was the breaking up of that most agreeable club, the Lunch Mr. Ingham remarked that now there was an opportunity for the artists to establish a club. All agreed that such a thing was possible. Mr. Ingham proposed that those present should consider themselves the nucleus of one, which, when established, should be called the Sketch Club, to consist of artists, authors, men of science, and lovers of art, and that Morse should be the first President. Mr. Morse highly approved of the idea, but declined being President, saying that it was enough for him to be President of the Academy; that the person entitled to the honor of being President of the proposed association was Mr. Ingham, who had originated the scheme. Mr. Cummings coincided, and after some further conversation on the rules to be adopted it was agreed to postpone the further consideration of the subject to Wednesday in the following week, and that a meeting should be called at Mr. Ingham's. A meeting of the principal artists was held there, and the rules of the proposed club discussed and adopted. The plan of the Lunch had been for the members to meet at a hotel to be entertained at the cost of the host of the evening. This arrangement was supposed to have caused a rivalry in expense, which led to the breaking up of the club. To avoid a like result the artists determined to have their club as inexpensive as possible, and to attain this end it was agreed that the Sketch Club should meet at the houses of the members, in rotation, and that the entertainment should be confined to dried fruits, crackers, milk, and honey. Mr. Ingham was elected President and Mr. John Inman Secretary. On the election of members it was agreed that a single black should exclude, for the reason that each member in turn entertain the club in his house. It would therefore be improper to force into the club one against whose admission any one had an objection. The first regular meeting took place at the rooms of Thomas Cole. It was a decided success. All the members exerted themselves to please, and everything was agreeable—even the figs, milk, and honey. But on the day after the feast came the pangs of repentance—and many a vow was made that the refreshments of the club should be changed."

The prescribed regimen does not seem to have been abandoned at once, however. The members had it upon their consciences, even when their digestions were not asked to cope with it, and there were various attempts to settle upon some more attractive but still inexpensive fare. But nothing could be decided upon, and the matter was finally left to take care of itself under the common law of the club sentiment. This appears to have been violated but once, the offender being a rich man who had stolen into the fold. Cummings says that this "great outbreak" occurred at a then uptown house on the east side of Broadway, between Broome and Spring Streets. "On that evening, at the appointed hour for refreshments, the drawing room doors were thrown open, and an elegant supper appeared before the astonished guests. A general revolt took place. Protests were entered, remonstrances made; a compromise finally, or, it rather should be said, speedily ensued. It was decided that the supper should be eaten, but that it should be done standing. 'Sitting down' to supper, it was said, was prohibited by the rules. The distinction was a very nice one; so was the supper. Members did not long 'stand out'; chairs were in demand, and in less than fifteen minutes the whole were as comfortably seated as if no such prohibition had ever in the rules existed, and looked as innocently unconscious as if nothing had occurred contrary thereto. More ample justice could not have been done to a feast. Milk and honey never again appeared upon the festive board."

Cummings does not add that the club was broken up after that feast in order quietly to get rid of the rich member and the danger of being demoralized by his dinners, but Mr. John Durand, in his "Prehistoric Notes of the Century Club," says that such was the fact, and Lossing corroborates him without going into detail, so there is not much doubt that some objectionable member was excluded in that way, the dissolution and reorganization of the club occurring in 1830, and making a short and unimportant break in the history of the club.

The original plan of the meetings was that when the host of the evening called the club to order he should give out a subject on which the artists were to draw for an hour, while the poets and other writers filled in the time by making verses—passing their subject around for four-line contributions from each. The artistic work, such as it was, was necessarily an exercise in composition, as the subject given was seldom in sight; so, what with the poets laughing over their jingling medley as it progressed from hand to hand, and with those who were neither artists nor writers casting jokes broadcast about them, the art work of the club was not of a very serious nature. Some historians even overlook the fact that it was the original object of the club, and credit the founding of The Sketch to its literary side, represented by Bryant, Verplanck, and Sands; but early in the forties the club justified its origin by reorganizing itself again upon a more seriously artistic basis. Nevertheless, its palmy days were the old rollicking days, when such subjects as "Raising the Wind" were given out for sketches, and the whole meeting was capable of dropping all other interests to join in the discussion as to the exact size and shape of antediluvial butter churns, and when all other drawing was sometimes dispensed with in favor of the drawing of corks.

The meetings of the club were announced in the daily papers by mysterious advertisements containing only the initials of the club, the initials of the member at whose house it was to meet, and the date. The frequent occurrence of these mysterious advertisements raised a good deal of curiosity, and caused occasional editorial comment, or remarks from correspondents. This curiosity filled the club members with delight, and sometimes a member would answer it. For instance, after one of their advertisements had appeared, a city paper contained the following notice of it, which Mr. Cummings quotes in his annals:

☞S. C.—T. S. C.

The above appeared in some of the evening papers yesterday as an advertisement. Similar ones were quite common a year or two ago, and were then said to refer to the meetings of a gambling club—the same, it was thought, that was afterward broken up in Lumber Street. To which was answered:

To the Editor of the Standard:

My Dear Sir: I am exceedingly grieved to perceive by your paper of this morning that you have fallen into an enormous error respecting the nature and objects of the Seletrated Cociety, to which I have the honor to belong, and the existence of which is occastonally made known to the public through the press, by the apparition of its formidable initials, S. C. You appear to be somewhat alarmed at the portentous aspect of the prodigy; but, my dear friend, let me entreat you to calm your fears—there is no cause for your uneasiness. We, the S. C.'s, are not gamblers, and we entertain as virtuous and laudable a horror of Lumber Street, and its iniquities, as any of our fellow-countrymen. How should be it be otherwise? Are we not Sober Citizens and Sincere Christians? Do we not Sleep Coundly, Sing Cheerfully, Separate Coberly, Speak Censibly, Suffer Courageously, and Sup Comfortably? You seem to think we Shuffle Cards, too; but on the Spotless Character of an S. C., it is not so, and the man who says it utters a Scandalous Calumny.

Since you manifest so much anxiety on the subject, however, I will tell you the honest truth; we are, in fact, a Secret Combination of Sworn Conspirators, and Social Conviviality is but a Simulated Cover for the Sacred Cecrecy of our Solemn Cabal. We are Severe Colts, and our purpose is to uproot Jacksonism and the Republic together. We are pledged for the establishment of absolute monarchy, the United States Bank and anti-Masonry; and we have sworn the downfall of the Regency, the Cherokees, and the odious practice of making calls on New Year's Day. We have Seriously Concluded to have Mr. Van Beuren for King and Mr. Clay for Viceroy over him; but Mr. C. must change his name for Stephen, that he may be, like your Sensible Correspondent, to all intents and purposes an

S. C.

After the Sketch Club had been established for several years, it became known as the "Twenty-one," from the fact that its membership number that number, and stuck there, the twenty-one finding no other man quite suitable to join with them. The much-quoted rules of the club had limited the membership to twenty-one, but, as in the case of most of the other regulations, this one was quite unnecessary, the members being an unwritten law unto themselves. Yet even those who refused to elect a twenty-second member began to realize, as the city grew, that there was scope for a much larger club than the Twenty-one; and so it happened that in December, 1846, or January, 1847, at a meeting of the Sketch, John F. Chapman proposed to found a new club for artists and men of letters—a club large enough to include all men of suitable qualifications. Early in 1847 the new club was organized and named the "Century," because its membership was at first limited to 100—a number which seemed practically unlimited at that time and in comparison with the Twenty-one, though it was soon outgrown, and has been gradually enlarged to 600.

When the Century was founded the members of the old Sketch Club felt bound, as they expressed it, to "rock the cradle" of the new club, and in doing so, their old organization became neglected. The Sketch Club was never disbanded, but its meetings grew less and less frequent, and finally ceased altogether, its last recorded session occurring in 1860. Many of the faithful Twenty-one must have been missing at that time, for the pioneers had done their work, and one after another were dropping from the ranks of the Academy exhibitors, writers, scientists, and jolly good fellows. New men were beginning to take their places—men who had more knowledge, perhaps, but no more love for their callings, and as the last meeting of the old club broke up, some of the cheerful, bent, wrinkled old members must have realized, with more than a fleeting pang, that they were writing finis to an epoch in the history of their art.

M. T. E.

Mrs. Gilman's Volume on Children.*

As one closes Mrs. Gilman's volume of original and illuminating thoughts "Concerning Children," one's first impulse is to exclaim: Wanted—A philanthropist to put it into the hands of all English-speaking parents to whom have been vouchsafed hearing ears and responsive hearts. True, the first effect would be to raise the price of sackcloth and create a "run" upon all banks of ashes; but, once supplied with these useful articles, parents would find the humiliation good for their own souls, and still better in its results upon the souls of their offspring.

Mrs. Gilman has heeded good Dr. Johnson's counsel, and has freed her mind of cant. Her thoughts are her own; they are brightly and deftly put—saving, O shade of Pym, an occasional split infinitive!—and, best of all, she has not only the courage, but the logic, of her convictions.

"The Effect of Minding on the Mind," "Presumptuous Age," and "The Respect Due to Youth" express certain opinions of our own which we have long held in cowardly silence; and, therefore, we naturally find these chapters peculiarly convincing. We wish Mrs. Gilman had added another on "The Descriptive Method of Management." We have known families in which the children were chiefly managed after this fashion—they being present: One grown-up remarks to another, or addresses some tutelary genius in the empty air: "Did you ever see such frightful table manners as Tom has?" or, "I do think Susie has the worst temper I ever knew," &c., ad infinitum. Poor Tom and Susie sit red and silent, and the hapless guest takes off his mental hat in homage to their self-control, fervently wishing the while that the fantastic story of "Vice Versâ" might at once be realized.

If we cannot find our desired philanthropist, we would urge that "Presumptuous Age" be printed as a tract and strewn throughout the length and breadth of all lands. Has there ever been a family that could not adduce examples of the unconscious assumption and tyranny of its elder members, their futile endeavor to coerce a respect they could not command? What Mrs. Gilman has to say on this subject she might well have concluded with a triumphant "Quod erat demonstrandum."

Some of her theories are in advance of the age, and, indeed, it may be that they are too radical for even future acceptance—such, for instance, as are set forth in "A Place for Children" and "Mothers, Natural and Unnatural." But we believe that some modification of them must obtain and that the nursemaid must go.

When we observe how marriages are made, the wonder is, not that so few should be tolerably happy, but so many. In like manner, when we observe how children, even the most carefully reared, are of necessity neglected in their earliest and most impressionable youth, the wonder is, not that there should be so few noble and right-minded men and women, but so many.

We are afraid even the full carrying out of Mrs. Gilman's theories would not do away with "original sin." We confess our sympathies are with the mother of "Mary Don't," quite as much as with the child. "See what Johnny is doing, and tell him to stop," is a pretty safe general order under the present system. But such ethical training as Mrs. Gilman advocates would from the beginning foster all that is best in human nature; the virgin soil would be so occupied with useful, healthful growths that there would be little room for evil weeds, and we might hope that the close of the next century would see not only the "many inventions" of this, but a race as superior to ourselves as the noonday to the struggling dawn.

It is to be hoped that "Concerning Children" will be widely read and thoughtfully considered. It is one of the books that deserve a large and a heedful public.

*CONCERNING CHILDREN. By Charlotte Perkins Gilman. Pp. 298. 12mo, cloth. Boston: Small, Maynard & Co.

THE HOOSIERS.

Indiana in History and Literature.*

In what appears to be an interesting series, called "National Studies in American Letters," and in which "Old Cambridge" and "Brook Farm" have already received recognition, "The Hoosiers" now appears, written by Mr. Meredith Nicholson. It proves to be a thorough investigation of the literary history of Indiana, and the steps by which that State has arrived at its present degree of cultivation, including, for the better appreciation of what that cultivation means and represents, a brief review of the State's political and social history. Mr. Nicholson's book is not in any sense a critical study of Hoosier literature, nor does it pretend to be one, but it gives in compact and readable form the growth of a people from the poverty and ignorance of pioneer days to a condition of prosperity and intelligence pre-eminent in the Middle West, and to the production not only of many creditable writers, but of several famous ones. From the days of the earliest settlement in Indiana, the Hoosier, like the New England Yankee, has had a distinct individuality, and it is very proper that record should be kept of so interesting a contribution to American literature, whatever may be the verdict as to the value of some of it from an artistic point of view.

Of the origin of the term "Hoosier" as applied to native Indianians, the author gives no other explanation than the common one that it a contraction of the phrase, "who's hyer?" but he resents the habit people have of regarding it as synonymous with boorishness and illiteracy. The early Indiana townfolk, he says, were the peers of any of their fellows of the urban class in the Ohio Valley. They came primarily of American stock, and have been influenced much less than the majority of their neighbors in other States by the currents of alien migration that have flowed around and beyond them. As to the existence of a distinct Hoosier dialect, Mr. Nicholson expresses grave doubts. "The real Hoosier," he says, "who has been little in contact with the people of cities, speaks a good deal as his Pennsylvania or North Carolina or Kentucky grandfather or great-grandfather did before him, and has created nothing new." The most striking oddities in Indianians' speech Mr. Nicholson traces to their Scotch-Irish ancestors, and not to the French, Germans, or English Quakers, but the schoolmaster and the dictionary have an effect even in Indiana, he points out, and such oddities are fast disappearing. He even predicts that it will be in the Mississippi Valley and the Trans-Missouri country and not in the South or New England that, in the next quarter of a century, a normal American speech, free of local idiosyncrasies, will first appear.

Mr. Nicholson asserts that as late as 1837 a member of the Indiana Legislature, during the discussion of a proposed school tax, declared that when he died he wanted his epitaph to be, "Here lies an enemy to free schools." At that time no system of common schools had been inaugurated, and the Hoosier, as Eggleston pictured him, was becoming a type altogether too common, when an unlooked-for champion of education appeared in the person of Caleb Mills. This man stands first among those whom Mr. Nicholson calls the "bringers of the light" to Indiana, and he devoted a long life to the cause of free schools in the State.

The Hoosier has become most widely known to fame through his two best interpreters, Edward Eggleston and James Whitcomb Riley, and these are admittedly the two greatest names among Indiana writers. Mr. Nicholson rates both novelist and poet high, not only among writers of their own State, but in the wide field of American authors. In this he is undoubtedly right, but in another chapter he gives what not a few critics will consider absurdly exaggerated praise to Gen. Lew Wallace's literary achievement. Maurice Thompson, first a poet and later a novelist, bids fair to take a place beside Eggleston and Riley, while Booth Tarkington and Charles Major offer promise that the much heralded "great American novel" may yet emanate from Indiana's fast increasing group of writers. Mr. Nicholson shows, too, that there is ability there in all branches of literature. History, poetry, political, and scientific essays, and biography all have their exponents, and the names of literary workers in the Indiana field are nothing less than legion. Mr. Nicholson hints in his preface that he has only mentioned the most significant names, but it is safe to say that many on his list are not known outside the bounds of their own town or at most of their own State. It seems as if, considering the purpose of the series in which his book is to be placed, the author might with profit have carried the sifting process further than he has and yet retained everything distinctive in Hoosier literature. As a book of reference, however, it is doubtless more valuable in its present fulness.

"The Royal Houses of Israel and Judah," by George O. Little, which is being published by Funk & Wagnalls Company, is an elaborate interwoven history of incident and description, the story of which is carried on by means of parallel passages.

*THE HOOSIERS. By Meredith Nicholson. 8vo. Cloth. New York: The Macmillan Company. $1.25.

COLONIZATION.

History of It from the Earliest Times.*

Of the multitude of books that have been inspired by the Spanish-American war or the questions of policy that have grown out of it, "The History of Colonization" is one of the most valuable. It is both timely and exhaustive; a work that distinctly fills a want which, if not long felt, is sufficiently pressing. At this time, when the spirit of American enterprise and American political expansion has gone a-wading in the strange waters of colonial acquisition, something in the nature of a comprehensive chart is demanded. It is of the last importance that we should know by whom and how and under what circumstances the outlying territory of the earth has been settled; what the conditions of success or of failure have been. Nothing less than a review of the whole history of colonization will aptly serve this purpose.

Mr. Morris, in his preface, notes the fact that most of the able treatises written on this subject have been devoted to "special epochs or fields of research, are written from the standpoint of some one nation, or are too technical to be available and interesting to the majority of readers." Building upon the work done in special fields by eminent writers as well as upon the general foundations of history, he has reinforced his labor with an exhaustive bibliography.

The opening chapter of the work deals with the ideal theoretic colony, laying down as fundamental certain "principles" which may be regarded as the accepted maxims of colonial science. These are not advanced as expressions merely of the author's own conception of the causes of colonial success or failure and methods of colonial administration; but, on the contrary, they are in each case supported by citations from writers of acknowledged authority in the field of political economy.

The prime motive for the establishment of colonies, their utility to the parent state, and the preponderance of the advantages or disadvantages of such dependencies, are questions that are discussed thoughtfully. The author notes the classification of colonies as follows: First—Those created or acquired by military force. Second—Those engaged in agricultural pursuits, where farming is the chief occupation of the inhabitants. Third—Those engaged in commerce and trade—consisting chiefly of a few merchants sent out from the parent State to carry on the barter and exchange of commodities with the natives of the region where they reside, and, fourth, those in which the plantation system prevails, devoted to the cultivation of such products of the soil as cannot for climatic reasons be grown in the home country. Penal colonies are alluded to as a fifth class. A broader classification than the above is suggested, by which colonies are divided into "those voluntarily and those involuntarily founded by the metropolis; or, rather, those intentionally established by the Government and those unconsciously created by the people." All military colonies belong to the first of these classes and many trading and agricultural settlements to the latter class.

"The object of establishments created by the State is manifest: not any nation has ever entered upon a colonial policy without the hope thereby to strengthen its power, to add to its riches, to assure its stability, to increase its influence, and to augment its prosperity. Whatever the temporary occasion, these have universally been the motives of action."

Reading that paragraph after hearing the presentation of the whole list of arguments urged for the adoption of a vigorous colonial policy by the United States, it is difficult to avoid the consideration that even the newest plea for a course of expansion is as venerable as the statecraft of Rameses or Thutmosis I. or the wisdom that founded the commerce of the Phœnicians.

On Page 17 we read that "the essential of power on the part of the mother country likewise implies the element of wealth. That a poor nation cannot enjoy the luxury of colonies is almost an economic maxim. * * * Not riches alone suffice to support a colonial policy; something more is demanded; there must be an excess of capital. Money must be plentiful and cheap; investments difficult, interest low; all or many of the conditions must exist which would cause financiers to welcome with pleasure new opportunities for ample returns. * * * Farming, on the other hand, should be insufficiently developed (in the parent state) to satisfy the daily wants of the people. Colonists are naturally tillers of the soil, and an agricultural community cannot, as a rule, guarantee them the necessary sales. * * * For this reason colonies are found to be peculiarly advantageous to industrial nations."

Stress is laid upon the necessity of a virgin soil for a successful (agricultural) colony; the ideal conditions being those under which the colonist finds the prime necessaries of life ready to his hand.

"The choice of a region for colonization" is a phrase which does not seem to be applicable to any known example of colony building in recent times, if by "choice" deliberation is at all implied. The urgency of unforeseen events would appear to have its larger influence. If we allow free choice in the selection of territory to be colonized, we may discuss with serious purpose its strategic value. It is indeed an ideal colony that seems to be under discussion for which men may be selected as colonists who are best adapted to that mode of life—who are "imbued with the traits of their own nation, * * * truly patriotic, above selfishness and below Socialism," endowed with "sturdiness of character and firmness of conviction." But Mr. Morris has hit the nail on the head when he has pointed out that not the man inured to ease, to whom the struggle for a livelihood is unknown, nor, on the other hand, the penniless adventurer, makes the best colonist. The middle rank man, raised by his own efforts above pauperism, but not to wealth, is the one who will stand most sturdily in his tracks in a new land and work to the best advantage to himself and his country.

"A colony is not born or developed in a day. Before a fair estimate can be made of its value a considerable period must elapse. Bacon has said that at least thirty years must pass before judgment can be given." This statement at once suggests problems in statecraft which modern Governments may well ponder. In the first place a mental concept is immediately formed of a parent State in whose councils a settled and consistent policy can be and is carried on through successive administrations. If only a State in which such an ideally perfect condition of government obtains can be successful in colonial extension, grave doubts may be entertained of the success in this direction of any of the great nations that are governed primarily by the will of the people.

Following the thoughtful and interesting preliminary essay to which this brief reference has been made, an almost bewildering array of historical data is marshaled in order, from the very earliest attempts of Egyptian and Phœnician adventurers, to the latest achievements of the Latin and Anglo-Saxon world builders. The consecutive steps by which navigation, trade, and colonization have progressed in natural sequence toward the establishment of new States have been traced in a manner that leaves little to be desired.

From those States which were famous in antiquity for their colonial extension—Phœnecia, Carthage, Greece, and Rome—the reader is taken by an enticing path into that golden wonderland of commerce and expansion, the dominant colonizers of the Middle Ages. Amalfi and Pisa open the list—Amalfi, in the kingdom of Naples, with a beggarly fifty thousand inhabitants and not more than ten times that number of people owning its jurisdiction, yet possessed of the finest navy in Europe and urging the barter of its merchants upon the world either by the peaceful methods of trade or at the point of spear and pike, as the case seemed to require; Pisa, a quiet village to-day, but once powerful as a maritime power—such were the mediæval forerunners of the pre-eminent Mediterranean powers.

Florence, Genoa, and Venice, the traders, the bankers, the navigators of a bygone day, through pages full of fascination we trace their marvelous extension until their power and wealth become a great imposing iridescent bubble, which it fell to the lot of a Genoese to prick. On the day that news began to be told of a new world, and the Atlantic became the arena for enterprise, Mediterranean supremacy commenced to wane.

Then Portugal, Spain, France, Holland, and England forged gradually to the front. While the story of each is separately told and may be read by itself, yet there is a continuity and relationship between them, so that a perfectly homogeneous result is obtained in the completed work.

No finer example could be afforded of the close interdependence of one State with another in its colonial policy, and of one century with another, than that which is presented in the Philippine Islands. Spanish colonization, unrivaled in its day, if extent and productivity are the test, but a saturnalia of mismanagement and greed if viewed ethically, practically commenced with the voyages of Columbus. In the affluent period of her widest outreach, the kingdom of Philip stretched a grasping hand over that fruitful archipelago that bears his name. In the problem of the day for the American statesman bent upon a policy of expansion, the conditions, the difficulties, and the prejudices that confront them are those of the sixteenth rather than of the nineteenth century—are Castilian or Aragonese rather than Asiatic.

Three-quarters of the second volume is devoted to English colonization, a subject too broad to be even epitomized successfully within the limits of modern review. It is a comprehensive history of the world's progress for three hundred years, the story of the ponderous, invincible advance and spread of English government, English ideas, and English sentiment over the face of the earth.

Wherever thought wends eyes turn, or footsteps are directed throughout this earthly universe, the flag of Britain, the emblem of sovereignty, is not far distant. Under the union jack, the American Indian, the negro of Africa, Australia, and the West Indies, the heterogeneous and numerous peoples of East India, the Malays, the Hottentots, the Polynesians, the Chinese, and several other races inferior in the scale of humanity live, labor, and die.

Not only has the narrative of history been drawn upon for this account, but statistics have been studied, digested, and summarized, so that an object lesson in cost, in method, in results of loss or gain, is set clearly and succinctly forth. In Orient and Occident, under the pine and the palm, over wheat fields and cattle ranges and cane lands we follow the pioneers of that nation that in all recorded time has been greatest and most successful in the extent and value of its colonial possessions. We close the book with a sense of having been present at the creation of a world—the world of Great Britain's empire.

Danish, American, Italian, Swedish, Russian, and German attempts at expansion are grouped in the last chapter under the head of Minor Colonization. An appendix contains the full and valuable bibliography already referred to. The student who would shudder the subject in all its details cannot afford to let the [illegible]

*THE HISTORY OF COLONIZATION. From the Earliest Times to the Present Day. By Charles Morris. In two volumes. Illustrated. New York: G. P. Putnam's Sons.

"Easily the highest authority with reference to the events and the strategy of the Civil War."—N. Y. Evening Post.

Military Reminiscences of the Civil War

By JACOB DOLSON COX,

Formerly Major General commanding 23d Army Corps. Two volumes, pp. XVII., 549; XVI., 596. Portraits, maps and plans. $6.00 net.

The N. Y. Evening Post considers Gen. Cox "easily the highest authority with reference to the events and the strategy of the Civil War. He maintained to the end the vigor of thought and expression which marked his prime. His fairness was remarkable for a nature so hearty as to be almost fervid."

The N. Y. Mail and Express says: "This work is a contribution to the literature of the crucial period of the nation's history of real and enduring value. It is one of the final books on the war, of which we have as yet but few, because their time is but just come; and it is unquestionably one of those treasuries of information which in days to come will be abundantly quoted."

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS
NEW YORK.

The Greatest and the Most Charming Love Story of the Twentieth Century.

SEVENTIETH THOUSAND

The Cardinal's Snuff-Box

$1.50. By Henry Harland. $1.50.

"NO STORY SO PURE, SO CHARMING, SO APPEALING, IS TO BE FOUND IN ALL LITERATURE." "IT HAS ALL THE CHARM THAT IS IN LOVE ITSELF." "THE AUTHOR GIVES US THE INEFFABLY SWEET STORY WITH A WIT, A TACT, A MANNER THAT MAKE ONE WONDER WE EVER THOUGHT OF LOVE AS A TALE THAT WAS OLD AND STALE."

It may be read by the seaside, the fireside, in the study, and by the wayside. It suits all moods, for it charms all moods to its own gracious mood.

JOHN LANE, 251 Fifth Avenue, New York.

Independence Hall.

From The Philadelphia North American.

Richard McWilliams, a shoemaker, and a poor man by his own rating, has presented a rare picture to the collection in Independence Hall. It is one of the four known copies of the Krimmel engraving of Independence Hall in 1815, perhaps the rarest engraving of that building.

The very existence of the engraving was unknown to the commission which recently restored Independence Hall, until a small outline of it was discovered in an old almanac. The importance of the picture to the architects planning the restoration was realized, and a widespread, thorough search among collectors revealed only three copies. One copy was borrowed, and to it Architect Mary Reeves was indebted for many details of the old State House which could have been learned from no other [illegible] was Richard McWilliams of 1618 South Seventh Street.

"I'm a shoemaker," said he, "and I got this twenty years ago in payment for a pair of boots. I didn't attach much importance to it, though, and for nearly twenty years it lay rolled up. I read in the papers that after much search a copy of the lost Krimmel had been found and borrowed for the use of the architects. I had several offers, but I decided to present it to the State House collection."

I. L. Krimmel died before he finished the figures in the foreground. Those in the background, however, are shown in exquisite detail.

She Learned the Prices.

From The Philadelphia Record.

"The ways of the female shopper are beyond the ordinary salesman's ken," said a disgusted optician, who is in business in the shopping section of the city. "A woman came in here the other day and asked the prices of all kinds and styles of spectacles and eyeglasses known to science in the trade. Finally, after a half hour's [illegible]

AMERICAN LITERATURE

Prof. Barrett Wendell's Important Volume in the Literary Histories Series.*

The third and latest volume in a projected series of "Literary Histories"—those of India and Ireland having led the procession, with a literary history of the Jews announced soon to follow—is Prof. Barrett Wendell's "A Literary History of America." The Professor of English in Harvard University who has written upon American topics before, upon English composition and upon Shakespeare and Elizabethan literature, should be amply equipped for the work just completed. We have before us, therefore, as expectation suggests, a somewhat formidable book in size, with its various topics and periods happily arranged—and a framework somewhat unique in its constant comparative reference to the literature of England, at each date, and to other concurrent history.

The book has a brief introduction which opens with a pleasant attempt to illustrate what literature is and its relation to life. The word is more easily understood, the author says, than defined. His formula for it—reminding one of Matthew Arnold's definition of poetry—is as follows: "The lasting expression in words of the meaning of life." If he had said "the more or less permanent" for "lasting," a more accurate meaning perhaps would have been attained—since the literature of an era now dust-covered and forgotten is literature; though it be not, like the "Iliad," the "Divine Comedy," and "Hamlet," wrought for all time.

In looking back to the sources of its birth he says of the literature of our tongue:

> In 1575 there was hardly such a thing as modern English literature; in 1625 that great body of English literature which we call Elizabethan was complete. Fifty years had given us not only incomparable lyric verse, and the final version of the Bible, but the work too of Spenser, of Shakespeare, and the other great dramatists, of Hooker, of Raleigh, of Bacon, and of all their fellows.

The primacy of Shakespeare, as of Chaucer at his particular period, is recognized to note a law governing "the growth, development, and decline of all literature and fine art whatsoever." Both are brought forth through a strong impulse and outburst of imagination that "moves men to break the shackles of tradition, making things which have not been before." But these new utterances find themselves exhausted in time, and a period without inspiration follows, "to be broken only when in time to come the vital force of imagination shall revive."

Prof. Wendell's volume is divided into six "books," titled "The Seventeenth Century," "The Eighteenth Century," "The Nineteenth Century," "Literature in the Middle States from 1798 to 1857," "The Renaissance of New England," "The Rest of the Story." American literature he makes begin formally not far from the time of Shakespeare's death. It did not, of course, keep an equal quality with and parallel the English literature that was synchronous—and, at first, there was little to be shown. A new continent to break, with savages and a savage climate to be imperiled by, touched Mrs. Hemans's muse; but not that of the Elizabethan immigrants themselves. Where Vulcan is forging Apollo does not venture. Even when a contributive calm and a partial repose from primitive conflicts came, the monitions of art and letters were not many or important. It was quite natural, therefore, that the beginnings of this literature should come slowly. The author estimates that America's literary development has lagged behind England's by a century in the North, and somewhat more in the South.

In calling the early settlers of America Elizabethans, it is not meant that they were those of the literary guild. "The single work produced in America which, by any stretch of language may be held a contribution to Elizabethan letters is a portion of George Sandys's translation of Ovid, said to have been made during his sojourn in Virginia between 1621 and 1624." The Virginia settlers were of the adventurous type, which expresses itself far more in action than in words, "while the settlers of New England were too much devoted to the affairs of another world than this to have time, even if they had had taste or principle, for devotion to any form of fine art." To trace the progress of mind here, the author remarks that, "broadly speaking, all our Northern colonies were developed from those in Massachusetts, and all our Southern from that planted in Virginia." In spite of some Knickerbocker resentment that this declaration is likely to arouse, it is, without doubt, in a large sense true.

The author's method of continually citing what divergences from and correspondence with England's literary status and growth were developed in America is both picturesque and illuminating. A multitude of sentences and paragraphs that do this would be worth quoting, if space could be had for them. "One conclusion," our author says, "seems clear: The native Yankees of 1700 were incalculably nearer their Elizabethan ancestors than were any of their contemporaries born in the mother country." In the seventeenth century it was our New England authorship that was almost wholly in the ascendant. Of nine strictly literary titles of books culled from Whitcomb's "Outlines," only one, the translation from Ovid just mentioned, "did not proceed directly from New England." While such books as that of Anne Bradstreet, called "The Tenth Muse"; the "Bay Psalm Book," Michael Wigglesworth's "Day of Doom," and the "New England Primer" "were coming out in America, English literature was adding to itself the names of Shakespeare, of Milton, and of Dryden." The "Bay Psalm Book," issued in 1640, was strictly contemporaneous with Carew's "Poems" and Izaak Walton's "Life of Donne." The voluminous writer of this century in New England was Cotton Mather, whose bibliography includes 400 titles. And he was a busy minister and politician, too. This author was read abroad. "Again and again," says Prof. Wendell, "Cotton Mather writes with a rhythmical beauty which recalls the enthusiastic spontaneity of Elizabethan English, so different from the English which came after the civil wars."

In the eighteenth century in America the most vigorous writing—classing Jonathan Edwards's theological work with it—was political. There was the Declaration of Independence, and there was the Federalist. The latter, like all the educated writing of this time, is "phrased with a rhythmical balance and urbane polish which give it claim to literary distinction." * * * The most important thing published in England during the same years was the poetry of Robert Burns. The contrast between Burns and the Federalist—our author thinks—"tells the whole literary story." Literature pure and simple "was yet to come." What led that way was the work of Joel Barlow, one of the so-called Hartford wits, and that of his colleagues and the poetry of Trumbull and Freneau.

In tracing the literary current from 1798 to just before the civil war, Prof. Wendell first makes properly prominent Charles Brockden Brown, who has for two generations been forgotten, except by scholars and historians. In his novel, "Wieland," he seems to be the precursor of Poe, and of the gruesome Puritan imagination set forth later by Hawthorne. It could have been written only by one who had genuinely felt a sense of what hideously mysterious things may lie beyond human ken. * * * The sense of horror which Brown expressed in "Wieland" is genuine. To feel its power you need only compare it with a similar feeling expressed in Lewis's "Monk" in the "Mysteries of Udolpho," or even in "Caleb Williams" itself. In "Ormond" and "Arthur Mervyn" he shows another kind of power. It was this "labored prose fiction with which our American literature begins."

Of Irving, who was the first American author to attain European reputation in his own lifetime, Prof. Wendell says: "His greatest merits, which nothing can abate, are pervasive artistic conscience, admirable and persistent sense of form, and constant devotion to literary ideals." He had an admirable style, "a quaintly extravagant sort of humor," but he was not troubled with the "mystery of things." His message was not serious; his purpose was to entertain and delight. Brown, Irving, and Cooper left nothing "significant" or "profound." They are "properly remembered as writers of wholesome fiction."

Bryant's reputed primacy and known priority as a considerable American poet is remarked; but, is it true that Fitz-Greene Halleck's "Marco Bozzaris" and the first stanza of his tribute to Drake are all that is now remembered of his verse? His "Burns" and "Red Jacket" may not be as tineeled as these, but are they not as solidly meritorious? Of Poe it is said, "he had a natural, instinctive, eager perception of beauty." Meretricious he often was, but his critical perception was usually just. It was his "temperament"—one may say the personal equation—that has given "lasting character and vitality to his work." What is said of Willis and the Knickerbocker School is very just description. It was New England, our author says, that "developed the most mature school of pure letters which has yet appeared in this country."

Prof. Wendell does not forget the oratorical literature, nor the historical. He touches Transcendentalism and the Concord School with much keenness of epithet, holding Alcott lightly, and Emerson as a writer of unconditioned freedom. "In essence throughout, Emerson's work bids fair to disregard the passing of time; its spirit seems little more conditioned by the circumstances of nineteenth century Concord, or Boston, than Homer's was by the old Aegean breezes." Thoreau, he thinks, was not "an immortal maker of phrases," but he "had the power of making sentences and paragraphs artistically beautiful." But I should say Thoreau had much more than any mere force of style. He gave to a score of writers and to innumerable readers Nature's open sesame.

The limits of space compel a dismissal here of much further detailed reference to what is said of separate authors—Holmes, Whittier, Longfellow, and others—except that it may be said he ranks them all appropriately, and Hawthorne perhaps highest. Emphasizing the poetic quality in him, he adds also: "Of all our men of letters, Hawthorne was the most indigenous of all, the least imitative. He never seems to have relaxed his effort to write as beautifully as he could." A considerable force of genius he discerns in Whitman; but he speaks of his "Brooklyn Ferry" verses as being "a mad kind of rhythm, which sounds as if hexameters were trying to bubble through sewage."

Prof. Wendell, in his consideration of Southern authorship, does not mention Albert Pike, who—besides being otherwise variously famous—once stood high in the Southern galaxy of literary stars. In speaking of our humorists, he does not see "Major Jack Downing" and "Josh Billings"—the first deserving mention for being an object of an interesting speculation—and the second for having, by his "Essay on the Mule," decorated President Lincoln, and, by his sphere, extracting praise from the staid [illegible] Review. In the [illegible] Whittier, the sweet poet, [illegible] Washington over no nobler name than Sylvester Judd's "Margaret," and Holmes's "Mechanism in Thought and Morals," where some reference to them would have helped his argument. Thomas Holley Chivers, too, might have been spoken of in his relation to Poe. The North American Review, The Dial, and The Atlantic Monthly receive attention; but The New Yorker (called by Parton the greatest literary paper America, up to its date, had produced,) and the scores of literary annuals elicit no remark. Excepting Mrs. Stowe and Margaret Fuller, the "ever womanly" in literature has slight place. Against the rule of not naming living authors, a few (some of them minor ones) are characterized; while John Burroughs, Aldrich, and others, rather more important, are missed.

Peculiarities in this book are its extreme English orthography, and a constant deference to the "gentle birth" and family "distinction" of the authors quite beyond any critical necessity. Is it really of the highest sanction to spell Sir Walter Raleigh's surname without the "l"?

Brushing minor matters aside, Prof. Wendell has given us a valuable and interesting review. His style, a trifle stiff and staccato in the outset, warms into a freer fluency as it goes on. His chief conclusion may be read in this summing up:

> It is only during the nineteenth century—the century of American nationality—that America has brought forth literature. First appearing in the Middle States, this soon developed more seriously in New England, whose mental life, so active at first, had lain comparatively dormant for almost a hundred years. These two phases of literary expression, the only ones which may as yet be regarded as complete, have been the chief subject of our study. On the impression which they have left with us must rest our estimate of what the literature produced in America has hitherto signified.

JOEL BENTON.

*A LITERARY HISTORY OF AMERICA. By Barrett Wendell, Professor of English at Harvard University. New York: Charles Scribner's Sons. Pp. 575. $3.

Robert G. Ingersoll's Works in Twelve Volumes.*

What may be considered as the definitive and authorized edition of the works of the late Robert G. Ingersoll has now been presented to the public in twelve very appropriate volumes—appropriate in letterpress, form, binding, and in editing. Most of the material therein contained was carefully re-examined by the author at different periods during his life, but we learn in the preface that much was found among his literary remains which should be included in an authorized and definitive edition, but which was never reviewed by Mr. Ingersoll with a view to have it published or republished, as the case might be. For the most part the arrangement is chronological, and for this and other reasons a biography has been dispensed with.

The saying that a man is best known by his works may be applied to the career of Robert G. Ingersoll and to the way in which that career found expression in written or spoken words in a literal as well as a figurative sense. Such a record is worth an examination for many reasons. To the many persons all over this country who have taken Mr. Ingersoll as he would have them take him the twelve volumes before us will mean a great deal, for in them will be found the numerous phases of a doctrine which they admire and respect; to others the books will represent simply the living document of a notorious agnostic; to others still they may be cherished on account of the strong literary personality expressed. But from any point of view they cannot be ignored, for their contents has left an indelible mark upon the history of the last thirty years of the century just closed, whether we consider it as a scar or a decoration.

Mr. Ingersoll was a ready and eloquent speaker and writer on most subjects—religious, political, sociological, economical, legal, literary. He wrote reviews of current literary, dramatic, and musical works. He composed poetry. In nearly all that he expressed the moving impulse was that of the controversialist. Of the many qualities which go to make up the really great controversialist are three—sympathy, prudence, and repose. These he singularly lacked. And, while at all times open to conviction based upon his own premises, very often, in order to maintain these premises, he made use of the rhetoric which he never failed to condemn in his adversaries. For this reason his style, although it served his purpose for the time, in most cases is a dangerous one to imitate. Twenty-five years after he wrote and spoke certain things, we review these same things with considerable wonder that they should have produced the effect that they did once. But if he suffers by the lapse of time, many of the persons whom he lured into a logical, philosophical, or rhetorical duel meet a similar fate. One is tempted to marvel at the condition of his age, by no means remote.

He wrote in 1879 one passage which, in a way, strikes the keynote of all that he has controversially expressed: "The real oppressor, enslaver, and corrupter of the people is the Bible. That book is the chain that binds, the dungeon that holds the clergy." It is this taint of rash generalization that blunts his shafts. We find it not only in his religious discussions, but in his well-known "interviews" on current events, which occupy several of the volumes before us, and one is forced to believe that a striking aphorism or a well-turned figure of speech was often the excitement with which he covered his ignorance or spread out to fascinate the eye by its colors, that a logical lapse might be overlooked. "To fall in a great city is like being wrecked at sea," is a phrase which shows only one of numberless phases of cosmopolitan life. When he speaks of Tolstoi sneeringly as "an honest follower of the Peasant of Palestine," we are quite sure that he had not read what the Apocryphal Gospels have to say about the scholarly Nazarene. Again, he characterizes Crispus Attucks as "the first martyr whose blood was shed for American liberty upon this soil," when he should have known that, certain school histories notwithstanding, such was truthfully not the case. Nor is his poetry free from those rhetorical flourishes which prevent Mr. Ingersoll from being always taken at his own estimate. He wrote in Burns's cottage, at Ayr, in 1878, this extraordinary quatrain:

> Though Scotland boasts a thousand names
> Of patriot, King, and peer,
> The noblest, grandest of them all
> Was loved and cradled here.

Like most reformers, Mr. Ingersoll did not write and speak in vain. With all his faults, which time has served to emphasize, he succeeded in impressing all candid minds with the growing danger of deliberate misrepresentation to bring about an end that might be worthy and admirable in itself. He taught caution, but he inculcated in the minds of his readers and hearers the advantages of sympathy, prudence, and repose, by the very absence of these qualities from his own works. Then, too, by such efforts as his lecture on Shakespeare, his oratorical tribute to the memory of Roscoe Conkling, and his address on Lincoln, he gave an intellectual pleasure of infinite variety not soon to be forgotten. And because of these beautiful examples of the splendid capacities of the English language with excellencies which bury the controversialist beneath a broad humanity, we believe that they and similar writings and orations of Mr. Ingersoll will be read and enjoyed when his forensic on "The Mistakes of Moses" has long ceased to excite any particular emotion.

*THE WORKS OF ROBERT G. INGERSOLL. Dresden Edition. In twelve volumes, with twelve frontispiece photogravures on Japan paper. Average pp. per volume 600. Printed from large type on heavy paper. New York: C. P. Farrell. $25.

A Family History.*

We might rather call "Edmund Fulleston" a history or a monograph than a romance. The upshot of the fiction, for fiction it is, is the downfall of the Campbells and the Mitchells. These two hordes have ruled over Halchester and its suburbs, Goswell and Gorhambury, for a century. The wills of the two are law. No one, save a Mitchell or a Campbell, dare exist without their authority. Halchester is an English industrial town, "at once prosperous and lethargic." Some years before a presumptuous person with ideas, Sir Peter Hablothwaite, the owner of the Manor of Rushclyffe, thought that a mineral spring found on his property might be converted into a health resort. Now it was a rule held by the Campbells and the Mitchells that nothing must ever be done in or around Halchester without their permission. The clans then frowned upon Sir Peter's health resort, and through their opposition the Spa enterprise came to nought. These two reigning families the author presents as having "strong moral and intellectual snouts." Quarrels were ever constant between the two clans, who had intermarried, but it was the stranger who was to be repressed in Halchester and its neighborhood. The exception was when money was to be made out of the newcomer. Then the Campbells and Mitchells joined hands in getting the better of him. They held all the public offices. They were the bankers, the doctors, the divines, the architects, the horse dealers, and even the plumbers.

Suddenly there enters en scène, in the very centre of this peevish, fault-finding, grasping, and dogged crowd one Edmund Fulleston. By some accident he has married Caroline Mitchell of Gorhambury. Certainly Fulleston is not built in the guise of a hero. He was without any personal attractions. He was short-sighted. His lips were tremulous, and he stammered. He had a shambling gait. He had neither a strong chin or a pronounced nose. The Mitchells and Campbells decided at once that he was an easy prey. Never was such a mistake made. Though with great art the author manages to hide Edmund Fulleston's methods, they were execrable. The whole theory of the downfall and ruin of the Campbell and Mitchell dynasties depends on Fulleston's playing on their peculiar foibles or vices. In the long run the two clans are routed. It takes many pages for the full explanation of that Machiavellianism of which Edmund Fulleston is past master. You may not have the least sympathy for the two clans, it may have served them right, but you despise the scurvy tricks of the man who married Caroline. She must have been a sad creature, because "she played Bach on a guitar."

Think now of a writer who constructs a romance (?) of great length and who has scarce a line of talk in it all. There is absolutely no dialogue. Then, too, there are meagrest descriptions of locality. Everything is given up to the close, even minute, drawing of the personages. And yet the merits of the story are incontestable. It may be the newest way of writing a romance. It may be, too, that it is a satire on the over-diffusive method. May we be permitted to quote the opening chapter of that admirable book, "Alice's Adventures in Wonderland"? "Alice was beginning to be very tired of sitting by her sister on the bank and of having nothing to do: once or twice she peeped into the book her sister was reading, but it had no pictures or conversations in it, and 'what is the use of a book,' thought Alice, 'without pictures or conversations?'" Mr. R. B. West is a brave man. He has attempted what some might think was an impossibility as far as fiction is concerned, and he has come notably near success. Perhaps the author has only etched with a strong graving tool some section of provincial England which had been overridden by a family, and Fulleston is Nemesis. Take it as you may, the romance leaves a fairly lasting impression on the mind of a thoughtful reader. But of such is not the general class of the bolters of fiction.

*EDMUND FULLESTON, or The Family Evil Genius. By B. B. West. 8vo, cloth. Pp. 366. New York: Longmans, Green & Co. $2.

BOOKS THAT ARE BOOKS.

What Parents Should Avoid.

A READER OF THE NEW YORK TIMES SATURDAY REVIEW writes concerning "Old Books": "May Harris's appeal in THE NEW YORK TIMES SATURDAY REVIEW of Dec. 29 for more general reading of a past generation should meet with a ready response, particularly from those who have charge of young people's education. It is not alone that so many of the modern novels are trashy, which makes them objectionable, but their cursory reading. As May Harris says: 'We take a novel of to-day, skim it hastily, and put it down for another,' thus cresting the habit of gleaning in order to get the story, good or bad, at it may be.

"Books should be considered educators, not something with which to while away an idle hour. If they were so considered and the old standard authors read more, there would be a higher mental tone among our young people, more cultivated literary taste, and less slang in conversation. It seems almost criminal in parents to allow such devouring of 'paper-covered' novels among their children as I have seen in the homes of 'professed Christians,' where a space ten feet high could be piled with books only fit for lighting the fire. These books could not be called immoral—simply trash with highly colored, tragic events interwoven with the silliest love pages and impossible dénouement. So long as parents and teachers encourage by their silence such belittlement of intellect in those whose minds, morals, and manners they are responsible for, all school training is simply a process of memorizing. It is to be hoped others besides May Harris will take part in bringing this subject to the attention of thoughtful people."

All Recent Literature Poor.

CYNIQUE, writing to THE NEW YORK TIMES SATURDAY REVIEW under the address P. O. Box 2,339, says: "I do not think Mr. Stedman's 'American Anthology' is a very valuable book. Such a work is sure to arouse jealousy among the poets. I am, fortunately, not a poet—merely a poem lover. Hence I do not seek to criticise. As a man of taste in literary matters, I cannot altogether agree with Stedman's treatment of his subject. I was disappointed sorely in the book. His methods of selection and arrangement are not what I looked for. The 'Victorian Anthology' is, to my mind, more creditable to its author than the later book; not so much because the poems themselves are so infinitely superior, but for arrangement, choice, and method.

"We speak of 'literature of to-day,' 'litterateurs,' 'masterpieces of word painting,' 'great novels.' So? The literature of to-day is a vapid collocation of drivel for the most part. To be an author, observe the following rules: Learn to know the language moderately well, steal the ghost of an idea from some real author, long since dead, dilute it with reams of inky swash, a few lurid pictures, a weird, crazy cover design—and the book will sell!

"To-day our literature is nothing but dilution pur et simple. A drop of Plato, Aeschylus, Ruskin, or some other is stewed and hypothecated till the original idea is lost in a fog of bad odors of words, and resembles 30 cents, Mexican money, with a hole in it!

"Of the alleged novelists now alive, there is not one deserving serious consideration, while their books are poor trash. 'Richard Carvel,' 'To Have and To Hold,' 'Janice Meredith,' and 'David Harum' are fit samples; the slaverings of distorted and unhealthy imaginations. Dooley is bad enough to have been perpetrated by M. Quad. There are, of course, some books written now that are known as 'good'; but what sort are they? Weak in conception, aimless in plot, silly in deduction, and either over or under drawn, they are pitiably misguided efforts.

"The poets are more numerous than the prose writers, or at least the scribblers who try verse are so, and if anything worse. A clergyman recently summed up the situation in a few words which seemed to me well chosen. The gentleman to whom I refer is a celebrated man of international reputation. He said: 'Kipling is a genius—and a beast; Swinburne is a genius—and an aesthete, though sometimes a bore; the American poets are so small as to merit little praise. Stedman, Riley, Harte, Carman, Scollard—even old Richard Stoddard—they are all faulty to a fault. They are not young men full of fire. They are old or middle-aged; their powers should be near their prime, either approaching or slowly descending from the summit of Parnassus. Instead, their writings are feeble, puerile, weak, more like the crude work of a promising novice than the finished creation of the successful man.'

"My criticism has been harsh and unsparing, but it has been true to my ideas: I took care to read carefully each novel I mentioned, and read it in as unbiased a frame of mind as possible. As for the poets, they all have a place on my shelves, and some of them who are not so well known as others a place in my heart.

"The feverish demand of the day for something sensational, something odd, something, everything, anything new in books and reading will slowly pass. The man of to-day knows more than his great-grandfather ever speculated upon, and the man of ten generations hence will know more than we do a thousandfold. Perhaps, also, he will have then the realization that the perfect book—the polished literary bijou, the masterpiece of poetry—is a thing not created by a single hasty invocation to the muse, but a long, careful study. Knowing this, and having the courage of his age, he will demand that the best work only be produced. Where there is a best there can be nothing second best! In the words of the British yachtsman—'There is no second!'

"In that day the ephemeral, the 'improper,' the weak, the consciously and the distinct stuff now popular will be unknown save as a malodorous recollection of the Nineteenth Century. May the day soon arrive!

"Should any reader of a literary turn of mind care to dispute my statements, it will give me great pleasure to enter into correspondence with him or her, either by courtesy of your columns or by personal correspondence. I am sure the subject is debatable!"

Would Read the New Books.

S. D. O., New York City, writing to THE NEW YORK TIMES SATURDAY REVIEW concerning "Books That Are Books," published in THE SATURDAY REVIEW of Dec. 29, says: "I want to say that the old standard books have ever their places on our library shelves, just as our grandfathers have their places in our love, affection, and esteem. 'Tis true they are not looked into perhaps as frequently as they might be, just as we cannot go on forever lamenting our forefathers' demise. Yet we do think of them often and give praise to the thought and inspiration of those who wrote so well and so clearly, but so very much alike that it would take only a very close scholar or bookworm to distinguish the difference in each, except Shakespeare and the Bible; we always except them. Our present literature is like oratory. Where can we find one great orator in these days, man or woman? The reason is, there are many, and they have, or are getting, good common sense. We don't go hero or heroine hunting now, as it was done once because material was not on hand. Now we are using our own brains. Each can do his own talking, writing, and thinking. We read the books that are written to-day—women's with the men's—with curiosity, to see which can claim the merit of bringing out a new idea—causing the most controversy. Women do more in the thought line; men are more narrative. The former, then, gives us more to contemplate, while the other distracts; so one can choose whichever suits time or condition. 'The old standards' look well in their beautiful new bindings, and so we buy them to put on our own or some one else's shelves, hoping that we are helping those who are 'workers for bread,' besides admiring their artistic ability and results. There is one thing about old writers which is most satisfactory—that they thought very much as we do now. I mean the essayists, as well as the Greek philosophers. You may call their works summits and say we have none; that our writers are only in the foothills. We are beyond the summits in numbers. The old writers did not leave us anything new to say; they said it all. But our writers are putting on so many more new decorations; and for woman her numbers are multiplying. The whole world will rejoice in this some day. So don't discredit the work that is being done now, as it leads to a place for woman, helped by her brothers."

New Tendencies to Be Cultivated.

PHILIP SEIR, New York, writes to THE NEW YORK TIMES SATURDAY REVIEW: "I believe I am not alone in preferring rather more notice of new books than of old ones—reissued and new editions. Though it is undoubtedly a fact that the majority of the present day output of fiction is too trivial to merit much attention, yet are there not arising among us certain new tendencies which would repay cultivation? It seems to me, as one who has long been interested in literary development both at home and abroad, that the great realistic spirit of France and Russia is perhaps on the threshold of American literature. Several writers have partially exhibited it in a rather naturalistic manner. I think particularly of the earlier work of Mary E. Wilkins and of the volumes of the now unfortunately expatriated Henry James, and a short time ago I became acquainted with a book by a young writer—his second, I believe—which seems to promise the advent of something momentous.

"I refer to 'The Sledge,' lately published in Boston, Mass., a rather baleful study, forming the first of a series which it is to be hoped will increase in pleasantness without the loss of its dynamic force. In the present torrent of fiction, which excuses its mediocrity by the plea of the historical, would not some attention to such prophetic beginnings be grateful to the reader of book criticisms? I neither admire nor desire to admire those decadent creations, morbidly written with a seductive object, but I should be glad of the further appreciation of those attempts at truth which are above such motives and beyond such aims. Surely the duty of the critic lies as much in selection from the present as from the past, which latter seems rather the business of the scholar. Perhaps Marion Crawford could in some sort come under the head of realism. Why do all our realists go abroad? The books of Mr. Frank Norris also are certainly created on a higher plane of motive than much work of Francis Marion and other

The Most Popular Book in America

EBEN HOLDEN

By IRVING BACHELLER

OVER 100,000 COPIES SOLD IN 30 DAYS

12mo, gold lettered on red cloth, gilt top, $1.50

At All Bookstores

LOTHROP PUBLISHING COMPANY, Boston

"A fountain of information on the affairs of many great and even good men."—The Book Buyer.

ECCENTRICITIES OF GENIUS

By Major J. B. POND.

READ WHAT IS SAID OF IT.

"IT IS MANY A DAY SINCE I HAVE READ SO FASCINATING A BOOK OF REMINISCENCES."—NEWELL DWIGHT HILLIS.

"ONE OF THE MOST INTERESTING BOOKS OF THE YEAR FROM ANY POINT OF VIEW."—ROCHESTER SUNDAY HERALD.

"IT FAIRLY REEKS WITH PERSONALITY."—HOME JOURNAL.

"ADORNED BY MANY PICTURES, NEVER BEFORE PUBLISHED."
—DETROIT JOURNAL.

"POSSESSES UNPARALLELED ATTRACTIONS."—BOSTON JOURNAL.

"THE WHOLE BOOK IS MARVELOUSLY INTERESTING."
—BOSTON TRANSCRIPT.

"AS INTERESTING AS DISRAELI'S FAMOUS 'CURIOSITIES OF LITERATURE.'"
—PHILADELPHIA ITEM.

"SHINING BY REFLECTED LIGHT, ITS PAGES LITERALLY TEEM WITH INTERESTING ANECDOTES."—CHICAGO EVENING POST.

"ORIGINALITY STAMPS THE VOLUME, COPIOUSLY ILLUSTRATED WITH PORTRAITS."—THE BOSTON GLOBE.

"THE GET-UP IS WORTHY OF THE MATTER OF THE BOOK."
—PHILADELPHIA EVENING TELEGRAPH

It is a handsome octavo volume, 5¼ x 8¼ inches, of 620 pages, with nearly 100 half-tone portrait illustrations. Beautifully bound in English silk cloth. At all Bookstores. If you are not sure you want it, write for full descriptive circular.

G. W. DILLINGHAM CO., Publishers, 119-121 W. 23d ST., NEW YORK.

IMPORTANT BOOKS ON THE NAVY.

THE FRIGATE CONSTITUTION: THE CENTRAL FIGURE OF THE NAVY UNDER SAIL

By IRA N. HOLLIS, Professor of Engineering at Harvard University. With many Illustrations. 12mo, $1.50.

"It may be doubted whether any ship of war ever held so prominent a position in the hearts of the people of any country as 'Old Ironsides' has held, and, in fact, still holds, and it may be doubted if any vessel so heartily warranted this affection. Standing as the highest type, 'the central figure,' as the author calls her, of our navy under sail, eminently successful in every struggle into which she entered, the first means of giving us a national pride and of teaching foreign respect for American arms, the Constitution richly deserved all of the affection which went out toward her. * * * The history of this frigate is always interesting. As Prof. Hollis tells it, it is absorbing."—Harvard Bulletin, Cambridge, Mass.

THE MONITOR AND THE NAVY UNDER STEAM

By FRANK M. BENNETT, Lieutenant U. S. Navy. Fully Illustrated. 12mo, $1.50.

"Free from unnecessary technicalities, and details not essential in the telling of a concise story of the progressive inventions, the book is informing and of real interest. Episodes in the career of the Monitor lend a dramatic flavor. The volume is fully illustrated and carries the story of the Navy through the events of the Spanish war to the arrival of the victorious fleet in New York Harbor."—Brooklyn Eagle.

Sold by all Booksellers. Sent, postpaid, by

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & CO., Boston

11 East 17th Street, New York.

a transient time of popularity will doubtless gain a place and retain it.

"Was it not Andrew Lang who said a little while ago that no novel should be judged under seven years? Alas! the difficulty of the critic lies in this question of foresightedness; he must prophesy reputation. We can all find classics, but some of us must have our attention called to the newer serious works."

Andre's Hymn Set to Music.

W. L. H., Concord, N. H., writes to THE NEW YORK TIMES SATURDAY REVIEW: "Touching William L. Stone's communication anent Major André in THE SATURDAY REVIEW of Dec. 15, it may be of interest to state that the hymn he quotes was set to music in 'The American Vocalist,' a hymn and tune book published, I think, by John P. Jewett & Co., Boston, some fifty years since. I have heard it sung in those days 'in meeting' and in household worship. 'The American Vocalist' was at one time in large use in New England.

"There were some variations in the words from the version given by Mr. Stone. I will mention two: V. 5 began—

"'Eternal justice stood in view,' instead of 'Indignant justice.'

"V. 6 read:

"'But, lo, a heavenly voice I heard,
And Mercy for my soul appeared.
She led me in with smiling grace,
To Jesus Christ, my hiding place.'"

England Is Tired of Ibsen.

L. F. Austen in Illustrated London News.

I hear angry mutterings against Ibsen because he has said that the [illegible] are obstructing civilisation. This is a dreadful shock to some of his admirers in this country, who are so singularly [illegible] that they regard his views about the [illegible] as a condemnation of his life work. [illegible] was when they sat in the theatre [illegible] remonstrative [illegible] of [illegible] [illegible] his plays as grossly [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

The New York Times.

Saturday Review of Books and Art

SUPPLEMENT TO

THE NEW YORK TIMES.

SIXTEEN PAGES.

NEW YORK, SATURDAY, JANUARY 5, 1901.

THE TWENTIETH CENTURY CRITIC

Whether the art of criticism has advanced or retrograded in the last one hundred years is not a question with which we need deeply concern ourselves at this present moment. But it is certain that the methods and the apparent purpose of criticism have changed. The real purpose of criticism, we take it, has always been the same, namely, to induce the public to take notice of that which is good and to set aside that which is poor. But if one goes back to the earlier days of this gentle art, he finds that the critic believed in the employment of the axe. To smite hard and fast and to revel in the gore of the victim seems to have been the dearest desire of some of the old-time reviewers. "Who Killed John Keats?" asked Byron in one of his bursts of fierce sarcasm, and immediately answered his own question:

> "I," said the Quarterly,
> "Savage and tartarly."

"Savage and tartarly" was indeed the critic of the old lumbersome review. To impale a young and aspiring poet on the shafts of keen irony seemed to him to be one of the noblest occupations of a man. Byron, fortunately, was spurred into the exercise of his splendid powers by such impalement, and thereby taught caution to some judicious commentators. But Macaulay's savage assault on Montgomery is yet fresh in the minds of students of literature, and the desire to carve into small pieces the writer whose ambitions outran his abilities flourished in the human breast far into the nineteenth century.

If the so-called new criticism has done nothing else, it has taken the critic out of his self-made pulpit and made him follow with all other cultivated readers. He is no longer a sovereign pontiff of the cathedral of letters. He no more dispenses dogma, but in lis stead inspires consideration. He stands confessed a man and a brother, who offers for our perusal the record of his impressions in studying a work of art. He does not seek to command, but to persuade. He no longer comes to separate the sheep from the goats, but to invite us to ponder on the eternal laws of art and to enjoy the creations of the human intellect in the light of that contemplation.

His first aim is to stimulate thought, to make men take art seriously, and his next is to help us to find, not what is bad, but what is good. In short, the keynote of criticism at the dawn of the twentieth century is not destruction, but construction. As the century advances we believe that the music of criticism will vibrate in consonance with this tone till its whole harmony will be uplifting instead of saddening, and the student will rejoice in the praise of the excellent rather than in the condemnation of the weak, which must inevitably perish of its own weakness.

IGNATIUS DONNELLY.

That was a very enterprising intellect which has just been extinguished by the death of Ignatius Donnelly. His name suggests an Irish extraction and a Jesuit education. However that may be, he was born in this country, and his intellectual performances were such that the unfriendly foreigner would be tempted to describe him as characteristically American.

We have to own that his particular brand of sciolism was characteristically American. In any other country a man who knew so much would have been likely to know more. The British, French, German sciolist who should have promulgated his theories about the lost Atlantis or the "Great Cryptogram" would have been more negligible than he. He would have been, if not manifestly of unsound mind, either too ignorant to attract any attention or too knowing to publish his crude and untenable guesses as given scientific hypotheses.

Mr. Donnelly never showed his ancestral gift of wit and humor, unless it be held that he showed it in making public with a grave face his astounding and almost, but not to all readers, quite manifest absurdities. He seemed to be completely convinced and silenced by the force of his own argument. If we assume that he was all the time secretly laughing, not at himself, but at the dupes of his various hoaxes, we save his reputation for sanity at the expense of that of the American public for intelligence, so far as it took him seriously. But if we take this view we cannot call him a good citizen. Because he applied the same partial information and the same fallacious pretense of reasoning and the same grave face to problems of current politics upon which it would have been a National disaster if he had managed to convince the majority of his fellow-citizens, that he brought to the discussion of questions the popular verdict upon which would not have affected the practical welfare of a single human being.

For this reason, and because there is no reason to suppose that he was a bad citizen, as a matter, in short, of justice to his memory, we are compelled to ascribe his best known literary works to a mere incapacity to understand the weight of evidence or the meaning of the word "proof." And undoubtedly the vogue of his works, the extent to which his wildest "views" were accepted by persons who, in ordinary affairs, exhibited a fair average of common sense, indicates a National weakness. It is an old saying, a century old or more, that this is a country in which everybody has some education and nobody has much. It is increasingly untrue. But the vogue of Mr. Donnelly's speculations and the extent to which they were taken seriously indicate that it is still truer than it ought to be.

CONCERNING "HIGHER" EDUCATION.

There is one sign of the times which the educators of the country would do well carefully to note. If we are not mistaken, it indicates a demand for a radical change of policy in the conduct of public schools. We refer to the frequent and, as it seems to us, the increasing protests against the large relative expenditure on what are called the "higher" schools. In our own neighborhood these have of late been often made by our young, popular, and—we use the term in no invidious sense—ambitious Controller, Mr. COLER. Unquestionably he sees in the subject of his protests a real evil, and equally unquestionably he finds a prompt and emphatic response in the public mind.

There are in the present organization of the public school system of this State, and in that of most of the States in the North and West, two essential facts on which this general protest is founded, and, in our judgment, extremely well founded. One is, that the vast majority of pupils in the public schools, practically indeed the great body of these pupils, are unable to attend the schools beyond the age of thirteen, or, at the most, fifteen years, and therefore primarily the public expenditure should be directed chiefly toward giving them the best attainable advantages. This is so far from being the case, that the would-be pupils for whom there is no education provided at all are all found in this class. The second fact is that the training of teachers, the grading of them and their pay are so devised that, broadly speaking, the least competent teachers are provided for the most numerous class, who also need the best instruction. And not only is this true, but it is made the interest of teachers of pupils of this class, instead of perfecting themselves in their special work, to get out of it and into the "upper" grades as soon as possible. It is the only way in which they can get more pay and more honor. When we remember that the parents of the class of children who can only use the so-called lower grades of our schools pay, in proportion to their means, far more of the taxation for school purposes than their more fortunate fellow-citizens who can afford to keep their children in school to the end of the course, it is plain that this is a gross injustice.

Our own judgment, based on long study and a good deal of actual experience in connection with public school administration, is that it would fully meet the obligations of the State in the direction of public instruction if such instruction were confined to that that can be given before the age, say, of fourteen years, and were made of the very best. But it is not necessary to take so radical a view as that in order to advocate a very decided change in the basis of all appropriations for public schooling. As one very simple principle to start with, it is the merest justice that the amount devoted to schools for children above the age mentioned should not be increased until ample provision is made for children below that age, not merely in the room afforded but in the kind of teaching assured. In order to accomplish this, there must be a practically complete change in the mode of selecting and of paying teachers. Ability and training of the best should be required in the earlier classes, and should be paid accordingly. It should be made an object for teachers to attain the highest efficiency in the teaching required in these classes and to devote their time and thought to developing and perfecting that teaching.

As a matter of fact, the teaching of young children is more difficult, if it is of the right sort, than the teaching of older ones. It demands more unusual gifts of mind and character. It merits at least as good pay. It is, moreover, more valuable to the State, first, because the great body of children can afford nothing more, and, second, because it can be made of greater service to the community, the lives of the future citizens being more influenced by early teaching than by that given later. Expediency of the highest kind and the higheat equity also demand that the change in this direction be made. If Mr. COLER can bring it about, or do anything to promote it, he will render a real service to the city.

PATER IN AN EDITION DE LUXE.

Any one who is sensitive both to the peculiar lack and to the peculiar charm of Walter Pater's style will recognize an especial fitness in bringing out an edition de luxe of his works. The wonder is that they did not come into this world already dressed in their best, since Pater in what might be called an ordinary walking suit is not clad according to his deserts. Not that he is related by temperament to the old colored woman who looked up at the pictures in the room she had been cleaning and exclaimed, "De way I wuz made, 'pears like I'd ought t' 'av' been born in a parlor!" That which spoke in the humble worker was the spontaneous love of beauty innate in her race, while Pater's affinity for the luxuriously beautiful is self-conscious and touched with an elusive affectation. It has little in common with mere parlors, and ought rather to have been born in a perfect but unsatisfactory drawing room.

Pater is overcome by the influence of the beauty he has met with in philosophers and poets. Ruskin, Newman, Carlyle, Emerson could be trusted to "insist on themselves," but Pater appears not to have been big enough to hold his own against the influx of culture which fell to his lot. His personality is swamped in his style. Apparently there is not man enough behind him to give vigor to his language; there seems to be only a some one who loves beauty, for on hardly another quality of the author can you put your finger. Pater may have spoken what he thought truthfully, but he had none of that strong and eager sincerity which pierces through the medium of words to convince the reader.

It must be admitted, however, that a carping critic with small patience for the mannerism of having no mannerisms might easily be unjust to Pater. If his writings sometimes seem to need "more matter with less art" it is in part because they wander in speculative regions and in the vague paths of aesthetic theory. They have the merit of being filled with a sentiment of sympathy for the thinkers and artists whom their author chooses to handle, and there is undoubtedly a charm in the lazy music of their language. Pater has a gift for making the subjects he deals with attractive, so that in reading his essays one longs with a slight, agreeable yearning to come nearer to the things of which he speaks.

So much for the sake of fairness. No one who likes to dwell on art, poetry, and men's lives can help enjoying Pater, for there are many ideas of varying importance concerning these things to be found embedded in his language, if one can forget its flow long enough to set one's mind on them. Nevertheless, to many readers Walter Pater will always be inherently obnoxious, since his appeal is first to the senses and only afterward to the reason. Perhaps few essayists are more difficult to place according to their merits, and maybe the easiest way out of it is to place him in an édition de luxe.

ON THE VALUE OF BARTLETT.

Do you intend to become an essayist, gentle writer? Then learn the art of apt quotation. Familiarity with Bartlett is not more desirable in a book maker than they should be in you.

To plant in the bare sands of an arid imagination the borrowed flowers of the successful gardeners of literature is to prepare a parterre that shall please even the critical. For when a man not variously learned comes on a passage that he has himself read in the original setting, his vanity is tickled.

Tickle your reader's vanity often enough, and he is yours and will sound your praises. "A nightingale dies for shame if another bird sings better," but you who are not a nightingale might die for shame if it were not for the singing of that large chorus of English birds that make your songs possible. "Homer himself must beg if he wants means," and if Homer begs, who are you that says, "to beg I am ashamed"? See only that you beg at the right gates, and you shall enjoy a borrowed richness that in the minds of many passes for a home-made garment of great value.

"Some books are to be tasted, others to be swallowed," and others quoted. "Reading maketh a full man," not only that, but "out of the fullness of the heart the mouth speaketh," and he who has read much and remembered much can write well.

"Discretion of speech is more than eloquence," and the most discreet man is the man who knows where to borrow to advantage. There be those who write original essays of which the best that may be said is, "It is his own." Better far the essay that glitters and sparkles with a thousand gems filched from the world's great lapidaries.

"Brevity is the soul of wit," but it does not follow that every postal card contains an epigram. The safest way to insure wit in your essay is to pick it where you find it, and ten chances to one that will not be in your own brain. Better the wit of others than no wit at all—which might be a proverb, but is not.

Shakespeare has well said, "There is nothing either good or bad, but thinking makes it so." If this but applied to your essay, O writer! what an excellent thing it would be! But it lies not within your gray matter to compass it. Again, with the bard, you say, "I must become a borrower," and you walk down the pleasant gardens, plucking here and there a flower of fancy until your little essay stuns the eye with color. "Here's richness!"

Nothing that you can say but has been well said before; therefore quote it, fusing it if you will, with your poor thought to decrystallize it and make it seem a new thing.

"Here are a few of the unpleasant'st words that ever blotted paper." Do not use them, then. Make your essay light, graceful, full of the whipped cream of human kindness.

"Silence is the perfectest herald of joy," says Will again, but had he kept silence, what joy the Anglo-Saxon race had missed, and how weak in quotation had been thy essay! Has not this same Shakespeare said, "What's mine is yours"? Therefore, do not scruple to take it if it will "make light where darkness reigned."

"Who would write well must first have loved." There you are. It is not "nominated in the bond" what you must have loved; therefore it may as well be books as any other thing. You have loved books, you have gathered of their honey; now let it drop from off your stylus and sweeten this essay over which you labor.

A sixteenth century writer says, "They lard their lean books with the fat of others' works." There you have an old precedent, so fear not. You are in good company. You do but take what others have taken before. Quote you never so well, you do but requote, and it may be that he from whom you quote lifted his thought from a richer than he. It is well said that "a dwarf, standing on the shoulders of a giant may see further than a giant himself," and if he can see further it stands to reason that he can be seen further. Your borrowed plumes will make you a marked man; that is, one who is "read, marked, learned, and inwardly digested."

"We can say nothing but what hath been said." Why attempt the impossible, then? "I would help others out of a fellow-feeling." I have been thought-dry myself. I dare say that there were mornings when John Milton said: "I had rather than forty shillings I had never begun 'Paradise Lost.' I have keyed it so high that it splits my throat to sing it."

"Angling is somewhat like poetry—men are to be born so." So angle that ye obtain the prize. Fish in other men's streams and a full basket will surely reward your perseverance. And when you have spread your wares in the market place, not one in ten will care who owned the fish originally. You will receive the credit even if you pepper them all over with quotation marks.

Emerson says, "The passages of Shakespeare that we most prize were never quoted until this century." Do you not see that it was not what Shakespeare himself said that men valued? It was not until his jewels flashed in other men's bosoms that we perceived their lustre. Therefore quote, for in doing so you will be rendering the bard a service.

Some one has said, "He that I am reading seems always to have the most force." Remember that, O gentle essayist! Do not scruple to help thyself, and having done so, to "take thy pen and write down quickly."

"It is hard for an empty bag to stand upright," but thanks to your incursions into the fields of literature, your bag is full. Let it stand.

CHARLES BATTELL LOOMIS.

POOR McDONALD CLARKE.

The eleven titles in the McKee collection under the above name have called to mind "the mad poet," and led the old men to exchange reminiscences concerning him. Clarke first came to New York in August, 1819, then a youth just turned twenty-one, and from that time until his tragic death in 1842 was one of the prominent figures of the town. He had pure poetic genius, sharp wit, and considerable powers of repartee, but an unbalanced mind rendered it of little avail either to himself or to the world at large. Broadway became at once his favorite haunt and inspiration, and his tall figure, in blue coat and cloth cap, with its military bearing, quickly became one of the familiar objects of the great thoroughfare. He soon distinguished himself by his erratic poems, and verses addressed to the reigning beauties of the day, of whom he was a devout worshipper, but who in most cases seem to have received his homage with scant courtesy. He was amiable in temperament, with no known vices, and a regular attendant at Grace Church, then the fashionable Episcopal church of the city. No one seemed to know anything of his antecedents. Some two months before his death, however, he wrote his autobiography, from which we learn that he was "begotten amid the orange groves on the wild mountains of Jamaica, West Indies; born in Bath, on the Kennebec River, State of Maine. First love, Mary N. of New London; last love, Mary G. of New York; intermediate sweethearts without number. No great compliment to the greatest poet in America—should like to change, though—had to pawn my diamond ring (the gift of a lady) and go tick at Delmonico's for dinner. So much for the greatest poet of America. The greatest poet ought to have the freedom of the city, the girls of the gentry gratis, grab all along shore, the magnificent Mary, and mucks with all the sweet sisters of song." From some stanzas of his on the death of the poet Brainerd—

So early to the grave, alas! alas!
Life is indeed a rushing dream,
His did on wings of lightning pass,
Brightening a nation with its beam.

Its happy dawn was spent with mine,
And we were wont in those young days
Many a joyous hour to join
In kindred tasks and kindred plays—

And from other allusions we learn that his school days were spent in New London, Conn., whence probably he came to New York to seek his fortune. His only means of support here so far as known were from the sale of his books, but this was no doubt supplemented by gifts from generous patrons.

That "the mad poet" had true genius the following verses, among his best, will show:

A SUNDAY IN SUMMER.

When the tumult and toil of the week has ceased,
How still is the morning that smiles in the East,
The sweet Sabbath morning that comes to refresh
Every soul that is faint in its prison of flesh.

The rich clouds are fringed with yellow and blue,
The lips of the flowers are shivered with dew,
The winds are reposed upon pillows of balm,
Enjoyment is throned on the clear, azure calm.

The orchard trees bend their full arms to the earth
In blessing the breast where their beauty had birth,
And while bending in crimson luxuriance there
Seem to have joined in the Sabbath's first prayer.

The little birds sing their gay hymns in the boughs,
The delicate winds from their cradle arouse,
The sun gently lifts his broad forehead on high,
As serenity presses her cheek to the sky.

And shall man who might be an angel in tears,
Would he rub out the stains of his sensual years,
While Nature is brimmed with affection and praise,
Be a stranger to God in this dearest of days?

O no; the deep voice of the steeple is loud,
And city and village in worship are bowed,
While the blue eyes of Summer look tenderly down,
And nothing but sin has a fear or a frown.

Clarke was also the author of the familiar quotation:

Now twilight lets her curtain down,
And pins it with a star.

His verses on John Jacob Astor, which the curious reader will find in Duykinck, show another and most unfortunate bent of his mind.

Many stories are told of his wit and readiness at repartee, but one will suffice. Once upon a time, when John Lang of The Gazette and Col. William L. Stone of The Commercial Advertiser were engaged in one of their periodical newspaper wars, Lang charged that Col. Stone's brains were as "zig-zag" as those of the Mad Poet. Clarke read the article in The Gazette, and stepping into the office of The Advertiser wrote this impromptu:

I'll tell Johnny Lang in way of a laugh,
Since he has dragged my name in his petulant drawl,
That most people think it is better by half
To have brains that are "zig-zag" than no brains at all.

His published works so far as known were "A Review of the Eve of Eternity and Other Poems," New York, 1820; "The Elixir of Moonshine," by the Mad Poet, 1822; "The Gossip, or a Laugh with the Ladies," 1825; "Poetic Sketches," 1826; "Belles of Broadway," 1833; "Death in Disguise," 1833; "Poems," 1836; "Cross and Coronet," 1841.

Clarke came to a tragic end at last. On a cold, blustering night in March, 1842, a policeman found him wandering about the streets evidently demented, and took him to the city jail for shelter and warmth. In the morning he was found dead in his cell.

The [illegible] friended him in life provided a tomb and burial. He lies in the "poets' mound" under great oaks on the margin of Sylvan Lake, in Greenwood. His grave is marked by a small granite monument, bearing a medallion likeness of the poet carved on one side and beneath it:

Born 18th June, 1708.
Died 5th March, 1842.

On the opposite or west side is this inscription:

EPITAPH WRITTEN BY HIMSELF.
Sacred to the Memory
of
Poor McDonald Clarke.
In silence gaze, but curse not his grave.

On the south side:

By friendship's willing hand erected,
By genius, taste, and art adorned,
For one too long in life neglected,
But now in death sincerely mourned,

On the north side:

But what are human plaudits now?
He never dream'd them worth his care,
Yet Death has twined around his brow
The wealth he was too proud to wear.

CHARLES BURR TODD.

MRS. DORR'S PAPER ON ROWLAND ROBINSON.

So much has recently been said of Rowland Robinson, the creator of Uncle Lisha, Sam Lovel, Antoine, and Gran'ther Hill, that Mrs. Julia C. R. Dorr's paper on that charming writer and even more interesting man, in the current number of The Atlantic comes with unusual force and value, from the fact that Mr. Robinson's personality, was so little known, even to the majority of his constant readers.

Rowland Robinson was born in Ferrisburg, Vt., on May 14, 1833, dying there Oct. 15, 1900, in the very room in which he was born, no small distinction, Mrs. Dorr thinks, in these days of constant change. His grandfather went to Vermont from Newport, R. I., in 1791, and bought this farm at Ferrisburg, near the little City of Vergennes, building there a small house, where, in 1812, a more ambitious dwelling was erected, in which the original house was incorporated.

Mr. Robinson's mother was Rachel Gilpin, granddaughter of George Gilpin of Alexandria, Va., who, although a Quaker, was a Colonel in the Fairfax Militia during the Revolutionary War, aide de camp to Washington, and a pallbearer at the latter's funeral, the two "beautiful Quaker sisters" alluded to by Higginson in, "Oldport Days" being great-aunts of Mr. Robinson. The family on both sides were Quakers, with all the quiet strength and conscientiousness to be found in early members of that sect.

Mr. Robinson's father was an active worker in the anti-slavery cause and a warm friend of Garrison, May, Johnson, and other prominent abolitionists, and his home being near the Canada line, was a convenient and secret station of the Underground Railroad. Being also a ready and forcible writer, his pen was often employed in the service of the cause. A secret staircase, narrow, dark, and winding, still leads out of the old kitchen to a small chamber above; the children having been taught that when "Aunt Eliza" was seen disappearing up this stairway with plates of food or other comforts, there were guests in the house whom they were not to see or speak of.

Mr. Robinson's early history was that of the average country boy of sixty years ago. He was sent to the district school, taught in Winter by college students from Burlington or Middlebury, and in Summer by young women whose education was hardly greater than that of their own pupils; going later to the Ferrisburg Academy—admitting, however, that he did not make the best use of even the small opportunities at his disposal. But he was an omnivorous reader, and his father's house being well supplied with books:

He made amends for lack of study by reading over and over again with ever-increasing delight, the Waverley Novels, "The Lady of the Lake," and "Marmion," histories galore, and many books of travel and adventure. And he had, moreover, spread out before his keenly observant eyes the vast domain of nature; its mountain fastnesses, its wide forests, its pure streams and silver lakes; the world of bird and beast and fish, of tree and shrub, fern and wild flower, of all which he was to become in later years so true an interpreter. * * * From boyhood he had been a keen sportsman, sharp-eyed, strangely observant, familiar with all the ways of woodland creatures; reading leaf and flower, moss, lichen, and fungus, the phenomena of the changing seasons, dawn and sunset, moonshine, and starbeam, the hoary frost and the dew of Summer nights, as one reads from an open book. * * * He knew the haunts of every wild thing as he knew the path to his own fireside. His memory was as remarkable as were his powers of observation. * * * Lying sightless on his bed, to which he was confined for nearly two years before the end came, he was able to portray every varying phase of nature in words so tender, so graphic, so picturesque, so illuminating, that the reader saw as the writer has seen.

Mr. Robinson, having inherited from his mother an artistic temperament, shrank more and more, as he grew older, from the prosaic details of farm life. He came to New York and found employment as a draughtsman and wood engraver, and from 1866 to 1873 a large number of his drawings were to be found in Harper's, Frank Leslie's, and other illustrated papers; but he was not too successful, and in 1873 returned to the farm. While never an enthusiastic farmer, he was too sane and prudent to neglect his work, becoming, indeed, especially interested in his fine orchard and in buttermaking. His skill in the latter direction, and the pencil sketches, rhymes, and caricatures with which, for some years the tubs were decorated, is still talked of, it being a gala day in the New York and Boston markets when "Robinson's butter" came in.

Mr. Robinson married Anna Stevens, "a lovely girl then, a charming woman now," the [illegible] direction of both art and literature. Through her inspiration Mr. Robinson wrote and illustrated an article on "Fox Hunting in New England," which was at once accepted by Scribner's Magazine. This sketch was followed by others in the pages of Scribner's, The Century, Harper's, Lippincott's, and The Atlantic.

In 1888 a series of papers which had appeared in Forest and Stream was published in book form under the name "Uncle Lisha's Shop." "Sam Lovel's Camps" appeared in 1890, to be succeeded by "Danvis Folks," "Uncle Lisha's Outing," "Vermont: A Study of Independence," (American Commonwealth Series;) "In New England Fields and Woods," "A Danvis Pioneer," and one or two others; while his last work, "Sam Lovel's Boy," now in the press, is said to be unusually fine, Sam revealing therein to his son many a secret of the woods and of hunting craft.

This list of books is not only long, but remarkable when it is remembered that, with the exception of his first book, they are all the work of a blind man. In 1887 Mr. Robinson's eyes began to fail, and slowly but steadily the trouble increased, until total blindness resulted. When his first book finally reached him he was just able to see its faint outline. After his sight failed he superintended his farm and gave orders, but his real work was done with a pencil, "by means of a grooved board, which enabled him to guide and space the lines," Mrs. Robinson revising the manuscript and preparing it for publication:

Then it was that his ardent love of nature, his intimate knowledge of her deepest secrets, his admission into her very holy of holies, stood him in good stead. * * * He studied human nature as faithfully as he studied the ways of bird and beast, of tree and wild flower. His ear was as keen and unerring as his eye. Let no one suppose that Mr. Robinson's stories are meant to be actual transcripts of the life of Vermont to-day, as it exists even in her mountain towns. They are stories of old Vermont, the Vermont of sixty years ago, and even earlier—before the railroad had penetrated her fastnesses or the telegraph brought her into close and vital connection with the outer world.

Mrs. Dorr thinks one of Mr. Robinson's greatest charms is the sympathy shown in his interpretation of these simple New Englanders, of a type now almost passed away. "His characters, which reappear in most of his stories, live and breathe in secluded mountain hamlets, to the life of which he is absolutely true."

Mrs. Dorr tells us that, fine as was Mr. Robinson's work, the man was greater than his books. He was tall and well built, with a ruddy color almost to the last, with hair and beard snow-white for many years, but which had been reddish or golden brown in younger days; his eyes, which were bright, never giving the slightest hint of their sightlessness, being blue. She also draws very striking pictures of his beautiful home—a large, square gray farmhouse, with a broad porch with high railing and bracketed seats, standing back from the road and approached by a fine avenue of elms, the entrance being marked by groups of Lombardy poplars. The outlook from the house is charming, with a view over the broad Champlain Valley, beyond which are the Green Mountains, while in another direction glimpses can be caught of Lake Champlain, beyond which rise the Adirondack Mountains. The description given of the old house, with its beautiful antique furniture, old portraits, old china, and hooks everywhere, is attractive. The enormous old kitchen, part of the original building, but still in use, has doorlatches whittled out of hard wood by Mr. Robinson's grandfather, and worn smooth by the hands of generations, and looking like polished ivory. This is dining room as well as kitched, containing a long table, which now stands where it has stood for the last seventy-five years, and here the family and their guests dine at one end, "at the other the stalwart Yankee yeomen, who are not servants, but helpers. It is like one of the old stories of a Baron and his retainers—above and below the salt."

Mrs. Dorr writes of visits to this lovely old house, where for some years before his death Rowland Robinson lay "incurably ill of a wasting disease" and blind to all the beauty which lay around him, and yet he worked up to three days before his death and during his greatest suffering.

Not a complaint, not a murmur, not a suggestion of repining, nothing but splendid courage, patient hopefulness, tender regard for others, and a determination to work to the last.

Books for the Shy Girl.

To The New York Times Saturday Review:

Perhaps there is no one among the many book lovers, who watch the now so plentiful publishers' announcements, to whom they are of more vital interest than to the shy girl. How many people, when they condemn the awkwardness of the shy girl, ever stop to consider that her lack of social ease is but the natural result of her development? Gifted (or is it cursed?) by a sensitive nature, which is usually at variance with the temperaments of those around her, she is from the first thrown out of sympathy with her immediate circle. Being misunderstood gradually makes her introspective, and this, of course, increases her natural self-consciousness. On the few occasions when she is induced to appear in public, she is considered haughty and cold, or dull, awkward and uninteresting; but no one guesses the inward loneliness, the craving for sympathy dwelling under the reserved demeanor. If by any chance some one should fathom it, and try to "draw her out," he must be of a wonderfully sympathetic and tactful nature to have any success.

Mingling less and less with her fellow-creatures, she becomes more and more ill at ease in their society, and the wrong impressions she creates in strangers making her sensitive to showing herself in her least attractive aspect, she is in a fair way to [illegible] nate temperament, her whole world of intimate friends is in her books. She watches announcements of newcomers and news of old ones with the same eagerness that actuates the social butterfly into watching notices of weddings and other changes in her social sphere. Not that the shy girl does not feel a longing to attend such functions. But she knows that by temperament and habit she is unfitted, either to enjoy them thoroughly herself or to contribute in any way to the pleasure of others.

Though novels of course delight her, the books that mean most to her are the biographies, letters, and memoirs. Through these she can associate to her heart's content with the great natures from whose companionship in the flesh her social limitations debar her. Here her self-consciousness vanishes, and all the pent-up friendliness of her nature is expended upon these dumb yet eloquent book friends. And though a love of learning may have its share in impelling her to such reading, the undercurrent of her liking for them is always her stifled social impulse striving for an outlet. Perhaps unconsciously, but surely, while she reads, she tries to find points of sympathy between herself and her subject, and the more such points she discovers the better she will love the person possessing them. She is so comforted to find that Addison was also shy, and that Schubert, too, was at his worst in society. But that is a minor point of sympathy. Her chief delight is in contact with a great mind, which she can appreciate, though she might not try to emulate. In following the thoughts and feelings of the world's elect, her own personality is entirely absorbed in theirs, and she forgets for the time being her social shortcomings. The shy girl is called self-conscious, ill-bred, selfish. But she is only misunderstood and very lonely. And the worst of it is that one cannot cure shyness any more than one can give to a person not so gifted a brilliant musical or literary talent. One can only rejoice that most of them possess a love of good literature and music, which in a measure [illegible]

THE PUBLISHERS' POINT OF VIEW.

In these days, when so much interest and enthusiasm is shown for all things theatrical, we ask readers to look at Mr. Franklin Fyles's book,

"The Theatre and Its People."

Mr. Fyles is the dramatic editor of the New York Sun, as well as author of many plays. He tells all that the person "in front" has always wanted to know about the people and the life back of the curtain. The volume is abundantly illustrated. $1.25.

* * *

THOSE WONDERFUL LOVE-LETTERS.

"An Englishwoman's Love Letters" is still exciting great interest in England and America. Their authorship, their genuineness, the mystery about the lover, all combine to add to the book's vogue; but the remarkable quality of the letters themselves is the real basis for this extraordinary interest, and all the rest is insignificant beside the genuine merit of the style and matter.

* * *

THE WORLD'S WORK

for January is pronounced the best number yet issued. A remarkable number of letters have come to us from people who stand for large interests in the world's affairs. This morning a man who is absolutely at the head of his trade, and is known as the largest manufacturer n America, says:

"I think 'The World's Work' remarkable. When I read the first number I doubted if you could keep it up to that standard. You make a splendid beginning."

Perhaps a hundred people have said that we can hardly keep up the standard of the early numbers. We are grateful for the implied compliment, but it is hardly necessary to say that the magazine will continue to improve each month. Send 25 cents for three months' trial.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & CO.,
Publishers, 34 Union Square, New York.

Mistress Penwick.

Only a Novel,
But a Good One.

Chas. Frohman thinks enough of it to assume the direction of its dramatization

"The most American story I ever read."
—Dr. John Henry Barrows.

The Darlingtons,

An American Novel,

By ELMORE ELLIOTT PEAKE.

Published (Cloth, 12mo, $1.50) by McCLURE, PHILLIPS & CO., New York.

HINTS FROM THE MAIL BAG.

Plagiarism.

EDMUND SAVAGE, Parkville, N. Y., writing to THE NEW YORK TIMES SATURDAY REVIEW, says: "In THE SATURDAY REVIEW of Nov. 24, "F. C. F.," writing on 'plagiarism,' relates the circumstance that in a prominent New York daily of May 17, 1900, there appeared a single stanza, entitled 'Good Cheer,' the name of the author not given, but 'the ring and sentiment' thereof prompted him to refer to some unpublished lines of his own, and found that he had inscribed in his notebook, under date of January, 1899, 'a poem of four stanzas, entitled 'Pass It On,' which expression formed the refrain of each verse. The two poems were given complete in 'F. C. F.'s' communication.

"The readers of 'F. C. F.'s' contribution could not fail to observe the unity of sentiment, as well as the perfect unity of meter and verse, which characterized the two poems, and also the frankness of the voluntary concession that the author of 'Good Cheer' was not guilty of 'plagiarism,' or even 'thought transference.'

"Assuming that the author of 'Good Cheer' had not seen the unpublished poem of 'Pass It On,' composed at least seventeen months earlier, we must, for the same reason, conclude that the author of 'Pass It On' could not have had access to the poem published seventeen months later, notwithstanding some otherwise assenting critics might intimate the inaptitude of 'Good Cheer' as a comprehensive title for the lines which follow, and fail to see therein even a suggestion for it, in preference to 'Pass It On,' which is thrice repeated in the single stanza. It seems entirely beyond the range of human possibility, or even probability, that the two specific poems could have been the product of two different authors widely separated. Two writers might very readily chance upon the same subject or sentiment, and express themselves therein, in prose or verse, without either of them being guilty of plagiarism. Such a coincidence could easily be explainable, on the ground that the subject matter of the two productions had been prompted by some current event which had attracted general thought and attention; but, considering the chances, it would be utterly beyond human possibility for two persons, furnished even with the same prose composition, to convert it into a poem and adopt a perfect unity of measure and style, as in the case of 'Good Cheer' and 'Pass It On,' except through some supernatural influence, the probability of which very few persons are willing to admit.

"Some fifty or more years ago there was published a volume of poems entitled 'Lyrics of the Golden Age.' The work was announced by its publishers as 'the wonder of the age,' from the fact (as was claimed) that the poems were all dictated in a very short time by a person or medium in a trance condition, under control of the disembodied spirits of deceased poets. Among the poems was one by the spirit (so claimed) of Percy B. Shelley, the poet who was drowned in the Gulf of Spezia on July 8, 1822, in which he gave an account of the disaster which caused his death.

"The 'coincidence' of 'Pass It On' and 'Good Cheer' would seem to be a proper subject for the New York Society of Psychical Research to investigate, and determine whether it be a case of genuine plagiarism or the result of supernatural influences."

Anachronisms in Literature.

TENTH NEW JERSEY, New York, writing to THE NEW YORK TIMES SATURDAY REVIEW, says: "The anachronism alleged in THE SATURDAY REVIEW of Dec. 29 by your correspondent, 'E. W. L., Skaneateles, N. Y.,' to have been made in 'The Fortune of War' is a very small one compared with the errors, or offenses, of that kind that have been committed by all authors, ancient and modern, since plays and novels have been written. Very few writers in the present century have avoided them, and the diligent reader with a reasonable memory for dates can recall a host of such blunders. If a dictionary of such things was compiled, it would make very amusing reading. I recall now a few of them that I have met in my literary excursions: Scott in his 'Waverley' made a company of farmers talk of subsoiling and other agricultural practices at a time when such things were wholly unknown. Dickens in 'Barnaby Rudge' (temp., 1775) caused one of his characters to praise Lord Byron as a great poet. Byron was not then born. The same Byron, in his 'Siege of Corinth,' makes the Christian era begin with the death (not the birth) of Christ. Victor Hugo, in 'The Toilers of the Sea,' made one of the characters offer for sale a magnificent American revolver. The time of the novel is given as 182—, when the revolver was wholly unknown. Goldsmith, with his supreme faculty for "bulls" and blunders, could not fail to exhibit it in his writings. All readers of Boswell's Johnson (and who is not a fervent reader of that masterpiece?) will recall the instances there given. But the very worst offender in this respect is the author of 'The White Company,' a novel that possessed some popularity a few years ago. He made the principal character, a young monk in a cloister, claim to have read the great work of St. Thomas Aquinas at a time when, if born at all, that great theologian was in his cradle. He caused Edward, the Black Prince, to declare his intention to drive the (then as now) unspeakable Turk from Constantinople—not knowing or caring that Mahomet III. did not until more than 100 years after Edward's death become an 'expansionist' and capture the Metropolis of the East; he made one of his characters, in clairvoyance, however, anticipate Columbus by a hundred years and discover America, which he peopled with a race that would dearly love Mother England; and, to name one more, he resurrected the great Capt. Bertrand Du Guesclin from the grave he had then filled for many years to tourney and joust before the same Black Prince. A few years ago the editorial page of a great city journal made the famous Bishop Berkeley declare that the battle of Waterloo (fought fifty years after his death) turned back to half a century the clock of human progress, while—but you must be tired."

"Stringtown on the Pike."

W. C. COOPER, Cleaves, Ohio, writing to THE NEW YORK TIMES SATURDAY REVIEW, says: "Raymond Fuller Ayres's rather vicious lunge at John Uri Lloyd in THE NEW YORK TIMES SATURDAY REVIEW of Dec. 22 was a surprise to people of this section. The surprising feature depends upon the circumstance that Mr. Ayres's preference for straight, unqualified hellishness should have overreached his critical acumen. For the sake of this merciless decorticator, one of two things is too utterly bad—either the fact that Lloyd has a conscience or the fact that even a Kentucky feudist may have a faintly redeeming streak in him. Really, it is not Lloyd's fault that diabolism is not the only ingredient in a feudist's character. He can't help it. I very much fear he wouldn't if he could. It may be deplorable, but it is an implacable fact that these feudists are more or less governed by a sort of code of honor that to outsiders is inexplicable.

"For years I have lived close to the section in which the scenes of Lloyd's novel are laid, the Ohio River, as I write, separating me from 'Stringtown' County. I am familiar with the country and its people. It was Prof. Lloyd's purpose to faithfully depict the characters of the people peculiar to this part of Kentucky—he has done it with a fidelity that is only less than scientific and a vividness that is startling. With marvelous felicity he has lifted a segment out of life at this place, and without any heraldic pageantry handed it to the world. 'Stringtown on the Pike' is history."

EDWARD FISHBECK writes to THE NEW YORK TIMES SATURDAY REVIEW on this subject:

"Mr. Lloyd has drawn a true picture of the Kentucky feudist as he was then and as he is to-day. He gives us a true picture of life, and has nothing to do with the moral. Mr. Ayers in his letter to THE SATURDAY REVIEW speaks only of the feud between Red Head and Holcomb. What about the tragedy enacted at the village store when the parson chokes to death Col. Luridson? This was a cold-blooded murder just as much as in the case of Red Head and Holcomb. One murder is as bad as another, but it is that high sense of 'honor' among Kentucky people which makes a murder 'honorable.'

"The characters often found in novels, men of royal birth who decide to settle some dispute by a duel, in my mind pictures a character as much depraved as the Kentucky feudist. But, since such characters exist, the author who wishes to draw a true picture of life must hold them up to view, but he does not hold them up as models for character building."

Uniliterary Librettos.

ETHEL WINSHIP, New York, writing to THE NEW YORK TIMES SATURDAY REVIEW, says: "In THE SATURDAY REVIEW of Dec. 29 is an editorial on 'Uniliterary Opera Librettos,' in which it is said that the translations are mechanical and have left not a spark of the poetic beauty of the originals is a fact so patent as to be indisputable; but your writer in placing the responsibility for the continued life of these crude and unworthy translations has, I think, been unjust to those who have done much to advance English grand opera.

"Briefly, your writer states that the managers in their desire for profit will not pay to have the work well done. Several weeks ago a letter from Col. Savage of the English Grand Opera Company appeared in The New York Press, in which he stated fully the difficulties to be overcome in establishing English grand opera, and devoted a paragraph to the subject of librettos. Here it is:

"In the matter of translations I was also strongly handicapped. I realize as much as anybody the baldness of many of the translations which we use, but my proposition to have translations made this Summer in readiness for Fall use was met with absolute refusal on the part of the artists to learn them, their claim being that to learn a new version of the twelve or more rôles in which they must appear was even worse than to learn twelve new rôles, as the old version would keep cropping up in their minds, and would be physically impossible.

"Taking this condition into consideration, it is my humble opinion that the sins of these who used the translations in the first instance are being visited upon the heads of the present generation of managers, artists, and opera lovers.

"When the artists of to-day refuse (because they say they cannot) to study new translations of the old rôles, how can it be expected of a manager, as a business man, to invest such a large sum of money as would be required to have the work done over?

"To do these librettos into good English must be a labor of love. It is a task reserved for one who must not hope to have the pleasure of even hearing his work rendered. And in these days, when those who possess the God-given gift of writing have become mere mercenaries, peddling the fruits of their inspired genius to find the highest bidder, what hope have we of seeing the silly and stupid translations supplanted?"

Mr. Dana's Article on the Books People Read.

A friend writes to THE NEW YORK TIMES SATURDAY REVIEW: "Your recent editorial article on Mr. J. C. Dana's Springfield Republican paper concerning the books that people read has, I believe, unintentionally misrepresented him. Mr. Dana based his article on a request made by The Critic of several large libraries that they would prepare 'lists' of the most popular books, other than novels, with the addition of the most popular novel. Please note the reference to 'the one most popular novel,' because in your editorial you say: 'It will be observed, in the first place, that out of the eighteen most popular books, as shown by the records of the circulating libraries, only three are novels. This is out of all expectation. We have been told that two-thirds to three-fourths of the books most in demand in such libraries were works of fiction, (and they are.) The inference is that fiction, or at least the most popular fiction, is "trash." There might be something to be said against that proposition, or in extenuation of it. But, at any rate, when we find that only a third of the most popular books are works of fiction, we ought to be encouraged.' The point of your editorial centres in the statement that Mr. Dana found that only a third of the most popular books in circulating libraries were works of fiction, while in fact that was the thing he did not find and did not say anything about. Because, as you allege, he found things thus and so as to fiction, and still was 'not satisfied,' you said he was a 'pessimist,' and could be appeased by nothing." As Mr. Dana's article has attracted a great deal of attention, as do most things that he writes about, (books and libraries,) we are glad to print this correction.

The Founder of the American Navy.

THOMAS BARRY, Whitestone, L. I., writes to THE NEW YORK TIMES SATURDAY REVIEW: "I notice the recent publication of a history bearing the title of 'Paul Jones, Founder of the American Navy,' &c. This title bears a historical falsehood. Paul Jones was not the founder of the American Navy. Here is the proof: In Sadler's 'History of the United States for Schools' we find the following: 'Barry, Commodore John, (1745-1808,) Father of the American Navy—When the American Revolution broke out he gave himself with all the enthusiasm of his nature to the American cause, and Congress appointed him to superintend the equipment of the new fleet just then purchased. About the same time he was appointed Captain of the Lexington, while Paul Jones, afterward so celebrated, entered as First Lieutenant on the Alfred. The Lexington soon after (April 17) encountered and captured the Edward, a British vessel. This, being the first naval victory of the Revolution, caused intense joy throughout the country. In 1776 Capt. Barry was transferred to the Effingham, of twenty-eight guns. About this time Lord Howe offered him 15,000 guineas and a commission in the English Navy if he would join the royal standard. The bribe Barry indignantly rejected, adding: 'Not the value nor the command of the whole British fleet could tempt me from the American cause.' Capt. Barry continued to distinguish himself throughout the Revolution. In his famous frigate the Alliance, he made many captures, especially those of the British sloop-of-war Atlanta, and her consort the brig Trespass, (May, 1781.) In the Spring of 1782, returning from Havana with supplies, he encountered a British squadron. Being hailed and questioned by the commander, he gave the characteristic reply: 'The United States ship Alliance; Saucy Jack Barry, half Irishman, half Yankee. Who are you?' On the establishment of the present navy in 1794, he was named senior officer, with the rank of Commodore. Under him were trained Dale, Decatur, Ross, Stewart, and Murray. Barry was throughout life a devout practical Catholic."

Literature and the Horse Show.

BROOKLYN, Brooklyn, N. Y., writes to THE NEW YORK TIMES SATURDAY REVIEW: "One of the most interesting features of the late Horse Show was the curious grouping of literary names and allusions on the bulletin boards and stalls. One would expect such titles as Racine, Ajax, and Ariadne, as Homer and Undine, but it was to me a complete surprise to see Richard Carvel and Janice Meredith contentedly trotting together in double harness, as the people thus named might not in real life have done. A Kentucky Cardinal outvied in brilliance of verbal color The Scarlet Letter. Lady Babbie of a recent book and play rivaled Lady Gay (Spanker) of one more ancient. Lucile and Beau Nash looked rather old-fashioned among so many moderns. Quo Vadis and The Little Minister sustained theological interest along with Norwood—the title (was it not?) of a novel by Henry Ward Beecher. Pride and Prejudice were matched again, in a neat pair of carriage horses, and Ariadne and Evangeline looked as poetic as did Charmion.

Byron was there, of course, and The Gibson Girl kept him company. There was chivalric Brandon out of "When Knighthood Was in Flower," and Hope Brower, a pretty brown mare from "Eben Holden," seemed to my eye gentle and beautiful enough even for her charming original, one of the most beautiful characters added to the long list of women of fiction in many a day.

Lady Teasle, Lord Chesterfield, and Lady Algy formed a group at once aristocratic and frivolous. Chestnut Burr recalled a story by the late E. P. Roe, and L'Aiglon was surely appositely named for a compliment to Bernhardt and Rostand. Monte Cristo was richly caparisoned. Perhaps the strangest series of names was Svengali, Trilby of Pittsford, and Little Billy—all, if I mistake not, the property of different owners."

Latin in Our Schools.

C. W. H., Ithaca, N. Y., writes to THE NEW YORK TIMES SATURDAY REVIEW: "I wish to defend the teaching of Latin in secondary schools from an attack inspired in one of your literary reviewers by a remark of Lord Rosebery's. Your reviewer takes the stand that Latin should be discarded because it has small practical value. If he means that few boys and girls will ever use it in just the form they learn it, he is undoubtedly right. But that is not its value. The athlete, with clubs, bells, and pulleys, goes through motions that he will never use in their entirety in a contest or elsewhere. He may even lose the knack of manipulating the apparatus. But from those motions, in themselves useless, he gains such bodily habits of grace, precision, and endurance as will stand him in good stead in the saddle, the pitcher's box, or the rower's bench. So it is with the conditioning of the mind. Unless he constantly reviews them, a man forgets most of the single facts he learns at school, be they in arithmetic, philosophy, or Latin. But, however forgetful, while his brain remains healthy, he can never efface from his mind the thought-paths impressed by study.

To come to the specific educational value of Latin, since the times of Roger Bacon, of Erasmus, of Francis Bacon, of Addison, when formal culture rested largely on Roman classics, before the unfolding of new sciences had made of educational theory and practice has produced a study that serves as an all-round mind trainer as well as Latin. No other, within so short a time and with fewer breaks, cultivates in the learner such lasting intellectual habits of precision and persistence, and at the same time keeps him in touch with the weaknesses and greatnesses, the perplexities and triumphs of his fellow-men. History won't do it; the speculative and judicial attitude comes too late. Mathematics won't do it; human interest is excluded.

I am fond of telling my girls and boys—my pupils—that Cæsar conquered honestly and to a finish on his own pages will assure them lifelong pleasure in a task well done and mental and moral fibre to steady them anywhere—on battlefield, platform, or work bench."

Two Books with Similar Motifs.

"H. O.," Brooklyn, writing to THE NEW YORK TIMES SATURDAY REVIEW, inquires: "Have any of your readers noticed the curious similarity in idea between Robert Grant's 'Unleavened Bread' and Harriet Stark's 'The Bacillus of Beauty'? Each has for its absorbing theme the selfish passion of a country woman to conquer high society, and each pursues the topic with relentless logic, though from a varying viewpoint. Mr. Grant writes as an aristocratic Bostonian; Mrs. Stark (or is it Miss Stark?) as a democratic Westerner. But both agree in the lesson they enforce, that "Kind hearts are more than coronets

And simple faith than Norman blood.

"Judge Grant's book is a comedy in the wider sense; Mrs. Stark's a tragedy—yet curiously enough, the tragedy rests upon a basis almost ideal for comedy, while the comedy is sedate and close to facts. And while the tragedy is brisk and brilliant, the comedy is almost overcharged with purpose. Curiously, again, the comedy is rather gray and pessimistic, while the tragedy is cheerful. At least, I may speak for myself—I must admit that when I began the reading of 'The Bacillus' I was moved to envy the wonderful gift of beauty that the author placed so vividly before my eyes. But before I had reached the end I had ceased to revile my gods for not sending me supernal grace. I saw by the example of wide-mouthed, 'picturesquely ugly' Cadge that nobleness of soul is better than beauty.

"Both books have protagonists who are not heroines—monsters of selfishness that yet are lifelike. One hasn't a particle of sympathy—one isn't meant to have—for either Selma or Helen. We do not glow with the triumph of the former; we look on dry-eyed as the latter is judiciously clubbed to death by the author.

"Finally, these romances are alike in the carefulness of their construction. They are a pleasure to those who love clear and intelligent writing. And, unlike so many 'problem novels' they are both profoundly moral and spotlessly clean."

"Un Roman d'Amour" Not Unauthorized.

BRADFORD COLT DE WOLFE of Brussels, France, writes to THE NEW YORK TIMES SATURDAY REVIEW: "In the issue of THE SATURDAY REVIEW of March 17, under the heading of 'Balzac Vindicated,' Miss Wormeley is quoted as saying that 'Un Roman d'Amour,' by M. Spoelberch de Lovenjoul, is a book made up of conjectures, insinuations, hypotheses, and errors, in which only one fact is presented—Balzac's letter to his sister, Mme. Surville. Owing to Mr. de Spoelberch's absence from Brussels I have only recently had the opportunity to interview him on the subject of the charges made against him by Miss Wormeley. During the course of this interview Mr. de Spoelberch conclusively proved to me by means of the letters and documents in his possession the absurdity of her charges. In answer to her statement that the date of the new famous advertisement in La Quotidienne—Dec. 9, 1832—was erroneous, Mr. de Spoelberch, who possesses complete files of La Quotidienne, showed me the advertisement in question, which appeared, as stated by Mr. de Spoelberch, in the issue of Dec. 9, 1832.

"As for Balzac's letter to Mme. Surville its authenticity is beyond doubt. This letter as published in 'Un Roman d'Amour,' is in Mr. de Spoelberch's possession, and the published version is an exact copy of the original. Similarly, the published version of Mme. Hanska's letter to Balzac of Nov. 7, 1832, is a faithful copy of the original document in Mr. de Spoelberch's possession.

"In reference to Miss Wormeley's assertion that 'Un Roman d'Amour' is a book made up of conjectures, insinuations, hypotheses, and errors, I will state that Mr. de Spoelberch has made no statements in his work which cannot be proved to be correct. Moreover, it may be asked what object would Mr. de Spoelberch—who has made a lifelong study of Balzac—have in defaming the memory of the man for whom he has always had the warmest admiration? Mr. de Spoelberch, the great and recognized authority of the day on Balzac, has simply sought, in 'Un Roman d'Amour,' to show Balzac as he really was. He has not attempted, like Miss Wormeley, to place his hero on a pedestal.

"I have written this letter, let me add in conclusion, with the full consent of and at the expressed wish of Mr. de Spoelberch de Lovenjoul, 37 Boulevard du Régent, Brussels."

Did Hamlet Kill His Mother and Himself?

ARTHUR GUITERMAN, New York, writes to THE NEW YORK TIMES SATURDAY REVIEW: "Where in Shakespeare does Hamlet kill his mother and himself? From Mr. Appleton Morgan's letter relating to Senator Cushman K. Davis in THE NEW YORK TIMES SATURDAY REVIEW of Dec. 29 I learn for the first time that the Prince of Denmark was a matricide and suicide. Is my edition of Shakespeare defective, or were the Senator and the anti-Shakespearean student somewhat dazed by their deep lucubrations upon the 'insoluble problems of Shakespeare'?"

STEPHEN PHILLIPS.

His Personality, Associations, and Family.

The overwhelming success attained in London by "Herod," the new play by Stephen Phillips, in which Beerbohm Tree has surpassed himself, makes anything pertinent to this rising young English litterateur, which is also new, exceedingly timely. Previous articles devoted to Mr. Phillips have dealt entirely with his productions. Very little, if anything, has been written about him personally, and we deem, therefore, that, at this juncture something of the kind will be both opportune and welcome.

Those who remember the whimsicalities of Alfred Tennyson, and the oddities of Algernon Swinburne, who have, moreover, received the general impression that a man to be a really great poet must be an abnormal being, will be rather disappointed to learn that Mr. Phillips is not at all distinguished in that respect. He is a typical, well-bred young Englishman, of the upper middle class, has an easy and agreeable manner, and is possessed of just as much common sense as persons who are not credited with being geniuses.

The gods have favored Stephen Phillips with very good looks indeed, as well as a shapely figure, which by its rhythm of movement betrays the athletic grace which comes of having figured well in his college eleven.

Those who are curious to learn the minor details of the poet's personality may be informed that, like Tennyson, he is fond of his pipe, and, although he was fastidious over clothes in his early years to an extreme point, he has since grown careless, more or less, of his exterior appearance. Mr. Phillips is like most poets in one important particular, which is a carelessness in regard to business matters; but as his distinguished merit has already caused the Queen to put him on the civil list, he need not necessarily worry greatly over business matters. Unlike the traditional poet, however, Mr. Phillips does not seek sequestered scenes, daisied meadows, the banks of babbling brooks, or the solitude of sylvan glades in which to do his musings. With measured tread, head slightly bowed, and with his trusty brier in his mouth, the poet prefers to roam along the hustling streets near his Finsbury home, which is situated in the heart of London; there to take his inspiration from the multitudinous phases and aspects of metropolitan life, pausing now and again as he walks to make a note of some suggestion which may prove useful to him later on when he is seated at his desk.

What more does one want to know about his personality, save perhaps that he is sociable and belongs to several of London's leading clubs, where he is considered exceedingly good company? Of course, Mr. Phillips is married, and very happily so, although his first child died in infancy, causing the poet his first poignant grief, which is strongly expressed in his poem "The Wound." In this piece of verse he dreams of going to heaven. There God showed him Christ's wounds. The poet, turning to Christ, makes this answer:

But, I toward Him turning, softly said, "Thy wounds are many, but Thou hadst no child."

To replace this loss a son was born to Mr. Phillips about a year ago.

Mr. Phillips was married eight years ago to a young lady who had played with him previously for some years in Mr. Benson's company during his stage career, the bride being only seventeen years old when he led her to the altar. The match was at first opposed by the poet's family, because of the young lady's connection with the stage, Mr. Phillips's father, Dr. Phillips, being a dignitary in the Established Church and now holding the office of Precentor of Peterborough Cathedral. The objection proved only a technical one, however. The poet had had another and earlier infatuation. This match was prevented by opposition of the same character, under revised conditions, as that which was raised to his second affair, the young lady being the daughter of a very rigid Presbyterian. Stephen was only then beginning his stage career in London. Notwithstanding the parental ban, however, the young folks met in the park as often as possible, and there might have been a runaway match but for an incident happening one day which aroused the poet's jealousy and brought about a lovers' quarrel, which ended the acquaintance.

Stratford-on-Avon, Shakespeare's birthplace, was also the residence of Stephen Phillips during many of his early years, although he was born at Somerton, near Oxford, his father at the time of his birth being sub-vicar of Holy Trinity Church at that place. The home surroundings of the poet were of an ideal character, both his father and mother being persons of high culture.

To his mother, who was a Miss Dockray, Phillips owes his poetic temperament, inheriting from her the profound melancholy which overshadows everything else in his character, even the sense of the droll and ludicrous, which he possesses in a marked degree, and which in his early years, through the vent which he gave to it, often came near getting him into trouble.

Through his mother Stephen is related to the poet Wordsworth, who was her cousin, and also to another poet cousin, Charles Lloyd, who was a great friend of Samuel Taylor Coleridge.

Mrs. Phillips, the mother, died in the year of the poet's marriage. The beautiful lines entitled "A. S. P." published some time ago in The Academy, were written by Stephen Phillips in memory of his mother, and her character molded his to a large extent. The following strong lines are from "A. S. P.":

And the dread Powers kept her face toward grief
Although she swerved.
* * * * * * *
She drugged her brain against realities
And lived in dreams and was with music fed,
Imploring to be spar'd e'en sweetest things.

Dr. Phillips, the poet's father, is a man of very solid tastes; he is musical and artistic, a man of wide attainments, exceedingly versatile, and a disciplinarian.

The home circle in which Stephen was reared consisted of two girls and eight boys, all of whom are living.

One of the poet's brothers, R. J. Phillips, the artist, is a New Yorker. Another, Harold, won an international prize. Herbert won the gold medal for law at the London University, and Christopher is a scholar of Brasenose, Oxford.

Both sisters are unmarried yet, and one is studying singing, all the family being distinguished by strong musical tastes. In fact, Dr. Phillips, the poet's father, not only has musical tastes, but is an enthusiastic admirer of the drama and thoroughly conversant with the history of the stage, both past and present.

Through his cousin Frank Benson, the well-known Shakespearean actor, Stephen was induced, somewhat against the wishes of the family, to enter upon a stage career at an early period of his life, which prevented his matriculating at Cambridge, where he had already won a scholarship.

His theatrical career commenced in the early eighties, and he played leading parts in London and the provinces, excelling in character rôles in classical drama. In modern rôles he was more or less a failure, but in declamatory parts—such, for instance, as the Ghost in "Hamlet"; as Andrew Aguecheek, or Tony Lumpkin, (the drollery of which just suited his forte,) he was a pronounced success. It was on the advice of the same person who had led him to enter it that Stephen abandoned stage life in 1887 and devoted himself to literary work.

In conjunction with two other cousins, Laurence Binyon, who took the Queen's prize for poetry at Oxford, and Robert Bridges, his first poetical efforts found the light in book form, the three young poets each contributing to a volume of the Shilling Garland series, which was published by Elkin & Matthews of London. For Binyon, who is his junior by about seven years, the poet has always entertained the strongest feelings of friendship.

Phillips is decidedly a skeptic, and inclined to be exceedingly pessimistic. His first sustained work, an epic, entitled "Eremus," published when he was in or about his twenty-seventh year, commanded widespread attention by its peculiar attitude in analysing the character of the Creator, the poet's question being to inquire if He was more an embodiment of sentiment than of intellect. Another bold piece of work was his treatment of classical or mythological conceptions in "Endymion," published in The Nineteenth Century Review in 1898. His theory is that the moon tells Endymion she cannot leave the heavens to join him because the tides would stop and upset the cosmic plans by holding the ocean in check. Instead she kisses him so that he shall dream forever. This treatment of the subject differs materially from that of Keats, and is a poetical concept in line with Mr. Phillips's other original methods.

Le Gallienne, writing of Phillips and Kipling comparatively, says that Kipling is getting his reward now, but that the reward of Phillips will come later.

Phillips is really fastidious over his work, preferring to be distinguished for quality rather than for quantity.

He writes occasionally for Blackwood's, The Nineteenth Century, and The Spectator. His contributions are generally upon strictly literary lines, although Sir Richard Hatton of The Spectator says that Phillips is a born journalist.

Boys and Bears.*

In a pleasant way, Mr. Joaquin Miller tells of his early experiences with bears. It adds much to the interest of a story when, at the conclusion, if you would like to know the name of the lad who had the scrimmage with bruin, you learn that it was Joaquin Miller in person. The author thinks that the bear is a very much abused creature, and not half as bad as represented. In Biblical days ursus might have been an uncomfortable animal to meet in a lonely place, but there were no naturalists worth mentioning in David's time. When he is cornered, however, the ordinary bear may show fight. Mr. Miller, describing the fighting qualities of the ursine family, writes: "We have five kinds of bears in the Sierras. The 'boxer,' 'the biter,' and 'the hugger' are the more conspicuous; the grizzly is the boxer, the cinnamon bear is the hugger, and the black bear is the biter, and he bites to the bone." About the grizzly, who has for his scientific name, "Ursus horribilis, or ferox"—it is the Latin which in the main is responsible for the bad character given him. Gen. Dodge says: "It (the grizzly) will always run away if it can, and never attacks unless it is cornered or wounded." Something more, not generally known, is that the grizzly alone among the ursidæ has the power of moving its toes or fingers "just like a man." Mr. Joaquin Miller presents a bit of Indian folk-lore relating to the grizzly and his origin. Prof. David Starr Jordan's "Introductory Notes" on the ursidæ give scientific value to the volume. For readers of all ages, the "Bear Stories" will be found most entertaining.

*TRUE BEAR STORIES. By Joaquin Miller, with introductory notes by Dr. David Starr Jordan, President of Leland Stanford, Jr., University. Illustrated with a thrilling frontispiece. Chicago: [illegible]

Hints for Home Reading

Have you acted on THE TIMES REVIEW's hint of last Saturday and made a New Year's resolution to adopt a plan of Systematic Reading? Did you note in its column and over review of the volume that THE TIMES REVIEW said: "Hints for Home Reading will be found of much interest as well as of practical assistance in carrying out such a plan"? Also that it said: "The volume contains a dozen bookish essays well worth reading by all," and that "many of the papers will be found charming in their bookish spirit and suggestiveness"? Such contributors as Charles Dudley Warner, Hamilton Wright Mabie, Edward Everett Hale, Lyman Abbott, &c., are a sufficient guarantee of the intrinsic worth of the volume. In fact, it is a most valuable work to every book buyer and book lover, especially as it contains a most carefully selected list of Three Thousand of the Best Books in the English Language—books selected for the most part by about seventy-five of the leading Librarians of this country, the price of each volume and its publishers being given. No other such list is in existence, so that the name of this section, "A Book Buyer's Guide," is fully warranted. The last sixty-four pages of the volume constitute a Book Record, in which may be recorded the name, author, publisher, comment, &c., of books read.

To summarize, the volume contains:

I. A Series of excellent bookish Essays by many of the best Book Men and Critics of this country. Edited with an Introduction by Lyman Abbott.

II. A Book Buyer's Guide to 3,000 of the Best Books in the English Language, selected from all Departments of Literature, each priced and with publisher's name.

III. A Book Record. In all, a 12mo volume, bound in limp Cloth, round corners. Price $1.25, postpaid to any part of the world.

CHARLES L. BOWMAN, 91 & 93 Fifth Ave., New York.

P. S.—I will make any purchaser of the above volume a member of THE UNION LIBRARY ASSOCIATION for three years provided the order is sent to me direct by February 1st. This means the privilege of buying any of the three thousand books in the Book Buyer's Guide at wholesale price. When I say wholesale I mean WHOLESALE—that is, at discounts ranging from 33 1-3% up, (except on net books, and liberal discounts on them.) A membership also means the privilege of buying ANY BOOKS PUBLISHED at wholesale prices, provided they are sold in the trade. The Union Library Association does about the biggest Mail Order business of any Book House in this country and sells books at lower prices than any other 'Book Establishment'. It is backed by over a Quarter Million Dollars Capital, and its standing in both the financial and book world is of the highest. The only criticism anybody ever makes is that it SELLS BOOKS TOO CHEAP. But it has been doing it for fifteen years, and most Book Buyers think its one fault commendable. C. L. B.

"A powerful, well-sustained story, the interest in which does not flag from the first chapter to the last."
Philadelphia North American.

"A graphic and readable piece of fiction, which will stand with the best of its time concerning humble American characters."—Providence Journal.

A Powerful Novel of Picturesque Life

VISITING THE SIN

By
EMMA RAYNER
Author of "Free to Serve," etc.

At All Bookstores

$1.50

SMALL, MAYNARD & CO., Publishers

"A real book, full of real people."—New York Press.

"Far ahead of most of these latter-day Southern novels."—Southern Star, Atlanta, Ga.

"Unusually powerful. The dramatic plot is intricate, but not obscure."—The Congregationalist.

"The people in the story are persistently real."—Christian Advocate.

A Book which, first issued in November, 1900, ran through four large editions in hardly more than as many weeks.

The Life and Death of Richard Yea-and-Nay.

By MAURICE HEWLETT. Cloth, $1.50.

This is the novel generally voted the best of the past year.

THE EVENING SUN, discussing the question, says that "there is nothing reckless in placing MR. HEWLETT'S Richard Yea-and-Nay in the first place," quoting the confirmation of this opinion in

THE ACADEMY, London, where no less an authority than MR. FREDERIC HARRISON affirms that it is "the only first-class book of 1900."

HAMILTON W. MABIE describes it as "a portrait of extraordinary human and artistic interest . . . executed with masterly skill."

By the Same Author.

Little Novels of Italy.

"Mr. Hewlett has done nothing better or more uniquely and originally romantic."—The Churchman.

Uniform with the above.

The Forest Lovers.

"The most strikingly poetic and religious novel for a long time."—Review of Reviews.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY, 65 5th Ave., N. Y.

Library of the World's Best Music

Bound in 8 Volumes. 2,200 Pages.

$200.00 Worth of Sheet Music at One-Tenth Value! 350 best old and new songs, 200 instrumental selections, 400 greatest composers. Ably Edited, Superbly Illustrated. Indispensable in every home where there is a piano. Sent free for examination. Send postal for specimen pages containing 4 complete compositions.

THE UNIVERSITY SOCIETY
78 Fifth Ave., New York.

English Girls Marry Later in Life Now.

From The London Educational Review.

Recently at a public honors examination only one out of nine women candidates [illegible] they were wedding rings. In the days of our grandmothers half of these women would have been engaged and several would have been married. "Sweet seventeen" is now the age for [illegible]

Interesting Memoirs Relating to the French Revolution.*

The editor of this memoir of the Baroness de Bode, Mr. William S. Childe-Pemberton, in his preface states that if excuse be considered necessary for adding one more to the list of memoirs bearing upon the French Revolution, he hopes it will be conceded that this record breaks new ground, briefly summarising the scope of the book as follows:

The Baron de Bode held in 1789 a fief in Alsace, one of the last relics of feudalism in France, which the new regime swept away. After the catastrophe he and his family took refuge in Germany; the Baroness visited the numerous German Courts and subsequently the Court of St. Petersburg. She and her family were eventually granted, by the Empress Catherine II., estates in the newly conquered territory in Southern Prussia. The letters addressed by the Baroness to her English relatives afford striking glimpses of feudalism in provincial France, of the trials of an unhappy émigré family, and of the byways of the Russian world as ruled by the Empress in her last years.

Mary, the fourth daughter of Thomas Kynnersley of Loxley Post, Staffordshire, early showed a taste for travel and adventure, making a tour abroad with her friend, Lady Ferrers, and meeting in Flanders Charles Auguste Louis Frederick, Baron de Bode, to whom she was married on Oct. 21, 1775, at Marylebone Church, and at the French Embassy. Baron de Bode was some years older than his wife, of German birth, but a soldier in the service of the King of France. The grandson of a Privy Councillor to the Emperor Charles VI., he was intimately associated with the Princely family of Hesse Darmstadt, and the possessor of warm friends at more than one foreign Court. The Baron's fortune was small, but he was greatly devoted to his wife, whose letters constantly testify to the faithful and affectionate disposition of her husband, "a model of perfection, tenderness, and goodness joined to resolution and courage."

The newly married couple passed the Winter with the bride's relations in England, and in the Spring of 1776 went to Lisle, where the Baron's regiment, the Royal Deux-Ponts, was quartered; later in the year crossing the French border into Austrian Flanders to visit the Baron's relatives, who were established in that country. Among these connections were the Marquis de Trazenies and the Marquis d'Ythes, the possessors of large estates, and the Marquise d'Herzelles, who had been considered one of the most beautiful women at the Court of Prince Charles of Lorraine, as well as of that of the Empress Maria Theresa, by whom she was greatly beloved. The Marquise had brought up the Baron de Bode from his infancy, and while still a beautiful woman and but fifty years of age, she was then living in complete retirement. The pride of the Baron's relatives, who counted among their family alliances the Princes of Creux and Gavres, did not allow them to receive the new Baroness (whose own family had at first objected to the marriage) until reference to the Heralds' College in London satisfied them that the Kynnersley family was "one of the most ancient in England and nobly allied during eight hundred years"; whereupon she was accorded a most affectionate and cordial welcome, being invited to pass a long period with them during her husband's absence with his regiment.

The Baroness returned to England, and spent some time in visiting her family, her husband remaining in France. While visiting her brother at Loxley Hall her first child was born, in April, 1777, who was named Clement, for his uncle.

Late in the year the Baroness rejoined her husband, traversing the dangerous forest of Ardennes to Saarlouis, where he was quartered, having exchanged into the regiment of the reigning Prince of Saarbrück-Nassau, to whom he was "Grand Maréchal de Voyages," although still in service of the King of France. At Saarbrück the Baroness made the acquaintance of the Princess of Saarbrück-Nassau, becoming her lady-in-waiting, a mutual attachment springing up between them, retaining this position until the death of the Princess two years later.

The book is well edited, its story being told as largely as possible through the letters of the Baroness to her family, but so woven together with introductory matter and connecting notes as to tell not only the life history of a most courageous and tactful modern woman, and the trials and triumphs of her family, but to give as well the most interesting pictures of the revolution in Alsace, life at the German Courts, and even more striking details of Russia under the Empress Catherine II., as well as of the two succeeding reigns.

The Baroness de Bode's letters are almost without exception addressed to the daughter of her sister Penelope, then dead, who had married John Sneyd of Bishton and Belmont, Staffordshire; to her sister Dorothy, who married Thomas Byrche Savage of Elmley Castle, Worcestershire, and, becoming a widow, married in 1778 Ralph Addisley of Coton, Derbyshire, her grandson, Lord Norton, being the present possessor of these letters, while Catherine Kynnersley, the youngest of the family and the "Kitty" or "Kyttilini" of the letters, was the remaining correspondent.

These letters, having been written at this comparatively early date by a clever Englishwoman resident abroad, and seeing the best society of foreign courts, are all the more valuable to us from the trouble taken to explain small details and allusions as well as from their references to political

The Baroness de Bode was at first extremely shy, but contact with the world soon made her completely at ease in any society. This was at first brought about largely through a ten days' visit paid to their Royal Highnesses the Duke and Duchess of Cumberland at Metz. The Duke was the youngest brother of George III., and had greatly offended his Majesty by his recent marriage to Miss Horton, who was connected with the Baroness by marriage. After this visit, the latter writes, "she has grown more hardy, or at least less timid, in the company of Princes and Princesses." Another thing which helped to increase her self-confidence was a lately acquired use of rouge, the absence of which on a fair cheek marked its owner as dowdy or provincial. "The Baron's relations insisted upon it, and I should be quite particular without it."

The earlier letters are full of the gayeties of court life in the smaller principalities—Saarbrück, Zweibrücken, the seat of the Ducal Court of the Deux-Ponts, and others; interspersed with family details, including the Baroness's schemes to provide for her rapidly growing family, for each of whom she had induced royal or influential personages to act as godparents.

During 1780-2 the Baroness is full of schemes to have her eldest son, then about three years of age, made a Chevalier of Malta, as well as to secure for herself from the Empress of Germany her order of the Ladies. The latter was purely an honor, but the Chevaliers de Malta secured commanderies, in order of their seniority, which were worth from six to one hundred thousand livres a year. Noble descent on both sides was necessary to secure such an appointment, and the English relations were busily engaged in searching out these details for their ambitious sister, when, just as success seemed about to crown her efforts, Maria Theresa died, and thus ended all hope.

But it must not be concluded that the Baroness was of a grasping disposition; the leaven of worldliness in her was rather the outcome of a businesslike and practical habit of turning everything and every one to account. With this was combined a capacity for throwing herself ardently into the simplest interests and pleasures. Whether derived from her keen appreciation of the beauties of nature, the cultivation of her garden, (to which she devotes pages of description,) the management of her vineyards, or the education of her children, the zest with which she entered into the routine of her daily life animates every line of her letters.

The next two years, 1782-4, were spent in Bergzabern, in Germany, on the borders of France, some leagues to the southwest of Saarbrück, and nearer Deux-Ponts. Some idea of the Baroness's energy may be gathered from the fact that she personally packed each article of furniture, so that "nothing was rubbed, broken, or spoilt." The descriptions of this home are extremely fascinating; the purest pleasure in all her life being found in its very spacious garden, at a distance from the house, approached by a beautiful long, dry walk, half a mile in length, through vineyards.

In this garden was a temple, with an immense "orangerie," under which was a large dining parlor; and beyond a good kitchen, all vaulted with stone and very high. Above and outside was a kind of loggia, supported by pillars, and entered by a broad flight of some fifty steps on each side. Inside the loggia was a charming large square room, "with a fire ablaze"; two small rooms, all furnished, &c., and—what was to make into three or four more rooms—a large parterre, full of flowers. This delightful retreat, named the "Zigzag," the Baron gave his wife leave to arrange, during the Winter, as a Summer house, in the literal sense of the word, namely, as a house where she was to pass the Summer months with her children and a couple of maids.

At this time the Baroness de Bode is full of all sorts of schemes to introduce new industries, establishing a lacemaking school and becoming interested in the then newly invented carding bobbins and spinning jennies of Arkwright, and in the interval comparing her condition with that of most of her English contemporaries, with the result that she writes:

> How fortunate do I feel myself when I come to reflect how happily my life has fallen. * * * 'Tis true we are not rich, but no one necessary of life fails us, and without our being ridiculously fond—which state too often passes—so perfect a harmony and union is ours that nothing can equal it. I assure you I find less time for writing when Auguste is at home than when he is not; for he likes to have me always with him. We walk together—we go to our little classes together; in the evening I read to him, and we play jackey together. * * * Nor am I ever in the case to be ashamed of my choice. * * * How great a pleasure it is to see him always so esteemed and caressed wherever he goes! We are treated everywhere with all the deference of one of your first lord's families in England. * * * I must say, except for want of money, I have no fault to find.

In the meantime the de Bode family is constantly increasing, although death more than once has thinned the ranks, but the Baron's income remains small and many are the plans to provide for their children. Their father's relations are much interested in them all, but their money is all to go in other directions. With the consent of the Prince of Nassau and the King of France the Baron sold out of the army for the sum of 5,000 guineas, which he thought would be a good provision for his family. In 1788 the family prospects reached their highest altitude, when through influence and the sum of 8,000 guineas, the de Bodes obtained possession of the fief of Soultz, or Sulz, the most important in Alsace. The accounts of this old feudal territory and the privileges derived from it are of the greatest interest, but far too long to mention here. Thus the year 1788 closes with ambitions realized and prosperity seemingly assured, but from this time on the downfall of the de Bodes began. Even as early as January, 3,000 had to be borrowed from the wife's relatives in England. This debt was incurred just at a time when the order was changing and the Reign of Terror not far distant.

From this time on, the book is full of triumphs over one obstacle, only to be met by another more serious. Even the children escape death by a miracle, coming at last safely through the most dreadful hardships. Once the Baron saved himself only by his personal magnetism and courage; the whole family escaping, only to see, one by one, their entire fortune and personal belongings swept away. But space forbids any further extracts from this fascinating book, even as to the marvelous journey made by the Baroness, with Russia for her ultimate goal, visiting on her way all the German Courts in order to obtain influential introductions to the Court of Petersburg, a journey of nearly 3,000 miles, accompanied only by her oldest son, hardly more than a boy, the money for necessary expenses being largely given them at the different Courts where their visits were paid.

Success finally crowned the labors of this brave woman in Russia, offset, however, by her husband's death shortly after the family were once more reunited through the financial aid of the Empress. The Baroness de Bode's subsequent struggles for the sake of her family must be read in the book itself. Clement Baron de Bode made a heroic effort in later years to recover the family estates lost during the Revolution, but without avail. And the Baroness died in Moscow in 1812, just in time to be spared the necessity of once more flying before Napoleon, and also being spared seeing the land of her adoption suffer the most awful calamity of modern history.

Napoleon entered superb Moscow to find it a city of flames. The ruined and smoking palaces of the Razumofskye, of the Galitzins, and of all her friends, were pillaged by the French.

The book has a double value, and is altogether one of the most interesting volumes of memoirs lately published. It bears so largely upon French, German, and Russian historical matters and Court chronicles, and we become so interested in the Odyssey of this brave family, that it is with the greatest reluctance we turn its last page. The personal interest is greatly enhanced by the good photogravure portraits added, while the book is well printed and most attractively bound, the cover design showing the Baroness's arms on a lozenge with coronet, eminently suiting a book which will be found without a dull or valueless page.

*THE BARONESS DE BODE. 1775-1803. By William S. Childe-Pemberton. With portraits. Pp. xvii.-296. London, New York, and Bombay: Longmans, Green & Co. 1900. $5.

QUERIES AND ANSWERS.

W. S. WYMAN, University, Alabama: "What is the present value of 'The Conchologist's First Book,' compiled by Edgar A. Poe, and published in Philadelphia, 12mo, cloth, 1840?"

McKee's copy, with plain plates, brought $5.25 recently. His other copy, with colored plates, sold for $8.50.

M. MAYNARD, Fair Haven, Vt.: "Can you tell me through your 'Queries and Answers' column where I can find the 'History of Lewis and Clark's First Expedition Across the Rocky Mountains?'"

Lewis and Clark's "Expedition to Sources of the Missouri Across the Rocky Mountains" can be obtained from F. P. Harper, 14 West Twenty-second Street, New York, in two volumes, each $1.50.

T. W. HAIGHT, Waukesha, Wis.: "Can you inform me whether or not the 'Apology' of Mrs. Teresia Constantia Phillips—printed in London in numbers 1748-9—was ever republished, and if so, when and where? Also whether copies of the original are to be had in the market now or not? I should likewise be glad to learn if any reference to it was made by contemporary or later writers. A recent perusal of the work leads me to fancy that Thackeray's 'Becky Sharp' may have been a sort of reflection of its subject."

This work was never republished, and we know of no reference to it (save in Lowndes) that is of value, though memoirs of the time probably allude to it. It is quite rare, and copies occur for sale infrequently. A copy, however, was sold at John Anderson's auction rooms about two months ago.

A. L. LEE, Morristown, N. J.: "Please tell if Leigh Hunt's books are to be had from American publishers, and if so, kindly give a list of them."

"Poems," Amsterdam Book Company, $1; "The Poet and Essayist," (selections by Charles Kent,) Warne, $1; "Favorite Poems," Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 40 cents; "Autobiography," Harper & Brothers, two volumes, $3, (another edition, Charles Scribner's Sons, $1;) "The Book of the Sonnet," Little, Brown & Co., $2; "A Day by the Fire," Little, Brown & Co., $1.50; "Essays," Charles Scribner's Sons, 75 cents; "Essays and Poems," selected by Johnson, the Macmillan Company, two volumes, $4; "The Foster Brother," (a novel,) Harper & Brothers, 40 cents; "Imagination and Fancy," Charles Scribner's Sons, $1; "A Jar of Honey," Charles Scribner's Sons, $1; "Men, Women, and Books," Charles Scribner's Sons, $1, (another edition, Harper & Brothers, two volumes, $4;) "Romances of Real Life," Little, Brown & Co., two volumes, $1.50; "The Seer," Little, Brown & Co., $2; "Stories from Italian Poets," G. P. Putnam's Sons, two volumes, $1.50; "Table Talk," Charles Scribner's Sons, $1; "The Town," Charles Scribner's Sons, $1; "What Is Poetry," Ginn & Co., 50 cents; "Wishing Cap Papers," Lea & Shepard, 75 cents; "Wit and Humor," Charles Scribner's Sons, $1, and "World of Books," Truslove, Hanson & Comba, $1. His "Life," by Cosmo Monkhouse, can be had from the Scribner's for $1.

"T. A. B.," Mount Vernon, N. Y.: "Where can I get Morris's 'Talks on Art' and Hudson's 'Books on Journalism?'"

William Morris's talks on art can be had from Houghton, Mifflin & Co., in two volumes, each $1. Frederick Hudson's "History of Journalism" is published by Harper & Brothers at $5.

"STUDENT," Middletown, Conn.:

"Reader," Boston, Mass.:

"Subscriber," Cincinnati, O.:

"Inquirer," Cincinnati, O.:

"Subscriber," Cincinnati, O.:

"Subscriber," Cincinnati, O.:

"Subscriber

New Books.

North Americans of Yesterday.

A Comparative Study of North American Indian Life, Customs, and Products, on the Theory of the Ethnic Unity of the Race. By FREDERICK S. DELLENBAUGH. With about 350 illustrations. 8vo, $4.00 net.

Dr. Dellenbaugh's work is an exposition of our knowledge of the North American Indian at the close of the nineteenth century. In addition to its popular interest, the list of stocks and tribes contained in the appendix has been prepared with extreme care, and is invaluable to the ethnologist and general student. The illustrations form a perfect museum of specimens, many of them pertaining to very recent discoveries.

The Laws of Scientific Hand-Reading,

A Practical Treatise on the Art Commonly Called Palmistry. By WILLIAM G. BENHAM. With about 800 illustrations from life. 8vo.

Mr. William G. Benham is unexcelled in his field. His experience has been gained by years of patient study, in the course of which he has examined thousands of hands, and his collection bearing on the science of Palmistry is one of the most remarkable and interesting in the United States.—Ohio State Journal.

Four Great Venetians.

An Account of the Lives and Works of Giorgione, Titian, Tintoretto, and Il Veronese. By FRANK PRESTON STEARNS, author of "The Midsummer of Italian Art," "The Real and Ideal in Literature," etc. Illustrated. 12mo, $2.00.

The Historical Development of Modern Europe.

From the Congress of Vienna to the Present Time. 1815-1897. By CHARLES M. ANDREWS, Associate Professor of History in Bryn Mawr College. Students' edition, two volumes in one. With maps. 8vo, $2.75 net.

A Book of Common Worship.

Prepared under the direction of the New York State Conference of Religion by a committee on the possibilities of common worship. 16mo, cloth, $1.25.

South Africa and the Transvaal.

By LOUIS CRESWICKE, author of "Roxane," etc. Six vols., sold separately, each containing 8 colored plates, 8 portraits, 16 other illustrations of battles, views, etc., together with many maps and plans. Large 8vo, per volume, $2.50.

Vol. IV.—From Lord Roberts's entry into the Free State to the Battle of Karree.

Sanity of Mind.

A Study of its Conditions, and of the means to its development and preservation. By DAVID F. LINCOLN, M. D., author of "School and Industrial Hygiene," etc. 12mo, cloth, $1.25.

In Scipio's Gardens and Other Poems.

By SAMUEL VALENTINE COLE, President of Wheaton Seminary. 12mo, gilt top, $1.25.

G. P. Putnam's Sons,

27 and 29 West 23d St., New York.
24 Bedford St., Strand, London.

RR Folks in Funnyville
By F. OPPER
Price, $1.50.
R. H. RUSSELL, 3 W. 29th St., N. Y.

HENRY MILLER, Bookseller and Importer, 1 Barclay St., opposite Astor House.

We sell all new Books, except net ones, at 25 per cent. off publishers' prices.

New York City in the Eighteenth Century, is the scene of Miss Barrows' "Fortune of War," ($1.25,) a story of the British occupation, which The Times Saturday Review says "will gradually grow into a large popularity."

HENRY HOLT & CO., 29 W. 23d St

YOUNG MAN, (30,) WITH OFFICE EXPERIence, seeks position in connection literary or artistic work; has promising critical faculty and ability as an author; could review, edit, write, originate. FORDLEAF, 34 Sterling Place, Brooklyn.

SINGLE BOOKS AND COMPLETE LIBRARIES bought. We are always willing to exchange books. Write for catalogue. DAVIS' BOOK STORE, 1,328 Broadway, near 45th St.

A Wicked Heroine.*

Mr. Frederick Carrel has selected for heroines the very worst of women. Save murder there may be no crime that Pauline might not be capable of committing. From the beginning to the conclusion the romance is the story of the intrigues of the bad Pauline. She starts as a lodger in a boarding house in Earl's Court Road, London, and winds up with being the wife of an English Minister of State. Prior to this Pauline has married the wicked and dissolute Sir George Wynston, from whom she is divorced. As the wife of the statesman, she becomes the mistress of "Dick" Wynston, the son of her first husband. Finally Sir George Wynston, discovering the intrigue of his son with his fourth wife, shoots Pauline and then kills himself. An uncommonly strong and dramatic traversing predominates in the pages of the romance.

*THE ROMANCE OF PAULINE. By Frederick Carrel. 12mo, pp. 338. Cloth. Boston: L. C. Page & Co. $1.50.

LONDON LITERARY LETTER

Written for THE NEW YORK TIMES SATURDAY REVIEW by

William L. Alden.

LONDON, Dec. 29.—The Christmas book season—or, rather, the Autumn season, for it began in September—is virtually over, and there are few announcements of new books of special interest. It has been a good season, from the booksellers' point of view, though, of course, the average bookseller will never admit that he is not on the brink of disaster, due to his unselfishness in spending money for the sole benefit of authors. It has also been a good season for the lovers of novels. "Lord Jim," "Richard Yea and Nay"; "The Mantle of Elijah," and "Eleanor," not to mention others, ought to satisfy the most exacting novel reader. Books on South Africa and on China have also made their timely appearance, and there have been memoirs and letters of unusual interest.

***

I hear of nothing except Mr. Kipling's "Kim," which suggests another such season in the coming Spring. However, we shall see what we shall see. That long-promised new book by Mr. Meredith may materialize in the course of the next six months. We may have the new novel upon which Mr. Hardy is now working, and, of course, there will be the usual number of new Crockett volumes. But it may safely be asserted that we shall have nothing from Mr. Maurice Hewlett, whose health, I am sorry to say, has suffered by his too persistent and unremitting work on "Richard Yea and Nay." There will be nothing from Mr. Zangwill, from Mrs. Ward, or from Mr. Anstey. There may be a volume of short stories from Mr. Conrad, but next Spring readers will have, for the most part, to satisfy themselves with the lesser novelists.

***

Some time ago I was taken to task because in one of these letters I spoke of "the late Oscar Wilde." I supposed at the time that it was the kindest way of mentioning that unhappy man. Now, however, that Oscar Wilde is literally dead, I presume that no one will object if I speak of him as the "late Oscar Wilde." No one among the writers of the brief obituaries of him which have appeared has suggested that the man was really insane. He inherited from his father, a well-known medical man, a temperament that certainly was abnormal. If there was not actual insanity among some of those most nearly related to him, there was certainly great eccentricity, combined with dipsomania. Wilde was not insane in the ordinary acceptation of the term—that is to say, he did not rave and he was not a prey to delusions. It is, however, certain that his mental condition was never a normal one and that for years before his ruin he was eccentric to a degree that was hardly distinguishable from insanity. Let us at least give him the benefit of the doubt, and believe that in his latter years he was irresponsible for his acts.

Brilliant as Wilde was in his writings, he surpassed himself during those terrible days in court when he was fighting for his life. He was never more thoroughly Oscar Wilde. All the qualities which made him a man apart from the rest of men shone out when he submitted to the cross-examination that struck him down. I admired the intellectual brilliancy of the man then as I never had admired it before. He was at bay, and he fought superbly, but in vain. When next we heard from him it was in that infinitely pathetic "Ballad of Reading Jail."

***

Mr. William Watson has published in The Speaker a characteristic poem, full of sympathy with the gentle and innocent Boers and of indignation against the atrocious conduct of his fellow-countrymen. I wonder if he and the other Little Englanders are quite sane. Of course, the chief of them, Mr. Labouchère, is extremely sane, but Mr. Watson, unlike Mr. Labouchère, is not bidding for notoriety. Mr. Watson is evidently sincere in holding that whatever England does must of necessity be wrong, and that whatever her enemies ask ought invariably to be granted. I have no great admiration for Mr. Watson's poetry, but it is infinitely better than his politics. His friends are greatly mistaken in allowing him to write such political rubbish as his poem on "Abdul the Damned" and his later pro-Boer verses. The reading public is tolerant of eccentricities in poets, but Mr. Watson tries the patience of sensible Englishmen a little too far.

***

The Daily Chronicle is a paper the politics and religion of which I cordially detest, but which I daily read, because, all things considered, it is far and away the best of newspapers in England—always excepting The Times. The Chronicle has just been made the victim of a libel suit which must confirm most people in Mr. Rumble's opinion of the law. Some tinned goods sold by a certain firm had been judicially determined to be unfit for food, and in commenting on this decision The Chronicle inadvertently suggested that other tinned goods belonging to the same firm were equally worthless. For this the paper has been condemned to pay nearly $2,000 by way of damages. Technically, the judgment was in accordance with the libel law, but there are few who do not feel that it was grossly unjust. There has been a general expression of sympathy on the part of the press with The Chronicle and a call for the revision of the libel law. Under its present management, The Chronicle has always seemed to me to be exceptionally careful to avoid doing injustice to any one. It certainly meant no harm in what was, after all, a playful attempt to be funny which won the libel suit.

***

A volume of unpublished "Love Letters" by an "Englishman" has been appearing and has attracted a good deal of attention. Whether the letters are or are not genuine is a question which every critic discusses. If they are genuine, then the man who authorized their publication is the sort of person who, to quote Mark Twain, would "make a tiptop stranger." I feel, however, reasonable sure that they are not genuine and that the elaborate pretense that they are, which is made by the person responsible for their publication, is simply an advertising "dodge." The simple and obvious fact is that the letters are far too good to have been written by any woman as love letters. They were written to be read by the public, and not by a heartless lover. Regarded as literature, the letters are certainly worth reading. They form, when read consecutively, a romance that is at once pathetic and strong. Of course, the pretense that they are genuine is a harmless one, but it is strange that so many people seem to have been deceived by it.

***

There is a new novel by that tireless writer, Mr. Clark Russell. "Rose Island" is, like nearly all Mr. Russell's books, a sea story and a capital one. How the author can contrive to invent so many variations of the one theme of disaster at sea is a mystery. I long ago gave up the attempt to remember all his books, but I know very well that I enjoyed every one of them. Mr. Russell always has a story to tell, and he always tells it well. How long ago it seems since the day when most of us were taught to believe that a novel in which anything happened was a mere vulgar record of adventure, and the only novel that an artist should dream of writing was one in which the character and emotions of uninteresting people were carefully analyzed. It was Mr. Rider Haggard, in his "King Solomon's Mines," who sounded the note of revolt against this wretched superstition and gave us a story in which a great many things—good, bad, and indifferent—happened. Let us not forget, now that other story tellers have rather distanced Mr. Haggard in the race for popularity, that we owe him a debt in this matter. If it had not been for him, we might have gone on for several more weary years reading novels in which nothing happened and trying to delude ourselves into the belief that we liked them.

***

Among the new books that are soon to be published is a volume of Tuscan sketches by Mr. Montgomery Carmichael, her Majesty's Consul at Leghorn. Mr. Carmichael is one of those rare men who has learned to know the Italian people before writing about them. The average Italian of the story writer owes his origin to the Italian opera, which, whatever may be its merits, is not precisely the best school for the study of men and manners. Mr. Carmichael has spent many years in Italy and knows his Italians. He may be trusted to write intelligently concerning them.

***

There has been a bitter cry on the part of the English press that the Parthenon is being restored, and, of course, in the estimation of most people, restoration means destruction. But it appears that this cry has no real foundation. All that the Greek Government is doing is to prevent certain parts of the Parthenon from falling to pieces. It is curious how intense is the apparent desire of people of good taste that all valuable buildings should be allowed to crumble into ruin. When, a few years ago, the Venetian municipality was compelled to repair the front of St. Mark's in order to prevent it from going to complete destruction, the indignation in England was so great that a society was formed for the protection of Venetian buildings. The courtesy shown in the formation of this society, with the implied assertion that the Venetians were unworthy to be intrusted with their own buildings, was rather questionable, but the ignorant obstinacy which preferred that St. Mark's should become a heap of ruins rather than undergo the necessary repairs was obvious to every one except the members of the new society. In the case of the Parthenon, it seems rather inconsistent for the British press to denounce the Greek Government for repairing the Parthenon, while the statues that constituted the most precious part of the building are in the British Museum.

W. L. ALDEN.

FOR BOOK LOVERS AND COLLECTORS.

Something About Some New Editions Which Open a New Era in American Bookmaking.

Most of our talk up to this time has been of popular books which every bookseller has on his counter.

To-day we have something to say of a few sets of books which we believe to be the handsomest and most artistic ever published in this country. First, as to the new copyright

Library Edition of the Complete Writings of John Lothrop Motley.

This edition is in seventeen volumes, bound either in cloth or half crushed levant. The plates are absolutely new, and show a fine, open letter-press. The paper is of a specially selected quality, with deckel edges and gilt top. The title pages are beautifully illuminated in the old style.

There are 120 illustrations in this edition, including 14 photogravure frontispieces from original paintings by Howard Pyle, F. V. Du Mond, T. de Thulstrup, Dielmann, Fredricks, and Keller. The other illustrations are photogravure reproductions of rare prints and many maps and charts of various periods. The introduction is by Doctor W. E. Griffis, our leading authority on Netherlandish History.

Aside from this regular Library Edition there is a special edition limited to 500 numbered copies, printed on laid Holland paper. Here many of the photogravures are on Japan paper. The 14 frontispieces are autographed by the artists and the introduction is signed by Dr. Griffis.

There are only a few sets of this limited edition unsold. If you will write to us we shall be glad to give you the prices on either set or send samples for your inspection.

* * * * * *

Another rarely beautiful set is the Wakefield Edition of the Complete Works of Oliver Goldsmith.

There are 12 volumes in this set, including John Forster's "Life of Goldsmith." The letter-press is in open pica type, on plate paper, with deckel edges.

The books may be had, bound either in Ornamental Cloth or Half Levant.

The frontispieces are all photogravures from original paintings as in the Motley, while there are many other photogravure reproductions of rare prints and old portraits. This edition also includes many of Edwin Abbey's drawings. The introduction is by Austin Dobson.

There is also a limited edition of this set with frontispieces in duplicate, one in each case signed by the artist. It is printed on laid Holland paper with the water mark of Harper & Brothers on every page.

* * * * * *

The more limited the edition of a book the more keen your true collector is to get hold of it.

We have just done a new full levant edition of

The Comedies of Shakespeare, with drawings by Edwin Abbey. It is in four volumes, limited to 26 lettered sets, of which 12 are already sold.

The frontispieces are signed by Mr. Abbey, and the books sell by subscription at $25 a volume. The gold tooling on the crushed leather (either red or green as you may prefer) is quite as beautiful as the daintiest of the contemporary French work of the same school.

You can always see these books at our office in Franklin Square, or samples will be sent you at your request. Or if you prefer we will send our illustrated catalogue of new editions.

HARPER & BROTHERS
Franklin Square, New York City.

London announces for early publication a new book to be published in a limited edition, "Sweet Hampstead and Its Associations," by Mrs. Caroline White. The book will be a handsomely printed, large 8vo volume of about 400 pages, fully illustrated by original sketches, portraits, and drawings of notable people, historic houses, and picturesque localities, and will be issued to subscribers at 15s. net. This charming northern suburb of London possesses greater natural beauty and more interesting literary and personal associations than any other. The author of the book, Mrs. White, who has long lived in the neighborhood and entered thoroughly into its charms seeks to awaken fresh interest by her enthusiastic presentation of the many historic, literary, and artistic associations that linger around this famous heath. Mrs. White closely follows its history for the last 200 years, bringing together much interesting information, and recording forgotten incidents and memories of the more notable inhibatants and famous visitors who have contributed toward making its nooks and corners memorable, her volume being one which will thoroughly interest those who have never visited Hampstead, while readers who are familiar with the beauty of the place and its many historic associations will be delighted with Mrs. White's vivid portraiture. An important feature of the volume, aside from the fact that its author, who has been writing for a long time, is now in her eighty-ninth year, is the fresh light she has thrown upon local details, as well as upon the personal history of eminent people and famous buildings connected with "Sweet Hampstead."

EARLY BOOKS IN GREEK.—The Bibliographical Society of London is about to issue a very important publication, the title of which is "The Printing of Greek in the Fifteenth Century." its author, Mr. Robert Proctor of the British Museum, has spent much time nnd trouble in the preparation of a most exhaustive monograph on this subject, the exceptional nature of which has necessitated its mechanical details being intrusted to printers with the classical traditions of the Clarendon Press, rather thuo to its regular printers. The book is large enough, as well as of sufficient importance, to be bound separately, and it being of so much interest to students of Greek, as well as to those interested in bibliography, it has been decided to allow members of the Hellenic Society to subscribe for as many copies as the society can consistently spare, at £1 each—the price for a single one of the society's issues thus nearly equaling the annual dues, a guinea each. The council of the society has long had in mind the choice of a special paper on which its various issues could be printed; with this end in view, the present monograph is being printed upon a paper especially made for it by Messrs. Batchelor of Little Chart, who were paper makers to the Kelmscott Press. If satisfactory, as could hardly fail to be the case, the society will use it in future, with the addition of a specially designed water mark, for all issues, thus adding one more interesting feature to the beauty and value—from a typographical standpoint—of its various publications.

MAPPING OUT A FICTITIOUS VILLAGE.—Mr. Edwin Asa Dix, the author of "Deacon Bradbury," has written several short stories for the magazines, the scenes of all being laid in Felton, the Vermont village where the events described in his novel are supposed, to have taken place. The village has so grown under Mr. Dix's hands, each story adding new characters and houses to the town, that he has found it necessary to construct an accurate map of the place, showing the streets and roads and the location of the various homes, stores, and the like. The Congregational church at the "Corners," where the deacon's secession took place, is seen, as well as all the other points mentioned in the book, including the deacon's own house at the west end of the village. It is Mr. Dix's plan to have the map reproduced for the new Vermont novel, on which he is now engaged.

M. P.'S WHO ARE AUTHORS.—We hear that Gilbert Parker has just finished a new novel entitled "The Right of Way," which is more or less of a romantic-psychological study, if that term means anything. Owing to the fact that literary reviewers have been speculating on the retirement of Mr. Parker from literature on account of his election to the British Parliament, it may be interesting to cite his own words on the subject:

I beg to assure you that I have no intention of abandoning literature. It will not be the first time that a man of letters has worked for the good of his country in Parliament and at the same time has pursued his literary work as before, if not to the same extent, yet trying to preserve quality. After all, it is not the amount a man produces that counts.

Mr. Parker is quite right. But what he says is equally applicable to the present Parliament as it would be to any of its predecessors. There are nine members who are professional authors, the more distinguished being, possibly, Prof. Bryce and John Morley. These are closely followed by Mr. Winston Spencer Churchill, Mr. Henry Norman, and Mr. Gilbert Parker himself. But while it is notorious that politics sadly interferes with Mr. Morley's literary work, Mr. Henry Norman will doubtless thrive under his new conditions, for his work is principally confined to contemporaneous politics. The only other members than Mr. Parker who have done any imaginative writing are Mr. Lucas, one of the members for Portsmouth, by the chance of fate or their own aspirations, are litterateurs, are too well known to need enumeration here.

SLIPS OF BOOK SHOPPERS AND OTHERS.—Doubtless a very interesting story could be written concerning the trials and tribulations of the salesmen who have charge of the book departments in large department stores. The ignorance of customers concerning just what they want to buy, why they want to but it, and who wrote it is more notorious than ever. One customer described Marion Crawford as "a woman novelist whose works were decidedly too masculine" to suit her, while another, who asked for the latest work of John Strange Winter, described that author as "an English army officer of an undoubted interesting personality." It is not often, however, that the mistake of a bookbinder adds to the trials of the department-store clerk, although we have heard of a certain case where a book of early sermons by the Rev. John Watson has, during the last Christmas holidays, been presented under covers which intimated that it was one of Ian Maclaren's most delightful tales. And here is the story of the mistake of a bookbinder which actually brought about a family complication. There was a certain young man who, having read a sporting novel entitled "The Monk Wins," became so fascinated with it that he bought a clean new copy and sent it to an elderly rich uncle whose health compels him to live in the south of France and renounce the delights of the race track. The young man did not examine the interior of the new book purchased, but had it shipped direct from the bookstore. The volume has now been returned, accompanied by a curt note intimating that the uncle, from whom the young man had prospects, had no intention of dying just yet, and anyhow, was not looking for religious instruction from any one, least of all from his nephew. The cover of the novel adorned with horseshoe and whip proved to inclose "Thirty Plain Sermons" by the Rev. J. B. C. Murphy.

MARCUS WHITMAN.—Colonial problems of considerable importance to historians were discussed at the recent meeting at Ann Arbor of the American Historical Association. Among the papers read was one by Prof. Bourne, which threw considerable light on the story of how Marcus Whitman rode to save Oregon to the United States in 1842-3. The speaker showed that Whitman came East at that time on business relating to his mission, and that the accounts ordinarily given of the circumstances and purpose of his journey are entirely untrue. The professor then described the origin and purpose of this fictitious narrative, and showed how it had been perpetuated since then in State and National histories, textbooks, and encyclopedias. He illustrated the extent of the diffusion of this fiction by showing that in the vote for the Hall of Fame Whitman received more votes than Senator Benton, Chief Justice Chase, and Gen. Scott, and the same number as President Monroe. At the conclusion of Prof. Bourne's paper, Prof. William I. Marshall of Chicago gave an interesting account of the same matter. At the conclusion of his remarks, Mr. Ripley Hitchcock of this city paid a tribute to the intrepid Westerner. He said: "It is a simple story. Whitman did not originate it himself." After telling some facts in connection with the lovable qualities of Whitman's character, he said: "Do not let us go to the extreme of doing an injustice to the memory of a man who thoroughly believed that he was right, who stood to his post and gave up his life in defense of his ideas."

"LORD GILHOOLEY."—Mr. Frederick Henri Seymour, who, under the pseudonym of Lord Gilhooley, wrote "Ye Wisdom of Confucius, or; Ye Mummyfyed Fingers," evidently wishes to qualify the attributes intimated on the title page of the volume, for he has written to a friend in this city as follows:

I am somewhat disturbed at the peculiar turn affairs have taken. While I should be flattered to get the credit for originating the nobic maxims of Confucius, it does not seem right to me to pose in this manner, for those maxims are unquestionably authentic, being from Dr. Legge's "Chinese Classics," and are only paraphrased a little. The Detroit Free Press, in a very flattering notice, calls the story "clever," and attributes the maxims to me, saying that they reflect great credit on my "perspicuity." I can readily see that the authorship is going to be attributed to me, and consequently if I dine not wisely, but too well, I am liable to have a genuine visit from Yen Hui, himself, if not from the indignant Confucius. I received a very polite letter of acknowledgment, signed Wu-Ting-Fang, promptly upon receipt of a copy of "Confucius" which I sent him.

COLOR WORK IN TYPOGRAPHY.—Considerable very delightful color work in fine typography has lately appeared bearing a comparatively new imprint, "The Wayside Department of the University Press of Cambridge, Mass." The Wayside management makes a specialty of attractive arrangement of the text and decorations of work intrusted to it, as well as of fine printing, the results having so familiar a look that while in the specimen before us—an illustrated Christmas catalogue issued by Messrs. Dodd, Mead & Co. of this city, well worthy of preservation as a specimen of fine typography—the title-page and cover design are the work of S. L. Busha, whose designs show this signature. But a great deal of the work, and especially a full page showing an elaborate floral design repeated over the entire page, while outlined behind it is the figure of a woin posters and in "Bradley, His Book" that it would seem he must be concerned in the active management of the department. The catalogue, which is printed throughout in green and black, contains a most attractive press mark in green, and unusually good head and tail pieces, either entirely in green or in black and green, while the running titles and initials throughout are also in these two colors; the whole being a most effective piece of work, as well as especially adapted to the holiday season.

Overstudy in Our Public Schools.

To The New York Times Saturday Review:

In an article recently written by Dr. M. Dunn Corey on the health of children, she argues that the curriculum of the public schools of to-day is no more injurious to the health of children than was that of a generation ago, and that the ill-health of so many children is not caused so much by overstudy as by improper food and care at home. She also advises that parents take the same studies as their children and go over their schooldays again. In their youth they were taught the three Rs; they did not touch botany, physiology, astronomy, poetry, and numerous other studies that are now forced into the brains of the children only to burden for awhile and then be forgotten.

Your article in THE NEW YORK TIMES SATURDAY REVIEW on "Why Men of Talent Fail," answers some of her points, but I would like to add a few more words. To the child that is strong and does not worry the number of studies may make little difference, but to the sensitive child that cannot bear failure, and whom it frequently overtaxes, it causes many a sleepless hour and breaking down of health. The teachers of any of the higher grades in public schools will tell you of many cases where scholars have had to leave school and rest for six months or a year because of the strain put upon them in the public schools.

She tells us that every child should have outdoor exercise every day, but how can this be taken when home studies take up three or four hours? One child may be able to get his lessons in an hour's study and keep his percentage up to 80, but the majority must take much longer, and are thus deprived of their play hours. I know of one girl whose health broke down a year ago. By taking a year's vacation she has recovered health, but has gotten so far behind her former classmates that she is ashamed to go back to school. Would it not be better to do away with many of these superfluous studies and give both the weak and the strong a good start by learning thoroughly the primary and fundamental principles of education? Then, if they want to study botany, zoology, hygiene, astronomy, and poetry, let them take them at private schools afterward.

All these accomplishments are good in their place, but the place is not the public school. I know of one boy that could repeat the entire book, "The Lady of the Lake," and another who could recite many pages of "Evangeline," and their parents were proud of them, yet, after graduation, these two boys had to spend six months at private school to learn to write.

The article in THE SATURDAY REVIEW very correctly says: "Boys follow quite naturally the methods in which they have been schooled, and they have been virtually taught that a skin-deep acquaintance with many subjects is the whole duty of man."

The man or child who applies himself to one thing is more successful than he who tries many things. Henry Clay in his youth applied himself to writing, reading, and arithmetic; Daniel Webster did nearly the same; Abraham Lincoln had no educational frills in his youth, but these men learned thoroughly the few things necessary, and, becoming well-grounded in these, they then applied themselves to their life work and were successful.

Let our Board of Education wake up to the fact that our boys need not so much an ornamental education as they do a good training, such as was given their fathers in the public schools of a generation ago. Then, if they need some special subject, let them take it up as a special study and they will be far more successful than by getting a smattering of everything.

Truly THE REVIEW says: "The man who knows all about one thing is a dangerous opponent; but the man who knows something of everything gives us no concern."

HENRY CARRINGTON.

New York, Dec. 10, 1900.

Mill and Coleridge.

From "The English Utilitarians," Leslie Stephen.

Mill discharged all his duties as strenuously as a man could, while Coleridge's life was a prolonged illustration of the remark that when an action presented itself to him as a duty he became physically incapable of doing it. Whatever Mill undertook he accomplished, often in the face of enormous difficulties. Coleridge never finished anything, and his works are a heap of fragments of the prolegomena to ambitious schemes. Mill worked his hardest from youth to age, never sparing labor or shirking difficulties or turning aside from his path. Coleridge dawdled through life, solacing himself with opium, and could only be coaxed into occasional activity by skilful diplomacy. Mill preserved his independence by rigid self-denial, temperance, and punctuality. Coleridge was always dependent upon the generosity of his friends. Mill brought up a large family, and in the midst of severe labors found time to educate them even to excess. Coleridge left his wife and children to be cared for by others. And Coleridge died in the odor of sanctity, revered by his disciples and idolized by his children; while Mill went to the grave amidst the shrugs of respectable shoulders, and respected rather than beloved by the son who succeeded to his intellectual leadership.

new volumes in the English Reading Series this month. [illegible] will be selections from Pope, [illegible] by Dr. E. S. Reed of Yale; the [illegible] Burke's Speech on Conciliation of America," edited by D. V. Thompson of the Sachs School, New York, and "Swift's Prose Selections," being "The Battle of the Books," "The Modest Proposal," "The Abolishing of Christianity," "The Drapier's Letters," and parts of "The Tale of a Tub," edited by Prof. Frederick Prescott of Cornell.

"Eastover Court House," which will shortly be published by Harper & Brothers, was, we understand, not entirely written by Mr. Kenneth Brown, but was composed by him in collaboration with Henry Burnham Boone.

An entertaining feature of the January issue of Everybody's Magazine is a series of photographs of Sioux Indians. There is also an article in which we get a glimpse of Mr. Ernest Seton-Thompson at home, while Chalmers Roberts presents a dramatic paper on Peking.

One characteristic of the new magazine, The World's Work, is best implied by the two following passages taken from two letters recently received by the editor of the magazine. One says: "There is too little literature in the magazine. It ought to have literary essays and pleasant chat about books and short stories and poems." The other reads: "Thank heaven that one magazine is bold enough to emancipate itself from literature." The fact is that literature as an end is not one of the aspirations of the periodical in question. But if its articles, which hold the mirror up to the progress of the world from month to month, lack what reviewers call "artistic elegance," they are wanting in neither force nor clearness.

It seems that Dr. Miles G. Hyde's book, a collection of short stories and sketches, entitled "The Girl from Mexico and Other Stories," has excited considerable interest in the doctor's old home, in Cortland, N. Y. Says The Cortland Daily Standard: "Cortland readers, especially among our older residents, will be particularly interested in the sketches, in all of which there is a local background, woven out of the doctor's reminiscences of this city in its early village days and of its then common characters. The original of 'The Country Doctor' was Dr. Hyde's own grandfather, Dr. Miles Goodyear, whose kindly nature, professional abilities, and genial eccentricities are among the traditions of the place."

G. P. Putnam's Sons are publishing in their Heroes of the Nations Series "Daniel O'Connell," by Robert Dunlop, and "St. Louis, the Most Christian King," by Frederick Perry.

The January number of The Ledger Monthly contains a new department, entitled "The First Necessities of Good Housekeeping," by Cornelia C. Bedford. An article which may appeal to book lovers is "Literary Strolls About Manhattan," with portraits and views. There are also articles on "Indian Babies" and "Aristocratic Cats." Hall Caine's beautiful story "Jan, the Icelander," is concluded in this number.

Christian Brinton has made for Carl Glucksmann an artistic leaflet descriptive of Rembrandt's "Anslo," etched by Karl Coepping. On the first page is presented a photogravure reproduction made direct from the painting, while on the third page we learn this concerning the picture: "Variously known as 'Reinier and His Mother' and 'Reinier Anslo and His Wife,' the picture really represents the celebrated Mennonite preacher Cornelius Claesz Anslo in conversation with a woman of his parish."

Literary culture at Glens Falls, N. Y., may be said to rival that in larger and more pretentious places, if one is to judge of its character by the descriptive catalogue recently published by P. F. Madigan of that place. In it, the gaudy gift books and inartistically bound standard works which, too often, emphasize the literary stagnation of a small town are singularly wanting. Here we find not only those standard works appropriately presented which are necessary to every well-equipped library, but there are works described like Burton's "Arabian Knights," and in fact, fine editions of the most distinctive works that have ornamented the various phases of French, English, and American literature.

The Macmillan Company are publishing a modern play in four acts by Mrs. W. K. Clifford under the title of "The Likeness of the Night"; in the Great Masters in Painting and Sculpture Series "Giorgione," by Herbert Cook, and in the Temple Classics the translation of the "Inferno" of Dante by John Aitken Carlyle, edited by H. Oelsner.

That London periodical called The Cornhill Magazine has for some time been broadening its scope, so now that it contains features which have more of a general interest than ever before. With the January number it enters upon the forty-first year of its existence, and George N. Smith, the founder and publisher, relates incidents connected with its birth and parentage—an article which appears simultaneously in The Critic of this city. In the same number of the London publication we find the opening chapters of a novel by Stanley Weyman entitled "Count Hannibal," while Miss Mary Wilkins furnishes one of her New England stories under the title of "A Tragedy from the Trivial."

Longevity of Women.

From The London Globe.

Statistics show that women live longer than men. For instance, in Germany only 413 out of 1,000 males reach the age of fifty years, while more than 500 out of 1,000 females reach that age. In the United States there are 2,583 female to 1,398 male centenarians. In France, of 10 centenarians 7 are women and only 3 men. In the rest of Europe, of 21 centenarians 16 are women.

THE ETIQUETTE OF CORRESPONDENCE.

By Helen E. Gavit.

A recent review says: "Miss Gavit of Miss Ely's school has written a volume of great value to the many cultured and refined persons who often find themselves at a loss concerning some one of the many thousand minute points involved in the social letter writing of to-day.

"The construction of the conventional letter writer has been wholly ignored, and in its stead have been given those forms and hints on social usage which are of real interest.

"Chapters on heraldry and club correspondence serve to give an idea of the character and purpose of the remaining chapters of the book."

Ornamental cloth, $1.25, postpaid. We will send it on approval.

A. WESSELS CO., 7-9 W. 18th St., N. Y.

Books of To-day.

M. F. Mansfield,
Publisher,
14 West 22d St.,
New York.

In Memoriam
By Lord Tennyson
De luxe edition
Royal 8vo, $3.50 net

The Book of Omar and Rubaiyat
Pictorial and Literary Miscellany
8vo, antique boards, $1.75 net.

MR. MOSHER'S NEW LIST OF BOOKS IN BELLES LETTRES

IS NOT ONLY A BIBLIOGRAPHY IN BRIEF OF "THE MOSHER BOOKS," 1891-1900, INCLUSIVE, BUT AN EXQUISITE LITTLE BIBELOT IN ITSELF. SENT POSTPAID FOR THE ASKING.

THOMAS B. MOSHER
Portland, Maine.

MALKAN CUT PRICE BOOKMAN. HANOVER SQ. No. 1 WILLIAM ST. and 67 STONE ST. TEL. 1121 Broad.

Book Store for Everybody
Mail Orders a Specialty
Special Discounts to Libraries

"DEACON BRADBURY

is, in many respects, as distinct a character as David Harum."
—Phila. Item.

To Authors Seeking a Publisher

Manuscripts in all branches of literature, suitable for publication in book form, are required by an established house. Liberal terms. No charge for examination. Prompt attention and honorable treatment. "Books," 141 Herald, 23d Street, New York.

BOTH TRUSTEES AND THOSE WHOSE PROPERTY IS HELD IN TRUST SHOULD SEND

$1.50
FOR LORING'S TRUSTEES HANDBOOK
Little, Brown & Co., Publishers,
254 Washington St., Boston, Mass.

Have You Read
"Resurrection"?

Pocket Size Standard Novels.
Dickens's and Thackeray's Works. Thinnest printing paper in the world used. Large type, easy to read. Size 4¼ by 6¼ inches, and not thicker than a monthly magazine. Prospectus mailed free on request, or books sent prepaid on receipt of price. THOS. NELSON & SONS, 37 East 18th St., New York.

A New Volume by Dr. Theodore F. Wolfe.
LITERARY RAMBLES AT HOME AND ABROAD
By the author of "Literary Shrines," "A Literary Pilgrimage," and "Literary Homes and Haunts." Illustrated with photogravures. Buckram, $1.25.
J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY, Publishers, Philadelphia.

MENTAL NUTS. Can You Crack 'Em? 100 catch problems. Great Entertainers. Mailed for 10-cents in stamps. Home Supply CO., D 58, 132 Nassau St., N. Y. N. B.—Just out, Knots. Can you untie 'em? 10 cents. New Catalogue free.

AUTOGRAPH LETTERS of FAMOUS PERSONS Bought and Sold. WALTER R. BENJAMIN, 1120 Broadway, New York. SEND FOR PRICE LISTS.

ANY BOOKS, OLD OR NEW, SUPPLIED TO out-of-town residents. Questions answered. Orders promptly filled. Liberal discount on new books. I. BAYLIES, 413 Putnam Av., Brooklyn, New York City.

STORIES OF FAMOUS SONGS, 2 VOLS., $2.00; our price, $2. Side Lights on The Reign of Terror, $4.00; our price, $2.50. History of Modern Philosophy in France; our price, $2.50. THE BOOK MART, 105 4th Av., N. Y.

Mcknight & Brother, MEMORIAL WINDOWS New York.

FORWARD MOVEMENTS.

Dr. Pierson's Summary, with Special Reference to Mr. George's Junior Republic.*

A service to thinkers along lines of pure spirituality, applied Christianity, and social evolution has been done by presenting to the public Dr. Arthur T. Pierson's "Forward Movements of the Last Half Century." Some may object that so broad a title should be given to a work manifestly dealing with only a class of forward movements. On the other hand, the august nature of the themes considered, the emphasis the author gives to character and conduct in his striving to fix the centre of truth, and real inspiration of social and religious evolution, and his thoughtful search to fix the compass of moral progress vindicate the right of this volume of 400 pages to its title.

The author sets forth in attractive pages, and in a style that never grows dull or prolix, the noteworthy moral, ethical, philanthropic, missionary and spiritual movements that have made the age illustrious. No romance is more fascinating to the student of social and religious life. The reader is borne along by the writer's enthusiasm as down the current of a swift river. The intense earnestness of the man carries the weight of conviction with it. As we survey the field through Dr. Pierson's eyes, at one time we cry out, "How much has been done!" At another, "Alas! how vast the ocean of the undone!"

Great problems wait to be solved. Through failure and perplexity how shall we cope with poverty, selfishness, and sin in its myriad forms all about us? No man can read these pages who has ever asked the question, What does the Infinite One will me to make of my life? or, How can I make the best use of the days that are given me here on this earth? without being stirred from the stagnation of moral malady to a sense of personal responsibility. For with incisive thrust, keen as a rapier cleavage, these pages ask over and over again, What is it to work for God and man? At the outset the book insists on the New Testament type of character and conduct. Some may believe these ideals too lofty for the common life to attain unto, but not the man whose pen chronicles these nineteenth century movements.

The Chinese Minister, Mr. Wu, may win applause in certain quarters, nominally Christian, by exalting the teachings of Confucius and repudiating as unattainable the Sermon on the Mount. But he thinks too low of human nature who forbids it to rise into the altitudes God has planned for its habitual dwelling place. There is more divinity in man than the dull eye sees or the sordid mind conceives.

We hear in the initial chapters the cry of the human heart for personal purity and simple goodness. In terse sentences the author holds up the standard of the one book for life and conduct, and contrasts it with the average all about us. He maintains the possibility of living in the power of the unseen and eternal, and to have the inner life of the spirit, what we rightly name disposition and temper, transformed into likeness to the divine, and so to possess, while amid the turmoil of earth, freedom, rest, and peace.

Dr. Pierson's indorsement of what is known as the Keswick movement is wholesouled and emphatic. The Keswick teaching is a strenuous type of Christianity and has a spiritual flavor all its own. Complete surrender of the human will to God, transformation of the tone, temper, and disposition of the inner life, and joyful cloudless faith are its leading characteristics. Yet it must be remembered that these, too, have been sought by others outside of Keswick.

The accounts of the great missionary enterprises of the age, conducted by faith, the Muller Orphanage, the J. Hudson Taylor China Inland Mission, are vivid and fresh with picturesque and inspiring incidents that breathe the spirit of an exalted Christian chivalry. That a Gossner or a Louis Harms could accomplish so much for human weal and the furtherance of the simple teachings of the Nazarene is a matter of almost miracle. If a few men can leave such an unselfish impression on the world, why may not many men follow in their footsteps and urge on the day of perfect brotherhood, peace, and love.

The book is too full to attempt any outline of its crowded pages in the scope of this brief review. It includes such topics as "The Pentecostal Movement," "The Prayer Basis of Mission Work," "Woman's Work at Home and Abroad," "The Problem of City Evangelization," and "Systematic Christian Work Among Soldiers." Noteworthy, and showing a discriminating judgment, as most of it does, to many students of religious and social themes, the volume is nowhere more absorbing than when it tells the sad story of what has been done for lepers, or recounts the workings of Mr. George's Junior Republic.

The heroic labors of the Moravian Missions to Lepers, Father Damien, Miss Mary Reed of Pithora in the Himalayas, can only make one feel, as these devoted lives pass in review, with all the weakness incidental to human nature, the sometime glamour of the enthusiast, that man was made to be intrinsically noble and true, and that sin alone has marred his fair sky and shut out the stars. No story of the imagination is more wonderful than is the strange and weird procession of these events. They tinge the curse of a world of sin with the loveliness of angel's wings. The American public has become familiar with the dreadfulness and pathetic hopelessness of this insidious disease in the tale of "Ben Hur," and its realistic representation on the dramatic stage.

The wide scope of Dr. Pierson's book is seen as we turn from his crowded pages on the work for lepers to the Junior Republic of Freeport, New York. Its object is the elevation of orphan and outcast children. The street waif and the incorrigible boy or girl, the despair of parents, are welcomed here. So quietly and modestly has the work been carried on that comparatively few know of its far-reaching importance. It has now passed the stage of experiment, and stands on the bedrock of a noble record and achievement. We know of nowhere that reformatory work for children has met with such great success. If we are rightly informed, the Orphan Colony at Bridge of Weir, in Scotland, is the only one that may stand comparison with it for salutary results accomplished. Mr. George in his Freeport effort has solved the problem of how boys and girls may be taken from vicious environment and educated so as to make out of them good men and women and good citizens.

Not only the Salvation Army, but multitudes of our churches, especially those established on an institutional basis, have come very close in these last years to the waifs, outcasts, and poverty cursed in our congested wards. Mr. George, while yet a business man in the City of New York, was wont to devote considerable time to the study of the street arab. He haunted the east side with benevolent intent, where children swarm. The more he knew of them the more he yearned over them. His active mind began to devise plans for their betterment. At first his efforts were crude. They were pretty much confined to giving many of these poor children a fresh-air outing in the country in the Summer season. After some failures he began to stop giving the children clothing and other things to carry home with them, and made them work for what they had. This was found to prevent the evil of pauperizing. In 1895 Mr. George gave up his business, and devoted himself entirely to reform work. The Junior Republic was born in this way.

The day that an accident made it necessary to put in one of the elder boys in place of the adult overseer was a fortunate one for the reformatory experiment. To the surprise of Mr. George there was a marked improvement in discipline. Their street education had taught these boys that the police and all supervisors were to be duped and outwitted. But there was no glory in outwitting one of their own number, but much shame in suffering punishment at his hands. This led to the thinking out of trial by jury for all offenses. Then the whole plan of the Junior Republic, with its bread-winning, lawmaking, and law-respecting citizens, was born on July 10, 1895. Its government is a democracy. The citizens rule. The Constitution is patterned on that of the United States. The laws of the State of New York are its laws. The form of government contains many features of our municipalities.

Mr. George is himself the acting President. The boys hold all the other offices. The motto of the republic is, "Nothing without labor." The boys are taught self-control, self-help, obedience to law, the blessing of services for others, and altruism, and are given the opportunity to become honorable and useful citizens. The experiment is one that ought to enlist the earnest attention of philanthropic workers. It is a great object lesson in the divinest of charities.

Vast sums are spent in our penal institutions. Just so long as the city has its slums and degraded populations, sociological students and workers must devise ways and means to offset the disastrous results of these schools of vice. The Junior Republic is not playing at laws, or playing at reform. Judged by its fruits in the short time of its existence, it commends itself to the well-wishers of the larger Republic, of which this Freeport idea is but a miniature. The secret of success lies in a strong head, non-interference, and a tireless, vigilant outlook.

The boys who have staid as long as the President has felt it best have uniformly made good citizens. One's heart warms toward the little fellow who, in a heated discussion, exclaimed: "I tell youse I've been a citizen meself, and Jimmy O'Brien won't ever lead me round by de nose like he leads me fadder. I knows a ting or two about politics. See?"

The book as a whole is to be commended to the student of social affairs, the minister and religious worker, and those engaged in reformatory work. It is an important contribution in the realm of practical and applied Christianity, and a high type of spirituality.

FRANCIS E. MARSTEN.

MAURICE THOMPSON.—Mr. Thompson, who still lies ill at Sherwood Place, his home in Crawfordsville, Ind., has not been permitted to read or to be read to during his long sickness, but one of his attendants read him a newspaper paragraph in which Mr. Howells said that he did not like historical novels. "'When I read history,' says Mr. Howells, 'I prefer it undiluted.' 'Very well,' remarked Mr. Thompson, 'but Mr. Howells takes his fiction in syllabub form diluted to the last refinement of artificiality. This may be good fiction for a certain few, but the [illegible]

READY JANUARY 15TH,
"GWYNETT OF THORNHAUGH,"
BY
FREDERICK W. HAYES, A. R. A.
"A sequel to "A Kent Squire."
With sixteen full-page illustrations by the author. Handsomely bound in cloth, with exquisite design on cover.

Price, $1.25.

For sale by all Booksellers or mailed on day of publication on receipt of price.

In announcing a NEW BOOK BY FREDERICK W. HAYES, the publishers take pleasure in calling attention to the REMARKABLE SUCCESS of his first book, "A KENT SQUIRE." Probably no book by a new writer has received such flattering press notices from the leading critics, both in this country and in England.

Mr. Hayes is the author of several successful plays, is a well-known musician, and is one of the leading artists of England, being an "Associate Member of the Royal Academy."

The F. M. Lupton Publishing Company,
NEW YORK.

Clearance Sale
OF Fine Books

During this month we offer all our extensive stock of books in fine bindings at VERY SPECIAL PRICES.

A rare opportunity for intelligent buyers who appreciate bargains.

G. P. Putnam's Sons
RETAIL DEPARTMENT,
27 and 29 West 23d Street, N. Y.

Distinguished critics, as well as laymen, differ widely as to the merits of popular books. Zangwill has selected "QUISANTÉ" by Anthony Hope, as the greatest book of the past year. Dr. Joseph Parker, the great London preacher, says that "ROBERT ORANGE," by John Oliver Hobbes, is the best book of 1900.

The fifth edition of "Quisanté" has just been issued, and is now ready.

Expert Opinion on Literary Work of All Kinds.
Novels, Stories, Lectures, Speeches Carefully Revised at Low Rates.
MANUSCRIPTS SUCCESSFULLY PLACED.
Conducted by
FRANK LEE FARNELL,
An Editor of Fifteen Years' Experience.
THE UNITED LITERARY PRESS,
23 Park Row, New York.
Send for leaflet.
"An honest association for the help of writers."

MAP ENGRAVING.
We draw, engrave, and print all kinds of maps for all kinds of purposes. Having unequaled facilities in all departments, we are prepared to execute orders of any size promptly and efficiently. Our collection of modern map plates is perhaps the largest and most complete in the world. In many cases we have adapted these regular plates to suit special purposes, thereby effecting a considerable saving for our customers. We make a specialty of preparing maps for prospectus circulars, folders, books, &c. Estimates promptly furnished. RAND, McNALLY & CO., 142 5th Av., New York City.

DON'T FORGET that you get FREE with every copy of
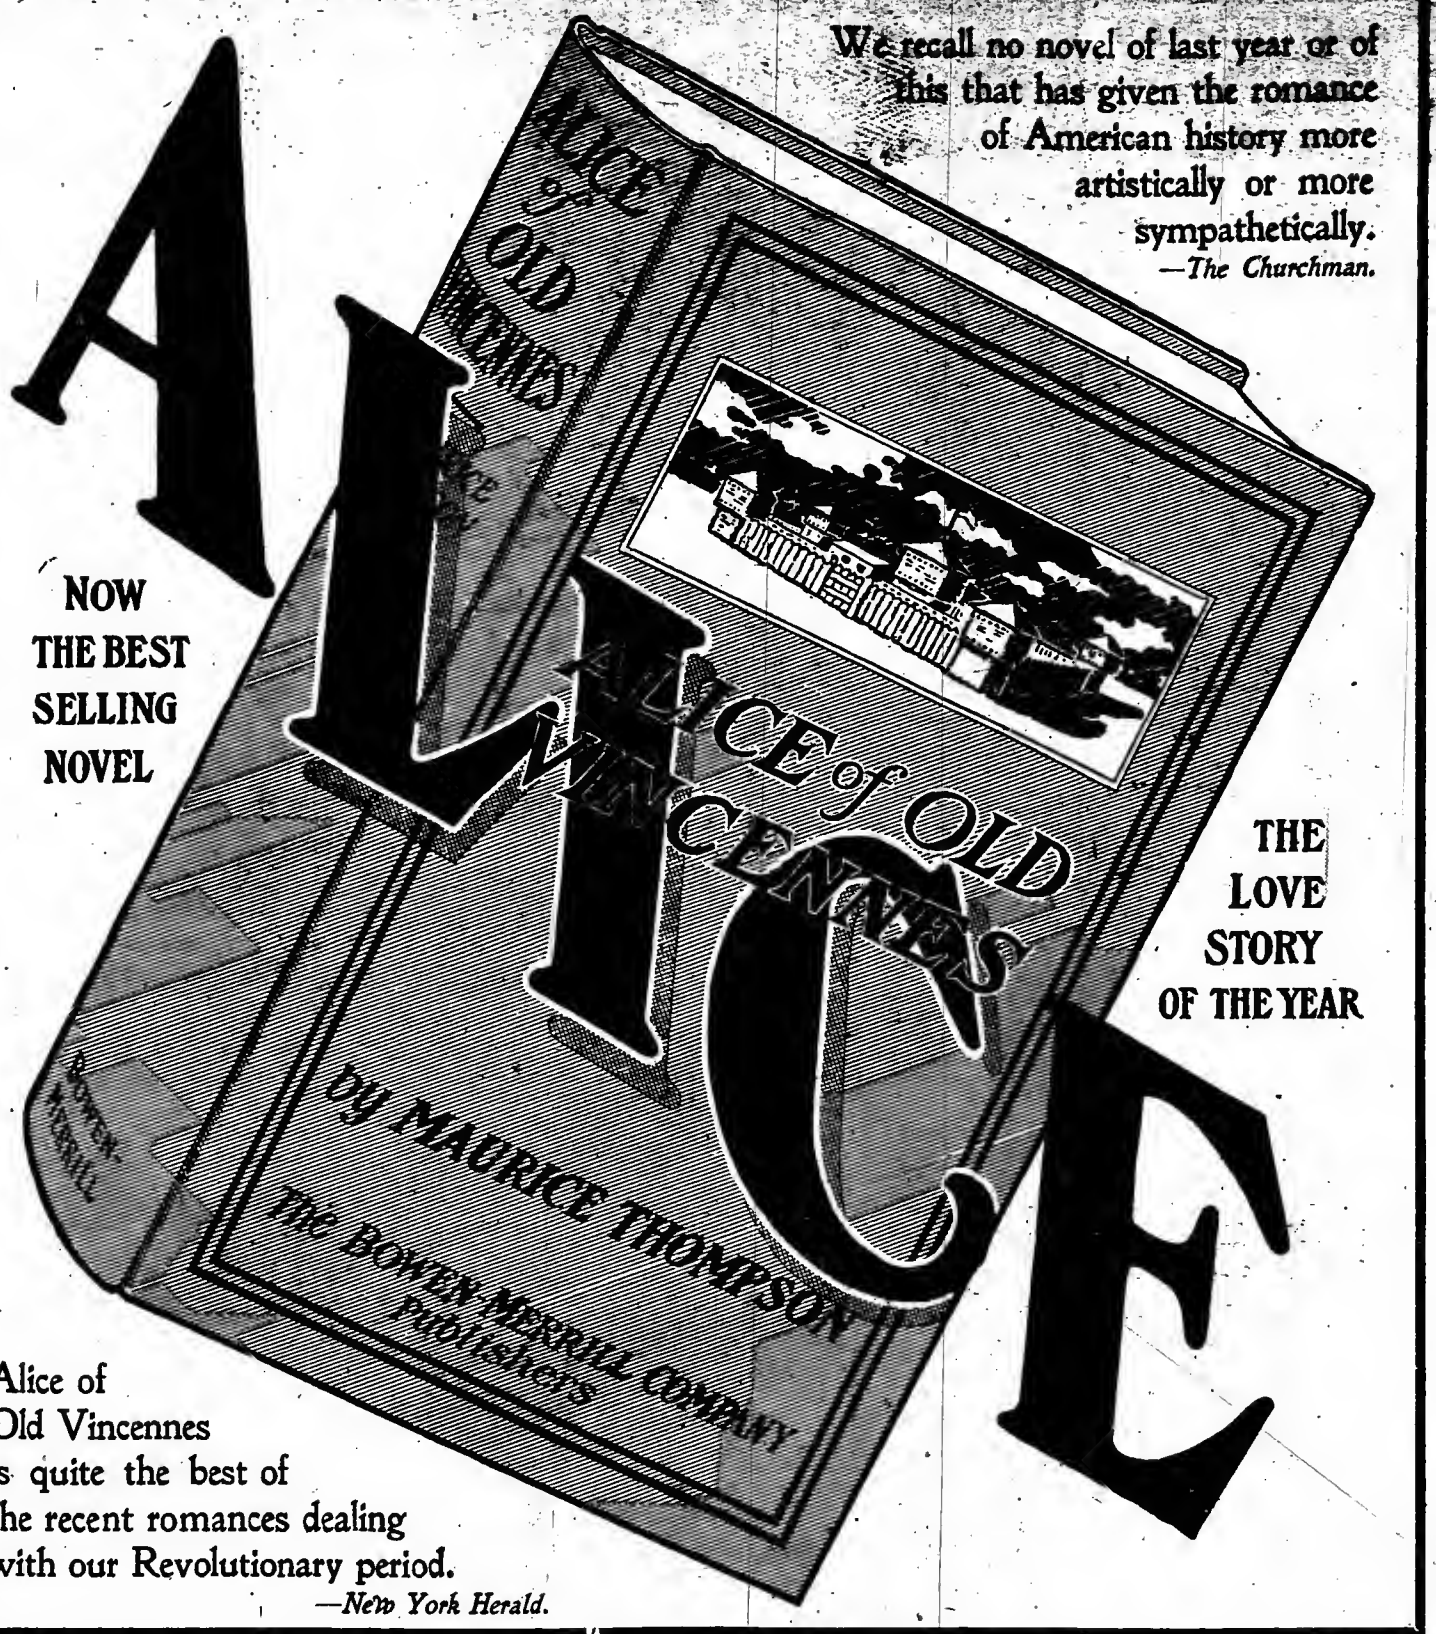
VENGEANCE IS MINE
a beautiful platinum print of the heroine, Kate Ingleby.
NEW AMSTERDAM BOOK CO.

THE DUKE.
By J. STORER CLOUSTON, Author of "The Lunatic at Large." Crown 8vo, cloth, ornamental, $1.25.
"In this story the author finds a new opportunity for much humorous writing. The [illegible]



We recall no novel of last year or of this that has given the romance of American history more artistically or more sympathetically.
—The Churchman.

NOW THE BEST SELLING NOVEL

THE LOVE STORY OF THE YEAR

Alice of Old Vincennes is quite the best of the recent romances dealing with our Revolutionary period.
—New York Herald.

BACHELORS.

Ten Who Have Been Famous in Several Walks of Life.*

In the days when our forbears took their reading very seriously they cherished a famous book called commonly "Fox's Martyrs." It lay between Baxter's "Saint's Rest" and Taylor's "Holy Living," and was as unquestioned Sunday reading as "Pilgrim's Progress" or "Narratives of Remarkable Conversions."

In opening "A Book of Bachelors" we find in the preface that the ancient and honorable company of celibates is referred to as "the noble army of martyrs," and the author, by a delightful coincidence, is Arthur W. Fox. It is not possible, however, to force the parallel further. The work just published is a frank attempt to present the lives of ten men, sometime famous, who have adorned as many walks of life, and who, by accident or design, neglected "to hunt in mixed doubles." There is no theory advanced, no "insidious purpose of proving the absurd generalization that marriage is a failure," nor any attempt "to play the unchivalrous part of girding at the follies and foibles of the fair sex." A somewhat formidable array of sixty-five authors indicates the thoroughness and care with which this delightful collection of biographies has been compiled. The names of John Evelyn, Thomas Fuller, William Harrison, Ben Jonson, William Laud, and Thomas Frankland among others are enough to guarantee a bill of fare that cannot fail to whet the appetite of the literary epicure.

The first chapter, styled the Schoolmaster, is a presentation of Henry Peacham, who was artist and pedagogue as well as the author of "The Compleate Gentleman." The sketch commences with a graphic and entertaining account of schools and schoolmasters of Peacham's day, with numerous transcripts from his pages, supplemented by quotations from Fuller, Aubrey, and others.

The style of the essayist often suggests the influence of his subject. It is like the art of the lapidary who subordinates the cement with which his mosaic is framed. However, it must not be supposed that Mr. Fox's work has been merely that of an editor. The quaint and curious volumes of forgotten lore that he has drawn upon amply furnish him the pigments with which he has produced his picture.

With the suggestion that "the old poacher makes the best gamekeeper," we are introduced to Peacham's estimate of schoolmasters, parents, and scholars in his day. Speaking of the former class, he says: "I knew one who in Winter would ordinarily on a cold morning whip his boys over for no other purpose than to get himself into a heat; another beat them for swearing, and all the while swore himself with horrible oaths; he would forgive any fault saving that. I had, I remember, myself, (near St. Albans, in Hertfordshire, where I was born,) a master, who by no entreaty would teach any scholar he had further than his father had learned before him; as if he had only learned but to read English the son, though he went with him seven years, should go no further. His reason was that they would prove saucy rogues and control their fathers."

But the trials of teachers and the hardships endured by private tutors in the families of the wealthy roused the ire of one who had experienced them. "Is it not commonly seen," he exclaims, "that the most gentlemen will give better wages and deal more bountifully with a fellow who can but teach a dog, or reclaim a hawk, than upon an honest, learned, and well qualified man to bring up their children? It may be, hence it is, that dogs are able to make syllogisms in the fields, when their young masters are able to conclude nothing at home, if occasion or argument or discourse be offered at the table."

That the condition of affairs was in this respect somewhat better in France at that time is suggested by an anecdote told (on Page 18) of a certain young English gentleman abroad, who, having spent his means, applied to a French nobleman for a position in his household. "My lord, who could speak as little English as my countryman French, bade him welcome, and demanded by me of him what he could do. • • • Calling some about him, (very gentlemanlike as well in their behavior as their apparel,) 'This (saith he) rideth and breaketh my great horses; this is an excellent latinist; this is a passing linguist and scholar, who instructeth my sons,' etc. 'Sir,' quoth then the young man, 'I am a gentleman born, and can only attend you in your chamber, or wait upon your lordship abroad.' 'See,' (quoth M. de Ligny, for so was his name,) 'how your gentry of England are bred; that when they are distressed or want means in a strange country, they are brought up neither to any quality to prefer them, nor have they so much as the Latin tongue to help themselves withal.'"

Andrew Boorde, who was "born in or about the year 1489, in the reign of the prudent monarch, Henry VII., is the subject of the next chapter, and fills the rôle of the physician. Beginning life as a Carthusian brother, he chafed against the restraints of monastic life till he could stand the irksome existence no longer, and "returned to Oxford, where he studied medicine with some success." Retaining for a time at least his Carthusian orders, he was fully qualified to rank in the company of the Bachelors. In 1521, as may be seen from a letter of his written fifteen years after this time to Thomas Cromwell, he was appointed Suffragan Bishop of Chichester; but by some means he was suffered to leave the duties of this uncongenial office utterly undischarged. It could not have been long after this date that, inspired by his restless mind, he set forth upon his travels. He journeyed to a great distance from home, and, through many lands, carefully noting what he saw.

The Parson, the Bishop, and the Archbishop are the titles of the three successive essays which follow. The first presents Henry Smith, who lived in the latter half of the sixteenth century and had the felicity of preaching at a time when men were obliged to go to church under penalty of fine or imprisonment if they absented themselves. That a man so entirely relieved from the arduous task of keeping an unwilling congregation together should have exerted himself to preach well is much in his favor. His life as given in these pages introduces the reader to men and customs of a day that never loses its interest for us.

The Bishop, Launcelot Andrewes, was the "wise, tender, considerate, and devout soul," who, as the most learned of the ecclesiastics that surrounded King James I., was selected to write a reply to the scurrilous attack made upon his royal master by Cardinal Bellarmine. The overwhelming flood of latinity which Andrewes poured out upon his adversary in that and a subsequent letter effectually swamped the guns of Bellarmine. Of shy and modest nature, Andrewes appears to have been a preacher of unusual power. "If he were a lamb in the cloister, he was a lion in the pulpit. His sermons on the nativity and the resurrection are among the finest of their kind in our pulpit literature. • • • Great as a preacher, a theologian, a scholar, and a saint, he lives and shall live among the mighty men of our race."

It is difficult to pass with merely cursory reference the sketches of Cowley, the poet; Thomas Coryate, the traveler, or Sir Thomas Overbury, the courtier—the same who was intimately connected with the great divorce scandal already referred to, the confidential adherent of Rochester, who experienced the good and ill fortunes that are commonly the lot of those who live upon the smiles of others. Sir Henry Wotton, diplomatist, and Robert Burton, humorist, are put in their order at the very end of all, perhaps for the value of contrast.

The whole book is full of pleasant reading. A crop of suggestions flourishes on every page—there is not a sterile one in the book. The illustrations are from old prints and other obsolete sources, and add value to the volume. The work of the publisher is in keeping with the character of the essays. Not an inconsiderable item in the estimation of all real readers is the addition of a carefully prepared index.

*A BOOK OF BACHELORS. By Arthur W. Fox, M. A. With illustration. 8vo. Pp. 440. New York: E. P. Dutton & Co. Westminster: Archibald Constable & Co. $5.

SUNDAY, THREE CENTS. DAILY, ONE CENT.

"All the News That's Fit to Print."

The New York Times.

THE WEATHER. Fair; brisk northwesterly winds.

COPYRIGHT, 1901, BY THE NEW YORK TIMES COMPANY.

VOL. L...NO. 15,911. NEW YORK, SUNDAY, JANUARY 6, 1901.—TWENTY-SIX PAGES. PRICE THREE CENTS.

STOCKS LEAP UP AND DOWN

Biggest Saturday in the History of the Exchange.

Market Opens with Prices Soaring—Recorded Transactions Exceed 1,150,000 Shares in Two Hours' Trading.

Wall Street was yesterday treated to another phenomenal display of activity on the stock market, all previous Saturday records being easily surpassed. Recorded transactions ran beyond 1,150,000 shares for the two hours, nearly 150,000 more than on the previous best day, which was Saturday, Dec 22. The trading was simply enormous, and as on the preceding days, the facilities of the Exchange were so taxed that many transactions were not even recorded. Probably, were stop orders and the like included in the total, the day's dealings would run easily beyond the 1,500,000 mark.

But it was not so much because of its activity that the market was remarkable as because of the surprising opening, following upon the great display of strength on the day previous. General expectations were that higher prices would appear, but few people had expected the high prices that actually were disclosed at the opening. St. Paul, for instance, opened "8,000 shares from 161 to 162," a rise over night of 3⅝ points; Northern Pacific opened "10,000 shares from 88½ to 90," a gain of 2 points; Reading first preferred on opening dealings in 2,000 shares was up 3¼ points, and speedily rose several more; Union Pacific opened on 10,000 shares at 83 to 83½, as compared with Friday's close of 81⅞, while the opening for Great Northern preferred was 2 points higher, for Pennsylvania, 1⅝ higher, for Missouri Pacific, about 3 points higher—and so on, in fact, in many of the railway stocks. It was an opening such as the remaining shorts in the market had feared, and which resulted in their complete discomfiture. Short covering was forced throughout the list, the shorts taking enormous losses.

As was to be expected under the circumstances, the high prices did not hold. London, which had sent over higher prices at the opening—in St. Paul about 5 points up—turned seller after the first half hour, while at the same time very heavy liquidating sales appeared for home account. The result was that in many instances prices broke from the high figures, in some cases sharply, though it is a noteworthy fact that many of the stocks, though declining from the top prices, showed, nevertheless, net gains for the day. Sugar was an exception, declining from 162 to 156½, and closing at 157¼, a net loss of 1¼ points on dealings in 64,000 shares.

On the other hand the Reading issues showed exceptional strength, though the official announcement of the purchase of control of Jersey Central by J. P. Morgan & Co., for Reading, was not made until after the close of business. Semi-official statements reporting the purchase had appeared, however, sending the common stock up 5⅜ points, the first preferred up 5, (though the close showed a net gain of but 2,) and the second preferred up 3¾. Jersey Central itself advanced 2¾ points, while in other coal stocks strength also was shown. Delaware and Hudson advancing 2¾ points, Lackawanna 1¾, Erie common 1½, first preferred 2, and second preferred 2¾.

Baltimore and Ohio gained 3⅜ points on the suggestion, conveyed in the special Chicago dispatch to THE NEW YORK TIMES, that it might be the Eastern link in the great transcontinental line planned by the St. Paul-Northern Pacific-Great Northern officials.

The industrials not only did not share in the market advance, but rather were inclined to weakness. The steel stocks were depressed by the break in Tennessee Coal on a revival of the reports that the dividend on the stock might be passed, while the list also was disturbed by the extreme weakness of People's Gas and Sugar. The gas stock broke 3 points on the report from Chicago that an injunction had been obtained restraining the company from charging more than 75 cents per 1,000, while Sugar was weak on the lack of confirmation of the reported trade war settlement.

THE LONDON MARKET.

LONDON, Jan. 5.—Immense borrowings by the market at the close of December was one of the chief causes of the advance in the Bank of England rate of discount. The rise stopped the outflow of gold toward Paris.

The Statist, discussing the money position, considers the possibility of obtaining gold in New York increased by the very large sales of American securities made by London in New York. The greater portion of American stocks carried in London are for American account, and should the rate in London be appreciably higher than in New York the stocks carried in London with borrowed money may be transferred to New York. The Statist thinks that New York can easily spare three or four millions of gold.

In a long article on America's changed international position The Statist concludes as follows: "It is difficult to believe the United States will be able to employ advantageously the whole of its new savings in foreign investments. The reasonable probability is that we are about to witness a great outburst of new enterprise in the United States. Industrial companies will be created, new industries will be founded, and new railways or continuations and branches of existing railways will be constructed. Thus there will be a vast outflow of capital at home, while it is not improbable the new colonies may be developed on a larger scale than hitherto.

"If the United States spends immense sums at home and does not buy commodities on a great scale and does not invest in foreign securities on an equivalent scale it is obvious that the more the trade balance turns in favor of the United States the greater will be its ability to take gold from Europe. Therefore, the likelihood is that money rates will rule high in Europe because there will always be the danger of American capital being withdrawn not only from London, but from Germany."

Money was in easy supply, being increased by the release of dividends. Discounts were easier in sympathy.

The attendance of the Stock Exchange to-day was almost unprecedented for a Saturday. Interest centred in Americans. The Exchange opened wildly excited, with large variations. Americans were all much above parity, and the American department was so overcrowded that brokers found it difficult to approach. Milwaukees started with sensational jumps, reaching 169, with dealings limited. They afterward receded, and then readvanced. Eries were also a particular feature. They were bought in large lots by local speculators, but chiefly for American account. Atchisons were another favorite stock. Others were about a dollar above parity, except Northern Pacific common, which went below.

After the first excitement there was a general, moderate reaction. At the lower level buying was resumed, and there was a quick recovery to near the top. The transactions were the heaviest known for a long time. A number of prominent "bears" were badly caught, but there were no failures. Dealings continued on the Street until a late hour, though quieter. There were further notable advances, prices closing easier, and most active at about a dollar below the best.

The boom favorably affected other departments. Kafirs, especially, hardening considerably. West Australians were better, recovering part of their recent losses on rumors that the London and Globe Finance Corporation, Limited, had disposed of its interest in the Baker Street Waterloo Railroad to the Yerkes syndicate. Consols were firmer. Grand Trunks were very firm, in sympathy with Americans, particularly seconds. Rio Tintos hardened.

Alluding to the relations between the Bank of England and the Government, whose manipulations have kept credit dealers for some time in a continuous state of nervousness, The Investors' Review maintains that the 5 per cent. bank rate will prove a very different thing from what it was a year ago. "The market," it points out, "is exhausted by prolonged, comparatively dear money, and no longer has the strength to bear up against adversity. Such a rate implies that it will therefore be prudent to expect failures. There are many indications that the financial collapse which it was possible to avoid or conceal at the beginning of 1900 will now become visible. Whatever changes occur, the foreign exchanges will not advance sufficiently to turn the gold stream hitherward. Therefore 5 per cent. will probably be followed by 6 per cent., and when it arrives even the most confident must discern signs of an approaching crisis.

"The worst is the mess in which the Government is plunging. The Treasury's floating debt to the Bank of England may be said to amount to all the extra taxation still to come in before the end of the financial year, and the war expenditure must be higher than ever. It is doubtful whether the four millions of local loans to be issued Jan. 8 will be taken up by the public. This makes nine millions borrowed on this stock since the beginning of 1900."

So widespread has been the havoc resulting from the London and Globe smash that the Stock Exchange on one or two occasions this week was perilously near a panic. Not only were there numerous failures, but the confidence of many speculative sections was shattered. No one was sure where the trouble would break out next. The advance in the bank rate affected investment in securities, and business, for a while, was mostly confined to reducing commitments. The trouble has not yet been fully disclosed, but the worst is known and the feeling is more cheerful.

Home Rails have mostly been weak, with one or two prominent exceptions. Americans were the liveliest section, the activity being mainly the result of Wall Street operations. One of the chief results of the boom was the practical extinguishment of the bear account. An impression is abroad that the position is dangerous. It is said that a number of American trusts are overloaded with shares, and that any monetary tightness may easily cause huge blocks to be suddenly thrown on the market.

Silver was dull throughout the week, although the India Government is steadily purchasing. The monetary position partly accounts for this dullness. Holders prefer to sell rather than incur the cost of increasing stocks. The inquiry for general account was insignificant. The India brokers were practically the only purchasers and they were able to deal on their own terms. If it had not been that the Government must buy largely in order to protect its note circulation, the fall in silver would probably be heavy.

In Continental Centres.

BERLIN, Jan. 5.—Prices were better on the Boerse to-day, owing to the sharp upward movement in New York. Americans and Canadian Pacifics were particularly favored on rumors of a scheme affecting Canadian Pacifics. Internationals were quiet. Spanish fours were in demand. Home funds were weak, on the new issue of Bavarian 4 per cent. loans. Banks were maintained. Mines eased off at the close.

Exchange on London, 20 marks 45¼ pfennigs for checks. The rate of discount in the open market for short bills and three months' bills was 4 per cent.

PARIS, Jan. 5.—Business on the Bourse to-day was influenced by the movement in New York and the firmness in London, which caused a favorable opening. Internationals were firm throughout, although certain tractions and tramways were offered. The whole list was maintained to the close. Three per cent. rentes, 102f 20c for the account. Exchange on London, 25f 10c for checks. Spanish fours closed at 70.85 ex interest.

MAJOR HAWKES'S CHARGES.

Secretary Root Declines to Receive His Letters.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—The War Department is treating the charges made by Major E. L. Hawkes against Col. Helstand of the Adjutant General's department with contempt.

Major Hawkes recently sent to Secretary Root a letter containing a newspaper clipping in which the Secretary was represented as saying that Major Hawkes was either corrupt or malicious, and asked the Secretary if he was correctly quoted. Receiving no answer he wrote again, mentioning that his former letter had not been answered and repeating his question. This second letter has not been answered, nor will it be. The Secretary of War has not received either of the letters. The first was received and opened by Mr. Root's private secretary, who reported its nature to his chief. Mr. Root did not care to read it, and has never seen it. When the second letter was received its arrival was again reported to Mr. Root by the private secretary, and again Mr. Root declined to receive it.

M. Root was asked to-day why he had removed Major Hawkes from the position he held, and replied that it was because he considered Major Hawkes unfit for the place. Major Hawkes is persistent, however, and is said to be well supplied with documents to sustain the charges made by him. Persons who have examined his papers say that it will not do to attempt to frown him down. In a letter made public to-day, he names several very important men, but it is understood that of all named as knowing of the proposition to establish a cordage factory in Manilla, all but one declined to have anything whatever to do with the undertaking. The one man who did not discourage him is the one he is most anxious to have the War Department discover by an investigation.

THE MANCHESTERS IN ALABAMA

Duke and Duchess, with Mr. Zimmerman, Spend a Few Hours in Birmingham.

Special to The New York Times.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Jan. 5.—Eugene Zimmerman of Cincinnati, with his son-in-law and daughter, the Duke and Duchess of Manchester, arrived from Cincinnati at noon to-day and left here at 4:40 o'clock for Natchez, Miss., where they will spend a couple of days on a visit to Mrs. Yaznaga, the grandmother of the Duke. They then go to New Orleans, where they will remain two or three days. Their final destination is California. There they will spend some time.

The Duchess carries her pet dog with her, and he nestles in her arms even when she is walking in the streets. The party are traveling in Private Car No. 7 of the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton Railroad. They strolled in the streets this afternoon, and dined in their car. They take things easily, and do not seek either to avoid or excite attention.

Ogden Gas Stock Bought by Syndicate?

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 5.—It is said to-day that the deal with the syndicate which is anxious to buy the stock of the Ogden Gas Company will be closed in New York on Monday. At that time, it is asserted, every dollar due will be paid over, all the documents now being ready for signing, and the final turning over of the property to the new owner, the People's Gaslight and Coke Company. At the office of the Ogden Company, in this city, President Gahan declared that the deal, which now has been hanging fire for something like two months, was no nearer being closed than it was weeks ago.

New York and Florida Limited, via Penn. and Southern Railway, most magnificent and luxurious train in the world, will leave New York daily, except Sunday, 12:40 noon, commencing Jany. 14th. Composed exclusively of Composite, Dining Compartment, Drawing-room, Sleeping, Observation, and Library Cars; New York to St. Augustine; also carrying Pullman Drawing-room Sleeping Car New York to Aiken and Augusta. Immediate connections for Brunswick, (Jekyl Island,) Thomasville. Two other daily fast trains, with perfect Dining and Sleeping Car Service. New York offices, 271 and 1,185 Broadway.—Adv.

READING NOW CONTROLS NEW JERSEY CENTRAL

Deal Effected Through Messrs. J. P. Morgan & Co.

Price Said to Have Been in the Neighborhood of $175 a Share—Surprise to Wall Street.

Wall Street was treated to a surprise yesterday, when just about noon the official announcement was quietly made that the control of the Central Railroad of New Jersey had passed to the Reading Company through the efforts of J. P. Morgan & Co. Mr. Morgan's firm, it was announced, had secured control of the Jersey Central, had offered the same to the Reading Company, and the latter company had accepted the offer. The terms of the purchase were not made public, and will not be given out until all the details are arranged for.

Although the announcement came somewhat unexpectedly yesterday, rumors about a probable change in the control of the Jersey Central have been current for many months. The Pennsylvania Railroad and the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad were at various times reported as having acquired or being in negotiations for the acquisition of the Jersey Road. At one time, indeed, it was reported that the Reading Company would secure control, but all these stories were consecutively denied or discredited by the various interests. Recently rumor had neglected the Central Railroad of New Jersey, as its attention was diverted to other consolidation schemes, and, although the stock on Friday was very strong, it was not then suspected by outsiders that the Morgan plans were as far matured as they were.

The controlling interest in Jersey Central has been held by a small coterie of men generally referred to in Wall Street as "The First National Bank Crowd," and this coterie consisted of such men as George F. Baker, President of that bank; Henry C. Fahnestock, Charles Lanier, J. Rogers Maxwell, President of the Jersey Central; Henry W. Maxwell, and others, all of those named being Directors of the Jersey Central. It was generally accepted as a fact that the stock of this coterie, constituting the control of the railroad, was for sale, provided they could get a sufficiently high price for it. This price was variously stated at figures ranging from $150 to $200 a share. The latter figure was the correct one. It is not, however, believed that the coterie succeeded in getting this price from Mr. Morgan, and in financial and railroad circles yesterday a figure in the neighborhood of 175 was guessed at as the probable purchase price. However this may be, J. P. Morgan & Co. yesterday formally tendered the minority stockholders would be offered the same terms as those made with the majority interests.

The Jersey Central and the Reading Company are two of the great anthracite coal roads. During the year 1899 these two roads carried 15,076,033 tons, or about one-third of the total anthracite output, which was 47,865,203 tons.

According to the latest reports the authorized stock issue of the Jersey Central is $30,000,000, of which there is outstanding $27,113,600. The funded debt outstanding is $43,924,000. The Jersey Central Road runs from Jersey City westerly to Wilkesbarre and Scranton, Penn., and the neighboring anthracite coal fields; southerly to seashore resorts along the New Jersey coast to Bayside and Port Norris. The total number of miles operated is 677.72. The road was chartered in 1849. From 1883 to 1887 it was leased to the Philadelphia and Reading. In 1887 both roads went into the hands of receivers. In 1892 the Jersey Central was again leased by the Reading for 999 years, but the lease was declared illegal in the same year. Since its reorganization the road has paid dividends ranging from 7 per cent. from 1892 to 1894 to 4 per cent. in 1898 and 1899. It was restored to a 5 per cent. basis last year. The coal properties controlled by the Jersey Central are the Lehigh Coal and Navigation Company and the Lehigh and Wilkesbarre Coal Company, which owns 28,900 acres of anthracite coal lands and holds 2,847 additional acres under lease. It operates 13 collieries and leases about 4,000 acres of coal land to various operators.

The Reading Company has an authorized issue of $70,000,000 common stock, $28,000,000 of first preferred stock, and $42,000,000 of second preferred stock. All these issues are what is known as half stock, and the first and second preferred are 4 per cent. non-cumulative. All of this is held in a voting trust composed of J. Pierpont Morgan, F. P. Olcott, and Henry N. Paul. There is a general mortgage of $135,000,000 of 4 per cent. guaranteed bonds, the amount now outstanding being $64,994,000. Car trust bonds bearing 4 per cent. guaranteed interest amounting to $3,600,000 are also outstanding.

The Reading Company owns the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad and extends from Philadelphia and Atlantic City through the coal fields westerly as far as Hazelton, Williamsport, and Harrisburg. The Reading Company also controls the Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron Company and its coal properties aggregate 194,100 acres.

The announcement of the practical consolidation of the two railroads brought forth a number of rumors. One of these had it that the Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburg would next be acquired for the purpose of giving the Reading a western outlet and making it a through trunk line.

Another report was to the effect that the Reading would in turn be controlled by the Baltimore and Ohio in order to give that road an entrance into New York over its own lines. Then it was asserted that the Reading Company would be made the selling agent of all the anthracite roads in order to save expenses. The leaving of earnings both through reduction of operating expenses and better maintenance of rates is considered the real object of all the combinations of railroads that are now in process of evolution, and it is therefore believed that a company will be established as the joint selling agent for the anthracite roads, but it is not believed that the Reading Company will receive this agency.

Regarding impending changes among the officials of the two roads it was also asserted yesterday that J. Rogers Maxwell, President of the New Jersey Central, would succeed President Harris of the Philadelphia and Reading Company, and would assume the management of the two roads, and that Vice President Vorhees would be placed in direct charge of the management of the Philadelphia and Reading Railway proper. None of these rumors, however, could be confirmed.

The Directors of the company will meet to-morrow to officially complete the purchase and arrange for the formal transfer of the Jersey Central stock to its new owners.

Payment for the Jersey Central stock purchase will be made by the Reading Company by means of low-rate interest-bearing collateral trust bonds, the purchase stock to be the basis upon which such bonds will be issued by the Reading Company. Just what rate of interest these bonds will bear or the amount that will be issued to cover the purchase are matters of detail that are likely to be completed at the meeting to-morrow.

Special to The New York Times.

READING, Penn., Jan. 5.—George F. Bear, one of the Directors of the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad Company, returned to Reading from New York, where the deal by which the Philadelphia and Reading Company secured control of the Jersey Central was consummated yesterday. Mr. Bear said that in spite of stories to the contrary, there will be no change in the Philadelphia and Reading Presidency. Mr. Harris can remain President of the company as long as he wishes. For some time leading Philadelphia and Reading men in East Pennsylvania have been predicting the deal. They point to the large sums of money being expended for permanent improvements, and say that it all means a large and substantial Philadelphia and Reading system, of which the City of Reading is to be the centre. The Reading is to be made a great property, and it is likely the Baltimore and Ohio and the Lehigh Valley will be managed in harmony and eventually the Baltimore and Ohio will come under the control of the Reading. Fast freights are already running over the Central through Reading to the West and this is to be made a great fast freight route.

Champagne Imports in 1900.

The appreciation of the remarkably fine quality of G. H. MUMM'S EXTRA DRY coming to this market is best illustrated by the phenomenal imports in 1900 of 119,441 cases, or 19,293 more than any other brand.—Adv.

CONTROL LEHIGH VALLEY.

Drexel & Co. Purchase Packer and University Holdings.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 5.—Following the announcement that a controlling interest of the Jersey Central has been secured for the Reading Company comes the announcement that Drexel & Co. have purchased the remaining 75,000 shares of Lehigh Valley stock belonging to the estate of the late Asa Packer, and also the holdings of the Lehigh University of the stock of that company. Official confirmation of these purchases was made last evening by E. T. Stotesbury, a member of the Drexel firm.

Three years ago the company authorized the issue of $15,000,000 mortgage and collateral trust gold bonds, paying not less than 5 per cent. Drexel & Co. financed the issue of $5,000,000 of these bonds and secured at the same time an option upon one-half the holdings of Lehigh Valley stock, which amounted to 150,000 at $27.50 per share, the stock then selling around $25. That option was exercised by the Drexels some six months ago. With the purchase just announced the firm is now in possession of the entire Packer holdings, which, with those of the Lehigh University, and that purchased in the open market, places the Morgan interests in undisputed possession of the Lehigh Valley.

This completes the great deal which has brought into the possession of the Morgan-Vanderbilt interests the three largest of the anthracite carrying roads—the Reading, Jersey Central, and Lehigh Valley—and the Vanderbilt-Cassatt compact of over a year ago, whereby the former was to secure control of the anthracite roads and the latter of the bituminous roads, has practically been carried out. Together these three lines represent 47.85 per cent. of the tonnage allotment for the entire anthracite region, the Reading having 20.50 per cent.; Lehigh Valley, 15.65, and Jersey Central, 11.70.

FLYING TRIP OF 6,000 MILES.

Made by Isaac E. Gates to Attend Court for Twenty Minutes While Huntington Will Was Probated.

To perform one of his duties as an executor under the will of Collis P. Huntington, who was his father-in-law, Isaac E. Gates, Vice President of the Southern Pacific Railroad, recently made a flying trip of 6,000 miles, to the Pacific Coast and back, in order that he might be in court for twenty minutes while the will of the builder of the Southern Pacific Road was admitted to probate in the Supreme Court in San Francisco.

The date set for the probate of the will was Dec. 27. The laws of California make it necessary that at least one of the executors of the estate must be in court when the probate is made. Mr. Gates is essentially a man of action, and so, instead of asking for a postponement, notwithstanding the fact that the period directly before the New Year is one of great activity, Mr. Gates hurriedly packed his grip on the afternoon of Dec. 21, and caught the Lake Shore Limited, which leaves the Grand Central Station at 5:30 o'clock in the afternoon. At 6:30 o'clock on Saturday evening he caught the Overland Limited in Chicago, and, speeding West as fast as steam could carry him, he arrived in San Francisco at 7 o'clock on Christmas night.

On the following Thursday Mr. Gates appeared before Judge Coffee, in the Supreme Court of California, sitting as a Probate Court, and in twenty minutes the will, disposing of millions of dollars, had been admitted for probate. At 10 o'clock on Friday, Dec. 28, Mr. Gates started on his eastward journey, arriving at the same time on New Year's night as he had arrived in San Francisco on Christmas night.

When seen at his office yesterday Mr. Gates did not seem to be much impressed by a 6,000-mile trip of this character. "We would have made better time," he said, "had we not encountered several severe windstorms while crossing the plains on the return trip, which made us miss two connections in Chicago. It was rather a long distance to travel for a twenty minutes' session in court, but then you know the laws are inexorable, and when they required that an executor had to be present, why I just complied with their provisions."

TRADES UNIONS AT WAR.

Chicago Iron Workers Binned for Withdrawing from Central Body.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 5.—Unions once cemented by the Building Trades Council are now antagonistic, and active warfare between them may be begun in the immediate future.

Officials and members of unions still loyal to the Building Trades Council condemn the action of the Bridge and Structural Iron Workers' Union in withdrawing from the central body, and on many occasions have declared their determination to punish its members. Since the withdrawal of the bridgemen members of the Carpenters' Union have been doing work formerly performed by the members of the other union.

A committee representing the iron workers will attend a meeting of the Carpenters' District Council and insist that carpenters be instructed not to perform work formerly done by the iron workers. Should it be turned down, it is said to be the intention to request the Iron League, with which the union has an agreement, to refrain from selling material to any contractor who does not employ members of the Bridge and Structural Iron Workers' Union. Should this request be granted, not only the carpenters, but the contractors employing them would be involved.

Members of the Boilermakers' Union, which is still affiliated with the Building Trades Council, will, in all probability, attempt to regain work taken from them by the ironworkers, with the assistance of the Council, and as that body will not support the boilermakers, serious complications may follow.

EAGLE CAUGHT IN CHICAGO.

Shot in the Wing by a Man Whose Poultry It Was Threatening.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 5.—Edward H. Dalton of 55 Seventy-seventh Street, shot an eagle last evening while it was making a raid on his poultry yard. The bird measures eight feet from tip to tip. It is still alive, and is being kept a prisoner in Mr. Dalton's basement.

The eagle and its mate were seen soaring high in the air near Seventy-seventh Street and the lake during the afternoon. Dalton owns a large number of chickens, geese, and ducks, and kept careful watch on the movements of the eagles. Suddenly he saw one of them swoop down upon the poultry. He fired both barrels of his gun, with the result that the bird fell to the ground with a broken wing. Fearing to attempt to capture the eagle alive single handed, Dalton summoned several of his friends to assist him. The bird had sought refuge in a large oak tree, and upon the appearance of the men it again attempted to fly, but fell helpless to the ground with a screech and a wild flapping of the sound wing. After some wary work Dalton and the other men lassoed the bird, dragged it to his home, and forced it into the basement.

During the night and all to-day hundreds of curious people visited the place and viewed the huge bird.

Quick Time to Pinehurst, N. C.,

via Southern Railway. Only line operating Pullman service into Pinehurst. New York offices, 271 and 1,185 Broadway.—Adv.

"And Into Whatsoever House It finds its way—enter Peace, Rest, and Comfort.—Evans' Ale.—Adv.

As One Exalted from a Low Degree I sing the praise of Evans' Ale.—Adv.

PLAY STOPPED, MONEY RETURNED TO AUDIENCE

Miss Crosman Abruptly Ends Her Savoy Engagement.

Says She Is Being Persecuted by Manager Aarons and the Theatrical Syndicate — Climax to Weeks of Trouble.

A thoroughly surprised audience that had filled every available seat in the Savoy Theatre last night, prepared to witness a performance of "Mistress Nell," by Henrietta Crosman and her company, was dismissed shortly before the time for the curtain to rise, owing to differences between Maurice Campbell, Miss Crosman's husband, who manages her company, and Manager Alfred Aarons of the theatre.

The sudden termination of Miss Crosman's engagement, which had three weeks to continue, was the culmination of trouble which has existed for some time, and the climax was brought about by an order issued, preventing Miss Crosman's maid from conveying a note from the actress to her husband, who was in the lobby. When Miss Crosman was informed of this action, she became very indignant and refused to perform. Finally the curtain rose, and Miss Crosman, stepping to the footlights, addressed the wondering audience in a trembling voice, saying:

"Ladies and Gentlemen: Owing to the continued indignities and persecutions which have been heaped upon me and my play by the house management and the theatrical syndicate, I am compelled to dismiss you, being prevented from giving a performance. You will therefore kindly step to the box office, where your money will be refunded."

Dead silence for a few moments succeeded this speech; then the audience, having grasped its import, responded with a storm of cheering and applause. The people filed out quietly, and, having received their money back, dispersed, not a few making their way to other theatres.

Manager Maurice Campbell, when asked to make a statement regarding the trouble said:

"For the past two weeks my wife and myself have been continually hounded in various ways by Manager Alfred Aarons, who, in my opinion, has been prompted in his actions largely by other influences that have not taken kindly to our attraction since we came into this city.

"We stood these annoyances as best we could until my wife desired to send a note out to me in the front of the house by her maid. When the latter attempted to pass the door leading into the theatre from the stage one of Mr. Aarons's representatives stopped her and said that an order had been issued not to pass any of my representatives to the front of the house as long as my wife remained in the theatre. An order of this kind struck me as being extraordinary, and I demanded that it be revoked, adding that unless this were at once done no performance would be given.

"A hurried consultation was had over the telephone with Mr. Aarons, who was at home, and his reply was that under no circumstances was the order to be changed. Thereupon I had my wife make the announcement which brought one of the most successful engagements in this city to an end.

"Another theatre located on Broadway has been offered to me, but I prefer to sacrifice the remaining part of the season in New York and take my attraction through the country, where I have arranged to present the play in all the principal cities, beginning with Philadelphia."

Manager Aarons was seen at his office in the Knickerbocker Building. He gave out the following statement:

"While I was at dinner to-night I received a message over the telephone from Mr. Campbell, that unless I allowed his relatives and servants, his wife's mother and father and her maid, to use the stage door that leads through the boxes to the auditorium, which I had given orders should not be so used, he would not play to-night. I replied that I could not rescind this order, as there had been many complaints from box holders, and I must respect my audience and not permit them to be disturbed by servants and his relatives passing through the boxes into the auditorium. Mr. Campbell therefore refused to give the performance and the audience was dismissed.

"Since the opening night Miss Crosman and her husband, Mr. Campbell, have been doing nothing but quarrel with my people both on the stage and in the box office. During the first performance my stage carpenter was compelled to defend himself from assault by Miss Crosman's stage carpenter. There have been continuous wrangling and riotous proceedings ever since. Mr. H. B. Sire had the same experience while Miss Crosman was at the Bijou Theatre.

"Statements have been published from week to week in reference to Mr. Campbell's large receipts. The facts are as follows: At the Bijou Theatre he played three weeks to gross receipts of about $3,500 each week; at my theatre, the Savoy, with a capacity of $12,000 a week, he has played to an average business of less than one-third my capacity.

"As to the statements of Miss Crosman and Mr. Campbell in reference to the theatrical syndicate, I would only state that before I booked Miss Crosman at the Savoy I asked Mr. Erlanger's advice, and he recommended the attraction to me, saying he thought it would be very desirable for my house. Of course, I hold Mr. Erlanger blameless for all the trouble Miss Crosman and her husband have caused me. I want to say for the syndicate that it is fortunate that Miss Crosman did not play in one of its theatres."

A. L. Erlanger, the junior member of the theatrical firm of Klaw & Erlanger, who are regarded as the principal factors in the so-called theatrical syndicate, declined to discuss the trouble.

He declared that he knew absolutely nothing about Miss Crosman's play, had no interest in it whatever, and could not help what any woman might say about the syndicate over the footlights.

Miss Crosman made her first appearance in this city Oct. 9 with her Nell Gwyn play, called "Mistress Nell," at the Bijou Theatre. After filling a successful engagement there for almost two months, she was compelled to vacate because of May Irwin's engagement.

Arrangements were then made with Alfred Aarons of the Savoy Theatre for an indefinite period, but the recent complication compelled Manager Campbell to announce the termination of his season in this city three weeks from to-morrow. The one hundredth performance of the play in this city took place last Tuesday evening.

Steel for a Chicago Building.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 5.—An order for 8,000 tons of structural steel for use in the construction of the fire-proof twelve-story building that Marshall Field is about to erect in State Street was let yesterday to the McClintick-Marshall Construction Company of Pittsburg.

This is the first contract to be given out, and calls for the furnishing of the finished material and putting it in place. While the exact price is not announced, it is understood to be close to $500,000.

Advance for Alabama Miners.

Special to The New York Times.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Jan. 5.—The Alabama coal miners, 10,000 in number, will get an advance of 2½ cents per ton for digging coal, to be effective Jan. 1.

This is because pig iron went to over $10 for all grades in December, and mining wages are based on the price of pig iron. The wages will now be 52½ cents per ton, which is within 2½ cents of the maximum.

New York to Thomasville, Ga., Without Change, via Penn. and Southern Railway. Special Pullman Drawing Room Sleeping Car every Thursday. New York offices, 271 and 1,185 Broadway.—Adv.

BLOODHOUNDS CHASE BANDITS.

Three Men Brought to Bay After Thirty-Mile Run—Mob Tries to Lynch One of Them.

Special to The New York Times.

FREMONT, Neb., Jan. 5.—To-day this county has been the scene of some very exciting events growing out of the murder of Herman Zahn at Snyder, last night. The bandits were pursued by bloodhounds all night and finally run to earth by Sheriff Kreader and posse near Scribner, thirty miles from the scene of the crime.

A dramatic climax to the man hunt then occurred. The hounds ran up to a hay stack back of a stable and stopped. The Sheriff called in a loud voice for the robbers to come out. Suddenly out darted a man, firing with two revolvers at the posse. So sudden was the man's exit that he disappeared in the brush and escaped before the Sheriff started pursuit. But he was captured after being shot twice by another posse.

Calls were then made upon the remaining bandits to surrender. Receiving no response, the Sheriff fired the stack, and another robber bounded out and was grabbed and disarmed. The Sheriff started back to the county seat with his prisoner, and was met at Crowell by a mob of fifty neighbors of the murdered man. One of Zahn's sons accompanied the crowd, and, with a pistol pointed at the Sheriff, demanded the surrender of the prisoner that he might be lynched.

The Sheriff hurried his man into a house and defied the mob. He swore in a number of citizens, and they fought their way to the station and brought the prisoner to Fremont, a badly scared man. He refuses to give his name, or tell anything about his comrades. Bloodhounds are pursuing the third robber.

From different parts of the county to-night come reports of armed men marching to Fremont with the determination to lynch the prisoner. The first prisoner was shot twice in making his escape from the pursuers at different points last night, but is not dangerously injured. The murder occurred while the men were robbing Zahn and fourteen others in his place of business. The jail here is guarded by a large force of deputies, and a collision with the mob is imminent if it reaches this city before morning.

REWARD FOR CROWE'S ARREST.

Offer of $13,000 for Man Suspected of Abducting Young Cudahy.

OMAHA, Neb., Jan. 5.—A specific reward of $13,000 is now offered for the arrest of Pat Crowe, and nothing is said in the offer about conviction. The police today prepared and are sending out 5,000 circulars bearing a picture and minute description of Crowe. They will be sent broadcast, and will also bear the description of two other men and a woman, supposed to be connected with the Cudahy abduction.

The offer for Crowe is made unconditionally, the arrest and delivery to the authorities being the only requisite for securing it. This will allow no excuse for any one refusing to turn him over on the score that he cannot be convicted, and the police expect this will greatly assist in securing his arrest.

The offer has the indorsement of Gen. John C. Cowin, personal counsel of Mr. Cudahy.

NEW MODEL OF THE BROOKLYN.

Fine Piece of Work Placed on View in the Navy Department.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—When the miniature naval fleet that usually occupies a considerable space in the halls outside the office of the Secretary of the Navy were shipped to Paris to be shown at the exposition, all illustrations by model of the new navy disappeared, and visitors who came to see them were disappointed.

At the time of the shipment one model on the stocks was incomplete. It has since been put in place, in the space between two pillars just opposite Secretary Long's door. This space, formerly held by the model of the armored cruiser New York, is now held by the model of the armored cruiser Brooklyn, in some respects the most famous of all the vessels of the navy.

It is a beautiful piece of work, complete in every detail, made to a scale and painted a radiant peace white above and vermilion below the water line. The Brooklyn is pointed out by guides as the ship that made the most marks and received the largest number of wounds at Santiago.

A MAINE ROMANCE.

A. B. Stickney to Marry the Daughter of His Former Employer.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Jan. 5.—There is a happy party staying at the Touraine just now, consisting of Josiah Crosby of Dexter, Me.; Mrs. Crosby, Miss May Crosby, and her fiance, Alpheus B. Stickney. In a few days there will be a wedding, the culmination of a romance forty years long.

Forty years ago Mr. Stickney was employed in Mr. Crosby's law office. He went to Stillwater, Mich., but found law practice so slow that he turned to teaching. Later, he went into farming. In 1869 he moved to St. Paul, and went into railroading. He organized a company to build the North Wisconsin Road, and since then he has been in charge of one or another of the great Western roads. He is now President of the Chicago and Great Western.

Mr. Crosby is one of Maine's oldest and probably best known members of the bar. He is in the eighties, but is still hale and hearty and a typical gentleman of the old school. Miss May Crosby is his second daughter. She is a graduate of the Dexter High School and of Antioch College, at Yellow Springs, Ohio. For a few years she was a clerk in the Government service at Washington.

After leaving Washington she returned to Dexter, where she has since resided with her parents. She is leader in all social movements in the town and Vice President of the leading literary club there. She is a woman beloved by all who know her.

DRINK IN PROHIBITION STATE.

Maine Legally Consumes 11,955 Gallons of Liquor.

Special to The New York Times.

PORTLAND, Jan. 5.—The residents of the prohibitic State of Maine last year legally consumed 11,955 gallons of liquor, according to the report of the State Liquor Commissioner. The fifteen agencies sold 3,820 gallons of whisky, 3,790 gallons of rum, 2,609 gallons of alcohol, 958 gallons of wine, 566 gallons of gin, and 212 gallons of brandy.

The large proportion of alcohol is accounted for by the popularity of "split" in the lumber and French-Canadian farming districts, the popular drink in these stations being composed of one-fourth wine and three-fourths alcohol. Liquors sold in Maine are generally of the $1.50 a gallon grade, upon which the Government tax is $1.20.

Sheriff Pearson, the new clerical officer of the law in Portland, to-day made twenty-five raids and seized large quantities of liquor in saloons, stores, and dwelling houses. He has given the liquor sellers a bad fright and has made several arrests. Among the arrests to-day was a young man who was taken into custody while pouring a glass of whisky from a pocket flask. The Sheriff and a Deputy disguised as laborers surprised many dealers, and in one place they found liquor hidden in a gasoline stove.

Quickest to Georgia, Florida, Cuba, le via Penn. R. R., Washington, Richmond, Charleston, "N. Y. & Fla. Special" commences January 14th. Tickets and full information Atlantic Coast Line office, 1,161 Broadway, corner 27th Street.—Adv.

Evans' Ale

leaves straining competition far behind.—Adv.

PLANS FOR LEGISLATURE FIXED AT A CONFERENCE

Gov. Odell Meets Senator Platt and Leaders of Both Bodies.

NEW YORK'S POLICE BILL

A Commissioner Who Will Have the Powers and Perform the Duties of a Chief—Some Committee Selections.

The Republican programme for legislation at Albany was decided on after many conferences at the Fifth Avenue Hot sion for luncheon, Senator Grady left the Fifth Avenue Hotel, after announcing that he would return to keep up the fight.

NEW DIVORCE BILL.

Draft to be Submitted at the Annual Meeting of the State Bar Association.

ALBANY, Jan. 5.—Divorce, which has been greatly aggravated during the past year by the operations of the divorce mills in New York City and Buffalo, will be discussed at length at the annual gathering of the State Bar Association in this city on Jan. 15.

The Right Rev. William Croswell Doane, Bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of Albany, who has made a serious study of the divorce question, will read a paper on the question.

J. Newton Fiero, Chairman of the Committee on Law Reform, will submit the draft of an act "To establish a law uniform with the law of other States relating to divorce procedure and divorce from the bonds of marriage." The provisions of the law proposed by the committee are as follows:

Section 1.—No divorce shall be granted for any cause arising prior to the residence of the complainant or defendant in this State which was not a ground for divorce in the State where the cause arose.

Sec. 2.—No person shall be entitled to a decree for any cause arising in this State who has not had actual residence in this State for at least one year next before bringing suit for divorce, with a bona-fide intention of making this State his or her permanent home.

Sec. 3.—No person shall be entitled to a divorce for any cause arising out of this State unless the complainant or defendant shall have resided within this State for at least two years next before bringing suit for divorce, with a bona-fide intention of making this State his or her permanent home.

Sec. 4.—No person shall be entitled to a divorce unless the defendant shall have been personally served with process if within this State, or, if without this State, shall have had personal notice, duly proved and appearing of record, or shall have entered an appearance in the case, but if it shall appear to the satisfaction of the Court that the complainant does not know the address nor the residence of the defendant, and has not been able to ascertain either, after reasonable and due inquiry and search, continued for six months after suit is brought, the Court or Judge in vacation may authorize notice by publication of the pendency of the suit for divorce, to be given in the manner provided by law.

Sec. 5.—No divorce shall be granted solely upon default or solely upon admissions by the pleadings, nor except upon hearing before the Court in open session.

Sec. 6.—After divorce either person may marry again, but in cases where notice has been given by publication only and the defendant has not appeared, no decree or judgment for divorce shall become final or operative until six months after hearing and decision.

Sec. 7.—Wherever the word "divorce" occurs in this act it shall be deemed to mean divorce from the bonds of marriage.

Sec. 8.—All acts and parts of acts inconsistent herewith are hereby repealed.

Republican Leaders Retain Experts.

ALBANY, Jan. 5.—Gov. Odell, Speaker Nixon, and the Republican legislative leaders have agreed to retain the services of Robert C. Cumming and Henry L. Woodward, formerly connected with the Statutory Revision Commission, which has been abolished, to act as experts to examine as to the correctness of legislative measures. This work was formerly done by the Statutory Revision Commission.

Controller's Clerk Reappointed.

ALBANY, Jan. 5.—George C. Lewis of Lockport has been reappointed confidential clerk to the State Controller. Mr. Lewis has filled that position for the past seven years, serving under Controllers Roberts, Morgan, and Gilman, and now under Controller Knight.

Mrs. Odell to be at Home Jan. 16.

ALBANY, Jan. 5.—Mrs. Odell will give her first at home at the executive mansion on Jan. 16.

Appointed to the Register's Office.

ALBANY, Jan. 5.—George J. Thompson of New York City has been appointed Custodian in the Register's office in New York City at a salary of $1,000.

State Treasurer's Fees for 1900.

ALBANY, Jan. 5.—Secretary of State McDonough during the year 1900 turned over to the State Treasury $41,508, the amount of fees collected in his office. In 1899 he collected $30,895 and in 1898 $38,856.

BOARD OF REGENTS REPORT.

Every County in the State Represented on the University Roll.

ALBANY, Jan. 5.—The annual report of the State Board of Regents, which will be submitted to the Legislature next week, will show that the number of institutions of secondary education in the university Dec. 15 was 705, of which 104 are incorporated academies, 565 high schools and academic departments.

During the last scholastic year 24 academic departments were admitted and 6 academies were chartered. The State is now so thoroughly covered by secondary schools that out of 421 incorporated villages represented in the legislative manual for 1900 there are only 9 having a population of more than 1,000 and only 12 having a population of between 500 and 1,000 that do not have academic departments under the Regents. For the first time in the history of the State every county in the State is this year represented on the university roll.

The number of secondary schools in the university has increased 110 per cent. in the last ten years. There were instructed in secondary institutions a total of 79,365 students, which was an increase of 9,589, or 13.7 per cent., over the preceding year. The total net property of secondary schools is $28,412,184.38, and the total expenditures by the schools during the year was $6,036,874.41.

The total amount apportioned by the State to secondary schools was $212,667.28. The examinations were taken by 672 schools, and 511,020 examination papers were written, and 345,177 were accepted, 29,275 being rejected. Sixty-eight per cent. of all the papers written were accepted and 24 per cent. of all the accepted papers were honor papers.

The annual report of the public libraries division for 1900 contains returns from 1,035 libraries. Of these 460, free for lending to the public and containing 2,118,123 volumes, circulated last year 8,452,445 volumes.

The free libraries lent to the people an average of 23,157 books daily.

COAL FOR THE WEST INDIES.

English Capitalists May Build Terminals and Docks at New Orleans.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 5.—George B. Morton, a Boston financier, who has been here several days investigating investment possibilities in the interest of English capitalists, has cabled to his principals in London advising them to invest $2,335,000 in the erection here of coal terminals, coal chutes, docks, and a big plant for the handling of millions of bushels of coal annually.

Mr. Morton met a dozen of the leading steamship agents of the port yesterday. The conference lasted for two or three hours, and is said to have been very satisfactory. In an interview to-day Mr. Morton said:

"The scheme is to handle coal for all the West India islands from the port of New Orleans. St. Thomas will take 120,000 tons a year, practically all of which is bunker coal. Porto Rico takes 50,000 tons a season, which, under American control will be greatly increased, probably to 50,000 tons more. Havana will consume 250,000 tons of coal a year. The Cuban railways will burn 150,000 tons a year, and it is safe to estimate that Cuba's coal consumption will equal 400,000 tons."

English Investment in Louisiana.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 5.—The United Railway Trading Company of England today consummated a deal by which the corporation acquired the Kenilworth Sugar Estates, Limited, and a controlling interest in the Louisiana Southern Railroad. The price paid for the Kenilworth properties, which comprise 10,000 acres of as fine sugar land as there is in the State and a costly refinery, was $1,680,000. The consideration involved in the railway deal could not be ascertained. It is the intention of the English corporation to erect a factory for the manufacture of paper out of bagasse, a product of sugarcane, which now goes to waste.

Mr. Bryan Makes Speeches in Texas.

SHERMAN, Texas, Jan. 5.—William J. Bryan was met with a brass band this afternoon, and his progress through the city partook of an ovation, the streets being thronged with people. He made two addresses, one in the afternoon on the plaza, being an attack on class legislation and imperialism, while in the evening he delivered his lecture on "Ancient Landmarks."

BIG TOBACCO DEAL RUMORED.

American and Continental Companies May Control Powell, Smith & Co.

There was a report in Wall Street yesterday of a deal between the cigar manufacturing firm of Powell, Smith & Co. and the American and Continental Tobacco Companies by which the latter was to acquire a controlling interest in the cigar company. It was generally understood that negotiations in regard to the purchase were being carried on and that the amount of money involved was in the neighborhood of $10,000,000. It was stated on good authority last night that the project would go into effect within a few weeks.

Harry J. Luce of 22 West Seventy-third Street, a member of the cigar manufacturing firm of Powell, Smith & Co., said: "I cannot either affirm or deny the report. If the purchase were going to be made, I don't think that any statements in regard to it should emanate from either of the parties involved at the present time."

ROGERS LOCOMOTIVE WORKS.

Public Meeting Held in Paterson to Stimulate Subscriptions.

PATERSON, N. J., Jan. 5.—A public meeting, called by the committee appointed to secure subscriptions to purchase the Rogers Locomotive Works, was held this evening in the City Hall. About 150 citizens attended, among them being some business and professional men, but a majority consisted of former employes of the works. James A. Morrisse, the President of the committee, stated that $78,000 was on paper, $30,000 in sight, and several promises made, thus making over $100,000 of the $200,000 necessary to take over the plant.

Langley Claxton, one of the committee and a foreman at the Rogers Works, said that the plant was not behind the times, and several other employes stated that the machinery was good. Subscriptions were asked for, and the men were urged to take lists and solicit subscriptions.

The meeting adjourned without any tangible results being accomplished.

BILLIARDS LEAD TO SHOOTING.

Joseph Canter Uses Revolver After Being Struck with a Cue.

George O'Hara, twenty-one years old, of 643 Amsterdam Avenue, was playing billiards in a hall at 2,628 Broadway, kept by Joseph Canter, shortly before midnight last night, when a dispute arose over the payment of the score. One of O'Hara's friends struck Canter with a cue and threatened to beat him further, when Canter drew a revolver and shot O'Hara in the abdomen.

He then threw the pistol to one side and ran from the place into the hallway of an apartment house next door. There, in his excitement, he ran into Mrs. Frank Conners, and the force of the collision threw her down an iron flight of stairs leading to the cellar. He ran after her, and drawing another revolver, threatened to kill any one who followed.

The witnesses to the affray lingered about on the sidewalk until Policeman Haggerty came along. He went down to the cellar and Canter surrendered to him. O'Hara was taken to the J. Hood Wright Hospital, and it was said at an early hour this morning that he was in a very critical condition. Canter was locked up in the West One Hundred and Twenty-fifth Street Police Station, and will be arraigned in the Harlem Police Court this morning.

MONTREAL'S CUSTOMS RECEIPTS.

Figures for Second Half of 1900 Show a Decrease.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTREAL, Jan. 5.—The customs receipts of Montreal for the six months ended Dec. 31 show a decrease of $81,792, and those of the port for the calendar year an increase of only $36,897.

This does not imply that there has been a decrease in the trade of Montreal during that period, but is to be accounted for by the effect of the preferential tariff in favor of British-made goods. On July 1 the law increasing the preference from 25 per cent. to 33 1-3 per cent. came into force, and this meant a most material difference in the duty collected on English goods. It is also believed to have increased the quantity of British imports, but the quantities are not available as yet. As Montreal has the heaviest import trade of any port in Canada, it is concluded that when the Dominion statistics are ready, they, too, will show a material falling off for the six months ended on Dec. 31.

The collections at Montreal for the year 1899 were $8,918,608, and for 1900 $8,954,595.

TAX ON INDIANS' LANDS.

Suit Begun in South Dakota to Cancel Levy on Severalty Holdings.

Special to The New York Times.

SIOUX FALLS, S. D., Jan. 5.—A conflict between the United States Government and the authorities of Roberts County, South Dakota, has begun over the taxation of improvements upon lands allotted to Indians. Assistant United States Attorney W. G. Porter of this city has just instituted in the Federal court here an important suit, involving the taxation of this class of property, and the question, which has never before been in the State or Federal courts, will be definitely determined, as the result of his action.

The suit is entitled the United States vs. James A. Rickert, County Treasurer of Roberts County. A number of years ago the Sisseton Indians abandoned tribal relations and took allotments of land in severalty, their surplus lands having been opened to white settlement. Many of the Indians have improved their land, and in 1899 and 1900 the Roberts County Assessor listed the improvements upon the allotments of Charles R. Crawford, Adam Little Thunder, Solomon Two Stars, and Victor Renville, all of whom are Sisseton Indians.

ANNAPOLIS'S NEW ACADEMY.

Cadets' Quarters to be the Principal Building of the Group.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Jan. 5.—The first test-pile for the foundation needed for the new cadets' quarters has been down several weeks with sixty tons of iron upon it. The vacating of houses upon the site of the proposed building is in progress, and the laying out of the grounds for the foundations will be shortly commenced.

The cadets' quarters is to be the principal building of the proposed groups constituting the new Naval Academy, and will dominate the magnificent pile. It is to stand midway between the Boat House and the Armory, to which buildings it is to be connected by colonnades. It fronts the parade ground at the east and the campus on the west. The easterly façade overlooks the Chesapeake Bay, and, united to the Armory and Boat House, the whole will present a front of almost a quarter of a mile in length. This front stands upon a terrace 16 feet high. The building will be in full view of passing vessels, and, with the flanking buildings, will form a striking landmark.

Its site is peculiarly historic. On it have lived Admirals Buchanan, Porter, Worden, Ramsay, Sampson, and Wainwright. On the left wing of the building the Peggy Stewart and her cargo of tea were burned; on the right the Acadian exiles lived in front. In the official building of the Superintendent, Washington was often a guest, and on the far reach of the academy grounds, to the north, where College Creek and Severn meet, the French Army of the Revolution lay encamped.

The superficial area of the building will be about 123,000 square feet, and the edifice is to be five stories high. Its total estimated cost is $3,533,000, and it will accommodate 550 cadets.

The rooms will be divided into suites of three rooms each, two bedrooms and a sitting room, each suite intended for two cadets. Toilet rooms and shower baths are provided at convenient distances. The guardroom or Memorial Hall, on the ground floor, in which will be kept trophies of various kinds, arms and flags, will be a noble vaulted apartment, 140 feet by 100. Above it, and corresponding to it in size, is the dining hall, above which again are the kitchens.

University Honors a Philadelphian.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 5.—A private dispatch received in this city last night states that at the midwinter commencement of the American University, East Tennessee, the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws was conferred by the Board of Regents upon P. A. B. Widener of this city, in recognition of the inestimable service he has rendered to literature and the fine arts. Recently Mr. Widener presented his magnificent North Broad Street residence, worth over $1,000,000, to the City of Philadelphia to be used as a free library.

CLUBHOUSE AT TRAVERS ISLAND BURNED

Rich Men Join the Firemen in Fighting the Fire.

Chief Bronson Telephones for His Fire Wagon, Uniform, and Trumpet—Society People Go to the Fire in Motor Vehicles.

Special to The New York Times.

PELHAM MANOR, Jan. 5.—Nothing remains of the Summer home of the New York Athletic Club on Travers Island, near here, but three large chimneys, two stone towers, and a smoldering pile of ruins. Fire destroyed the structure this afternoon, despite the efforts of firemen, clubmen, and wealthy residents to save it. The fire, it is believed, was caused by an electric light wire in the basement not properly insulated. The flames were first discovered by a carpenter who was making improvements to the roof.

Superintendent J. Kirwin formed a bucket brigade with twenty employes. A small hose was also attached to a hydrant near the front of the house, and an ineffectual effort was made to extinguish the flames. An alarm was sent to New Rochelle and Pelham Manor, but the firemen could do little except watch the big clubhouse burn, as only one stream could be turned on the burning building. The water for that had to be pumped through the hose from a hydrant nearly a quarter of a mile away, so that the pressure was insufficient. The smaller clubhouse adjoining the main building, which was once a part of the homestead of E. C. Potter, and has been used as a Winter quarters of the club, was saved by Chief Ross and the New Rochelle Fire Department, although it was drenched with water and most of the contents were ruined.

Part of the building was in Pelham Manor and the other part in New Rochelle. A few years ago, when Pelham Manor declared for no license, the members of the club moved the bar from the west part of the building, in Pelham Manor, to the eastern end, in New Rochelle, where a license was secured.

When it was found that the building could not be saved Manager Major George W. Rand, at the New York house, was notified that the Travers Island establishment was doomed. Mayhew W. Bronson, the rich Chief of the Larchmont Fire Department, who was in the clubhouse, accompanied Manager Rand to Travers Island. Chief Bronson telephoned to Larchmont for his fire company to join him at the island, and also notified his valet to bring his fire wagon, uniform, and trumpet.

In the meantime many of the rich residents of New Rochelle, Larchmont, and Pelham Manor hurried to the scene of the fire in motor vehicles and various traps. The wealthy clubmen assisted the firemen in fighting the flames and in saving the Winter clubhouse. Among those who assisted were T. Dart Walker, the artist; John Neilson, H. E. Payson, F. W. Flint, and C. M. Hamilton, the champion golf player.

The fire attracted many society people, among some of the most interested being Mr. and Mrs. C. Oliver Iselin and daughter, E. T. Gilliland of Pelham Manor, and R. C. Fellows, a member of the club, who came on a motor vehicle from New York.

The smoke was so dense that several firemen were overcome, including Asa Dobbs of New Rochelle, who had to be carried to the water front and revived. Charles Kistinger of Relief Engine Company had his head cut.

The Travers Island Clubhouse, built in 1889, was a two-story and attic structure, about 100 feet by 40, and was one of two buildings on the island, owned by the New York Athletic Club, the one destroyed by fire being known generally as "the big house." In it were forty-eight sleeping rooms and two large dormitories, the restaurant, café, and billiard room. This building was used as a clubhouse during the Summer, but after the Summer season was over, usually early in October, it was closed, and the club members in the Winter months used a smaller building about sixty yards away, which is known as the Potter House, from the name of the original owners. In the larger structure through the Summer months, were many valuable trophies, plate, and paintings, all of which were removed after the season closed, and distributed between the Potter House, which is open all Winter, and the New York clubhouse. The loss by fire, consequently, was confined to the structure, and the permanent equipment, which consisted chiefly of the restaurant and café fixings, the billiard and pool tables, and the bedroom furniture.

The building proper cost $40,000 when erected, and, thought it had been neglected for a few years, while the building of the New York clubhouse was in progress, had been put in first-class repair within the past two seasons, and was in better condition than it had been since the first year that it was available for the club. A number of improvements had been made, and the club was considering still further additions, when the fire occurred. According to the statements of members who know what the building represented, it will cost much more than $40,000 to replace the building. In this same estimate the loss on furniture is placed at $30,000. The club carried $30,000 insurance on the building and its contents. Several officers of the club hurried to Travers Island after news of the fire reached them, but when they reached the spot all the damage had been done; the clubhouse being burned to the ground.

Prompt measures were taken toward repairing the damage, and committees of the New York Athletic Club already are considering the best means of rebuilding the destroyed building. The club members anticipate some difficulty in this direction, however, as it will require some months to adjust the insurance, while the financial strain the club has been under in completing and equipping its new house on Sixth Avenue and Fifty-ninth Street makes it improbable that the Summer clubhouse can be replaced through the club's private resources. The effort will be made, however, and so hopeful are the officials of the club that they authorized a statement that there would be ample facilities on Travers Island through the next Summer season.

WOULD-BE MURDERER CONFESSES

Nellie Morris, Who Was Attacked and Cut with a Razor, May Live.

MARIETTA, Ohio, Jan. 5.—Nellie Morris, who was almost cut to pieces last night by Walter Winestock at Hackney, is still living, with chances in favor of her recovery. Excitement in the vicinity of Hackney runs high, and but for the girl's request that Winestock should not be lynched while she lives, summary justice would have been meted out to him. The Constable who took Winestock to the jail at McConnelsville, drove fifty miles roundabout to avoid lynching parties that had been organized.

Winestock made a written confession today, in which he said: "I do not know why I did it. I wanted to kill her. I have no excuses to offer for the crime, and if they want to kill me they can."

Rumors of impending trouble at McConnelsville have been in circulation to-night, but they appear to be without foundation.

May Name Receiver for B'Nai B'rith.

BALTIMORE, Jan. 5.—Judge Wickes signed an order to-day requiring the Supreme Order of B'nai B'rith of Baltimore to show cause on or before Jan. 21 why a receiver should not be appointed to settle up its affairs. This action was taken on a petition of Minnie Harris, who says that her dead husband was a member of a subordinate lodge of the Supreme Lodge. Mr. Harris is said to have secured a benefit certificate which entitled Mrs. Harris to receive $1,000 when he died, which happened in September, 1900. Assessments were levied, the money to be forwarded to the Supreme Lodge. Some of the subordinate lodges are alleged to have refused to transmit the money collected by them, and $1,000 is said to be due the Supreme Lodge.

$500,000 Worth of Match Wood Sold.

Special to The New York Times.

MARINETTE, Wis., Jan. 5.—The Diamond Match Company has purchased of the Jacob Mortenson Company of Wausaua, Wis., 30,000,000 feet of lumber, the season's cut of the Wausaua Company during 1901. The entire cut is to be converted into match plank. It is the largest purchase of lumber exclusively for match stock ever made in this country, the price paid being $500,000.

Fletcher

CLEARANCE SALE,

Continuing Until January 12th,

Of French Model Gowns, Coats, Carriage and Evening Wraps, Street Suits, Rainy Day Suits, Waists, and Fancy Neckwear.

As it is my purpose to clear out my stock each season, this will be found a rare opportunity to secure choice goods at merely nominal prices; many of which are marked at less than half price.

534 FIFTH AVENUE,

Opposite Delmonico's.

BISHOP WIGGER IS DEAD

Well-Known Ecclesiastic Passes Away at His Home.

He Has Had Charge of the Newark (N. J.) Diocese Since 1881—His Labors for the Church.

ORANGE, N. J., Jan. 6.—Bishop Wigger died shortly after midnight this morning. He had been ill with pneumonia for about a week, but not until yesterday was his life despaired of.

Winand Michael Wigger was born in New York of German parentage on Dec. 9, 1841. He was graduated from St. Francis Xavier College, in New York, in 1861. In the Fall of the same year he was received in the Seminary of the Immaculate Conception, which is attached to Seton Hall College. Bishop Wigger remained there two years, and was then sent to Italy to complete his theological studies at the famous College of Brignolo-Soli, at Genoa. Before his ordination, which occurred in Genoa in 1865, the title of Doctor of Divinity was conferred on him.

After his ordination he returned to this country and was assigned a position on the cathedral staff of Bishop James A. Bayley, the First Bishop of Newark, and in 1869 was appointed rector of St. Vincent's Church, at Madison. He was the first rector of St. Theresa's Church, Summit, which was built through his efforts. He then returned to Madison, where he remained until 1873. For a time he was in charge of St. John's Church, Orange.

Bishop Wigger assumed charge of the Newark Diocese of the Catholic Church on Oct. 18, 1881, succeeding Archbishop Michael Augustin Corrigan of New York. Just before his consecration the State was divided into two dioceses, the Diocese of Newark including Essex, Hudson, Bergen, Passaic, Sussex, Morris, and Union Counties. In this diocese Bishop Wigger had labored zealously and with great success.

During the past three years the Bishop's time and attention had largely been given to the Cathedral of the Sacred Heart, now building in Newark, a work upon which he had set his heart.

Last year the Bishop made a trip to Rome and afterward went to the Holy Land, where he was to have celebrated mass on Christmas Eve, but owing to delays he met with, did not arrive in time for that. Although of a wiry, well-knit frame, Bishop Wigger had never enjoyed very robust health, and for years had worn a beard about his throat, being troubled with bronchitis. When he went to the Holy Land last year he grew a full beard, which he had worn ever since. He had made six trips to Europe at various times, and two years ago took a trip to Bermuda for the benefit of his health, after he had recovered from an attack of pneumonia. He had three attacks of this disease.

Upon his return from the trip to the Bermudas the Bishop seemed much improved in health. He made a practice of taking long walks every day, sometimes walking a distance of ten miles. On Christmas Day he celebrated pontifical high mass at St. Patrick's Cathedral, in Newark, in the morning, and pontificated at vespers in the afternoon.

Bishop Wigger's only immediate surviving relative is a brother, Robert Wigger of New York.

Steps will immediately be taken looking to the succession. The Bishops from the province, which includes all dioceses between Buffalo and Trenton, will meet immediately, and the names of three priests will be prepared and sent to Rome.

The rectors, known as the missionary or memorable rectors of the diocese, will also meet. They are the Rev. Dean Flynn of Morristown, the Rev. Dean McNulty of Paterson, Fathers Terwoert of Jersey City, Poels of Newark, and Gesner of Elizabeth. They will also present three names to the Holy See.

Pope Leo XIII. has the option of selecting a Bishop from these six names or appointing whom he sees fit.

LIBRARY MAKES A RECORD.

139,789 Books Issued in Chicago During December.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 5.—One hundred and fifty-nine thousand seven hundred and eighty-nine books were issued from the Public Library during the month of December, a record-making number not only for the institution but for the entire country. It is the largest output of any one library in the time mentioned in the United States.

Librarian Hild accounts for the circumstance by the fact that the institution under his direction is the only distributing library in Chicago, while other large cities have three or four. The new Berry and Crerar Libraries are for reference. Books must be consulted and left in the building in every case.

SOUTH DAKOTA SENATORSHIP.

Election of R. J. Gamble to Succeed Mr. Pettigrew Said to be Certain.

Special to The New York Times.

SIOUX FALLS, S. D., Jan. 5.—The State Legislature convenes on Tuesday, and more than half the legislators are at the capital to-day. Robert J. Gamble of Yankton and Messrs. Stover and Keith, candidates for the Senate to succeed Mr. Pettigrew, are here. Mr. Gamble will, it is said, practically be the unanimous choice of the Republican members, which will insure his election.

This is said to be the result of an agreement with the machine, which has been for several weeks opposed to Gamble. The reported compromise is that the machine will support Gamble for the Senate in return for the right to dictate Federal appointments in South Dakota.

Going to Egypt to Shoot Quail.

The steamer Fuerst Bismarck, which sailed for the Orient by way of Naples from this port yesterday, has among her passengers William M. Manley and Robert Oliver Lehr, young Baltimore society men, who are going to shoot Egyptian quail along the Nile. Instead of using dogs to flush the game, as they do in Maryland, they propose to employ small colored boys. At Naples they will be joined by Mr. and Mrs. Elisha Dyer of this city, who will accompany them up the Nile as far as Khartoum. On the same ship is L. Z. Leiter, father of Lady Curzon, who declined to discuss his plans.

REPORT MADE ON THE CUBAN CONSTITUTION

The Divisions of the Convention Render a Statement.

Twenty-five Sections Apparently Agreed Upon—Complete Autonomy Provided.

HAVANA, Jan. 5.—The divisions of the Constitutional Convention have rendered a crystallized report upon the subject of a Constitution for the island in twenty-five sections.

The first treats of the nation and national territory and the establishment of Cuba as a republic, free and independent, the territory being the same as that belonging to Spain, divided into six provinces, with limits as heretofore.

The second section refers to the conditions of nationality, the methods of losing and recovering it, and to the duties of the Government. The most interesting clause recognizes as citizens of Cuba strangers resident in the island four months prior to the Spanish war who lent their services to the cause of the revolution.

The third is consecrated to an extensive enumeration of rights under the Constitution, a condensation of the entire principles of real democracy, individual liberty, the inviolability of home, the secrecy of correspondence, and the liberty of public meetings, associations, the press, &c.

The fourth establishes the rights and duties of foreigners.

The fifth speaks of the sovereignty of the nation and the power of the people to proclaim that sovereignty resides with the people of Cuba, with three privileges—legislative, executive, and judicial.

The sixth creates a Chamber of Representatives and a Senate, together forming a Congress.

The seventh provides for the choice of four Senators from each department, to be named by the Ayuntamiento of Municipalities and to hold office six years, two being chosen every third year, and provides that the Senate shall constitute a tribunal of justice over the President and Governors of departments in cases of malfeasance, &c., under charges from the lower House, also having the right to confirm or reject Presidential nominations. It also provides that only Cubans over thirty years of age shall be eligible for membership in the Senate.

The eighth section treats of the House of Representatives, which shall be composed of one member to every 30,000 inhabitants, elected every two years by a direct vote of the people, the qualifications for membership being that all members shall be Cubans and twenty-five years of age. The House shall be the accuser of the President for infractions of the laws and shall also pass, prior to the Senate, laws and propositions for the government of the country.

The ninth establishes the relations of both bodies in the common work.

The tenth defines the attributes of Congress, which shall convene the first Monday of November for sessions of ninety days or longer; provides that extraordinary sessions may be convened at the call of the President alone; that Congress shall proclaim the President and Vice President, shall pass upon estimates of National expense, shall declare war and make peace, shall regulate commercial, financial, and internal affairs, declare amnesty, organize forces for sea and land, form National codes, and attend to public works and necessities.

The eleventh treats in detail of legislation and Presidential approval or rejection.

The twelfth section defines the power of the Executive, and provides that the President must be a Cuban by birth or naturalization, and, in the latter case, must have served in Cuban wars ten years. He must be thirty-five years of age, shall serve six years, not being eligible for re-election immediately; shall direct the suffrage, promulgate and execute the laws, convene Congress in extraordinary session, direct diplomatic negotiations and negotiate treaties, submitting the same to Congress for its approbation or rejection, and shall appoint Supreme Magistrates and other high officers.

The thirteenth treats of the duties of the Vice President.

The fourteenth, fifteenth, and sixteenth sections refer to judicial organization and administration.

The seventeenth treats of the departmental regime. It provides that the Governor of every department shall direct the suffrage, and that his term of office shall be three years. It also provides for departmental assemblies, to which members shall be elected every three years by popular vote in the ratio of one delegate to each 12,000 inhabitants.

The eighteenth defines the Departmental Assemblies' duties, which shall be departmental and not National or municipal in character, and shall conform to the Constitution and not oppose nor interfere with National or international law. Departmental assemblies shall control the educational, eleemosynary, health, and treasury departments, which shall be separate for each province, and there shall be also separate civil service departments and departments of public works. These assemblies shall convene every year for ninety days. Special sessions may be convened at the call of the Governor. The Governors of departments and the President of the republic may suspend acts of the Assembly when contrary to the Constitution and general law.

The nineteenth section defines the attributes and duties of Governors, who shall be tried by the Senate when accused by the House, and shall be succeeded by the President of the Departmental Assembly.

The twentieth defines the municipal regime.

The twenty-first defines the duties of municipalities, and the twenty-second the duties of Mayors.

The twenty-third treats of the constitution of the Cabinet, or hacienda, defines its duties, declares that no debts, compromises, or contracts on the part of the Republic of Cuba shall be recognized except those contracted in the interest of the revolution of 1895 by the revolutionary government or by its legal representatives in foreign countries, and that the Cabinet shall pass upon all debts, paying those which are considered legitimate.

The twenty-fourth provides the manner of changing the Constitution, which must be done at two separate sessions of Congress by a two-thirds vote of both houses, ratified at the next session.

The twenty-fifth section provides for the promulgation of the Constitution, and for the holding of elections ninety days subsequent thereto.

It is believed that two months' discussion will follow the submission of the report, and that great changes will be effected in the form of the Constitution.

New York's Leading Fur Establishment!

Importer and Manufacturer. # HALL Established 1856.

GREAT JANUARY SALE OF FURS.

Extraordinary Fur selling will begin here to-morrow morning, made so by cut prices that are by far the lowest of the season. At these prices it will be wise economy to provide NOW for next season's fur wants, aside from the fact that nearly three months of fur-wearing weather still remain. Fur Bargains like these are exceedingly rare.

Jackets.

$175	Sealskin Coats at	$125
$200	" " "	$150
$225	" " "	$175
$250	" " "	$200
$275	" " "	$225
$350	" " "	$250
$400	" " "	$300
$125	Persian Lamb at	$75
$175	" " "	$125
$225	" " "	$175
$275	Broadtail Persian,	$175
$300	" "	$225
$350	" "	$250
$400	" "	$300
$35	Electric Seal (coney).	$25
$40	" "	$30
$45	" "	$35
$55	" "	$45

Misses' and Children's Furs.

Children's Fur Sets,	$3 to $5
Misses' Fur Sets,	$5 to $15
Nearseal Muffs,	$2.25
Nutria Muffs,	$4.50
Krimmer,	$5

Fur-Lined Overcoats, best melton and kersey cloths, lined with mink, sable or muskrat, trimmed with otter, beaver, Persian Lamb or sealskin,

$65 to $250.

Sealskin Gloves,	$8 to $16
Sealskin Caps,	$5 to $18
Coachmen's Capes,	$9 to $75
Men's Mufflers,	$4 to $16

Storm Collars.

$50	Dark Eastern Mink, $35
$30	Mink, $16
$55	Stone Marten, $30
$35	Beaver, $20
$40	Persian Lamb, $25
$25	Alaska Sable (Skunk), $15

Fur Scarfs.

$25	Dark Mink, $16
$50	Hudson Bay Sable, $35
$50	Long Brown Fox, $30
$8	Alaska Sable (Skunk), $5
$15	" " " $8
$18	" " " $10
$20	" " " $12
$8	Mink Scarfs, $5
$14	" " $8
$19	" " $12
$22	" " $15
$25	Blue Lynx, $15
$25	Black Lynx, $16
$20	Brown Fox, $12
$7	Electric Seal, (Coney), $4
$35	Black Bear Boas, $25

New Muffs.

$30	Dark Mink, $18
$25	Mink, $15
$20	Mink, $11
$35	Chinchilla, $25
$28	Sealskin, $18
$12	Alaska Sable (Skunk), $7
$25	Fine Black Lynx, $15
$20	Fine Brown Fox, $12
$6	Electric Seal, $3

Garments in a complete line of sizes from 32 to 50 bust. New Catalogue Mailed Free.

W. H. HALL, 346 Sixth Ave.

(BETWEEN 21ST AND 22D STS.)

PETTIGREW AS A FILIBUSTER.

His Resolution of Censure of Secretary Root—Anything to Make Debate and Kill Time.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—Senator Pettigrew is making use of his brief term in the Senate to impress its members with his ingenuity in vexing them with troublesome propositions. He did not approve of the refusal of Secretary Root to send to the Senate the report of Abraham L. Lawshe on expenditures in Cuba. Secretary Root regarded it as imprudent to furnish the ground upon which the Government will base its efforts to convict some of its faithless officers in Cuba, and held back the report asked for. Thereupon Senator Pettigrew offered the following resolution of censure upon the Secretary of War:

Resolved, That the Senate hereby expresses its condemnation of the refusal of the Secretary of War, under whatever influence, to send to the Senate copies of papers called for by its resolution of the 19th of December, 1900, requesting the Secretary of War to send to the Senate the report of Abraham L. Lawshe in relation to the receipts and expenditures in Cuba, as in violation of his official duty and subversive of the fundamental principles of the Government and of a good administration.

The Senate did not like the resolution, and probably will not adopt it; but Mr. Pettigrew has taken the trouble to point out to the Republicans that they cannot refuse to adopt it without appearing to be grossly partisan and partial. When Mr. Cleveland was President and the late Mr. Garland Attorney General, the Senate sent to the Attorney General a request for information as to why certain officers had been removed. Mr. Garland declined to give the information. This infuriated the Republicans of the Senate, and they introduced and passed a resolution of censure upon Attorney General Garland couched in almost the identical language of that introduced by Mr. Pettigrew to censure Secretary Root. The resolution was adopted by a vote of 32 to 25, and among the Senators voting for its adoption were Spooner Cullom, Hoar, Platt of Connecticut, Frye, Hawley, Allison, and Aldrich, all still in the Senate.

The Pettigrew resolution went over today, and may come up later. The question of the relation of the Executive to the Congress may be discussed again with animation, but those Republicans who have talked of the matter say that there is a difference between this case and that occurring in President Cleveland's term. The question then was as to the power of the Executive to remove without giving the Senate his reasons for dismissing an officer. The question now is whether the Executive is obliged to communicate information that may result, if published, in a defeat of justice. The Secretary of War, presumably with the approval of the President, deems it his duty to withhold the information asked for by Pettigrew.

What the South Dakota Senator desires most of all is to find a topic for debate and to consume time that might be devoted to consideration of the Ship Subsidy bill. Almost any controversy will answer his purpose if he can accomplish his object.

FIFTH AV. AUCTION ROOMS,

238 5th Av. WM. B. NORMAN, Auctioneer.

NOW ON EXHIBITION

ATTRACTIVE SALE

To Cover Advances and Charges, and Close Accounts for the Past Year, comprising

OLD MAHOGANY AND MODERN

FURNITURE

including

Colonial Cheval, Convex and Mantel Mirrors, Marqueterie Chairs, a superb Marqueterie Secretary, Dining Room Suites, Napoleon Secretary, artistically Carved Hall Stand, rare Colonial Sofa, decorated with eagles.

A Large Assortment of Moorish Hanging Lamps, Inlaid Furniture, Arms, Draperies, suitable for cosy corners, and other decorations.

ORIENTAL RUGS AND CARPETS,

Porcelains, Sheffield Plated Ware, Fenders and Andirons, English Hall Clock, &c., &c.

TO BE SOLD

Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday Afternoons, Jan. 9th, 10th, and 11th, AT 2 O'CLOCK.

LAST DAYS.

American Art Galleries,

MADISON SQUARE SOUTH, NEW YORK

9 A. M. until 6 P. M. Ending Thursday Jan. 10.

THE

Raphael Cartoons

FOR THE Vatican Tapestries.

KEENE'S 140 FULTON ST., NEW YORK. WATCHES. DIAMONDS. BARGAINS

WATCHES.—$250.00—14k. Gold Waltham Chronograph, $100.—Ladies' $80.00 14k. Gold Diamond Inlaid "Waltham," $35.—Gents' $75.00 "Waltham." Solid 14k. Gold, with chain and charm, $35.—Ladies' $45 Solid Gold Hunting "Waltham," with long chain, $25

CHIEF HAZEN CAPTURES COUNTERFEIT PLANTS

Eight Persons Arrested and Held on Charge of Coining.

All Silver Quarters Manufactured on a Large Scale—Had Elaborate Machinery.

Secret Service men late Friday night and yesterday morning arrested eight persons who have been engaged in making and circulating counterfeit coin. The men had two plants in operation in this city, and Chief Hazen of the Secret Service estimates that 75 per cent. of the counterfeit silver that has been in circulation in this vicinity resulted from their efforts. The men also had an agent who has been traveling about distributing the bogus coin in different parts of the country, principally in the South. He has not yet been arrested, but his whereabouts is known, and it is believed that he will soon be taken.

The persons arrested are Michael C. Clerbo of 181 Grand Street, G. Del Giudice, alias Pio Paris, of 61 Sullivan Street; Giacomo Piscoro of 14f Baxter Street, Achilles Chiceri of 181 Summit Street, Pietro Pesapia of 18 Mulberry Street, Sylvester Acunto of 89 Fourth Avenue, and Amello Arbolt of 121 Adams Street, Hoboken. Pesapia's wife was also arrested. All of the prisoners are Neapolitans.

The Secret Service men have been shadowing the gang for about five weeks. It had been learned that two Italians called on Platte & Co., in Gold Street, and purchased large quantities of sheet silver. People in Mangin Street had grown suspicious, and word was sent to the Secret Service men that something queer was going on.

The detectives lay in wait, and shadowed the men to a tenement house at 111 Mangin Street. Later, it was also found that they were operating another plant in the basement of a house at 95 Watts Street.

The men rented a room on the third floor of the Mangin Street house in June last. They set up a light screw press and a hand press which they used for making pinchettes, or blank coins without the impresses of the die. For the other work it was necessary to use heavier machinery, and a basement in the Watts Street house was selected, where in September last the counterfeiters set up an enormous screw press for punching dies. The press was set on heavy masonry sunk four feet below the surface of the ground. Then the counterfeiters had partitions built in the front and back of the room, so as to exclude observation from the outside. A door in the rear partition provided a means for a hasty exit to the adjoining property in case of discovery.

The Secret Service men had just about completed their investigations when the necessity for prompt action on their part was precipitated by the zealousness of a policeman who was not aware that they were engaged on the case. On Friday he approached the door of the Watts Street house and rapped several times. Two of the men were in the place, and evidently becoming frightened, they started to destroy property that could be used as evidence against them. Agent Henry of the Secret Service with Chief Hazen was watching the house. As soon as the policeman went away the two men started to leave, and the detectives arrested them.

Then Chief Hazen hurried over to the Watts Street house and joined the detectives who were watching that place. The detectives forced their way into the basement and found Giudice and Chiceri there. As the Secret Service men came in, Giudice tried to throw away some 300 of the pinchettes. In his pockets were found five quarters of the coinage 1900. He also had a pistol and a knife, but made no attempt to use them. A number of the planchettes were also found on Chiceri.

Search of the place revealed two full sets of dies for twenty-five-cent pieces and one reverse die. A number of dies were also found which were blank and had evidently been filed off. Blanks for dollars and halves, and collars for cutting edges were also found.

The detectives had previously located all of their men and they were taken with little difficulty. Piscoro was found on the street near his home. Pesapia has a cigar store at 112 Mulberry Street. He was arrested there, after a slight struggle, and thirty counterfeit quarters were found in the money drawer. His wife was up stairs in bed. She was also taken into custody, and in the bed fifty more of the counterfeits were found. The other men were arrested at their homes.

The two plants, estimated to cost $1,000, had been bought from machine shops in this city on the installment plan. The counterfeiters have been buying an average of fifty ounces of silver every day for the last five weeks. It was estimated that their profits on the coins, if turned out in very large quantities, was about 50 per cent.

The prisoners were arraigned before Commissioner Shields yesterday afternoon. The men were held in $5,000 bond, and the woman in $2,500, for examination on Tuesday.

The fact that large numbers of all-silver counterfeits were being freely circulated in New York during the last two years has given Chief Wilkie a great deal of trouble. The coins being of almost pure silver, 900 fine, and fairly well made, they readily passed wherever presented, and rendered extremely difficult the task of locating the makers and the passers.

FATHER AND SON ARRESTED.

Charged with Giving Mortgage on Property Already Incumbered.

Frederick Glaser, a butcher of 189 Tenth Avenue, Manhattan, and his son William, were arrested and locked up in the Queens County Jail yesterday. They are charged with grand larceny. According to the indictment, Glaser and his son, in January three years ago, opened a saloon in Brooklyn.

It is alleged that the men secured from George Grauer, a brewer, an advance of $1,300 on the saloon. The brewer took a chattel mortgage. When the loan was due Grauer found, he says, that the Glasers had swindled him, as their place had been seized by another party, who also held a chattel mortgage. The Glasers disappeared. Last week the men were found in the Tenth Avenue store, and their indictment and arrest followed.

LEFT SUPPER TO FIGHT.

Salvatore Was Shot Twice and Chimenta Is Now a Fugitive.

During a quarrel last night in an Italian boarding house at 464 Adelphi Street, Brooklyn, Giacome Salvatore was shot in the neck and head with a revolver. He was removed to the Seney Hospital, where it was said later that he was in a dying condition. Salvatore boarded at the house. He had a quarrel at the supper table with another boarder and the two left the room. The shooting occurred while the two were in the hallway.

Francisco Chimenta, who is alleged to have shot Salvatore, ran out of the house after the shooting and disappeared. Chimenta and Salvatore are employed as tailors.

DR. MOORE'S SUSPENSION.

House Staff at Bellevue Hospital Said to be Indignant.

A persistent rumor made its way about Bellevue Hospital all the day that the house staff was indignant about the investigation which has been going on. A search into the rumor narrowed it down to an indignation among the staff about Dr. Moore's suspension. They do not like the way he has been treated.

Not a doctor on the staff would verify the rumor. They did not wish to commit themselves, though Dr. Emerson put down their feelings in the matter by saying:

"The doctors don't want any publicity. If anything should be done, we don't want it made public."

Superintendent O'Rourke said he did not know anything about the feeling of the house staff in regard to Dr. Moore. Commissioner Keller said he did not believe it, and he hinted that he did not think they would cut off their noses to spite their faces."

In speaking of the investigation, Commissioner Keller said he intends to make a new Bellevue. He will continue the investigation with vigor next Monday when he returns to his duties after his illness.

CLARA WAS ON THE RAMPAGE.

Four Policemen, More or Less Injured, Appear in Court to Prosecute Her.

When Clara Owen, colored, was arraigned in the Harlem Police Court yesterday four crumpled policemen stood by and regarded her vengefully but respectfully. The four men appeared as if they had been at the mercy of a Kansas cyclone. One of the number wore a heavily bandaged finger in a sling and walked with a limp. The countenance of another looked as if some abstruse geometrical problem had been demonstrated upon it with a sharp instrument, while all four had blackened eyes and thin places in their hair. The quartet had been engaged in arresting Miss Owen.

The arrest took place on Friday night at One Hundred and Sixteenth Street and Third Avenue, and the trouble was started by Detective Rosenfeld. Miss Owen, who is 6 feet 1 inch in height and dresses stylishly, appeared to Rosenfeld to be guilty of disorderly conduct, and he went over to her and told her she was under arrest. He took hold of her arm, but let go of it again when the prisoner landed a blow on his jaw that sent him violently to the sidewalk and made him see stars. The astonished detective had sufficient presence of mind to rap for assistance with his club, blow his whistle, and shout for help before confining himself exclusively to the business in hand.

Miss Owen was just in the act of breaking down a section of a fruit stand with him when three additional policemen arrived and joined in the disturbance. For a few moments a seething mass of irate humanity rolled about over the street, knocking over garbage barrels and crashing into various other obstructions. One of the participants extricated himself and summoned the patrol wagon, and then went back to business. The wagon came on the double quick, and after a time the prisoner was bundled into it and held there all the way to the station house.

When she was brought before the Sergeant she suddenly drew a large pin from her hat and stabbed the long-suffering Rosenfeld with it. Patrolman Beck, who was standing near, wiping his severed brow, grabbed the prisoner's wrists and tried to take the pin from her. She managed to stab him, too, however, and getting his index finger in her mouth nearly severed it from his hand. The four policemen and the Sergeant, who was comparatively fresh, managed finally to get the woman into a cell, but had to choke the life almost out of her to do so. Rosenfeld and Beck had to go to the Harlem Hospital to get their wounds dressed. Rosenfeld, besides being terribly scratched and bruised about the face, had not less than twenty hatpin wounds about the body.

When the prisoner was arraigned in the police court the charge of disorderly conduct against her was dismissed, and she was held on the charge of mayhem.

MOTT HAVEN CANAL NUISANCE.

Improvement Association Urges Action for Grading the New Street.

The Mott Haven Improvement Association adopted the following resolutions at its meeting Friday night:

Whereas, The public health is endangered, property values depreciated, and the development of a large and important section of the Bronx retarded by the continued existence of the so-called Mott Haven Canal, and,

Whereas, The City of New York, after numerous public hearings has condemned the canal and established a street in its place, title to which has vested in the city since last June; therefore be it

Resolved, That the Mott Haven Improvement Association, representing the property owners, residents, and business men of the vicinity, urges upon the Municipal Assembly the immediate passage of the resolution for the regulating and grading of Canal Place.

The Rev. Joseph Reynolds, rector of St. Mary's Protestant Episcopal Church; Dr. W. G. Eynon, F. V. S. Oliver, Alonzo Carr, Albert E. Davis, Stephen H. Burgoyne, L. Allen Marks, and Matthew Anderson spoke in favor of the resolutions.

The resolution for regulating and grading Canal Place was passed by the Local Board of the Bronx, forwarded to the Board of Public Improvements, passed by that body, and forwarded to the Municipal Assembly. Here it was referred to the Committee on Highways, where it has been held up for some six months.

WHY HIS LOVE GREW COLD.

Stout Mrs. Ray Says Her Husband Has a Predilection for Lean Women.

Because Magistrate Kramer, in the Lee Avenue Police Court, Brooklyn, yesterday directed Stephen Ray of 492 Kosciusko Street to pay his wife, Lena, $5 at once, Ray became hysterical and it was some time before he quieted down.

Ray, who is an Inspector in the Street Cleaning Department of Brooklyn, was arrested on his wife's complaint for abandonment. Mrs. Ray, with her two children, are living at 862 Park Avenue. She is short and stout, and, according to her statement in court, her husband no longer adores her because of this. Mrs. Ray told the Court that her husband idolized women who are lean.

After he had been directed to pay his wife $5 at once, he declared that he was unable to do so because he had spent the whole of his last month's salary for Christmas presents. He was held in $300 bail pending a hearing, and the thought of going to jail in default of bail caused him to become hysterical.

COL. R. C. BUTLER'S RETIREMENT.

No Truth in Report of Controversy Between Him and Senator Platt.

There is no truth in the reports of a controversy between Col. Randall G. Butler and Senator Thomas C. Platt, which originated from the fact that Col. Butler was superseded a few days ago as General Superintendent of the United States Express Company by Edward T. Platt, a son of Senator Platt. These stories have caused considerable annoyance to both. In retiring from the position Col. Butler called upon Senator Platt and there was a hearty exchange of cordial sentiments.

When the matter was placed before the public in such an unpleasant light, Senator Platt addressed the following letter to his former subordinate:

Mr. R. G. Butler:

Dear Sir: My attention has been called to publications in the daily press of this city which if not contradicted are calculated to reflect seriously upon your standing, as well as upon my method of dealing with the employes of the United States Express Company.

It is only necessary to assure you that the published reports referred to have no foundation in fact whatever. Very respectfully,

T. C. PLATT.

President United States Express Company.

Col. Butler is one of the best-known railroad men of the Middle West, having been in the business for the last thirty years. For many years he held the position of General Manager of the Wabash Railroad at Detroit. He was a close personal friend of the late Jay Gould, and obtained his military rank through being a member of the staff of Gov. Winans of Michigan.

Suspicious Fire in a Tenement.

Three fires have taken place in the five-story tenement, 5 Hancock Place, in Harlem, within twelve months, and the tenants believe somebody is trying to burn the house. The latest fire occurred yesterday afternoon, being started by a lighted match thrown into a letter-box, it is believed. About $200 damage was done to the vestibule. A fire that did considerable damage took place on the fourth floor a year ago, and there was a fire on the third floor a few months later.

Three New Smallpox Cases.

Three new smallpox cases were reported yesterday to the Board of Health. They were Viola Buck, sixteen years old, southwest corner of One Hundred and Forty-fourth Street and Wales Avenue, the Bronx; Theodore Henderson of 344 East One Hundred and Fortieth Street, and John W. Fiske of 225 East Nineteenth Street. They were all taken to North Brother Island. Assistant Sanitary Superintendent Dillingham again advises everybody to get vaccinated.

Aged Tailor Found Dead.

William Vandermunder, eighty years old, who for twenty-five years had lived in Seventh Street, was found dead in his rooms on the third floor of 170 Seventh Street yesterday afternoon. Death was caused by acid, which, the police believe, Vandermunder took by mistake. Vandermunder was a tailor and a widower. Near the bottle which contained the acid was a bottle containing cough medicine.

LAWYER'S LEAP TO DEATH

R. S. Lansing Commits Suicide at Appraisers' Stores.

Springs from Ninth-Story Window and Strikes on Ninth Avenue Elevated Track—Was Christian Scientist.

Ralph S. Lansing, thirty years old, an assistant to William J. Gibson, counsel to the Government in the United States Appraisers' Stores, jumped out of the ninth story of the Appraisers' Stores Building, at Greenwich and Christopher Streets, shortly after noon yesterday. He fell upon the down-town track of the Ninth Avenue elevated railway, and was instantly killed.

The law offices of the Treasury Department, of which Lansing was a representative, are on the ninth floor of the building. Lansing had been nervous and had acted queerly all morning, as was noticed by a number of his colleagues. He went into the dynamo room in the basement of the building and asked the engineer how a person could get a fatal shock from a dynamo. The engineer was busy at the time and therefore unable to explain. He attached little importance to the question at the time, but, after hearing of Lansing's death, thought the lawyer must even then have had suicide in mind.

From the basement Lansing went back to his desk on the ninth floor, where he wrote two letters, one to his brother and one to Mr. Gibson. He then arose and, deliberately walking toward the window, opened it, and before any one could interfere stood for an instant on the sill and sprang into space. A clerk, who had seen the whole performance, but whose name could not be learned at the Appraisers' Stores last night, rushed to the window and, looking down, saw the body on the Elevated track.

Before the clerk had reached the street, others below had seen the body. A down-town train was held up and a policeman and a number of railroad employes removed the body to the street.

The only address of the dead man obtainable at the Appraisers' Stores was 206 West Seventy-first Street, where, it was said, he boarded. At that number, however, a servant was sent to the door to deny that Lansing had boarded there or that he was at all known in the house.

He lived for a time with Dr. A. E. Newcomb, at 206 West Seventy-first Street. Dr. Newcomb threw some light on the case last night by saying:

"Lansing was a bright man. I knew him and his sister Mary, for they lived here with me for about a month last Summer while they looked for a boarding place. His sister was studying music. She lives in West Fifteenth or Sixteenth Street, don't know exactly where, and I think he lived in University Place. They come of an old and wealthy family of Lansingburg, Rensselaer County, this State, which their ancestors founded, and his father was Surrogate Lansing of Rensselaer County.

"Lansing studied law and practiced. Two months ago he came to be examined, though he was a believer in Christian Science. I found him run down mentally and physically and a sufferer from neurasthenia, advised him to get some rest, take a vacation, and get better, and he took the advice and went to see his folks. He staid a month, and I saw him after his return. He had not improved much. But how could he improve? He wouldn't take any drugs necessary for a man in his condition. He was a Christian Scientist, and said he believed in the predominance of mind over matter, and would not take anything in the shape of medicine. His nervous system and mind were not what they should be, and I am not surprised at what has happened.

"I don't know what he did for himself, and I don't know if he had any Christian Science healers around him or not. I never asked him and he never volunteered any information on the subject. He never mentioned any of their names. I had no interest in them anyway, and didn't ask him about them. I don't know whether his sister is a Christian Scientist or not."

A letter was found on Lansing's person after his death. It was sent to the Coroners' office, but no one knows to whom its contents are addressed.

Special to The New York Times.

TROY, N. Y., Jan. 5.—Ralph Saxton Lansing was the youngest son of ex-Surrogate James Lansing of this city. He was born here thirty-one years ago, and was educated in the public schools of the city. About five years ago he was admitted to the bar of this county, and soon went to New York, where he opened a law office.

His business was not as successful as he had hoped, and from letters he sent home he was apparently despondent. It is reported here that he was engaged to marry a young woman in Amsterdam, and that his failure to get along in a business way as well as he wished was the cause of his dejection.

He was at home New Year's Day and spent the day with his father. He was cheerful then, and spoke hopefully of his prospects. His tragic death was a great shock to his family. He is survived by his father, one brother, Prof. Hugh H. Lansing, Principal of the Troy School, and three sisters. His father and brother left for New York this evening immediately upon receipt of the news of his death.

MAINE LUMBER TRADE.

Large Decrease in 1900 as Compared with 1899.

Special to The New York Times.

BANGOR, Jan. 4.—The year 1900 was a sad time for the Maine lumbermen compared with the prosperous year of 1899, the report of the Surveyor General of Bangor showing that only 142,699,243 feet of lumber of all kinds were surveyed at this port, against 181,482,580 feet in 1899. This shows a decrease of 38,783,346 feet from 1899, and on all other lumbering rivers in the State there was a proportionate falling off in the volume of business.

The year 1899 was a harvest time for the lumbermen, the demand for spruce being brisk and prices the highest ever known; in fact, prices reached a pitch that was declared to be unnatural and unhealthy, and the reaction came in the Spring of 1900, when, just as the manufacturers had bought up all the logs in sight at high prices, the bottom fell out of the lumber market and a panic ensued, operations being curtailed on all sides, while some of the oldest firms failed.

Although the shipping season of 1900, up to the 1st of October, the demand for lumber was slack and prices very low, while vessels had little to do, and freights fell to the lowest point known in twenty years. In the Fall, when the building trades began to improve, the demand for Eastern spruce quickened, and before the rivers were closed by ice the market was brisk, at good prices. The revival came too late, however, to be of much benefit, for after November little lumber can be shipped. The New York and other large markets are now in good condition, and the manufacturers in Maine are in hopes that this may continue next season.

About 6,000 men and 2,000 horses are now at work in the woods of the Penobscot region, and in the whole State the force amounts to about 15,000 men and 4,500 horses. The cut on the Penobscot will be more than 200,000,000 feet, of which 85,000,000 feet will be taken by the pulp mills. The total cut in Maine will be about 500,000,000 feet.

TRAIN'S RUN OF DEATH.

New York Central No. 21 Kills Three Persons—Another Dying.

SYRACUSE, Jan. 5.—Passenger Train No. 21 over the New York Central Road, which arrived in this city from the east at 9:35 o'clock, was responsible for three deaths last night.

The train struck and instantly killed a peddler named Carr at Minoa, eight miles east of this city, and later ran over and killed Frank Goodelle and his aunt, Kittie White, at the Clyde crossing. Goodelle's brother, Grover, was mortally injured.

Express Train Kills Two Men.

MEADEVILLE, Penn., Jan. 5.—Wells-Fargo Express No. 14 on the Erie Railroad struck a wagon at the Mercer Street crossing to-day, killing the occupants, A. J. Holland and Charles Seeley. The horses were also killed and the wagon demolished.

Chinese Boy Ordered Back to China.

OGDENSBURG, N. Y., Jan. 5.—The trial of Low Fun, a Chinese boy, arrested while unlawfully entering the United States, has just ended here. Low Num of Newark, N. J., fathered the boy, but investigation shows he has no son. The youth is ordered deported back to China. Attorney Moore of Malone will at once appeal the case.

HONESTY ILL REWARDED.

Queer Experiences of a Tailor Who Presses Many Garments for Hotel Guests.

"That story about the young dry goods clerk, Howard Berliner, who found $700 on Broadway the other day and received $2 for returning it, besides being arrested on suspicion that he was perhaps a thief, is another instance of how there isn't always much inducement for a fellow to be honest," said a well-known tailor, whose establishment adjoins one of the big uptown hotels, yesterday.

"None have greater opportunities for observing incidents of this kind than tailors," continued the maker of garments. "You see, we receive a great many clothes sent in to us by their owners to be cleaned or pressed, and you would be surprised to know how often it happens that money, sometimes of very considerable amount, is thoughtlessly left in the pockets. You would also be surprised to know how lightly the honesty is appreciated which returns this money intact.

"Perhaps my experience has been exceptional, for, being so close to the hotel, I get a great many suits which are sent in hurriedly by visitors who want a wrinkle or two pressed out or a crease insinuated and who want the work done quickly.

"Sometimes the thoughtless owner discovers his loss soon after he has sent us his garments, and comes rushing in in a state of greater or less disturbance, according as he has forgotten a large or a small amount, to tell us he has left something in his pocket. But often the missing sum is not detected till the customer calls around for his clothes, or until they are sent to his room, and the money taken from the pockets before any work was done is returned to him in a separate parcel.

"One case in particular which I remember occurred last Summer. A man who had just come back from the Klondike was stopping across the way, and sent us a suit to be pressed. This was given to one of our workmen with orders to have it ready within an hour. The Klondiker was evidently well provided with gold, for in two of his pockets we found something over $15,000 in bills and coins and accepted drafts on New York banks. He called in person for the clothes within the hour, and was quite taken by surprise when we handed the money to him. He had not detected the loss.

"And how much," continued the man of sartorian skill, "do you think he gave the employe who found it, and who might have kept the whole amount and denied all knowledge if he had wanted to do so? Nothing—absolutely nothing. He thanked me, and would have let it go at that if I had not suggested that perhaps he might want another suit of clothes or something else in our line. Then it evidently dawned upon him that he owed something just as a matter of courtesy, and he said he intended getting married soon and would need a new dress suit.

"So he had himself measured for a dress suit and was to call the following day to have it tried on. I had my doubts about him, somehow, and decided not to risk anything, and did not cut the cloth. That was the last I ever saw of the man. Had I gone on with the order I should have actually been out of pocket as the result of having given back $15,000 instead of stealing it. I was out of pocket anyway, for I couldn't help giving the honest employe a dollar on my own account just to keep from feeling mean myself.

"Of course, not all the cases of forgotten bills turn out like this. Not everybody is mean in the matter of money, though a surprisingly large number are. I suppose in the course of a year at least $150,000 passes through our hands in the form of overlooked amounts in our patrons' pockets. Of all these cases perhaps 10 per cent. show a due appreciation at receiving their money again. Ninety per cent. don't. It's rather trying on our faith in human nature, but we have to make the best of it."

REGISTRATION OF ARCHITECTS.

Architectural League Seeks to Secure Passage of a Bill for a State Board of Examiners.

A meeting, to which the practising architects of the State are invited, has been called for the morning of Jan. 19 at the rooms of the Architectural League of New York, 215 West Fifty-seventh Street, to consider a plan by which all architects shall register with a State Board before they can draw plans for buildings.

The Architectural League, with a number of prominent unaffiliated architects, has inaugurated a movement of which the object is the passage of a bill by the State Legislature providing for the registration of architects. A committee, consisting of a number of prominent architects of this city, has been formed to draft and present the bill. The latter is termed "An Act to Regulate the Practice of Architecture," and requires that every architect shall pass an examination before being registered. In future all who desire to begin the practice of the profession must register; but the measure is not retroactive, architects now practising being allowed to register without examination.

A bill of a similar character was once before passed, but Gov. Morton, whose term of office was just expiring, did not sign it.

A circular letter, signed by the committee, has been sent to architects throughout the State. The committee consists of J. F. Harder, Acting Chairman; Woodruff Leeming, Secretary; James B. Barker, Louis De C. Berg, W. A. Boring, R. W. Gibson, C. C. Haight, Thomas Hastings, Bruce Price, George B. Post, W. H. Russell, C. W. Romeyn, W. E. Stone and W. B. Tubby.

In speaking of the necessity for a measure such as the league urges, Mr. Harder said yesterday:

"The idea is to place somewhat similar safeguards around architecture as those that now limit the practice of medicine, dentistry, and like professions. If architecture were merely a business they would be unnecessary; if it were wholly an art the need of restrictions might also be absent. But as it is both a science and an art, the call for some legal restraint on its indiscriminate practice is insistent. Where art is not concerned at all, as in the construction of some manufacturing buildings and tenement houses, the need of scientific ability is more apparent.

"In large cities there are usually restrictions which forbid the construction of such buildings as would prove a menace to public safety, but these restrictions can be eluded by unscrupulous persons, backed up by the plans of so-called architects grossly ignorant of the laws of mechanics. A certificated and registered architect could not make such a mistake. His examination by a board appointed by the State would demonstrate his capability to avoid such error."

ALLEGED SWINDLER CAUGHT.

Man Said to be Wanted in This City Arrested in Chicago.

CHICAGO, Jan. 5.—Hume David Browne, said to be wanted in New York, Philadelphia, and other cities for alleged insurance swindles aggregating $30,000, was arrested at the Revere House after eluding the authorities for ten years. He is about forty years old and has a wife and two children in New Orleans.

Browne was formerly Consul for the Canadian Government at New Orleans.

A PLAY BY LAURENCE IRVING.

E. H. Sothern to Produce "Richard Lovelace" by Sir Henry's Son.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 5.—The next play that E. H. Sothern will produce will have for its author Laurence Irving, son of Sir Henry Irving.

The play is described by Mr. Sothern as a comedy-drama. Its central figure will be the gay Lord Lovelace, poet and Court gallant of the days of Charles II.

The play will be called "Richard Lovelace." It is already completed and the manuscript in Mr. Sothern's possession. According to present plans, it may have a trial presentation late in the Spring, though not in New York. If the test is satisfactory, it will be held in reserve for next season.

Mr. Sothern, however, will play "Hamlet" at the outset of next season in New York.

Found $3,500; Got $50 Reward.

NEWARK, N. J., Jan. 5.—Frank R. Smith, an Inspector of the North Jersey Street Railway Company, to-day, returned to the Essex County National Bank a sealed envelope containing $3,500 of negotiable paper which the bank's messenger lost on Market Street last night. The messenger was on his way to an express office with it at the time. President Crooks handed Smith a fifty-dollar note as a reward.

AUSTRALIAN SOCIETY GIVES ITS FIRST DINNER

Birth of the New Commonwealth Is Celebrated.

A MESSAGE FROM THE QUEEN

Flag of the New Commonwealth Is Unfurled—Many Toasts Responded To.

The Australian Society gave its first dinner at Sherry's last night, commemorating both the birth of the society and the inauguration of the Australian Commonwealth. The members of the society are native Australians, who, like many others from various lands and localities, have banded together for social enjoyment and to annually sing the praises of the motherland. This they did last night in a brilliantly decorated banquet hall, in which a number of distinguished guests were gathered.

The new Australian flag, white with a blue cross, containing six stars and the Union Jack, was a conspicuous feature of the decorations. On either side of it were the Royal Standard and the Stars and Stripes, and at the end of the hall fluttered the green flag of Erin, with its golden harp. Augustus R. Ohman, the President of the society, occupied the head seat at table, and with him were Sir Percy Sanderson, K. C. M. G., the British Consul General; Henry W. Peabody, George Gray Ward, Dr. Charles J. Laffin, William Butler Duncan of the St. Andrew's Society, Justice O'Gorman of the St. Patrick's Society, William H. Parsons, William A. Street, Dr. J. A. Irwin, Walter J. Travis, the golf champion; W. P. McLean, Congressman-elect William H. Douglas, J. Hampden Springle, William H. Mailler, F. W. Lincoln, Jr., C. A. Green of the Philadelphia Commercial Museum, Thomas A. Eddy, and B. B. Valentine.

The first toast was to the President of the United States, with the sentiment, "Here is my throne, bid Kings come bow to it," and, as the diners rose, Mr. Ohman read a letter of regret from the President. This toast and that to the Queen, which followed, aroused the greatest enthusiasm. All over the room were heard shouts of "The Queen, God bless her!" and as the applause subsided Mr. Ohman read the following telegram which had been received from Osborne in answer to one sent by the Australians saluting her Majesty on the birth of the new Commonwealth. It read:

"Queen thanks Australians in New York for their loyal message of congratulations on the birth of the Commonwealth."

To the accompaniment of the toast "The Commonwealth of Australia," the following cablegram was read from Gov. Gen. Lord Hopetoun:

"The Governor General of the new Nation of this Continent welcomes your congratulations, and hopes that the future will show how closely men of British blood will be associated in the history of the empire, which, on the 1st inst., assumed a new aspect."

In responding to the toast Mr. Ohman sketched the history of the new Commonwealth, the creation of which, he said, must be regarded as one of the splendid achievements which mark the century just terminated. "Henceforth," he said, "the five colonies of Australia, together with Tasmania, will stand united in the possession of that moral consciousness and largeness of world outlook which are essential attributes of a progressive National life. Henceforth it will be difficult indeed to place any limits to the part which might be played in the world by a nation of Anglo-Saxon stock owing to the vast island-continent of the Southern seas, with its variety of natural resources and its commanding maritime position."

In proposing the toast "Commercial Relations between the United States and Australia," Henry W. Peabody sketched the history of trade between the nations from the sailing of the ship Tybee from Salem, Mass., Mr. Peabody's birthplace, on May 2, 1832. This was the first vessel from America. Out of this, he said, had grown a trade which was represented for the year ending June 30, 1900, by exports of $26,725,000, and imports from Australasia of $5,443,000. Speaking on the question of the merchant marine and the Ship Subsidy bill, Mr. Peabody said:

"It is to be hoped that Congress will not enact a bill that will fail of its professed object, but that they will allow for a term, purchase of vessels built or to be built abroad, upon condition of duplication in this country, and that they will provide that when registered and under contract for mileage subsidy the ownership shall be actually and continuously by American citizens. The American flag was a familiar sight in the harbors and coasts of Australasia in earlier years. National pride and common sense should indicate our duty to urge a favorable opportunity for investment and enterprise in this neglected industry.

"To be a truly great Nation we must have a much larger merchant marine than we had in 1861, 2,643,000 tons register. I began my remarks by depicting the grandeur of our commercial supremacy in 1834. We had more tonnage then in the foreign trade than we have to-day—a condition that is most humiliating, and it is only by wise legislation that we can expect to recover our former position. We have cause, however, for gratification in the rapid growth of the commerce between these United States and the now Federated Australian States, and happily the lack of American vessels will not retard this constantly increasing trade."

The others who spoke and the toasts to which they responded were: Sir Percy Sanderson, "The British Empire;" George Gray Ward, "British Societies in New York;" Congressman-elect Douglass, "Federation; Its Results, and Future Relations of Anglo-American Peoples to Australia;" Dr. Laffin, "The Australian Abroad," and B. B. Valentine, "Science, Art, and Literature."

LABOR IN CONNECTICUT.

Report of State Commissioner Shows Remarkably Prosperous Year.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 5.—The annual report of the State Labor Commissioner to the Governor, made public to-day, shows a remarkable advance in all departments of industry in the last year. The report states that the record of brisk business enterprise in the State in the last twelve-month "shows Connecticut to be the most complete and ingenious industrial section of the world." The average daily wage rate of the artizans and laborers of the State for the year 1900 was $1.52, as against $1.40 for the previous year. The average yearly wages were $452.04, against $420.04 for 1899. There are 108,782 laborers reported, representing 435,128 persons supported by the business of the State, or a little below half the population.

The allowance per person for a livelihood in the year was $113.01, as against $105.01 the previous year. The 514 leading establishments in 1896 paid out in wages $33,038,001; in 1900 the same companies paid in wages $38,695,646, an increase over the average for the five years of 13.4 per cent. The only line showing a decrease is the shoe trade. There are declines noticeable in woolen and silver and plated ware industries.

The report states that the year 1900 is without doubt the most remarkable in Connecticut's industrial history. During the year there were 245 new manufacturing buildings erected, constructed by 173 concerns. Fifty-nine of the 168 towns of the State have had additions to their factories. The number of mill operatives has increased accordingly by 3,965.

From July, 1899, to December, 1900, there were fifty-one strikes reported to the Commissioner and two lock-outs. Of these, eighteen were successful, and twenty-three unsuccessful. Sixteen were for increase of pay, nine against reduction of time or wages, one for nine hours' work, nine for discharge of non-union men, and for minor troubles, eighteen. On account of strikes 5,776 were idle during the seventeen months, with a total of wages lost of $147,968. But 2 or 3 per cent. of the wage earners of the State struck during the year.

There are 260 separate labor organizations in the State, with a membership of 14,244. During the year the sum of $2,091 was disbursed to strikers.

"Kid" McCoy May Remarry.

It was reported last night that Norman Selby, the pugilist, otherwise known as "Kid" McCoy, was to be married again to his former wife, who secured a divorce from him some months ago. According to the report, the wedding is to take place in this city to-morrow.

BEST & CO
UPUTIAN BAZAAR

Children's Shoes.

The excellence, style and wearing quality of our shoes are recognised by everyone who has purchased them. We desire to call special attention to the following:

Boys' and Girls' Calf foxed, broad extension soles, hand sewed, button or lace.....$2.25 to $2.75

Girls' Heavy Dongola Button, patent leather tips, hand sewed, most durable shoe for school wear.....$1.75 to $2.50

Girls' Patent Leather Strap Slippers for dancing or evening wear.....$2.00 to $2.50

Boys' and Youths' Patent Leather Pumps.....$1.80 to $2.00

Children's Pumps, sizes 6 to 10½.....$1.60

The Children's Store carries the largest stock and greatest variety of Children's Shoes to be found anywhere, besides having special shoes for children who "Toe In" or have "Weak Ankles" or "Flat Feet", also "Hygienic Shoes" built on a felt foundation which keeps the feet warm and dry.

60-62 West 23d Street.

FUEL GAS AT 72 CENTS.

Court in Chicago Decides People's Company Cannot Raise Price.

CHICAGO, Jan. 5.—According to a decision by Judge Dunne of the Circuit Court to-day, a gas company, in absorbing a rival company, may not advance the price of gas in violation of the charter requirements of the company absorbed.

The decision was rendered in the injunction proceedings against the People's Gas Company, which absorbed the Hyde Park Gas Company, and will prevent the former company from advancing the price of fuel gas from 72 cents to $1 a thousand feet.

The injunction was issued, the Court holding that the People's Gas Company in taking over the Hyde Park Company assumed all obligations which that company would have been compelled to observe.

Many Smallpox Cases in Kansas City.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Jan. 5.—The number of smallpox cases in Kansas City exceeds 100, a majority of the sufferers being white.

AT THE HOTELS.

WALDORF-ASTORIA.—Count Cassini, Russian Ambassador, and Pierre Hogestvensky of the Russian Legation, Washington.

HOLLAND—C. C. Pilsbury, Minneapolis.

GILSEY—M. B. Milspaugh, Grand Rapids, Mich.

FIFTH AVENUE—Samuel J. Moffatt, Pittsburg.

SAVOY—Gov. Thomas O. Jones, Alabama.

ASTOR—B. Marvin Fernald, Boston.

ARRIVAL OF BUYERS.

Representatives of Out-of-Town Firms Now in the City.

Root & McBride Company, Cleveland, Ohio; H. McBride, domestics; 51 Leonard Street; Holland House.

Gaier & Stroh Millinery Company, St. Louis, Mo.; E. Gaier, millinery; 4 Great Jones Street; Colonnade Hotel.

Levis Zukowsk Mercantile Company, St. Louis, Mo.; J. Berliner, ribbons and silks; 621 Broadway; Hoffman House.

Trask, Prescott & Richardson, Erie, Penn.; W. B. Trask, carpets and upholstery goods; 45 Lispenard Street; Murray Hill Hotel.

Miller Company, Canton, Ohio; G. F. Miller, carpets; St. Denis Hotel.

Friend Brothers' Clothing Company, Milwaukee, Wis.; J. E. Friend, woolens; 49 Worth St.

Newcomb, Endicott & Co., Detroit, Mich.; O. Harrison, millinery, ladies' and infants' wear; 241 Broadway.

LOSSES BY FIRE.

WARSAW, N. Y., Jan. 5.—The Wheeler Furniture and Tanning Company's establishment was destroyed by fire at 2 o'clock this morning; loss $12,000, partially covered by insurance.

BRISTOL, Tenn., Jan. 5.—The car shops of the Virginia and Southwestern Railroad were burned to-day. A new locomotive and other rolling stock, together with office records, tools, and machinery were destroyed. The loss is estimated at $75,000 to $100,000.

BOSTON, Jan. 5.—For the fourth time within a year the Boston and Maine hay shed district in Charlestown has been visited by fire, and this afternoon two of that corporation's long hay and merchandise sheds on Rutherford Avenue were almost completely destroyed; another shed more or less damaged, and more than forty freight cars, nearly all filled with hay, ruined. The total loss will aggregate at least $113,000, the losses being covered by blanket policies.

YESTERDAY'S FIRES.

(From 12 o'clock Friday night until 12 o'clock Saturday night.)

6:15 A. M.—562 West Forty-first Street; Adolph Kemp; damage, $300.

9:25 A. M.—13 Fulton Market; John Feeney; damage slight.

9:55 A. M.—329 East Seventy-ninth Street; John Molady; damage, $10.

12:20 P. M.—163 Madison Avenue; Mrs. Means; damage slight.

1:10 P. M.—785 East One Hundred and Forty-fifth Street; Henry Miller; damage, $10.

1:40 P. M.—156 Prince Street; Felix Venela; damage, $75.

2:35 P. M.—2,259 Eighth Avenue; owner unknown; damage slight.

3 P. M.—57 East One Hundred and Seventeenth Street; Josephine and Helen Meyer; damage, $800.

3:30 P. M.—62 Cannon Street; William Hertz; damage slight.

4:05 P. M.—237 East Eighty-fifth Street; William Delmour; damage, $150.

5:30 P. M.—4 Hancock Place; owner unknown; damage, $200.

5:30 P. M.—156 West Thirteenth Street; Charles Clark; damage, $100.

6:15 P. M.—2,335 Eighth Avenue;

APPEAL TO ABOLISH THE DEATH PENALTY

A Bill Will Be Prepared Under Direction of the Society of Friends.

Speakers Say Lawlessness Has Decreased in States Where Capital Punishment Has Been Abolished.

The Religious Society of Friends held its monthly meeting last night, and listened to addresses by Samuel J. Barrow, Secretary of the Prison Association, and Gen. Newton M. Curtis on the question of abolishing capital punishment. Resolutions directing the preparation of a bill providing for the abolition of the death penalty in this State were adopted, and it was announced that the bill would be introduced in the Legislature by Senator William W. Cocks of Nassau County.

Mr. Barrow, in his speech, said that those advocating the passage of the law must approach the legislators with arguments that society would be benefited rather than that the State commits a moral sin in allowing "legal murders." He said that lawlessness waned wherever the death penalty was done away with.

"The argument that the slaying of a criminal has a deterrent effect on others who might be guilty of the crime for which he is punished is no longer used," Mr. Barrow continued. "Those in authority have come to know that public executions are brutalizing, that to have the deterrent effect they must also have th.t of depraving those who see them."

The speaker told of instances where accused persons had been adjudged guilty of capital offenses and had later, just in time to save themselves, secured evidence of their innocence. One suggestion that he made was that the State should compel a murderer to work all the rest of his life for the family of the man whom he had killed. "When reformation is possible," he said, "I think the State should reform."

Referring to a statement made by Gov. Roosevelt relative to the recent atrocious lynching in Colorado, Mr. Barrow said that he had learned from statistics that lynching had decreased in those States where capital punishment had been abolished, that in such States a respect for human life had grown up the like of which had not previously existed.

Gen. Curtis said that only one was reported last year in a State where the death penalty had ceased to exist. This was in Colorado.

"In Indiana," he continued, "where capital punishment is inflicted, there have been, on an average, eight lynchings in each year for a long time. During a similar period Michigan, a neighboring State, in which there is no death penalty, has had only four lynchings altogether. Lynchings, so the statistics show, have decreased or increased just in the ratio as the infliction of the death penalty has increased or decreased."

Gen. Curtis said John G. Carlisle, ex-Gov. Charles Foster of Ohio, and Senator James H. Berry of Arkansas had admitted to him that the death penalty often thwarted the ends of justice, in that lawyers defending a culprit accused of murder would in many cases have it arranged so that their client might be indicted for murder in the first degree, in order thus to secure more easily the prisoner's acquittal.

RICHES OF MANCHURIA.

Immense Natural Resources of the Territory Which Russia Will, It Is Expected, Annex.

Most of the recent reports from St. Petersburg and Peking say that Russia has no intention of abandoning Manchuria, and that, while she will adhere to her declaration that she will seize no territory in China proper, she will eventually colonize and govern Manchuria as a province of Siberia. The latest report bearing on this subject is that the Manchurian railways will henceforth be regarded as Russian Government property.

In the minds of most Westerners, Manchuria appears to be regarded as a territory large in extent, but of little value. Very few travelers have penetrated into the country, and the popular ignorance about it is almost as great as with regard to Thibet. Capt. Younghusband of the British Army has explored Manchuria, and his description of the country by no means bears out the general impression about it. He says:

"If Manchuria were such a wretchedly poor country as, for instance, Khiva, Merv, and Turkestan, and others which have fallen to the lot of the Russians, comparatively little attention need be paid to the progress of events in that distant portion of the world. But Manchuria is no such desert country. It is, on the contrary, a country of exceeding richness, of promise scarcely less than that of the Transvaal itself, and compared to which the whole of Central Africa, from Uganda to Khartoum, is of paltry insignificance.

"The timber alone in the vast virgin forests which clothe the hillsides over thousands of square miles must be worth many millions; for this timber is of the most valuable kind, and besides the ordinary pines, which are common all over the world, and which, being fast growing, can be easily replaced when cut down, there are immense quantities of hard timber—of oak and elm and walnut—to replace which a century is required, and the quantity of which in the world is rapidly diminishing.

"Manchuria is equally rich in its production of cereals, and, in the southern portion of such crops as indigo and tobacco."

Capt. Younghusband declares that the inhabitants of Manchuria are extremely industrious and economical, and, on the whole, law-abiding. Honesty is a pronounced trait in their character, and they possess none of the fanaticism of the other peoples of Asia. If Russia takes possession of the country she will find it not only an enormously rich one, but an easy one to govern.

DOESN'T WANT DEVERY'S PLACE

Titus Calls Absurd a Report that He is to be Chief—City Club's Campaign Plans.

Chief William S. Devery was at Police Headquarters yesterday for about an hour. He was silent on all subjects pertaining to his status and the police situation, and in regard to his travels of the night, which included a visit to Capt. Dean, at the Thirty-second Precinct, or East Harlem Station House.

"The story's absurd on the face of it," said Chief Detective George F. Titus, in reference to a rumor that Chief Devery would be retired and he would be made Chief of Police. "I am too young to want to get into the 'dead line.' I could not get the post anyway if I wanted it, and if it were offered to me I would not take it. Besides, the plan of police reorganization does not, as I understand it, comprehend the continuation of the position of Chief of Police."

James J. Martin, once a Police Commissioner, was mentioned several days ago in THE NEW YORK TIMES as a possible selection by the Tammany organization as the single Commissioner of Police, with Lewis Nixon, John R. Sexton, and Bernard J. York as having equal chances. Gossip yesterday continued to favor Commissioner Sexton more than the others on account of his status in the organization, and his record as a Police Commissioner and Under Sheriff with Hugh J. Grant. Mr. Martin is cordially hated by many members of the force because of his action in regard to all I mentioned at the Lexow investigation, and he would be extremely unpopular on this account. Besides, no direct announcement that he is again in favor with Richard Croker or that he has been rehabilitated by Tammany Hall has been made.

James B. Reynolds, head worker of the University Settlement, and a prominent member of the City Club, spoke yesterday of the agitation in connection with the present reform crusade and its leading up to the Mayoralty campaign next Fall. The reason why the Strong administration was not appreciated, was, he said, because there was at that time no organization throughout the entire city which could prepare the public mind for any movement that might be contemplated.

"Such an organization," he added, "is Tammany Hall. When it wants to make a move, the district leaders are called together. They are informed of what is going to happen, that the interest of some of them may suffer at first, but that in the long run they will be benefited by it. Thus every plan of action is rounded off before the move is made, and all objections occur in the secret councils of the organization itself.

"Now, we propose that the City Club, in the coming campaign shall do for the moral forces what Tammany Hall does for the other side."

ALASKA'S MINERAL RICHES.

Lawyer Alles Says Many Rich Districts Are Being Opened.

Lyman S. Alles of Seattle, who has been in Alaska since early in 1897, is at the Waldorf-Astoria. Mr. Alles left Cape Nome on Oct. 25, and will sail for Europe on Saturday, returning to Alaska next Spring.

"Alaska has been lied about," he said to a reporter for THE NEW YORK TIMES. "The past season has not been so successful because many of the best claims have been tied up by litigation caused by a lot of men who drifted in from Dawson City and other points. In the absence of law and courts, they disregarded all rights and established claims by removing the evidences of staking out of their predecessors. But now there are three district courts—at Circle City, Sitka, and Nome. The courts have been very busy, and the lawyers have reaped a harvest."

"Much gold was secured along the beach, but the claims there have been practically worked out. This mining on the beach extended from Topkok, near Golovin Bay, 100 miles southeast of Nome, to Port Clarence, 150 miles northwest of Nome. The find at Topkok was especially rich, any of the men gathering from $300 to $400 in gold dust daily.

"When I left Nome City there were about 7,000 persons there located for the Winter. Of these nearly one-half are women, who are wondering why they went there. Many of them are nurses, and, while there was much sickness in 1899, the place last year was distressingly healthy for physicians, of whom there are many. There were some cases of pneumonia last year, but none of typhoid fever, which raged in 1899. The United States transport Lawton took about 700 women to Seattle in October.

"There is no harbor at Nome, and the loss to shipping there has been very great. There is excellent anchorage at Golovin Bay and Port Clarence.

"The output of gold last year in Alaska was about $5,000,000. I believe this year that it will exceed $15,000,000. While mining on the beach is about at an end the creeks have scarcely been scratched over. It is impossible to predict the fabulous amount of gold in the Alaska peninsula. All depends upon development, and great progress is being made in that direction. When I went there in 1897 I was two months in going from Skagway to Lake Bennett over the White Pass, a distance of forty-eight miles. Now there is a railroad, and I can travel in a sleeping car.

"There were many important finds of gold last year, the most important being in the Kougrock district, about 100 miles inland from Nome; in the Blue Stone region, about fifteen miles south of Port Clarence; at Kotsibu Sound and the Bay of Good Hope, about 200 miles from Nome. I consider the Blue Stone region to be fabulously rich. There have been discoveries of immense quantities of gold in Nugget Gulch, Penny River, Oregon Creek, Cripple River, and at the head waters of the Notak River. The latter stream is navigable for more than 600 miles. Charles Boyd, a prospector, located the gold there and told John Nelson, the storekeeper at Point Hope, where he went for provisions, that he had struck it rich. Boyd engaged a native to aid him, and the native killed him. News of his death reached Nelson, and he sent out a party, the members of which believe they have located the Boyd plant.

"The rich discoveries in the Blue Stone district were made by tenderfeet, who prospected the territory after it had been abandoned by miners of experience. What is needed for success in Alaska is grit, mining experience, and $1,000, and grit counts for more than anything else.

"Besides being rich in gold, there are abundant copper, lead, and silver fields in Alaska, but those there have not taken time to bother with them. At Golovin Bay there are very rich lead and silver deposits. The ledge is very deep and very wide, and a block of it two feet square will weigh a ton, very little of which is refuse.

"Great discoveries, too, have been made at Ophir Creek. I consider them better than those on Anvil Creek.

"Under all the circumstances there has been very little lawlessness in Alaska. There have been killings over disputed sites, but since the establishment of a Criminal Court crime has been on the decrease.

"There are four papers published at Nome and the price of each is 50 cents a copy. Until recently copies of the papers published in the United States rarely reached Alaska, and when one with important news did come the fortunate owner would hire a hall, charge $1 admission, and read the news. He could always depend on a crowded house.

"I don't suppose the result of the election in the United States is yet known in Alaska.

"Business is very good in the Territory, and up to date the supply of provisions has never equalled the demand. When a ship discharges a cargo the consignees can dispose of it at their own prices without removing it from the wharves.

"Alaska has a great future, so far as mineral wealth is concerned, and every year will show an improvement."

CORBETT CLAIMED THE DOG.

Pugilist and a Thick-Set Man Quarrel Over the Animal and Arrests Follow.

James J. Corbett, a policeman, and a thick-set man with a dog, headed a big procession into the West Thirtieth Street Police Station about 11 o'clock last night. The pugilist, the thick-set man, and the dog were prisoners, and the others were Mrs. Corbett, Mrs. Corbett's maid, and a miscellaneous assortment of friends and admirers of the pugilist. The thick-set man had no attendants present. The principals in the station house function accused each other. The pugilist wanted the thick-set man locked up for stealing the dog from him. The other wanted the pugilist imprisoned for assault. He did not say very much, however. Just made his desire known, and then kept quiet. Corbett did most of the talking.

He said the dog, a white bull terrier, had been given to him nine months ago by a friend, and he wouldn't take a fortune for it. He said the dog disappeared a week ago.

Then, buttressed by the evidence of friends, his story unfolded itself as follows: He was sitting in his saloon on Broadway last night with Mrs. Corbett and a party, when a friend rushed in and told him that his dog, Beaut, was over at a restaurant at Sixth Avenue, near Thirty-sixth Street. The pugilist rushed to the place with a large retinue of friends and there was the dog under a table waiting for the thick-set man who held the chain attached to the collar to finish a cup of coffee and a plate of "sinkers," which he had attacked.

"That's my dog," said the pugilist to the man.

"Oh, I guess not!" said the other.

"I'll bet a thousand it is," urged Corbett. "Look, how it knows me."

"Oh, come off!" said the thickset man.

The dispute waxed hotter until the pugilist and the other man each grabbed a section of the dog and almost pulled the animal in two. There was great excitement until a policeman came along and took both men to the station house. There Corbett called on Mrs. Corbett to corroborate his identification of the dog, which she did. So did Mrs. Corbett's maid.

"Where'd you get the dog?" asked the Sergeant of the thick-set man.

"I bought it," said the latter.

"How long have you had it?"

"Two months."

"What's your name, anyhow?"

"None of your business."

Then Capt. Thomas came out and ordered the man locked up as John Doe. The dog was also placed behind the bars. The Sergeant refused to entertain John Doe's complaint of assault. Then Corbett, Mrs. Corbett, Mrs. Corbett's maid, and the long retinue of Corbett admirers and friends filed out on the street and went back to the saloon.

A Big Family Party.

From The Kansas City (Mo.) Journal.

At the home of O. N. Gray, in Jewell City, Kan., a little boy sat down to his Christmas dinner in company with his father and mother, his two grandfathers and his two grandmothers, and his great-grandfather and great-grandmother.

The Doctor and His Fee.

Doctor—And you say you can't pay me?

Patient—That's right, doctor; you see, I spent all my money to buy that cook book for my wife.

"That's not right."

"Well, doctor, you shouldn't complain; if I hadn't bought the book I wouldn't have needed your services."—Yonkers Statesman.

SCARCITY OF SERVANTS

Yearly Decreasing in Numbers in This City.

English and German Women Raising Wages to Keep Them from Emigrating—Auxiliary Help System.

"What we are going to do about the servant question here in New York, I don't know," said a woman yesterday, who is brought closely in touch with it and knows both sides of the matter thoroughly as far as it relates to the better class of servants and the better class of housewives to be supplied with servants. "Every year there are fewer and fewer servants, and more and more is demanded of those in positions, and the people who are having the greatest trouble with servants are turning to temporary workers, or workers who come in by the day. There has been and is so much trouble that the easiest way to arrange matters seems to be to take an apartment, have one cook or general servant, and other workers to come in. The greater number of all the calls we have for servants now is for this emergency work, as we call it, and we can keep workers of all kinds busy.

"As for good servants to take permanent places, they are simply not to be had. They are not in the country. They have gone and have gone for good. Many people who have been abroad recently tell me that the English and German women are raising the wages of their servants, to keep them at home, and if they are going to do this what are we going to do for servants?

"Those two countries are our chief sources of supply. The English servants are the best trained, and the German servants, besides being good servants, will stand the hard work of this country longer than the English. Yes, the work is much harder here than it is even in Germany. We pay more money, but more work is expected of fewer servants. The girls will stand it eight, ten, twelve, or even fifteen years, but by that time they have saved up a little money, and they are pretty thoroughly broken down and start for home.

"The year of the Spanish war a great many girls left for home. The war had something to do with it. They did not know what to expect in the way of a bombardment, and thought it was better to start off at the earliest possible moment. The next year all the sisters and cousins followed. It is always the way with the classes which give us our domestics. They come in bunches. One comes here and gets a start, sees the lay of the land, and paves the way for the others who follow after, and they go back much in the same way. In addition to that, that year saw the period when the girls who were pouring into this country ten, twelve, and fifteen years ago had reached the limit of their ability and were ready to go.

"About that number of years ago the emigrants to this country were largely from Germany and Great Britain. A good deal of the time since, while there have been many foreigners, they have been the Greeks, Armenians, Italians, and other races which are of no use to us in the household. Now the girls have gone, and they have gone to stay, and what we are going to do I don't know.

"The daily service that we supply looks as if the answer to one phase of the question might be found in servants who live out of the house. I hardly know whether, if we had enough women who were capable and trustworthy, it would answer. Some people say that servants who live outside take too much away with them when they go home nights, particularly in the way of provisions. I don't know about that. I have thought that possibly the Chinese and Japanese might solve the whole servant question for us.

APARTMENT HOUSE DRAWBACKS.

"Some people suggest that it will be necessary that living should be upon the co-operative plan, a chef and his assistants cooking for a certain number of families in an apartment house, and the other work being done in the same way. It is certain that girls are not willing to live in even the best apartment houses to be found in the city. The quarters for them are such that this is not a matter of surprise. In the most elaborate apartment houses, houses where the rents are enormous, with the apartments large, occupying two or three floors, the servants' quarters are either in the basement, next to the furnace room, where they have the gas and smoke and discomfort from the furnace, or up on the roof, where it is freezing cold in Winter. They are, of course, never there in the Summer, for the families occupying the houses are all away. They not only have to sleep in these uncomfortable places, but are under the necessity of being frequently on the elevators going up stairs or down stairs to their quarters of the house, where are all their bathing facilities and other accommodations.

"This is the condition of affairs in the best of apartment houses, and in the smaller apartments the accommodations are even worse. There is either a small dark room or a tiny place off the kitchen, so small that a girl has to go out into the kitchen to turn around. It is also unpleasant to have servants in a small apartment, no matter how nice they may be. There is no chance of privacy, and it is unpleasant to have any outsider so closely associated with the family life as is necessary with any one living in the place.

"In New York more and more is demanded of the servants, and they are breaking down from the strain. Emergency help is called in for many purposes by people who, while they require strenuous service, wish to save their own maids as much as possible. The question has become more serious here than in other large cities. New York people have grown to expect that the whole course of the working world shall be kept in running order, nights, days, Sundays, and holidays, so that at any time they may chance to wish anything they can have it with only the effort of a turn of the hand.

"There has been something of a reaction in the way of hotel and restaurant dinners and after-theatre suppers lately. People who have been giving their dinners outside of their own houses and their after-theatre suppers now have them at home. Their theatre guests are invited to a salad or chafing dish supper, which may last until 2 o'clock or later, and the waitress of the family, who must be early in the morning to get her parlors dusted before the family gets down to breakfast, cannot stand working all day and all night too.

"We have many emergency calls for girls to go out for these suppers. They go at 8 o'clock, set the tables, get the salads ready if it is to be a salad supper, or prepare the things for the chafing dish, and remain to wait on the guests when they arrive. This lifts the burden from the shoulders of the regular servants.

"We have emergency calls for help of all kinds. There are cooks who go out in the morning to get breakfast and they may stay to get luncheon and dinner. Maids and waitresses go in the same way. They get $1.50 a day for it, or the cook may get $2 if she stays after 6 o'clock. This is quite apart from the service of the professional cook, who is paid many dollars for preparing an elaborate dinner or luncheon.

"It is a common thing to send out nurses and lady's maids for temporary positions, and those are the two servants that it has been supposed must be permanent and understand the ways of their employers.

"We have one girl who is acting in one house as maid and chambermaid. The lady's maid is ill, and her mistress prefers to have the chambermaid, who is familiar with her ways, give her what personal attention she requires. The extra maid does a part of the chambermaid's work, but some of it cannot be delegated, and the stranger performs the duties of lady's maid, which are not in the nature of personal service. If she remains in the position for any length of time, she can do all the work of the lady's maid, and the chambermaid can attend to her own work. This girl takes this position from 8 to 1 in the morning, and from 1:30 to 6 she is useful maid in an up-town apartment house. The service is furnished there, but the family like to have extra service in their own apartments, some one to answer the bell, assist at afternoon tea, &c.

TRAVELING WITHOUT A MAID.

"Women coming from abroad, from California, or other places across the continent do not think, particularly the latter, of bringing their own maids. There is no need of a maid on the cars, where that service is furnished, and it is the same with the steamers. There are plenty of maids in attendance for personal service. So a woman who stops at one of the big hotels engages a maid here and gets one she knows can be relied upon to remain with her while she is in this part of the country. If she goes to Boston or any of the cities within a comparatively short distance she takes her temporary maid with her. With nurses it is much the same. Waitresses are always in demand, and responsible women to clean and to do various other kinds of work.

"Some of the servants who have permanent positions object to going home at night, but anything is better than sleeping in the cellar or on the roof. For some it is a convenience, as in the case of one woman we have placed, who has an invalid mother who needs her, and whom she could not leave for twenty-four hours.

"Of the regular servants the chambermaids have the easiest time now in the household, and they are the most difficult servants to find out of a place, for they get a good one and keep it. They have a chance to go up stairs a little while in the afternoon to rest, while the waitress has only time to change her dress to be ready to wait on the door during the afternoon. The cook is the most independent person in the house, for she has great power in her hands.

We can live without poetry, music, and art,
We can live without science and live without heart;
We can live without friends, we can live without books,
But civilized man cannot live without cooks.

"Matters seem to be reaching a climax here, and I don't know what the result will be. Perhaps, as some one has suggested, people will get into the habit of doing more for themselves. For instance, it would be easy for any family who wished to live reasonably on the co-operative plan to get breakfast of coffee and rolls in the morning, after the French fashion, for themselves. Then luncheon is frequently taken away from home, and there could be co-operative cooks for dinner. Matters may adjust themselves on the plan of special service, what we call now emergency work, but more systematized. However, even for that we must have the servants.

"People live so little in one place now that they have no use for servants except for a few months in the year. There is only a short time that they are regularly keeping house, perhaps from Christmas or a little before Easter until Easter, though it is probable that they run down to Lakewood for Lent. There are so many clubhouses springing up in different places that people who have not a cottage in every climate are not obliged to mingle with the general public in hotels when they leave home. After Easter they make a little trip abroad, come back for the mountains and for the seashore for a time, and may be in their Summer home for a month or two; but it is difficult to tell.

"The question of the length of reference we can obtain from servants has greatly changed within the last nine or ten years. At one time we always expected to have two or three years' reference from every girl; in fact, we would not take less than two; but now, when people ask for a maid with a reference for that time we tell them it is an impossibility. We feel that we are lucky if we can find a girl who has a six months' reference. This is a large question, and the new century is going to see a big change of some kind, but just what—it requires a prophet to say."

HOSPITAL SITE OPPOSED.

Harlem People Object to Place Chosen for New Building.

The recent action of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment in condemning the plot 200 by 210 feet on Lenox Avenue, between One Hundred and Thirty-sixth and One Hundred and Thirty-seventh Streets for a new Harlem Hospital has caused much discussion and unfavorable comment among residents of Harlem, who say that the site is a poor one and entirely away from the centre of population, where a hospital is most needed. For years Harlem has been in absolute need of a new hospital, the present one, at the foot of East One Hundred and Twentieth Street, being in an old mansion that is one of Harlem's landmarks and which is entirely inadequate for the purpose. It has never met the demands made upon it, as patients are turned away constantly for lack of room. There is poor light and ventilation, and the sanitary conditions are faulty. The dispensary is in a worse condition than the hospital.

The site of the present hospital, however, is considered an ideal one by physicians, citizens, and those connected with the hospital, and why a site at the extreme north end of Harlem, blocks away from the centre of population and the tenement-house district, should be chosen is a mystery. Dr. Blackmar, the house surgeon of Harlem Hospital, in speaking of the spot chosen for the new hospital, said that, in his opinion, the present site of the Harlem Hospital was suitable in many ways, the most important of which was the fact that it was where it was most needed and that the majority of calls came from that portion of Harlem south of One Hundred and Twentieth Street, between Madison Avenue and the river, this being the east side tenement-house district and one of the most crowded in the city.

A well-known business man of Harlem who has interested himself in the matter, said: "I have interviewed a number of public-spirited citizens in Harlem, and they are uniformly of the opinion that the new hospital should be in the most thickly settled part of the community, as the greatest good would thereby result to the greatest number. It is a well-known fact that when men, women, and children are injured or suffering, the sooner they reach the hospital the greater is their chance of recovery, for long rides in ambulances have been known to result seriously and sometimes fatally to patients. There are many sites in the vicinity of the present hospital, which locality seems to be the centre of population in the east side. I am credibly informed that property in the vicinity of East One Hundred and Twentieth Street can be purchased for a most reasonable price, and it is the duty of the Charity Commissioners and the Mayor to place the hospital where it will do the most good. The people of Harlem have been aroused concerning the location of the hospital and are interested in the same more than in any other up-town public improvement proposed under this or any other administration. The voters pay for the hospitals, and it seems but just and proper that the new hospital should be where the greatest number of voters reside. In selecting sites for hospitals, usually the people are not consulted, but it seems that the views of the medical staffs and other interested persons prevail, for hospitals usually seem to be located in fashionable neighborhoods where the people are able and willing to pay for medical attention in their homes."

SMALL DOSE KILLS HIM.

Ignatz Caska Succumbs After Taking One-thirtieth of a Grain of Strychnine.

Strychnine, which he had taken daily for many weeks in tiny doses with naught but beneficial effects, is believed to have suddenly caused the death of Ignatz Caska at the Montefiore Home for Chronic Invalids, at Broadway and One Hundred and Thirty-eighth Street, yesterday afternoon. He was forty-two years old, and had been an inmate of the institution for the last eight years. At 3 P. M. he was given one-thirtieth of a grain of strychnine, the same quantity he had been taking every day for many weeks. Soon after swallowing it he became drowsy and then sank into a complete stupor.

The entire house staff of physicians was called and worked over him without evoking any sign of consciousness. At 4:30 his heart stopped beating, but for half an hour longer they continued artificial respiration and then gave him up as dead. They notified the Coroners' office, and an investigation will be made.

B. Altman & Co.

A LIMITED number of Valuable Fur Skins will be offered for sale on Monday, January 7th, at from 30 to 50 per cent. less than former prices.

The collection comprises choice specimens of Silver Fox and Russian Sable.

ART GIFT TO JOHNS HOPKINS UNIVERSITY

Millionaire Presents a Collection of Cyprus Ornaments.

AN INTAGLIO OF ALEXANDER.

Valuable Antiquities Selected During a Residence of Thirteen Years on the Island.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Jan. 5.—Theodore Marburg, a millionaire tobacco manufacturer, Director in the American Tobacco Company, and a well known art collector in this city, has presented the Johns Hopkins University with a collection of rare and beautiful antiques from the Island of Cyprus. The collection numbers about ninety pieces, and was gathered by Col. Falkland Warren, a cousin of Mrs. Marburg, who was Government Secretary for Cyprus from 1879 to 1891. In a letter to Mr. Marburg, Col. Warren says:

"These antiquities were selected during a residence of thirteen years from large assortments brought to me from excavations made on the spot."

Some of the relics were bought from peasants who had uncovered them in the cultivation of their fields, but others were taken out of the excavations carried on by Col. Warren for the sole purpose of collecting relics.

Mr. Marburg says that in Cyprus the discoverer of antiquities is entitled to one-third of the treasure, the authorities a third, and the owners of the land a third, but the landlord is usually willing to sell his share at a reasonable figure, and it thus happens that the enthusiast usually gets two-thirds of his find.

That these antiques are genuine and worthy of the fullest consideration by students is manifested by the opinions of such men as Prof. Max O. Richter and Prof. Sayce, who are thoroughly convinced of the importance of the collection and were extremely eager to get hold of it for Cambridge University and the Berlin Museum. Col. Warren was highly flattered by the attentions of these savants, but refused to allow his valuables to pass out of his hands.

Most beautiful of all the collection is an intaglio head of Alexander the Great, cut in red sard, and supposed to be a likeness from life by the Greek intaglio cutter Pergotoles. It would be hard to imagine a more beautiful piece of workmanship. Alexander is represented as a type of the majestic beauty familiar in the remains of Greek statuary, with high forehead, well set eyes, a Greek nose, firm mouth and chin, and the hair clustering in curls.

With the intaglio is a cameo representation of Alexander as the idealized Zeus-Ammon, whom the Greeks confused with Ammon-Ra, the principal god of the divine triad of the Egyptians, and in their minds chief of the Egyptian divinities. The face is massively beautiful, but not attractive as that in the intaglio. It is cut on a white stone, and from a point above the ears spring horns which were used to illustrate the characteristics of this particular god when the Greek artists idealized him with a human face instead of the ram's head with which he was represented by his Egyptian worshippers. The cameo was cut to memorize Alexander's attainment of the overlordship of the country.

The third piece of this interesting series is an intaglio representation in brown sard of Minerva killing the Titan who dared to resist the power of Jupiter. Minerva is shown in a heroic attitude, displaying to the gaze of the Titan a shield on which is the head of Medusa, which turned to stone any being who looked upon it. The Titian is in a horror-stricken attitude, and his face depicts his agony as he realized that he was gradually becoming a monument. All of the work on this piece is of a most delicate character, and the details are brought out with a fidelity that is remarkable.

What is probably most important of the collection historically is a series of glass cameos found by peasants while plowing near the village of Nikosa. The style of headdress would indicate that the cameos were made at a very early date, and it is thought when they are studied by the Johns Hopkins experts it will be found that glass and the art of working it were known at an earlier age than has hitherto been thought.

There are also seals and cylinders inscribed with Hittite figures and characters. The knowledge possessed by the world of Hittite history and language is small, and this knowledge may be increased by the new material at the disposal of students. Several of the seals have inscriptions, notably one made of green stone, which has a figure of Harpocrites (God of Silence,) being adored by one of his worshippers.

Of special interest to the students of earlier history are two scarabaei, or beetles—one of black hematite and one of white quartz—which are inscribed with ancient Cypriot characters. They are believed to be entirely unique, as nothing like them is known in any of the European museums. Judging from their general appearance and inscriptions, it is thought that they could not be of a later date than 1200 B. C. In one group are twenty-one scarabaei and seals representing the period of Egyptian rule in Cyprus, which began with the conquest of Masis, about 500 B. C. These are valuable for showing the influence of Egyptian art and religion upon that of the natives.

Under the head "Cylinders from Cyprus" are thirteen specimens. Some of them have their written characters incorrectly formed, and it is thought that these mistakes were intentional, done to represent the ancient Cypriot characters. Some of the characters are considered attempts to represent Cypriot names phonetically. All of these seals are very rare, one especially so, and those who have examined them say that they cannot date later than 800 B. C.

The gold ornaments include a pendant about two inches long, a human figure of Graeco-Phoenician origin. A peculiarity of this ornament, which is of great value because of its rarity, is that it is supposed to be hollow and have inside a roll of paper containing an inscription. The figure is not entirely cut away, as in the case of a statue, and at the bottom of the back support is a round hole, in which can be distinctly seen an apparently removable plug.

A notable feature of the collection of ornamental jewelry is the exquisite manner in which it is made and the remarkable resemblance the rings and earrings bear to those of the present day.

An Experienced Man Wanted.

It is to be assumed as a matter of course that Senator Jones will make the circulation affidavits for Mr. Bryan's newspaper.—Detroit Free Press.

B. Altman & Co.

Cloak Department.

IMPORTANT OFFERING FOR MONDAY, JANUARY 7th:

TAILOR COATS, silk lined, $6.85, 7.75, 10.50
BOX COATS of Kersey, Cheviot or Oxford, $12.50
PALETOTS of Kersey or Oxford, . . 15.00
BLOUSE JACKETS of Velour, collar and revers, braided in gold or trimmed with satin, $19.50

Cotton Dress Goods.

25,000 yards PRINTED LACE STRIPE MULL, 30 inches wide, for Dresses and Waists,
To-morrow, Monday, at . per yard, 17c.

Upholstery and Drapery Dep't.

For to-morrow, Monday, the following attractive values are offered:

600 Pairs Irish Point Lace Curtains, 3½ yards long, $3.90, $5.50, $8.75 Pair.

350 Pairs Renaissance Lace Curtains, 3½ yards long, $6.25, $7.85, $11.50 Pair.

Silk Department.

SILKS FOR EVENING and BRIDAL GOWNS.

Crepe de Chine, Velours Panne, Louisine, Satin Faced Crepe, Brilliant Taffetas, Poplins, Duchesse, Satin Brocades, Moire Louisine, etc.

MONDAY, JANUARY 7th:

Rich Imported SATIN DUCHESSE, White and Cream, 24 and 26 inches wide,
Regular prices, $3.25 to $4.50, per yard, $2.25

Imported BLACK PEKIN STRIPED MOIRÉ, regularly $2.50 and $2.75 per yard, at . $1.38

BLACK TAFFETAS, 21 inches wide, per yard, 55c.

Lace Department.

Twenty Thousand yards of PLATTE VALENCIENNES LACES, in 3, 6 and 12 yard lengths, at the special prices, 4c, 6c, 9c, 12c, 16c, 19c, & 25c. yard.

(Rear of Rotunda.)

200 Pairs Reversible Tapestry Portieres, 3 yards long, fringed top and bottom, $3.90 Pair.

150 Tapestry Couch Covers (extra wide) fringed all round, $3.25 & $4.25 Each.

Orders placed now for Furniture Slip Covers can be executed without delay.

A variety of designs is shown in Cretonnes. Cotton Damasks, Irish Linens and Swansdowns.

Linen Department.

Included in the Sale of Household and Fancy Linens which will be continued this week, will be fine hand-embroidered Sheets, Pillow Cases and Bed Spreads; Renaissance and other fine lace and embroidered Tea Cloths, Scarfs, Doylies, etc.

Also a large quantity of Renaissance and Cluny Lace Tea Cloths, Center Pieces and Scarfs, at One-Half Former Prices.

Table Cloths, 2x2 yards,	each	$1.70 & $2.40
" 2x½ "	"	2.20 & 3.00
" 2x3 "	"	2.70 & 3.60
Breakfast Napkins to match, per doz.		2.00 & 2.40
Dinner " "	"	2.70 & 3.60
Fine Hemstitched Huck Towels, per doz.		4.50 & 6.00

Eighteenth Street, Nineteenth Street and Sixth Avenue.

MISS ANNA POTTER DEAD.

Miss Anna Potter, cousin of Bishop Henry C. Potter and daughter of the late Bishop Horatio Potter, died on Friday night at her home, 44 East Twenty-fifth Street, in the seventieth year of her age. She had been ill only a short time, having been in the best of health until recently.

Born in Schenectady, N. Y., on Oct. 30, 1831, Miss Potter came here to live forty-five years ago, when her father was made Bishop. Previous to that time she had lived for a while in Albany, where he had a church just before being placed at the head of the diocese. After the family reached here Miss Potter was the manager of the house until the Bishop's death, and hardly a week passed that she did not entertain some of her friends. Her hospitality was famous. From the time of her first arrival in the city until last year she was a prominent figure in society, her interest in the world and its affairs seeming not to be diminished with age. She was a member of Trinity Church and was interested in numerous charities, among them being the Orphans' Home.

Miss Potter's ancestry was distinguished. The first of the name came from England and settled in Rhode Island, where most of his descendants are to this day. Among them were Israel R. Potter, who fought at Bunker Hill; Samuel J. Potter, Governor of Rhode Island and United States Senator; Judge Platt Potter of this State, Gen. Joseph H. Potter, Elisha R. Potter, Congressman from Rhode Island, and Capt. Edward E. Potter of the United States Navy. Joseph Potter was Miss Potter's grandfather. His sons, Alonzo and Horatio Potter, became famous Episcopalian clergymen and Bishops. Bishop Henry C. Potter is a son of the former. Among the grandsons of Joseph Potter were Clarkson Potter, Congressman; the Rev. Dr. Eliphalet Potter, President of Union College; Howard Potter, financier, and Gen. Robert B. Potter.

The members of Miss Potter's immediate family who survive her are her brother, William B. Potter, and her sister, Mrs. Elihu Chauncey, whose husband is a Vestryman of Trinity Parish.

The funeral will be in Trinity Chapel on Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock, the interment in the family plot at Poughkeepsie.

REAPPORTIONMENT FIGHT

Maine Congressman Argues for Membership of 386.

Sharp Exchange of Remarks Between Mr. Littlefield and Mr. Hopkins—Many Other Speakers.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—The feature of the debate upon the Reapportionment bill in the House to-day was a two hours' speech by Mr Littlefield (Rep., Me.,) in favor of the Burleigh bill to increase the membership of the House to 386. He had a number of sharp exchanges with Mr. Hopkins, (Rep., Ill.,) Chairman of the Census Committee, in which he sustained his reputation as a hard hitter and vigorous debater. The other speakers to-day were Messrs. Shattuc, (Rep., Ohio,) Kluttz, (Dem., N. C.,) Fox, (Dem., Miss.,) Sutherland, (Pop., Neb.,) Linney, (Rep., N. C.,) Olmsted, (Rep., Penn.,) and Miers, (Dem., Ind.)

During the course of the day Mr. Hopkins expressed a willingness to accept an amendment to his bill which would give an additional Representative each to Florida, Colorado, and North Dakota, the three States with majority fractions unrecognized in his bill. He claims assured victory for his bill, but the advocates of the Burleigh bill insist almost as confidently that the Hopkins bill will be beaten.

Speaker Henderson was again to-day detained at his home by illness, and Mr. Dalzell, (Penn.,) by the designation of the Speaker, presided over the deliberations of the House. Without intervening business the debate upon the Reapportionment bill was resumed. Mr. Littlefield (Rep., Me.,) was the first speaker. He declared that the Hopkins bill could properly be entitled "An Act to Cripple the State of Maine in Her Representation in the House and in the Electoral College." He resented what he termed Mr. Hopkins's "assault" upon the State of Maine. That statement drew from Mr. Hopkins an indignant denial, which led to a sharp exchange between the two members.

Mr. Littlefield sarcastically called Mr. Hopkins's attention to the men who, like Lovejoy and Fuller, had gone to Illinois to give distinction to that State. "Yet," said he, "the gentleman's speech yesterday was saturated with a pettifogging assault upon Maine."

"If there is any member of this House who is an expert on pettifogging it is the gentleman from Maine," retorted Mr. Hopkins.

"The gentleman from Maine," replied Mr. Littlefield, "never defended a criminal, but he has prosecuted several, and he is prosecuting one now." [Laughter and applause.]

"That is just the sort of remark I should have expected from the gentleman, judging by his previous course upon this floor," answered Mr. Hopkins.

Mr. Littlefield then settled down to his argument. During it all he was vitriolic in his sarcasm, and most of it was thrown in the direction of Mr. Hopkins. The latter frequently was stung into reply, and the two had several other sharp tiffs. The proposition of the minority was, Mr. Littlefield said, that no State should lose representation under the new apportionment. He called attention to the paradoxes of Mr. Hopkins's system of computations. First he cited the case of Colorado, which was exploited yesterday. Then he showed that if the total number were to be 382-5 that Maine would have four Representatives, 351 lose one, 1 387-50, retain four, 331, lose one, &c. The system seemed designed, he said, to play battledore and shuttlecock with the State of Maine. "In it goes and out it goes," said he, "whether the representation goes up or down."

"The gentleman points out these alleged paradoxes under the operation of the figures of the Director of the Census," interposed Mr. Hopkins, "yet the Burleigh bill is predicated upon the process."

After a sharper exchange than usual with Mr. Hopkins, the Chair was obliged to call the gentlemen to order and to call attention to the rule which provides that the gentleman on the floor cannot be interrupted without his consent, and also to the rule that members cannot address each other in the second person.

"The gentleman has already interrupted me about twenty-five times in violation of the rule," observed Mr. Littlefield as he was about to resume.

"And the gentleman from Maine has violated the rule with reference to the second person about fifty times," exclaimed Mr. Hopkins.

"The gentleman is becoming exceedingly technical and sensitive," retorted Mr. Littlefield. "I will refer to him later in the third person, and later still I anticipate that he will have shrunk sufficiently to permit me to refer to him in the fourth or fifth person, and perhaps in the end I can eliminate him altogether." [Laughter and applause.]

Proceeding, Mr. Littlefield argued that the Constitution in providing for decennial apportionment contemplated an increase of the membership until the House should become unwieldy. The increase was necessary to keep pace with the growth of population. Sixty years ago, he said, when the membership was only 250, the same arguments were made against an increase which were heard now.

Mr. Shattuck, (Rep., Ohio,) followed Mr. Littlefield. He insisted that in making the reapportionment the representation should be reduced in all States where the right to vote is abridged. He claimed ten States abridged the suffrage to an average of 20 per cent. They were: California, 7.7 per cent.; Connecticut, 5.3; Delaware, 14.3; Louisiana, 45.8; Maine, 5.5; Massachusetts, 6.2; Mississippi, 40; North Carolina, 35.7; South Carolina, 45, and Wyoming, 3.4.

Mr. Kluttz, (Dem., N. C.,) a member of the Census Committee, argued in favor of the Hopkins bill. The real question at issue, he contended, was whether the membership of the House should be increased. He favored 357 because he thought the House was already large enough, and because on that basis there would be no partisan advantage to either party, either in the House or in the Electoral College.

Mr. Fox, (Miss.,) replied to the attacks upon the Southern States, especially defending the action of his State in adopting her new Constitution.

Mr. Linney (Rep., N. C.,) argued that, under their oaths to support the Constitution, members in voting upon the reapportionment question must take cognizance of the abridgement of the suffrage in the Southern States. He gave an entertaining description of Democratic election methods in North Carolina, scoring the Democrats mercilessly for their action. He was especially severe in his condemnation of their course in calling the Legislature together last Summer to pass a law to prevent the issue of writs of mandamus.

Mr. Sims (Dem., Tenn.,) asked if the real cause of the alleged crime recited by Mr. Linney was not to prevent negro domination. Mr. Linney replied that the fear of negro domination was pure "rot"; that all pretext of such fear could be destroyed by requiring all officers of the State and county to give bond.

"Did the Republicans of North Carolina ever elect a negro to the Supreme bench of the State?" asked Mr. Gaines, (Dem., Tenn.)

"They never did, and they never will," replied Mr. Linney, "but the Democrats, to serve their purpose would appoint a negro or a monkey." [Laughter and applause.]

After some further remarks by Messrs. Olmsted (Rep., Penn.,) and Miers (Dem., Ind.,) the House at 5:30 P. M. adjourned.

THE VALLEY FORGE BILL.

Delegations Appear Before House and Senate Committees to Urge Its Passage.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—Mayor Ashbridge of Philadelphia, Senator Penrose of Pennsylvania, and a large delegation of members of the Valley Forge National Park Association, comprising seventeen patriotic societies and the Daughters of the Revolution, appeared before the House Committee on Military Affairs to-day to advocate the project of having the Government acquire the historic camp of Valley Forge, occupied by Gen. Washington and the Continental Army at the crisis of the Revolutionary War.

A small part of the ground has been acquired by the State of Pennsylvania. The headquarters of Washington have been rescued and are being cared for by a patriotic body formed at the centennial of Valley Forge, but the really historic part of the field, on which were bivouacked the officers and soldiers, is now in the hands of private owners. The bill before Congress proposes the acquisition of the entire field, its restoration to the condition in which it was during the occupancy by the Continental Army, and its use as a military park, under the control of the War Department.

The committee manifested much interest in the matter, and will take up the bill for final action later.

A delegation also appeared to-day before the Senate Committee on Military Affairs in support of the bill. Miss Adeline W. Stirling of New York, Mrs. Nathaniel S. Keay of Pennsylvania, and Mrs. James L. Chapman of Massachusetts made addresses.

At 4 o'clock members of the Valley Forge Association called at the White House and explained to the President the plans of the association, and extended to him an invitation to attend the Valley Forge celebration to be held on the ground on June 16. The President was unable to give the committee a positive answer, but it is likely that he will attend if business will permit.

The delegation also called on Secretary Root at the War Department to ask his assistance in securing favorable legislation. The Secretary promised to do all he could in support of the movement.

WORK ON THE MISSOURI RIVER.

River and Harbor Bill Attacks Expenditures of $10,903,560—Not Justifiable, It Says.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—The text of the report on the River and Harbor bill, which appeared to-day, makes a severe arraignment of the large expenditures, aggregating $10,903,560, on the Missouri River, with an array of figures showing that the traffic is insignificant compared with that of other waterways which have received far less from the Government. As a result the repeal of the act creating the Missouri River Commission is recommended. The report says:

The quantity of traffic upon the river is very small. The freight carried below Sioux City in 1899 amounted to only 253,114 tons, and above Sioux City, in the 1,600 miles to Fort Benton, 22,041 tons. The quantity of freight carried will appear to be even smaller when it is taken into account that the major share of the tonnage on the Lower Missouri, or 216,417 tons, is made up of sand and building materials carried an average distance of less than two miles, leaving a balance of 46,697 tons of other kinds of freight carried. It is impossible to believe that for this small amount of tonnage an elaborate and expensive establishment is required, or the appropriation of large amounts.

The report shows that Raccoon Creek, in New Jersey, and Bayou Teche, in Louisiana, have approximately as much tonnage as the Missouri River, although the creek has received $3,000 from the Government and the bayou $81,000, as against $10,903,560 to the Missouri River. The report adds:

Another point which has become manifest to the committee is the diversion of the larger share of the amounts appropriated for this stream to the protection of private property. The amounts so applied have come largely exceed those used for dredging or for improvements to navigation. It is impossible for the committee to correctly judge whether these appropriations for the protection of banks and private property are judiciously expended. While not assuming to decide whether such expenditures are proper subjects for appropriation by the Federal Government, the members of the committee are clearly of the opinion that such expenditures do not properly belong to a committee whose province is to recommend appropriations for the improvement of rivers and harbors.

CONGRESSIONAL NOTES.

J. A. Kasson, who represented the United States Government in negotiating the reciprocity treaties, appeared before the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations yesterday and explained the provisions of the treaties covering the Islands of St. Croix and Santo Domingo. The committee voted to report favorably both these treaties.

A bill extending the mining laws to Saline lands was passed. It declares all unoccupied public lands containing salt springs or deposits to be subject to location and purchase under the mining laws.

On motion of Senator Platt of Connecticut the Senate passed a bill to ratify and confirm an agreement with the Muscogee or Creek tribe of Indians. A similar measure to ratify an agreement with the Cherokee Indians was passed.

A bill for the relief of the Marion Trust Company of Indiana, administrator of the estate of Samuel Milliken, the claim involving pay for the carrying of mail in 1861, was passed.

Among the minor bills passed by the Senate yesterday were the following: To regulate the production and sale of milk in the District of Columbia, providing a means of acquiring title to two groves of Sequoia Gigantea in California with a view to making National parks thereof, to appropriate $5,000 to inclose and beautify the monument on the Moores Creek battlefield, North Carolina.

THE VENEZUELAN CONFLICT.

Opposing Interests in the Asphalt War Present Arguments at State Department.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—Solicitor Penfield of the State Department to-day heard Gen. Francis Greene and Lawyer Bean of New York in reference to the conflicting asphalt concessions in Venezuela. These gentlemen represent the New York and Bermudez Company, which has been in possession of the asphalt concessions for the past twelve years, and whose property is now claimed by the La Felicidad concessionaries under later title from the Venezuelan Government.

The argument lasted about an hour and a half. In substance it was devoted to showing that the action of the Venezuelan Government in seeking to dispossess the New York company was illegal and arbitrary and had been declared such by the Supreme Court of Venezuela. It was now sought to accomplish by indirect means what that court had forbidden to be done directly—namely, to pass title to the asphalt concessions without compensation.

Gen. Greene addressed himself at some length to meeting an allegation that had been set up by the other side, to the effect that the original title of his company was defective. He produced a map made in 1885, showing that the concession was located by a meandering line, following a foot path to the nearest town. He claimed that the Venezuelan Government had arbitrarily straightened this line in its map of definite location, thus throwing the New York company's concession beyond the asphalt lakes, which are the bone of contention.

The solicitor of the department also has heard arguments in behalf of La Felicidad by Messrs. Warner, Quinlan, and Sullivan, strongly defending the action of the Venezuelan Government in the premises. He will now take the case under consideration with a view to submitting a report and recommendation on the subject to Secretary Hay.

Minister Loomis, at Caracas, is expected to see to it that the present occupants of the concession are not forcibly dispossessed by the Venezuelan Government in advance of a judicial determination of the merits of the case.

ANTI-VACCINATION LEAGUE.

One Member Advises Shooting Vaccinators—Smallpox Not Infectious, Dr. Leverson Says.

Nine men, one boy, and seven reporters were present last night at the meeting of the Anti-Compulsory Vaccination League of Brooklyn in the Brooklyn Public Library, in Montague Street. The chief business of the meeting was on this proposition: "To consider what steps can be taken to arrest the groundless smallpox scare raised by the Board of Health and to arrest and punish the lawless and tyrannical conduct of said board in breaking into the houses of citizens and forcibly injecting into their blood the putrefying matter of a sore." "Why," said Dr. W. R. Leverson, who presided, "vaccination is nothing more or less than murder."

One of the nine advocated the use of the pistol against the doctors who attempt compulsory vaccination.

"Smallpox properly treated," Dr. Leverson declared, "never becomes infectious. Every case except in certain instances should be cured in from two to six days. I tried to get permission to go to the smallpox hospital and teach the doctors how to cure the disease, but the privilege was denied to me.

Dr. Leverson suggested a great public meeting in Manhattan. He advocated, too, that the negroes who have been vaccinated against their will should be sought out and urged to bring suit for damages against the city.

The Secretary said that the action of the Board of Health in advocating wholesale vaccination should be brought to the attention of Controller Coler on the ground of a waste of public funds. This was decided to be not altogether promising of results. A committee was, however, appointed to make agitation for a public movement and to hunt out the negroes who were vaccinated and urge them to sue for damages.

During the evening the subject of election of officers, including Vice Presidents for each borough, came up, but action was postponed. The name of the organization was changed to the New York Anti-Compulsory Vaccination League.

EDUCATING THE FILIPINO

Schools in the Archipelago Improved Under American Rule.

English the Basis of All Instruction—Many Soldiers Among the Teachers.

MANILA, Dec. 1.—The public schools in the Philippine archipelago are now undergoing transition from their former extremely lax methods to a system of vigorous, centralized management, patterned after the school systems in the United States.

Military and civil officials alike agree that in education lies the ultimate solution of the question of the citizenship of the natives. The Philippine Commission has under consideration a bill establishing a system of public education and appropriating $1,650,000 gold for the maintenance of public schools in 1901.

Before being presented to the Commissioners the bill was submitted to Gen. MacArthur and was indorsed by the Military Governor without reservation. Gens. Otis and MacArthur have, in fact, both strongly favored and advanced a progressive educational policy; and both, through their district commanders, have reopened and organized schools, furnished textbooks and teachers, (many of the latter being soldiers,) and appropriated money for expenses in localities where funds could not be raised by local subscription or taxation.

The bill empowers Dr. F. W. Atkinson, the General Superintendent, to appoint, subject to the Military Governor's approval, superintendents in each of the eighteen military districts at salaries of $2,000 to $2,500. Local advisory school boards are to be organized in the municipalities as civil government becomes established. English is decreed to be the basis of all instruction, and authority is given to secure 300 teachers from the United States at salaries of $15 to $100 monthly, traveling expenses to Manila to be paid by the Government.

One section of the bill reads as follows: "No religious denomination shall have the right to teach its particular faith in schools partly or wholly supported by public funds."

Financial aid by the Government is to be provided in localities where there is satisfactory evidence that poverty prevents the establishment of schools. Provision is made for training natives as teachers in English, and $500,000 is authorized to be expended, under direction of the military government, for school buildings, and a like sum for furniture. Appropriations are made for conducting three normal schools.

Under the Spaniards there was but one teacher to 4,200 inhabitants, no school houses to speak of outside of the dwellings of teachers and no good text books. The books in use contained partly religious instructions, the recitations were mechanical, and the compensation of the teachers was inadequate.

While many of the provincial schools have been taught by ecclesiastics, the public schools in Manila have practically all been in charge of natives. There are now thirty-six schools in Manila, none of which was founded by Americans, though all are supported through the Provost Marshal's Department, and eight more are being established. Several American female teachers began terms of service last month.

Following the suspension of the schools during the investment of the city in 1898, they were reopened under charge of Father W. D. McKinnon, chaplain of the First California Volunteers. Since then the salaries of the teachers, including arrears, have been paid by the military government. Native teachers, meanwhile, have been taking instruction in English, so as to be able to teach it. The military government has also supported three higher schools, controlled by religious orders, namely: A teachers' normal school, the Athenaeum, (Jesuit,) and the Girls' Municipal School. The last named has the only really creditable school building in Manila.

In June, 1898, the Rev. George P. Anderson of the Oregon Volunteers was appointed by the Provost Marshal General Superintendent of the Manila schools. The enrollment of pupils soon doubled, and has now reached nearly 4,000, a very small number, however, in a population estimated at 300,000. Compulsory attendance has been required, but no systematic means of enforcing it have been inaugurated, and the actual attendance of pupils equals only 70 per cent. of the enrollment.

SAN JOSE MEDICAL COLLEGE.

Philippine Court to Pass on Ownership Question—Appeal to United States Supreme Court Possible.

MANILA, Jan. 5.—The decision of the Philippine Commission in regard to the San José Medical College case (the point being whether that institution is owned and controlled by the United States Government or by the Church) unanimously refers the settlement of the questions involved to the courts, and provides Trustees, who, with the assistance of the Attorney General of the Philippines, will inaugurate and prosecute the litigation. The sum of $5,000 is appropriated for the expenses of the suit.

Many listened to the reading of Judge Taft's opinion in English and Spanish.

A bill has been passed carrying out the terms of the decision. It appoints five physicians as Trustees, including Dr. Tavera, who is the complainant throughout, and Col. Greenleaf, the Chief Surgeon in the Philippines. The Trustees are required to begin a suit within a month in the Supreme Court of the Philippines, to determine whether the ownership of the college is in the Church or the Government. The Dominican rector of St. Thomas University and Archbishop Chapelle are required to defend the suit and establish the claim of ownership upon the part of the Church. The act provides that the decision of the Philippine Court is not to be so final as to make it impossible for Congress to provide an appeal to the United States Supreme Court.

The opinion says:

"A case involving the construction of the Treaty of Paris and the effect upon public trusts of the transfer of sovereignty from a kingdom in which Church and State are united and inseparable to one in which Church and State are entirely separated is of such import that it ought to be submitted to the highest tribunal."

The commission recommends that Gen. MacArthur rescind Gen. Otis's order suspending the conduct of the Medical College under the Rector of St. Thomas University.

TWO AMERICANS CAPTURED.

MANILA, Jan. 5.—Private George H. Ray of the Engineer Corps, his assistant, Private Lyons of Company K, Fifth Infantry, five scouts, and two native policemen have been captured, while on their way to Batac, by insurgents.

On the receipts of the news, an American column was dispatched against the Filipinos, but failed to overtake the party.

Capt. H. H. Blunt Dismissed.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—Capt. H. H. Blunt of Louisiana, Forty-ninth Volunteer Infantry, was convicted by court-martial at Tuguegaras, Cayagan, Philippine Islands, of conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentleman, and sentenced to dismissal from the service. It was alleged that while acting as officer of the day he assaulted a private soldier and drew his revolver on another private, and also that he wrongfully retained money that did not belong to him. The President has approved the sentence of dismissal, to take effect from Jan. 2.

The Kilpatrick Reaches Manila.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—Gen. MacArthur has informed the War Department of the arrival of the transport Kilpatrick at Manila. The Kilpatrick sailed from New York Nov. 13 last with 22 officers and 930 recruits, under the command of Col. McCrea, Sixth Artillery.

Manila Judge Permanently Suspended.

MANILA, Jan. 5.—The Philippine Commission has made permanent the suspension by Gen. MacArthur of Judge Majarries of the Court of First Instance, for improper administration of his duties.

Fourth-Class Postmasters.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—The following fourth-class Postmasters were appointed to-day:

Massachusetts—Charlton, Frank Knight.
New York—Locust Valley, Cornelia W. Wood; Methol, Melvin Brasie; Mumford, J. W. Brite; Newcastle, William D. Howard; Pinkney, A. A. Edgerton; Sawmill, William A. Annas.

The following advertisement appeared in the New York papers in November and December:

C. C. SHAYNE.

GENUINE HUDSON BAY SABLE MUFFS,
Natural color, not blended or darkened in any way,
$35, $50, $75, $100, $150 to $200.
BOAS AND NECK PIECES, EXTRA LARGE MUFFS AND BOAS,
All at Corresponding Prices.

IMPERIAL RUSSIAN SABLE MUFFS, $150 to $1,250.
BOAS, $150 TO $500.
EXTRA LONG BOAS, $500 TO $1,500.
Collars, Capes, Victorines and Mantles at Corresponding Prices.

The above now offered at a reduction of 20%.

ALASKA SEALSKIN COATS. (London dyed.)
$50 LESS THAN FORMER PRICES.
ALASKA SEALSKIN JACKETS $25 LESS.
Trimmed Russian or Hudson Bay Sable Mink, Chinchilla or Fox, prices according to quality.

Note: I only sell the genuine Alaska Sealskin, which I can recommend.

PERSIAN LAMB. (Leipzig dyed. I sell no other.)
Jackets and Coats, broad tail and Baby Lamb jackets and coats.
10% REDUCTION.
Trimmed with various furs, prices according to quality.

SPECIAL: PERSIAN LAMB MUFFS, $10, $15 AND $20.
Sleigh Robes, large assortment, all sizes.
MEN'S OVERCOATS—FUR LINED—TRIMMED WITH GENUINE FURS—ALL MARKED AT PRICES TO SELL RAPIDLY.

C. C. SHAYNE,

Manufacturing Fur Merchant, 42d St., bet. Broadway and 6th Ave.

DEBATE ON THE ARMY BILL.

Senate Accomplishes Little in Three Hours' Discussion — Proctor Amendment Adopted.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—While the Senate was in session for more than three hours to-day little in the way of important legislation was accomplished. The committee amendments to the Army Reorganization bill, to which no objection had been raised, were agreed to, but none of the contested amendments was considered. Dilatory tactics were employed by Mr. Pettigrew of South Dakota to prevent the consideration of matters that would advance the business of the Senate.

Mr. Proctor, (Rep., Vt.,) for the Military Committee, offered as an amendment to Section 22 the provision introduced by himself yesterday concerning vacancies in the position of Chief of Staff. The amendment was adopted.

When the section of the bill was reached providing for the appointment of volunteer officers to be officers in the regular army an extended discussion ensued.

Mr. Money, (Dem., Miss.,) declared there were many officers in the volunteer army who were as clearly entitled, as gentlemen and officers, to commissions in the regular army as the cadets who, by hazing and by their testimony before investigating committees, "are to-day disgracing the whole country at West Point."

The committee amendment providing that volunteer officers might be appointed to Second Lieutenancies was disagreed to, thus restoring the House provision that volunteer officers might be appointed to the grade of First Lieutenant.

Commenting upon this part of the bill, Mr. Daniel (Dem., Va.,) declared that he wholly disagreed with the committee which had drawn the bill. As to the proposition for the appointment of volunteer officers to the regular army, Mr. Daniel said:

"It looks like a skillful piece of engineering by a regular army officer to keep out of the army many of the brightest and best military spirits of the country. This is the most proscriptive bill against the volunteers of this country that has ever been presented."

Mr. Daniel declared sarcastically that the bill constituted a fine welcome to the volunteers returning from the Philippines, providing as it did that no volunteer officer could look forward to any better grade than that of First Lieutenant in the regular army. "This is an exclusive bill," he declared, "provided for the purpose of being exclusive. I am not in favor of turning over the military affairs of the country to the regular army."

Mr. Hawley (Rep., Conn.,) offered from the Committee on Military Affairs an amendment providing that the President of the United States shall have authority to fix the component parts of the army ration. It was adopted. This completed the bill so far as the committee amendments were concerned, all other committee amendments except those to which objection had been offered having been agreed to.

Before the meeting of the Senate, the Committee on Military Affairs agreed to report favorably the amendment to the Army Reorganization bill suggested yesterday by Senator Proctor regarding staff positions, which was accepted. The committee decided at the same time to make adverse reports upon all other amendments, but include those suggested by Senators Hoar, Bacon, Bate, and Money, all of them making radical changes in the character of the bill.

The following proposed amendments to the Army bill were introduced to-day in the Senate.

Mr. SPOONER—Making eligible to appointment as Paymaster any volunteer officer who was appointed an Additional Paymaster under the existing law, and is now in the service.

Mr. WARREN—Making volunteer officers under thirty years who served in the war with Spain, and who are now serving in the regular army, eligible to appointment in the Signal Corps.

Mr. ELKINS—Increasing the number of officers in the Pay Department.

Mr. MALLORY—Striking out Section 26, concerning staff promotions.

Mr. MORGAN—Declaring it unlawful to use any part of the army as a posse comitatus, except in compliance with National law and the Federal Constitution.

MR. ROOT NOT A PROPHET.

Says He Did Not Predict that the Philippine War Would End with Mr. McKinley's Re-election.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—Secretary Root to-day denied a statement which is being freely circulated to the effect that he predicted that the Philippine war would come to an end with President McKinley's re-election. This statement was to-day made the text of an editorial article in a Washington newspaper, coupled with criticisms of the Secretary on his failure as a prophet.

Mr. Root said he did not fix any date for the end of the rebellion, and that he never prophecies. The nearest he had ever come to doing so was in his last annual report to the President, when he summed up the military requirements in the Philippines as demanding 60,000 men for the immediate future, though this number might be progressively decreased by the restoration of order, the creation of a native police, and the use of native troops in place of the Americans.

"We should have permanently an army of about 60,000 American troops," Mr. Root said, "and during present conditions in Cuba and the Philippines about the present number, 100,000, would be required."

The prediction ascribed to Mr. Root is probably that made by the Philippine Commission, which promised that the war would end within sixty days after Mr. McKinley's election. Although the report in which this promise was contained was made to the War Department, that department has not at any time within the past year ventured a prediction of its own. Senator Sewell of New Jersey reminded the Senate on Thursday that a year ago he had predicted that it would take 50,000 or 60,000 men several years to subdue the Filipinos. He then repeated the prediction, declaring:

"Nobody believed it at the time, but it has turned out to be correct, and it will continue to be so."

Senator Sewell's view is meeting with much more general acceptance than was the case when he first made his prediction, and there is considerable reason to believe that it is now the Administration's view.

FORSYTHE'S

GREAT SALE OF WAISTS

CONTINUES.
WILL OPEN on MONDAY
1000 White Madras Waists
3000 Colored Madras Waists
at $2.00.
Regular price $3.50 and $4.00.
Sizes 32 to 44.
MADE BY JOHN FORSYTHE,
THE WAIST HOUSE.
865 BROADWAY,
Between 17th and 18th Sts.

TRANSPORT McCLELLAN SAILS.

Army Officers Going for Service in Cuba and Porto Rico.

Many officers of the United States Army sailed on the transport McClellan for Cuba and Porto Rico yesterday. Among them were Lieut. E. L. D. Breckenridge and wife of the Tenth Infantry, who is detailed to Santiago. Lieut. Breckenridge was shot by Filipinos while bending over Gen. Lawton after he was shot.

Lieut. William R. Hay went to San Juan to join the Porto Rican native regiment of United States Volunteers, who are officered by graduates of West Point. Capt. W. P. Butler is also assigned to a company of Porto Rican natives. Major E. E. Dravo goes to San Juan as Commissary.

The other officers were: Capt. Ira McNutt and wife of the Ordnance Department, for San Juan; Lieut. Clarence M. Jones of the Tenth Infantry, at Santiago, and Capt. W. A. Phillips of the same regiment.

Mrs. John F. Weston and her three daughters, the family of the new Commissary General, were also passengers on board the McClellan.

MORANS TO BUILD A WARSHIP.

Bath Works to Get One Vessel and Newport News Another.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—The Secretary of the Navy has arrived at the conclusion that the law relative to the building of the new ships requires the department to allot one of the vessels to the Pacific Coast. Therefore he has announced that he will award the contract for one sheathed battleship to Moran Brothers of Seattle, one to the Bath Works of Maine, and one to the Newport News Shipbuilding Company.

These awards will be made conditional upon the bidders named bringing their proposals within the limit of cost of $3,600,000 fixed by Congress and restoring many important items cut out of the specifications of the department by them. If the bidders decline to accept the department's conditions, the department will amend the specifications and readvertise.

May Command at Port Royal.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—Capt. H. L. Johnson, who will become a Rear Admiral on the 29th inst. by the retirement of Admiral Kautz, is said to be slated for the command of the naval station at Port Royal, S. C., which will shortly be vacated by the transfer of Rear Admiral G. W. Sumner, its present commandant, to the command of the Philadelphia Navy Yard.

Two New Guns Leave Bethlehem Works

BETHLEHEM, Penn., Jan. 5.—The two newly finished twelve-inch guns for the Government, to be stationed at Fort Warden and Point Wilson, respectively, were shipped to their destinations to-night by the Bethlehem Steel Company. A ballistic plate of the side armor of the monitor Florida was also sent to the Indian Head Proving Grounds. Each gun weighed 12,000 pounds, and the plate eleven tons. The plate represents 300 tons of armor.

Movements of Government Vessels.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—The collier Caesar has left Gibraltar en route for Hampton Roads.

The training ship Topeka has left Gibraltar for Funchal.

The War Department is informed that the transport Sumner has sailed from Nagasaki for Che-Foo with money and supplies for the troops in China.

STOLE HIS EMPLOYERS' DRUGS.

Conrad Ammon of 333 East Fifteenth Street, a clerk in the wholesale department of the drug house of Elmer & Amend, at Eighteenth Street and Third Avenue, was held in $1,000 bail in the Yorkville Police Court yesterday charged with theft. He pleaded guilty to the technical charge of stealing $4 worth of drugs from his employers, but he admits that his peculations have been of long continuance, and it is said that he has taken at least $1,000 worth of goods from the store.

A prominent drug house in Albany received a letter some time ago from one signing himself Carl Brown, 330 East Fifteenth Street, New York, in which the writer stated that he was a retired druggist who had lent money to another party in the same line of business. The latter had failed. In lieu of money the debtor had turned over to the writer of the letter a part of his stock, which, in order to realize on he was willing to sell very cheaply. The writer quoted various articles at fully 60 per cent. less than the market prices.

The Albany house became suspicious and notified the New York police. Through this letter the detectives got track of Ammon, and began to watch him. When they arrested him on Friday night he had $6 worth of drugs on his person, and from $600 to $700 worth was found in a trunk in his room.

THE BIG STORE A CITY IN ITSELF
SIEGEL COOPER & Co.
SIXTH AVE. MEET ME AT THE FOUNTAIN 18th & 19th STS.

The Annual January Sale of Canned Goods begins in our great Pure Food Mart to-morrow (Monday), January 7th, and will continue just so long as the 100,000 cases of best Canned Goods produced in America will withstand the onslaught of the thousands of economical housewives that will flock to this sale.

Almost every packer of renown from Florida to California is represented—and, what is more, proud to be represented—for his goods are here in competition with the whole world—here because by test they proved superior to all others.

For many months past preparations for this great Annual Sale kept our buying staff on the qui vive, and every uncommonly choice bargain secured went to the storerooms to be reserved for this sale.

But why go into exhaustive details? You bought canned goods here last January, so you know just what the sale stands for. To those who have not previously reaped some of its bargain plums we say in all sincerity that most of the offerings are made at prices that are lower than equal goods could to-day be bought in thousand case lots at wholesale.

The sale not only includes many of the best known brands on the market, but we have also made especially low prices on a number of our "Hazel" brand goods, which, as you know, are "The Acme of Perfection" in food production.

The sale includes PEACHES, PLUMS, PEARS, CHERRIES, APRICOTS, PINEAPPLES, TOMATOES, CORN, PEAS, BAKED BEANS, SUCCOTASH, STRING BEANS, etc., samples of which will be opened for your inspection, and they will be sold and delivered to your house, where you may examine them at your own pleasure, and if at any time within ten days you are not fully satisfied with them, for any reason whatever, we will most cheerfully take them back and refund your money. Sale starts to-morrow morning.

Canned Vegetables.

TOMATOES: 6,000 cases "Newport Farm" cold packed Jersey Tomatoes, case of 2 doz. cans, $1.40; can, 6
8,000 cases Bilderback's well known "Manteo" Tomatoes, solid packed and red ripe, case of 2 doz. cans, $1.85; can, 8
CORN: 6,000 cases New York State Cream Sugar corn (crop of 1900), case of 2 doz. cans, $1.40; can, 6
SUCCOTASH: 4,500 cases "St. Nicholas" or "Navy" brands N. Y. State Succotash (pack of 1900), tender and sweet, case of 2 doz. cans, $1.80; can, 8
STRING BEANS: 5,500 cases Boyle's or Moore & Brady's String Beans (pack of 1900), case of 2 doz. cans, $1.20; can, 5
5,000 cases "Milford," Farren's or "Prize Winner" Stringless Beans (this year's pack), very sweet and tender, case, 8
3,500 cases Boyle's "Victory" brand White Wax Beans, choice and tender, case of 2 doz., $1.55; doz., 80c.; can, 7
BAKED BEANS: Boston Baked Beans (plain or in tomato sauce), case of 2 doz. cans, $1.75; doz., 90c.; can, 8
TOMATOES: 7,000 cases "Hazel" or "Quinton Beauty," solid cold packed selected red ripe Jersey Tomatoes, packed in large sanitary cans, under the best improved hygienic methods, case of 2 doz. cans, $2.25; doz., $1.15; can, 10
5,000 cases Bilderback's gallon Tomatoes, Manteo" brand, doz. cans, $2.45; gallon can, 21
CORN: 5,000 cases "Hazel," "Lilac," "Moonbeam" or "Orange Blossom" fancy Maine Sugar Corn, the cream of the Maine packing, usually sold at twice the price, case of 2 doz. cans, $2.25; doz., $1.15; can, 10
5,000 cases "Holiday Fritter" or "Maine Grated" corn (crop of 1900), only the nutritious part, excellent for gems, fritters, griddle cakes, soups, etc., case of 2 doz. cans, $2.45; doz., $1.25; can, 11
SUCCOTASH: 5,000 cases "Hazel" and "Holiday" brands fancy Maine Succotash (packing of 1900), made from selected baby corn and Tiny Tim lima beans, a most delicious dish, case of 2 doz. cans, $2.40; doz., $1.25; can, 11
PEAS: 6,500 cases "Milford" brand Early June or "Hazel" Marrowfat Peas, exquisite flaver, even in size, tender and very sweet (new goods), can, 10
2,500 cases "Thistle" brand melting sugar Peas (crop of 1900), case of 2 doz. cans, $2.75; doz., $1.40; can, 12
2,000 cases Curtis's "Emerald" Sifted Peas, sweet and tender, case of 2 doz. cans, $2.45; doz., $1.25; can, 11
ASPARAGUS TIPS: 5,500 cases Cooper's "Club" Asparagus Tips, case of 4 doz. cans, $4.50; doz., $1.15; can, 10
ASPARAGUS: 3,000 cases "High Grade" brand fancy white California Asparagus (pack of 1900), choice, tender stalks, case of 2 doz. cans, $5.85; doz., $2.95; can, 25
STRING BEANS: 2,000 cases "Hazel" brand French Stringless Beans (this year's goods), very small, tender and luscious, case of 2 doz. cans, $3.85; doz., $2.00; can, 17
WHITE WAX BEANS: 2,000 cases "Milford" or "Sunrise" fancy White Wax Beans, case of 2 doz. cans, $2.25; doz., $1.15; can, 10
LIMA BEANS: 3,000 cases James F. Farren's or Booth's "Oval" brand choice tender Lima Beans, new goods, case of 2 doz. cans, $2.00; doz., $1.05; can, 9
5,000 cases "Hazel" brand fancy Tiny Tim Lima Beans, very small, tender and deliciously sweet (crop of 1900), case of 2 doz. cans, $2.65; doz., $1.35; can, 12
KIDNEY BEANS: 4,000 cases "Hazel" or "Thistle" brand choice Red Kidney Beans (crop of 1900), case of 2 doz. cans, $1.75; doz., 90c.; can, 8
SPINACH: 3,500 cases "Lewis Bros." New England Spinach, large 3-lb. can, case of 2 doz. cans, $2.25; doz., $1.15; can, 10
SAUERKRAUT: 2,000 cases Boyle's Westphalia Sauerkraut, case of 2 doz., $2.00; doz., $1.05; can, 9
OKRA: 4,000 cases "Canada Victor" Okra (new crop), case of 2 doz. cans, $2.00; doz., $1.05; can, 9
2,500 cases "Dunbar's Fresh Dwarf" Okra (crop of 1900), case of 2 doz. cans, $2.75; doz., $1.40; can, 12
SQUASH: 2,000 cases "Eagle" Squash, case of 2 doz. cans, $1.75; doz., 90c.; can, 8
IMPORTED PEAS: 2,000 cases French Peas, Petit Pois, Moyens (new stock), case of 100 tins, $11.00; doz., $1.40; can, 12
IMPORTED PEAS: 2,000 cases French Peas, Petit Pois, Fins (new stock), case of 100 tins, $14.00; doz., $1.85; can, 15
IMPORTED MUSHROOMS: 1,000 cases Champignons, French Mushrooms, new pack, case of 100 tins, $16.50; doz., $2.00; can, 18

Groceries.

Also the following special attractions at extremely low prices for this occasion:
SUGAR: 9 lbs. H. & E. Refined Granulated Sugar, 50
FLOUR: Siegel-Cooper & Co.'s best XXXX Minnesota Patent Flour, made from hard Minnesota Spring Wheat, bbl., 4.45
BUTTER: Fancy Elgin Creamery Butter

SHIFTLESSNESS IN THE GOVERNMENT SERVICE

Auditor Morris Killed Because He Was a Business Man.

Public Sympathy in the Capital for the Murderer—Other Chiefs of Bureaus Have Been Threatened.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—The death of Samuel McDonald, the murderer of Auditor Frank H. Morris, puts an end to all prospect of a trial which might have been of considerable profit to the country in exposing the peculiar view of the public service which prevails here. The public trial of McDonald could hardly have failed to give the country a fair idea of the state of public sentiment in this town—a public sentiment which certainly has no counterpart in this country or the world.

McDonald, a Government employe, was in the habit of drinking to excess, and this led to the loss of a considerable sum of money for which he was responsible. He was not discharged, as would have been the case if his employer had been a private citizen instead of the Government; but he was reduced to a lower position in a less important branch of the service, and his pay was cut down from 2,000 to $1,400 a year. This appeared to him to be rank injustice, and after brooding over his wrongs for a long time he entered the office of the official whom he held responsible and killed him.

It immediately appeared that public sentiment was rather with McDonald than with his victim. His act was reprehended, but in the same way in which certain persons condemn lynching—that is, by saying that it was an unfortunate thing, and the act should be condemned, but that there was no doubt McDonald had provocation. Few words of sympathy were heard for Morris; most of these expressions were for the man he had "injured." When the first news of the shooting became known in the War Department, and before the murderer's name was known, Gen. Ainsworth, chief of the Record and Pension Office, exclaimed:

"Killed by a discharged employe, of course! Morris made his men work, and it was an unpardonable sin. Any officer who attempts to have the Government as well served as an individual employer would be will earn the hostility of Washington."

That this was a correct statement of the case was proved by the comments that were heard about the Government buildings within a few minutes of the crime. Even the employes in the building where Morris lay, men who were almost witnesses of the crime, were not so shocked that they felt like criticising the murderer. A newspaper man, dashing from the scene of the crime into the War Department proper, was greeted by another newspaper man with:

"Is Morris dead? What is the sentiment over there? No tears for Morris, of course."

McDonald died on Saturday, and although the newspapers do not commend his act, one of them reflects public sentiment by saying that his friends feel that his death was for the best since it spared him a public trial. Another dilates on the praises of McDonald's character which have been heard, and how his "good deeds" will be recited at his funeral. There has been no criticism of McDonald except of a formal kind, but many criticisms of Morris.

All this grows out of the sentiment, firmly rooted in Washington, that employment is a right, and that good service is one of the minor qualifications for it; in other words, that public office is a private snap. The evil effect of this doctrine has spread itself over the whole city, and has injured not only the Government employes, but private citizens. It has promoted a general lack of enterprise and efficiency in private business, and has made the whole attitude of unofficial Washington one of dependence and shiftlessness.

The whole cause of Morris's unpopularity was that he tried to apply ordinary business methods to the Government office of which he was the head. He got rid of employes who did not perform their duties satisfactorily, and he required those who remained to work hard and to keep on working during all the business hours. This was resented as an interference with vested rights, and it is so resented in every office where the chief is a man of Morris's stamp. There are a few such offices, and threats against some of these chiefs have been heard.

One Cabinet officer made himself very unpopular by intimating that he expected his men to work on the Monday before Christmas. It was resented as an injury, the robbery of a holiday. The feeling of the employes was that as they had Sunday and Tuesday off, they ought to have Monday, too.

Of course, this sentiment prevails, to some extent, in the service of States and cities, but the Government service of States and cities is a small fraction of the public industries there. In Washington, on the other hand, the Government service is the life of the town, and all the city takes its tone from this overmastering influence. Its effect can be seen in the fact that the District of Columbia is the only community which has been officially decreed incapable of self-government. It had self-government and mismanaged itself so badly that Congress had to take the right away and govern the District as if it were populated by children.

This helpless and dependent attitude has deprived Washington of public spirit. Nobody cares to do anything; when anything is to be done he looks to Congress. All efforts to establish a respectable public library in Washington have failed. Andrew Carnegie has finally come to the rescue, and if he had not it is safe to say that no public library worthy of a village would ever have been established here. All efforts to secure a concert hall, a crying need of the city, have failed for the same reason.

Another illustration of the shiftlessness which this dependent attitude produces is found in the difference of the "street gang" from the same institution in other cities. The street gang is usually made up of poor and untaught young hoodlums. In Washington the corners are infested by well-dressed youths with flowers in their buttonholes. There is little ambition; there is a pervading atmosphere of slouchiness and shiftlessness. It is one of the most beautiful cities in the world, but its beauty is made by act of Congress.

All this proceeds from the assumption that Congress, or somebody, owes the Washingtonian a living, and that when he gets it he does not need to work to keen it. Most of the Government offices are full of employes, many of whom are not working. The Division of the Rolls, in the War Department, has a reputation all over the city as the place where people work. During the office hours—which, be it remembered, are only from 9 to 4—the people in this division are constantly at work. This would excite no remark in a private business house, but it has given the Division of the Rolls a well-earned individuality.

The most casual observer can hardly fail to be impressed on his first visit to Washington by the fact that a job is considered a gift or a right, and not as an opportunity to work. When McDonald emerged from Morris's office the watchman pluckily seized him, but the assassin hurled him aside. Any casual visitor to the departments that day might have wondered, on passing the watchmen of the various buildings, what success they would have in grappling with an assassin. When a private house employs a watchman he is usually a strong and active man. The Government watchmen are mostly decrepit old men who would be running four times the usual risk if they attempted to seize an escaping assassin.

Generally they are veterans, who have to be taken care of. Many of them are crippled or lame; some are half blind; there is one without arms. They are not employed at desk work, and they cannot all be made messengers, although many a halt old man is seen limping along the corridors with a Grand Army button on him. He is making all the speed he can, but still he is far from one's ideal of a messenger boy.

They are accordingly employed as watchmen—a position which is a "snap" most of the time, but which, when an emergency comes up, requires nerve. No doubt they are brave; their Grand Army buttons are presumptive evidence of that; but it is depressing to think what their fate would be if they attempted to stop a more bloodthirsty murderer than McDonald, who contented himself with merely knocking the watchman down with the butt of his revolver.

One estimable man is employed as a doorkeeper in one of the big buildings. It is his duty to keep people from entering the building after 2 o'clock. He is an old man and his eyesight is defective. When a man enters he cannot tell at first whether the intruder has a right to enter the building or not. If the visitor enters with a rapid, assured step, the doorkeeper concludes that he is a man who has a right there, and does not stop him. If the visitor hesitates, the doorkeeper knows he is a stranger, and stops him. It is only in this way that he can perform his duties, for he cannot see the faces as they hurry by, and does not know whether they are people he has been before or not.

Secretary Gage aroused the greatest storm on record in Washington by putting a time clock in the building to record the hours at which the clerks came in and went away. Morris, who had charge of it after it was put in, estimated that it effected a saving in time of 33 per cent. It lasted until Congress assembled. Then the outraged employes went to Capitol Hill and got Congress to abolish the time clock. Since then their rights have been respected and they arrive and leave when they please.

APPEAL TO BRONX CITIZENS.

They Are Asked to Raise Money for a Soldiers and Sailors' Monument.

The Citizens' Committee which has undertaken the task of raising funds for the erection of a Soldiers and Sailors' monument in the Borough of the Bronx, has issued the following appeal:

To the People of the Borough of the Bronx:

The patriotism displayed by the men from this borough who lost their lives in the Spanish war has prompted the proposal to erect a monument in commemoration of their valor. In the belief that the citizens of this borough were second to none in their appreciation of the noble self-sacrifice of those who responded so promptly to the Nation's call and gave their all in defense of the flag, a Citizens' Committee has been organized to raise a fund of $10,000 by voluntary subscriptions for the erection of a soldiers and sailors' monument. Of this sum about $2,700 has been raised, $950 of which represents the proceeds of three entertainments. The balance balance would be raised by 243 individuals subscriptions, an average of $30 each, a very liberal per capita amount. At the same rate the balance would be raised by 243 individual subscribing $30 each. In this borough, however, there are over 200,000 people, thousands of whom could and doubtless would willingly subscribe from $1 to $25 or more each if personally approached and asked to. But manifestly the members of the committee cannot visit personally all so inclined, and therefore ask all citizens whose good will and sympathy are with this movement to consider this circular letter a personal appeal and respond as liberally and as promptly as each feels able to do. Bear in mind that this monument is not expected to perpetuate any one individual's name or fame, but in honor of all men from the Bronx who gave their lives for the flag in our last war.

This is the first time that an appeal of this kind has been made to the people of this borough. Yonkers, Mount Vernon, and New Rochelle, with populations not to be compared with ours, each has its soldiers' monument. The Bronx has none. It is earnestly requested that all to whom this appeal is sent will subscribe something. The largest number of subscribers the more truly representative of the whole people will the fund be. At the beginning of the new year and the new century this appeal is sent forth with confidence that the patriotic people of this borough will respond liberally, so that by the anniversary of the blowing up of the Maine on Feb. 15 next most, if not all, of the desired amount will be subscribed.

IMMIGRATION'S BIG INCREASE.

Statistics Show 100,000 More Landed in 1900 Than in 1899.

William C. Moore, Landing Agent of the Bureau of Immigration, has compiled his report for the year 1900. The table gives the number of passengers, cabin and steerage, landed at the Port of New York by the different steamship lines that operate between this country and foreign ports with New York as their American terminal. As compared with 1899 the table shows an increase in the number of admitted immigrants of nearly 100,000 persons, the total for 1900 being for this class 403,491, while the total of the previous year was 303,762. The cabin passengers increased from 107,415 persons in 1899 to 137,852 in 1900.

The North German Lloyd Line leads all of its competitors in the number of passengers carried during the year just ended, 118,720 persons having crossed the Atlantic in vessels of this company's fleet. Of this number 26,577 were in the cabin, while in the steerage the total was 92,143. The Bremen service booked 88,048 and the Mediterranean service the rest. The Hamburg-American Line follows the North German Lloyd in the total of passengers carried, it having transported a total of 95,902 passengers during the year, of which number 88,-663 are accredited to the Hamburg service, the remaining 7,239 being from Mediterranean ports. After the two great German lines comes the International Navigation Company with a total of 69,881 persons booked during the year, 36,562 persons having booked on vessels of the Red Star service and 33,319 on the American liners of the company.

The totals for 1900, with the names of the carrying lines and the number of trips made by each, as compiled by Mr. Moore, follow:

Name of Steamship Line.	Cabin.	Steerage.	Trips.
Hamburg-American	23,270	65,584	121
North German Lloyd	23,350	64,698	102
Red Star	5,559	31,061	50
French	8,795	30,643	50
White Star	14,048	29,370	50
North German Lloyd	2,227	27,445	36
Holland-America	5,390	25,040	52
Cunard	20,000	22,751	51
Navigazione Generale Italiana	286	17,205	18
American	16,435	10,844	44
Fabre	26	15,633	22
Anchor (Mediterranean)	40	14,821	25
Prince	247	13,847	17
Anchor (Glasgow)	7,625	7,806	40
Hamburg-American	178	6,801	11
Scandinavian-American	962	4,838	24
Empreza Insulane de Navegacao	136	2,442	0
Linha de Vapores Portuguezes	85	2,100	7
Allen State	2,727	1,390	20
Atlantic Transport	3,740	...	50
Miscellaneous	380	2,321	27
Total	137,852	403,491	838

FATHER SECURES THE CHILD.

But Mrs. Schutte Is to See It Whenever She Likes, Pending Litigation.

In the legal battle waged in the Supreme Court by Charles Schutte and his wife, Gabriella, for the possession of their infant daughter, Veronica, pending the result of counter suits for divorce, Justice Leventritt yesterday decided that pending further developments in the litigation the child is to remain in the custody of the father, the mother to see her whenever she sees fit.

To show that Mrs. Schutte was not a proper person to have the custody of the child, the husband submitted an affidavit in which he made startling charges of immorality against his wife. The allegations are all denied by the latter, who charges her husband with all sorts of cruelty and neglect.

NO POLITICS IN IT, COLER SAYS.

And He Adds that There May Be More Dismissals.

Controller Coler said yesterday concerning the dismissal of a number of his clerks during the past week:

"There was no politics in the dismissals. It is a mistake to suppose that the appointment of John S. Crosby was the beginning of placing men in the department favorable to me. I appointed Mr. Crosby because the work that he will do requires a trained lawyer. He will get $15 a day. There may be more dismissals. The whole thing is that the rush occasioned by the difficulties of consolidation is over, and I will not need so many men.

"Mr. Crosby was appointed to take the place of Mr. Teale, who was a lawyer, and who got $25 a day, who has resigned. I do not even know the politics of the men who were dismissed. Some of them were hired to do certain work and the work is finished."

Many Brooklyn Firemen Transferred.

More than 100 men were shifted about in the annual "shake-up" in the Brooklyn Fire Department, which occurred yesterday. The transfers, which affected assistant foremen, engineers, and others, were ordered by Chief Croker and are said to have been made solely for the "good of the service." Many of the firemen who were detailed to duty in Long Island City soon after consolidation, to fill out skeleton companies there, have been transferred back to Brooklyn.

Boy Dead, Mother Dying.

While preparations were being made last evening at the home of George Frank, at 222 Atlantic Avenue, Brooklyn, for the funeral of his fourteen-year-old son, Jacob, the boy's mother lay dying in her room in ignorance of her son's death. George Frank keeps a jewelry store at the address given. The boy, Jacob, fell ill with pneumonia some days ago and his mother nursed him. She herself was taken ill with the same disease on Wednesday and was obliged to take to her bed. Jacob died on Thursday. The mother's condition is very serious.

SIX LITTLE TAILORS

Sale of Black Goods Remnants Starts To-morrow.

10,000 Yards

are offered for Coats and Vests at the uniform price, to measure, $10.50.

Former prices $15 to $30.

A pair of our heavy weight Fancy Worsted Trousers to Order at $3.50,

in conjunction with one of these Coats and Vests, makes a Suit to measure at $14 that has never been equalled in quality, style and finish for the money anywhere.

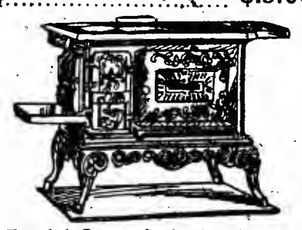
Money back for faulty fit or unsatisfactory wear.

SIX LITTLE TAILORS

229 Broadway, Opp. P.O.

One Door NORTH of Barclay St.

The outfit consists of White Enamel Iron Bed with brass trimmings, having full vases, mounts, rails and six spindles, brass steel frame, double woven wire spring, 1 full width black hair mattress, one or two parts; real value $20.00, at..... $15.00



Five-hole Range, for hard coal or wood. Nickel oven door, panel and knobs. Can be had in four sizes. Adjustable shelf and extra oven shelf.

A full line of Parlor Stoves.

Prices according to sizes:

$9.50, $10.50, $13.50, $18.00.

Stoves of All Kinds and Sizes. Low price. EASY TERMS. A Full line of Furniture, Carpets, Bedding, Etc.

T. KELLY,

263 Sixth Ave. (near 17th St.)

Men's Fur Lined Overcoats

Large assortments, all sizes, lined and trimmed with genuine Furs.

Sleigh Robes

Goat, Esquimaux, Dog, Bear, Beaver, Otter, Mink and Hudson Bay Sable,

$10, $15, $25, $50 to $500

COACHMEN'S OUTFITS, etc.

The new Cedarhurst Persian Lamb Collar.

C. C. SHAYNE,

MANUFACTURING FUR MERCHANT,

42d St., bet. Broadway and 6th Ave.

FRENZIED MAN WITH A PISTOL.

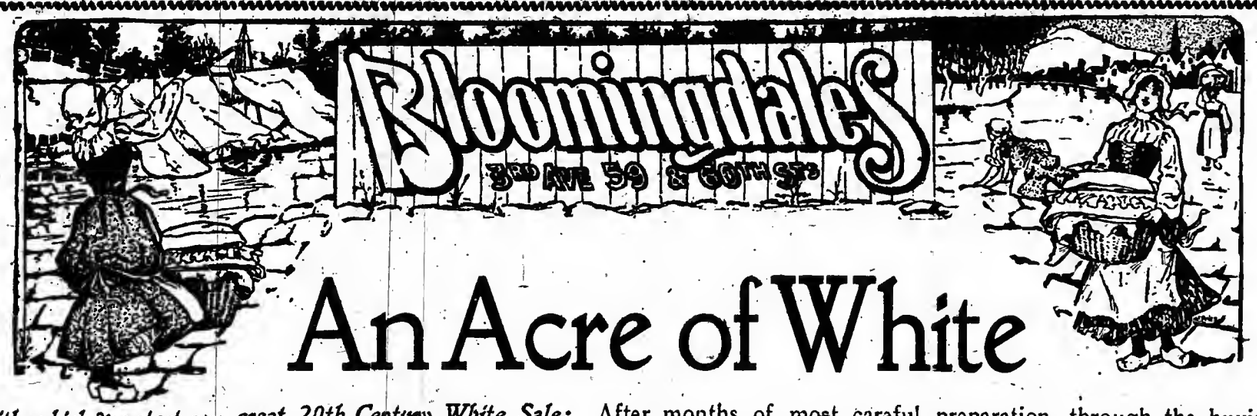
Tried to Shoot Wife and Policeman—Overpowered After Hard Struggle.

Charles E. Overbaugh, thirty-three years old, of 2,698 Eighth Avenue, tried to shoot his wife and a policeman last night. He was put in a straitjacket and taken to Harlem Hospital.

Overbaugh is employed in a Sixth Avenue department store. For a week he has been acting strangely, it appears. He imagined that his friends and the people in the store wanted to kill him, and were watching for a good chance. He bought a revolver to defend himself and went home last night highly excited.

Mrs. Overbaugh was at home and her husband attacked her. He took the revolver from his pocket and, running after her, tried to shoot her. She managed to slip out through a side door into the street and lock him in. Then she told Policeman Donnelly of the West One Hundred and Twenty-fifth Street Station, and Donnelly went into the house.

Overbaugh raised his revolver to shoot him. Donnelly dodged behind a door and Overbaugh went to ferrit him out, but the policeman pounced on him and bore him to the floor. Then he made the woman get another policeman while he exerted all his strength to keep the frantic man on his back. The other policeman sent for an ambulance and in a few minutes Overbaugh was in a straitjacket.



An Acre of White

With which we start our great 20th Century White Sale: After months of most careful preparation, through the buying facilities of "Greater New York's Greatest Store," and the advantage gained by placing exceedingly large orders with the factories during the dull times, we are able to inaugurate a sale to-morrow of women's and children's undermuslins, household linens and dry goods, men's, women's and children's handkerchiefs, and men's and boys' shirts, collars and cuffs, which is a vivid example of the collecting and distributing powers of "Greater New York's Greatest Store,"—which means savings to you on these goods of from 25 to 50 per cent. Read every item carefully, and compare them with others. You will then see the importance of purchasing this week at Bloomingdales'.

Women's Undermuslins—Unequalled Values!

The time, skill and energy displayed in collecting this merchandise for this sale cannot be overestimated. It has repaid us, though, for we place before you a stock of women's and children's undermuslins which in extent or low price we are positive cannot be duplicated.

Gowns.

Of Muslin, 29c. — High & low necks, with yoke of tucks and cambric ruffle; Empire effect, with insertion across front; revers and sleeves trimmed with cambric ruffle.

Of Muslin, 39c. — Two different styles, high and V-necks, one style with yoke of four lace insertions and tucks and the other style with yoke of hemstitched tucks, finished with hemstitched ruffle.

Of Muslin, 39c.—High and square necks, yoke of tucks and embroidered insertions, finished with ruffle of embroidery.

Of Muslin, 49c.—Square yoke of fine tucking, finished with embroidered ruffle.

Of Muslin, 49c.—Square neck, trimmed with Torchon lace, tucks and ribbon.

Of Muslin, 59c.—Fine quality, pointed yoke of cluster tucks, embroidered ruffle on neck and sleeves.

Of Cambric, 59c.—Yoke of four Val. and two embroidered insertions, lace ruffle on neck and sleeves.

Of Cambric, 69c.—Square and V-necks, some with yokes of hemstitched tucks between wide embroidered insertions, others with yokes of four lace insertions and tucks, finished with lace ruffle.

Of Fine Cambric, 79c.—Pointed yoke of hemstitched tucks, finished lawn ruffle, edged with lace.

Of Fine Cambric, 89c.—Very handsome yoke of hemstitched tucks, with two rows of insertion and deep embroidered ruffle around.

Of Fine Muslin, 89c.—Also of cambric—One style with yoke of lace and embroidered insertions, finished with ruffle, edged with lace; another style with yoke of four embroidered insertions, finished with ruffle and embroidery.

Of Cambric, 98c. — Square neck, very handsomely trimmed with Point de Paris and Torchon lace and fine embroidery.

Skirts.

Of Muslin, 39c.—With deep cambric ruffle, edged with lace; also with cambric umbrella ruffle.

Of Muslin, 49c.—Cambric flounce, trimmed with ruffle of embroidery five inches wide; also with tucked flounce, finished with ruffle edged with lace.

Of Muslin, 59c.—Deep cambric flounce, with lace insertion between tucks, finished with lace edged ruffle; also deep embroidered ruffle on cambric flounce.

Of Cambric, 69c.—Also of Muslin—deep lawn flounce, with two lace insertions and lace edge and with embroidered ruffle three styles.

Of Cambric, 89c.—Deep lawn flounce, with four lace insertions and lace edge.

Of Cambric, 89c.—Umbrella flounce of cambric, with seven inch ruffle of rich embroidery.

Of Cambric, 98c.—Lawn flounce, with three rows of embroidered insertions.

Of Cambric, $1.25—Deep flounce of lawn, with three rows of very handsome lace insertions on bottom, edged with lace; finer ones from $1.49 to $21.00 each.

Drawers.

Of Muslin, 19c.—Deep umbrella ruffle, with wide lace edge.

Of Muslin, 29c.—Deep cambric ruffle, with embroidered insertion; also with deep embroidered ruffle.

Of Muslin, 39c.—Umbrella ruffle of lawn, trimmed with two lace insertions and lace edge.

Of Cambric, 39c—Lawn ruffle, with Val. lace edge and embroidered insertion.

Of Muslin, 39c.—Have embroidered ruffle and insertion.

Of Cambric, 49c.—With a 6-inch embroidered ruffle.

Of Cambric, 59c.—With deep lawn umbrella ruffle, with hemstitched tucks and handsome lace edge.

Of Cambric, 59c.—With deep ruffle of hemstitched tucks and embroidered insertion above.

Of Muslin, 59c.—With a very full ruffle of embroidery six inches deep; also of fine cambric, deep lawn ruffle, with bowknot lace and insertion.

Of Cambric, 69c.—Umbrella ruffle of fine lawn, with two rows of Val. lace insertion and lace edge.

Of Cambric, 79c.—Deep lawn umbrella ruffle, handsomely trimmed with lace and insertion, and hemstitched tucking; finer ones from 98c. to $3.98 per pair.

Infants' Short Dresses.

Of Nainsook, 79c.—With round embroidered yoke, finished with a three-inch embroidered ruffle, bottom tucked and trimmed with deep embroidered ruffle; sizes 6 months to 3 years.

Long Dresses, 79c.—Of nainsook, circular yoke, of fine tucks, trimmed with a three-inch embroidered ruffle, bottom tucked and trimmed with ruffle of embroidery.

Chemises.

Of Muslin, 39c.—Square neck, wide embroidered insertion across front, edge of embroidery all around.

Of Cambric, 49c. — Fine quality, elaborately trimmed with lace and insertion, and ribbon through beading.

Of Cambric, 49c. — Fine quality, bosom of hemstitched tucks and insertion, finished with embroidered edge.

Of Fine Cambric, 49c.—Two rows of Val. lace insertion joined with ribbon and beading, finished with lace edge.

Of Muslin, 49c.—Pointed bosom of tucks and insertion, finished with embroidered edge.

Of Fine Cambric, 59c.—Square bosom, hemstitched tucks and insertions, finished with ribbon and embroidered edge. Finer and more elaborate ones from 69c. to 4.98.

Corset Covers.

Corset Covers, 6c.—High and V neck; some plain and others with embroidered edge.

Of Fine Cambric, 15c.—V neck, with wide embroidered edge.

French, 17c.—Cambric, full front, trimmed with Torchon lace edge.

Of Cambric, 18c.—Of the best quality; tucked down front.

French, 39c.—Full front of fine cambric, with four rows of lace insertion across front; lace edge around neck; finer ones from 49c. to 3.75.

Sonnette Corsets.

$1.25 Corsets for 69c.—Both long and short, of sateen, in black, white and drab; sizes 18 to 30 inches.

Second Floor, Near Rotunda.

About the Men's and Boys' Shirts.

We are justly proud of every stock we collected for this great white sale—particularly so of our most fortunate purchase of men's and boys' shirts. It is a combination of exceedingly large purchases from three of the greatest shirt factories in the country. We place on sale to-morrow a huge stock of men's and boys' fine shirts at prices positively lower than have ever before been quoted on like character of goods. Extra salespeople and extra space have been devoted to this feature of the sale.

At 29c.—Men's and Boys' Unlaundered Shirts, extra heavy muslin, re-inforced front and back; patent sleeve facings; sizes 12 to 18.

At 39c.—Men's and Boys' Unlaundered Shirts, extra fulll size re-inforced front and back; patent back and sleeves facings, gusset at skirt; welt or double plaits; sizes 12 to 18.

At 48c.—34 standard, made of standard special muslin, counting 88x92, extra heavy weight, set in 3 ply, 1700 linen bosom, reinforced front and back, all seams felled and double stitched throughout, continuous facing, split neckband; regular and short bosoms; men's and boys' sizes 12 to 18; have all improvements and are worth 65c.

At 58c.—B. B. Special—Men's unlaundered shirts, made of extra fine count shirting muslin, hand finished button-holes in neckband—1900 linen bosom; cut on custom shirt patterns. The material and workmanship make this a 75c. shirt; men's sizes only.

At 68c.—68 standard, made of celebrated Utica Nonpareil muslin, guaranteed 2000 linen bosom, butcher's linen back (set in), patent neckband, hand-made buttonholes, hand finished throughout, long and short bosoms, men's and boys' sizes, 12 to 18; if you paid 1.00 the shirt could not be any better.

Men's Night Robes, 38c.—Extra heavy muslin, fancy embroidered centres, collars and cuffs, a large variety of patterns; well made and cut full and long; a 50c. garment.

Men's Outing Flannel Night Robes, 38c.—In plain colors of blue, pink and canary; sold everywhere at 50c.

$1.00—$1.50 White and Fancy Stiff Bosomed Shirts, 50c.

A Most Extraordinary Special—These shirts come from the second largest shirt and collar manufacturer in the country. Their name is on every shirt. They won't allow us to advertise the brand, too many retailers in New York selling the same goods at regular prices. So all we can say is that if you need laundered shirts, white or fancy, this is your opportunity to buy them at half or one-third regular prices. Some amongst them have slight imperfections from passing through the laundry, but nothing that will harm the shirt or affect the wear.

Fancy Shirts—Made of percales, in open back and front, regular and short bosoms, some with attached cuffs; most of them have separate cuffs.

White Shirts—Are made open back and front, full dress with wide bosoms, or narrow for street wear; a few with attached cuffs; also short bosoms for stout men.

Main Floor, 60th St. Section.

Army and Navy Brand Collars and Cuffs.

Collars, 45c. Half Dozen; Cuffs, 80c. Half Dozen.

We are going to clear our counters of every collar and cuff of this brand during this sale. We have about 5,000 dozen, made up in about 42 different styles; all latest shapes. We are going to carry a different brand in its place, and although we have the privilege of returning every dozen of our "Army and Navy" cuffs and collars to the manufacturers, we are going to give our patrons the benefit of an unprecedented collar and cuff sale. This brand is sold elsewhere under another name—collars, 15c. each; cuffs, 25c. per pair. Our regular selling prices of these collars is 10c. each, or 1.20 per dozen; cuffs, 18c. per pair, or 2.00 per dozen. On top of this we make this unprecedented reduction,

Collars 45c. Half Dozen.

Cuffs 80c. Half Dozen.

Every collar and cuff is guaranteed to be perfect in every particular. For this sale these goods are sold in half dozen lots only. There are 42 different styles of men's and boys' collars, made of four-ply linen, in poke, wing, straight standing, lap, low turn-down, and high-band styles.

Main Floor, 60th St. Section.

About Laces.

We have placed very special prices on nearly every item in our stock of handsome laces. We are having a sort of a clearance here.

Colored Liberty Silks 25c. Yd.—59c. values.

Black Chantilly Demi Flouncing 55c. to 2.89 Yd.—Values up to $4.00 yd.

Black Tosca Nets, 39c. to 1.25 Yd.—45 inches wide; values up to $2.00 yd.

Black and Gold Applique Edgings and Insertings, 10c. to 98c. Yd.—Values up to $1.50 yd.

White Net Robes, 10.00 to 15.00, 25.00, 29.50.—Have silver spangles; this is half their real value.

Arabian Allover Nets, 2.50 to 5.00 Yd.—18 inch; 1-3 below value.

Point Venise Lace Insertings, 15c. to 98c. Yd.—Straight and applique effects.

Veiling Remnants—Thousands of yards marked out at prices ½ below real value.

Main floor, 59th St. Section.

Watches Reduced.

Through our clearing sale of Watches many people have received some very great bargains. Here are six others. Every watch guaranteed a perfect timekeeper.

Women's Solid Silver Watches, 1.85—Beautiful engravings, value $5.

Men's Gold Filled Hunting Case Watches, 4.95—Fitted with a seven-jewelled best American movement, value $10.00.

Women's Solid Silver Chatelaine Watches, 2.95—With brooch chatelains, in a neat box, value $6.50.

Women's Gold Filled Hunting Case Watches, 4.95—Fitted with a seven-jewelled American movement, value $10.00.

Women's Enamelled Watches, 5.95—With chatelaine pin to match, richly enamelled in all the delicate shades; value $10.00.

Men's Nickel Watches, 2.39—With fine Swiss movements, value $5.00.

Main Floor. Front. Centre.

Books at Half Regular Price.

We have inventoried our stock of books and find that we do not want to carry so many, so there is only one thing to do—put prices on them which although they entail a loss to us, will shortly reduce our stock. In the lot are thousands of fine copyrighted books which during the holiday season became slightly soiled from handling, but in every other respect are perfect. They will sell for one-half our regular sales price—that's not publisher's price, remember, but the low prices at which we sold these books during the holidays. For instance, books published and sold elsewhere at one dollar sell here this week at 36c.—1.25 books at 44c.—1.50 books at 49c.—and so on through the list. To say the least, this is a very exceptional opportunity, and we call especial attention of managers of libraries and societies to this sale.

Main Floor, 59th St. Section.

Art Wares at 25% Discount,

From the French Exhibit.

Some of the handsomest specimens of Limoges Enamel Paintings, Handsome Sevres Vases, exquisite Point Lace Fans; also Fans of handsome Duchess Lace, Bronze Figures and Miniatures; also Specimens of Legres Art Glassware; also many Art Objects from the Italian, Russian and Austrian exhibits.

25 Per Cent. Discount on Fine Sevres Vases.

They are artistically painted, many exclusive designs, mounted with green onyx and some with white. Some of these were exhibited at the Paris Exhibition. The entire lot will be placed on sale, beginning to-morrow, with the special discount of 25 per cent. Also Ivory Statuary, Dutch Silver Toys, Royal Vienna Vases, Enamels, Plates, Cups and Saucers, French Cloisonne Enamels, Inkstands, etc. Holland Delft Ware, Dutch Pewter, Marble Statuary, and in fact the finest and largest collection of Art Wares exhibited in New York City.

Main Floor, 59th St. Section.

BLOOMINGDALE BROS., 3d Ave., 59th and 60th Sts. | BLOOMINGDALE BROS., 3d Ave., 59th and 60th Sts. | BLOOMINGDALE BROS., 3d Ave., 59th and 60th Sts. | BLOOMINGDALE BROS., 3d Ave., 59th and 60th Sts.

HOSTILITIES AGAINST THE CHINESE TO CEASE

Count von Waldersee Gives Orders to That Effect.

EARL LI SUFFERS A RELAPSE

This May Cause Delay in Negotiations, but Chinese Envoys Are Ready to Sign the Joint Note.

SHANGHAI, Dec. 5.—A dispatch received here from Tien-Tsin says Field Marshal Count von Waldersee has ordered his staff to cease hostilities, but that some of the commanders have not been informed of his instructions. It is explained that they are in the field after Boxers.

Prince Ching and Li-Hung-Chang have again urged Count von Waldersee to ask the allies' commanders to desist from hostilities.

TIEN-TSIN, Jan. 4.—The German expedition which started on Christmas Day for Lien-cheng-Hsu, under command of Col Grueber, returned on Thursday.

Col. Grueber reports the capture of forty-three Krupp field guns and the destruction of 2,000 rifles and large quantities of ammunition.

PEKING, Jan. 5.—Li-Hung-Chang has suffered a relapse, and because of the serious effects of this and his great age it is feared that he will be unable to act as plenipotentiary in arranging a settlement of the troubles in China, and that the difficulty and delay in securing a successor may cause the postponement for a time of the negotiations.

The preliminary Joint Note may, however, be signed to-morrow. Prince Ching says the Chinese plenipotentiaries are prepared to sign as soon as the agreement is before them.

Prince Ching does not believe the reports that are prevalent in Peking that Southern China is antagonistic to the present dynasty and will endeavor to start a revolution, acting with the Boxers, as soon as the foreign troops go away. He says the regular troops of the Chinese Army could easily quell such an insurrection.

When asked why the Chinese troops could not quell the Boxer uprising, Prince Ching said that the situation was different; that the Boxers in Pe-chi-li Province had practically acquired the allegiance of a majority of the populace, which was the case in South China, the inhabitants there being amenable to law, order, and discipline. He added that the lesson learned would be sufficient to deter a majority of those who were wavering in their allegiance to the dynasty. He believed that the future of China would be peaceful.

Baron Nissi, the Japanese Minister, leaves here to-morrow for the new Japanese Minister, Jutaro Komura, having arrived here from St. Petersburg. M. Komura was formerly Japanese Minister at Washington, from which city he was transferred to St. Petersburg in 1900.

PARIS, Jan. 5.—The Foreign Office is advised from Shanghai, under date of Jan. 3, that advices from Sian-Foo confirm the reports of the execution of Yu-Hsien, (the former Governor of Shan-Si, guilty of massacring about fifty missionaries whom he had invited to accept his protection.) The execution took place on Dec. 10, by order of the Dowager Empress.

Prince Tuan is still at Ninghia.

There are 30,000 Chinese regulars at Sian-Foo. The Court has made no preparations to return to Peking.

THE AMERICAN CLAIM.

Computation of Indemnity to be Required from China Will Be Difficult.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—The State Department has not yet made an estimate of the indemnity to be required from China. In any such estimate it would, of course, be necessary to reckon the cost of the Chaffee expedition to begin with. The War Department has not yet begun the work of figuring out the cost, and when it does do so it will have a task of no small difficulty.

Many of the regiments sent to the Philippines were ordered to stop at Nagasaki, in view of the probability that they would be ordered to China. All the regiments sent to the Philippines last year were hurried forward and sent expensively, because of this probability. In figuring out the cost of the expedition it will be necessary to find out what fraction of the cost of transporting these regiments is chargeable to the Chinese difficulties and what part to the Philippine campaign. The troops which were sent from the Philippines also incurred expenses which are partly chargeable to the Philippine account and partly to the Chinese account. A rough guess has been made that the part of the indemnity chargeable to the movements of the troops will be about $20,000,000.

The State Department's desire is to have the powers agree on lump sums, instead of itemizing their claims. The cost of the military expeditions would have to serve as the bases for these lump sums. After finding out what they had spent, the powers could decide what additional sums they wanted for apportionment among the claimants.

CHINESE DEFENSE FUND.

Immense Sums Being Raised by Taxation in the South, Presumably for Use Against Foreigners.

Special to The New York Times.

TACOMA, Washington, Jan. 5.—High officials in the southern provinces of China are carrying forward a well-organized effort to raise an immense sum of money for purposes of defense and war, according to mail advices received here from Hongkong. The scale of exaction has been fixed in Soo-Chow at 5,000 taels ($3,000) for the well-to-do, 10,000 taels for the rich, and 20,000 taels for the very rich. When the tax gatherers appear the merchants and others tell pitiful stories of the hard times, with the result that they usually pay about one-third to one-half of the amount assessed against them.

At Canton and other cities the new tax is levied on all business in a sum equal to two months' rent of each shop. Of this sum one-half must be paid by the owner of the building and the other half by the occupant. It is, therefore, a kind of income tax, falling heaviest on those who can best afford to pay.

The taxes gathered in this manner constitute an enormous sum; an amount so great, in fact, that the English newspapers at Shanghai and Hongkong earnestly recommend that the allies inquire into the purpose to which the money is to be devoted. It is generally considered almost certain that it is intended for use against foreigners.

MISSIONARIES MEET IN PEKING.

PEKING, Jan. 5.—A meeting of the Protestant missionaries was held to-day to consider the terms of the joint note of the powers to China. A majority of the missionaries spoke on the subject. The consensus of opinion was that the note is not comprehensive enough.

The Rev. Mr. Owens of the American Board of Foreign Missions said he was opposed to the note for three reasons—because it was narrow, selfish, and careless. He added that it did not mention the slaughter of Christians, but merely referred to the killing of Baron von Ketteler, the German Minister, and of an official of the Japanese Legation, Sugiyama Akira.

The Rev. Dr. Tewksbury of the American Board of Foreign Missions said the note was better than could be expected, considering who prepared it. Still, it was unsatisfactory.

The Rev. Mr. Wherry pointed out that the note was not comprehensive enough.

The Rev. Mr. Lowry (Dr. H. H. Lowrie of the Pao-ting-Foo mission?) thought it was only a preliminary note, and said the missionaries should get together, the same as business men, and press their demands upon the Ministers when the time came for making the treaties.

The Rev. Mr. Upcraft said he thought that the mention of Christianity in the note would have been a mistake, as it might have prevented its adoption by Japan, a heathen country, and also might have prevented its adoption by the Roman Catholic countries.

Mr. Lowry's proposition that the missionaries should adopt a programme and endeavor to get their respective Ministers to see it inserted in the treaties, was agreed to.

Finally, two representatives of each mission were appointed a committee to formulate the views of those who took part in the meeting.

SEPARATE TREATY WITH RUSSIA?

LONDON, Jan. 6.—A dispatch from Peking, under yesterday's date, says:

"According to an official Chinese source Russia has arranged to make a treaty with China at St. Petersburg. The Chinese Minister there has been appointed to act for China."

Solicitude for Empress's Feelings.

PEKING, Jan. 4.—The British Foreign Office notified Gen. Gaselee to-day that an American correspondent had stated that a British pantomime which had been running in Peking caricatured the Empress Dowager and was exceedingly offensive to the Chinese, and that if this statement was true the performance must cease. The pantomime, which ran for three days in the Christmas week, is said to have been harmless and to have contained nothing that would hurt the most sensitive. It was made up of purely local skits regarding loot and the propensities of the allies. It was named "Aladdin; or, The Looted Lamp." It was very funny and pleased everybody. The proceeds were divided equally between the American and British Missions.

More Praise for the Japanese.

PEKING, Jan. 4.—Letters were received yesterday bearing date of New York Dec. 2, and every one is wondering why the mail service has improved so greatly since the Japanese took charge of the American mail service. As a consequence of this improvement every one is again praising Japanese methods, and it is generally admitted that the Japanese have done more favors than all the other foreign troops and have asked less than all the other powers put together.

TO GUARD CAPE TOWN.

Force to Protect the City Being Formed —Boers Release Captured Liverpools.

CAPE TOWN, Jan. 5.—The heads of firms here are hastily organizing their staffs into companies of City Guards, independently of the Colonial defense forces.

An urgency meeting of the Cabinet was convened at noon to-day, after a long consultation between the British High Commissioner, Sir Alfred Milner, and the Premier, Sir John Gordon Sprigg. An important pronouncement is expected.

LONDON, Jan. 6.—Lord Kitchener reports to the War Office, under date of Pretoria, Jan. 4, as follows:

"The Boers have reappeared along the railway in the neighborhood of Rhenoster, but it is doubtful if De Wet is with them.

"With regard to the situation in Cape Colony, the western commando seems to be making toward Calvin, and the eastern party appears to have broken up into small parties.

"Another small body crossed the Orange River west of Aliwal North yesterday."

The Boers have released the members of the Liverpool Regiment captured at Helvetia on Dec. 29.

MORE HORSES FROM AMERICA.

1,200 Start from New Orleans for Cape Town To-day — Precautions Against Treachery.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 5.—The British transport Montezuma will sail from this port for Cape Town to-morrow with 1,200 horses for the British Army.

This morning each of the muleteers, numbering over 100, underwent close questioning and a rigid examination by British officers. Every piece of baggage and garment was examined to see that no dynamite or other high explosive was concealed. The muleteers were then taken aboard and not allowed to communicate with any one on shore. Heretofore the examinations have been made by civilians, and were not so rigid.

Every part of the ship was inspected to-day. The steamship people denied yesterday that they feared an attempt to blow up the ship. The British officers, however, took the matter in their own hands to-day and there is now no doubt that they fear the Boer agents here.

Some weeks ago the British officers announced that no more mules and horses would be sent to South Africa, but since Boer activity has been renewed, the remount stations in this country have been reopened and some 8,000 or 10,000 animals shipped. It is understood in stock shipping circles that fully 20,000 horses are yet to be bought and shipped to the scene of hostilities. The British have already spent over $10,000,000 for animals sent from this country.

EARL ROBERTS'S NEW POST.

LONDON, Jan. 5.—There is much talk in the papers and elsewhere about Earl Roberts insisting on fuller privileges as Commander in Chief of the forces than were accorded to Lord Wolseley, but it is learned that he has done nothing of the kind. He accepted office on the same terms as his predecessor, though the personal relations existing between him and the Government officials assure greater co-operation than was possible with Lord Wolseley.

The work of reorganizing the War Office will be left almost solely to Lord Roberts. The Adjutant General, Gen. Sir Evelyn Wood, who is personally responsible for the recent action regarding Major Gen. Sir Henry Rawlinson, was asked to resign, but refused to do so, as a result of the Yeomanry surrender at Lindley in May last.) is likely to be one of the first to go. It is thought he will do so with honor.

More troops are to be sent out to South Africa. The present plans are to dispatch infantry. This, the most capable officers in the services devoutly hope, Lord Roberts will frustrate, substituting cavalry, which is so much needed.

American Flour for British Troops.

LONDON, Jan. 5.—The latest grievance of British trade against America consists in the Government purchasing flour in the United States for South Africa. A writer in The Morning Post declares that this action is a fit subject for an inquiry, and that it constitutes a most unfair handicap for British millers, "while the Americans, who pay no taxes, are able to dispose of inferior grades." It appears that large quantities are being purchased in America on account of the standard brands and shipment being better and ready at the dock. The champion of the British millers maintains that the Government is wrong in believing that the American article has these advantages. The protest, however, is not likely to deter the Government from patronizing this new branch of American industry.

THE REICHSTAG AND DIET.

Both Reassemble in Berlin on Tuesday —Prospects of the Canal Bill Are Poor.

BERLIN, Jan. 5.—The Reichstag and Diet reassemble on Tuesday. The Diet's session takes place earlier than expected, so as to allow an ample discussion of the remodeled Canal bill, which will be introduced next week.

The bill's prospects are by no means bright. Besides warning the Conservative press that the Government is only preparing for another defeat, the Cologne Volks-Zeitung (the leading Centrist organ) also printed an article this week which attracted wide attention, admitting that the prospects for the Canal bill are as hopeless as ever. The paper in question points out that the Government's policy, upon the defeat of the former Canal bill, utterly ruined the chances of the present measure, which nobody can save. It mentions the weak, undecided policy of the Government in retiring the officials who voted against the bill and in promoting them afterward to better positions. It is already announced that the Ministry will make a hard fight to secure the bill's passage.

The debate will be particularly interesting, since it will be the first occasion requiring the new Imperial Chancellor, Count von Bülow, to show his hand in domestic politics. Deep interest is felt regarding his first bout with the Agrarians. In the meanwhile Von Bülow continues mute. "On all domestic questions," the Vossische-Zeitung (Independent Liberal and Free Trade) says, "Von Bülow smilingly assures us that nobody really knows him. In the province of domestic politics we admit this is true, for von Bülow is an unwritten page therein."

In the Reichstag the work of the session will not, it is expected, be important. After the China bill is disposed of, the budget will come up, but it is now generally admitted that tariff revision will be postponed to the Autumn session. In the meanwhile the Berliner Tageblatt (also Independent and Free Trade) reasserts that the Government has already decided to raise the grain duties to at least 50 marks a ton and also to introduce maximal and minimal duties on grain. It further asserts that the Government is firmly resolved to make new commercial treaties after the expiration of the present ones.

TWO IMMENSE WARSHIPS.

British Admiralty Has Decided to Build Vessels That Will Be the Largest in the World.

LONDON, Jan. 5.—The British Admiralty has decided to build two battleships which will, it is intended, be the largest in the world. The distinction of having the largest warships has hitherto been held by Italy, with the Lepanto and her sister ship, the Italia. Great Britain's two projected large warships, to be respectively named the Queen and the Prince of Wales, will be 2,000 tons heavier than the Italian ships, reaching the enormous displacement of 18,000 tons, which is 3,500 heavier than America's biggest armor-clad vessel.

These tremendous British vessels will carry nothing larger than 12-inch guns. Their batteries will chiefly be composed of these guns and of 7.5-inch and 6-inch guns.

The determination to increase the bulk of the battleships was only arrived at after much discussion, for since the days of the Royal Sovereign (of 14,150 tons) the Admiralty has been inclined to favor battleships of smaller displacement, of which the Canopus (of 12,950 tons) is the best type.

In the meanwhile, Russia, France, the United States, and Japan have all been increasing their ships' displacements, till Great Britain has been almost left behind. Now she steps in, taking the lead with the Queen and the Prince of Wales, to say nothing of the London and the Formidable, both of 15,000 tons, now nearing completion.

RULER OF SAXE-WEIMAR DEAD.

Grand Duke Charles Passes Away Aged Eighty-one Years.

BERLIN, Jan. 5.—The Grand Duke of Saxe-Weimar is dead.

Carl Alexander August Johann, Grand Duke of Saxe-Weimar, was one of the most powerful of the Princes who govern federated Germany. His influence on national affairs was said to be greater than that of almost any other of the Kings and Grand Dukes of the empire. He was born in 1818 and succeeded to the throne in 1853, on the death of his father. In 1842 he was married at The Hague to the Princess Sophia of the Netherlands.

The Grand Duchess, in the event of Queen Wilhelmina dying without leaving an heir, would succeed to the throne of Holland, and the fact that the Grand Duke might thus have become the virtual ruler of the Dutch has led to considerable apprehension among the people of that country, since the succession would have meant the actual, though not nominal, merging of Holland in the German Empire.

The new Grand Duke is William Ernest, the grandson of the Grand Duke just dead. The danger to Holland remains the same, as the new ruler of Saxe-Weimar will inherit the rights of his grandmother. This is one of the reasons why the Dutch people have been so anxious for Queen Welhelmina's marriage.

Whitaker Wright's Extravagance.

LONDON, Jan. 5.—Few millionaires in England or other countries live in such princely style as Whitaker Wright, the moving spirit in the collapsed London and Globe group. In Park Lane, London, he has a miniature palace, in the drawing room of which is a copy of the famous Cabinet du Roi of Louis XV. It took three years to complete, and cost many thousands. At Godalming Mr. Wright owns a country seat worthy of Monte Cristo, in beautifying which 600 workmen are now engaged. It contains costly fountains and statuary brought from Italy. Wright's stables alone cost a small fortune. They have upholstered oak and leather settees and polished gun-metal fittings, while valuable paintings and bas-reliefs adorn the stalls. His private yacht is fitted up with similar luxuriousness. Everything he owned had to be of the best. To gratify this desire there was no stint in expenditure.

The Late Lord William Beresford.

LONDON, Jan. 5.—Lord William Beresford has been dead a week, but glowing tributes to his memory still continue to appear. His bravery and sportsmanship keenly appealed to the English people. Few of the numerous recent deaths of public men have been so deeply felt. At a memorial service yesterday many distinguished people gathered to pay a last tribute to Lord William. The Prince of Wales, the Duke of Cambridge, and Earl Roberts were specially represented, while Lord Lansdowne and other prominent persons personally attended. At the time of Lord William's death the brothers Reiff were under engagement to ride for him and for William C. Whitney next season at a salary of £2,500 each.

Queen Victoria's Unlucky New Yacht.

LONDON, Jan. 5.—The Admiralty has apparently as great confidence in George W. Watson as has Sir Thomas Lipton, for it has called on the yacht designer to give advice in regard to the new royal yacht, now better known as the "Royal Naval Farce." Though the entire force of draughtsmen at Portsmouth dockyard has been persistently working in endeavors to patch up this unlucky boat, the authorities have been unable to effect anything. It is hoped that Mr. Watson will be able to save the enormous amount of money expended on her, though it is not thought that the Queen will ever trust herself on board of her.

British Entertain American Officers.

BERMUDA, Jan. 5.—The United States warships Annapolis, Frolic, Wompatuck, and Piscataqua are still in St. George's Harbor. They will not coal until Monday. The flagship, the Annapolis, was visited by the United States Consular Agent yesterday. The officer commanding the St. George's garrison, Col. Woods, of the Royal Artillery, who was accompanied by his staff and a large number of civilians, also visited the Annapolis, though rough, rainy weather prevailed. In the evening the American officers attended a dance at the garrison, and they will be entertained at a dinner there this evening. A grand ball will be given in their honor next Tuesday.

Efforts on Behalf of Mrs. Maybrick.

LONDON, Jan. 5.—Baroness de Roques is once more actively agitating on behalf of her daughter, Mrs. Florence Maybrick. She had two interviews with United States Ambassador Choate this week, and received little but a polite assurance that the case will be presented to the new Home Secretary when an opportunity arises. The Baroness is much disturbed about the health of the famous prisoner, but she is confident that the new evidence and the renewed efforts of their friends in America will have the desired effect.

Mr. Yerkes's London Enterprises.

LONDON, Jan. 5.—Both Howard Abel of Chicago and Henry C. Davis of New York, the agents of Charles T. Yerkes, are now in London, busily engaged in pushing the underground railroad work, which they hope to have in good shape by the time Mr. Yerkes arrives here in March. The delays in the plans for the electrical installation on the District Underground Railroad are said to be due to insufficient capital and have caused a reiteration of the rumors that Mr. Yerkes will take a hand in the scheme.

Elizabeth Blake Sent to an Asylum.

LONDON, Jan. 5.—Elizabeth Alma Blake of New York City, who was arrested and committed to St. George's Workhouse, after having appeared Dec. 21 at Osborne House, Isle of Wight, claiming to be a daughter of Princess Henry of Battenberg, was sent to the Colney Hatch Lunatic Asylum this morning, as a person of unsound mind.

Indemnity for Seizure of the Taboga.

COLON, Colombia, Jan. 5.—The indemnity to be paid by the Colombian Government to the Pacific Steam Navigation Company for the seizure and use of the British steamer Taboga for conveying troops and munitions of war to Buena Ventura has been settled at £6,000. The steamer has been returned in good condition. The British flag was again hoisted on her yesterday.

YESTERDAY AT THE OPERA.

"Die Walkuré" in the Afternoon and "Il Trovatore" in the Evening.

At the Metropolitan Opera House yesterday afternoon that member of Wagner's great tetralogy which is always selected when dismemberment begins, "Die Walküre," was sung for the first time this season. Away back in the seventies the Pappenheim-Adams company hurled this work upon the stage of the Academy of Music to the confusion of an unprepared public. Ever since that time "Die Walküre has been subject to sporadic productions, and it was the first of the "Ring" series to be projected upon the stage of the Metropolitan Opera House in the consulship of Dr. Leopold Damrosch. The excuse is usually made that this work bears separate presentation better than the others, but this statement is hard to support in the presence of the last scene, in which the coming of the hero, Siegfried, is predicted, and Brünnhilde, the sleeping beauty, is left on her fire-girt rock, waiting for the wakening kiss. However, the entire "Ring" cannot often be given, and concessions must be made to the public desire to hear these things.

The performance of yesterday afternoon was one of much merit. Indeed, in some respects it was beyond cavil. The choir of Valkyrs, for example, was, on the whole, the best we have yet had. Its members sang almost all in time, and they came near to mastering the difficult feats of intonation. The ensemble "Hojotoho" was given with fine spirit and abundant tone. If the Valkyrs in the clouds had been as convincing as those on the stage, there would have been further cause for rejoicing, but the woolly hobbyhorse was never realistic except to the happy fancy of childhood. To Mr. Damrosch, too, must credit be given for the substantial improvement he has made in his conducting of this opera. He can, and doubtless will, yet go further. His orchestra was decidedly deficient in smoothness and solidity of tone, and as for its intonation—but where in the world is perfect orchestral intonation?

Mr. Theodore Bertram sang Wotan, which he has sung only once before here at a benefit performance. His work was creditable, but by no means sustained in merit. In the second act his delivery was hard and his treatment of the declamation lacking in nuance. In the third act his work was much better, especially in the first part. But at best the impersonation can be called only earnest and well-meant. It had little illusive power. Mme. Terpina repeated a performance of Brünnhilde, which she has already made known to us. Her voice was not in its best condition yesterday afternoon, and the lack of warmth in her tones went far to mar her delivery of its wonted eloquence. This was unfortunate, but she is hardly to be blamed for it.

Mme. Gadski was a very good Sieglinde, but she fell at times into the error of forcing her tones, with decidedly unmusical results. Mr. Van Dyck was the same dramatically satisfying Siegmund as we have known heretofore. Mr. Blass was a capital Hunding. Mme. Schumann-Heink was, as she always is, an excellent Fricka. The audience was large and was prolific in demonstrations of pleasure.

Last night Verdi's "Il Trovatore" was brought forward. Usually when Mme. Nordica is announced as the unhappy heroine the audience is large, but this was not the case last night. That was a pity, for it is always a pleasure to hear this well-schooled and conscientious artist sing the old Italian music, with which she began her career. She was in good voice and her work was admirable. The audience was warmed into enthusiasm by it, and rewarded her efforts with hearty applause. Mr. Dippel was a very industrious Manrico, and achieved the traditional success with "Di quella pira." Mr. Campanari was a conventional Count di Luna, and Miss Olitzka a wild and weird Azucena. Mr. Journet deserves praise for his excellent delivery of Ferrando's solo. Mr. Flon conducted.

Mr. Gabrilowitsch's Recital.

Ossip Gabrilowitsch, the young Russian pianist, gave his third recital yesterday afternoon at Mendelssohn Hall. It was an afternoon which must have given the player, who is nothing if not critical, a deal of substantial comfort. He began his operations by performing a fatal operation on the Bach prelude and fugue in A minor. After this he dissected in extremely cold blood Beethoven's sonata in A flat major, Opus 110, laying bare and bleaching the bones of the composition so that they were plainly to be seen by all men. This having been accomplished, the funeral sermon was magniloquently preached with the Chopin-Liszt "Chant-Polonais" in G flat major.

Mr. Gabrilowitsch, having now concluded the ceremonial part of his entertainment, went upon his way rejoicing with some Chopin numbers, a Rubinstein's E flat minor polonaise, a Rigaudon by Raff, a humoresque by Dvorak, and the Liszt derangement of melodies from Mendelssohn's "Midsummer Night's Dream" music. The audience was large and ready to applaud the just and the unjust piano playing alike. Most of M. Gabrilowitsch's work yesterday was more to be praised for its distinctness than for its eloquence.

McElroy—Parker.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 5.—One of the largest and most brilliant weddings of the Winter took place to-day at All Saints' Cathedral, in this city. The contracting parties were Charles E. McElroy and Miss Harriet Langdon Parker.

The bride is the youngest daughter of Gen. Amasa J. Parker and a granddaughter of the late Judge Parker. The groom is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. John E. McElroy of Albany and a nephew of the late President Arthur. His mother, President Arthur being a widower, served as mistress of the White House during his term of office.

The marriage ceremony was performed by Bishop Doane, assisted by the Rev. Dr. Charles Strong of Savannah, Ga., an uncle of the bride. The maid of honor was Miss Grace Parker, the bride's sister, and the bridesmaids were Miss Nina Wilson of Minneapolis, Miss Texas Bates of Washington, D. C., Miss Edith Gray of Albany, Miss Elizabeth M. Masten of New York, Miss Edith Williams of Detroit, and Miss Helen Gilman of Yonkers. The groom's best man was Rufus H. King, Jr., of New York. The ushers were Metcalf Polk, Julian M. Gerard, George Hawley, William F. Forepaugh, Charles Pinkerton, all of New York, and Lewis R. Parker, Col. Selden E. Marvin, and Edwin Marvin of Albany.

The bridal party and their guests were entertained by Gen. Parker at a wedding breakfast.

The bride was the recipient of many beautiful wedding presents.

Mr. and Mrs. Wisner's Reception.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Wisner of Paris gave a reception at their residence, 9 West Ninetieth Street, last evening in honor of their daughter, Miss Marthe Wisner, who made her début. Among those present were Mrs. Ella Wheeler Wilcox, Mr. and Mrs. L. Braetner of Paris, Count von Herrenschwand of Berne, Mr. and Mrs. O'Connor, Mr. and Mrs. McGraw, Mr. and Mrs. Staley, Mrs. Luchetti, Mrs. Mason, Miss Post, Miss Farpham, Miss Braetner, Mr. Joseph Becket, Mr. Pictet, and the Messrs. Luchetti, Braetner, Fuller, Hunter, Staubli, Jordan, and J. and F. S. Bancroft. Mrs. Braetner entertained the guests with a violin solo and Mr. Braetner and Miss Wisner played several selections on the piano.

Miss Muriel Wilson as a Life-Saver.

LONDON, Jan. 5.—Miss Muriel Wilson, England's best-known beauty, has been distinguishing herself in the rôle of a life-saver. George Clerk, one of the assistants at the Foreign Office, was recently boarding a train at Doncaster, while it was in motion. His foot slipped and his legs fell between the footboard and the platform. Without a second's hesitation, Miss Wilson caught his arms and held him up until the train stopped. Had she let go Mr. Clark would have been crushed to death.

Belle Fremont Dead.

DENVER, Jan. 5.—Miss Belle Fremont, prima donna soprano of the Bostonians, died at the Tremont Hotel last night of pneumonia. Her home was in Washington.

Secretary Hay Ill Again.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—Secretary Hay is again confined to his home by a severe cold.

REPORT ON TARRANT FIRE.

Marshal Seery Finds Explosion Was Due to Illegal Storing of Chemicals.

Fire Marshal Peter Seery reported yesterday to Commissioner John J. Scannell on the fire and explosions in the building of Tarrant & Co. on Oct. 29 last, which he began to investigate early in November. The disaster resulted in the loss of seven lives. Ten buildings were destroyed and thirty-five more or less damaged, and the property loss was about $1,200,000. He finds that the explosions were due to chlorate of potash, stored illegally in the Tarrant Building. As to the cause of the fire, he points out that there was pitch paper between the ceilings and floors of the buildings, and that this, or its scrapings, could have been ignited by contact with a steam pipe or through an electric spark from a defective electric lighting wire.

The charge is made that in the matter of electric lighting the law was violated, as repairs and changes were made without notification to the Board of Fire Underwriters or the Department of Buildings. The conclusion as to the cause of the explosions was fortified by a report of Charles F. Chandler, Dean of Columbia University.

Marshal Seery calls attention to the fact that the only person who could accurately tell what dangerous articles were stored in the Tarrant Building was Benjamin F. Moorehouse, who perished, and he comments strongly on the firm's system of bookkeeping.

"In view of the loss of life and the destruction of property," the report concludes, "I respectfully recommend that the testimony taken be transmitted to the District Attorney in order that he may aid us in determining if there was any criminal neglect on the part of said company."

Assistant District Attorney James J. Walsh aided in the investigation.

BOY ALSO AN ACTOR.

Young "Jefferson" Did Not Run Away from St. Matthew's Military School.

A story was published in many newspapers yesterday morning to the effect that a grandson of Joseph Jefferson, the actor, had run away on Friday from a boarding school in Dobbs Ferry. Yesterday O. Legaré Rogers, Ph. B., A. A. I. A., head master of the St. Matthew's Military School of Dobbs Ferry, called at THE TIMES office to correct an impression that the boy had run away from the St. Matthew's Military School.

Mr. Rogers said that the fact that the military school was practically the only one in Dobbs Ferry led to the belief that the boy had run away from this particular institution. Mr. Rogers said that he was not acquainted with the Jefferson family, nor had he had any correspondence with the Jeffersons regarding the entering of the boy, nor had he ever seen the young man.

COERCED WITH PISTOL, SHE SAYS.

Mrs. Cowie Accuses Her Son of Forcing Her to Transfer Property.

An action to set aside the transfer of a deed to a house at 158 York Street, and the conveyance of a residuary interest in nine other houses in Jersey City and in stocks and bonds, has been instituted in the New Jersey Chancery Court in behalf of Mrs. Margaretta Cowie on the ground that she signed the papers because of threats of her son that he would shoot her or put her into an insane asylum.

Mrs. Cowie lives at 158 York Street with her third husband, to whom she was married in September last. The deed and conveyance were given by her on June 9 last, to William A. Sloan and Mrs. Margaretta St. Clair Campbell, her children by her first husband.

In her bill Mrs. Cowie says that her son visited her six times early in June and insisted that she should make the transfers. Once he showed a pistol and threatened to shoot. On June 9 he handed her the papers and told her to sign them or go to an insane asylum. She signed them, she says, because she was ill and afraid. The documents provide that in the event of her death or marriage the property is to revert to her son and daughter, who were made trustees.

DEATH LIST OF A DAY.

Charles Hutchinson Kerr.

Charles Hutchinson Kerr died on Friday of pneumonia at his residence in Jersey City. Mr. Kerr was a familiar figure in down-town banking circles in New York, having been in the employ of the Hanover National Bank for nearly thirty years. He was born in Galashields, Scotland, sixty-five years ago, and came to this country when a young man, being engaged in mercantile business before entering the service of the Hanover National Bank. He was much esteemed by the Directors and officers of that institution as a faithful and intelligent employe; his absolute integrity and loyalty to the bank being proverbial, while his many sterling qualities won for him the respect of his business associates.

He was a man of remarkably versatile accomplishments. In earlier life he was a well-known vocalist, serving as precentor in several Scotch Presbyterian churches in this city. Much of his vocal powers, together with a wonderfully active physique, he retained up to the time of his illness. He was also an accomplished performer on many different musical instruments, and possessed considerable artistic skill with the pencil and brush. He was actively engaged in church and Sunday school work, having been until recently identified with the Lafayette Avenue Presbyterian Church, Brooklyn. His wife died several years ago, and he leaves a family of three sons and two daughters, his eldest son holding a responsible position in the Chemical National Bank, and his second son being a practicing physician in Brooklyn. The funeral will take place from his late home, 194 Claremont Avenue, Jersey City, to-day at 1 o'clock.

Lewis Rutherford.

LONDON, Jan. 5.—Lewis Rutherford of New York, a brother-in-law of Henry White, the Secretary of the United States Embassy here, died at Davos Platz, Switzerland, to-day.

Mr. Rutherford was well known in club and social circles in this city. He had been a member of the Union Club since 1886, but more frequently visited the Knickerbocker Club. News of his death had not reached either clubhouse when a reporter announced it last evening, though at the Knickerbocker it caused little surprise, as it was known that he was seriously ill. Lewis Rutherford, with his brother, Winthrop Rutherford, and W. R. Travers and Reginald Rives, formed a coterie which will long be remembered for active interest in out-door sports. Mr. Rutherford was one of the sons of Lewis Morris Rutherford, who occupied an old mansion at Second Avenue and Tenth Street, and was famous in his day for his astronomical knowledge and other scientific attainments. Lewis and Winthrop Rutherford became well known in later days for their success in breeding fox terriers and English pheasants at their country place at Tranquility, N. J.

Winthrop Rutherford has been traveling in the South for several weeks, but when informed of his brother's condition abandoned his plans, and it is said that he is now on his way to this city.

John H. Wood.

Special to The New York Times.

PORT JERVIS, N. Y., Jan. 5.—John H. Wood, a real estate agent of this place, died here to-day of heart disease and cancer. He was seventy-seven years old.

Mr. Wood was born a poor boy, and began life as a cook on a steamer that plied on the Hudson River. He conducted a dry goods business in Brooklyn, N. Y., several years, and then opened a general store at Newton, N. J. Later he purchased a farm of 360 acres in Walpack Centre, Sussex County, N. J., on which was situated the famous fall of water. He was an extensive fruit grower, and produced a variety of apple that made him famous throughout the county. On that farm rest the remains of the mother of President William H. Harrison.

After the war Wood met with reverses, and began life anew here as a real estate agent. His venture proved successful, and he was quite wealthy at the time of his death. During his residence in Sussex County he was a leading Republican county politician and belonged to several organizations at the time of his death.

The Rev. Dr. J. Carpenter Smith.

The Rev. Dr. J. Carpenter Smith, rector emeritus of St. George's Protestant Episcopal Church, died in Flushing, L. I., early yesterday morning, aged eighty-four years. Three years ago last November Dr. Smith celebrated his golden jubilee as pastor of St. George's Church. Dr. Smith was born in Bethpage, L. I., on Oct. 20, 1816. He was a graduate of Kenyon College, Akron, Ohio, and of the General Theological Seminary in New York of the class of 1842.

In 1844 he assumed the pastorate of St. James's Church, Rockaway, and in November, 1847, he assumed the rectorship of St. George's Church, Flushing, and was continuously in charge of that parish to the time of his death. Dr. Smith was a theologian of broad views. He was prominent in charitable work, and was noted for his kindness to all who sought his help. The body will lie in state to-day and to-morrow.

Ex-Gov. Curtis H. Brogden.

GOLDSBOROUGH, N. C., Jan. 5.—Ex-Gov. Curtis H. Brogden is dead. He was born on a farm in Wayne County, N. C., in 1815. His early days were spent at farming, but he found time to attend the district schools with fair regularity and to devote some of his leisure to rehearsing in the militia. In the latter he became prominent, being raised to the rank of General. In 1838 he was elected to the State Legislature, and for nearly twenty years afterward he was almost continuously a member of one House or the other. He was Controller of the State from 1851 to 1857, a Presidential Elector in 1860, and a Collector of Internal Revenues in 1870. Two years after this he was elected Lieutenant Governor. Upon the death of Gov. Caldwell, in 1874, he succeeded to the office of Chief Executive. In 1876 he went to Congress, chosen by the Republicans of his district, and served from March, 1877, until March, 1879.

John Bardsley.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., Jan. 5.—John Bardsley, ex-City Treasurer of Philadelphia, died yesterday of heart disease. Mr. Bardsley, who was born in England Sept. 5, 1836, for many years was one of the most prominent figures in municipal public affairs. He was City Treasurer in 1889. In 1890 the Baring failure caused a run on the Keystone National Bank here, in which Bardsley had on deposit both the funds of the city and the State. The bank failed in 1891. The Spring Garden Bank, another of Bardsley's depositories, failed soon after. Bardsley was later arrested and pleaded guilty to the charge of misappropriating the funds of the city and State. In 1891 he was sentenced to fifteen years' imprisonment. There has long been a feeling that Bardsley was more of a scapegoat than a deliberate embezzler, and strong efforts were made toward securing his pardon. These were successful in 1896.

Obituary Notes.

WILLIAM JOYCE, a prominent resident of Oswego, N. Y., dropped dead at his home there yesterday of apoplexy.

Capt. JOHN S. GROOM, aged seventy-three, died yesterday at Liberty, Mo. He was in the Mexican war and fought for the Southern cause in the civil war, organizing two companies for service in the Confederate Army.

JOHN A. MONTGOMERY, for ten years Superintendent of Mails in the Chicago Post Office, and for thirty-five years in the Postal Service, died in Chicago yesterday. He was one of the most widely known men in the service.

JOHN H. KNOX, clerk to the commandant of the Portsmouth (N. H.) Navy Yard, died at his home in Portsmouth yesterday of pneumonia, aged fifty-seven. He was a native of Portsmouth and a veteran of the navy, having served during the civil war on the United States ship Ossipee. He had been a clerk at the navy yard for more than thirty years.

Commodore WILLIAM H. HARRIS, United States Navy, retired, died in Boston last night. He was born in Massachusetts, and entered the Naval Service Sept. 21, 1861, being appointed from his native State. He had eighteen years of sea service in all, retiring from his last cruise in February, 1898, and on March 1 last he was assigned to engineer duty at the Portsmouth Navy Yard.

Miss BLANCHE FELLOWS died of typhoid pneumonia at her home in Plainfield, N. J., yesterday. Miss Fellows, who was an accomplished musician, broke down from overwork in preparing for the Christmas festival in the First Presbyterian Church. She was the daughter of the late Dr. Harris I. Fellows of Albany, N. Y., and a sister of Townsend H. Fellows, soloist of the Church of the Incarnation in New York City.

W. F. ROCKWELL, President of the Miller Brothers' Cutlery Company of Meriden, Conn., died yesterday morning at his residence in that city. He was well known throughout the State, and was also prominent in the cutlery trade generally, having been especially active at Washington in work for the shaping of cutlery schedules of tariff bills. He was a close friend of President McKinley, and was a delegate to the last Republican National Convention.

Capt. WILLIAM PARKE ARMSTRONG, President of the City National Bank of Selma, and the Isbell National Bank of Talladega, died at his home in Selma, Ala., yesterday, of gastritis, from which he had been suffering for some time. He leaves a son, Houston Armstrong, who is engaged in mining business in Montana; another son, the Rev. W. P. Armstrong of the Theological Faculty of Princeton College, and two daughters in Selma. He was

HIGH ART IN FINE LINEN

Best and Most Costly Made by a Firm in Belfast.

A Connoisseur Finds the Quality Used an Index to the Taste of the User.

"Good breeding and fine table linen go together," said the man of linens. "You will always find it the case. You can almost judge the refinement of the individual by the quality of her table linens. It is by no means the people of the greatest wealth who buy the finest linens, and women with very little money frequently have linen of a beautiful quality. They would rather have it than spend the money in clothes.

"'I simply cannot help it,' said one woman whom I knew had very little, but who was making an expensive purchase. 'I am unhappy if I have coarse linen on my table. And oh! the linen I have sometimes seen on the tables of people I ha' visited; wealthy people, too. I would not have given my servants the table linen they had.'

"But there are some wealthy women who buy the finest and best linen there is in the market. There is one woman in New York who never uses napkins that cost less than $75 a dozen, and table linen of the same quality. She could not give her guests anything better than that, for there is nothing better in the market. There is only one firm in the world that makes such linen, and that is in Belfast, Ireland. There are several other firms in the same place that make very fine linen, that is a close second, and there is also a beautiful linen in France, though there is but little made there, but none of it equals this from Belfast. There are not many people who buy it. There are several families in New York, not all of them the multi-millionaires, who use it. There are a few families in Cleveland, too, some in Chicago, and some in Pittsburg. I never heard of any being used in Boston.

"The woman who buys the finest linen is the easiest to suit. She has not a large variety of linen to select from—there are only three patterns—and probably she would not think of the pattern, but looks only at the quality. She takes the pattern of the French Renaissance scroll, orders six dozen napkins and six tablecloths at a time, and that is the end of it. The tablecloths may cost any amount, according to the size. These particular cloths will be large enough to seat eight people, three yards square, and will cost $75 each. The napkins are all 30 inches square, and are used for general purposes, though for some special occasions the larger size will be used. Napkins and tablecloths of this quality, it is to be understood, of course, are of the plain damask, satin damask, one might say, until they had heard of satin damask which costs a dollar a yard, when the term seems to have lost its significance. The cloths are plainly hemmed around the edge, and whatever embroidery is put on them in the way of an initial or monogram is extra. There are two other patterns that can be had in this fine linen, one a scroll and the other a flower design, a basket of flowers in the centre, with a wreath on the outside.

"This fine linen will wear forever, and in fact it seems never to wear out. In a wealthy household, like that of the woman who buys the linen in large quantities it receives harder wear than in many others, for a napkin is never used a second time, and the linen goes so frequently to the laundry that it has to be replenished often. That would not be the case in an ordinary household.

LINEN FOR WEDDING PRESENTS.

"Linen is something that figures more as wedding than as Christmas presents. When it is bought for a holiday gift it is seldom of the best quality. People do not spend a large sum of money for anything that is to go out of their own family, not even the more wealthy people. They may buy a tablecloth and napkins that will cost $5 each, but that would be the limit usually. There are, however, some people of whom this cannot be said, and a number of sets of table centres and doilies, fine linen with Cluny lace edges, were sent as gifts by one woman who paid from over $30 to nearly $50 a set for them. Each set would include one centrepiece and twelve doilies, edged with the lace and with insertion in the centrepieces.

"A present that is for a coming wedding and which will cost over $1,200 is a set of four tablecloths and four dozen napkins. The cloths are four yards in diameter—that is, extra width—they are round, and both cloths and napkins will be marked with the monogram of the receiver and with the date of the wedding. The monograms will be on either side of the centre of the tablecloths just inside the plate line, so that there will be room on the outside for the plate to stand and room inside for any kind of a centrepiece. On the napkins they will be in the corner when the napkin has been folded square and then folded again. That is the only place for a mark, and it is put in without regard to the pattern of the linen.

"Almost all linen is embroidered with initial, crest, or monogram, and this forms a large part of the expense of the linen. A woman of good taste will frequently select a certain monogram, and all her linen will be marked with it. It will become, in a way, the insignia of her household, as other people have a crest on their linen. Then again people with tastes in a different line will select as many different designs as possible. I have known a single order for embroidery to amount to $1,000. That would include table and bed linen and towels. There was not so much of it, either. There will be three days' work in the embroidering of an eight-inch monogram, and it is expensive. A woman, who is an admirer of fine embroidery, seeing some handsome centrepieces the other day, gave an order which amounted to $400, but that did not represent many pieces. In the embroidery the initial is frequently surmounted by the crest, and in handkerchiefs the full name is often embroidered.

"I remember one woman who paid $6 for some table linen and $21 for the embroidery on it. She was an uneducated woman who had married a wealthy man; she had been a servant in the family. I believe Money was no object to her, and she would have been very glad to have bought the best linen, but she bought the $6 linen not knowing the difference, before any one had a chance to show here anything better, and in making arrangements for the embroidery she had the best that could be put on it. As a rule women do not know the difference in linen except as to see the difference in the quality. They do not know the goods of one manufacturer from another. They depend largely upon the man from whom they purchase, as he depends upon the manufacturer. Occasionally a woman will ask for the linen of some particular make which she has been in the habit of using. One woman, going abroad, bought some linen in Dresden and, returning to New York, insisted upon having the linen of this particular man. He had his own name upon his goods, although he was not a manufacturer. It was explained to her that she could get exactly the same goods in New York, but she insisted that nothing would suit her but the linen from this Dresden man. There was no reason why she should not have the goods of that man if she wished them, and an order was sent to Dresden, the goods were sent on, and the woman paid $150 for them and was delighted. She would have been robbed if she had paid $75 to any dealer in town for goods of the same quality, but she had been obliged to pay the profit of the Dresden man, who bought of the same manufacturers who sent goods to New York, and his own prices were exorbitant, and there was the cost of sending the goods on to New York, with all the duties. But the woman was satisfied, which was all that was necessary.

"In towels, the fine huckaback sorts are the best. For people who like extra fine towels there are the Italian towels, which are of fine huckaback and have a long fringe of fine linen. In table centres, doilies for plates and fingerbowls, all in white are the best. Where there are some beautiful pieces sold in the colored embroideries thrown upon the lace edge or with drawn work, they were more used a year or two ago. Those trimmed with the hand-made Cluny lace are now the best. The Cluny is a handsome lace and strong and serviceable. There are many pieces of handsome drawn work sold, either for table or bed covers. Much of this work is done in the Canary Islands, where there is an industry which is becoming extensive and where as good work as the Mexican is done."

Scientific French Barbers.

From The London Lancet.

The crusade against microbes and bacilli has now extended to the barbers' shops in Paris. In front of each chair there is a gas burner. Bone or celluloid combs are no longer employed; metallic combs are used instead. The barber turns on the gas, and before he commences operations he slowly passes his metallic comb several times through the flames. His scissors and razor are likewise thus purified by fire and his customer is reassured by witnessing this burning up of all the microbes before his hair is touched with the instruments. The risk from the brush is mitigated by the constant use of antiseptic hairwash, in which thymol, on account of its pleasant odor, is the favorite ingredient.

HISTORIC MANUSCRIPT FOUND IN A GARRET.

Original Draft of the Declaration of Independence.

The rescue of a copy of one of the most historic documents in the history of the United States—the Declaration of Independence—from destruction in a Southern attic is one of the achievements which Elliot Danforth, lawyer and politician, is proud. The document was in the handwriting of Thomas Jefferson. It was lost and forgotten, and in a few years would have been destroyed by worms if Mr. Danforth in one of his rambles over historic ground had not thought of the document.

It is supposed that there were but five drafts of the Declaration of Independence in the hand of Thomas Jefferson. One of these copies was sent by Thomas Jefferson to Benjamin Franklin. His other associates on the committee, John Adams, Richard R. Livingston, Richard Henry Lee, and Roger Sherman, were supposed to have received copies. The searchers after historic manuscripts located all the copies of the Declaration in Jefferson's hand except that supposed to have been sent to Richard Henry Lee. This draft was classed among the lost historic records.

Mr. Danforth several years ago thought that a search for the missing document should be made. He went to Alexandria, Va., the home of some descendants of the Revolutionary Lee family. The story of the search is best told in Mr. Danforth's own words:

"I was on my way south several years ago, and the thought struck me that I would stop at some of the historic places to try and find some documents for my collection. The thought came to my mind that possibly the Lee copy of the Declaration of Independence might be in existence somewhere.

"I visited Alexandria and attended the church in which Washington worshipped. I made the acquaintance of Cassius F. Lee of Virginia, a direct descendant of Richard Henry Lee, and in conversation I talked about the number of historic papers and autographs I had of men famous in the early history of this country. We talked about the old Lee family documents, and I bought from Mr. Cassius F. Lee at that time several letters written by and sent to Richard Henry Lee and Francis Lightfoot Lee. During the conversation I spoke to Mr. Lee about the supposed existence of a copy of the Declaration of Independence in the handwriting of Thomas Jefferson, sent to his illustrious ancester. Mr. Lee said that he thought that somewhere among the old papers of the Lee family it might be found. I remarked casually to him: 'If you run across it, let me know, and I will be glad to possess it. You can name your own price for the document.'

"I did not again visit Alexandria, but kept the matter in mind, intending some time to find out what efforts Cassius F. Lee had made to find the Lee draft.

"Several years after I was surprised to receive a letter. It was to the effect that after a long search Mr. Cassius F. Lee had discovered, in the attic of one of the old Lee houses in Virginia, the missing document, and offering to dispose of it for $300. I promptly sent him the check and received the draft. I was surprised when it reached me. In a few years the valuable document would have been destroyed by moths. It was in fairly good condition, however. There were some little holes in the paper, which I suppose were made by mice. When I examined the document carefully, I was more than pleased. I found it to be one of the best specimens of the handwriting of Thomas Jefferson in existence. The writing was clear and distinct. The draft of the Declaration was written on paper about the size of foolscap. I think there are three or four pages written on both sides."

The subsequent history of the draft is also surprising. Mr. Danforth kept it for several years among his valuable collection of Revolutionary documents. Another collector named Dr. Thomas A. Emmett, a warm personal friend of Mr. Danforth, prized the Jefferson document highly. He kept talking about the intense desire he had to possess some handwriting of Thomas Jefferson, and one day he said to Mr. Danforth:

"'You and I have been dear friends. I would prize that Jeffersen draft more than anything else in the world. Sell it to me for $2,500. You will make me happy by so doing.'

Mr. Danforth, much against his judgment from the mercenary standpoint, said:

"'All right, doctor. You shall have the draft. I know it is worth much more, but it cost me only $300. I am glad to put it in the hands of an old friend.'

When telling the story to a TIMES reporter, Mr. Danforth shook his head and said:

"I could not resist selling it to Dr. Emmett at his figure."

"What is the document worth now?"

"I suppose about $25,000. In a few years it would be of almost priceless value, in the hands of a private collector. No one can tell how much. In twenty years some wealthy man might have been very willing to pay $50,000 or even more. Copies of the Declaration of Independence in the handwriting of Thomas Jeffersen are not to be found every day."

The Declaration has found a resting-place in the Lenox Library collection. The four foolscap pages were taken by Dr. Emmett and he had them handsomely inlaid by Trent.

The historic papers which Dr. Emmett collected were sold to the Lenox Library for a very large sum of money, and the Declaration was the most highly valued document.

Mrs. Danforth, the wife of Elliot Danforth, is also a bibliographer. Mrs. Danforth is the only woman in the United States who possesses a complete set of the original autographs of the signers of the Declaration of Independence. There are about twenty-five complete sets in existence. Mr. Danforth has one set and his wife another. A set of these autographs was sold a few years ago for $4,650.

In speaking of his Revolutionary collection, Mr. Danforth said:

"I have a very fine collection of autographs of famous Generals who fought in the Revolution. Among them are those of Gen. Washington, Richard Montgomery, 'Mad Anthony' Wayne, Nathaniel Green, the two Clintons, James and George; Schuyler, Knox, Putnam, Gates, and many others. I have sets of autograph letters and documents of the famous Republican Convention of 1754 and the Stamp Act Congress of 1765. I have a set of autographs of members of the Continental Congress from 1774 to 1780, with Presidents, Vice Presidents, United States Senators from New York. I have a set of the autographs of signers of the Articles of Confederation, the members of the Federal Convention, the Hartford Convention, and the Convention to frame the Constitution of the United States of 1787."

In Mr. Danforth's collection is the letter Gov. Pickens sent to Gen. Beauregard, ordering him to open fire on Fert Sumter the following morning.

The great value which may be attached to the autograph of a person unknown to fame, except as the signer of some great document, is shown by a story told by Mr. Danforth.

"I had a complete copy of the signers of the Declaration of Independence, and another set with the autograph of Button Gwinett of Georgia missing. I told Mrs. Danforth if she would purchase that autograph I would give her the balance of the set. Charles P. Greenough of Boston had the autograph needed, and Mrs. Danforth paid $650 for a very small slip of paper. It was not such a bad bargain, as she received for $650 a complete set. The last sale of such a set was for $4,650."

Among the other historic documents which Mr. Danforth possesses is a letter written by President Lincoln on war topics.

Houses on "Made Ground."

From The London Globe.

Good gravel has se largely come into request that many suburban lands with that valuable substratum are quarried to a considerable depth before being sold on building leases. But it is essential to restore a level surface, as even the most speculative builder would hesitate to run up "neat villa residences" in deep holes. The owner frequently gets over this difficulty by allowing urban refuse to be shot into the excavations; in many cases he even exacts a small sum for every load tilted on his ground. The surface being thus leveled, a year or two is allowed for the soil to sink and become compact; occasionally grass is sown to give a natural appearance to the spot. All is now in readiness for the builder, who proceeds to lay the foundations for his "terraces," "avenues," and "gardens," which he subsequently advertises as "on gravel soil." So they are; but between their ground floors and the gravel lies a thick stratum of partially decomposed rubbish, teeming with malaria, and not for many years will the deposits cease to give off noxious gases. But the tenant coming from a different locality knows nothing of the "making" process to which the plot has been subjected. When, therefore, ill-health dogs his family, he puts it down to defective drainage or some other structural deficiency, and spends money freely on remedial measures, without the least benefit. All this misery might be prevented if it were legally prohibited to build human habitations on deposited refuse until a sufficiently long period for the soil to have acquired a wholesome character.

FOR THE CUP'S DEFENSE

How the Yachts Will Be Managed in the Races.

TRIALS FOR THE NEW BOATS

Work Progressing Rapidly on the Syndicate Defender in the Herreshoff Shops at Bristol.

Special to The New York Times.

BRISTOL, R. I., Jan. 5.—In preparing for the contests next Summer on board the Bristol cup defender William Butler Duncan and Capt. Urias Rhodes are to be reinforced by under officers, who, it is agreed, are the best racing men in the judgment of Capt. Rhodes. In his line First Mate Howell is reported to be second to none in the command of a crew of seamen. Although not as well known in Rhode Island as Second Mate Nelson, who has spent years on the thirty-footers and seventy-footers, Mr. Howell, it is understood from those who know him, is fearless and a man of cool judgment in narrow quarters when in a race. With such officers as Howell and Nelson to support Capt. Rhodes in his handling of the new craft, it is the report that, unlike the plan on the Lawsen sloop, Mr. Duncan will not engage an advisory skipper.

According to report, the Lawson boat is to be brought to Newport next seasen seon after being launched, to be tried out in races with the new Bristol boat and the Columbia. Such news creates considerable interest in Bristol among yachting people, due greatly to the published reports. The proposed scraps off Brenton's Reef will precede the trial races. It is by no means certain that the Lawson craft will be enabled to try issues with the Belmont boat until the formal trial contests are held. From information gleaned here the new Belmont syndicate craft is to be thoroughly tried out and tuned up with the Columbia before it will be decided to try issues with other boats. Such proposed plans are dissected with expressed opinions which state that former cup defenders always contested in the cup races off Newport in racing season, and that it would dull the interest at Newport if the Goelet and Astor Cup races were to be sailed without all the new boats that are to contest for the honor of defending the cup taking part.

The lower bay, in the deep channels between Gould Island and Bristol Ferry, it is learned, will be a favorite stamping ground for Columbia and the new boat early next June. No fears are heard expressed in Bristol relative to the announcement that Capt. Haff has received the appointment as skipper of the Lawson sloop.

With the arrival of about all the Tobin bronze plates that are needed for the sheathing of the new cup defender, together with the shipment of a large lot of nickel steel plates within the week, the platers and riveters at Bristol have about all the work they can handle just at present. Some new hands have been engaged in the steel department, but it does not appear that all the skilled help in this line can be procured just now. The demand for such mechanics is greater than it was two years ago when the Columbia was under construction. In two weeks more the plating will begin on the yacht, calling for mere hands.

The keel plate sections were brought to the south shop within a week, all bored for the screw bolts and fitted upon the upper surface of the lead keel. Lying about the floor of this shop in piles are tons of bronze plating, steel plating, steel frames, floor plates, stem and sternpost, the two latter pieces cast in bronze. Within a few days the pattern for the rudder frame casting was shaped out. The rudder will hang on the sternpost of the new boat at an angle of about 45 degrees, and provision is made for three pintle sleeves on the after end of the sternpost. A good many cases of rivets, both of steel and bronze, have been shipped to Bristol from Pawtucket the past week. A number of these rivets are the new kind that are to be tried in the "tapping" process of fastening. It is found that several of the new style rivets finished off with a threaded end, do not stand the tapping as well as those not threaded. In experiments the threads broke away.

The forty-six-footer Altair having been launched from the north shop, the work of riveting the new steel masts for the cup defender can be carried on with considerable room to work in. Later, when the sloops Effort and Altair, damaged in a fire last September, are out of the way, the work of making the two masts can be carried on.

The consignment of steel angle irons, for lack of which work on the new cup defender has been greatly delayed, arrived today from Phoenixville, Penn., by fast freight.

Two teams were waiting at the station, and the irons were taken at once to the yard.

There are from 140 to 150 in the lot, varying from 18 to 30 feet in length. Some are 2 inches wide at the face and 1½ inches wide at the web, while others are 1¾ inches at the face and 1 inch at the web.

The work of fastening the keelplates to the lead keel is progressing rapidly. One hundred large Tobin bronze screws, four-fifths of an inch long, will be placed in each section of plate, attaching it to the keel. The boring of the plates on one side is entirely finished, ready for the frames. The bolting will probably be finished by Monday night, and the frames are expected to be bent in time to set up Tuesday.

Work was begun to-day on the steel mast for the new boat, the sheets of steel, three-sixteenths of an inch through, being bent in semi-circular form. Cutting out the circular pieces of steel for use in stiffening the mast also was commenced. One of these pieces will be used for every six or eight feet of mast. Some of the lighter angle iron also may be used to further stiffen the mast.

A New Twin-Screw Yacht.

Leonard Lewisohn of this city has ordered a twin screw steel steam yacht to be built in time for use during the coming season. The principal dimensions will be as follows: Length over all, 135 feet; length on the water line, 130 feet; beam, 18 feet; depth, 10 feet; draught, 7 feet 6 inches.

The yacht will be flush deck, schooner rigged, with pole masts. There will be a deckhouse forward, which will be used as a dining room; in the after part a butler's pantry will be arranged, with an entrance from the main dining saloon. There will also be an after deckhouse or social hall, constructed substantially the same as the forward house. The entrance to the main saloon will be from the after deckhouse.

Below decks, starting at the bow, the chain locker is arranged. Next aft is the boatswain's locker, followed by the lamp-room, and the next compartment aft is the crew's room.

Aft of the crew's room comes the forecastle and the officers' staterooms, and following the officers' quarters is the galley, the full width of the vessel.

Next aft is the boiler and engine spaces. A large coal bunker runs the full width of the vessel directly aft of the galley, and there are also large coal bunkers running fore and aft of boiler room. The machinery consists of two triple expansion marine engines, twin screws, and a patent safety water tube boiler of the latest design.

Directly aft of the machinery compartment is the owner's bathroom, extending the full width of the yacht, and immediately following the bathroom, and connecting with same, are two large staterooms for the owner. Sliding doors connect these two staterooms.

Aft of the owner's quarters will be two double staterooms for guests, with passageway between, and following the guest staterooms and connecting with them will be arranged a guests' bathroom and a toilet room. Next aft is the main saloon, finished in white and gold, with skylight overhead, and large divan couches, to be used for sleeping on if desired.

The yacht will have an electric light plant with dynamo, engine, &c., and storage batteries for use when the yacht is not running. A searchlight will be fitted at the bows. The vessel will also have steam steering gear, steam windlass, which will also be arranged for handling the launch tender, and will be steam heated throughout. The guaranteed speed of the yacht is eighteen miles per hour, and it will be ready for delivery May 1 next. The boat will be used principally by Mr. Lewisohn for running between Sandy Hook and New York daily.

The builders, the Gas Engine and Power Company, and Charles L. Seabury & Co., Consolidated, Morris Heights on the Harlem, are to supply the yacht in commission, with crew aboard, all ready for owner's service.

Work on the Boston Yacht.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Jan. 5.—Designer B. B. Crowninshield said to-day that the work of laying down the lines of the Lawsen cup defender would be probably completed by Monday. After that the patterns will be made and the work of bending and shaping the frames will be begun.

Consulting Engineer Boyd of the Atlantic Works of East Boston says that the shed in which the boat will be built is nearly constructed. The keel will probably be cast this week, and the work will probably be done by the Hart-Spiller Company. The steel frames are to come from Bethlehem, Penn. These will be cast and bent there and set up at East Boston. The work will appear slow, and it may be some time before one piece is welded to another.

Mr. Crowninshield said he was glad to hear about Mr. Cunniff and others going into the Hanley syndicate for the centreboard boat. "I don't think that Hanley has the right idea," said he, "but it is best to know these things surely, and I hope the boat will be built. Nothing has been done about securing Nate Watson for second Captain yet, but efforts will be made in this direction immediately. The construction of the boat is going along splendidly. I may appear slow, but we are accomplishing much. A list calling for 128 blocks has been prepared, and will be forwarded to the Colemans at Providence."

Work Slow on Shamrock II.

LONDON, Jan. 5.—Denny Brothers are increasing the precautions to prevent anything leaking out regarding the construction of the Shamrock II. No great progress appears to have been made so far, though a dredger is busily engaged clearing a channel, outside the yard, 22 by 6 feet.

There is much interest in yachting circles over L. C. Currie's challenge for the Seawanhaka Cup. He is as determined as Sir Thomas Lipton to leave no stone unturned which could aid his success. He is building no less than three boats—one at Harley & Meade's, Cowes, and the others at Stevens' yard, at Southampton. A fourth boat may be built, so that by next July Mr. Currie hopes to have the very best English talent can produce for the international contest.

ICE YACHTS TO RACE.

North Shrewsbury Will Be the Scene of Contests Next Week.

Special to The New York Times.

RED BANK, N. J., Jan. 5.—In all probability the ice yachting season on the North Shrewsbury River will begin in earnest on Monday. On the north and south shores the ice is at least six inches thick, and the only weak spot is in the middle of the river, which has had only three nights' freezing. This, it is believed, will be strong enough by Monday to bear the weight of the second-class yachts. The weather is cold to-night, and the yachtsmen are hopeful that it will continue so in order that the larger boats of the club may be launched before many days.

Some small boats were out to-day on the north shore of the river, but there was no racing. Among them was the new boat belonging to W. Strother Jones of New York which was recently built by Augustus Haviland. Another new boat which will make its appearance next week is Charles Burd's. This is a third-class yacht, and is expected to be very fast. The Scud, owned by James B. Weaver, is nearly in shape for racing. This is the yacht that has tried to win the championship pennant of America from the Hudson River Club. Mr. Weaver has had the yacht altered to meet the new sailing conditions for the pennant. The first race to be sailed next week will be that called by Commodore Samuel W. Morford for second and third class yachts. Then will come the regular pennant races, and the race for the New Jersey challenge pennant for which the Burlington Club has challenged.

SKATING RECORD REDUCED.

Harry P. McDonald Beat the Indoor Time of Leroy See.

At the Claremont Avenue Rink, Brooklyn, last night good fields of well known skaters lined up for the several events. The fifteen lap track was in capital condition, and fast time was made. The feature of the night was the skating of Harry P. McDonald, the Heffley School and New York Athletic Club crack, who reduced the record for a quarter of a mile indoors, making the distance 2 3-5 seconds faster than the previous time made by Le Roy See two years ago. Ward Claflin won a match race against Deering, and Peter Sinnlurd, the Norwegian, defeated a fine field in the one-mile handicap. The summaries:

One-Mile Match Race.—Won by Ward Claflin, Pawnee Athletic Club; Harry J. Deering, Bay Ridge Athletic Club, second. Time—3:34.

Quarter-Mile Against 0:46 3-5. World's Rink Record.—Won by Harry P. McDonald, Heffley School and New York Athletic Club. Time—0:44 1-5.

One-Mile Handicap.—Won by Peter Sinnlurd, Christiania, Norway, scratch; A. E. Davis, Erasmus Hall High School, Flatbush, L. I., 80 yards, second; Hugh Pallister, Heffley School, Brooklyn, 80 yards, third. Time—3:15.

The Chances.

"You say our friend insisted that he had a plan for a perpetual-motion machine and a formula for converting base metals into gold?"

"Yes."

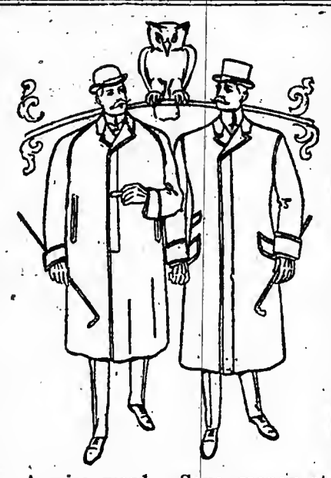
"I wonder what has become of him."

"If he stuck to his workshop they have probably locked him up. But if he went out and organized a few stock companies, he is no doubt rich and comfortable."—Washington Star.

Not Disposed to Dispute.

Aunt Hannah—Oh, you fool of a girl! Just because a man tells you you are the prettiest woman in the world, and the wisest and the sweetest, you believe him.

Arabella—And why shouldn't I? Do you know, Aunty, I kind er think so myself.—Boston Transcript.



A wise word. Save money at our Remnant Sale.

We have it twice a year, and thereby make many sterling friends. Will you give us an opportunity to make a friend of you?

Our quotations are: Suit to order, $14; former price from $16 to $40. Coat and vest, $10.50; formerly from $12 to $30. Trousers, $4; formerly from $5 to $10. Overcoats, satin lined, $20. One hundred styles of fancy waistcoats, silk trimmed, $6. We claim they are double value. If you think otherwise, money back.

Our Full-dress and Tuxedos, silk lined and faced, at $30, are the best value that can be obtained anywhere.

ARNHEIM,

Broadway and 9th Street.

Ehrich Bros. Ehrich Bros.

In Connection With the Great 59c Underwear Sale,

We Offer Three Complete Sample Lines of Fine Garments. Over 1,400 Pieces from Finest Makers. Prices Less Than Half.

To the best of our knowledge—and it's part of our business to be well informed—there are no other offers in the United States as good as these to-day. The underwear store has been enlarged a third to accommodate the garments from this latest purchase—a purchase that included every stitch that three great makers had, including sample lines of the best garments on the market, comprising Night Gowns, Corset Covers, Skirts and Drawers, umbrella shape, Skirt-Length Chemises, Kimono and Negligee House and Lounging Gowns.

These are made of the very finest lawns, cambrics, nainsooks and muslins, trimmed with exquisite embroideries, laces and ribbons. They have been divided into six distinct lots, and at these prices are absolutely the best values we have ever offered or heard of. Every one of these is worth at least twice and in many cases three times, these figures. We believe they will make the most comprehensive and important sale of the kind ever held. The clearing prices are 79c., 98c., 1.29, 1.98, 2.98, 3.98

With the above we shall offer 200 pieces of fine Silk Underwear, representing samples purchased at 50c. on the dollar. The selling prices will create a furor among lovers of genuine bargains. There are Negligee Gowns, Lounging Gowns, Umbrella Drawers and Skirt-Length Chemises, with rich trimmings of assorted patterns of lace insertions and edgings.

Important Lace Offers.

REAL HAND-RUN BLACK SPANISH LACE FICHUS, value $5.00, each	2.98
RUSSIAN LACE ALLOVERS, 20 inches wide, value $2.98 yard, at, yard, $1.39 and	1.98
REAL RUSSIAN LACE COLLARS, value $5.00 each, at $2.98 and	1.98
CREAM PT. DE VENICE RUSSIAN LACE BANDS AND WAVY GALONS, value double these prices, at, yd., 39c., 48c., 69c.	79c
White Point de Paris and Valenciennes LACES, with insertions to match; finest quality and a large variety of designs; value 15c. to 25c., at, per yard, 5c., 6c., 8c. and	10c
Real hand made TORCHON LACES, 4 inches wide, insertions to match; value 40c. yard, at, per yard	22c
REAL HAND-MADE TORCHON LACES, value 30c. yd., at, yd.	15c
REAL HAND-MADE RUSSIAN LACES AND GALONS, value $1.50 yard, at, yard	48c
FINE TORCHON LACES AND INSERTIONS, 2 to 4 inches wide, value 12c. yd., at, yd.	5c
Chiffon and Veilings.
ALL-SILK MOUSSELINE DE SOIE AND CHIFFON, 45 inches wide, all shades; value 69c. regular, at, yd.	39c
SILK VEILINGS, all the new meshes, plain and chenille and velvet spotted; value 25c. yd., at, yd.	12½c

Opening of the New Spring Silks.

Our opening of new Printed Foulards on Monday will be the largest and most exclusive in the history of our Silk Store. Styles and colorings that positively cannot be found elsewhere, or duplicated later, are here for your inspection.

We intend to make Monday a record breaker by offering in our Silk Department the best values we have ever shown. Note the values:

Superior quality plain TAFFETA SILK, in 65 leading evening and street colors, including white and cream, also black, very heavy, with high rustle and finish; regular 85c. quality; Monday only	59c
24-inch PRINTED FOULARDS, all pure silk, latest spring colors and new pretty designs; the value is 75c.; our price only	58c
SATIN LUMINEUX, all pure silk, very popular for full dresses and waists, in all the leading evening and street colors; the 90c. grade at	79c
27-inch black TAFFETA, good, heavy quality, with brilliant lustre; value 80c., here at	59c
Special sale of black "guaranteed" TAFFETA SILK that we guarantee if not given entire satisfaction in six months to give new silk in its place; prices, per yard, from 69c. to	1.25
Black PEAU DE SOIE, GROS GRAIN and SATIN DUCHESSE, fine dress qualities, very heavy, with superior soft, rich finish; usually retailed at $1.19, for this sale	98c

6th Ave. and 23d St. 6th Ave. and 23d St.

NEW BASEBALL AGREEMENT.

American Association to be Revived to Fight Johnson.

Special to The New York Times.

LOUISVILLE, Jan. 5.—As the result of a meeting held at the Louisville Hotel this afternoon, signatures were secured to an agreement which provides for a revival of the American Association under the backing and influence of the National League, and also for the purpose of fighting Ban Johnson and the American League, and preventing him from getting possession of the surplus players of the National League, as under the rule recently adopted each National League team is to be limited to sixteen players.

There were present at the meeting W. H. Watkins of Indianapolis, Harry C. Pulliam, late Secretary of the Pittsburg Club, and J. J. Saunders, H. B. Burford, and John J. McCloskey, all of Louisville, the latter formerly manager of the Louisville League Club. John T. Brush was expected to be present, but he failed to arrive.

Papers have been drawn and a meeting has been decided upon to be held in two weeks, at which final organization will be perfected and the National League asked to sanction the association and distribute the players. There are, as stated, eight clubs, but there may be ten, as not only will Indianapolis abandon the American League, but Detroit may also do so, in which event Philadelphia will be added. The circuit, managers, and backers, so far as known, and the playing fields, will be as follows: New York—Manhattan Field, backed by Andrew Freedman; Boston—Charles River Park, Arthur Irwin; Baltimore—Union Park, Von der Horst, Robinson, and McGraw; Washington—League Park, the Wagners; Louisville—League Park, Burford, Saunders, and McCloskey; St. Louis—Al Spink; Milwaukee—H. D. Quin and Kech; Indianapolis—W. H. Watkins and American League team. Possibly; Philadelphia—F. C. Richter; Detroit—Burns and Stallings and American League team. The question of an eight or ten club circuit depends upon whether Detroit cuts loose from Johnson.

John McGraw is said to have been brought around by Andrew Freedman, and something good is in store for him. If Robinson manages Baltimore, McGraw might manage the resurrected Metropolitans on Manhattan Field.

It is also said Harry Pulliam is to be made Secretary of the National League. Nick Young remains at the head as President, and as Secretary it is expected that Pulliam will be given charge of the American Association.

The Little Girls and the Sentry.

From The London Chronicle's War Letter.

From Koomati Poort I drove to Barberton, making forced marches, and reached it in two days. The whole country, cool after the rains, was green with the promise of Spring. Little rivulets trickled where before had been dry sand, a parched arid desert had become a flower garden.

In the course of an evening saunter I came across three little mites, hand in hand, standing fearfully some ten to twenty paces from a picket. The sentry, a stalwart cavalryman, paced his beat smartly, and looked imposing, even in khaki. The eldest of the children was a girl, perhaps six years old; the other two clung to each side of her skirts. As I approached, the leader of the party said, "We want to go past, please." "Very well," I said, "go on; nobody will hurt you." "But," she said, "won't the sentry stop us?" "Tell him you are a little English girl," I replied. Three little figures moved timidly forward. The sentry had overheard the conversation, and his eye twinkled grimly. "Halt! who goes there?" rang out in stentorian tone; then in childish treble, "Please, I'm a little English girl." "Pass, little English girl, all's well"; the butt of a rifle clanked on the stone pavement, and the sentry stood at ease with as much precision as if he had been on guard at Whitehall itself. The little party, with beating hearts, but heads erect, walked past the post, full of the pride of race and of conquest.

Modified Stop.

"Papa, what do I say when I want him to stop?" asked Sammy, who was taking his first lesson in driving.

"Pull on the lines and say 'Whoa!'" replied his father.

A moment later the horse started down a slope in the road at a trot that soon became almost a gallop.

Sammy's mind acted quickly.

"Half-whoa!" he said, pulling gently on the lines.—Chicago Tribune.

BRAVERY IN BATTLE.

Curious Extracts from the Order Book of the Gallant Gen. Wolfe.

From The London Express.

Some curiously interesting matter has lately been unearthed from an old order book of the Twentieth Regiment, the "Minden boys," now the Lancashire Fusiliers, which emanated from the heroic soldier Wolfe when Colonel of the regiment, about 1750.

Their bearing upon military conduct in the field makes them very distinctly topical just now.

"Whoever shall throw away his arms in an action, whether officer, non-commissioned officer, or soldier, (unless it appears they are so damaged as to be useless,) either under the pretense of taking up others that are of a better sort or for any other cause whatsoever, must expect to be tried by a court-martial for the crime.

"The death of an officer commanding a company or platoon shall be no excuse for the confusion or misbehavior of that platoon; for, while there is an officer or non-commissioned officer left alive to command, no man is to abandon his colors or betray his country.

"Neither officer, non-commissioned officer, or soldier is to leave his platoon or abandon the colors for a slight wound. While a man is able to do his duty, and stand and hold his arms, it is infamous to retire.

"The battalion is not to halloo, or cry out, upon any account whatseever, although the rest of the troops should do it, until they are ordered to charge with their bayonets; in that case, and when they are on the point of rushing upon their enemy, the battalion may give a warlike shout and rush in.

"The soldier who takes his musket from his shoulder and pretends to begin the battle without orders will be put to death that instant. The cowardice or irregular proceeding of one man is not to put the whole in danger.

"The soldier who quits his ranks or offers to fly is instantly to be put to death by the officer who commands the platoon. A soldier does not deserve to live who will not fight for his King and country.

"If a non-commissioned officer or private man is missing after an action and joins his company afterward unhurt, he will be reputed a coward and a fugitive, and will be tried for his life.

"If we attack a body less in extent than the battalion, the platoons upon the wings must be careful to direct their fire obliquely so as to strike the enemy. The officers are to inform the soldiers of their platoons before the action begins where they are to direct their fire; and they are to take a good aim to destroy their adversaries.

"There is no necessity for firing very fast. A cool, well-levelled fire, with the pieces carefully loaded, is much more destructive and formidable than the quickest fire in confusion. (The soldiers are to take their orders entirely from the officer of their platoon, and he is to give them with all possible coolness and resolution.) The misbehavior of any other corps will not affect this battalion, because the officers are determined to give the strongest proofs of their fidelity, zeal, and courage, in which the soldiers will second them with their usual spirit.

"The men should consider that they are upon the point of entering in to a war for the defense of their country; that a drunken, vicious, irregular army is but a poor defense to a State; but their virtue, courage, and obedience are a sure guard in all assaults; they should, therefore, always be ready to perform their part with honor and spirit, and not give themselves up to any excess or irregularity. In times like these both officers and soldiers should particularly exert themselves in every part of the duty, and show their country that they deserve its esteem and admiration by their zeal, fidelity, and valor."

The principles on which the British soldier should fight vary little to this day from those inculcated by General Wolfe.

All His Fault.

Mr. Binks, (whose invalid wife insists on boarding)—Look here, now. The Medical Record says nothing will improve a woman's health like sweeping, baking, bedmaking, dish-washing, and polishing the silver.

Mrs. Binks—Huh! You know very well you ne.er got me any silver to polish. No wonder I'm sick.—New York Weekly

International Armor Brand

BOND 3 IN. HELENA 2¾IN. BOULEVARD 2½IN.

NEW CREATIONS

Shirts, Collars, Cuffs.

AN AMIABLE ENGLISHMAN.

Mr. Labouchere Does Not Like Our Way with the Nicaragua Canal, but He Would Accede.

From The London Truth.

That there should be a ship canal uniting the Gulf of Mexico with the Pacific is to the interest of all nations, but more especially of the United States, as it would connect by a sea passage their Eastern and Western States. In 1850 the Clayton-Bulwer treaty was signed. By its provisions it was agreed that if such a canal was made, both countries should join in making it; that neither should have exclusive right over the waterway and its approaches; and that the canal should be open to the commerce of the world. By the Hay-Pauncefote treaty, the former treaty is so far abrogated that, while the principle of neutrality is maintained, military occupation is permissible by the United States. This is the present position. The amendment inserted by the Senate adds a clause by which the United States may take measures, if necessary, for securing by its own forces the defense of the United States and the maintenance of public order.

ELLIOTT BEAT DAVENPORT

Shooting at 100 Live Birds at Inter-State Park Traps.

WINNER KILLED NINETY-FOUR

Morfey Won the Shoot for New Utrecht Gun Club Trophy at Twenty Live Birds.

One of the best pigeon-shooting contests of the season was decided yesterday, at Inter-State Park, Queens, L. I., when the veteran trap shooter J. A. R. Elliott of Kansas City and L. T. Davenport of New York met in a private match at 100 live birds. Mr. Elliott reached the shooting grounds fresh from his Western victory over Crosby for the Cast Iron Medal, a noted trophy for pigeon shooters, and dropped into his match with Davenport as a matter of course, taking it really as a preparation for his coming contest against R. A. Welch, winner of the Grand American Handicap in 1893, for the Dupont Championship Trophy, next week. Elliott's opponent gave him quite a race, however, and the pigeon shooters in attendance witnessed a splendid competition, though Elliott won in the end by a fairly safe margin. The winner, as in all his matches, shot his pump gun.

In the race the birds averaged fairly equal, though each shooter had some difficult ones. The best and fastest pigeon released fell to Davenport for his eighty-third shot. This was after one sluggish bird that would not fly had been loosed from the traps. All efforts failed to make it fly, and the gunner called for a new bird. This came in the shape of a strong, fast, left-quartering driver, a hard bird to hit, but the shooter brought it down, his first barrel killing, though he used his second barrel as a measure of safety. Straight through the match the birds were uncommonly fast and good. Elliott's lost birds were his first, sixth, twenty-sixth, sixty-second, eighty-seventh, and eighty-eighth. His eighty-seventh was a straight driver that was hard hit, but which landed just on the boundary, and, after wavering for a few seconds, fell dead out of bounds. Davenport's lost birds were his second, tenth, eighteenth, twenty-fourth, thirty-second, thirty-sixth, forty-third, forty-eighth, fifty-ninth, sixty-third, eighty-fourth, eighty-ninth, and ninety-third, all difficult birds. The score of the match is as follows:

J. A. R. Elliott, Kansas City—					K. M.
02122	*2222	22221	22212	21222	23 2
02222	22222	22222	22222	22222	24 1
22122	22211	10222	21222	11111	23 2
12122	11212	1*21	12221	11122	23 2
					94 6
L. T. Davenport, New York—
20222	22220	22122	22022	22220	21 4
22122	22202	02111	22212	22012	22 3
22211	22201	21012	22122	12221	23 2
22222	22202	22201	12*21	22212	23 3
					87 13

Following this shoot, the New Utrecht Gun Club shot off its regular programme. The chief event was for the New Utrecht Trophy, for which a good field competed, a tie at the finish being shot off, miss and out, and ended just before the light began to fail. The score of this event was as follows:

NEW UTRECHT TROPHY.

Conditions, 20 birds; handicap, one, two, and three birds; misses to count as kills.

Lincoln—
Yds. Hcp.
28 3	(1)(1)22(1)	20222	20222	22222—18	2
Hendricks—
28 2	2(1)2(1)2	22012	*2222	10022—16	4
A. Oakley—
27 3	2122(1)	11222	12122	12212—20	0
Jack—
29 2	222(1)2'	(1)2221	22222	*21*2 18	2
Fessenden—
29 2	2(2.(1)22	221*2	22022	22222—19	2
Sykes—
29 2	2-1)22(1)	20222	22*21	10220—17	3
J. A. Bennett—
28 3	2122(1)1	22210	22210	22*20—16	4
Capt. Jacks—
28 ..	22210	21212	022	21111—16	4
Lockwood—
28 3	1211 (1)11(1)(2)	20012	12011—17	3
Wood—
28 3	12(1)(1)1	11220	11200	2210*—15	5
Hendrickson—
28 ..	20220	*0201	20220	22102—12	8
Pierry—
29 ..	11110	202*2	100w—
Chapman—
29 2	222(1)1	10221	20222	20102—16	4
Kyrus—
28 2	12111	10021	01012	*1202—14	6
Norton—
28 1	(1)00	w—
Morfey—
29 0	22222	22222	22222	22222—20	0

Morfey, winner; Jack winner of second prize in miss and out which followed.

The meeting of the special committee appointed by the Governing Shooting Committee to report a constitution and by-laws for the new organization was not held, as only two of the five members were present. The Governing Committee held a meeting, however, and considered the reports of good progress made by the men appointed to look out for the interests of the committee. The regular meeting was set for next week.

To Organize Shooting Club.

Capt. James F. Conlin, realizing the need in this city of a general headquarters for the interchange of views and news of interest to the shooting fraternity in the vicinity of Greater New York, has sent out a call for a meeting at 513 Sixth Avenue to-morrow evening at 8:30 o'clock for the purpose of organizing a shooting club. A number of prominent shots have signified their intention of joining the new organization.

Capt. Sands Won the Shoot.

Special to The New York Times.

FLUSHING, L. I., Jan. 5.—Capt. William A. Sands, the noted trap shooter of the Hell Gate, Emerald, Flushing, and other well-known gun clubs, captured first honors at the tournament of the Flushing Gun Club held near here to-day, on the club's grounds. H. Hendrickson was the runner up and Edwin J. Clark and A. Dencourt tied for third honors. The shoot was well attended. Capt. Sands killed twenty-three out of his twenty-five birds in the main event.

Patterson Won the Chief Trophy.

George C. Patterson was the chief winner at the trap shooting tournament of the Brooklyn Gun Club, held yesterday on the club grounds, near Union Course, L. I. There was a big attendance of the members, and Patterson, with John S. Wright and H. S. Wells, was the main winner of the entire programme, which consisted of a number of clay bird trap shooting competitions.

Officers of Morristown F. C.

At the annual meeting of the Morristown Field Club, the following ticket was unanimously elected: President—Elliot Smith; Vice President—Robert H. McCurdy; Secretary—Richard B. Duyckinck; Treasurer—William J. Romaine; Additional Governors—John R. Brinley, C. Albert Rickard, and C. W. Throckmorton.

The Treasurer's report showed the club's finances to be in a flourishing condition, though over $1,000 had been spent in unusual improvements. The present membership is 578, a gain of 34 for the year. The club is kept open all the year round, and in Winter the members divide their time between skating, golf, pool, and bowling. Four acres of the grounds are flooded each Winter for a skating pond, on which the ice has already this season been used continuously for the past month.

In Summer golf, baseball, and tennis are the principal attractions. Last Fall the club held its third open-air horse show, which was pronounced by experts one of the best out-door horse shows of the year.

The membership is restricted on social lines, although the annual dues are but $10 for men and half that amount for women.

Low dues, its situation in the centre of Morristown, and good management have made the club one of the most successful of its kind in the country.

Sharkey and McCoy Matched.

"Tom" Sharkey and "Kid" McCoy were matched yesterday by "Jim" Kennedy of the Twentieth Century Athletic Club of San Francisco to meet in a twenty-round bout there on Feb. 28. Manager Kennedy has also engaged "Terry" McGovern to meet some man to be selected later. The second fight will take place some time in May.

BASKET BALL AT HARVARD.

Intercollegiate Games Being Arranged for Buffalo Exposition.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Jan. 5.—Plans are being made for a series of intercollegiate basketball games at the Pan-American Exposition at Buffalo, either the coming Spring or Fall. Jesse Dunn, Chairman of the Committee on Sports, has written a letter to Manager Jennings of the Crimson team asking him to consider the matter, and in reply Jennings has stated that Harvard will surely be represented if the series can be arranged.

The prospect of playing at the Pan-American has stimulated an interest in basketball at Harvard, which had already far exceeded that of previous years. Recognized by the athletic association for the first time this Fall, the game promises to become one of the leading sports in the big university. When the call for candidates was made early in October sixty men reported for work, and under systematic coaching some excellent material has been developed. At the present time the squad has been reduced to about twenty-five men, among whom are many prominent football and baseball players, who take basketball as a means for keeping in condition for the rougher outdoor sports.

Harvard is very fortunate in having for her Captain Clark, the old basketball player of Yale. Clark was graduated from Yale two years ago, and is now in the Harvard Law School. He is a player of wide experience, a man of great popularity, and enterprise, and is doing wonders with the material which he has on hand. In the most important game of the season—the game with Yale—he will be pitted against men who perhaps have played under him, but this will not mean that the Sons of Eli will have a walkover. Clark is a Harvard man now, and will play to win. The schedule follows:

Jan. 10, Salem Y. M. C. A., at Salem; Jan. 12, Williston, at East Hampton; Jan. 15, Holy Cross, at Worcester; Jan. 17, Lowell Y. M. C. A. at Lowell; Jan. 21, South Framingham Military Academy at South Framingham; Feb. 2, Dartmouth at Hanover; Feb. 9, Lawrence Y. M. C. A. at Lawrence; Feb. 11, Watertown Y. M. C. A. at Watertown; Feb. 14, Nashua Y. M. C. A. at Nashua; Feb. 15, Yale at New Haven; Feb. 19, Massachusetts Institute of Technology at Cambridge; Feb. 28, Fourth Separate Company at Yonkers, N. Y.; Feb. 23, Columbia at Schenectady; March 2, Washington Continentals at Schenectady; March 5, Orange A. A. at Orange, Mass.; March 9, Brockton A. A. at Brockton; March 10, Williams at Williamstown; March 20, Drury Academy at North Adams, Mass.; March 24, Fall River Y. M. C. A. at Fall River; March 29, Portland Y. M. C. A. at Portland, Me.

Basket Ball Managers Meet.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., Jan. 5.—The National League basket ball managers met here this afternoon to patch two of the black eyes the game has received in the last two weeks. In the Trenton case, where Referee Pratt was so roughly handled, there was not enough evidence at hand, and the league decided to reinstate Lindsey pending further investigation. To break up pugilism in the game it has been decided that any player who is disqualified for slugging shall be fined $25 for the first offense and the second time suspended.

In the future, the referee will not have power to disqualify a player between the halves, but in such cases he must prefer charges against the player and file the same with the President, to be acted upon at the next meeting of the league.

When the players who had collected in the lobby of the hotel heard what they will be up against, they began discussing the wisdom of forming a protective association.

Manager Smith of the Bristol team did not bring up the protest against the New York team, and the matter was dropped.

Yale Basket Ball Team Won.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Jan. 5.—Yale University basket ball team defeated Hiram College's team here to-night by a score of 22 to 7. Clarke of the Yale team took the honors, scoring nine goals from the field and two by fouls. Otherwise the teams were evenly matched. One thousand people were present.

WALTHOUR WON CYCLE RACE.

Boston's Six-Day Contest Closed with a Fast Sprint by the Leaders.

BOSTON, Jan. 5.—In another of the cyclone finishes for which he is famous, "Bobbie" Walthour of Atlanta, Ga., the Southern champion, and the seventy-three-hour world's champion, won the international six-day bicycle race at Park Square Garden, which ended to-night. He did not let himself out until the last lap, and when he did it did not seem as if any of the others were riding at all. Will C. Stinson of Cambridge came in second, while Archie McEachern of Toronto was third. The distance was 1,099 miles 2 laps.

The final score was: Walthour, (leading by two lengths,) 1,099.2; Stinson, 1,099.2; McEachern, 1,099.2; McLean, 1,099.2; Fischer, 1,099.2; Kaeser, 1,099.2; Downey, 1,099.2; Babcock and Muller left the track after the fifty-ninth hour, so the leaders could be given as clear a field as possible.

Among the most sensational features of the day were the gaining of laps by Babcock and Muller during the evening. The riding has been uniformly good, and was marred by no serious accidents. There were fully 16,000 people in attendance during the evening. The racing has been ten hours each day during the week, and ended at 11:00 to-night.

Babcock and Muller scores 1,081 and 1,071 miles, respectively.

ATHLETIC AND CYCLING MEET.

Eighth Regiment Armory Will Be Scene of Large Sporting Carnival.

Athletes and cyclists of the old school, the time when amateur cycling events were more popular than now, are very pleased at the interest and energy displayed in the coming double-night meeting of the Associated Cycle Clubs of New York and Company E, Eighth Regiment Infantry. The meeting will take place Jan. 19 and 26. The capacity of the armory floor is taxed to its utmost to accommodate the contestants for training purposes, the cyclists alternating with the athletes four nights a week in the use of the armory.

One of the principal reasons for the activity and animation shown in this meeting is the endeavor of the amateur bicycle riders to revive the sport, which has not received the attention it should have of late.

The following athletic events, open to all amateurs registered with the Amateur Athletic Union, will be decided: 60-yard dash, handicap; 300-yard run, handicap; 880-yard run, novice; one mile, handicap.

The cycling part of the programme will be made up of the following events: Two-mile handicap; one-mile handicap; one-mile novice, and five-mile pursuit race, limited to teams of two men from each organization.

As all the athletic events on the programme will be decided on the 26th, the entries will not close until the 21st inst., but the entries for the bicycle races will close promptly on the 14th inst. The entries will be received by M. B. Friederich or Capt. George F. Jacoby, at the armory, Ninety-fourth Street and Park Avenue, and cards giving training privileges on the armory track will be given each contestant upon receipt of his entry.

The following committee will manage the meeting: Capt. G. F. Jacoby, Chairman, Company E, Eighth Regiment; M. L. Bridgeman, New York Athletic Club; Lieut. G. H. Hart, Company E; M. B. Friederich, Harlem Wheelmen; Sergeant H. H. Hall, Company E; Edward Gerbereux, Knickerbocker Athletic Club; Sergt. J. F. Riley, Company E; Capt. A. S. Taylor, Royal Arcanum Wheelmen; Corporal H. W. Cole, Company E; Capt. G. W. Nagle, Madison Wheelmen.

Cycle Show at the Garden.

The National Cycle Exhibition Company will open its sixth annual exhibition at Madison Square Garden on Saturday, to last one week. The manufacturers, who have been constantly making improvements, will show many novelties in the 1901 models. Lightness and strength have been successfully accomplished. The motor cycle will be seen to advantage. A track in the hall below the amphitheatre will be used to show it in operation. Many of the automobiles that were in the recent exhibition will be shown, and little fellows, like the hydro-car and autorcette, will be notable.

TEAMS BRUSH ON SPEEDWAY.

Chicago Pair Won Two Trials Against Fast Local Horses.

Team racing was a prominent factor of the sport in the Speedway yesterday afternoon when three of the fastest and best known pairs were started to the satisfaction of the large crowd of spectators that lined the stretch. The roadbed was a trifle hard, but this did not seem to bother the teams in the least, especially Erin and Windsor, driven by H. O. Armour of Chicago, who carried off the honors, winning two heats out of three against the fast trotting pair Hattie Hogand and Antoinette, driven by E. B. Moran, and Louise Mac, 2:09¾, and Salient, with E. B. Gwathmey handling the reins. There were only two starters in the first heat, the Moran and Armour teams, which got away on fairly even terms. For the first quarter the Moran team set the pace, and then the Armour team began to close up on them gradually until the stretch was reached, when they were even. A desperate struggle followed, and it was either team's race until the Armour team, urged with whip and voice, made a spurt that landed them across the line a half length in front of their opponents. Louise Mac, 2:09¾, and Salient joined in the second brush, but made a poor showing, owing to the fact that it was the first time Salient had been put to the pole with Louise Mac, whose mate is Tiverton, 2:23¼. After several false starts the three teams were got away in very ragged form. Louise Mac and Salient set the pace for a short distance, when they were passed by the Armour team, which was being hard pressed by the Moran team. Nearing the finish, the Gwathmey team fell behind, and the Armour team, while leading, broke. Although they regained their footing almost instantly, the Moran team was by them like a shot, and won out easily. Only the Armour and Moran teams were started in the final, which was a race from start to finish. A better start could not have been made on a track, both teams catching at the same time and starting side by side. The first quarter was covered in remarkably fast time, without either team gaining as much as a foot. They came down the stretch under the whip with a clear road, and looked very much like a dead heat until the Armour team, when not more than fifty yards from the finish, jumped into the lead and made a grand-stand finish, winning by a head. The crowd was enthusiastic with its applause, and clamored for another brush, but nobody seemed willing but Mr. Armour.

Much surprise was caused by the speed shown by the trotter Louis Victor, 2:10, driven by Jack Curry, the trainer. He was turned to a very pretty start with Queen Wilkes, 2:12, driven by E. E. Smathers, and Alice Barnes, 2:11½, driven by George Spear. For the first quarter Louis Victor hung behind, letting Alice Barnes set the pace. Half way down the stretch he began to close the gap, and, making his spurt at the proper moment, passed his opponents and landed an easy victory race-record style. Queen Wilkes was a good second. On the way home Louis Victor and Alice Barnes met on the lower stretch and were started. This time Alice Barnes made a much better showing, but Louis Victor had a trifle too much speed for her, and won by a narrow margin. Johnny Agnew, 2:05¾, driven by A. C. Bostwick, was matched against Teddy Look, 2:20¾, driven by H. L. Stout, but did not seem to be in his usual form and lost the first heat by almost a length. The second go proved a much closer contest from start to finish, the two animals covering the last quarter close together. The curbstone brigade declared it a dead heat. The handsome trotter Little Coaster, 2:21½, driven by J. P. Batter, led Prestina, driven by George McBride, into camp, after a hotly contested brush.

Among the many who witnessed the sport was J. W. Cornish, driving the trotter David B., 2:09½; John F. Cockerill, with Swift and Honor Bright to the pole; B. Zahn, driving Dundess, 2:23¾, and E. C. Morton, driving the bay pacing team Melton, Jr., and Marguerite to the pole, and Charles Harriman, driving the green colt Blackman.

RACE TRACK RESULTS.

Monk Wayman Won the Audubon Handicap at New Orleans.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Jan. 5.—The Audubon Handicap, to-day's stake feature, was a drive from end to end of the mile and a sixteenth. Strangest was favorite in the betting, with Albert Vale a strong second choice, while Monk Wayman, who opened at threes, went back to fives. After racing Ida Ledford into submission, Monk Wayman had to deal with Strangest, and won from the Eastern horse by a scant neck in a hard drive. The steeplechase was a chapter of accidents, though none interfered with the success of the favorite. Harve B. fell at the sixth jump, but Williams remounted and finished second. Don Clarencio stumbled as he landed from the third jump, and Herting fell over his head, but also remounted and finished.

Sue Johnson, Orion, and Isen were the winning favorites.

The California officials have notified the Stewards of the local meeting that Jockey Coburn, whose services are claimed by Atkins & Lottridge, is on his way back with the intention of riding, and ask that he be notified to return to California within ten days under penalty of the revocation of his license. Summaries:

Six furlongs. Sallie J., 107, (O'Brien,) 1; Barrica, 103, 2; Fluke, 105, 3. Time—1:24. Seven furlongs. Orion, 100, (Coehran,) 1; Lady Curzon, 97, 2; Dick Furber, 104, 3. Time—1:38. Steeplechase handicap, short course. Isen, 158, (Lawless,) 1; Harve B., 152, 2; Don Clarencio, 135, 3. Time—4:09½. Audubon Handicap, mile and a sixteenth. Monk Wayman, 112, (Dale,) 1; Strangest, 112, 2; Albert Vale, 112, 3. Time—2:01½. Six and a half furlongs. Sara Gamp, 101, (Dale,) 1; Bean, 101, 2; Georgia Gardner, 101, 3. Time—1:32½. Six furlongs. Sue Johnson, 90, (Cochran,) 1; Macie Marie, 94, 2; Segurance, 100, 3. Time—1:32½.

Harness Races on Long Island.

Special to The New York Times.

EAST WILLISTON, L. I., Jan. 5.—Andrews Brothers' gelding, Lee Cuyler, won in the matinée road races here to-day in straight heats. The races were contested on Willis Avenue. There were two classes, a free for all, which was won by Lee Cuyler handily, and a 2:50 Class, which went to Climax, driven by his owner, Duryea. Summaries:

Free for all, trotting or pacing.
Andrews Brothers' b. g. Cuyler, (Van Houten) 1 1 1
Will Bowne's b. h. Rudd, (Schultz) 2 2 2
August Munz's b. g. Eddie D., (Munz) 3 3 3
Frank Dudgeon's blk. h. Crescent, (Dudgeon) ..... Dis.
Time not taken.

2:50 Class.—Trotting or pacing.
Edward Duryea's b. h. Climax, (owner) 1 1 1
H. Schultz's Harry Madden, (owner) 2 2 2
C. Wansor's b. m. Angeanette, (owner) 3 3 3
Time not taken.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 5.—The Pride won the Naglee Selling Stakes, the feature of the programme at Oakland to-day. He had to be much the best to win, as he got away poorly. He caught the leaders at the stretch and won cleverly. Weather showery, track sloppy. Results: Futurity course—High Ho, 105, (Bassinger,) 1; Isaline, 102, 2; Tenny Belle, 105, 3. Time—1:12. Seven furlongs—Telamon, 94, (Walsh,) 1; Malay, 109, 2; Greenock, 109, 3. Time—1:29. Three furlongs, two-year-olds—Dorine, 105, (O'Connor,) 1; Yankee Dame, 105, 2; J. V. Kirby, 110, 3. Time—0:37½. Seven furlongs, the Naglee Selling Stakes—The Pride, 103, (O'Connor,) 1; Meehanus, 108, 2; Grand Sachem, 97, 3. Time—1:23¾. One and one-sixteenth miles, handicap—The Fretter, 114, (Mounce,) 1; Lemnep, 117, 2; Lady Meddlesome, 98, 3. Time—1:49¾. One and one-eighth miles—Mortmel, 104, (Mounce,) 1; Lou Rey, 109, 2; Donator, 106, 3. Time—1:56.

Harlem Jockey Club's Stakes.

CHICAGO, Jan. 5.—The Harlem Jockey Club has announced its list of stakes for the Spring and Summer meetings of 1901. The stakes close Feb. 18, the principal ones being as follows: For three-year-olds and upward: Twentieth Century Handicap, $5,000 added, estimated value, $7,500; Harlem Handicap, $4,000 added, estimated value, $6,000; Chicago Stakes, $2,500 added, estimated value, $4,000; Austin Selling Stakes, $1,500 added, estimated value, $3,000, and the Garden City Handicap, $1,500 added, estimated value, $3,000.

Last Night's Bowling Games.

The non-commissioned staff of the Twelfth Regiment won three games from Company E in the regimental bowling tournament on the armory alleys last night. The scores:

NON.-COM. STAFF.				COMPANY E.
Name.	1st.	2d.	3d.	Name.	1st.	2d.	3d.
Dowling	106	135	93	Shearer	127	119	107
Murphy	154	135	135	Lamb	123	85	118
Buck	146	132	172	Hyland	87	94	160
Currie	121	134	102	Stelnert	112	104	96
McDermott	178	175	155	Corbett	107	89	70
Total	704	715	617	Total	605	491	551

COLLEGE ATHLETES ACTIVE.

New York University Men Busy Preparing for Coming Events.

From now on the athletes at New York University will be kept actively at work in competition for places on the various teams. With the return from the Christmas recess, there was a marked increase in activity in all of the organizations. The University Tennis Association held a meeting and elected C. Galwey, 1901, President. The other officers of the club are: R. C. Addy, 1902, Vice President; E. V. Anderson, 1903, Secretary; W. P. Banning, 1902, Treasurer; J. T. Allen, representative of tennis and minor sports on the Executive Committee of the Athletic Association. Arrangements are already being made for the annual Spring tournament.

As is usually the case after the holidays, there is an increase of interest in chess attendant upon the inter-collegiate tournaments. Last week the Chess and Checker Club held a meeting and elected the following officers for the year: President—H. Specht, 1903; William P. Banning, 1902, Vice President; Victor Stockell, 1901, Secretary; C. Clements, 1903, Treasurer; J. T. Allen, 1902, Captain of the chess team; H. B. Fernald, 1901, Captain of the checker team; H. Kraft, 1903, manager. Application has been made for admission to the University of Pennsylvania-Cornell-Brown league.

It is now reported that a golf club is to be organized among the enthusiasts of the game at the Heights.

Considerable discussion was caused last week when the following Faculty rules were posted:

1. No student who has failed to complete his required work in physical training shall be advanced to senior standing.

2. No student who has been excused from the work in physical training can participate in any athletic games or sports.

3. No student who has been conditioned in physical training can participate in any athletic contest.

These rules will affect a number of the athleteh who have been dilatory in their gymnastic work.

The gymnastic team this year will be practically the same as it was last year. F. J. Belcher, who has returned to the team, will compete on the horizontal and parallel bars, side horse, and flying rings. H. Belcher will be entered in the parallel bars, side horse, and rings, and J. C. Herrmann will try on the bars and in tumbling, while Walton will be a competitor on the side horse. De La Mater and Bedwin will do the club swinging, while Jones and Young will attend to the athletic events. W. C. Belcher and F. Peck are the most promising of the new men. Manager Magnus is busily engaged arranging for the meets for the year.

Negotiations are on foot for a track meet between Hamilton College and New York University, to be held at Ohio Field. This Winter teams will be entered in a number of indoor games. A competition will be held this week to determine the men for the team. Capt. Jones, 1902, is one of the best all-round athletes the university ever put forth. At present he holds six university records, not only in field events, but also in running. He has defeated all the leading high jumpers, winning the intercollegiate jump last year, and later clinching his claim to the title of champion by defeating the former champion, Baxter, in a match contest at Washington. Many other prominent athletes are numbered among the members of the team, which is the strongest the university ever put forth.

Doings of the College Athletes.

The new Cornell out-door track has been almost completed. It is twelve laps to the mile, and is inclined at the ends, giving it the appearance of a huge platter.

A joint athletic meeting has been arranged between Swarthmore, Haverford, Franklin and Marshall, and Rutgers Colleges, only the date and place as yet undecided.

The prospects for a strong lacrosse team at Hobart for next year are bright. The team will probably be the strongest in the history of the sport at Hobart. Games are pending with Pennsylvania, Cornell, Columbia, Harvard, Stevens, College of the City of New York, Swarthmore, Trenton, Lehigh, Crescents, and the States Island Athletic Club.

It is said that Roy S. Clarke, the Captain of the Brown University baseball team, will not return to college this year.

The following were the best scores in the annual Christmas Day golf tournament of the University of Pennsylvania: H. N. Taylor, 1901 C., 91—8, 83; H. K. Hill, 1902, M., 49—6, 88; F. A. Castner, 1903, C., 101—8, 93; Alex. Williams, 1904, C., 104—6, 98.

Chicago will have two big intercollegiate football contests next Thanksgiving Day. The University of Michigan and University of Iowa teams will meet in the morning and the University of Chicago and University of Wisconsin elevens will battle in the afternoon.

A baseball game has been arranged between the United States Military Academy at West Point and the Naval Academy at Annapolis. This will be the first time that these institutions have met in baseball, although their football contests are well known. The challenge was received from West Point. The navy cadets have never been very expert at baseball, but this game will give the sport a great impetus. Hillebrand, the well-known Princeton player, has been engaged to coach the team. The date for the game has not been selected, but it will probably be during the latter part of May.

Since their return from the Christmas vacation the members of the Swathmore hockey squad have been taking daily practice on the fine ice on Crum Lynne Lake, the candidates who have reported to Capt. Clothier are Matthews, 1902; Hall, 1902; Garrett, 1904; Ramsey, 1901; Peters, 1901; Price, 1903; Walker, 1902; Overfield, 1903; Marshall, 1904; Walsh, 1904; Mowery, 1904; Bell, 1904; Bassett, 1904; Flitcraft, 1904; Week, 1904; Sinclair, 1904, and Wilbur, 1904. The schedule so far is as follows: Feb. 12, University of Pennsylvania; Feb. 16, Princeton; Feb. 19, Philadelphia Dental College; Feb. 25, Quaker City; Feb. 28, Jefferson Medical College. Two dates, Jan. 14 and Jan. 26, are being held open pending the arrangement of two games with Haverford.

The handicap pool tournament at the University of Pennsylvania, which began on Dec. 17, will end on Jan. 10. The results to date are as follows:

CLASS A.

H. L. Conrad beat H. D. Pfeiffer,	100—64;	14	86
H. L. Conrad beat L. P. Smith,	100—71;	14	86
W. B. Kugler beat L. E. Clarke,	90—86;	8	89
H. L. Conrad beat H. D. Pfeiffer,	90—80;	2	90
H. Lallow beat L. P. Smith,	90—92;	2	90
W. C. Kugler beat H. Lallow,	90—78;	2	90
L. P. Smith beat H. D. Pfeiffer,	90—83;	4	86
W. B. Kugler beat H. D. Pfeiffer,	90—88;	4	86
H. L. Conrad beat W. B. Kugler,	100—54.	14	86

CLASS B.

F. D. Drumheller beat W. A. Pancoast,	100—89;	14	86
F. D. Drumheller beat J. A. S. Schock,	100—62;	14	86
F. D. Drumheller beat W. L. Shearer,	100—68;	14	86
W. A. Pancoast beat G. W. Graham,	90—81;	4	86
G. W. Graham beat J. A. S. Schock,	85—55;	2	83
J. P. G. Skillern beat G. W. Graham,	90—61;	4	86
G. W. Graham beat J. Hayden,	85—83;	4	81
W. A. Pancoast beat J. A. S. Schock,	90—27;	4	86
W. A. Pancoast beat J. P. G. Skillern,	90—62.	14	86

The handicaps of the men are as follows: Class A—Conrad, 100; Clarke, 75; McDermitt, 80; Lallow, 90; Pepper, 75; Pfeiffer, 85; Rockefeller, 90; L. Smith, 80; Kugler, 90. Class B—Drumheller, 100; Graham, 85; Pancoast, 20; Schock, 80; Skillern, 80; Singer, 70; Small, 75; Shearer, 85; Hayden, 85.

Heavy Loss on Henley Regatta.

The financial report presented at the recent annual meeting of the Stewards of the Henley (England) Royal Regatta showed a loss of over £900 ($4,500) on the year's working. The expense of the regatta was over £2,750, and some of the items are interesting, such as rents of meadows, erecting grand stand, tents, inclosure, fencing, &c., bands, police, &c., £938; expenses on course, including booming and hire of launches for keeping the course, £656; expenses of competitors' tents, £275; cups, medals, &c., £196; printing (including programmes) and stationery, advertising, &c., £285; landing stages and press stand, £122; other expenses, £224. The chief revenue comes from the renting of meadows for boat proprietors and club lawns, admissions to grand stand and inclosure, carriage tickets, &c., mawing, lumped together, £877. The sale of programmes brought in £230, and entrance fees amounted to £182, while the sum of £491 was received in subscriptions and donations. The war had something to do with the loss, but the chief reason was, without doubt, the small number of house boats which applied for positions. The very stringent rules made against house boats being let or sold "with position" kept many owners away, and the subscription list from owners of house boats was consequently the smallest for very many years.

Knickerbocker A. C. Billiards.

John A. Hendrick won the last match last night in the fourteen-inch balk-line championship billiard tournament at the Knickerbocker Athletic Club. He defeated Dr. A. B. Miller in fifty-one innings, scoring the required 300 points to 184 for Miller. Hendrick made one run of 52. Charles S. Norris won the championship last week with four straight wins. Hendrick gets second honors, Dr. Miller third, and Dr. L. L. Mial fourth. Albro Atkin was the other competitor.

The scores last night were:

John A. Hendrick—1 1 1 0 1 4 0 1 0 0 6 0 0 50
9 0 1 0 0 1 0 3 1 0 0 2 17 2 5 52 1 22 26 0 28 1 0
3 2 0 0 0 5 14 0 0 11 0 0 2 0 18. Total, 300. Average, 5 45-51. Highest single run, 52.

Dr. A. B. Miller—3 3 1 1 0 3 2 1 0 1 2 4 1 11
4 1 0 1 7 0 5 2 3 0 0 3 7 13 1 1 22 0 4 1 0 0 0 7
0 0 14 3 1 0 0 3 2 0 1 0 16. Total, 184. Average, 3 31-51. Highest single run, 22.

A handicap club billiard tournament will begin to-morow night.

SCHOOL TEAMS PLAY HOCKEY.

Pomfret Won from Cutler by the Score of 2 Goals to 0.

Cutler and Pomfret Schools played an exciting game of hockey at the St. Nicholas Rink last evening. For two swift halves both teams strove desperately to score, and almost until the call of time play was so even that the score stood at 1 to 0 in favor of Pomfret. In the last moment, however, Wagstaff, aided by his whole team, managed to smash the puck into Cutler's goal, and so brought the tally up to 2 to 0 in Pomfret's favor. Cutler, however, vigorously protested over the last point, asserting that the goal had been shot after the timekeeper had blown his whistle signifying the end of the game. Referee Flammer of Columbia Grammar School maintained that he had not heard the sound of the whistle, and allowed the score. The decision was a close one, for when the timekeeper blew the whistle the second time, Flammer then called time, barely as the puck slid between the posts.

Pomfret had decidedly the best of the game all through, despite the apparently slight superiority manifested by the score. Cutler had no team work at all, and had to rely on the insufficient abilities of individual play. Pomfret, on the contrary, for a school team, played a well developed game of hockey. The visitors kept the puck hovering dangerously near Cutler's goal, while the local team never managed to bring the disk past their opponents' point. In the first half, through the excellence of Cutler's defense, Pomfret could get only one goal by the star work of Wagstaff. It was this same player who gained the second and final point just before the conclusion of the game. The line-up:

Pomfret, 2.	Position.	Cutler, 0.
Dixon	Goal	Muser
Towle	Point	Dabney
Hitchcock	Cover point	Auerbach
Wagstaff	Forward	M. Cornell
Johnson	Forward	Hall
Merrell	Forward	Cooper
Swords	Forward	J. Cornell

Goals—Wagstaff, (2.) Referee—Mr. Flammer, Columbia Grammar School. Time of game—15-minute halves.

International Hockey Match.

The Victoria Hockey Club of Montreal, Canada, will visit New York for the third time on Friday and Saturday, Jan. 11 and 12, to play against the New York Athletic Club team and an all-New York hockey team, which will be drawn from the clubs in the Amateur Hockey League. Lovers of hockey will very well remember, some four years ago, the first visit of the Victorias to New York, when hockey was in its infancy in this town. Though they were opposed by the best players of that period, their play was a revelation to New York public, and the enthusiasm reached all bounds. The Victorias have several times been the champions of Canada, and are looked upon this year again to win.

Princeton Won Hockey Game.

PRINCETON, N. J., Jan. 5.—The University hockey team of Princeton defeated the Lawrenceville Preparatory School team on the latter's hockey pond this afternoon by the score of 4 to 0. The game was strongly contested throughout by both teams. Line-up:

Princeton, 4.	Position.	Lawrenceville, 0.
Brown	Goal	Malcolm
Sherfield	Point	Reed, Stickney
Alexander, Brokaw	Cover point	Hirsch
McAlpin	Forward	Ritter
Ogden	Forward	Nixon
Purnell	Forward	Nicholas
Poe	Forward	Kafer

Goals—Ogden, 2; Purnell, 2. Time of halves—20 and 15 minutes.

Yale's Hockey Team Beaten.

PITTSBURG, Penn., Jan. 5.—Yale closed to-night the series of four games against the teams of the Western Pennsylvania Hockey League without having won a game. The contest to-night was with the Pittsburg Athletic Club and resulted: Pittsburg Athletic Club, 6; Yale, 2.

GOLF AT LAKEWOOD.

Both Clubs Hold Open Handicap Events on Their Respective Courses.

Special to The New York Times.

LAKEWOOD, N. J., Jan. 5.—Two handicap golf competitions were played to-day on the two golf courses of Lakewood. The Country Club had the liveliest day that it has seen this season, and the largest number of golfers that has taken part in a competition on its links for some time turned out to try for the gross and net score prizes offered by the club. W. H. Davis was the only scratch man, but war horse Jasper Lynch leaped to the front with a bound that showed he had not yet lost his championship abilities for local favors, and his score of 92 beat Davis by 1 point, and being the best actual record of the day, won the gross score prize. Lynch had abominable luck, if it can be so called, on the tenth hole, where he needed 7 as against his former 4, for the course is a nine-hole one, but he atoned for that on the next hole, 134 yards, which he made in 2 from a five-foot put. His full card is:

Jasper Lynch, Lakewood:
Out ..... 4 5 6 5 4 6 6 5—45
In ..... 7 2 6 4 6 7 5 5 5—47—92

George C. Low of the

THE PAULIST FATHERS IMPROVE THEIR HOME

Extensive Alterations Made During Last Summer.

City History Woven Into the Structure—Father Hecker's Policy Survives Him.

The big Church of St. Paul the Apostle, which has for many years been a conspicuous feature at the corner of Columbus Avenue and Sixtieth Street, was the scene of great activity last Summer and now presents an altered architectural appearance to the world. The towers on either side of the front of the church have been run up for a number of feet and finished, and now the church stands as it will continue during the life of the present generation and the work of putting on spires will be left to the churchgoers of the future.

The church as it now stands has a considerable amount of city history woven into its structure. The stone which has been used to complete the towers was taken from the old reservoir on Forty-second Street this last Summer. This is in keeping with the stone used in the other part of the structure, which was taken, when the church was put up, from the old Croton Aqueduct, at One Hundredth Street. Another part of the church property which calls up familiar recollections to old New Yorkers are the posts at the big gates. These originally did duty at the old Booth's Theatre, on Twenty-third Street, and when posts were needed for the church without delay these were utilized, perhaps as a matter of economy as well as convenience. Since then they have occupied an honorable position in supporting the church fence. The posts have this year put on a new dress and will hardly be recognized by old acquaintances. Up to this Summer they have been plain and square, but they have now been altered and the four largest posts cut into smaller columns with simple capitals which add to the ecclesiastical appearance. The church dates back to 1876, when the first stone was laid, but it was not until 1885 that the congregation moved into it and the work of completion and decoration has been going on practically ever since. The interior work which is now in progress is greater than that on the outside. The original decorations of the church were simple but in excellent taste and left room for any good work that it might be desirable to put in later. This finer and more elaborate work is now going on, and when it is completed will make St. Paul's one of the most beautiful churches in the city.

Some good friends of the church have made arrangements with John La Farge, the artist, to decorate the sanctuary, and the work is being gradually completed. The half dome of the chancel has been finished in gold, which may remain as it is or receive further decoration at the hands of the artist, if it is thought best. Two windows of Mr. La Farge's beautiful glass are in place and several exquisite medallions ornament the two sides of the sanctuary. These are beautiful, but so high that they cannot be appreciated from below at their full value, although the fine finish of the painting appears.

In the body of the church another important work is going on. A clever young artist, W. L. Harris, who returned to this country from abroad a couple of years ago, is devoting himself to its decoration. One chapel dedicated to St. Patrick has been completed. The unveiling and dedication of the last panel took place only a few Sundays ago.

The work of Mr. La Farge has an interest aside from its artistic value, because of his previous connection with the church and friendship for Father Hecker, the founder of the American Order of Paulist Fathers. Mr. La Farge was the first decorator of the church, and the fine windows in the nave are his work. Speaking of this, he gave some reminiscences of Father Hecker the other day and of the building of the church.

DID NOT BELIEVE IN HURRYING.

"The man who hurries does not believe in God," said Mr. La Farge. "Any work that is worth doing will be done. You may try to push it by advertising, but it will be of little avail, and when a work becomes large, it cannot be hurried. Father Hecker did not believe in hurrying his work. He was a man who was willing to wait for its final accomplishment. He was a man of much artistic feeling, although without art training. We had many long talks upon art, and his views were always interesting. his standpoint being entirely different from that of the artist. Many ministers will accept anything that is given them for their churches, but it was different with Father Hecker. He knew what was good, and he was willing to wait to obtain it.

"I knew him very well. He stopped frequently at my house in Newport in his trips East. He had been one of the Brook Farm men with Hawthorne, Emerson, and Dana, and made many visits into New England in New York. If the members of my family were out of town, I stopped frequently at the house of the Paulist Fathers. The gatherings at the table there and the conversation, usually of the work of the parish, were always interesting. There was no restraint about these visits. If I had not written to Father Hecker for a year, upon my arrival at the house we would take up our common interests as we had left them. We met at the table, and there would be a talk with Father Hecker every night before bedtime, and in the morning he would go about his work and I down town to mine. A body like the Paulist Fathers takes people as it finds them. It receives them cordially, but when they are gone the business of the parish work engrosses them until another meeting when they hospitably open their doors again.

"Father Hecker might have been a rich man. He came from a family of wealth, but his tendency was toward an intellectual life. He was led to higher things, eventually felt the need of a practical religion and became a Roman Catholic. He founded the Order of the Paulist Fathers here along lines that he believed were in keeping with the needs of this country. He was in the height of his work in 1873, when he became ill. Dr. Brown-Sequard pronounced his case hopeless and he went abroad to rest and await the end. But in traveling he recovered his health, and in 1876 returned to this country.

"During his absence arrangements had been made for a new church, but the plans were on too large a scale; it was not possible to carry them out without great expense, and it was found necessary to simplify them. I proposed to Father Hecker that Mr. Stanford White should do the architectural work, St. Gaudens the sculpture, and I would do the painting.

"I was at the beginning of my work then, St. Gaudens, but little known, was working under me; it was just before he had received the order for the statue of Farragut which took him to Paris, and Mr. White had not made his reputation. People did not know us, and there was not money for the work. Father Deshon, now the Father Superior of the order, the only one of the fathers I know at the present time, undertook its direction. He had been a West Point man—he was in the class with Gen. Grant—and had studied engineering.

"Father Hecker asked me to decorate the church later, and with the assistance of my son Grant, the architect of the new cathedral, I undertook the decorations, which were to be simple but harmonious. I put in the windows in the nave of the church, and there is no better glass or material anywhere. It is possible to do better work on a large than on a small scale, and while the windows are simple the material is of the best.

THE DECORATIONS.

"Knowing my friendship for Father Hecker, a friend of his and the church came to me about this later work and asked me to decorate the chancel. The half dome of gold is completed for the time being, though it will admit of decoration if it is thought best later. Two end windows of simple architectural design are in place, and the designs are made and the work partly completed for the three others to replace those now in position, and which are the work of German and English firms. In the new centre window will be the figure of the Virgin, and on either side the figures of Gabriel and Michael, the one in the attitude of salutation and the other resting upon his sword and shield. From their height in the wall they will not give an idea of their size, 26 by 12 feet. The figures will be 18 feet in height and in settings of blue and green. Below will be paintings, possibly angels encircling the sanctuary, and with other figures below.

"The eight small medallions on either side of the chancel are in place, and the central one on the right would have been placed nine months ago if I had not been ill. I have been a sick man for the past four years, and am only just regaining my health. This central figure will be full length, and in the hands will be the moon. No conception of the size of these paintings can be obtained from the floor of the church. The centre one will be 10 feet in height and breadth."

The work of Mr. Harris in the body of the church is to be extensive. The completed chapel upon which he has been working for the past two years is only the first step in the scheme of work which will, when completed, present a unified whole, exemplifying the doctrines of the church. The outlining of the entire scheme will be the next step in the work, after which it will progress gradually. Mr. Harris believes there should be a great advance in ecclesiastical art in this country. He will show in practical form some of his own ideas in this work to which he is devoting himself. He is now making his home with the Paulist Fathers and has a studio in the building.

The newly decorated Chapel of St. Patrick is beautiful, strong, and rich in coloring and design. The altar piece shows the figure of St. Patrick, noble and dignified, the elaborate gold jewel work and embroidery upon the ecclesiastical vestments being designed to illustrate the rich spirituality of his nature. At his feet is Paganism in the form of a vanquished serpent. On either side of the chapel are the figures of St. Brigid and St. Colombo. In the tympanum of the arch of the chapel there is a large painting, which represents St. Patrick before Milcho, the heathen chieftain.

The thought of the Holy Trinity runs throughout the decoration. The shamrock, its symbol, is used, and with this are to be seen the Irish fleur de lis and the Irish ivy. Irish lettering figures in the decorations.

There are many interesting features in the church aside from this later work, one for which it is renowned is the chapel of St. Justinus, an early Christian martyr, who was put to death in the second century and buried in the Catacombs. A figure of the saint in wax can be seen behind glass beneath the altar, and in a breastplate are the bones taken from the Catacombs, with an amphora, which stands at one side, and contains a sponge in which was absorbed the blood of the saint. Another feature of the church is a mammoth crucifix, the cross of solid granite, in one piece, and the figure of the Christ in bronze, life size.

HOLIDAY LOSS IN STORES.

Damage to Goods by Handling a Small Item Against Profits.

"There is not as much damage done to the goods in the shops during the rush of holiday trade as many people seem to think," said one of the head men in a big up-town department store, talking yesterday of the holidays as they are passed in a big shop. "Compared with the volume of trade, the damage is very slight, and it is more largely in making deliveries than in the handling on the counters. We have a large out-of-town trade, and employ local express wagons, and the men are perhaps not as careful as our own. The goods have to be carried further, and at Christmas there are many delicate toys and other fragile things sent out. One day during the holidays we sent out 30,000 packages, and from those there were only 600 complaints, representing only 2 per cent. of the goods, and these were probably because of the slower delivery. People expect to receive their purchase as promptly at Christmas as at other times of the year. They have made the purchases for presents, they are nervous, come in a hurry to enter a complaint, and probably while they are complaining the goods are at their houses

"This was a particularly good holiday season, in that there was even, pleasant weather during the time. When there are stormy days mud is tracked in and soon becomes dust, and following the storm there is a congestion in the shops, more accidents to the goods from the crowds, and the shoplifters and pickpockets put in their work. That is not only during the holiday season, but at any time of the year. Thieves cannot work in a big empty store, and at any time that there is a congestion they make their appearance.

"It is necessary to take on a large extra force for the holidays. We take on about 1,000 employes, men, women, and children, with extra horses and wagons. We intend to have them all in by Thanksgiving and well schooled when the holidays arrive. This is not always possible, for there are usually a number who drop out, principally in the delivery department, men who, when there is a little snow or rain, have not the soldierly qualities to stand it. It is easy to understand why such men are out of work.

"We begin the 1st of November to get people in. We take them by personal application, and there is no trouble in getting the number of people, but there is always difficulty in picking out a sufficient number who are intelligent enough for the work. Applicants come to us by thousands, but they are naturally the more inefficient workers; the best are in positions and keep them. Girls from good families are among the number, however, and there are often students who wish to make a little money. We have had several medical students for a number of years, and they make excellent clerks. Brain and education always tell.

"We endeavor to educate them all, and have regular classes of instruction on different mornings in the week, when they are instructed in their duties in one of the rooms up-stairs. There are three lectures which are attended by all the clerks, but this is not only for the holidays, for we intend to hold them at least twice each year. The new clerks are yoked with the older ones, and when they do not know exactly what to do they have the older clerks to turn to for advice. In several of the departments the more experienced clerks, during the rush season are excused from selling, and merely look after the new people. Especial care is taken in the inspection department, where there is a comparison of goods with the money to see that everything is right. Goods sold by the workers might make serious mistakes.

"With all these precautions mistakes do occur occasionally, as in a case of which I once heard, where a woman ordering a present sent to a certain person and the charge made to her, the girl became rattled, so to speak, reversed the order, and sent the bill to the person who should have received the present. One girl was heard to assure a customer over and over again that a small bag she was selling was of real 'walliwus' skin. She had probably never heard the word before, and had no idea of its meaning. There is need of intelligence in the work. There is a chance for any number of blunders where the clerk knows nothing of geography and gets the names of towns and cities as they happen to sound to her.

"For the extra work done during the holidays, the clerks get extra pay. Those who are making sales get a percentage on everything they sell during the month of December, and those who are not making sales are given a half day's extra pay, while the drivers get two days' pay for every twenty-four hours, as they may be out nearly all night.

"Everything that is broken or damaged in sending out we make good, and the damaged goods that can be mended are put in as good shape as can be and the others, books, &c., that are soiled and dog-earned, are cleared out for what we can get."

"IRISH SEA SERPENT" DEAD.

The Green Moray of the Aquarium Went for Months Without Food.

The green moray, better known as the "Irish sea serpent," which for a little less than two years had been one of the principal curiosities of the Aquarium, is dead. It was 6 feet 1 inch long, and had a cavernous mouth which would have been appalling to a swimmer and which looked as if it might have proved the grave of many a fish as large or larger than its owner.

Despite its apparent capacity for food, however, the moray never ate much from the time when it was brought from the semi-tropical waters about Bermuda, where it was caught, and lately it had developed a habit of fasting for two and three months at a time. To keep it alive, the Aquarium piscieulturists for the past eight months have been forcing food down its gullet at regular intervals. The skin will be sent to Prof. Buntus of the National Museum of Natural History to be mounted.

There is another green moray, about five feet long, on exhibition in the Aquarium.

Stabbed Herself with a Breadknife.

Special to The New York Times.

PLAINFIELD, N. J., Jan. 5.—Mrs. Edward Sebring committed suicide sometime early this morning by stabbing herself with a breadknife in the house of her father, Jacob N. Voehl, of Somerset Street. She had spent the evening at the theatre and was in an apparently happy mood when she retired. When her husband was asleep, Mrs. Sebring crept out of the room and went to the storeroom in the lower part of the house and there committed the deed. Her father discovered her body there this morning. Mrs. Sebring was preparing to undergo an operation, and at times the dread of it made her somewhat morose.

Brooklyn Advertisements. Brooklyn Advertisements. Brooklyn Advertisements. Brooklyn Advertisements. Brooklyn Advertisements.

The Solid Gold Statue of Maude Adams. Last Four Days on View.

ABRAHAM AND STRAUS.

BROOKLYN.

The Solid Gold Statue of Maude Adams. Last Four Days on View.

Underwear and Hose---Half Off.

Samples---A New Record of Value Giving.

Twice a year this chance comes, but never has it offered such rare underpricing as now. Samples of women's Underwear, of Stockings for men and women and children—the fresh stock of the most prominent importer in New York City—at a full half saving; even more than that in many cases. Patterns and styles are the newest—the very same that will be sold at regular prices for months to come. Goods that have been used as samples cannot be sold in the regular way, that is the only reason for this underpricing. Quantities are immense, but so will the buying be. Promptness is shrewdness, therefore.

Women's Underwear at Less Than Half Price.

Heavy fleece lined Undervests, finished with silk tapes, pearl buttons and silk stitching around neck and down front; ankle length Drawers to match; colors natural and white, value 50c., at.....24c

Merino ribbed and shaped vests, short and long sleeves; ankle length Drawers to match, in natural and white. These are finished in the best manner; value $1.00, at.....48c

Ribbed, shaped Vests, of merino. Combination Suits and Silk Vests; some high neck, and long sleeves; others high neck and short sleeves; the silk ones, low neck and no sleeves; most have drawers to match; value $1.25 to $2.50, at.....75c

Hosiery That Will Average Half.

Women's Stockings.

Fast black cotton, fine quality; double sole, heel and toe, value 25c. to 35c.....15c

Fancy stripes, black boot with fancy uppers, plain colors, black open work lisle thread; black with embroidered ankle; black lisle thread and very fine quality black cashmere, value 39c. to 75c., at.....29c

Vertical stripes, also entire open work, the finest quality of lisle thread, in black and fancy colors; black open work with embroidered designs in neat figures; value 75c. to $1.50, at.....48c

Children's Stockings.

Fast black, ribbed, cotton, double knee, heel and toe, very strong and durable for school wear.....9c

Fast black cotton ribbed and plain, double knee, heel and toe, value 25c. to 39c., at 15c

Fast black cashmere; plain, double knee, heel and toe; some few have slight mill imperfections; value 35c., at.....19c

Main floor, front, Central Building.

Men's Socks.

Fast black cotton; double heel, sole and toe; very strong and serviceable.....9c

Fancy colors, lace effects, extracted figures; also a few stripes; fast black cotton and black and natural cashmere; double heel, sole and toes; value 25c. to 39c., at....15c

Embroidered and plain vertical stripes, fancy stripes, open work lace lisle; mercerized stripes, very fine quality, black cotton and lisle, and black and natural cashmere; value 48c. to 75c., at.....24c

Main floor, front, East Building.

Double-faced Satin Ribbon-Half.

35,000 Yards--Ribbon Store's Best Achievement.

The maker—he is one of the most noted Ribbon men in the country—needed money badly enough to sacrifice a great stock of his finest wares and turned to us as quickest distributers to help him out. Result—double-faced satin Ribbons of best quality, numerous widths and in seventy-five shades will be here at half price to-morrow. The same Ribbons at the regular counter cost double—and will when these are gone. Prices thus:

Baby Ribbon, regularly 45c.....21c. piece
Baby Ribbon, regularly 65c.....33c. piece
½ inch, regularly 10c.....5c. yard
⅞ inch, regularly 12c.....7c. yard
1 inch, regularly 18c.....9c yard
1½ inch, regularly 28c.....13c. yard
2 inch, regularly 34c.....17c. yard
2½ inch, regularly 40c.....21c. yard
3 inch, regularly 48c.....24c. yard
3½ inch, regularly 55c.....27c. yard
4 inch, regularly 62c.....31c. yard
5 inch, regularly 72c.....39c. yard

Main floor, center, East Building.

Irish Dimities---15,000 Yards at 15c.

From Belfast—21c. to 25c. a Yard is the Regular Price.

Just at the beginning of the season's demand for cottons comes this great gathering at a price that, frankly, is less than we ever expected to be able to sell such excellent Dimities for. The Belfast manufacturer who made them is famous for his excellent productions and there is a multitude of his choicest styles here. White, black and tinted grounds—the daintiest of Dimities and the most diminutive of prices. Spread in Cotton Corner in the Dress Goods Store. Ready to-morrow.

Main floor, West Building.

Medicines---Toilet Needs.

From our own Laboratory. That is the strongest guarantee of merit we know of. Regular prices are lowest here, but regular prices are cut deep for this sale. This way:

Flasks of Ginger or Peppermint, regularly 13c., at.....9c
Paregoric, regularly 9c., at.....5c
Amber Petroleum, pound jars, regularly 15c., at.....10c
Pumice Stone, 2 oz. in wooden boxes, regularly 6c., at.....3c
Powdered Sulphur, 2 oz. in wooden boxes, regularly 5c., at.....3c
Sun Cholera Mixture, regularly 19c., at.....13c
Camphorated Oil, regularly 17c., at....11c
Prophylactum, excellent mouth wash or gargle, 39c., at.....20c
Kissingen, Vichy, Lithia, Rochelle and Citrate of Magnesia Salts, 6 oz bottles, regularly 29c., at.....19c
Emulsion Cod Liver Oil, 12 oz. bottles, regularly 43c., at.....30c
Pure Norwegian Cod Liver Oil, 16 oz. bottles, regularly 49c., at.....40c
Pure distilled Witch Hazel, 16 oz. bottles, 20c., at.....15c
Pure Alcohol for toilet purposes, 16 oz bottles, at.....35c
Tincture of Benzoin, for whitening and softening the skin, 3 oz. bottles, regularly 23c., at.....12c

Main floor, front, Central Building.

Girls' Gingham Dresses.

Pretty, fresh styled little frocks that will wash when they are soiled. Priced less than they would cost if they were made at home. The wear for little girls is as carefully looked to here as wear for their elders. Three suggestions:

Children's Dresses of fine gingham, high neck effect, yoke of embroidery outlined with ruffle of material and edged with washable braid and embroidery, full skirt, deep hem, sizes 4 to 14 years; colors are light and dark blue....$1.05

Very dainty styles in striped gingham, yoke of material and insertion, large pointed collar of white pique, finished with insertion of embroidery, full skirts, ample hems; sizes 4 to 14 years; colors pink, pale blue and ox blood.....$2.05

Mercerized and plain ginghams, handsomely trimmed with embroidery and fine tucked lawn; also guimpe Dresses, prettily trimmed with embroidery, beading and black velvet ribbon, extra long waisted effect and bishop sleeves; full skirts, deep hems; 4 to 14 years; ox blood, pink, blue and royal.....$3.98

Second floor, front, Central Building.

Brooklyn's Newcomers, Welcome!

Thousands of wise people have made Brooklyn their home since last January. Other thousands are temporarily within our gates. To all this greatest Store in New York State extends warm welcom and most cordial good wishes fo. the New Year and the New Century. Make this Store as much your own as it is ours. Its success depends upon you even as much as upon our efforts. Its growth, its beauty, its completeness are evidences of the favor of the people of Brooklyn.

First and foremost it is an exposition of merchandise the worthiest the world produces for the smallest possible cost. But the setting is much—broad aisles, lofty ceilings, perfect ventilation, commodious elevators and stairways, artistic arrangement of merchandise. For your special convenience and entertainment also there are perfectly appointed resting, reading and writing rooms for men and women, a restaurant where dainty or substantial meals are daintily served, a private driveway and carriage entrance, an Oriental room, a picture gallery, the solid gold statue of Maude Adams in the Carpet Store, the model kitchen in the Basement Store and courteous, skilful employes.

The whole Store is at your service every minute of the day. Make use of it.

Books---Half and Less.

Still thousands in this great after-the-holidays sale, some shelf worn, some soiled a trifle in the holiday rush, many hundreds that are fresh and clean as when they came from the publishers. Hundreds of Brooklyn booklovers wait for this January sale; there are book bargains for hundreds still to be found on the counters. And in every case prices are half and less than half of publishers' prices. Be prompt.

Book Store, Main Floor, East Building.

Women's Shoes Reduced.

$3.50 to $5.95 Kinds at $2.15.

Broken sizes—bargains if you find Shoes to fit you. They are small lots from our regular stock of $3.50 to $5.95 Shoes—patent leather, enamel and vici kid. Most are heavy extension sole styles for out of door wear but some are the daintiest of French heeled Shoes for dress. Be prompt if you would be sure.

Second floor, rear, West Building.

Black Beetled Percaline.

10c. Instead of 15c. a Yard.

"Beetling" is a process which gives the fabric a handsome silk moire effect and touch, and only a good quality of cloth takes the finish satisfactorily. One of the best of Percalines has it—regularly 15c. a yard. Lining Store makes another bargain of it—

10c to-morrow.

Main floor, rear, Central Building.

Economies Unusual in Black Dress Goods.

These are the fabrics which are most desirable now, the handsome, standard sorts on which prices are seldom reduced. Would not be reduced here but for an exceptional happening. This result:

3,500 yards of heavy double warp Cheviots with excellent finish; perfectly steam sponged and shrunk and regularly $1 a yard. To-morrow.....59c

1,700 yards of high luster Zibelines, 50 to 54 inches wide, and 1,100 yards of 46-inch French Armure with a hard, dust-proof finish; value $1.25 and $1.50 a yard, at.....75c

Main floor, rear, Central Building.

Women's Tailored Outerwear--Reduced

Coats and Suits, 20 to 50 Per Cent. Below Regular.

This is a clearance of handsome garments. Room is needed for fresher arrivals, yet these have been here but a little time—news from this Cloak Store changes daily. Price savings exceptional if you have a need to be filled now. Thus:

Velour and Kersey Coats—About Half. Prettily trimmed with jet, braid and velvet; some even with fur. Tailoring is the finest and the lining a heavy satin. Choose at $12.50, $14.75 and $17.50

Cheviot and Kersey Jackets—Third Off. Natty little Jackets, 19 inches long; black and Oxford grays; double-breasted front, coat collar and revers; excellent tailoring and finish; heavy satin lining; sizes 32 to 44; values $15 to $25, at $9.75, $13.25 and $16

Newmarkets and Ulsters—Third to Half Off. Warm, comfortable and very fashionable. Some have storm collars, others notch collars; mostly kerseys and double-faced cheviots in black, tan, castor and Oxford; recently $25 to $100, at $19.75 to $49.50

$25 to $35 Tailored Suits, $16.75. Forty—Cheviots, diagonals and pebble cloths in black, navy blue and Oxford; double-breasted and blouse front Jackets, lined with taffeta; gored flare skirt, some made over taffeta, others over percaline.

Second floor, front, Central Building.

In the Infants' Store---Values Exceptional.

Misses' Underwear.

Drawers of good muslin, with cluster of tucks and hem; sizes 2 to 16 years....12c

Of good muslin, umbrella ruffle of cambric; sizes 2 to 16.....19c

Of good muslin, cluster of tucks, with embroidery ruffle, sizes 2 to 14 years....25c

Skirts. Of good muslin, umbrella ruffle of cambric and cluster of tucks, sizes 2 to 16 years.....39c

Of good muslin, umbrella ruffle, with wide embroidery and hemstitched inserting, sizes 2 to 16 years.....59c

Gowns of Masonville muslin, tucked yoke, with embroidery inserting and embroidery ruffle; sizes 2 to 16 years.....59c

Of fine cambric or muslin, V neck with shield, yoke of fine embroidery; sizes 2 to 14 years, 98c

Flannelette Gowns. Mother Hubbard yoke, neatly finished with fancy braid; sizes 2 to 14 years, value 75c., at.....48c

Infants' Wear.

Long Slips of cambric, box plaited front..6c

Long Slips of good cambric, yoke of fine tucks with revers of embroidery; hemstitched ruffle on neck and sleeves....29c

Long Dresses of fine nainsook, 5 styles; yokes of fine embroideries and tucks; hemstitched and lace trimmed; all with deep five inch hem.....48c

Long Dresses of fine nainsook, circular and V yokes of fine tucks and embroidery ruffles.....69c

Long Dresses of lawn, very elaborately trimmed with Valenciennes lace; two rows of lace inserting and ruffle on skirt; 3 clusters of fine tucks between.....$1.98

Short Dresses of nainsook; empire yoke of tucks with embroidery inserting, sizes 6 months to 3 years.....39c

Short Dresses of nainsook, empire yokes of solid embroidery or tucks, finished with herringbone; neck and sleeves trimmed with embroidery and hemstitched ruffles; sizes 6 months to 3 years.....48c

Dresses of fine lawn, in waist effects; pompadour and circular yokes of fine embroideries, with double ruffle of embroidery around yoke, belt of inserting, in long and medium waist effects, sizes 1 to 4 years, value $3.00, at.....$1.98

Second floor, East Building.

Another Great Notion Sale.

Notions less than actual cost—and every one has passed the severest test of merit. One more of the great gatherings which are doubling the business of this Notion Store. This list:

Brush Skirt Binding, good quality, in black and colors, per yd.....1c
Bias velveteen Skirt Binding, 5 yd. pcs., in black and colors, per pc.....6c
Bias corduroy velveteen Skirt Binding, 5 yd. pcs., in black only, per pc.....8c
Brush and velveteen Skirt Binding, in black only, per yd.....5c
Basting Cotton, 12 spools in pkg., pkg....8c
Large spools black Sewing Silk, assorted letters, per spool.....14c
Black spool Silk, 12 spools in box, assorted letters, per doz.....14c
Black Spool Twist, 25 spools in box, letter D, per box.....13c
Safety Pins, nickled, sizes 1, 2, 3; 2 doz..3c
Mourning Pins, 1 oz. box, per box.....3c
English Pin Books, each.....3c
Hump Hooks and Eyes, black or white, size 4, per gross.....4c
Taffeta Seam Binding, all silk, black, white, and colors, 8 yd. pieces.....6c
Twilled Seam Binding, black and white, 9 yd. piece.....10c
Bone Casing, cotton, silk stitched, black, white or grey, 3 yd. pcs.....3c
Bone Casing, silk faced, in white, grey or pink, 9 yd. pcs., each pc.....8c
Glace cotton Belting, in black or white, 9 yd. pcs., per pc.....9c
Double Serge Belting, 1¼ inch wide, black or white, 10 yd. pcs., per pc.....49c
Dress Shields, fine cambric covered, rubber lined, size 3, per pair, 5c., size 4, per pair, 6c.; size 5, per pair.....7c
Dress Shields, double covered, rubber lined, washable; size 3, per pair, 9c.; size 4, per pair.....10c
Stockinet Dress Shields, size 3, per pair, 5c.; size 4, per pair, 6c.; size 5, per pair.....7c
Dress Shields, Japanese silk, rubber lined, size 3, per pair, 10c.; size 4, per pair.12c
Tracing Wheels, each.....2c
Sateen Tape Measures, each.....1c
Featherstitch Braids, assorted patterns, 6 yd. pieces, per piece.....3c
Chinese Ironing Wax, doz.....6c
Large rolls cotton Tape, white, black or grey, per piece.....6c
White cotton Corset Laces, 2½ yds. long, per doz.....6c
Tubular Shoe Laces, 4-4, per doz., 4c.; 5-4, per doz.....3c
Cotton Side Hose Supporters, in black or white for women, girls or children, per pair.....4c
White Linen Corset Laces, 5 yds., each..2c
Tiger Darning Cotton, black, per doz....6c
Hair Pins, assorted sizes, in straight or crimped, 10 papers for.....3c
Celluloid Hair Pins, in black or shell, per doz.....9c

We will stamp dressmaker's name and address on all dress shields and belting free of charge for this sale.

Main floor, rear, Central Building.

Sheets---Pillow Cases.

Save a full quarter if you choose now from the splendid stocks gathered here. January is the housekeeper's harvest in this Store—the little prices are hurrying thousands of good things into usefulness. Hints:

Sheets. "Lockwood Mills," 2¾x2½ yards.....44c. each
"Utica Mills," 2¾x2½ yards..62c. each
"Utica Mills" 2½x2¾ yards..74c. each
"Wamsutta Mills," 2½x2¾ yards, 79c. each
A. and S. special, 2½x2¾ yards, 48c. each

Pillow Cases. A. and S. special, 50x36 inches.....10c. each
"Lockwood Mills," 45x36 inches.11c. each
"New Bedford Mills," 45x36 inches, 18c. each

Another lot of good quality, yard wide brown Muslin.....5c. yard
Yard wide Wamsutta Muslin..8½c. yard

Main floor, rear, East Building.

First Show of Challies

From France—Little Priced.

Latest arrival in the Dress Goods Store, these beautiful French Challies already show the tones of Spring. Too early? Never too early for flowers and freshness and daintiness of design. There is wonderful charm in this earliest showing—Persian patterns in light tones, floral and fancy designs and polka dots on tinted, black and blue grounds. Priced less than the present cost warrants, too—the lowest pricing anywhere at 49c. a yard.

Homespun Suiting Underpriced.

Fifty-four inches wide and all wool. A strong, well woven fabric that has been sold extensively with never a fault in its wearing qualities. Oxford medium and light gray shades. Price and value are far apart at 50c. a yard

Main floor, West Building.

COMMERCIAL TRAVELERS DINE.

Social Gathering of Their Association Held In This City.

A dinner and social meeting of the Travelers' Protective Association was held at the Cosmopolitan Hotel, Chambers Street and West Broadway, last night. President George F. Dodge of the New York association presided.

Ex-National President Wallerstein was the first speaker after dinner. He referred to the great influence exerted by the Travelers' Protective Association to bring about interchangeable mileage in the United States. The name of the association is a slight misnomer, Mr. Wallerstein said, as its object is to do good to the merchants as well as to the employes who travel. Last year $100,000 was paid in accident claims to the Travelers' Protective Association members. The organization numbers 16,000 at this time.

President Neil McCoull of Chicago post observed that there is a spirit of greed that bestrides this narrow world that has no pity on the traveling man or anybody else. The time may come, he said, when the members of the association may be called upon to protect themselves and their interests from the trusts and gigantic grouping of money.

Other speakers were Dr. Neil MacPhatter of the Post Graduate Hospital and John E. Judge.

Spanish-American Veterans Meet.

The annual meeting of the Signal Corps Veteran Association of the Spanish-American War met last night at the Arena and elected the following officers for the ensuing year: Major Frederick T. Leigh, Signal Officer, N. G. N. Y., Commander; Capt. Charles H. Martin of Illinois, Senior Vice Commander; Harry H. Wells of Brewster's, N. Y., Junior Vice Commander; George A. Marshall of Jamaica, L. I., Adjutant; Eugene V. Keane of New York, Quartermaster; Isadore Weill of New York, Historian; Francis N. Lawton of Hackensack, N. J., Chaplain, and George J. Lamb of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Sentinel.

Denver's Mayor to Edit a Paper.

DENVER, Col., Jan. 5.—Mayor Henry V. Johnson of this city has accepted the invitation of the management of The Denver Times to act as the editor of that newspaper for one issue. He will take complete charge of the news and editorial departments for the issue of Sunday, Jan. 20.

SALT AS A SAVER OF LIFE.

Chicago Physicians Claim It Will Restore Vitality When 90 Per Cent. of Blood Is Lost.

CHICAGO, Jan. 5.—As a result of a protracted series of experiments with salt solutions, the efficacy of which in prolonging life was recently announced by Prof. Loeb of the University of Chicago, two prominent physicians here claim to have demonstrated that in cases of great loss of blood by disease or injury normal salt solution used as a restorative will save life even when 90 per cent. of the blood has been lost.

The experiments, which have been extended over a period of six months, have, according to the physicians, made practicable a new system of bleeding and substitution of salt solutions for persons suffering from pneumonia, typhoid, malarial fevers, peritonitis, acute and chronic Bright's disease, and all heart affections resulting from the last-named complaint. Much success has followed, the physicians say, all their experiments, particularly those made with pneumonia and Bright's disease.

In their experiments the physicians used more than 100 dogs, and found it possible to withdraw 70 per cent. of the circulation from an animal before it was necessary to inject a stimulant. The final test was made on a dog from which 90 per cent. of the blood had been withdrawn. A needle connected with a salt water apparatus containing a 2 per cent. solution was inserted in the jugular vein and a second needle inserted in the junction of the large veins lying close to the heart. After the blood had been drawn off the salt solution was forced in around the heart and into the vessels of the brain. The dog was able to stand inside of an hour, and on the following day was able to walk.

A human patient suffering with pneumonia, who was operated upon, recovered in much shorter time than it was customary with those suffering with that trouble. In cases of malaria, the injection of the salt solution was made directly into the spleen, and in six weeks all symptoms of disease had disappeared. No claim was made that a cure had been effected in cases of Bright's disease, the physicians merely asserting that they had removed several of the most troublesome features of the complaint.

CHARGES AGAINST J. D. KEILEY.

Mrs. Whitman Says that He Used Trust Money in His Business.

An application made by John D. Keiley of 19 Whitehall Street, to have set aside a prior order entered in the Supreme Court directing his examination before a trial in an action brought against him for an accounting by Mrs. Ellen Whitman, has been denied by Justice Truax in the Supreme Court. Mrs. Whitman claims that Kelley, both as executor and individually, has failed to render a proper account of the estate of Harold Henwood, the former husband of Mrs. Whitman, who died in Naples, Italy, Aug. 10, 1877.

Mrs. Whitman says that Kelley, in his final accounting, paid her at least $40,000 less than she thinks she ought to have received. She charges Keiley with having bought United States bonds with the proceeds of the estate and with living used the money received by him in his business, and also with having charged commissions on investments of principal which he should not have charged. Justice Truax says that Kelley's position being one of trust, he must submit to examination.

PRESIDENTS MAY SHAKE HANDS.

Plan for Mr. McKinley and Mr. Diaz to Meet on Boundary Line at El Paso.

CHICAGO, Jan. 5.—A dispatch to The Tribune from El Paso, Texas, says that when President McKinley reaches El Paso in May, on his way to California, he may have an opportunity of shaking hands with the Chief Executive of the Mexican Republic across the boundary line that divides the United States from Mexico. A telegram received here to-day from Congressman Slayden of Texas gave assurance that Mr. McKinley would pass through El Paso on the westward trip, and citizens at once interested themselves in preparing a suitable reception for him.

It was decided, among other things, that it would be appropriate to invite President Diaz of Mexico to visit the northern border of his dominions at that time to meet and greet the President of the United States in the centre of the international bridge that spans the Rio Grande, marking the boundary line between this country and Mexico.

Mexican officials are confident that President Diaz will accept the invitation.

FELL 50 FEET, NOT MUCH HURT.

Workman Slipped Off a Roof, Striking a Beam in His Descent.

NEWARK, N. J., Jan. 5.—Although he fell fifty feet from the roof of a building and struck a beam in his descent, Joseph Bordano, twenty-five years old, of 260 Academy Street, is little the worse for his accident.

The building is a new one, at Broad and New Streets. Bordano was helping to put the iron roof beams in place when he slipped and toppled backward from the ledge of the roof. He was stunned by the shock, but when his fellow-workmen removed him to St. Michael's Hospital it was found that beyond some bruises he was not much hurt, and he was sent home.

RAILROAD OFFICIALS NAMED.

New York, New Haven and Hartford Appoints Superintendents.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 5.—The following orders appointing Superintendents and Assistant Superintendents were issued to-day from the offices of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad Company, to take effect Feb. 1:

Western District.—Shore Line Division—J. F. A. Trumbell, Superintendent; C. C. Elwell, Assistant; Air Line, Northampton Division—W. A. Waterbury, Superintendent; New Haven Terminal—P. E. Bowman, Superintendent.

Eastern District.—Plymouth Division—J. H. French, Superintendent; J. N. Ross, Assistant; Taunton Division—I. N. Marshall, Superintendent; G. H. Taylor, Assistant Superintendent; Worcester Division—A. R. Whaley, Superintendent; C. F. Kennedy, Assistant.

Says Coon Creek Dam Will Be Built.

Special to The New York Times.

MINNEAPOLIS, Jan. 5.—Thomas Lowry said to-day that unless some extraordinary obstacle should block the way the Coon Creek dam in the Mississippi, nine miles above Minneapolis would be built. It will supply 10,000 horse power, and Mr. Lowry, who is at the head of the syndicate about to build it, expects that power will be furnished so cheaply in Minneapolis as to supersede steam almost entirely. Power will also be furnished to the City of Anoka, and a big manufacturing suburb will be built up at Columbia Heights, on the northern border of the city.

MRS. NATION TO STAY IN JAIL.

Habeas Corpus Sent to Secure Release of Saloon Wrecker Fails.

WICHITA, Kan., Jan. 5.—Mrs. Carrie Nation, the saloon wrecker, must remain in jail for the twenty-one days' quarantine recently placed upon that institution.

After listening to arguments for five hours to-day Judge Kirk of the City Court refused to issue an order commanding the Sheriff to produce the prisoner in court for trial. Habeas corpus proceedings were begun by Mr. Nation with a view both to having his wife released on bail and to have her trial disposed of. Nation asserts that the jail was quarantined as a ruse to delay the case coming to trial.

The legality of the quarantine was argued by the attorneys for both sides and decision after decision was cited on the point. The matter was finally ended by the Judge passing the case until the next term of court.

OLD MEN'S MERRY PART

IN THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Dealing of Ordinary Character Follows Holiday Interruption.

HIGH-PRICED BUILDINGS SOLD

Latest Sales by Brokers—Auction Business Still Confined to Legal Offerings—This Week's Schedule.

That the amount of business transacted in the last few days does not compare favorably with the standard established during December need not be made the basis of unfavorable comment. The beginning of the new year is not only the occasion of a serious holiday interruption to business, but it is also the time when large interests are concerned fully as much with the winding up of old affairs as with engaging in new enterprises. The conditions which brought about such a substantial revival of realty dealing soon after election are still operative, and competent judges are still confident in their prediction of a Spring business of large proportions.

Aside from the deal affecting two large parcels in Wooster Street, just north of Prince Street, the week's reports have contained little that is noteworthy. Vacant property and the higher class of dwellings were again the most prominent features. Builder J. C. Lyons disposed of two more of the houses which he erected on the old Columbia College block—38 and 42 East Fiftieth Street—for about $80,000 each, while John T. and James A. Farley found a purchaser for the residence which they are building at 991 Fifth Avenue. The consideration for the latter is said to have been about $240,000, and the sale of such a property, before it is completed, may well give rise to speculation as to how high-priced a house a builder may put up and not feel that he has a reasonable chance of disposing of it. Indeed, judging by some of these recent undertakings by builders, the time will soon come when the man who wants a million-dollar residence will not have to have plans prepared and build it himself, but will find a tempting assortment awaiting his selection.

Two building operations are foreshadowed by two sales of vacant property in the Fifth Avenue section. Perez M. Stewart acquired Flake & Dowling's three lots on the south side of Fifty-second Street, 100 feet east of Fifth Avenue, and a fifty-five foot frontage on the south side of Seventy-ninth Street, 240 feet east of Fifth Avenue, was sold by H. H. Cook.

Latest Sales by Brokers.

Joseph A. Farley has sold, through Pengnet & Spooner, the twenty-three-foot American basement dwelling, 313 West One Hundred and Sixth Street.

Ranald H. Macdonald & Co. have sold for Charles S. Bryan, to Caroline Rullman, the four-story brownstone-front dwelling 33 East Thirty-eighth Street, 22 by 98.9.

Peter H. Cram has sold the seven-story apartment house, known as the Metropolitan, at the southwest corner of Broadway and Eighty-eighth Street, 100.8 by 100.

F. E. Mainhall has sold for the Teachers' Building and Loan Association the five-story stone-front dwelling at the southeast corner of West End Avenue and Seventy-seventh Street, 25 by 55; also, for the same seller, the two four-story American basement dwellings 282 and 284 West One Hundred and Thirty-seventh Street, each 16 by 99.11.

Nathan H. Weil has sold for William A. Hang, to an investor, the five-story double flat 537 East Eighty-seventh Street, 25 by 100.8.

Charles E. Duross has sold to William H. Murphy, 509 and 511 West One Hundred and Thirtieth Street, old frame buildings, on a plot 37 by 133.

George R. Read has sold for Harriet Spero to Louis Lese the five-story tenement 314 Delancey Street, 24.7 by 100.

Miles & Heller were the brokers in the sale of 73 East Fourth Street, reported yesterday.

W. D. Haynes & Co. have sold for Peter P. Decker to an investor the four-story flat, with store, 3,206 Third Avenue.

New Apartment Houses.

McCaul & Soles will erect a seven-story brick-and-limestone apartment house at the northeast corner of Manhattan Avenue and One Hundred and Seventeenth Street. The plans were filed at the Building Department yesterday by Architect G. A. Schellenger and call for an outlay of $250,000.

Plans were also filed for an apartment house to be built by Smith & Roffler on a plot 65 by 93.4, at the northwest corner of Broadway and One Hundred and First Street.

The Auction Room.

Current auction lists are composed entirely of legal sales, and are consequently almost wholly lacking in attractive features. This condition is not unusual, however, at this period, since auctioneers have never looked with much favor upon the first two or three weeks following the holidays. Some small announcements are already in the field, as the advance guard, it is hoped, of larger and more important offerings to be made during the latter part of this month or the first of next.

The only sale of note last week—a foreclosure affecting 79 Fifth Avenue—resulted only in a purchase by an interested party for $119,584. On Thursday of this week the old St. Nicholas Hotel property, at the southeast corner of Mercer Street and Washington Place, will be sold to satisfy claims amounting to $156,647, and on the following day Auctioneer Ryan will sell the eight-story building 30 Prince Street, 30 by 100.

There were recorded last week 301 mortgages, for $4,717,073, of which 101, for $1,290,189, were at 5 per cent.; 91, for $732,551, were at more, and 113, for $2,694,333, were at less, than 5. In the corresponding week last year there were recorded 351 mortgages, for $5,032,306, of which 111, for $1,647,275, were at 5 per cent.; 121, for $1,131,031, were at more, and 119, for $2,254,000, were at less.

AUCTION SALES THIS WEEK.

To Take Place at 111 Broadway, Unless Otherwise Specified.

MONDAY, JAN. 7.—By William M. Ryan, foreclosure sale, Charles Putzel, referee, 214 East Seventy-ninth Street, south side, 185 feet east of Third Avenue, 20 by 102.2, three-story stone-front dwelling. Due on judgment, $12,884.

By William M. Ryan, foreclosure sale, Charles N. Harris, referee, Twelfth Avenue, east side, 41.5 feet north of One Hundred and Thirty-first Street, runs north on Twelfth Avenue 58.5 by east 100 by south 99.11 to the north side of One Hundred and Thirty-first Street by west 12.10 by northwest 19.10 by west 98.10, one-story frame buildings and vacant. Due on judgment, $14,612.

By Philip A. Smyth, foreclosure sale, Lewis L. Delafield, referee, 158 East One Hundred and Eighteenth Street, south side, 252 feet west of Third Avenue, 25 by 100.11, five-story brick flat. Due on judgment, $17,078.

TUESDAY, JAN. 8.—By William M. Ryan, foreclosure sale, Henry Thompson, referee, 1,472 and 1,474 Washington Avenue, east side, 150.4 feet south of One Hundred and Seventy-first Street, each 25 by 154.5, two four-story brick flats. Due on judgment, on each, $16,004.

By Bryan L. Kennelly & Co., foreclosure sale, Isaac Rothschild, referee, 235 West Sixty-first Street, north side, 275 feet east of Eleventh Avenue, 25 by 100.5, five-story stone-front tenement. Due on judgment, $16,004.

By Richard V. Harnett & Co., foreclosure sale, Crowley Wentworth, referee, 240 West Sixty-second Street, south side, 225 feet east of West End Avenue, 25 by 100.5, five-story brick flat. Due on judgment, $16,009.

By James L. Wells, foreclosure sale, to William F. Burrough, referee, 1,580 Boston Road, east side, about 150 feet south of One Hundred and Seventy-sixth Street, 50 by 123 by 48.10 by 142.6, two-story frame dwelling, with stable and carriage shed. Due on judgment, $3,020.

By Peter F. Meyer & Co., foreclosure sale, William T. Emmet, referee, 369, 371, and 373 West One Hundred and Sixteenth Street, north side, 150 feet west of Manhattan Avenue, 28, 36, and 38, respectively, by 100.10, three seven-story brick flats. Due on judgment, $148,792.

By Peter F. Meyer & Co., foreclosure sale, Edward L. Parris, referee, 635 East One Hundred and Thirty-eighth Street, north side, 381.6 feet east of Alexander Avenue, 25 by 100, five-story brick flat, with store. Due on judgment, $21,402.

By Peter F. Meyer & Co., foreclosure sale, John Delehunty, referee, 73 Convent Avenue, northeast corner of One Hundred and Forty-fourth Street, 20 by 100, four-story stone-front dwelling. Due on judgment, $31,681.

WEDNESDAY, JAN. 9.—By William M. Ryan, foreclosure sale, Edmund Luis Mooney, referee, 308 East Seventy-ninth Street, north side, 70 feet east of Second Avenue, 27.6 by 76.7, four-story stone-front flat; 305 East Seventy-ninth Street, north side, adjoining the foregoing on the east, 27.6 by 102.2 and irregular, four-story stone-front flat. Due on judgment, on 303, $8,391; on 305, $8,585; subject to other mortgages, on 303 for $14,000; on 305, for $16,000.

By William M. Ryan, foreclosure sale, Peter B. Olney, referee, 371 West One Hundred and Twenty-third Street, north side, 34.3 feet east of Ninth Avenue, 16.3 by 66.11, three-story stone-front dwelling. Due on judgment, $9,210.

By William M. Ryan, foreclosure sale, Henry W. Bookstaver, referee, 401 and 403 Tenth Avenue, west side, 96.2 feet south of Thirty-third Street, each 19.2 by 80, three and four story brick tenements. Due on judgment, $3,668.

By Philip A. Smyth, foreclosure sale, John E. Duffy, referee, East One Hundred and Fifty-first Street, south side, 105 feet east of Robbins Avenue, 25 by 105, two-story frame dwelling, with store. Due on judgment, $1,914.

By John N. Golding, foreclosure sale, William R. Bronk, referee, Grand Avenue, southwest corner of One Hundred and Eighty-fourth Street, 50 by 90, two-story frame dwelling; Grand Avenue, west side, 50 feet south of One Hundred and Eighty-fourth Street, adjoining the foregoing, 50 by 90, two-story frame dwelling. Due on judgment, on the former parcel, $7,019; on the latter, $6,437.

By D. Phoenix Ingraham & Co., foreclosure sale, Edward L. Parris, referee, 518 West One Hundred and Eighty-third Street, south side, 252.10 feet west of Amsterdam Avenue, 17.1 by 104.11, two-story brick dwellings. Due on judgment, $6,579.

By D. Phoenix Ingraham & Co., foreclosure sale, William H. Harris, referee, Amsterdam Avenue, northwest corner of Seventy-ninth Street, 100 by 102.2, seven-story brick flat, with store. Due on judgment, $42,726; subject to another mortgage for $70,000.

By James L. Wells, foreclosure sale, Joseph I. Berry, referee, 11 West Eighty-second Street, north side, 108 feet west of Central Park West, 25 by 102.2, four-story brick dwelling. Due on judgment, $31,716.

By Peter F. Meyer & Co., foreclosure sale, Alfred Steckler, referee, Ninety-eighth Street, north side, 130 feet east of Park Avenue, 100 by 100.11, two-story brick building and vacant. Due on judgment, $34,247; subject to other mortgages for $34,500.

THURSDAY, JAN. 10.—By Philip A. Smyth, foreclosure sale, Charles A. Hess, referee, 673 to 677 Wales Avenue, west side, 237.8 feet south of Westchester Avenue, 75 by 130.5 by 86.9 by 86.0, three four-story brick flats. Due on judgment, $5,620; subject to other mortgages for $33,000.

By William M. Ryan, foreclosure sale, Richard H. Clarke, referee, Lot 500 on the map of the Dyckman estate, being on the north side of Nichols Place, near Prescott Avenue, 188.2 by 86.10 by 50 by 165.1. Due on judgment, $5,256.

By William M. Ryan, foreclosure sale, Louis Adler, referee, 276 to 282 Mercer Street, southeast corner of Washington Place, 49.6 by 100, five-story brick hotel. Due on judgment, $156,647.

By Richard V. Harnett & Co., foreclosure sale, Augustus H. Vanderpoel, referee, 235 West One Hundred and Third Street, northwest corner of Broadway, 77 by 101.9 by 93.7 by 100.11, eight-story apartment house, with stores. Due on judgment, $22,235; subject to other mortgages for $162,000.

By Bryan L. Kennelly & Co., foreclosure sale, Frederic Kropp, referee, 1,003 Morris Avenue, west side, 169 feet north of One Hundred and Sixty-fourth Street, 21 by 105, two-story frame dwelling. Due on judgment, $786.

By George R. Read, foreclosure sale, Henry D. Hotchkiss, referee, 48 East One Hundred and First Street, south side, 80 feet west of Park Avenue, 25 by 100.11, five-story brick flat. Due on judgment, $21,822.

By James L. Wells, foreclosure sale, Grenville B. Winthrop, referee, 532 West One Hundred and Forty-ninth Street, south side, 341.8 feet west of Amsterdam Avenue, 16.8 by 99.11, three-story stone-front dwelling. Due on judgment, $13,009.

By Peter F. Meyer & Co., foreclosure sale, John H. Judge, referee, 24 and 26 East Ninety-fifth Street, south side, 65.9 feet west of Madison Avenue, 17 and 16, respectively, by 100.8, two five-story brick dwellings. Due on judgment, on 24, $28,913; on 26, $26,806.

By Peter F. Meyer & Co., foreclosure sale, John H. Judge, referee, King's Bridge Road, east side, 265.10 feet south of One Hundred and Sixty-fifth Street, 106 by 149.6 by 99.11 by 102.5, two two-story brick dwellings and vacant; One Hundred and Sixty-fourth Street, north side, 100 feet west of Amsterdam Avenue, 50 by 99.11, vacant. Due on judgment, on the former parcel, $37,563; on the latter, $16,042.

By H. C. Mapes & Co., foreclosure sale, Claude Gignoux, referee, Sackett Avenue, Westchester, south side, 100 feet west of Deane Place, 50 by 100, vacant; Sackett Avenue, south side, 275 feet west of Deane Place, 50 by 100, vacant. Due on judgment, $1,418.

FRIDAY, JAN. 11.—By William M. Ryan, foreclosure sale, Daniel P. Ingraham, referee, 90 Prince Street, south side, 270 feet east of Mercer Street, 36 by 101 and irregular, eight-story brick building. Due on judgment, $35,781; subject to other mortgages for $140,000.

By William M. Ryan, foreclosure sale, Augustus R. McMahon, referee, 666 Lexington Avenue, northwest corner of Fifty-fourth Street, 20.5 by 70, five-story brick flat, with stores. Due on judgment, $26,153.

By William M. Ryan, foreclosure sale, John H. Judge, referee, 2,070 and 2,072 Eighth Avenue, northeast corner One Hundred and Fifty-second Street, 49.11 by 100, two five-story brick flats, with stores. Due on judgment, $16,042; subject to other mortgages for $17,730.

By William M. Ryan, foreclosure sale, John C. Coleman, referee, 505 and 507 West One Hundred and Fifteenth Street, north side, 115 feet west of Amsterdam Avenue, each 15 by 99.11, two four-story brick dwellings. Due on judgment, on each, $12,700.

By L. J. Phillips & Co., foreclosure sale, Paul Hellinger, referee, 1,756 and 1,758 Madison Avenue, west side, 40.5 feet north of One Hundred and Fifteenth Street, 38 and 30.5, respectively, by 85, two five-story brick flats. Due on judgment, $5,018; subject to other mortgages for $45,000.

By James L. Wells, foreclosure sale, Richard H. Clarke, referee, 938 Jackson Avenue, northeast corner of One Hundred and Sixty-third Street, 19 by 86.4, four-story brick flat, with store; 927 East One Hundred and Sixty-third Street, north side, 19 feet east of Jackson Avenue, adjoining the foregoing, 25 by 86.4, four-story brick flat; 929 East One Hundred and Sixty-third Street, adjoining, 25 by 86.4, four-story brick flat; 931 East One Hundred and Sixty-third Street, adjoining, 25 by 86.4, four-story brick flat; 933 East One Hundred and Sixty-third Street, adjoining, 27 by 68.4, four-story brick flat. Due on judgment, $4,938; subject to other mortgages as follows: On 938 Jackson Avenue, $15,500; on 927 East One Hundred and Sixty-third Street, $13,000; on 929, $12,000; on 931, $12,500; on 933, $11,500.

By James L. Wells, foreclosure sale, Edmund J. Tinsdale, referee, 935 East One Hundred and Sixty-third Street, north side, 27.6 feet west of Forest Avenue, 26.8 by 67.5, four-story brick flat. Due on judgment, $2,037; subject to another mortgage for $10,000.

By Peter F. Meyer & Co., foreclosure sale, S. Kohn, referee, 106 West Seventy-eighth Street, south side, 106.3 feet west of Columbus Avenue, 23.9 by 100.1 by 26 by 100.6, four-story stone-front dwelling. Due on judgment, $32,717.

By Peter F. Meyer & Co., foreclosure sale, Charles H. Knox, referee, 207 West One Hundred and Second Street, north side, 112.6 feet east of Broadway, 32.6 by 100, five-story brick flat. Due on judgment, $2,619.

THE BUILDING DEPARTMENT.

List of Plans Filed for New Structures and Alterations.

Manhattan Avenue, northeast corner of One Hundred and Seventeenth Street, for a seven-story brick and stone bachelor apartment house, 120 by 95.11; McCaul & Soles of 1,931 Park Avenue, owners; G. A. Schellenger of 320 Fulton Street, architect; cost, $250,000.

No. 43 to 45½ Hester Street, for two one-story brick markets, 58.4 by 75; Louis Marx of 35 Hester Street, owner; F. Ebeling of 97 Seventh Street, architect; cost, $6,000.

Fourth Avenue, east side, 50 feet north of Sixth Street, William's Bridge, for four two-story frame dwellings, each 18.9 by 62.8; John Isermath of 22 Fourth Street, William's Bridge, owner; J. J. Vreeland of 1,901 Bathgate Avenue, architect; total cost, $14,000.

Broadway, northwest corner of One Hundred and First Street, for a seven-story brick and stone apartment house, 65 by 93.4; Smith & Roffler of 143 Manhattan Avenue, owners; Neville & Bagge of 217 West One Hundred and Twenty-fifth Street, architects; cost, $160,000.

One Hundred and Sixteenth Street, 325 feet east of Pleasant Avenue, for a two-story brick purifying house, 84 by 42; Standard Gaslight Company, owner and architect; cost, $14,000.

Jackson Avenue, southwest corner of One Hundred and Fifty-sixth Street, for three four and five story brick tenements, 25 by 74 and 25 by 85; A. D'Andre of 217 West One Hundred and Twenty-fifth Street, owner; Henry Andersen of 1,181 Broadway, architect; total cost, $61,000.

Nos. 203 and 205 West One Hundred and Twenty-fifth Street, for a one-story sign, 47 by 20; I. Steinhardt of 137 Broadway, owner; A. Van Beuren & Co., lessees; F. Q. Smith of 128 Fourth Avenue, architect; cost, $100.

Beach Avenue, east side, 101.11 feet north of Dawson Street, for three three-story frame dwellings, 68.3 by 147.6 by 65 by 160.6; Albert Miller of 979 Dawson Street, owner; Otto L. Spannhake of 315 Madison Avenue, architect; total cost, $25,000.

No. 228 to 234 East Eightieth Street, for three six-story and basement brick tenements, each 26.4 by 87.8; Samuel D. Tomback of 255 East One Hundred and Tenth Street, owner; Nathan Langer of 220 Bowery, architect; total cost, $30,000.

Alterations.

No. 536 Fifth Avenue, to a four-story and basement brick dwelling and office; George H. Penniman, owner; J. L. Jordan of 449 West Twenty-eighth Street, architect; cost, $18,000.

Water Street, southeast corner of Maiden Lane, to a five-story brick store; John J. Corle of 153 Water Street, owner; William Ramsay of 75 Patchen Avenue, Brooklyn, architect; cost, $75.

No. 10 to 20 Astor Place, to a seven-story brick office, stores, and shop; the O. B. Potter Trust of 71 Broadway, owner; Charles O. Brown, architect; cost, $1,000.

Sixty-third Street, north side, 255 feet east of Third Avenue, to a five-story brick home; Clara de Hirsch Home for Working Girls, owner; Arnold W. Brunner of 90 Union Square, architect; cost, $4,500.

Nos. 32 and 34 Lafayette Place, to an eight-story brick building; the Winthrop Press, premises, lessees; Kurtzer & Rohl, architects; cost, $150.

Unionport Road, West Farms, to a one-story brick boiler house; New York Catholic Protectory, owner; Fagan Iron Works, engineers; cost, $1,600.

HOTEL CASTLETON TO BE SOLD.

The Hotel Castleton, at New Brighton, Staten Island, will be sold at auction on Thursday under partition proceedings, in which Andrew Lemon has acted as referee. The property is owned by the estate of George C. Tallman. The furniture and entire equipment of the hotel, as well as the real estate, will be included under the sale. The plot of ground on which the structure stands contains over eighty city lots. In a circular recently issued by the Tallman estate it is stated that the net profits of the hotel for the Summer season of 1898 amounted to $16,000.

The sale of the property on Thursday will take place on the premises at noon.

Brooklyn Advertisements.

THE STERLING
Is One of the Old Reliable
PIANOS

that is and always has been uniformly good. By the adoption of the best features of piano construction, and always in the lead with modern inventions, they have become the recognized standard of American pianos.

"In 1900 We Manufactured More Than 8,000 Pianos."

The immense product of our three factories proves beyond all doubt the ever increasing popularity of STERLING PIANOS.

"Established in 1860 by Chas. A. Sterling."

Through 41 years of exceptional success, resulting from the strictest integrity in manufacturing and selling, the STERLING stands to-day without a musical parallel.

OUR INTERESTS

are identical. We profit only by satisfying our patrons. What you buy here must be right. It's our way of doing business.

200 NEW STERLINGS

of various styles, sizes and designs on exhibition in our wholesale and retail warerooms.

HUNTINGTON PIANOS

Artistic in design, faultless in construction, superb in tone. An excellent Piano at a popular price.

LITTLE USED PIANOS

including Sterling and other reliable makes. Some as low as $100, $125, $150 to $250. All are in perfect order.

SECOND HAND PIANOS

Taken in exchange for our own. 20 different makes at very small prices—$85, $100, $125.

Square Pianos for $35, $50, $65.

All are fully guaranteed and can be exchanged if not satisfactory.

The
STERLING Piano Co.,
MANUFACTURERS.
Wholesale and Retail Warerooms,
(Entire building, four floors),
536 FULTON STREET, Brooklyn.
Open Monday & Saturday Evenings.
Look for the Name STERLING.

REAL ESTATE TRANSFERS.

In the following list "mtg" stands for mortgage and "R S" for revenue stamps. The war revenue law provides that stamps shall be placed on all conveyances at the rate of 50 cents for each $500 of consideration. This "consideration" has been held to mean only the equity above the mortgage, except in the rare cases where the purchaser assumes payment of the mortgage. The amount of the mortgage plus 1,000 times the value of the revenue stamps on the conveyance should therefore show the true consideration.

SATURDAY, Jan. 5.

AVENUE C, 21, w s, 22.10x72.7; Avenue C, w s, 81 ft n of 2d St, 22.11x72.4x22.10 x72.4; Louis Nieberg to William Wolf and another, (R S $25, mtg $48,000)..... 1

AVENUE D, e s, 93.3 ft s of 3d St, 19.10x 90; George Kleiner and another to Adam Schuchmann, (R S $2, mtg $8,800)..... $1

BATHGATE (AV, e s, 125 ft s of 174th St, 25x115; Dora Bauer to Adam Bauer, (R S $4.50, mtg $13,000)..... 1

BEACH AV, e s, 174.3 ft s of 156th St, 66.3x irr x 6x65x166.3; Abraham H. Feuchtwanger, individually, and others, executors, to Albert Miller, (R S $6.50, mtg $6,350)..... 8,000

BOULEVARD LAFAYETTE, w s, 475.5 ft s of Fort Washington Park, 100x100; James D. Putnam to James E. Mitchell, (R S $2, mtg $4,200)..... 1,000

BOULEVARD LAFAYETTE, w s, 575.5 ft s of Fort Washington Park, 50x100; James D. Putnam to John McSherry, (R S $4.50, mtg $2,160)..... 1,000

LEWIS ST, 7 and 9, w s, 33.4x100; Gilbert M. Speir, referee, to Hyman D. Baker, (R S $1, mtg $37,650)..... 1,000

MADISON AV, 1,787, e s, 33x108; James D. Putnam and wife to Charles Lowenfeld and others, (R S $5.50)..... 1,000

MADISON AV, 1,785, e s, 33x100; James D. Putnam and wife to Charles Lowenfeld and others, (R S $4.50)..... 1,000

MORNINGSIDE AV, s e corner 117th St, 27.7x100; Charles H. Louis and wife to Nathan Stern and another, (R S $8.50, mtg $46,000)..... 1

ROGERS PLACE, e s, 300.6 ft n of Westchester Av, 25x90; Thomas Allison, referee, to M. Adelaide Willets and another, administrators, (R S $2)..... 1,800

SHERMAN AV, centre line, 130 ft n of centre St, 50x irr x 130; John Monaghan and wife to James McClenahan 1

WILLETT ST, 66, e s, 25x100; Daniel Rosenbaum to Max Neisner, (R S $9, mtg $24,000)..... 1

1ST AV, 1,000, w s, corner of 61st St, 41.2x100; James D. Putnam and wife to Cornelius Gallagher, (R S $1.50)..... 1,000

3D ST, 60 East, 22.9x101.4x22.9x101.5; Joseph Wolf and another to Louis Nieberg and another, (R S $3.25)..... 1

34TH ST, 114 West, 25x98.9; Jackson Architectural Iron Works to Charles F. Wildey, mtg $106,400)..... 1

84TH ST, 114 West, 25x88.9; James D. Putnam to Charles F. Wildey, (R S $13, mtg $26,400)..... 1

51ST ST, s s, 387.6 ft e of 2d Av, 18.9x 100.5; Jennie Hirshman to M. E. Oppenheimer, (R S $9.50)..... 1

51ST ST, 340 East, 18.9x100.5; Morris Beck to Milton E. Oppenheimer, (R S $1)..... 100

66TH ST, 238 West, 25x100.5; Arthur J. Koehler to Charles Stewart, (R S 50c., mtg $15,000)..... 1

84TH ST, n s, 201.6 ft e of 1st Av, 18.6x 102.2; Elizabeth Karitz to Emma Cox, (R S $1, ½ part)..... 1

115TH ST, n s, 273.6 ft e of 3d Av, 10.4x 100.10; Bertha M. Hahn to Hedwig Auspacher, (R S $1.50, mtg $7,000)..... 1

121ST ST, e s, 180 ft w of Mount Morris Av, 20x100.11; Sylvester L. H. Ward, referee, to Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, (R S $25)..... 25,000

134TH ST, s s, 140 ft w of Park Av, 75x 99.11; James Roberts and wife to William R. Willcox, (R S 60 cents, mtg $22,000)..... 1

178TH ST, s s, 175 ft w of Amsterdam Av, 50x91.2x50.1x94.5; Asbury Lester to Sophie V. S. Lester, (R S $2.50, mtg $4,000)..... 1

179TH ST, s s, 155.2 ft w of Anthony Av, 25x74.6x25.4x75.3; Azariah H. Sawyer and wife to Amelia Schlesinger, (mtg $2,500, R S $3.50)..... 3,500

180TH ST, s s, 175.8 ft e of Crotona Av, 29x142.11x29.4x188.9; John Hutzler and others to Kuniganda Miller, (mtg $3,500, R S $1.50)..... 1

Recorded Leases.

LEXINGTON AV, s e corner of 76th St; Mary M. Coulter and another to James McGinley, 5½ years..... $1,200

LEXINGTON AV, s w corner of 121st St; Fannie Bacharach and another, executors, to Harry Matthews, 3 years..... 1,200

MADISON AV, n e corner of 108th St; Mary Frank to John J. Leonard, 5 years 1,400

1ST AV, 148, s e corner of 9th St; Martin King to Louis Damm, 3 years..... 1,980

48TH ST, 49 West; Mrs. Frank Leslie to Benjamin Bernhard, 7 years..... 2,200

49TH ST, 49 West; Mrs. Frank Leslie to Benjamin Bernhard, 5 years..... 2,200

59TH ST, 315 West, 45.10x100.5; Lilian L. Hemsen to Alfred Beinhauer and another, 19½ years..... $1,500, 1,750

Recorded Mortgages.

Interest is at 5 per cent., unless otherwise specified.

ALLEN, Thomas, to Isaac A. Bach; 70th St, s s, 381.6 ft w of Columbus Av, 1 year..... $5,000

BARNES, Alda C., to Charles De Neufville; West Washington Place, 24, due July 1, 1902, 6 per cent..... 3,500

BERLE, Adolph W., to Henry T. Molter; Avenue B, s s, 23.3 ft n of 9th St, 3 years, 4½ per cent..... 4,000

COHEN, Jacob, to Berry B. Simons and another; 3d Av, e s, at centre line of block between 111th and 112th Sts, runs e 100x s 25x 100x25, demand, 6 per cent..... 800

COOPER, Mary P., and others to Equitable Life Assurance Society; 96th St, s s, 370 ft w of Central Park West, 3 years, 4½ per cent..... 20,000

DIETZEL, Rosina, to Bowery Savings Bank; Willis Av, 286, 3 years, 4 per cent..... 8,000

DIETZEL, Rosina, to Gustave S. and Max S. Boehm; Willis Av, 286, 1 year..... 2,000

DITCHETT, Harry H., to Emily Edmonston; Clinton Av, n e corner of 169th St, runs n 143.2 x e 136.6 to w s of Boston Road, 2 years, 6 per cent..... 1,500

HAHN, George, to Henrietta Baumann; 8th Av, 2,053, 2 years..... 6,000

HALF, Peter, to Joseph Messerschmitt; 165th St, s s, 40 ft e of Stebbins Av, 3 years..... 2,500

KELLY, Patrick, to Bernheimer & Schmid; 10th Av, 554, saloon lease, demand, 6 per cent..... 1,500

KNEWITZ, Annie and John, to Archibald A. Skillman; Elliott Av, e s, 300 ft s of Jullamus St, 3 years, 6 per cent..... 2,500

MATTHEWS, Harriet, to Bernheimer & Schmid; Lexington Av, 1,076, lease, demand, 6 per cent..... 3,925

McGINLEY, James, to Bernheimer & Schmid; 78th St, 146 East, lease, demand, 6 per cent..... 2,500

MILLENBERGER, Karl, to Minna Millenberger; 165th St, n s, 358.11 ft n w of Forest Av, 5 years..... 2,000

MILLER, Albert, to Abraham H. Feuchtwanger and others; Beach Av, e s, 174.4 ft s of 156th St, 9 months..... 6,350

MUNDT, Arthur, to Sigmund Cohn; 187th St, s s, 258 ft w of 7th Av, 1 year, 6 per cent..... 2,500

NEISNER, Max, to Isaac Neisner; Willett St, 66, 2 years, 6 per cent..... 4,000

O'CONNELL, John, to Christian Klackner; West End Av, 302, 3 years, 3 per cent..... 15,000

ROSBECK, Dora, to Charles Maurer; Crotona Av, w s, 150 ft n of 183d St, due March 1, 1906, 6 per cent..... 100

SCHUCHMANN, Adam, to George Kleiner and others; Avenue D, e s, 93.3 ft s of 3d St, 1 year..... 2,800

SCHWECKERT, Marie and Peter, to Gustav H. Schindler; 8th St, n s, w ½ of Lot 863, map of Wakefield, 3 years, 6 per cent..... 1,000

SOMMER, Jennie L., to Bernheimer & Schmid; 121st St, n s, 229.6 ft w of 4th Av, demand, 6 per cent..... 2,000

STERN, Nathan, and Martin Brauer to Samuel Louis; Morningside Av, s e corner of 117th St, 3 years..... 6,000

STURGIS, Frederick R., to William B. Isham and others, executors, &c.; 32d St, 16 West, 3 years, 4½ per cent..... 28,000

STURGIS, Frederick R., to David S. Greenough; 32d St, 16 West, 3 years, 4½ per cent..... 6,000

WILL, Catharine, to Sarah A. Messenger; Varick St, 104, 3 years..... 4,600

WOLF, William and Joseph, to Louis and Benjamin Nieberg; Avenue C, 21 and 23, installments 8,000

Assignments of Mortgages.

DIXON, William P., and another, executors, &c., to Mary E. Ryan..... $6,500

FIDELITY TRUST & SAFETY VAULT Company, administrator, &c., to Beth S. Terry, trustee ..... Nom.

HEILNER, Emanuel, and another to Central Realty Bond and Trust Company... 30,129

HEWES, Benjamin F., to Simon Sauter.. 1,000

McCLATCHEY, George R., to John E. Eustis 2,000

NORTH, Harry, to Wolf Glass..... Nom.

PHILBRICK, John A., to Charles Mosoth ..... Nom.

WEIL, Simon R., and another, executors, &c., to Simon R. and Theodore G. Weil.. Nom.

WEIL, Simon R., and another, executors, &c., to Simon R. and Theodore G. Weil, assigns 4 mortgages..... Nom.

WEIL, Simon R., and another, executors, to Simon R. Weil, assigns 4 mortgages.. Nom.

Mechanics' Liens.

AMSTERDAM AV, 1,614; Thomas J. Conwell against Thomas Rois, owner; Thomas Quinn and William Steinmetz, contractors 28

CENTRAL PARK WEST, s w corner 71st St, 106x125; Richard Bonnamy against Alonzo B. Kight, owner and contractor 3,400

CENTRAL PARK WEST, w s, 50 ft n of 69th St, 50x100; Richard Bonnamy against Alonzo B. Kight, owner and contractor 309

DUANE ST, 23; Frederick D. Shaper, against Augustus Clason, owner and contractor 361

FORDHAM LANDING ROAD, s s, 63 ft w of Davidson Av, 50x100; Alfred Marsich against Henry Muskat and others, owners; Vitale Morino, contractor..... 150

MADISON AV, n e corner 92d St, 100.8x 62; John J. Radley & Co., against William H. Ebling, Jr., owner and contractor 7,800

6TH AV, s e corner 9th St, 43.7x77.7; Adelstein & Avrutine against Johanna Baumann, owner and contractor..... 3,500

6TH AV, s e corner 9th St, 43.7x77.7; Schneider & Herter, against Johanna Baumann, owner and contractor..... 1,500

129TH ST, 132 and 134 West; August Hoeberman, against Frank Jewell, owner and contractor..... 250

BUILDING LOAN CONTRACTS UNDER CHAPTER 78, LAWS OF 1900.

THOMPSON ST, 110 and 112; Isidore Jackson with Joseph Rosenberg and Jacob Feinberg, 7 payments..... 16,000

44TH ST, s s, 450 ft w of 5th Av, 50.2x ½ block; Title Guarantee and Trust Company, with The Yale Building Company, installments..... 225,000

Lis Pendens.

BROOK AV, e s, 24.6 ft s of 170th St, 48.10x100, two actions; Andrew M. Clute, trustee, &c., against Joseph Klinzig and others, (foreclosure of two mortgages;) attorney, E. de P. Livingston.

BOULEVARD, e s, 25 ft s of 131st St, 25x100; Mary W. Rogers against James Kilpatrick and others, (foreclosure of mortgage;) attorneys, Kenneson, Crane, Emley & Rubino.

DITMARS ST, a s, Lots 20 to 30, on map of Elizabeth R. B. King, City Island; Annie C. King and others against Elizabeth Smith and others, (foreclosure of mortgage;) attorney, J. E. Miller.

JENNINGS ST, s s, 54 ft e of Wilkins Place, 42x —; Department of Buildings against George L. Moffatt, (violation of building laws;) attorney, E. Otterbourg.

LUDLOW ST, 157; Department of Buildings against Stuyvesant Fish and others, (violations of building laws, &c.;) attorney, E. Otterbourg.

MULBERRY ST, 286; Department of Buildings against Leopold Kaufman, (violation of building laws;) attorney, E. Otterbourg.

MULBERRY ST, 288; Department of Buildings against Wilhelmina Rehwinkel and Leopold Kaufman, two actions, (violation of building laws;) attorney, E. Otterbourg.

WILKENS PLACE, s e corner of Jennings St, 25x—; Department of Buildings against George L. Moffatt, (violation of building laws;) attorney, E. Otterbourg.

20TH ST, 9 West; Department of Buildings against Jennie B. Gasper and another, individually, and as executor, &c., (violation of building laws;) attorney, E. Otterbourg.

20TH ST, 9 and 11 West; Department of Buildings against Jennie B. Gasper and another, individually, and as executor, &c., and another, (violation of building laws, &c.;) attorney, E. Ottenbourg.

BUSINESS TROUBLES.

New York City.

ATLANTIC TRUST AND DEPOSIT COMPANY.—William E. Albertson, Secretary-Treasurer of the Atlantic Trust and Deposit Company, filed a bill yesterday asking for the appointment of a receiver for the company. He claims the company owes him $894 back salary and is insolvent. The company's first business venture was to purchase the Atlantic Trust Building for $490,000, in payment of which mortgages were given. The treasury of the company was depleted in fixing up the building. The amount of the company's indebtedness, it is alleged, will exceed $100,000.

Out of Town.

STAR LAUNDRY COMPANY.—John W. Smith, Treasurer of the company, and William Colton were appointed receivers yesterday for the Star Laundry Company of Baltimore, of which Simon P. Schott is President. Bond in each case was fixed at $60,000. Mr. Smith, in his bill asking for the appointment of receivers, stated that the company was insolvent.

PETITIONS IN BANKRUPTCY.

SAMUEL MOLLNER.—Samuel Mollner of 28 West One Hundred and Sixth Street has filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $2,023 and no assets. He was formerly in the liquor business.

MORRIS HEINE.—Morris Heine, an actor, residing at 55 Second Street, has filed a petition in bankruptcy with liabilities of $9,155 and no assets. The liabilities were contracted from 1886 to 1899, and are for money loaned, breach of contract, damages for personal injuries, electric light, and gas. He has been in partnership with various persons from 1884 to 1897, the last partner being B. Goldberg at Boston.

SOLOMON BERMAN.—A petition in involuntary bankruptcy has been filed against Solomon Berman, dealer in mirrors at 49 Bowery, by the following creditors: Jacques Kahn, $312; Bendit, Drey & Co., $137, and Jacob Samek, $79. It was alleged that he had transferred a part of his stock of mirrors and mirror frames and paid money to certain creditors to prefer them. He began the present business in July, 1898.

GREAT AMERICAN 5 AND 10 CENT STORE COMPANY.—A petition in involuntary bankruptcy has been filed against the Great American 5 and 10 Cent Store Company at 10 West Fourteenth Street by the following creditors: A. L. Tuska, $76; H. Schwartz, $85; H. Berkele, $33; L. Ullman & Co., $70; Julius Levy, $191, and J. Busch, $162. It was alleged the company had committed an act of bankruptcy by making an assignment on the 2d inst.

C. A. N

YOUTHFUL COUPLE ELOPED

Census Supervisor Wilbur's Daughter Married Eight Months.

Bride of 16 Years Rebelled Against Wearing Short Dresses and the Secret Was Learned—Her Husband Is Nelson Van Kleek.

Nelson Van Kleek, eighteen years old, and Aileen Crossman Wilbur, the sixteen-year-old daughter of Charles F. Wilbur, Supervisor of the twelfth Federal census in this city, eloped and were married on Memorial Day of last year, and have succeeded in keeping it secret until the present time. It would not have come out even now except that the bride, who looks much younger than she is, after neatly eight months of such humiliation, revolted at short dresses on a married woman, and the young husband was on his part driven to confession by the prospect that the young woman would soon be returned to a girls' boarding school remote from the city.

The families have been friends for years, and young Van Kleek was private secretary to Mr. Wilbur in his census work. There was no reason why they should not have been married excepting their youth, and the boy rather astonished his mother-in-law, after admitting the marriage, by saying that he had been secretly engaged to her daughter for a year prior to the marriage. It was intended to keep the matter secret until he became of age, when he will come into an inheritance of $50,000 bequeathed by his grandfather.

Van Kleek is the son of William H. Van Kleek, a retired banker and broker, who lives in the five-story brownstone house 235 West Forty-fifth Street. He formerly attended Columbia College and is a member of the Seventh Regiment. The boy and girl have been much in each other's company of late, but their relatives thought it nothing more than juvenile friendship.

On Decoration Day young Van Kleek said he was going to take the girl to see the parade, instead of going to see the show they went to Poughkeepsie, where they were married by a Justice of the Peace. They came back to the Wilbur apartments at the Hotel Lincoln, at Seventh Avenue and Fifty-second Street, and gave a glowing description of the show.

The next day the young woman was graduated from a fashionable private school on the west side, and within a week went to Toronto with her mother to spend the Summer. Van Kleek about the same time went with his family to Poughkeepsie, where they own a fine old mansion. So many letters came to Toronto from Poughkeepsie that Mrs. Wilbur questioned her daughter about them, but she replied, "We're good friends. That's all."

In September the girl was sent to college at Elmira, and remained there until the day before election, when she paid a brief visit to the city, with her mother and then went back to Elmira, where she remained until the Christmas holidays. Then she saw her husband for the first time since June. They did their Christmas shopping, and the explosion came the day after Christmas, when the young wife told her mother that she would not go back to college again and neither would she wear short dresses any longer. Then she owned up.

Mrs. Wilbur was greatly shocked, but the marriage certificate was produced and young Van Kleek was sent for. He admitted they were married. There was another lively scene the same day in the Van Kleek mansion, but a general amnesty was granted and the young couple started on a wedding tour, which lasted eight days.

Their latest plan is to spend a few weeks at Mr. Van Kleek home and then start in housekeeping on their own account.

LOTOS CLUB'S YULE DINNER.

English Customs of the Sixth Century and American Humor of the Twentieth.

The Lotos Club held its Yule-tide dinner last evening in the clubhouse, 558 Fifth Avenue, carrying out the customs of an old-time English Yuletide feast. Two buglers, in old English garb with gay manties, top boots, blonde wigs, and large hats with larger feathers, marched down to the dining room at 7:30, sounding their bugles. The curtains were drawn aside, showing the dining room, decorated with holly, and the diners then marched in to the bugles' tones.

Frank R. Lawrence, President of the club, presided. With him at table were Judge Morgan J. O'Brien, Judge Van Brunt, Judge McLaughlin, Senator Chauncey M. Depew, Andrew Carnegie, Frank H. Platt, Chester S. Lord, J. H. Flagler, G. W. Totterill, and H. B. Wilson. Others present were Leo Schultz, Major J. B. Pond, Emil Paur, Townsend Fellows, William T. Carleton, and E. H. Low.

During the courses sixteen glee singers sang. Just before the roast course the buglers marched in again, then came Bagpiper MacDonald of the Black Watch of Windsor Castle, then men dressed as yeomen of the sixth century, carrying a yule log, and then a dozen cooks carrying the side of roast beef. The Metropolitan Quartet sang the "Roast Beef of Old England" before the beef was served.

The lights were turned down, a quartet sang, and the punch was brewed while all sang the drinking song from "Girofle, Girofla." Will Carleton sang a drinking song written for the occasion, in which he "hit" some members of the club. Mr. Carnegie listened and laughed at this:

Here's to Uncle Andy,
A poor author, but he's handy,
And an all-round Jim Dandy,
Drink it down.

Senator Depew laughed when Carleton sang:

Here's to Farmer Chauncey,
Whose surprising necromancy
Makes his chestnut crop so fancy,
Drink it down.

There were more songs by the Metropolitan Quartet and a general frolic followed, in which Emil Paur, the orchestral conductor, led the band in "Oh, Listen to the Band."

Among the diners were Commodore Banks of the Atlantic Yacht Club; Signor Blass, the singer, and ex-Senator Winton of New Jersey.

Watchdog Perishes at a Fire.

An alarm was rung in from Box 14 at 11:30 last night for a small fire in the Broad Exchange Building, the new twenty-story structure on Broad Street. The fire was in a timekeeper's shanty, and caused damage of about $100. After the blaze was put out by the firemen they found a dog smothered to death by the smoke.

SHIPPING AND FOREIGN MAILS.

Miniature Almanac—This Day.

A. M.		P. M.		P. M.
Sun rises	7:25	Sun sets	4:47	Moon rises 6:59

High Water This Day.

A. M.		A. M.		A. M.
S. Hook	8:24	Gov. Isl'd	8:54	H. Gate 10:50
P. M.		P. M.		P. M.
S. Hook	9:00	Gov. Isl'd	9:24	H. Gate 11:20

Outgoing Steamships.

TO-DAY, (SUNDAY,) JAN. 6.

	Mails Close.	Vessels Sail.
Pretoria, Hamburg		6:00 A. M.
MONDAY, JAN. 7.
Princess Anne, Norfolk		3:00 P. M.
TUESDAY, JAN. 8.
Algonquin, Charleston		3:00 P. M.
El Cid, New Orleans		3:00 P. M.
Finance, Colon	8:30 A. M.	1:00 P. M.
Hamilton, Norfolk		3:00 P. M.
WEDNESDAY, JAN. 9.
Belvernon, Inagua and Haiti	9:30 A. M.	12:00 M.
Cymric, Queenstown	5:00 A. M.	8:30 A. M.
Granada, Grenada and Trinidad	9:00 A. M.	11:00 A. M.
Jamestown, Norfolk		3:00 P. M.
Kensington, Antwerp, via Southampton	8:30 A. M. *10:00 A. M.	12:00 M.
Orizaba, Havana, Yucatan, &c	12:00 M.	3:00 P. M.
San Marcos, Galveston		3:00 P. M.
THURSDAY, JAN. 10.
Caribbee, Bermuda, &c.	12:30 P. M. *1:00 P. M.	3:00 P. M.
Cyprian Prince, Rio Janeiro	12:00 M.	3:00 P. M.
Jefferson, Norfolk		3:00 P. M.
La Bretagne, Havre	7:00 A. M.	10:00 A. M.
Syracusa, Pernambuco and Santos	11:00 A. M.	1:00 P. M.

*SUPPLEMENTARY MAILS.—Additional supplementary mails are opened on the piers of the American, English, French, and German steamers and remain open until within ten minutes of the hour of sailing.

TRANSPACIFIC MAILS.

Mails for Hawaii, Japan, China, and Philippine Islands, via San Francisco, close here daily at 6:30 P. M. up to Jan. 11, inclusive, for dispatch per steamer Gaelic. Mails for Hawaii, via San Francisco, close here daily at 6:30 P. M. up to Jan. 11, inclusive, for dispatch per steamer Zealandia. Mails for China, Japan, and Philippine Islands, via Tacoma, close here daily at 6:30 P. M. up to Jan. 15, inclusive, for dispatch per steamer Olympia. Mails for Hawaii, China, Japan, and Philippine Islands, via San Francisco, close here daily at 6:30 P. M. up to Jan. 19, inclusive, for dispatch per steamer Hongkong Maru. Mails for Australia, (except West Australia,) New Zealand, Hawaii, Fiji, and Samoan Islands, via San Francisco, close here daily at 6:30 P. M. after Jan. 16 and up to Jan. 19, inclusive, or on day of arrival of steamer Campania, due at New York Jan. 19, for dispatch per steamer Sonoma. Mails for China and Japan, via Vancouver, close here daily at 6:30 P. M. up to Jan. 22, inclusive, for dispatch per steamer Empress of Japan, (registered mail must be directed "via Vancouver.")

Transpacific mails are forwarded to port of sailing daily and the schedule of closing is arranged on the presumption of their uninterrupted overland transit. Registered mail closes at 6 P. M previous day.

POST OFFICE NOTICE.

Postmaster Van Cott announces that the mails from China, Japan, and Hawaii of the following dates, Hongkong, Dec. 4; Shanghai, Dec. 8; Yokohama, Dec. 15, and Honolulu, Dec. 15, which arrived at San Francisco on the steamer City of Peking, were dispatched East at 6 P. M. Jan. 1, and are due in New York this morning.

Incoming Steamships.

TO-DAY, (SUNDAY,) JAN. 6.

Algonquin, Jacksonville, Jan. 3.
Cap Frio, Hamburg, Dec. 24.
Chicago City, Swansea, Dec. 22.
City of Birmingham, Savannah, Jan. 2.
Curityba, Matanzas, Jan. 2.
Cymric, Liverpool, Dec. 25.
Kaiserin Maria Theresia, Bremen, Dec. 27.
La Bretagne, Havre, Dec. 29.
Liv, Algiers, Dec. 18.
Lowther Castle Glasgow, Dec. 14.
Menominee, London, Dec. 27.
Potsdam, Rotterdam, Dec. 27.
Powhatan, Gibraltar, Dec. 21.
Princess Anne, Norfolk, Jan. 5.
Seneca, Matanzas, Jan 2.
Tallahassee, Jacksonville, Dec. 30.
Trier, St. Michael's, Dec. 25.
Zoroaster, Liverpool, Dec. 23.

MONDAY, JAN. 7.

Buffalo, Hull, Dec. 24.
Coronda, St. Lucia, Dec. 31.
Coleridge, St. Lucia, Dec. 31.
Colorado, Brunswick, Jan. 4.
Dominic, St. Lucia, Dec. 31.
Elwick, Huelva, Dec. 22.
Marengo, New Castle, Dec. 25.
Philadelphia, La Guayra, Dec. 30.
Sardinian, Glasgow, Dec. 27.
Servia, Liverpool, Dec. 29.

TUESDAY, JAN. 8.

Circassian Prince, Shields, Dec. 24.
Comus, New Orleans, Jan. 3.
El Norte, New Orleans, Jan. 3.
Furnessia, Glasgow, Dec. 27.
Hiso, Bordeaux, Dec. 22.
Jamestown, Norfolk, Jan. 7.
Max. Dantzic, Dec. 24.
Niagara, Colon, Jan. 1.

WEDNESDAY, JAN. 9.

Cevic, Liverpool, Dec. 30.
Kenkett, Colon, Jan. 1.
Nueces, Galveston, Jan. 2.
Jefferson, Norfolk, Jan. 8.

THURSDAY, JAN. 10.

California, Gibraltar, Dec. 26.
El Mar, New Orleans, Jan. 5.
Germanic, Liverpool, Jan. 2.
Neustria, Gibraltar, Dec. 26.
Noordland, Antwerp, Dec. 31.
Princess Anne, Norfolk, Jan. 9.

Arrived.

SS Orizaba, Leighton, Vera Cruz, &c., with mdse. and passengers to James E. Ward & Co. In Quarantine at 12.10 A. M., 6th.

SS Kensington, (Br.,) Roberts, Antwerp, Dec. 22, and Southampton 25th, with mdse. and passengers to the International Navigation Company. Arrived at the Bar at 2 A. M.

SS Elise Marie, (Ger.,) Dalldorf, Rotterdam, Dec. 18, in ballast to Philip Ruprecht. Arrived at the Bar at 7 A. M.

SS Beverley, (Br.,) Israel, Port Limon, Dec. 29, with fruit to The United Fruit Company. Arrived at the Bar at 9 A. M.

SS Hamilton, Boaz, Newport News and Norfolk, with mdse. and passengers to Old Dominion Steamship Company.

SS Alsenborn, Curry, Philadelphia for Bridgeport and New Haven.

SS Alabama, (Br.,) Gwak, Baltimore, Jan. 3, with mdse. in transit to United States Shipping Company. Arrived at the Bar at 4:45 P. M. Will finish loading for Bordeaux.

SS San Marcos, Galveston, Dec. 28, with mdse. and passengers to C. H. Mallory & Co. Passed in Sandy Hook at 7:02 P. M.

WIND—At Sandy Hook, N. J., at 9:30 P. M., northwest, moderate breeze; clear.

Sailed.

SS Philadelphian, (Br.,) for Liverpool.
SS Fuerst Bismarck, (Ger.,) for Gibraltar, Naples, &c.
SS El Dorado, for New Orleans.
SS Guyandotte, for Norfolk and Newport News.
SS Martello, (Br.,) for Hull.
SS Ruffon, (Br.,) for Pernambuco, &c.
SS Concho, for Key West and Galveston.
SS Oneida, for Wilmington, N. C., and Georgetown, S. C.
SS City of Macon, for Boston.
United States transport McClellan, for San Juan.
SS Etruria, (Br.,) for Liverpool.
SS Minneapolis, (Br.,) for London.
SS Phidias, (Br.,) for Montevideo, &c.
SS Horrox, (Br.,) for Manchester.
SS Trinidad, (Br.,) for Bermuda.
SS Statendam, (Dutch,) for Rotterdam via Boulogne.
SS Cerea, (Ital.,) for Genoa, &c.
SS San Juan, for Porto Rico.
SS Alene, (Br.,) for Kingston, &c.
SS Hildur, (Nor.,) for Curacao, &c.
SS Morro Castle, for Havana.
SS George W. Clyde, for Charleston and Jacksonville.
SS City of Augusta, for Savannah.
SS Chesapeake, for Baltimore.
SS Proteus, for New Orleans.
SS Astoria, (Br.,) for Glasgow.
SS Waccamaw, for Georgetown, S. C.
SS Mannheim, (Ger.,) for Flushing.
SS Leon XIII., (Span.,) Gomez, Vera Cruz, &c., Dec. —, with mdse. and passengers to J. M. Ceballos & Co. Arrived outside the Bar at 12 M.

By Cable.

LONDON, Jan. 5.—SS Southwark, (Br.,) Capt. Dann, for New York, sld. from Antwerp to-day.

SS La Champagne, (Fr.,) Capt. Fajolle, for New York, sld. from Havre at 11 A. M. to-day.

SS Umbria, (Br.,) Capt. Dutton, for New York, sld. from Liverpool to-day.

SS Campania, (Br.,) Capt. Walker, from New York, arr. at Liverpool to-day.

SS Acara, (Br.,) Capt. Kilgour, New York via Singapore, arr. at Shanghai to-day.

SS Vaderland, (Br.,) Capt. Albrecht, from New York, arr. at Antwerp at 2 P. M. to-day.

SS Edenbridge, (Br.,) Capt. Notman, for New York, sld. from Shields yesterday.

SS St. Filiana, (Br.,) Capt. Owen, for New York, sld. from Barry yesterday.

SS Norven, (Br.,) Capt. Norrie, from Manila for New York, sld. from Singapore yesterday.

SS Victoria, (Br.,) Capt. McKeer, from Dunkirk for New York, sld. from Queenstown yesterday.

SS Glengarry, (Br.,) Capt. Gedye, from Yokohama, &c., for New York, sld. from Suez to-day.

SS Karlsruhe, (Ger.,) Capt. Oesselmann, for New York, sld. from Bremen to-day.

SS Paula, (Ger.,) Capt. Hettmeyer, from New York, arr. at Swinemunde Jan. 2.

SS Hellos, (Ger.,) Capt. Jensen, from New York, arr. at Rotterdam yesterday.

SS Standard, (Ger.,) Capt. Schleemilch, from New York, arr. at Rotterdam yesterday.

SS Elwick, (Br.,) Capt. Clark, from Huelva for New York, sld. from Madeira, Dec. 27.

SS Falls of Keltie, (Br.,) Capt. Ralphs, for New York, sld. from Montevideo Jan. 1.

SS Hubert, (Br.,) Capt. Oliphant, for New York, sld. from Para Jan. 3.

SS Victoria, (Br.,) Capt. Bridges, from New York for Marseilles, passed Gibraltar to-day.

SS Llandaff City, (Br.,) Capt. Andrews, from New York for Bristol, passed Brow Head to-day.

SS Hekla, (Dan.,) Capt. Gundel, from New York, arr. at Copenhagen to-day.

SS Westburn, (Br.,) Capt. Bell, from Calcutta for New York, arr. at Aden to-day.

SS Grangense, (Br.,) Capt. Spedding, for New York, sld. from Ceara yesterday.

SS Caledonian, (Br.,) Capt. McLean, for New York, sld. from Liverpool to-day.

Yachts, Vessels, &c.

GAS ENGINE AND POWER COMPANY AND CHARLES L. SEABURY & COMPANY,
Builders of the only Naphtha Launch, high-class Steam Yachts, Sail Yachts, Electric Launches, Dinghys, Gigs, and Yacht Tenders. Seabury's Water Tube Boilers and Marine Engines. Storage Basin and Ship's Ways. Overhauling of all kinds promptly done. Charters and Insurance. Boats bought and sold on commission. Correspondence solicited. Send 10 cents in stamps for catalogue (our down-town office, 54 Broadway, or to factory, at Morris Heights, New York City.

A NEW GUIDE TO LOCAL INSPECTORS' EXAMINATION of masters and mates, containing all the work; by mail, $1; applicants for license prepared for examination. R. M. PUGSLEY, 116 Nassau St., New York.

AN EXCELLENT SCHOONER FOR SALE—bargain; would make fine auxillury, with one of Wing's marine gas engine. L. J. WING MANUFACTURING CO., 95 Liberty St.

ALL CLASSES OF STEAM VESSELS, YACHTS, tugs, launches, &c., designed and for sale; light-draught vessels a specialty. M. HUBBE, Naval Architect, 17 State St.

YACHTS FOR SALE OR CHARTER.
McIntosh Yacht Basin, 26th St., Brooklyn.
A. J. McINTOSH, Yacht Broker, 32 Broadway.

SPECIAL LIST OF CRUISING LAUNCHES; photos and plan for inspection. HUNTINGTON & BEAMAN, 220 Broadway, New York.

WORN-OUT GOLD AND SILVER BOUGHT BY R. LONGMAN'S SONS, Gold and Silver Refiners, 8 John St.

Long Island Real Estate for Sale.

10c. per line 3 times 24c 7 times 42c Double for display

5 ACRES FOR $100,
$5 down, then $1 per week. This fine tract, within few minutes' walk of RAILROAD station, and short distance from WHARF; nice, high, level land, good loam soil, and just the place for raising strawberries, vegetables, and POULTRY. This land is actually worth double what I am asking for it. Only a few 5-acre plots at this price. Don't wait. Call or write VERNON J. MILLER, ROOM 410B, 150 Nassau St.

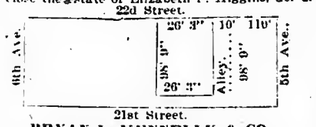
A RARE CHANCE FOR A FINE PLACE, LESS than cost; new house, 8 rooms; large barn; fruits; 6 acres land on main street; 15 minutes to depot and bay; $2,800; $500 cash, balance to suit. O. PETERSON, Patchogue, L. I.

ISLIP, LONG ISLAND.—FOR SALE, DESIRable corner property, 321x542, in most fashionable part of the town; there is no house on it. J. V. McMANUS, 99 Nassau St., New York.

Real Estate at Auction.

10c. per line 3 times 24c 7 times 42c Double for display.

BRYAN L. KENNELLY, Auct'r.
ABSOLUTE EXECUTOR'S SALE,
to close the estate of Elizabeth P. Higgins, dec'd.
22d Street.



21st Street.
BRYAN L. KENNELLY & CO.
will sell at auction,
WEDNESDAY, JAN. 23, 1901,
at 12 o'clock noon, at the New York Real Estate Salesroom, 111 Broadway, New York City.
4 WEST 22D ST.,
four-story and basement high-stoop brownstone building, with two-story extension, with stores, offices, and studios; size of lot 26.3x98.9; building covers lot. Title Guarantee and Trust Co. policy furnished.
JAMES TAYLOR LEWIS, Esq., Attorney for Estate, 120 Broadway.
Maps and particulars with Attorney, or at Auctioneers' offices, Kennelly Building, 7 Pine St.

BRYAN L. KENNELLY, Auct'r.
BRYAN L. KENNELLY & CO.
will sell at auction,
Tuesday, Jan. 15, 1901.
at 12 o'clock noon, at the New York Real Estate Salesroom, 111 Broadway, New York City.
Administrator's sale,
ESTATE JAMES B. BRADY, DECEASED,
587 GRAND ST.
and
1 CORLEARS ST.,
being southwest corner Grand and Corlears Sts., five-story and cellar brick double tenement, with store; size of lot, 23.4x70x irregular.
JOHN H. ROGAN, Esq., Atty., 145 Nassau St.
Maps and further particulars with attorney, or at Auctioneers' offices, Kennelly Building, 7 Pine St.

BRYAN L. KENNELLY, Auct'r.
BRYAN L. KENNELLY & CO.
will sell at auction,
TUESDAY, JANUARY 15, 1901,
at 12 o'clock noon, at the New York Real Estate Salesroom, 111 Broadway,
EXECUTOR'S SALE,
estate of Eugenia M. Moore,
15 and 17 Manhattan Ave.,
five-story brick and stone double apartment houses, seven rooms and bath to each apartment; hardwood trim, exposed plumbing, &c.; 27x100 each.
JAMES E. KELLY, Esq., Attorney, 220 Broadway.
Maps and further particulars with attorney, or at Auctioneers' offices, Kennelly Building, 7 Pine St.

BRYAN L. KENNELLY, Auct'r.
BRYAN L. KENNELLY & CO.
will sell at auction,
TUESDAY, JAN. 15, 1901,
at 12 o'clock noon, at the New York Real Estate Salesroom, 111 Broadway,
EXECUTRIX SALE,
Estate of J. Paul Jones, deceased,
2113 and 2115 Lexington Ave.,
two three-story and basement bay-window front high-stoop brick and stone Dwellings, in good order, 18x35 each.
143 EAST 127TH ST.,
two-story basement and cellar high-stoop brick and stone Dwelling, in good order; size of lot 50x100.
Maps, &c., at Auctioneers' office, 7 Pine St.

BRYAN L. KENNELLY, Auct'r.
BRYAN L. KENNELLY & CO.
will sell at auction,
Wednesday, Jan. 23, 1901,
at 12 o'clock noon, at the New York Real Estate Salesroom, 111 Broadway, New York City.
Administrator's sale,
2071-2073-2075-2077-2079 7TH AVE.,
CORNER 124TH ST.,
five four-story brick single Apartments, with stores; size of lot, 100.11x75.
EZEKIEL FIXMAN, Esq., Atty., 141 B'way.
Maps, &c., at Auctioneers' office, 7 Pine St.

BRYAN L. KENNELLY, Auct'r.
BRYAN L. KENNELLY & CO.
will sell at auction,
Wednesday, Jan. 23, 1901,
at 12 o'clock noon, at the New York Real Estate Salesroom, 111 Broadway, New York City,
254 WEST 73D ST.,
handsome four-story basement and cellar brick and stone Dwelling, with two-story extension; magnificent gas fixtures, andirons, &c.; decorated and handsomely trimmed in hard woods; size of lot, 20x102.2.
Maps, &c., at Auctioneers' office, 7 Pine St.

BRYAN L. KENNELLY, Auct'r.
BRYAN L. KENNELLY & CO.
will sell at auction,
Tuesday, Jan. 15, 1901,
at 12 o'clock noon, at the New York Real Estate Salesroom, 111 Broadway, New York City.
62 Washington Square South, four-story basement cellar and sub-cellar brick and brownstone dwelling; size of lot, 25x110.
Maps, &c., at Auctioneers' office, 7 Pine St.

JAMES L. WELLS, Auctioneer,
at 111 Broadway, N. Y. Real Estate Salesroom,
TUESDAY, JANUARY 22, NOON.
Executor's Sale.
By order of executors of Estate of Bryan Lawrence, Dec'd,
CHOICE BUSINESS PROPERTY,
BEING ENTIRE BLOCK BOUNDED BY HARLEM RIVER,
SOUTHERN BOULEVARD,
3d & Lincoln Aves.
Together with
Water Front and Bulkheads,
70 PER CENT. CAN REMAIN ON MORTGAGE AT 4½ PER CENT.
Apply for maps to James L. Wells, Auctioneer, 141 Broadway, or to
WILLIAM C. ORR, ESQ.,
Attorney for Executors, 51 Chambers Street.

L. J. PHILLIPS & CO.,
AUCTIONEERS,
WILL SELL AT PUBLIC AUCTION,
ABSOLUTE SALE,
To close the Estate of Simon Bing, Jr.,
TUESDAY, JAN. 22nd, 1901,
At 12 o'clock noon, at the New York Real Estate Salesroom, No. 111 Broadway, New York City.
268 Rivington, cor. Columbia St.,
4-story tenement, with stores; lot 25x70. Also 243 & 245 W. 29th St.,
2 four-story flats, with rear buildings; 50x88.2.
For terms and further particulars apply to L. S. Bing, Att'y, 237 B'way, or Auct'rs, 158 B'way, N. Y. City.

Real Estate.

10c. per line 3 times 24c 7 times 42c Double for display.

$6 PER WEEK TOTAL COST.—A model house, meeting every requirement for refined people; splendid neighborhood, in the city; with all conveniences; but above all, low in price and offered on terms which will interest you, costing to carry less than rent; these are new; eight or ten rooms; gas, electricity, running water; only 30 minutes from Manhattan business centre; they are out of the common and worthy of your consideration. Write for particulars to L. P. O. Box 2078, N. Y. City.

NEW HOUSES IN OLD FLUSHING'S best neighborhood, only 30 minutes to Manhattan's business centres. These are finely built, low in price and offered on EXCEPTIONAL TERMS. Are homes for conservative people of refinement who at a moderate monthly cost desire something out of the common run. Call or write for full particulars.
Realty Trust 60 and 62 Liberty St.

$1,000 LOAN WANTED; GOOD SECURITY, AND $100 bonus paid. Address Loan, J. 205 Times.

New Jersey Property for Sale.

10c. per line 3 times 24c 7 times 42c Double for display.

I HAVE LOTS IN HACKENSACK, ON GOOD streets at $100, $125, $175, $200, and $250, full size. I am now closing them out; no money down first month. Greatest bargains ever heard of. Also a little cottage with barn and plenty of land, to rent for $8 per month; for sale at $800 on monthly payments. Call personally at No. 121 Liberty St., New York City. WILLIAM E. TAYLOR.

$17 A LOT.
Adjoining Lakewood, N. J., the famous Winter resort; we offer plots containing 6 lots for $85; small weekly payments. Special trip to property Sunday, Jan. 13. R. HALLEY & CO., 2 East 125th St.

FOR SALE.—Corner lot, 60x100; best location Palisade Park; $1,000; easy terms.
FOR RENT.—Large 11-room new house, Hackensack, furnished or unfurnished; all improvements; large lot; near stations; might sell. PANGBORN & MARSHALL, 62 Wall St.

LAKEWOOD, NEW JERSEY.—FOR SALE AT a bargain, a handsomely furnished, 15-room cottage; all modern improvements; perfect condition; best location; price, $11,000. Address, G. CANNON, Box 417, Bryn Mawr, Pennsylvania.

FINE FARMS AND SUBURBAN RESIDENCES, all prices and sections; also exchange.
LA MONT, A4 Produce Exchange.

THE NEW YORK TIMES.
"All the News That's Fit to Print."

City Real Estate for Sale.

10c. per line 3 times 24c 7 times 42c Double for display.

WE HAVE FOR SALE
DESIRABLE DOWNTOWN PROPERTY
NETTING 6 PER CENT.
RULAND & WHITING,
5 Beekman Street.

FOR SALE
4 AND 5-STORY BUILDINGS,
ON WEST 33D ST., NEAR 8th AV.,
53 FEET FRONT, WELL ADAPTED
FOR LIGHT MANUFACTURING,
LAUNDRY, OR OTHER PURPOSES.
GOOD CONDITION.
CARRIAGE LIFT; DRIVEWAY.
ASHFORTH & CO., 1,509 BROADWAY.

Taken under foreclosure, can be bought at a bargain, the following apartment houses: Park Av. in the eighties, three houses, 81 feet front, ask $90,000.
West 100th St., 38 feet front, 20 families, $40,000.
West 137th St., near Lenox, two double houses, $22,500 each. 3d Av., near 104th St., 5-story stores and tenement, sixteen families, $28,000.
Firm of L. J. CARPENTER, 41 Liberty St.

THOMAS P. PAYNE, 90 BROADWAY, HAS many parcels, large and small, of the finest city and country Properties for sale and exchange. Plots, Tenements, Business Property, Lots, private Dwellings, all sizes and all sections; suburban Houses and Farms; cash buyers for bargains; bargains for cash buyers; money on mortgage at lowest rates. Call or write.

FRONTING ON
GREENWICH STREET AND TRINITY PLACE
Plot 40.8x75, with substantial old building, can be bought at a reasonable figure.
Firm of L. J. CARPENTER, 41 Liberty St.

$22,500.00 EACH WILL BUY TWO 5-STORY apartments; good location; rent over $2,400.00 each; only $5,000.00 cash needed; balance on mortgage 5%; bargain to quick buyer. HALL J. HOW & CO., 234 West 116th Street.

$3,500 CASH ONLY WILL BUY A 21-FAMILY tenement in best renting location on Manhattan; excellent condition and clearing $920 annually above all expenses; greatest bargain ever offered. Sacrifice, Box 101 Times.

BRONX CORNER FOR SALE.
Fine house, prominent avenue; well paying store; will make good place for druggist; will sell, rent, or exchange. Address B. H., 157 East 125th St.

A.—BRONX BARGAINS—TWO-STORY BRICK, 134th St., near Willis Av.; $5,000; another $6,000; $6,500; brick corner, 25 feet, near 165th St. and Boston Av., $8,000. G. A. BRIEL, 81 East 125th.

BROKERS TAKE NOTICE.—Lots 25x100, on Westchester Av., near Prospect Av., to exchange for 2 or 3-story frame house. RIEHL, 2,899 3d Av.

NEW HOUSE FOR SALE, 2½-STORY, 9 rooms, bath, improvements; Perry Av., north of Bedford Park. Apply HALPIN, on premises, or Pelham Av., Fordham.

AN ESTATE WILL SELL FOUR-STORY FLAT; price, $13,250; mortgage $8,000 at 4½ per cent.; rent, $1,440; all rented; prominent street. REID, 1,073 Lexington Av.

LOTS; BRONX BARGAINS; TREMONT, Woodycrest, Aqueduct Avs., Fordham Road; cheap Woodlawn corner. GEORGE PURVIS, 156 Broadway.

BARGAIN!—Brownstone, 18-ft. dwelling, near Madison Avenue; hardwood floors; open plumbing; perfect condition; $14,000; easy terms. THEO. ROGERS BRILL, 351 West 59th St.

ATTRACTIVE RESIDENCES IN MURRAY HILL section; prices ranging from $15,000 to $75,000. FOLSOM BROTHERS, 835 Broadway.

A.—$12,000—BIG BARGAIN—BROWN STONE, near Madison Av. and 125th St.; 18 feet wide; want offer. G. A. BRIEL, 81 East 125th St.

NO. 100 GRAND STREET.—Rent, $9,000; price, $100,000; mortgage, $45,000; elevators. GURNEE & HOPKINS, No. 134 West 23d.

DESIRABLE PLOTS AND LOTS IN CHOICE location, with building loans; prices reasonable. FOLSOM BROTHERS, 835 Broadway.

EXCEPTIONALLY FINE CORNER PLOT, 5TH Av., near 23d, 91x140; price reasonable. FOLSOM BROTHERS, 835 Broadway.

DESIRABLE HOUSES, 5TH TO 12TH ST., INclusive, near 5th Av.; prices reasonable. FOLSOM BROTHERS, 835 Broadway.

BARGAIN; HANDSOME PRIVATE DWELLing, East 56th St.; price right; little cash; might exchange. GEORGE PURVIS, 156 B'way.

FOR SALE—12-room residence on most desirable part of St. Nicholas Av.; all improvements. C. B. A., Box 150 Times.

INDUCEMENT—WEST 94TH ST.; CONVENient three-story house, 11 rooms. OWNER, 142 West 38th St.

PLOT OF LOTS MUST BE SOLD; WILL double in value in year; bargain. ATWATER, 150 Broadway.

A.—$6,500 BUYS NICE BROWN-STONE, NEAR 2d Av., Harlem. G. A. BRIEL, 81 East 125th.

Brooklyn Real Estate for Sale.

10c. per line 3 times 24c 7 times 42c Double for display.

Beautiful, Artistic Homes
30 MINUTES FROM PARK ROW.

2 and 3 Story Houses	Near Prospect Park; Midwood Street, just off Flatbush Ave., neighborhood restricted; stone houses of various colors and designs; Swell and square fronts; Box stoops	Prices Low. Terms to Suit.

70 HOUSES TO SELECT FROM. 40 ALREADY SOLD.

These houses are modern in every particular. The rooms are arranged with a view to comfort. Foyer or saloon parlors. Hardwood trim throughout; open plumbing, large closets, tiled bathroom, dumb waiters, etc. Can be seen any day.

W. A. A. BROWN, Owner.
Brooklyn office, corner Flatbush Ave. and Midwood St. New York office, 149 B'way. Open evenings until 9. Sundays and holidays all day.
SEND FOR ILLUSTRATED BOOKLET.

BROOKLYN LOT BARGAIN
Just outside new fire limits; 30 minutes to Park Row.
$300 $400, $500.
Building inducements; restricted and guaranteed titles; cash discounts; easy terms; no interest.
EDWARD O. JACKSON,
Corner Douglass St. and Saratoga Av., Brooklyn.

FOR SALE OR LEASE, 690 FEET WATER front, foot 39th St. Ferry, South Brooklyn, 260x240; yard and building; 32 feet water, low tide; also, for sale, three flat houses, Clinton Av., near Fulton; bargain. PIERSON & WOLFFE, 35 Nassau St. Tel. 583 Cort.

PUTNAM AV., BETWEEN RALPH AND Patchen Avs.—2-story and basement frame dwelling; excellent neighborhood; all improvements; only $3,500; small amount down, balance payments to suit. KETCHAM BROS., 1,585 Broadway, Halsey "L" Station.

HOUSE FOR SALE, 160 HOPKINS ST. 3-story 6 family frame dwelling in good order, 25x53x100, with 2-story and basement rear house 25x25. Inquire on premises.

Mortgage Loans.
New York and Brooklyn Property.
DIOSSY & CO., 5 COURT SQ., B'KLYN.

BEFORE Buying, Selling, or Exchanging B'klyn Property, call or write, FAILMEZGER, 1,030 Gates Av., Brooklyn.

Staten Island Property.

HOTEL CASTLETON,
NEW BRIGHTON, STATEN ISLAND.
Sale in Partition.
Rare opportunity to purchase a well-established Summer hotel; superb location; fine view of harbor; twenty minutes from Battery. Open for inspection daily. Sale on premises JANUARY 10TH AT NOON.

Country Real Estate for Sale.

10c. per line 3 times 24c 7 times 42c Double for display.

AT ST. AUGUSTINE, FLA.—Lorillard Villa; must be sold; fronting St. George, St. Hypolita, and Cuna Sts.; about 1¼ acres; beautifully embellished; flowering shrubs, trees, plants, &c., a veritable floral park; villa contains 10 rooms, fully furnished; last rental $2,500; suitable for private residence or club; location warrants improvement for business. To sell immediately, $16,000 will be accepted; no exchange. This is a bargain. Photographs here. Folio 8,787. PHILLIPS & WELLS, Tribune Building.

WE OFFER FOR SALE
farm property, 124 acres,
NEAR PRINCETON, NEW JERSEY.
Fine site for modern mansion; bargain.
CHAS. H. EASTON & CO.,
Tel. 705-38. 116 West 42d St.

$2,200 WILL BUY A GOOD FARM OF 40 acres, near town; good buildings; 80 acres for $800; a bargain. E. R. LENKER, Hartly, Del.

DELAWARE RIVER FARM, SULLIVAN County.—62 acres; house, 7 rooms; beautiful situation; $1,500. HOLBROOK, Port Jervis.

ALL COUNTRY REAL ESTATE A SPECIALTY; bargains and exchanges, all directions. PHILLIPS & WELLS, Tribune Building.

BEFORE BUYING FARMS READ HOMESEEKERS' JOURNAL, 3 mos., 10c. 269 Dearborn St., Chicago.

Real Estate Wanted.

10c. per line 3 times 24c 7 times 42c Double for display.

IF YOU WANT TO BUY, SELL, OR EXchange your house, lots, farms quickly, write or call personally. S. BIBER & CO., 204 East 19th St.

WANTED—Private houses, either for sale or rent, below 59th St.; owners only. FOLSOM BROTHERS, 835 Broadway.

Real Estate for Exchange.

10c. per line 3 times 24c 7 times 42c Double for display.

$40,000 EQUITY IN FINE piece of business Property, leased to one tenant who does all repairs and pays the Croton water rent; will trade for Lots on west side of city. Send full particulars to Geo. W. Campbell, 122 West 103d,

Instruction.

30c. per line $4.50 per line for 30 times.

WINTER TERM

THE WINTER TERM OF THE

Clavier Company Piano School

Begins Thursday, January 3, 1901.

ENROLLMENT AND EXAMINATION DAY JANUARY 2.

EVENING CLASSES IF DESIRED.

THE ONLY WAY PUPILS CAN GET THE FULL BENEFITS OF THE SUPERIOR ADVANTAGES AND LOW TUITION RATES WHICH THIS SCHOOL OFFERS IN TECHNICAL AND MUSICAL TRAINING IS TO ENROLL AT THE PROPER TIME AND ENTER CLASSES AT THE BEGINNING OF A TERM. FURTHER INFORMATION GIVEN ON APPLICATION IN PERSON OR BY LETTER.

THE CLAVIER COMPANY SCHOOL
26 WEST 15TH ST., NEW YORK.

HEFFLEY SCHOOL,

243 245 Ryerson St., Brooklyn.

Received State University diplomas for business, shorthand, and high-school courses and certificates for law, medical, and dental students. IT IS THE ONLY SCHOOL that fits students for ALL these credentials. Day and evening. Begin at any time.

SPANISH, ITALIAN, AND LATIN

thoroughly taught, best method, by expert teacher, with ten years' experience. Address Dr. CIL, Box 112 Times Office.

THE JOHN PRENDERGAST SCHOOL OF LITerary Training resumes classes in journalism, magazine writing, proofreading, literary analysis, and public speaking; special terms for midwinter classes. Apply for circular, 150-156 Carnegie.

CARNEGIE HALL GYMNASIUM

For women and children; evening class Monday. Miss D. M. ELLIOTT, Room 60, Carnegie Hall.

CLASS AND PRIVATE INSTRUCTION; English, commercial branches; day and evening; terms low. BENJAMIN F. KELLEY, 7 West 14th.

COMMERCIAL AND CORPORATION LAW.—Special tuition by experienced lawyer and teacher. Address "RONALD," 52 Broadway.

ISAAC PITTMAN; SHORTHAND; PRIVATE and class lessons; best institution; reasonable rates. Metropolitan School, 289 4th Av.

FRENCH ACADEMY, REMOVED 106 EAST 22d St.; Professor BERGER of Paris; French lessons; conversation; free trial.

FRENCH, SPANISH, ITALIAN INSTRUCTION; best method; expert teachers; terms moderate. Prof. J. M. PELLERIN, 207 West 25th.

Musical.

10c. per line 3 times 24c 7 times 42c Double for display.

INCORPORATED 1878.

NEW YORK COLLEGE OF MUSIC,

128-130 E. 58TH ST.

ALEXANDER LAMBERT, Director.

Private Instruction in Piano, Singing, Violin, 'Cello, and all branches of Music by a Faculty unsurpassed for its excellence.

Special Department for beginners.

All Instrumental and Vocal Students receive free instruction in Harmony, Counterpoint, Vocal Sight Reading, Ensemble Playing, and free admission to Concerts, Lectures, &c.

The College Building has been entirely renovated and fitted out with 16 new Steinway & Sons' pianos.

Students received daily.

Catalogue sent on application.

SENT FREE

New Catalogues containing PORTRAITS OF PROMINENT COMPOSERS, both AMERICAN & FOREIGN. No. 1, Piano Music; No. 2, Vocal Music; No. 3, Anthems and Part Songs; No. 4, Violin Music; No. 5, Organ Music. ARTHUR P. SCHMIDT, 146 Boylston St., Boston; 136 5th Av., New York.

HEINRICH MEYN,

FOR CONCERTS, MUSICALS, ORATORIO.

Apply to REMINGTON SQUIRE, 125 East 24th St.

AT 112 EAST 18TH ST.....The ONLY N. Y. CONSERVATORY, 112 East 18th, ...BETWEEN 4TH AV. and IRVING PLACE. The FAMOUS MUSIC SCHOOL.....The FIRST in the COUNTRY. Lessons DAY and EVENING...Years on 14th St. ....GRADUATES PROVIDED with POSITIONS.

GRANT ODELL,

BARITONE.

Concert, Oratorio, vocal Instruction. 10 East 16th St.

FRANCIS FISCHER POWERS.

Voice Culturist. New York, Carnegie Hall, Oct. 20 to May 1st; Kansas City, Mo., Pepper Building, May 15 to Aug. 1st; Los Angeles, Cal., Westminster Hotel, Aug. 15 to Oct. 15.

ALFRED Y. CORNELL,

TENOR. VOCAL INSTRUCTION.
561 CARNEGIE HALL.

CARLETON CONSERVATORY, 128 WEST 23D St.—Violin, piano, singing, mandolin, banjo, guitar; lessons, 50c., 75c.; contracts with fine voices; instruments furnished; piano practice, hour, 10c.

PERRY AVERILL, BARITONE,
VOCAL INSTRUCTION.
220 West 59th St., New York.
Telephone No. 1,097 Columbus Av.

H. R. KNOPF, VIOLIN MAKER, 119 EAST 23D ST., BET. LEXINGTON AND 4TH AVS. —HANDLES NEW AND OLD VIOLINS, 'CELLOS, VIOLAS, BOWS, STRINGS; REPAIRS CAREFULLY MADE.

SCHOOL FOR PIANO, HARMONY, VOCAL sight reading; original non-syllable method; lessons privately, classes; quartet practice; coaching, accompanying. H. E. WOODRUFF, 117 West 15th St.

Mme. OGDEN-CRANE,

VOCAL INSTRUCTION.
STUDIO, 3 EAST 14TH STREET.

MISS JEANETTE M. JUDSON,

Contralto, for concerts and musicales. Address, care of F. X. Arens, 305 5th Av., N. Y. City.

CHARLOTTE A. MEAD,

VOICE CULTURE.
50 FIFTH AVENUE.

C. B. HAWLEY,

VOCAL INSTRUCTION. NEW STUDIO, 489 5TH AVE., NEAR 42D ST.

ARTHUR D. WOODRUFF, Voice Culture. 120 FIFTH AV.

VIOLIN ARTISTICALLY TAUGHT, EITHER residence; terms reasonable; not payable in advance; references exchanged. CHADWICK, 2 Chambers St.

MRS. CAROLIN'S
MUSICAL BUREAU,
ARTISTS FOR SOCIAL FUNCTIONS.
2 WEST 33D ST.

PAULINE ELLIOTT RYDER.—Violinist for concerts and musicales; highest social, musical references; pupils accepted. Address 43 W. 34th.

GUSTAV REHN! PIANIST! DESIRES A FEW more pupils; terms moderate; old established. Studio, 1 East 113th St.

SOMETHING NEW!—Piano taught in 3 months without notes; accompaniments a specialty; PROMONTORY, 156 West 14th St.

VIOLIN STUDIO, 166 WEST 23D ST.—Advantage to beginners and advanced pupils; private or classes; terms reasonable.

VIOLIN, PIANO; PRIVATE INSTRUCTION; experienced thorough musician; reasonable terms. Prof. A. BYRNE, 341 West 23d St.

LADY TEACHER DESIRES FEW MORE scholars for piano; special attention given beginners. WILDE, 332 West 47th St.

MUSICAL.—COWEN, 327 East 16th, near 2d Av. Park. PIANO LESSONS, 24 for $5; single 25c. ESTABLISHED.

EMMA HOWSON, Vocal Culture. Absolutely the Lamperti method taught. 146 5th Av. Tuesdays and Fridays.

FRED L. HILL.—Instruction in singing; beginners a specialty; terms moderate. 93 West 103d.

120 W. 97TH ST., N. Y. CITY.—G. E. Griffith, teacher of singing; director and baritone soloist.

Dancing.

10c. per line 3 times 24c 7 times 42c Double for display.

GEORGE W. WALLACE,
Leslie Rooms, 200 West 53d Street;
Ellerslie Rooms, 80-82 West 126th St.
Class and private tuition. See circular.

HARVARD DANCING ACADEMY, 158-162 W. 125th St.—Waltz, schottische, two-step, polka, lanciers; waltz quadrille guaranteed in 5 private and 4 class lessons, $5; 4 class lessons, $1.

A LIMITED NUMBER OF LADIES AND GENtlemen to join a select afternoon dancing class; Tuesday and Thursday afternoon, 3-5:30 o'clock. 111 East 125th St.

PRIVATE DANCING CLASSES FRIDAYS, AFternoons and Evenings.—Adults, children. Professor FERNANDO, Dancing Master, 137 West 125th St.

BRADY'S 1,408 Amsterdam Av., 135-137 West 125th St. WALTZ

PROF. D. C. LESTER.—Dancing and polite deportment Colonial Hall, 101st St. and Columbus Av. Offices hours, 2 to 10 P. M.

AMERICAN, 2,163 6TH AV., NEAR 116TH ST.—Waltz, two-step guaranteed in 10 private lessons for $5.00.

Europe.

NAPLES, (Italy.)

PARKER'S HOTEL.
English sanitation. Electric light. Lift. Inclusive terms.

Pianos and Organs.

10c. per line 3 times 24c 7 times 42c Double for display.

WEBER

PIANO WAREROOMS,

5th Ave., cor. 16th St.

We offer this week the following used pianos, in first-class condition, that will do far better service and give far better satisfaction than new instruments of inferior makers:

One Weber Upright	$240
One Weber Upright	290
One Chickering Upright	225
One Kranich & Bach Upright	190
One Wheelock Upright	160
One Wheelock Upright	140
One McCammon Upright	125

Careful buyers will find it worth their while to examine these bargains. Cash or installments. New pianos to rent and rent applied if purchased.

WEBER WAREROOMS,
5th Ave., cor. 16th St.

ALL CARS TRANSFER TO

Bloomingdale's

3d Ave. & 59th St.

Pianos, $1 PER WEEK.

Wilson Piano, the standard of perfection, $155.00. $5.00 down and $1.00 per week.

Pianos delivered on payment of $5.00.

BLOOMINGDALE BROS.,
3d Ave., 59th and 60th Sts.

"What Is Home Without a Piano?"—Wise. AT THE Standard Art Galleries.

19 and 21 West 125th St.
BENJ. S. WISE, AUCTIONEER, WILL SELL
Tuesday Evening, January 8, at 8 o'clock promptly,
50 NEW AND USED PIANOS,
Uprights, Grands, Squares.

The catalogue contains the following well-known makers:—

STEINWAY,	STECK,	LINDEMAN,
KNABE,	HAZELTON,	DECKER,
CHICKERING,	HAINES,	FISCHER,
WEBER,	WHEELOCK,	SPIELMAN,
SOHMER,	NEW ENGLAND,	MILTON.

—EXHIBITION.—

Pianos on view and for trial to-morrow, Monday, 9 A. M. until 10 P. M.

These Pianos are suitable for dealers, music teachers, schools, theatres, concert halls, colleges, private homes, apartments, etc.

Note time of sale, 8 o'clock P. M.

WISSNER PIANOS.

Used by Eminent Artists.

BROOKLYN: COR. FULTON ST. & FLATBUSH AV. NEW YORK: 25 EAST 14TH ST.

Second-Hand Uprights of Good Makers,

$85—$125. Grands, $175—$300.

PEASE PIANOS

100 W. 42d St., Just West of 6th Ave.

For 55 years a standard of excellence—a tone that is famous for singing qualities. Direct from manufacturer. Easy terms. Good used pianos different makes $125 up. Write for catalogue.

MATHUSHEK & SON and OPERA PIANOS.

The balance of our Holiday stock at reduced prices. You can obtain a bargain from our large stock of slightly used pianos recently taken in exchange, including some celebrated makes; rents, $4 up.

MATHUSHEK & SON, B'way cor. 47th St.

KRAKAUER

PIANOS.

For Sale and to Rent. Easy terms. 113 EAST 14TH ST.

THE BIG WEST SIDE PIANO HOUSE.

A small cash payment secures for you a fine piano stool and scarf; delivered free; balance on easy payments; rents, $4 up.

741-743 8th Av., near 46th St.

OPEN EVENINGS UNTIL 10 O'CLOCK.

PIANO SPECIALS: 6 small uprights, $40 to $60; $3 monthly until paid. Steinway, $50; Bradbury, $40; Gilbert, $25; $2 monthly until paid. Organ bargains. GOETZ & CO., 81-87 Court St., Brooklyn.

WINTERROTH PIANOS. CASH. INSTALMENTS. $125 UPWARD. 105 EAST 14TH ST. & 98 5TH AV. Open Evenings.

MARSCHEIDER, 10 East 14th St.—Guaranteed high-grade pianos; easy terms; bargains in used pianos; price on every piano. Open evenings.

EMERSON PIANOS.—Beautiful new designs; several slightly used; at unusually low prices; Steinway Parlor Grand; rare bargain. GEO. W. HERBERT, 10 East 17th St.

BARGAINS.—Upright pianos, $100 upward; more value for money than elsewhere guaranteed; square, $20 upward; rented, exchanged; easy payments. CHRISTMAN, 21 East 14th St.

ELEGANT MAHOGANY UPRIGHT PIANO, slightly used, for $175; easy payments if desired; fully guaranteed. W. F. TWAY PIANO CO., 94 5th Av.

$10.00 FIRST PAYMENT, BALANCE EASY INSTALMENTS. ELEGANT NEW UPRIGHT; DELIVERED FREE. WESER BROS., 524 W. 43D St.

$5.00 MONTHLY BUYS FULL-SIZE "BILLINGER & CO." UPRIGHT; EVERY PIANO GUARANTEED. WESER BROS., 524 W. 43D St.

LIMITED NUMBER OF NEW UPRIGHT pianos; reliable makes; rare chance. Inquire crockery store, 1,047 Broadway, Brooklyn.

LARGE ASSORTMENT SLIGHTLY USED UPrights; squares taken in exchange; "Weber" bargain. WESER BROS., 524 W. 43d St.

STEINWAY; EVERY IMPROVEMENT; BEAUtifully carved; great sacrifice. Elegant Upright, only $75. BIDDLE'S, 7 East 14th St.

SPECIAL SALE OF FINE UPRIGHT PIANOS this week, extraordinary bargains for cash. HAHN, 165 W. 23d St.

$3.00 TO $5.00 PER MONTH RENT. PIANOS with mandolin attachment. WESER BROS., 524 W. 43d St.

WILL SELL MY EXPENSIVE UPRIGHT piano, couple months old, for $125. 72 Lexington Av., near 26th St.

$200 New piano stool and scarf, $7 per month. Call at 1,569 B'way, cor. 47th St.

Groceries, Liquors, &c.

HARRIS'S WINE AND LIQUOR WAREHOUSE, 1,706 Madison Av., cor. 113th.—Special reductions, holiday wines and liquors.

L. KUEHN, DELICATESSEN, WINES, LIQuors, bottled beer, 2,176 8th Av., near 118th St. Prompt attention all orders.

S. KRAUS, FINE WINES AND LIQUORS. Lowest prices, 2,119 8th Av., near 115th St. Branch, 612 2d Av.

Religious Notices.

AT TEMPLE BETH-EL, 5TH AV. AND 76TH Street, regular Sunday services at 11 A. M. Rev. Dr. S. Schulman will lecture on "Life's Problem the Same in All Centuries."

AT LENOX AV. UNITARIAN CHURCH, COR. 121st St., Rev. Merle St. C. Wright, Pastor.—Rev. Robert Collyer will preach at 11.

FIVE POINTS HOUSE OF INDUSTRY, 155 Worth St., William F. Barnard, Superintendent.—Service of song on Sunday at 3:30 P. M. Singing by the choir of children of the institution. Public cordially invited. Donations of clothing and shoes solicited.

HOLY TRINITY CHURCH, NEW YORK, LENox Av. and 122d St., Rev. H. E. Nichols, Rector.—Services, 11:00 A. M., 3:45 and 8:00 P. M. Rev. Charles H. Babcock will preach in the morning.

Lost and Found.

LOST.—LEDGER lost New Year's Eve, between 30th St., Broadway, and Weehawken Ferry; Liberal reward paid for return to H. T. THORN, care Edward Craig Roberts, 13 East 30th St.

GERMAN-AMERICAN SAVINGS BANK BOOK, Sadie Murphy, lost. Finder will kindly return to bank or 822 Broadway.

Business Opportunities.

10c. per line 3 times 24c 7 times 42c Double for display.

RECEIVER'S SALE.

The Borough of Brooklyn Tobacco Manufacturing and Novelty Company, at 11 to 17 Lorimer St., Brooklyn, near Broadway, consisting of a complete plant for the manufacture of smoking and chewing tobacco; everything in a first-class condition with about $1,000 worth of leaf and other tobacco, all the latest machinery, being used only a few months, is offered for sale, inviting bids, for the entire plant complete; this is a rare opportunity for private investment or stock company; to be sold by order of Supreme Court; open for inspection from 10 to 3 daily; am ready to receive bids.

Also first-class liquor business, doing business of $75 a day cash; $2,000 stock; cheap rent; only on account of ill-health; none but bona-fide buyers will receive information.

Also beer bottling business and route; a rare chance for a man with little money; owner going in the grocery business; this is a rare chance to make a good living on small investment.

E. H. SCHLUETER,
Broadway and Boerum St., Brooklyn, Opposite German Savings Bank.

EXCEPTIONAL OPPORTUNITY.

Two gentlemen wanted with $10,000 each to conduct in a near-by city a branch of an established, safe, lucrative C. O. D. business which we are now conducting in New York; practically no competition, and will positively pay 20 per cent. on investment; fullest investigation courted with examination of books, accounts, &c., of present business; highest references given and expected; preference given to experienced gentlemen who can take the management of the business. For particulars call, 10 to 2, on our attorney, F. P. MARTIN, 180 Remsen St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

BUSINESS MEN, ATTENTION!
For one week to get your trade.

$5 Buys 500 Letterheads worth 2.00; 500 Envelopes " 1.75; 500 Billheads " 2.00; 500 Bus. Cards " 1.75

7.50 Worth for 5.00 Cash with order.
M. B. ATKINSON, Printer,
1,127 Park Row Building, City, Op. P.O.

ADDITIONAL CAPITAL SUPPLIED.

Stock Companies Organized.
Business Sold Privately.
Stocks and Bonds Placed.
Meritorious Inventions Financed.
DANIELS & COMPANY,
Bankers, 6 Wall St.

PATENTS Secured and sold all over the World

If you have an invention send for our HINTS TO INVENTORS.

This book may help you to make MONEY.

CLARK, DEEMER & CO.,
235 BROADWAY, N. Y.

WHY BE HARD UP OR OUT OF BUSINESS? We have a sure road to wealth. Our coin-controlled machines are the best made and are quick sellers, or can be placed on the percentage plan. Write for particulars. The best chance ever offered to make big money on a small investment. Address THE CAILLE-SCHEIMER CO., 1,420-1,469 Woodward Av., Detroit, Mich.

FOR SALE—A first-class, well established and paying confectionery and ice cream parlor on Main St., Buffalo, in the very best location; everything in first-class condition; if you wish a business that will pay for itself before the exposition opens investigate this bargain at once; best reason given for selling. For particulars address L. J. WILL, Buffalo, N. Y.

ADVANTAGEOUS OPPORTUNITY FOR YOUNG man or lady with some office experience and $1,500 to take place retiring silent partner in established, profitable brokerage and commission business; easily make $5,000 this year. "FRUIT AND PRODUCE," Box 151 Times.

PARTNER WANTED WITH SMALL CAPITAL to manufacture the only modern common-sense rubber horseshoe ever invented; recently patented; a blessing to horses; references. J. RILEY, 248 West 12th St., New York.

WANTED—AN ENERGETIC MAN TO MANage office and business in New York by large manufacturing house; salary, $125 per month and extra profits; must furnish good references and $800 cash. Address MANAGER, P. O. Box 1,151, Philadelphia, Penn.

AN EXPERT, OF THE HIGHEST ORDER IN stock speculation wishes to associate himself with a live trader on the New York Stock Exchange, with the view of making—not losing; rare opportunity. THOROUGHBRED, Box 107 Times.

I HAVE A SPECIALTY, AND SPECIAL MAchinery to manufacture it; article in universal demand at all seasons of the year; business clean and profitable; a rare opportunity for reliable, active man with capital. Address RELIABLE, Box 149 Times.

FOR SALE.—Chemical specialties for grocers, stationers, laundries, &c., with stock and machinery; great opening for pushing young man with moderate capital. Address MONOPOLY, Box 146 Times Office.

PERMANENT INCOMES.—$100 realizes $25 profit monthly; other amounts in proportion; 2% weekly income guaranteed; established five years. Address ARTHUR BLAKE & CO., 927 Market St., San Francisco, Cal.

ADVERTISER TEMPORARILY EMBARrassed desires private loan of $35 for week; will return lender $60, and deposit valuable security; references given. REMINGTON, Box 108 Times.

MONEY MAKER.—Merchants' Anti-Stepladder; an indispensable commodity for stores; nickel-plated; weight, 1½ pounds; monopolies offered. FLYNN, 73 Warren St., New York.

CIGAR STORES FOR SALE.—Several good opportunities in cigar stores downtown and uptown; prices from $200 to $3,000. ROTHSCHILD & CO., 320 Broadway, Room 921.

I PAY Cash for any store stocks, fixtures. THOS. TITCHENER, 289 Smith St., Brooklyn.

CASH ADVANCED TO MANUFACTURERS and merchants on their outstanding accounts. MARTIN J. WEIL, 453 Broome St.

BUILDER HAVING LOTS IN A1 LOCATION wishes partner or parties with money. Address C. T., 45 Arlington Av., Brooklyn.

WESTERN LANDS AND MORTGAGES PURchased large or small tracts; Dakotas, Kansas, Nebraska preferred. HOLLAND, 115 B'way.

ADVICE FREE. Patents promptly procured. Inventors' Guide free. EDGAR TATE COMPANY, Patent Attorneys, 245 Broadway.

WANTED—Patents or ideas of merit; pay cash for same; send particulars. EDISON, Box 87 Times.

TO LET.—Small office in prominent office building, near Worth Street. Z., Box 105 Times Office.

ANY ONE OWNING LAND IN TEXAS CAN sell it by addressing Texas, 121 Times.

For Sale.

10c. per line 3 times 24c 7 times 42c Double for display.

PATENTS ON PAPERHANGER'S COMBINAtion tool and paperhanger's folding table for sale; an excellent chance for party with capital. Address ROBERT G. ODELL, 7 James St., Peekskill, N. Y.

15 CENTS A POUND paid for old pewter, britannia and plated ware; 5 pounds or 5,000 pounds bought; call or send postal. I will call. BORNSTEIN, 84 Centre St.

DRUG STORE FOR SALE.

Good paying business; long lease; cheap rent; fine stock; good location; price and terms to suit the right party. Address G. B., 157 East 125th St.

TYPEWRITERS.—Remingtons, Smiths, Blickendorfers, Hammonds, Williamsen, Jewetts, Franklins, Caligraphs, sold, rented, exchanged, repaired. GORMAN, 79 Nassau St.

AT EBLE'S ART GALLERY, 105 WEST 42D St., near 6th Av.—Antiques, curios, old jewels, silverware, rare fans, paintings, miniatures, and weapons. Old gold bought.

TYPEWRITERS REPAIRED BY EXPERTS; rented, sold, exchanged. Telephone for estimate. DURRANT, McLEAN & CO., 265 Broadway.

TYPEWRITER. (NEW.) $40; REMODELED Remington, Smiths, $35; rentals reduced; repairing. (telephone.) CONSOLIDATED TYPEWRITER EXCHANGE, 241 Broadway.

THE SUN HEATER, GIVING BOTH LIGHT and heat, without additional cost for lamp or gas; a wonder for families. 211 Hudson St., upstairs.

TYPEWRITERS SOLD AND RENTED; EXpert repairing done. GENERAL TYPEWRITER EXCHANGE, 1 Park Place. 'Phone, 1573 Cortlandt.

TYPEWRITERS RENTED, BOUGHT, SOLD; expert repairing. R. & G. TYPEWRITER CO., 202 Broadway. Telephone, 990 Cortlandt.

INDIAN PIPES, NAVAJO BLANKETS, OLD Arms, Brass, Copper, Pewter Curios. J. H. MAYHEW, 340 West 42d St.

PHONOGRAPHS BOUGHT, SOLD, AND EXchanged; cash or $1.00 weekly; gramaphone records, $2.50 dozen. 148 East 58th St. 6

REMINGTON TYPEWRITER FOR SALE.—Call or address ROSE, 112 Greenwood Av., near East Fourth St., Brooklyn.

EDISON MOVING PICTURE MACHINE FOR sale, cheap; films, $1, $2, and $3 each. WARNER, 34 West 64th.

INDIAN PIPES, NAVAJO BLANKETS, OLD Arms, Brass, Copper, Pewter, Curios. J. H. MAYHEW, 340 West 42d St.

AT 844 6TH AV. AND 172 WEST 23D ST.—Foot Knitting Co.; stockings refooted; underwear repaired.

TYPEWRITERS.—All makes; guaranteed; rented $2, $3 monthly; ribbons, stands free. CENTRAL TYPEWRITER EXCHANGE, 203 Broadway.

HIGHEST CASH PRICES PAID FOR SECOND-hand furniture, carpets, pianos, &c. Address LENOX, 61 West 125th St.

$10.00 BARGAINS THIS WEEK.—Domestic, New Home, Singer Sewing Machines. Cash buyers. BROWN, 39 West 125th St.

MUSIC BOXES, 84 TEETH, $24; 15 TUNES free; other instruments. Prof. ADOLPH COHN, 157 West 23d St.

PRIZE ANGORA CATS AT A SACRIFICE; must sell at once. JONES, 230 West 99th St.

For Sale.

10c. per line 3 times 24c 7 times 42c Double for display.

CREDIT TO ALL WITHOUT SECURITY.

CLOTHING for Ladies, Men and Boys, ready made or to order. Millinery, Furs, &c.

PROGRESSIVE

CLOTHING AND CLOAK CO.,
7 W. 14th St., Bet. 5th & 6th Aves. Open Evenings.

FURS! FURS! FURS!

Persian Lamb Coats, with chinchilla collar and revers; Beautiful Electric Seal Coats; Handsome Boas and Muffs; fine assortment of Fur Neckwear; Sacrifice; must sell.

B. SILBERSTEIN, 22 E. 125th St.
CALL AND EXAMINE MY STOCK.

Eye Glasses Free

THIS WEEK our opticians will examine your eyes and sell you a pair of our $2.50 gold spring eye glasses for $1, and give you a gold plated eyeglass chain with a safety hook, also leather case, "absolutely free." It's a $3.50 outfit for $1. Spectacles at the same price. KEENE'S OPTICAL CO. 140 Fulton St., New York, (near Nassau St.) Hours, 8 to 6.

TYPEWRITERS.—Remingtons, Smith Premiers, and all standard makes rented, kept in repair; stands and ribbons free. Sold 25% to 75% less than manufacturer's prices. No relics of past ages carried in stock. Every machine sold kept in repair for one year free. F. S. WEBSTER CO., 317 Broadway. Telephone, 1,338 Franklin.

SPECIAL! CUT THIS OUT!

I have an order for 50 TONS OF OLD METAL and PAPER; if you have any to sell, no matter how large or small a quantity, send me a postal card and I will call promptly. BORNSTEIN, 84 Centre St.

AN UNQUESTIONABLE, SAFE, AND PROFITable Investment.—A bachelor apartment house, fully rented, paying a positive net income of over 8 per cent. per annum on the investment. Principals only call or address BEYER & WILLIAMS, 281 6th Av., N. Y.

Watches and Jewelry.

CREDIT TO ALL

DIAMONDS and WATCHES on small weekly or monthly payments; lowest prices; best quality; goods guaranteed; holiday goods a specialty. NATIONAL DIAMOND WATCH CO., 177-179 BROADWAY. Take Elevator.

CREDIT, DIAMONDS, WATCHES, OIL PAINTings, weekly payments, lowest prices, confidential. MANHATTAN DIAMOND CO., 37 Maiden Lane.

FOR SALE—100-foot flush-deck Herreshoff steam yacht; deck dining saloon; electric lights, &c.; good speed; A-No. 1 condition throughout. FRANK BOWNE JONES, 29 Broadway.

WEEKLY PAYMENTS; FINE DIAMONDS, watches; goods guaranteed; lowest prices; business confidential. WATCH SUPPLY, Three Maiden Lane.

EASY PAYMENTS.—Watches and diamonds; reliable goods only. AMERICAN WATCH AND DIAMOND CO., 19 Maiden Lane.

LINDO BROS., Broadway, Corner 29th St.—Diamonds, Watches, and Jewelry bought and sold; old Gold bought.

Winter Resorts.

20c. per line $4.50 per line for 30 times.

HEALTH, STRENGTH AND PLEASURE

In America's Great Winter Resorts

IN CALIFORNIA.

Take the luxurious

"SUNSET LIMITED"

which comprises everything that is up to date and modern in the railroad world, and is the only solid train between the Mississippi River and San Francisco remote from the inconveniences of high altitudes and snow.

Special through trains consisting of sleeping and dining cars leave New York every Monday, Thursday, and Saturday, connecting directly with the "Sunset Limited" at New Orleans.

For full information, free illustrated pamphlets, maps, and time tables, also lowest rates, sleeping-car tickets, and baggage checked, apply to Southern Pacific Co., 349 Broadway, N. Y. City.

GOLF. HUNTING. FISHING.

FLORIDA GULF COAST HOTELS

PLANT SYSTEM.

Excellent Golf Courses, with Turf putting greens and tees, connected with hotels. Professionals in charge.

TAMPA BAY HOTEL, TAMPA, FLA.,
A. E. Dick, Manager. Open Jan. 15th.

Hotel BELLEVIEW, Belleair, on the Gulf, Fla.
J. F. Champlin, Manager. Open Jan. 15th.

SEMINOLE HOTEL, Winter Park, Fla.
Edw. R. Swett, Lessee and Prop. Open Jan. 15th.

OCALA HOUSE, Ocala, Fla.
P. F. Brown, Manager. Open Jan. 15th.

HOTEL KISSIMMEE, Kissimmee, Fla. Now Open.

THE INN; Port Tampa, Fla. J. H. Murdick, Manager.

NEW YORK OFFICES, 12 West 23d St., and 200 Broadway. Also TRAVELERS' INFORMATION CO., 3 Park Place and 25 Union Square.

LAUREL HOUSE, LAKEWOOD.

Open from October 1 to June 1.

A famous Resort hotel in a famous hotel resort.

DAVID B. PLUMER, Manager.
A. J. MURPHY, Assistant Manager.
GOLF AT TWO CLUBS.

THOMASVILLE, GA.

PINEY WOODS HOTEL

Down in the Pine Forests. Country Club, Golf Links, Quail and Trap Shooting, Bicycle Paths.

HARVEY & WOOD, Hotel Bellevue, Boston. 8 Park Place, New York, Mondays, 10 to 12.

Hotels and Restaurants.

20c. per line $4.50 per line for 30 times.

BARRETT HOUSE.

European Plan. 6th Av. & 38th St.
MINUTE FROM BROADWAY.

A select hotel for permanent and transient guests, convenient to leading theatres and shopping district. "L" station, and all car lines; rooms newly furnished and decorated; single or en suite, with or without private bath; steam heat, electric light, elevator.

W. P. BARRETT, Proprietor.

THE WALDO "ON THE HEIGHTS" 170 HICKS ST. NEAR PIERREPONT BROOKLYN

Newly Furnished and Heated by Steam. Excellent Table. Reasonable Rates. A Delightful Winter Home. WALDO SPRAGUE, Proprietor.

Furs.

Bloch

Furs! Furs! Furs! (Established 1853) BARGAINS in Fur Scarfs & Muffs for next ten days. BLOCH, 980 3d Av., near 59th St.

FUR GARMENTS REMADE, REDYED, BLENDed into fashionable shapes. Seal Sacques a specialty; estimates given. THE BARKER FUR CO., 111 West 39th St.

MADAME LEA TROTTIER, FURRIER AND Milliner, 200, 262 West 125th St.—Garments remodeled; reasonable prices.

ROSENBLAT & FRANK, 1,032 3D AV., NEAR 61st St.—Bargains, Fur Boas, Muffs; Altering, Repairing a specialty.

L. PASTER, 42 WEST 125TH ST.—Practical furrier; seal garments altered and repaired, a specialty; lowest rates.

Loans.

MONEY TO LOAN

on property, furniture, pianos, etc., while remaining in possession of borrower; confidential; legal rates. 145 Nassau St., 8th floor, Room 201.

SALARY LOANS.

NO SECURITY OR INDORSEMENT REQUIRED 87 NASSAU ST. & 130 FULTON, ROOM 903.

Patents.

INVENTORS.—Prosecute your own patent applications; avoid needless attorney fees, delays, unfair treatment; simple, highly indorsed plan; particulars free. ALBERT C. TANNER, 177 Broadway.

NOTICE.—Safe, sure plan for protection life and limb from trolleys. Who will buy or help to get patent? M. L., 106 Times Office.

Purchase and Exchange.

10c. per line 3 times 21 ... table for display.

BOOKS OF EVERY DESCRIPTION BOUGHT, sold and exchanged; small parcels or libraries purchased; highest cash prices paid; call at residences free; send postal. LOVERING'S NEW YORK BOOK EXCHANGE, 823 Broadway, near 12th St. Open evenings.

HOUSEHOLD FURNITURE, CONTENTS OF houses and flats, pianos, carpets, &c. J. L., 113 University Place.

Boarders Wanted.

30c. per line 3 times 24c 7 times 42c Double for display.

23D ST., 489 WEST.—Double rooms, single room and board, $6; refined surroundings; American family.

24TH ST., 437 WEST.—Two large parlors, $3.50; light housekeeping; also other small rooms $2, gentlemen; hot and cold water, bath, private house.

32D ST., 39 WEST., 3 DOORS FROM BROADway.—Single and double rooms, with board; table boarders taken.

36TH ST., 146 EAST.—Desirable large front room, dressing room attached; excellent table; neighborhood refined, accessible; references.

52D ST., 231 WEST, NEAR BROADWAY.—Large and small rooms; superior board; table board; reasonable; Americans.

67TH ST., 127, WEST.—Pleasant rooms, with board; French boarding house; moderate.

73D ST., 108 WEST.—Fine rooms, large and small, steam heated; with or without board; high-class parlors.

79TH ST., 110 WEST.—Large and small rooms on 2d and 3d floors; southern exposure, with board.

82D ST., 118 WEST.—Double room; dressing room; running water; parlor dining room; table boarders; references.

93D ST., 122 WEST.—Near Park and "L"; desirable large and small rooms; good board; private family; references.

95TH ST., 71 WEST.—A third-story front room, southern exposure; table boarders taken.

97TH ST., 69 WEST.—Private family can accommodate two or more desirous of having a comfortable home; well furnished rooms; excellent table. Farquharson.

126TH ST., 136 WEST.—Elegant back parlor, newly opened first-class Jewish boarding house; running water.

127TH ST., 267 WEST.—Elegantly furnished rooms; board if desired.

130TH ST., 161 WEST.—Convenient to "L"; large front sunny room, with board; also hall room; reasonable; references.

$4.50 PER WEEK; EDUCATED PEOPLE only; good board; 148 St. Ann's Av.; elderly people cared for.

LAUNDRY WORK.—Your sheets, pillow cases, and towels laundered for 30c. per dozen, any part of city. WOOD'S LAUNDRY, 348 West St.

THE MARY FISHER HOME, ELDERLY PEOple and others, $4.50 per week, upward. 148 St. Ann's Av.

Brooklyn.

HENRY ST., 354.—Desirable rooms; first-class board; well-heated house; moderate price; near South Ferry.

Country Board.

THE HOMESTEAD, FANWOOD, N. J.—One hour from City Hall, Jersey Central Railroad; five minutes' walk from station; delightful location for Winter; piazzas, (inclosed with glass in Winter,) 125 feet long; steam heat, electric lights; Netherwood water.

Furnished Rooms.

10c. per line 3 times 24c 7 times 42c Double for display.

7TH AV., 214, between 22d and 23d Sts.—Rooms; large, small; sunny; bath; seen to-day or evenings. NOYES.

11TH ST., 252 WEST.—Newly furnished rooms, marble basins, hot and cold water, gas, bath; moderate; gentlemen.

11TH ST., 36 WEST.—Large and small rooms; large closets; every convenience; table boarders accommodated.

15TH ST., 358 WEST.—Comfortable square room; hot and cold water; house clean and quiet; gentlemen only.

19TH ST., 18 WEST.—Furnished rooms; also parlor floor, back parlor, suitable for several wishing to room together; rooms well heated; gentlemen only.

33D ST., 142 WEST, (QUINCY HOTEL)—50c., $1.00 daily; adjacent Broadway; steam heated, $3.00 week, upward; restaurant; mention paper.

34TH ST., 119 WEST.—Two exceptionally fine rooms; front; rear; ample closets; heat, hot water; reasonable rates.

35TH ST., 11 WEST.—Two small, pleasant rooms, reasonable, with ample closet room; Japanese attendant; gentlemen.

55TH ST., 248 WEST.—Two handsomely furnished rooms, with private bath, for gentlemen.

57TH ST., 324 WEST.—Handsomely furnished bedroom and sitting room adjoining; gentlemen only; private family; references.

61ST ST., 100 WEST.—Large, light parlor, bedroom; steam heat; elevator. Connolly.

63D ST., 113 WEST.—To let, furnished rooms; reasonable.

73D ST., 253 WEST.—Cheerful and pleasant front room, with bath, in private house; gentlemen only.

74TH ST., 123 WEST.—Dentist's office; large back parlor, butler's pantry; telephone; northern exposure; best door service.

83D ST., 65 WEST.—Large front room; southern exposure; large closet; suitable for two gentlemen; Americans.

84TH ST., 109 WEST.—Elegantly furnished parlor bedroom, with bath; southern exposure. BELDING.

93D ST., 157 WEST.—Large front room; running water; southern exposure; with breakfast or full board.

96TH ST., 129 WEST.—Parlor and bedroom

BOOZ INQUIRY AT BRISTOL

Congressional Committee Finishes Work at ex-Cadet's Home.

Testimony as to High Character and Ability of the Young Man—To Examine Cadets Tuesday.

BRISTOL, Penn., Jan. 5.—The Congressional committee which is investigating the alleged hazing of Oscar Booz completed its work here late this afternoon, and will reconvene in Philadelphia on Monday morning. Most of the testimony heard to-day related to Oscar Booz's mental, physical, and personal characteristics. Every witness called spoke of the high character of the young man. He was considered in good health before he went to West Point, and many persons testified as to his changed condition when he returned from the academy. It was also brought out that he was proficient in his studies.

The feature of the two sessions held today was the examination of the Rev. Dr. Alexander Allison, pastor of the Bristol Presbyterian Church, at which the Booz family worshipped. Dr. Allison delivered the funeral sermon at the obsequies of Booz in which he made what the committee thought were implied charges of severe hazing against cadets of West Point.

The committee will probably finish its work in Philadelphia Monday, and will begin the taking of the testimony of the cadets at West Point on Tuesday. The committee's examination of witnesses here and at Philadelphia has been most searching, and the Congressmen say they will also make their West Point investigation a thorough one.

Dr. Willis P. Weaver of Bristol, the Booz family physician, who did not complete his testimony yesterday, was recalled to-day, and Mr. Driggs of New York asked him whether, if a person suffering from acute laryngitis had tabasco sauce administered to him it would leave a vulnerable spot for tuberculosis germs to take root.

"Yes, Sir," was the reply.

Regarding Oscar Booz's personality, Dr. Weaver had always found him a quiet, retiring, unassuming young man. He was fond of his home, and the doctor believed he was to an extent susceptible to homesickness. As far as he knew, Dr. Weaver said, he was truthful, and it never occurred to him that Oscar's physical condition might be a bar to his admission to West Point. His condition the doctor considered was good.

When Oscar returned from the academy Dr. Weaver noticed that the young man seemed run down, and advised him to take a tonic. He had received the impression that Oscar had resigned from West Point on account of his eyes. He firmly believed that the cadet's vitality was undoubtedly lowered by the abuse and humiliation he was subjected to at West Point.

Dr. Evan J. Groom of Bristol, another physician who attended Oscar, said he treated him last year for acute tubercular laryngitis. He would not give him any relief, so he sent him to a throat specialist in Philadelphia. The witness thought tabasco sauce would affect a throat which had been treated for laryngitis, and did not believe that it made him less able to resist the lodgment of tuberculosis germs.

Dr. Groom corroborated Dr. Weaver in every detail as to the personal characteristics of Booz. He did not think, however, that the young man was suited for a soldier. He did not think he could stand the rigor of such a life.

George N. Boggs, Superintendent of the Bristol Public Schools, indorsed the testimony that Oscar Booz was of a gentle manly disposition. He was proficient in all of his studies while at the school here. Miss Boggs said he was a good schoolboy, but not a "goody-goody" boy.

Elwood Brelsford, a Bristol undertaker, told of the appearance of Booz's body after death. He noticed scars on the right foot and a large red spot on one of the knees. He could not tell what caused these marks.

W. L. Kolb, a retired clergyman of Bristol, knew Oscar very well. Oscar told him he had been in a fight at the Military Academy, and also said that some of his teeth had been loosened in the contest and that he had received a severe blow over the heart. Oscar related to him, Mr. Kolb said, how alarmed he was at the heart blow and consulted a surgeon at the academy, who quieted his fears. The surgeon, according to Oscar, did not ask any questions as to how he had received the heart blow.

The Rev. Dr. Alexander Allison of the Bristol Presbyterian Church, where young Booz attended, related how a Bible had been presented to Oscar by the Sunday School Association. Oscar wrote to him that he was reading the Bible every day, and said among other things:

"It was hard to be a Christian at West Point." The young man after his resignation confided to the witness that it was probably the Lord's work, and that he had no intimation for a career as a minister of the Gospel. Oscar's father, the witness continued, persuaded him to study law.

The committee wanted to know upon what grounds Dr. Allison had based his charges of brutality at the academy.

The witness said he had based it on what he heard from the family and what he knew of the young man himself. If the family had no good grounds for their statements, he added, then the grounds for his statements in the sermon were not solid.

Miss Nellie Booz, Oscar's sister, was recalled to the stand to tell what she knew of the Bible incident at the academy. She said Oscar told her that the cadets had told him to produce the Bible presented to him at Bristol, and if he did not he would be scarred for life.

Dr. Allison was again called and said he did not want Oscar to become a soldier, as he, the witness, did not like the business of a soldier. As for courage he felt sure that Oscar would have done the same thing as Hobson did at Santiago Harbor if given an opportunity.

Newspaper abstracts of the sermon which he delivered were read to Dr. Allison, who, in making explanation, took occasion to say that he believed Oscar Booz was in his grave earlier as a result of his being at West Point. Dr. Allison was on the stand for more than one hour.

Harry Larzelare, Lewis Spring, Jr., and Albert Baker, companions of Oscar Booz were called in the order named. Each paid a high tribute to the deceased young man. Larzelare said that Oscar told him that upper classmen "had treated him like a dog." Baker testified that he had received a letter from Oscar in which he said several of his teeth had been loosened as the result of his fight.

Howard Booz, Oscar's younger brother, who became ill while testifying yesterday, was recalled to-day. Howard related how he went to West Point to see his brother, on which occasion he waited thirty-five minutes, and then had to leave without seeing him on account of a storm coming up. Howard said he wanted to go to West Point after Oscar had returned home, but the latter said: "You will be killed if you do." Mr. Driggs asked:

"Did Oscar in his resignation give as a reason failing eyesight instead of hazing for the purpose of avoiding notoriety?"

"I think he did," was the reply. "He did not want to give the place a bad name."

After William H. Booz, Oscar's father, and Miss Nellie Booz, his sister, had testified to a few minor details regarding Oscar's illness and his school studies, John K. Wildman, President of the Board of School Directors of Bristol, also testified to the good character of the young man.

The committee then adjourned to meet in Philadelphia on Monday morning.

REPORT IN THE GREEN CASE.

Reply to Charges that Marine Died from Ill-Treatment at Annapolis—Another Investigation.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—Secretary Long to-day received the report of Commander Richard Wainwright, Superintendent of the Naval Academy, in the matter of the sickness and death of Hobart Green, private, United States Marine Corps. This case was brought to the notice of the Navy Department by Representative Rixey of Virginia. It was represented that Green's death was due to improper treatment by the officials at the Naval Academy. Secretary Long referred all the papers in the case to the Superintendent of the Academy, with instructions to make a full investigation and report the result to the department.

Superintendent Wainwright's report considers the written charges of J. A. MacGregor, and the various newspaper articles in reference to the case, seratim, and says:

"The charges have been carefully investigated, as directed. There is not the slightest foundation for any of them."

Continuing, Commander Wainwright says:

Private Green was admitted to the sick list on Dec. 11, 1900, with "catarrhus epidemicus;" on the 13th the diagnosis was changed to pneumonia, and the case terminated fatally at 12:55 A. M. on Dec. 15. Green was seen frequently by a medical officer, and was constantly attended by a hospital nurse. His cot was provided with blankets and clean linen, and was screened off on the gun deck to insure protection from drafts and disturbance. The ship was well heated and there was no unnecessary cleaning in the inclosure where he was. His medicines and stimulants were given at specified times by a nurse. His diet was milk and a special diet drawn from the hospital stores, of excellent quality, given at frequent intervals by a nurse. He performed no duty after being admitted to the sick list.

He received the same assiduous professional attention and nursing care accorded to every serious case, and his death resulted from uncontrollable causes. After death the remains of Private Green were taken charge of by the undertaker, prepared for burial, and on the afternoon of the 15th interred in the National Cemetery here with military honors, as prescribed by the navy regulations.

The quarters on the United States ship Santee are comfortable and in good sanitary condition. They are well heated by means of pipes leading around the berth deck and by pipes and heaters on the gun deck. The lowest temperature observed on the gun deck this year was 66 degrees, and 58 degrees on the berth deck. There are less than the usual drafts on board ship, as the Santee is completely housed in. A greater number of cadets than the present number of marines have been berthed with comfort on the Santee prior to the time when she was completely housed in. The marines are better fed than when in barracks, as they receive commutation for the full navy ration.

The medical force at this station is both skillful and attentive, as will be borne out by the daily sick reports. The commanding officer of marines is an officer of experience and careful of the comfort of his men. The officer in charge of the ships has been particularly careful in regard to the sanitary condition of the Santee.

Secretary Long said this afternoon that the Navy Department was prepared to make itself, or permit to be made, any investigation within reason, if it should be thought necessary to follow up the report of Superintendent Wainwright. At Representative Rixey's instance, he had directed Superintendent Wainwright to summon to Annapolis, at the Government's expense, and examine before the board conducting the inquiry, the clergymen and others referred to by Representative Rixey as having some knowledge of the case.

The inquiry closed, and the report was forwarded by the board before this instruction reached Commander Wainwright, but there will be no objection on the part of the department to reopening the case if Representative Rixey so desires, or, as Secretary Long puts it, to doing anything within reason to develop the facts.

The witnesses the Secretary refers to are J. M. MacGregor of Stafford, Va., who went to Annapolis and made an investigation which satisfied him that Green had not been properly cared for at the time of his fatal illness, and the Rev. J. Howard Gibbon, an Episcopal minister, and Dr. Payne, both of Stafford, who saw the body when it arrived at Stafford, dressed in shirt and trousers, and not in the uniform said to be required by the regulations.

WASHINGTON'S WEDDING DAY.

Its Anniversary Celebration by the Daughters of the Revolution.

There was a christening as well as a wedding anniversary at the annual celebration of George Washington's wedding day by the New York City Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, at Sherry's yesterday afternoon. A bright man from Georgia dubbed Mrs. McLean, Chapter Regent, the "Duchess of the D. A. R.-lings," and the "Duchess" and the "lings" preened themselves so much upon their new honor that there was a special festive note throughout the remainder of the proceedings.

The big hall in which the reception was held was draped with American flags, the platform, upon which the speakers stood, overhung with a canopy of evergreen festoons, terminating in a marriage bell, and a hundred-year-old spinning wheel, decked with blue ribbons, white stars, and roses, proclaimed that 142 years ago at the time of the wedding the spinning wheel flourished. The clapper to the big green marriage bell was of mistletoe, a symbolic note in the decorations, to show that one of the principles of the "D. A. R.-lings" is embodied in the Scriptural injunction to love the brethren.

The first part of the celebration was devoted to the reception of members and guests, Mrs. McLean, in a bridelike white frock, receiving, assisted by a score of white cockade-decorated daughters. There was an elaborate buffet luncheon next, one of the features of the entertainments of the "D. A. R.-lings," in their regard for old times, being to feed the people before the serious business of the day begins. The Daughters are an exception to the rule of women's organizations in offering guests a substantial punch with the refreshments.

Gen. Henry E. Tremain was the first speaker introduced by Mrs. McLean. Gen. Tremain was interested to know many things about which history never tells, and asked the Daughters if Martha Custis would have accepted George Washington if he had confided to her in advance his many Revolutionary projects. But the oldest Daughter in the room would not answer a question like that.

"If Gen. Tremain had been in one of the schools in this city that I visited," said Gen. O. O. Howard, who addressed "Mme. the Duchess" in beginning his remarks, "he would know all about the steps preliminary to Washington's marriage. It was a school crowded with 1,200 little Italian children, who had 'George Washington' for the subject of the day, and they told me more about him than I ever heard."

"The Lord bless you all," said Gen. Howard, in conclusion; "the Lord give you the peace our good Duchess has proclaimed—that we may have no more war; I like peace."

Col. H. H. Adams and Col. Walter S. Logan were other speakers, and John Winfield Scott made an earnest appeal to the Daughters to give their aid individually and officially to the Committee of Fifteen to help cleanse the city politic. "It is all very well to establish institutions for soldiers," he said, "but unless the gateway to the Nation is cleansed we shall have no reason for having soldiers."

In concluding his remarks Gen. Tremain suggested turning over matters political, now badly managed, to the "Darlings of the Revolution."

"Let the Daughters see that when they have an opportunity to cast a ballot they do it honestly, fairly, and squarely," Mrs. McLean made haste to add. To the initiated this was recognized as a veiled reference to the coming election of officers of the National Society, in Washington, where it has been said peculiar methods have been used in years past.

Among those present yesterday were Mrs. Abner McKinley, Mrs. Angus Cameron, Col. and Mrs. John W. Vrouman, Gen. Benjamin F. Tracy, James Milliken, and William Alden Smith of Michigan.

COLORS FOR THE ALABAMA.

Wife of Capt. Brownson, Commander of the Vessel, Presents Them.

Colors were presented to the new first-class battleship Alabama, at the Brooklyn Navy Yard yesterday, by Mrs. W. H. Brownson, wife of Capt. Brownson, commander of the vessel. An interesting ceremony attended the presentation. The ship's crew, headed by the Alabama's band, marched ashore and drew up on the wharf. A color guard of four bluejackets then advanced to where Capt. Brownson, Lieut. Commander Badger, and Mrs. and Miss Brownson were standing and received the colors from Miss Brownson, who presented them on behalf of her mother.

The guard then returned to the ranks, and the entire ship's company passed in review. The men then broke ranks and marched aboard the battleship. The colors consist of the National ensign and a blue ship's pennant, and are of silk. After the presentation, Capt. Brownson, Mrs. Brownson, Miss Brownson, and other guests were entertained at luncheon aboard the Vermont by the commander of that ship.

CHEATED OUT OF $20.

Cashier Tricked by Means of a Roll of One-Dollar Bills.

Mrs. Ella Almor, cashier in her husband's grocery store at 121 Ninth Avenue, complained to the West Twentieth Street police last night that a man had robbed her of $20.

She said the man had entered the store and had asked her to give him a twenty-dollar bill for twenty one-dollar bills, saying that a friend, a Mrs. Layburn, living at 123 Ninth Avenue, wanted to send the money away in a letter. Mrs. Almor readily handed out the twenty-dollar bill and received what she supposed to be the twenty one-dollar bills, but which proved to be only nineteen one-dollar bills. When the mistake was called to his attention the man said he would go and see Mrs. Layburn, and took back the nineteen one-dollar bills. He then left the store, having in his possession the twenty-dollar bill and the nineteen one-dollar bills.

Mrs. Almor and her husband ran to the store door after him, but he had already disappeared.

Mrs. Layburn said she did not know the man, and had not sent him to the store.

Horner's Furniture.

OPPORTUNE BUYING TIME.

Made so because

In order to effect as great a clearance of stock as possible before taking annual inventory, material price reductions have been made on several Bedroom, Dining Room and Parlor Suites, also on hundreds of individual pieces of Furniture of every description, including Sideboards, Cabinets, Chiffoniers, Dressing Tables, Writing Desks, Bookcases, Fancy Chairs, &c.

The opportunity of the year to buy High-class Furniture at such advantageous prices.

R. J. HORNER & CO.,
Furniture Makers and Importers,
61, 63, 65 West 23d Street
(Adjoining Eden Musee.)

BOOKKEEPER FRIEBEL ACCUSED OF THEFT

Said to Have Stolen $21,000 from the Ringler Brewery.

Internal Strife and Family Differences in the Board of Directors Disclosed by the Arrest.

Internal strife in the brewing corporation of George Ringler & Co., growing out of family quarrels, came to the surface at a hearing in the Harlem Police Court yesterday in the case of August Friebel, a former bookkeeper, who, with another employe, is accused of having stolen about $21,000 of the money which passed through their hands.

Friebel lives with his wife and children at 209 East Ninety-fourth Street. He was arrested by Detective Sergeant Price Friday morning on the complaint of William G. Ringler, ex-President of the brewing company, yet, when he was arraigned before Magistrate Meade yesterday, none of the Directors of the concern was willing to make a formal complaint against him and he was locked up until Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

The arrest was a surprise to George J. Jetter, the President of the company. Edward Miehling, counsel for Mr. Ringler, said that while they had caused the arrest they could not make a specific charge because they had been denied access to the books of the corporation. Friebel had been arrested by order of Capt. Titus, on suspicion that a felony had been committed.

President Jetter says that soon after taking office he noticed that Friebel was spending money very freely with Mr. Ringler and Henry Hachemeister, the ex-Treasurer of the company. He said that he was frequently with Mr. Hachemeister in a saloon on the corner throwing dice for champagne with him and losing heavily to him at poker, sometimes spending $20 a day, though his salary had been but $25 a week. Mr. Miehling says that while Friebel might have thrown dice and played cards with the officials, it was only for small amounts, and that there was nothing unusual in such conduct in the brewing business, for as a rule, the office discipline of big breweries is of a most democratic character. Mr. Miehling says that it is strange that while President Jetter has had a signed confession of Friebel's guilt in his possession since Dec. 19, he had taken no steps to have him arrested, while Mr. Ringler reported the matter to the police as soon as the rumors of the man's alleged spendthrift habits with Hachemeister and himself reached his ears. President Jetter says that he did not wish to proceed until an expert examination of the books of the corporation is completed. He said in his office yesterday that Friebel could not get away, and had twice attempted suicide by inhaling gas since the shortage was first suspected.

Ringler and Hachemeister are the sons of the founders of the business, while Mr. Jetter and his brother, J. Edward Jetter, the Secretary, are their sons-in-law.

The feud is of long standing, and the latest outbreak was at the Directors' meeting on Oct. 31 last, when, according to President Jetter, Magistrate Zeller, who has been counsel for the Ringler branch of the family, demanded that Mrs. G. J. Jetter should resign her place on the Directory and he be elected in her stead, thus giving his faction a control of the board. They refused, and also refused to re-elect Mr. Ringler as President. Shortly after Mr. Jetter put the experts on a general examination of the books to learn the condition of the business. He says he heard that Friebel went into the saloon crying and wringing his hands, and declaring that it was all up with him. The shortage named has already been discovered. Friebel was discharged, as was a shipping clerk who, according to him, was his accomplice, the latter holding back part of the money received from drivers and collectors while Friebel falsified the books and pocketed two dollars for the other man's one.

CENSUS AGENTS ARRESTED.

Had Turned in Fictitious Reports of Manufactures in the City.

Under special orders from the Director General of the Census, William R. Merriam of Washington, three census agents, upon whom, with about 200 others, depended the correctness of the census of manufactures in this city, have been arrested, accused of having turned in fictitious reports. Chief Special Agent Frank H. Williams, who has charge of this branch of the census, says he is positive that these are the only men in his corps of agents who have given false returns, and insists that the census figures of New York's manufactures may be depended upon as reliable.

The three agents under arrest are William V. Moriarty of Brooklyn, Michael Ball of Manhattan, and James Keyes of the Bronx. The case of Moriarty was placed before the Federal Grand Jury. In the other cases the hearing is still going on. Special Agent Williams, after having, as he thought, canvassed the district, found that no returns had been obtained from a number of manufacturers whose names appeared in the various trade directories. He then made out a card catalogue and distributed the cards among a number of agents with instructions to call upon these firms and get their figures. Each agent was to be paid 75 cents in cases where return answers were obtained, and 15 cents where calls were made but no returns obtained.

Special Chief Agent Williams ascribes all the trouble to this new basis of remuneration. He asserts positively, however, that these three men of all his force succumbed to the temptation to make easy money. The men fell under suspicion in October last, when Mr. Williams, who had spent the preceding month and a half in Washington, returned to his office in this city, and, happening to look over one of the daily reports of Agent Moriarty, found that on that day Moriarty had obtained returns from seventeen different manufacturers and had called on thirty-eight. The special agent, knowing that it was a physical impossibility to get through with so much work in a single day, had a special agent to go over the entire field covered by Moriarty on that particular day, and found that the report was absolutely fictitious. It is said that the work of all the agents was gone over and found correct with the exception of that of the three men under arrest.

Special Chief Agent Williams said yesterday that all the fictitious reports had been thrown out, and all inaccuracies corrected. Of his entire work throughout the city he said that only about 100 reports had been found false out of a total number of 40,000. He did not explain why, if 100 reports were found false, more arrests had not been made.

"The charge that this office expected its agents to turn in figures to show increased prosperity during the last Administration," said Mr. Williams, "will be best disposed of by the vigorous way in which these crooked agents will be prosecuted. We are going to prosecute them to the fullest extent of the law, as a warning to others."

When you "catch cold," if the doctor isn't handy, take Jayne's Expectorant.—Adv.

Stern Brothers

will offer to-morrow, in their

Fur Departments

The remainder of their high cost

Imported Garments

of Broadtail, Seal and Persian Lamb, also

Collars, Scarfs and Muffs

of Russian and Hudson Bay Sable and Silver Fox at

Greatly Reduced Prices

In addition, a special purchase of

French Model Coats of Persian Lamb and Broadtail, $125.00 & 185.00

Coats of Persian Lamb, with Chinchilla or Baum Marten Collar and Reveres, $125.00

of Alaska Seal, London Dyed, $175.00

Cloth Capes lined with gray and white squirrel, $18.25

Cloak Departments

A large collection of

Ladies' Cloth Coats of Kerseys, Oxfords and Cheviots, silk lined $6.50, 10.50, 15.75

Fancy Velour Blouses $19.50, 22.50

Continuation Sale of

Linen Housekeeping Goods

Augmented lines of the most desirable grades from the leading foreign manufacturers

Very Much Below Regular Prices

Table Damasks,		68, 83, 95c, $1.25 yd.
Table Cloths, 2 x 2 yds.,		$1.38, 1.70, 1.98, 2.50
2 x 2½ "		$1.75, 2.15, 2.50, 3.15
2 x 3 "		$2.15, 2.55, 2.95, 3.75
Napkins ⅝ size	doz.,	$1.45, 1.75, 1.95, 2.60
¾ "	doz.,	$2.25, 2.50, 2.90, 3.75
Huck Towels,	doz.,	$1.50, 1.95, 2.25, 2.95
Hemstitched Sheets,	pr.,	$3.65, 3.95, 4.50, 5.50
" Pillow Cases,	"	85, 95c, $1.25, 1.50
Marseilles Quilts,	each	$1.75, 1.98, 2.25, 2.98

To-morrow Exceptional Values in

Ladies' House Gowns

of Cashmere, Regular value $6.00 to 10.00 $3.95, 5.75, 6.95

of India Silk, elaborately trimmed with lace and ribbon, Real value $15.00 $10.50

Special Sale In

Lace Departments

Platt Valenciennes & Point de Paris Laces with Insertions to match, 2 to 6 in.	5, 7, 10, 15, 20c yd.
Black and Cream Silk Lierre and Chantilly Laces, 3 to 9 in. wide	12, 15, 20, 25c yd.
A large assortment of double width Black Chenille Dot Tuxedo Veiling Formerly 35c to $1.25 yd.	15, 23, 35c yd.
Real Renaissance All overs, 18 ins. wide, Formerly 5.00 to 10.00 yd.	$2.95, 4.75, 5.50

Misses' Departments

Extraordinary Price Reductions in

Girls' Russian Blouse Suits of Plain, Plaid and Novelty Cloths, handsomely trimmed, 4 to 10 yrs. Value $6.50 to $12.90 $3.90

Walking & Skating Skirts of English Reversible Cloths, stitched yoke, with pocket, 14 to 18 yrs. Heretofore $8.90 $5.75

Coats for Children 2 to 5 yrs. Heretofore $8.90 to $16.50 $4.95, 7.50

Misses' & Girls' Imported Suits, Paletots and Long Cloaks At Half Former Prices

On Third Floor

Lace & Fabric Curtains

At Decided Reductions from Regular Prices

Irish Point,	Formerly $4.50, 7.00, 11.50 Pr.		$3.50, 5.95, 8.95
Louis XIV.	Reduced from $6.50, 10.50, 15.00 Pr.		$5.75, 8.75, 12.75
Madras,	Heretofore $4.75 & 8.75 Pr.		$3.75, 5.95
Tapestry	Pair $4.75	Armure	Pair $5.25
Silk Tapestry	" $18.75	Embr'd Velour	" $19.75
Embroidered Silk Velour			" $36.00
Tapestry Couch Covers			each $3.50

Oriental Rug Dep't

Antique and Modern Persian Rugs and Carpets, Large and Small Sizes in Kirmanshas, Feregbans, Tebriz, Serebends and Serapes.

Important Sale, To-morrow

250 Antique & Modern Rugs, Daghestans, Shirvans and Mossouls, $12.50, 14.50, 18.00

Modern Persian & Turkish Carpets From 7 by 10 ft. to 9 ft. 5 by 12 ft. $50.00 to 100.00

40 Axminster Rugs 9 by 12 ft. Value $24.00 $17.75

West Twenty-third Street

Park Commissioner Brower's Guests.

Park Commissioner George V. Brower of Brooklyn had as his guests yesterday afternoon and last evening President of the Municipal Assembly Randolph Guggenheimer, ex-Sheriff Dunn, Corporation Counsel Whalen, and Deputy Corporation Counsel Carr of Brooklyn. The party visited Prospect Park in the afternoon and inspected the conservatory. Other points of interest were also visited during a drive through the park. Last evening Commissioner Brower entertained his guests at dinner at the Brooklyn Club.

Conference Settles Labor Disputes.

All disputed points between the National Metal Trades Association and the International Association of Machinists were settled at a conference yesterday. The two organizations have an agreement to end all disputes by a permanent board of arbitration.

John Daniell Sons & Sons

On Monday Many Attractive Novelties Will Be Shown in SILK AND SATIN FOULARDS.

Japanese ideas were never so effective as this season, the exquisite styles being almost a revelation to people of refined taste. Many very attractive designs will be placed on sale during the coming week, every one of which is exclusive to us. The prices will be - - - - - - - - 79 cts. and 88 cts. yard

We don't ask you to purchase, but we request you very seriously to look at our early Summer Silks before making selections

JANUARY SALE OF LADIES' TAILOR-MADE SUITS

Taken from our regular stock and reduced for a Special Sale commencing Monday, January 7th, 1901.

Tight fitting, double breasted and fly front, in all colors of the best quality—Homespun, Cheviot and Venetian Cloths.

The above will be sold at the following prices for this sale only:

150 Suits, reduced to - - - - - - - - - - $10.98
100 Suits, reduced to - - - - - - - - - - $14.98
Rainy-Day Skirts, all colors - - - - - $4.95 and $8.50

Jackets and Cloth Skirts at nearly half price.

FRENCH FLANNEL WAISTS.

"Our Special" Tucked Front and Back - - - - - $2.75
A lot of plain and fancy, reduced to - - - - - - $3.75
Very attractive models, plain and embroidered - - $4.25

5000 DOZ. UNLAUNDERED SHIRTS AT CUT PRICES

Lot 1—Fine Muslin, felled seams, 3-ply set in bosom, reinforced back and front, 35c. each, 6 Shirts for - - - $2.00
Lot 2—Extra good Shirts, Wamsutta and New York Mills Muslin, long or short bosoms, open or closed fronts, reinforced back and front, linen bosoms, 47c. each, 6 Shirts for $2.70
Lot 3—New York Mills Muslin, 3-ply, 1900 linen set in bosoms, all latest improvements in finish, open front and back or closed front, 57c. each, 6 Shirts for - - - - $3.30
Lot 4—Fine laundered Colored Dress Shirts, in new and select patterns, $1.00 quality - - - - - - 50c. each

In ordering by mail state size of collar worn.

7000 DOZ. IRISH LINEN COLLARS AND CUFFS.

Made to our special order in 21 latest styles.

Collars, ½ doz. - - 48c. | Cuffs, ½ doz. pair - - 95c

Broadway, 8 and 9 Sts.

MISS ACKERMAN AND LAWYER BOTH GONE

Young Woman Wrote that She Was with George E. Wentworth.

Lawyer Has Been Married Five Years, and Missing Girl Was a Friend of His Wife—Mrs. Wentworth's Suspicions.

The friends and relatives of Miss Maria Louise Ackerman, who disappeared about a week ago, and who is supposed to have eloped with George Emmons Wentworth, a young lawyer, who has been married for five years, and who, up to a week ago, was living with his wife at 325 Amsterdam Avenue, are still in ignorance of the whereabouts of the couple. Miss Ackerman, who is twenty-three years old and a daughter of George Ackerman, who was President of the Tenth National Bank, lived at 20 West Fifteenth Street with her aunt, Mrs. Katherine C. Fay, the widow of an army officer. She is a niece of ex-Mayor Clark of this city, as well as a niece of W. C. Ackerman, who was at one time President of the Illinois Central Railroad. She is the heir to a share in an estate amounting to about $100,000, but can have only the income until she is thirty years of age.

Last Friday she left her home, saying that she intended to pay a visit to an aunt, Mrs. Lillian A. Clark of 68 West Eighty-eighth Street. She has not been seen by any of her relatives since, but her aunt received a letter from her on Thursday evening, in which she said that she had determined to live with Mr. Wentworth and was going abroad with him. Mr. Wentworth disappeared at the same time as Miss Ackerman, leaving his business in the greatest confusion.

Mrs. Wentworth says that her husband did not tell her that he was going away, but that she had been afraid that he would elope with Miss Ackerman for some time. She says that she probably will take steps to secure a divorce. All the relatives of Miss Ackerman believe that she and Mr. Wentworth are in hiding in some place in this city. A Mr. Paoli, a Cuban, who was known to be a friend both of Mrs. Wentworth and her husband, it is thought, knows where the two are. In her letter Miss Ackerman asked her aunt to give all her belongings to Mr. Paoli. She also asked her to give all her checks to Robert M. S. Putnam, a lawyer, of 31 Nassau Street, in whose office Wentworth had desk room.

Paoli called at Mrs. Fay's house yesterday morning. He came in a big truck and with two porters. He was met by Miss Irene Ackerman, a cousin of the girl who eloped. Miss Irene is an actress.

"I have called for your cousin's trunks," he said, "and I have brought this truck to cart them away in. She said in her letter, I believe, that you were to give them to me."

This demand aroused Miss Ackerman's temper. "You know where my cousin is," she said, "and you'll have to tell me."

"I am bound by an oath of secrecy not to divulge their hiding place," Paoli said.

"Then you can't have the trunks," said Miss Ackerman, slamming the door in his face. Paoli climbed into the truck again and disappeared.

Mr. Putnam, the lawyer to whom Miss Ackerman said that her checks were to be directed, said yesterday that he did not know where she was. "There is no use in trying to conceal the fact that she has eloped with Mr. Wentworth," he said. "But I don't know anything more than that about the case. Wentworth was not a partner of mine, although I occasionally helped him out in a business way. He disappeared a week ago, and I haven't the faintest idea where he went. The elopement was as great a surprise to me as to anybody. Wentworth was a rising man and was building up a good business, but this step that he has taken was simply suicidal."

Mrs. Fay said yesterday that her niece had been on terms of intimacy with Mr. and Mrs. Wentworth ever since their marriage, five years ago.

"She went there to visit very often," she said, "and we never thought there was any cause for suspicion at all. I think that Mrs. Wentworth has acted very peculiarly in the case. She came to me after the elopement and said that she had suspected that there was something wrong between her husband and my niece when they were first married. She said that she became positive of this three years ago. When I asked her why she did not speak of it to me, she said that she was afraid of losing her husband, and that she had hoped that he would outgrow his affection for my niece."

Mrs. Wentworth refused to talk about the elopement yesterday. According to Mrs. Fay, however, she had seen Mr. Putnam and intends to get a divorce from her husband.

"The most peculiar thing about this case," said Mrs. Fay, "is this man Paoli. Mrs. Wentworth says that he is a very intimate friend of hers and that she thinks a great deal of him. She said that he had advised her to get a divorce. At the same time, he seems to be helping her husband out in his elopement."

Aged Mrs. Graverill Lost.

Patrolman Fleming, of the East Sixty-seventh Street Station yesterday afternoon found at Seventy-sixth Street and Third Avenue a woman, seventy years old, who gave her name as Mrs. Graverill, and said she was lost. She will be taken to Police Headquarters.

Birds Canary singer, $2.00; extra singer, $2.50 and $3.00, each warranted; St. Andreasberg Canary, with soft bell and water notes, $5.00; the Holden Canary, with fancy notes and echo songs, $10, $12, $15, $20. All kinds singing, whistling, talking birds. Best quality; low prices. Birds sent by express everywhere, safe. Cages all latest styles. Holden's Book on Birds, new, all about food, care, singing, with full price list birds and cages, by mail, 25 cts., stamps.
Piping Bullfinches; one and two songs.
G. H. Holden, 240 6th Av., near 15th St.

HOSPITAL BUILDING OPENED.

Gouverneur's Patients to be Transferred to the New Structure To-morrow.

Charities Commissioner John W. Keller threw open to the public yesterday the new $200,000 Gouverneur Hospital building, work on which was begun May 12, 1897, and over which Mr. Keller and Public Buildings Commissioner Kearny have been at odds for some months. Though ready for occupancy some time ago, there was delay in turning the building over to Commissioner Keller by Commissioner Kearny, the October Grand Jury making the delay the subject of a presentment handed up to Recorder Goff. Commissioner Keller accepted the building Dec. 31 last, just three years and seven months after ground was first broken.

The hospital is the most perfectly equipped of any in the Charities Department. The old Gouverneur building, accommodated only 89 patients, whereas the new four-story building has four wards with 104 beds. The entire building was furnished under the personal supervision of the Superintendent, Miss Jessie A. Stowers. The wards are all furnished with movable beds and other modern appliances for keeping comfortable the city's sick. The doctors' and nurses' quarters and the dining rooms are all that could be desired. The laboratory and operating room are filled with up-to-date apparatus, including an X-ray machine, the only one in the Charities Department.

Patients will be transferred from the old building to the new to-morrow. The old building will be used as the helps' sleeping quarters. The present staff of six doctors and eleven nurses will be augmented in the near future.

HIS SYMPATHY OF NO AVAIL.

Terrence Reynolds Accused of Perjury for Not Prosecuting John Reilly, Who Supports His Mother.

Because he decided not to press a charge of assault as he had heard that the accused had an aged mother to support, Terrence Reynolds, a stone cutter, of 458 Fourth Avenue, was charged with perjury by Magistrate Pool in the West Side Police Court yesterday morning and held in $1,000 bail for examination. Not being able to give bail he was sent to prison.

Reynolds on Friday morning caused the arrest of John Reilly, a bartender in the Brighton Music Hall, on Eighth Avenue, who, he said, had assaulted him. When Reilly was arraigned on Friday Reynolds made affidavit that the bartender had assaulted him and then the case was adjourned until yesterday in order to obtain witnesses. When the case came up yesterday Reynolds said he wished to withdraw the complaint, as he was not quite sure that Reilly was the man who assaulted him.

Magistrate Pool became very angry. "This is one of the most flagrant cases of 'seeing' a complainant I ever saw," he said. Then he had a complaint of perjury drawn against Reynolds, and the latter was led to prison. Reynolds persisted that he had not committed perjury, as he had not been sworn when he stated that he wanted to withdraw his complaint, which he had done because he heard that Reilly had an aged mother, but the Magistrate said this made no difference.

MACHETES NOT WAR WEAPONS.

Made as Farm Implements, Use in War Will Not Alter Classification.

The machete, which played such an important part in the Cuban revolutionary army, is not a weapon of war, according to a decision handed down yesterday by the Board of Classification of the United States General Appraisers. The decision had to do with the duty on 100 dozen of these implements imported recently from Liverpool to San Juan, Porto Rico. A duty of 45 per cent. ad valorem was assessed upon them as manufactures of metal. The importers protested, claiming that the duty should be only 35 per cent. under Paragraph 154, which covers swords, sword blades, and side arms.

In overruling the protest, the decision of the General Appraisers says: "While it is true that in some countries such things have been put to use as weapons of war, such use will not change their classification. They are not swords or side arms. They were made for and are most commonly used as farm implements, and a perverted use will not alter their classification."

Tufts College Alumni Dinner.

The sixth annual dinner of the Tufts College Alumni Association of New York will be held at 7 o'clock P. M., Jan. 17, at the Hotel Savoy. Among the speakers will be Elmer H. Capen, President of the college, whose subject will be "Educational Portents in the New Century."; Prof. Charles E. Fay, "The College"; Hosea M. Knowlton, Attorney General of Massachusetts, "What an Organized Alumni Can Do for the College"; Benjamin H. Hinds, "Reminiscences of Early Days"; Tabor Ashton of Philadelphia, "The Random Remarks of a Sixty-niner," and the Rev. Dr. J. Colman Adams, "Scintillations."

Sunday
January 6, 1901

Daily, 1 Cent. The New York Times. Sunday, 3 Cents.

Part Two Pages 15-26

LONDON TOPICS OF THE WEEK

Gloomy Effect of Conflicting Advices from South Africa.

LORD ROBERTS'S RECEPTION.

Alleged to be Neither as Great Nor as Significant as the Papers Said.

Many Obstacles Confront the Australian Federation — The French Shore Question—The Daily News an Anti-War Organ Again.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.
Copyright, 1901.

LONDON, Jan. 5.—"Now is the Winter of our discontent"—the new year has not opened very auspiciously for us. Afflictions abound, and it is no use for us disguising the fact that our mental attitude is one of profound discouragement. We try to hope for the best about a new development in the South African conflict, but bitter experience has taught us to distrust information from the front, and Lord Kitchener is more sparing in his facts even than was Lord Roberts. We are assured many times a day that the raids into Cape Colony by the northern farmers must come to nothing, that the Cape Colony Dutch are not joining them, that the invading columns are being headed back or are returning northward on their own accord, after having looted farms and provided themselves with stores. Against this, however, we have to place the proclamation of martial law over more than half the colony and Milner's call to arms, which, in the circumstances, means civil war. So great is the contrast between the military assurances and the actions of the civil Government that we are mystified and unable to think the best, even when inclined.

Out-and-out war partisans are offended at Lord Kitchener's latest movement toward conciliation. This, they say, will only encourage resistance by the leading burghers, who suppose we are getting tired of war; and it must be admitted that the contention is plausible. I fear the time is ill-chosen for making advances to the fighting burghers with a view to their surrender on some kind of reasonable terms. Had this been done immediately after Paardeberg, when we could have assumed the position of a triumphant conqueror dealing generously and humanely with our beaten foe, there seems to be a probability that, at least a patched-up peace might have been attained, and that a better order of civil life might then gradually have arisen all through South Africa. Our Government deliberately took a provocative course, and, as I warned you at the time, in so acting made a prolongation of the war certain. As Botha said to his commandos, "We have nothing to lose and everything to gain by continuing the struggle." Yet what could Lord Kitchener do but palaver?

***

ATTITUDE OF THE COUNTRY.

However our newspapers may objurgate and breathe threatening slaughter there is no denying that the country is becoming thoroughly sick of this conflict or that a very influential and increasing body of citizens bitterly resent the barbarities into which some of our commanders have been betrayed. Unless this feeling is in some way met, the storm that was smothered when Parliament assembled in December, may break out with uncontrollable fury in February. Passions are getting to a white heat on both sides, and the Government simply dares not continue the farm-burning-deportation system of pacification. Not only has that proved an intolerable measure for driving the burghers to continue fighting, but it has become disastrous to ourselves in depriving our troops of valuable local sources of food supply. For these reasons alone Kitchener has no choice but to try to come to terms. I only wish it were possible to hope his efforts may be crowned with success, but I fear the contrary.

If I have accurately described the feeling of the country, how comes it, you may say, that Lord Roberts had such a magnificent reception on his return? By reading the newspapers you would imagine that no conquering hero of England ever welcomed back from the field of his triumphs has been received with greater enthusiasm. The explanation is twofold but simple. First, enthusiasm was not visible to anything like the extent the newspapers allege, and disappointed the jingoes alike in mass and sound. A jingo lady of my acquaintance naïvely complained that the crowd did not cheer "Bobs" any more enthusiastically than the Prince of Wales. There was a crowd, however, and much organization was devoted to working it up and keeping the enthusiasm boiling. Also, and this is the second reason for the good reception, most reflecting people blame Lord Roberts much less than the home Government for the troubles into which our army fell after he had triumphantly conducted it to Pretoria.

***

ROBERTS NO POLITICIAN.

The old man is no politician, does not understand the rudiments of politics, and therefore simply obeyed the hints or orders from home in his earlier proclamations of annexation and surrender out of which all his later afflictions arose. Had the nation really blamed this Anglo-Indian soldier for all the deeds of rapine laid to the charge of his subordinates he would have met with a very mixed reception indeed. As it is, the great majority is willing to think kindly of him. It is in manner a satire upon our civilization and a grim commentary on the progress of mankind that his Lordship's fitness to act as Commander in Chief should have been the issue of the appeal to the nation to come to the assistance of the starving wives and families of the soldiers at the front. That is the reverse side of "glory's shield, and the one I do not care to dwell upon.

We have been called upon this New Year to enthuse about the Federation of Australia, and I am afraid that also has been poorly done. We are all very glad that the new Commonwealth promising great things for the future should have been formed pacifically and amid tokens of mutual good will, but it cannot be said that we are deeply interested in the change or that any but the vaguest conception has entered the public mind as to what the step implies. In the colonies themselves the joy has been immense, particularly in Sydney, and I hope that the fruits will not belie the extravagant ideas evidently prevalent among the colonists. I, however, see many rocks ahead for the new Government, and not the least is the rock of colonial debts.

***

THE DEBTS OF AUSTRALIA.

When Mr. Barton and his allies in the Federalist campaign originally began their propaganda one of the planks in their platform was a consolidation of colonial debts as part of the scheme for uniformity in taxation, especially in customs duties. It was contended, and, at the time reasonably, that the load borne by the various settlements could be lightened by a financial operation of this kind, which would produce a consolidated stock vendable at a price implying reduced interest payments. This idea must for the present be abandoned. Not only is the consolidation of debts impossible except at rates of interest higher than many portions of them now bear, but the various settlements are each more or less hard pushed for means, and have had to fall upon expedients in order to raise locally sufficient funds to maintain appearances until such time as the London market again becomes favorable to issues of stock on easy terms. Finance, in short, lies at the root of the federation problem, and until the difficulties surrounding the economic position of every one of these settlements have been attacked and removed, the Federation, in spite of fling-flying, dining, and speechifying, must remain a shadow rather than a reality.

There is no danger of bloodshed between England and France over the French Shore question in Newfoundland. I think the colony is quite right in insisting that a definite settlement should be come to, and I have reason to think that it will be effected in a conciliatory spirit on what King James I. called the "giff-gaff" principle. Report says that we have decided to surrender Gambia as a solatium to the French for giving up their treaty rights, and as much as they have laid hold of outside the treaty limits in Newfoundland. The accord has, I fear, scarcely reached this point, and I should not lay much stress upon the story. What I am sure of is that the bellicose temper has, for the present, nearly disappeared between England and France. Some obscure news sheets on both sides of the Channel may indulge in fine writing of a bloodthirsty sort, but neither nation is in mind to respond. Perhaps but for the Chinese incidents France might have been disposed to make a show of defiance and by big talk to endeavor to lay hold of more than she is entitled to, but, as matters stand, this attitude will not be assumed. The French feel that China is taking quite as much of their means and attention as they can afford to give to any international quarrel. So you will have no indication of hostile fleets ramming each other within sight of your shores nor so much as the luxury of a good stand-up contest in mutual abuse.

***

A JOURNALISTIC EVENT.

An interesting journalistic event has happened since I wrote last. The Daily News has been recaptured by the anti-war party, or, as I should prefer to call it, the old Liberal Party. What happened is briefly this: After Walsingham and his colleagues left The Daily Chronicle friends interested in him began efforts to get capital together to start a new morning penny newspaper. They had but indifferent success for some considerable time, but lately Liberal capitalists have been coming forward and the project looked like early realization. Then it was discovered that The Daily News was in the market cheap. Its circulation had been falling off because, while it offended many of its old adherents, it had gained few new ones. It had only been beating the same drum nearly as all the other papers pounded it. Although retaining many of its distinctive and always excellent features, it could not hope to entice people who were satisfied with the other performers to leave them and come to it. Then, as one of the principals in the negotiation tells me, the proprietors were divided, a majority of them in number, though weaker in financial stake, being opposed to the paper's present policy. The end of a long story was that last Saturday a preliminary agreement for transfer was signed and next month the paper will revert to its old function. Who will edit it I do not know, but it will unquestionably be recruited from most of the brilliant members of the old Chronicle staff. Nevertheless it is an up-hill fight to recover lost ground.

Silliness of the dog days never reached the height of absurdity as shown by paragraphs current in our papers about the possibility of communication by electricity with the inhabitants of the planet Mars. The worst is they are not funny enough to yield a good laugh.

A. J. W.

Le Boutillier Brothers

JANUARY, 1901.
ANNUAL SALE OF

HOUSEKEEPING LINENS.

TABLE CLOTHS, grass bleached, from 8-4 x 8-4 to 8-4 x 14-4,	$1.50 to $7.50	each
NAPKINS, grass bleached, 5-8 and 3-4,	$1.50 to $5.00	dozen
TOWELS, Damask and Huck,	$1.20 to $6.00	dozen

ALL MUCH BELOW REGULAR PRICES.

Also

A lot of extra fine DAMASK TABLE CLOTHS, from 2 to 6 yards long (patterns we are closing out), at HALF PRICE.

Le Boutillier Brothers

West Twenty-third Street.

LEGISLATION PROPOSED FOR NEW JERSEY

Some of the Important Measures for the Session of 1901.

Economy to be the Keynote—Referendum on Liquor Licenses and Local Option—Contemplated Constitutional Changes.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, Jan. 5.—The session of the New Jersey Legislature begins on Tuesday next. The re-election of United States Senator Sewell will be its first important act. The principal contests will be over the surplus now on hand. The State's income continually keeps ahead of its expenses, because of the flood of fees and taxes on corporations. It is now a few million dollars ahead, notwithstanding its extraordinary expenditures the past few years, and there is a quiet move for appropriations that looks like an incipient Treasury raid.

The only direct tax in the State is for school purposes, and it is proposed that the available money this year shall go to the reduction of the amount that must be raised by tax, and it is thought that the amount will be between $700,000 and $1,000,000. The Epileptic Village, in Somerset County, will need funds for completion. Some consideration will be given for the State and the County of Mercer to join issues in the construction of the arsenal and armory. The State badly needs the arsenal. There is a demand for the erection of an asylum for the convict insane. New Jersey has at the present time 150 insane criminals in its two State institutions.

The most important measure that will be considered will be to secure the passage of the referendum local option bill for liquor selling, which would permit all communities to decide at an election whether they want license or no license. The movement had its origin in Bergen County, and the Executive Committee is composed of clergymen and active laymen in the upper part of New Jersey. They propose a vigorous crusade, with meetings, hearings, and petitions. The members of the Legislature have expressed themselves as not favorable to legislation of this character.

Constitutional amendments for the reform of the judiciary will be presented under the influence of the State Bar Association. Another amendment will provide for biennial sessions of the Legislature. The biennial sessions are wanted by United States Senator Sewell and many of the State leaders and members of the corporations. There will also be an amendment for the election of Assemblymen by districts, and not by counties.

Organized labor will again demand the passage of a law creating two female Factory Inspectors, and also urge the election of United States Senators by the people. The Governor will recommend the abolishment of the State Board of Arbitration, which has not proved as useful to labor as was anticipated. Workingmen will offer no objection if the board is removed.

SCHOOL CHILDREN'S GIFT.

Nearly $28,000 Sent to Help Rebuild the Schools of Devastated Galveston.

One of the prettiest and most eloquent documents from every point of view that was ever mailed in this city was forwarded yesterday by President Miles J. O'Brien of the Board of Education to the President of the Board of School Trustees of Galveston, Texas. It was only a bank check of the Nineteenth Ward Bank, but it represented $27,907.02, the gift of the school children of New York to the school children of Galveston, sent in response to the appeal for help for the latter. It represented the total of the dollars, dimes, nickels, and pennies that might just as easily have gone for candy and marbles and dolls and firecrackers, but which have been poured with a lavish hand for weeks past into the contribution boxes for the relief and help of stricken children in a far-away city. The odd 2 cents represented on the check speaks more eloquently than words of the childish sacrifices that were made to accumulate the splendid contribution.

The check itself is unique in many ways. It is much larger than the usual document of its kind, and besides the name of the bank, &c., it has engraved upon it a group of merry school children. It bears the seal of the Board of Education, underneath which appears the following: "From the pupils of the public schools of New York City to the pupils of the public schools of Galveston, Texas."

President O'Brien, in the letter accompanying the check, which is mailed to President M. E. Kleberg of the Galveston School Board, says that the check is in response to the appeal sent out on Sept. 28 last asking aid for the school children of the stricken city. President O'Brien, after stating that in asking the children of the New York public schools to contribute to this cause, he broke a rule which has existed in the Board of Education from time immemorial, ends with the following: "Let me hope as a result of the chain of sympathy this incident must forge that the children of both cities as they grow up to manhood and womanhood will ever bear in mind that the Empire City will always be willing to respond to any deserving call for aid from the afflicted or distressed in any part of our Nation."

Money Order Business for 1900.

The annual report of Superintendent Elliott of the Money Order Division of the General Post Office shows an enormous increase of business, beating all records. During 1900 the number of transactions in this department was 4,592,700, representing $153,960,026, an increase over the 1899 business of 573,006 transactions and $19,905,446. The branches and sub-stations in Manhattan and the Bronx also show a large increase. The total increase in the General Post Office and in the branches and sub-stations over 1899 was $168,270,035

CENTRE OF POPULATION MOVES.

Has Gone Westward About Fourteen Miles in Ten Years.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—The Census Bureau to-day issued the following:

The centre of population is in the following position:

Latitude 39.9.36, longitude 85.48.54.

In ten years the centre of population has moved westward 16 degrees 1 minute, about fourteen miles, and southward 2 degrees 20 minutes, or about three miles. It now rests in Southern Indiana, at a point about seven miles southeast of the City of Columbus.

"Buy China and Glass Right"

HIGGINS & SEITER

Fine China-Rich Cut Glass

On Monday, January 7th, will be inaugurated our annual January Plate Sale. This is not the getting together of odds and ends, but a deliberate and carefully planned special sale of these goods. Several hogsheads of these plates specially imported for this sale we received in the latter part of December. They have just come from our storage warehouse and will be unpacked, marked and ready for your inspection on Monday morning. This sale will be notable for two features, viz: —the large variety of the plates to select from and the remarkable low prices. In addition to the plates specially mentioned we will during the week commencing January 7th offer a special discount of 10 per cent. on our entire stock of rich English china plates. When you remember that our average prices are 25 per cent. less than elsewhere, you will readily see what an extra 10 per cent. discount means on our prices. We mention a few of the many different styles and prices.

ELITE LIMOGES CHINA PLATES. Finest Elite Limoges China Bread and Butter Plates, pearl edge, with very handsome festoons and clusters of leaves and flowers on border, with shoulder line and cluster of leaves in centre, in the delicate shades of green and pink, with a suggestion of yellow; small gold lace border on edge. Ordinarily you would expect to pay at least $7.00 per dozen for these plates. We make a special price at this time of 35c. each.

AUSTRIAN CHINA PLATES. Tea, fruit or dessert plates, delicate blue edge with border of flowers and gold oak leaves on edge; also gold hair line on edge. There are several styles very similar; your choice of any at 50c. each.

GAME PLATES. Austrian china game plates, maroon border, with centre decoration covering the entire plate; assorted game subjects, at 75c. each.

LIMOGES CHINA PLATES. Finest Limoges china plates English shape, with colored panels of green, pink and maroon, with sectional decoration of flowers. Beautifully decorated throughout with best burnished gold; solid gold edge. You have your choice of any size at $2.00 each.

FISH PLATES. Austrian china fish plates, with magnificent centre decoration of fish and marine views; assorted subjects. Border in rich dark green, solid gold edge. Ordinarily you would expect to pay $18.00 per dozen. Your choice at $1.00 each.

AUSTRIAN CHINA PLATES. We have several very similar decortions and sizes in richly decorated Austrian china plates; some with centre in maroon, with festoons of delicate pink flowers on shoulders of the plate, solid gold border. These specially priced at $1.50 each.

ENGLISH DOULTON PLATES. We offer you possibly 25 dozen rich English Doulton sample plates, real value from $1.50 to $6 and $7 each. This will be an unusual opportunity for selecting rich Doulton plates. A complete dozen can be made up similar in shape and general character of decoration. You take your choice of the entire lot at $1.50 each.

WELSH RAREBIT PLATE. Possibly one of the most interesting novelties that we have ever brought out is our Welsh Rarebit Plate. The design is controlled exclusively by us. The rabbits are embossed and the plate is highly glazed and particularly decorated. Set of six, each one different, $2.25

SPECIAL 10% DISCOUNT. We offer for this week only from our entire stock of rich English plates (excepting dinner ware patterns) this special discount of 10%. It will be to your advantage to anticipate your plate wants at this time.

We have several dozen of unusually handsome game plates, painted by the most celebrated painters of game in all England. These are included in the above lot.

PARIS EXHIBITION PIECES. We were large purchasers of Exhibition pieces at the Paris Fair. They were bought with the understanding that they were not to be removed until the Exhibition closed. A great many of our customers were interested in the pieces which we bought, and which were labelled at the Fair as purchased by us, and we take this opportunity to advise them that the goods have just been received and are now on exhibition at our store. However, there are a great many people who would feel interested in seeing these goods without having any intention of purchasing. To these also we extend an invitation to call and inspect them. There are some very notable pieces, and the entire collection is worthy of any museum.

50-54 West 22d Street.

Arnold, Constable & Co.

Spring Announcement.

New Styles of

Fancy Silks, Printed Satins,

Crêpes and Grenadines

for Ball and Evening Dress,

White Silks and Satins,

are now being shown.

Broadway & 19th Street.

WINDOW CLEANER'S FATAL FALL.

Jacob Radino Hurled from a Sixth Story and Mangled on the Pavement.

Jacob Radino, window cleaner in the employ of the Window Cleaning Company of New York and Brooklyn, was killed yesterday by a fall from the sixth-story window of the building at 113 and 115 Bond Street, while engaged in his occupation. At all the windows of the building, which is being put in readiness for occupancy, are iron bars to protect them from the shutters. Radino usually held on to these bars when washing the outside of the windows. He reached a window on the side of the building from which the nuts on the ends of the bolts which hold the bar to the wall were missing.

When Radino caught hold of this bar it became detached at once, and the man was precipitated to the asphalt in an alleyway below. He was hurried to St. Vincent's Hospital, but was so badly mangled and bruised that the surgeons at once abandoned hope of saving his life and began applying drugs to ease his sufferings. Radino died under these ministrations.

Fell Three Stories; Still Lives.

James Maguire, nineteen years old, a porter, employed and living at 45 New Street, was cleaning windows in the building yesterday afternoon. He lost his balance and fell from the third story to the sidewalk, receiving a fracture of the spine, a fracture of the left elbow, and contusions on the head. Dr. E. H. Knight of 41 Maiden Lane dressed the injuries and Mague was sent home.

Large Consignment of Canary Birds.

There was no dearth of music on the Brooklyn piers of the North German Lloyd Line yesterday morning. The cause of all the harmony was contained in 1,500 little latticed boxes, each containing a singing canary. They were consigned to a dealer in fancy birds and animals and had been imported from the Hartz Mountains of Germany, a region where the women and children of the peasantry spend most of their time in raising canaries and manufacturing the little boxes in which they are shipped.

HEARN

West Fourteenth Street.

Great White Sale

THE TIME OF ALL THE YEAR TO BUY

Housekeeping Goods of Cotton and Linen,
Ladies' Underwear, Men's Shirts, Babies' Wear,
White Goods and Embroideries;
PRICES are SPECIAL and ASSORTMENTS LARGE.

IT IS ALSO A TIME

when advance of season brings reductions in Ladies' and Children's Cloaks and Dresses and other seasonable goods, so that opportunities are great all over the store—it is an enthusiastic time.

THESE OFFERINGS SPEAK FOR THEMSELVES.

Ladies' Underwear

Addition of entire space hitherto occupied by Millinery gives us the largest and finest Underwear Department in New York.....With largely increased space we can and do show even larger assortments than ever, and comfort and ease with which customers can make selections are only equalled by the fascinating prices at which they can buy—

LADIES' NIGHT DRESSES.

Excellent Muslin—Yoke of 18 Hemstitched tucks—hemstitched ruffle—value .69.. .49
Fine Cambric—Empire front—revers of fancy lace—lace edge ruffle—value .98 .78
Fine Cambric—Yoke of 14 fine Hemstitch tucks, ins't'gs and ruffle of emb'y.... .78
Empire Night Dresses—large revers of wide insertings and ruffle of emb'y—front with four openwork ins't'gs and emb'y ruffle—ribbon run..... .97
At same price twenty other styles—each prettier than the other.
Fine Cambric Gowns—Empire and other styles, trimmed in various fancy ways with Point De Paris laces, pin tucks Emb'y and Lace insertings..1.49 and 1.98

LADIES' WHITE SKIRTS.

Deep Flounce—two insertings and heavy lace or deep emb'y ruffle..... .79
Cambric and Muslin—double ruffle of emb'y; 2 and 3 insertings, tucks and fancy laces or deep ruffle of emb'y... .95
Fine Cambric Skirts—19 inch flounce with eight fine tucks and ruffle of showy emb'y.....1.39
Fine Cambric Skirts—deep double ruffles of lawn, with 2 insertings and edge of fine lace, also six other styles, elaborately trim'd with laces, tucks and emb'y.....1.98

LADIES' DRAWERS.

Good Muslin—Hemstitch ruffle..... .18
Inserting and edge of lace or ruffle of good emb'y..... .39
Cambric and Muslin Drawers—deep ruffles of lace or emb'y—with and without hemstitch or emb'y inserting ..... .59
Fine Cambric Drawers—ten elaborate styles, fancy lace or fine embroidery.. .79

LADIES' CORSET COVERS.

Cambric—V-shape—three hemstitch tucks and hemstitch ruffle or wide embroidery ..... .18
Fine Cambric—tight or gathered front—hemstitching, emb'y, or lace insertings—12 styles ..... .29
French and other styles—round, square or high neck—insertings of fine lace or emb'y, edgings to match..... .49
Habit or regular length—15 of this season's daintiest styles—some with entire front of fine insertings..... .98

LADIES' CHEMISES.

Muslin—Yoke of lace or emb'y or two insertings and tucks or corded bands. .24
With square yoke of insertings..... .39
Deep yoke of hemstiched tucks, inserting and emb'y; round yoke, two emb'y insertings and lace; others with yokes of heavy lace, fine emb'y and tucks..... .59
Cambric—extra length—elaborate trim'd yoke and skirt..... .98

AN ENTIRE SECTION

(opposite Corset Depr.) is devoted to Extra Size Underwear for stout figures—assortments unapproached elsewhere—newest styles—
EXTRA SIZES but NOT EXTRA PRICES.

White Sale Values for Babies and Little Children

	Value.	Special.
Daisy Flannel Sacques.....	.25	.17
Knit Sacques	.39	.29
Domet Flannel Kimonas.....	.39	.29
Domet Skirts—long and short.	.29	.19
Domet Barrow-coats	.25	.12½
Cashmere Shirts	.29	.19
Knit Bands, with straps.....	.39	.29
Quilted Silk Bibs.....	.39	.29
Bootees, Mitts and Veils.....	.29	.19
Hand Knit Leggin Drawers—with and without feet.....		.98
Babies' Long Cambric Slips..	.25	.16
Nainsook Slips—fancy trim..	.39	.24
Still finer—dainty trim.....	.69	.49
Fine Cambric Dresses—fancy yokes, lace and emb'y trim skirt..	1.50	.98
Babies' Cambric Short Dresses—tucked yoke with emb'y.....	.39	.24
Fine Cambric—tucked and fancy trim'd yokes.....	.49	.34

As Opening Bargain in Wash Dress Fabrics

and in connection with other "White Sale" values we offer

At Fifteen Cents a Yard

250 pieces

French Mercerized Sateens

Royal-and-White. Navy-and-White.
Garnet-and-White. Black-and-White.
Beautiful texture.....should be 24 cents.
Don't Delay.
"White Sale" opportunities are not every day occurrences.

Wamsutta Pillow Cases

"GOLD MEDAL" WAMSUTTAS.

42x36 .....11 cents
45x36 .....12 cents
50x36 .....13 cents
54x36 .....14 cents

Something to make competitors talk. Not found anywhere else at any price.
How do we do it?
Never mind the "why" and "wherefore."
Take advantage of prices.
No Mail Orders Filled.

Sheets and Pillow Cases

Another good make.

Not quite so fine as "Wamsuttas," but a good strong Muslin that cannot elsewhere be matched anywhere near these prices.

Sheets	.....54x90.....	28 cents
Sheets	.....63x90.....	32 cents
Sheets	.....72x90.....	37 cents
Sheets	.....81x90.....	40 cents
Sheets	.....90x90.....	45 cents
Pillow Cases	..42x36.....	8 cents
Pillow Cases	..45x36.....	9 cents
Pillow Cases	..50x36.....	10½ cents
Pillow Cases	..54x36.....	11½ cents

All the above are torn, not cut—will keep straight after washing.
No Mail Orders Filled.
Hemstitch Sheets—8 cents more per size.
Hemstitch Pillow Cases—4 cents more per size.

Yard Wide Muslins

Fine and soft—good for underwear and shirts 5½
Extra Heavy Unbleached—very good for sheeting if you don't mind a seam in the centre..... 6½
THE ABOVE PRICES are actually Below those asked by Jobbers
For Hundred Case Lots.
No Mail Orders Filled.

Towels for the "White Sale"

Thousands of dozens at prices all Housekeepers should know of.

Damask—36 to 44 inch, .10..12..16..19
All with knotted fringes.
Huck—all linen—33 to 42 inch Hemmed & Hemstitch, 8..10..16½..19
Extra fine, 44 and 48 inches long—with Hems or fringe—value 33, .25
Turkish—White and Cream—36 to 50 inches long... 5..7..9..11..15
Turkish—extra Heavy—50 inch, 25..39

One Thousand Pair Heavy Curtains

at lowest prices of the season. Reductions made specially for the "White Sale"—an opportunity to buy Rich Portieres that permits of no delay....Don't put off buying until a week from now and then expect to find just the color you seek....If you WANT, come NOW....Reductions are genuine and values extraordinary.

AT 2.98; were 4.98.
Silkized Brocade Armures—large designs in contrasting colors and two tones.
AT 4.98; were 7.98.
Corduroy Rib Portieres—plain or figured centres—Panel border in self-color or contrasting shades—heavy rope edge.
AT 5.98; were 8.98.
Neapolitan Velour Portieres—velvet figured both sides—peculiarly rich effects in solid tints of crimson, olive, mahogany, old rose, Library green and French brown.
AT 6.98; were 9.98.
Elegant Frou-Frou Curtains—mercerized finish—high art colors.
AT 7.98; were 10.98.
Brocade Rep Curtains—solid colors—rich effects.
AT 9.98; were 14.98.
Handsome Novelties in Mercerized Brocades—best quality—two toned, or shaded effects in solid colors.
AT 1.24 each.
Oriental Stripe Curtains—three yard strips—for cozy corners and dens—real Eastern colorings.

Men's Shirts.

Made up in great quantities specially for this "White Sale"....Every concession that large cash purchases can insure we obtain—therefore these Extraordinarily Low Prices.

Men's Dress Shirts—New York Mills Muslin—3 ply linen bosom—reinforced back and front—double stitched..... .39
Men's Dress Shirts—Utica Muslin—fine linen bosoms—open back and front or open back only—3 ply cuffs and collar bands..... .49
Men's Dress Shirts—Utica Nonpareil Muslin—Bosom of 3 ply fine Irish Linen, 2,200 fine—Linen cuff and collar bands—Reinforced fronts—Hand made Button and Eyelet Holes—Best hand finished and gusset seams—equal to Custom Made..... .69
Men's Night Shirts—good heavy Muslin—extra long—fast color, emb'y..... .39
Men's Night Shirts—Utica Muslin—extra long—double stitched—front and collar trim'd with fast color emb'y—full size Body and Sleeves..... .49

Extraordinary Sale of Ladies' Jackets and Capes

At HALF and LESS than HALF VALUE.

January has come and with it opportunities to close out Manufacturers' Stocks .... Two such purchases at great concessions enable us to sell this season's most desirable styles as follows:

Cloth Jackets

Kersey, Cheviot and Frieze—Boxcoat, Short Jacket, and Automobile styles—Black, Oxford, Navy, Brown, Castor and Tan—full stitched, or with appliqued revers and collar, or full collars and revers of fur.

Now	2.98	were 6.98
Now	3.98	were 8.98
Now	4.98	were 10.98
Now	5.98	were 12.98
Now	7.98	were 15.98
Now	9.98	were 21.98

Plush and Cloth Capes

Reversible Plaids and Plain Cloths for Dress and Evening; also Plush, with and without Appliques or fur trimmings.

YOU CAN NOW BUY

Capes that were 5.98	at 2.98
Capes that were 9.98	at 4.98
Capes that were 12.98	at 6.98
Capes that were 15.98	at 8.98

Finer to 19.98; were 59.98.
At each price both Cloth and Plush Capes.

POWERS MAY APPOINT NEW CHINESE EMPEROR

No Very Serious Opposition by Native Troops Expected.

Memory of Officials Slain Because They Advocated Moderation Is Now Honored.

Foreign Correspondence NEW YORK TIMES.

PEKING, Nov. 16.—Diplomatic persistency in demanding the return of the Emperor to the capital and the futility of the efforts in that line have bred a suggestion that, if his coming be much longer deferred, the Powers unite in naming an Emperor and establishing him in authority. The idea would be to force the Empress Dowager to active measures to dispute the title or to let it go by default. It would not be proposed to go outside of the present royal family for a ruler. There are various Princes within reach, and one pledged to a liberal policy might be chosen, if that were thought a good way to bring the Chinese crisis to a head. Whether the suggestion will amount to anything more than a diplomatic speculation will naturally depend on how the home offices may regard it. It has been duly forwarded, and something may shortly be heard of it in authoritative fashion.

Uncommon as such a proceeding would be, reasons are advanced for it with considerable earnestness and plausibility. China is as much a conquered country as it was when the Manchus climbed over the Great Wall, built to keep them out, and set up a dynasty. It might not be impossible to overrun China with foreign troops, but the undertaking would be tremendous, and perhaps the same results might be reached without going to that trouble. The Empress has within call about 20,000 troops who attended her flight. More might be summoned were the integrity of the empire threatened, although that may not be asserted too positively, but with the empire secure and the dynasty undisturbed it may be doubted whether troops who remained away when the capital was invaded would show any livelier interest were the issue simply one between two rulers, one of them sustained by the Powers of Europe and the other by a tottering Court and a rabble army of assassins.

The present course of the troops in Shan-Tung furnishes a case in point. They let the allied scouting parties do what they like on the borders of that province, and say they will not interfere on condition that the foreigners keep out of Shan-Tung. Under this arrangement, Southern Pe-chi-li may be completely devastated, if the foreigners choose to do it, without fear that a finger will be raised in opposition or protest by the native troops across the border. Yet it is not quite certain that the concern of these troops for their own province lies very deep, for in the eastern part the Germans are going ahead with plans to strengthen their hold, to extend their territory and to fence it in with a railroad, and although the natives are said to be wondering where it will stop and to feel that the Germans are encroaching beyond their rights, the provincial troops are doing nothing to hinder it.

NATIVE TROOPS' LUKEWARMNESS.

Evidence is quite lacking that in any other province of the empire the local troops would act differently to save the fortune or the person of the Empress, especially were they assured that there were no designs upon the dynasty or the integrity of the empire, and that only a change of rulers was contemplated. The Black Flags came up from Qwang-Tung into Hu-Nan recently with all sorts of loyal professions, but it turned out that they were really on strike for back pay, and had no notion of getting into trouble. It may be suspected, indeed, that besides wishing to get the wages due to them, they were not averse to being away from their own province, for riots were in progress in Canton, which it was their business to put down.

Elsewhere, except near the Court, the military organization is not at all formidable. Tung-Fu-Siang's troops are mainly northwestern Mohammedans, who hate foreigners and would no doubt gladly do them all possible damage. Their service so far has consisted of attacks upon missionaries and other defenseless people and upon the legations here during the siege. When the expedition drew near in August and there was a chance for them to fight soldiers, they ran away with the Empress. Gen. Tung seems to be about as important a factor in native affairs now as is the Empress. He has threatened to rebel if she yields to foreign wishes, and while there is no reason to suppose that she is weakening materially, it is said that she is sometimes restrained from doing things that seem to her politic because of Tung's influence. The chances are that if a new ruler were declared and installed, and this army became aggressive against him, the provincial troops that are worth considering would be quite as likely to enlist with the foreigners to defend the throne as with the Empress to uphold her personal cause.

PRO-FOREIGN VICTIMS HONORED.

News has been received of memorial services held about ten days ago at Hang-Chow, in Chi-Kiang Province, in honor of Hsu-Ching-Cheng and Yuan-Chang, who were cut and sawed to death here in the Summer because they dared advocate in imperial councils decent behavior toward foreigners. The Empress had no patience with such a policy at that time, and gave the order that led to their barbarous death. Now the people of their province seem to regard them as martyrs, and the recent service was intended to signify the respect in which they were held among their own communities. The ceremonies, according to The Universal Gazette, were attended by the gentry and great crowds of people. Tribute took a written form, said to be very beautiful in the original, but which was most significant because of the spirit of rebuke that it breathed toward the Imperial power. It has been translated into blank verse, as follows:

United in one purpose, true as steel,
Unflinching in the face of hundred ills,
Steadfast ye bore the brunt to save the realm,
And died to right your country's fatal step.
By arduous study winning place and power,
Fearlessly ye saw the perils of the time;
Like gallant shark ye braved the billows fierce,
With prow straight set against the roaring flood.
Thrice did ye warn the Throne with tears of blood;
Then, when deaf ears were turned to you, ye died.
And dying, left us bitter brief to know
Your lofty purpose proved a pitfall deep.
Once did your talents find a worthy task,
Gaining a name that ever shall be bright;
A fitting death now crowns a noble life
Whose patriotism ne'er shall be forgot.
Yes, future years will vindicate your fame—
The people's pattern of fidelity—
As lasting as yon far-famed mountain range,
As ceaseless as the currents of yon lake!
The tall grass weeps, the mourners come to bend
Around your tomb. Though but a brief space gone,
Your memory shall last a thousand years.
One simple cup of wine we offer now,
Remembering the spites of bygone days;
Your glory's gone to mingle with the stars,
While we, alas! grope on mid storm and rain!

It is safe to say that such a production at another time would have never seen the light. Royalty's hand would have been laid heavily on any community that would have dared approve such an utterance. Even until very lately the people would have accepted with meekness or silence any act from the throne, no matter how grievously it might have affected them. The execution of the two men took place more than three months ago, and everybody knew of it at the time. That no earlier public honors were attempted was due to the inborn fear of displeasing those in authority. The recent demonstration may not indicate any revulsion of public sentiment toward foreigners, although Chi-Kyang was singularly exempt from anti-foreign rancor, but it shows at least a beginning with the people of waning faith in the endurance of the present rule and of willingness that something better be substituted.

Since the Chi-Kyang officials died because they advocated a fair policy toward foreigners, the people of that province seem to be impressed with the wisdom and justice of such a policy. It is hoped that a similar awakening may occur elsewhere, and that even in regions where sentiment has always been hostile, the institution of the reforms demanded, by which foreign-hating officials are to be removed, and men pledged to a liberal policy put in their places, may be the means of inculcating a spirit of toleration and possibly in time one of amiability toward Europeans.

HOPE FOR THE PEOPLE.

These two exhibitions, military and civil, of indifference to the fate or to the wishes of the Empress Dowager suggest to many that as soon as conditions can be made right at Court for the reform demanded, the problem of dealing with the people will not be beset with great difficulties. It is not assumed that a well planted racial hatred is to be easily overcome. The natives would be expected to keep to themselves and to remain clannish and generally ignorant, but in treaty ports and where they are brought in frequent contact with foreigners, they manage at least to keep fairly well behaved, and it is believed that similar contact elsewhere would put an end to plots and schemes against foreigners and thus gradually throw open and make safe parts of the empire that have been heretofore classed as incorrigible. If this were to happen the battle would be won.

This presents in outline the reasons advanced in advocacy of the appointment of a new Emperor by the powers in the event of the failure or continued inability of Kwang-Su to return here to take his place at the head of the Government. It does not overlook but minimizes objections that may be offered as to the right of Europe to set up a monarchy of its own choosing in China. The proposition to reinstate the Emperor, it is said, is no less revolutionary than is that of putting some one else on the throne. Reinstatement would fly in the face of regularly constituted authority and the other plan could do no more.

Kwang-Su's reinstatement has been advocated mainly as a convenient means of handling an awkward condition—as a method that might be applied along the line of least resistance. Giving him full credit for liberal or humane impulses, the diplomats are not blind to his shortcomings of mind and will, and were he one of several Princes, among whom a selection might be made, they would certainly not choose him. Since his reinstatement would be something of a departure from regularity, it is urged that the principle involved can stand a little more wrenching without violence to any material interest, and without requiring a foreign force to maintain the change larger than would be needed to support Kwang-Su.

FREDERICK W. EDDY.

PAN-AMERICAN EXPOSITION.

Many Important Conventions to be Held —Preparations for Elaborate Electric Light Effects.

Probably more important conventions than have ever been held at any one place on this side of the Atlantic within the last ten years will be held at Buffalo during the six months in which the Pan-American Exposition will be open there. Not only local and State conventions will be in session during that period, but National conventions as well. Already over one hundred societies have decided to hold their conventions at Buffalo during the exposition season. The scope is widespread—industrial, commercial, theological, philosophical, social, scientific, educational, religious, fraternal, medical, and musical.

The arrangements for illuminating the exposition grounds have all been completed, and the work of stringing up the wires and placing the lamps in position is going on rapidly. One of the noticeable features of the lighting arrangements will be a duplicate lighting plant, to be used in case the regular plant fails in any way.

The illuminations about the Court of Fountains, the Electric Tower, the Esplanade, and the Plaza will be the most remarkable in the exposition. Over 200,000 incandescent lamps will be employed in making this display, and their installation will require an amount of wire weighing 250 tons, and in length over 400 miles. Ninety-four large searchlights will be placed under the water of the basin in the Court of Fountains, to cast colored lights on the fountains and cascades and heighten the beauty of the other electrical effects. The area of the courts to be illuminated is approximately 1,280,000 square feet—two and one-half times the area of the courts at the World's Fair in Chicago, twice the area of those at the Paris Exposition, and three times the area of those at the Trans-Mississippi Exposition at Omaha. Thirty-five thousand gallons of water a minute will be required for the fountain display, which will be the most elaborate of any ever undertaken for exhibition purposes. Some of the jets in the Court of Fountains will be fifty feet high, and the cascade which will fall from the Electric Tower into the basin below will be seventy feet high.

Five thousand horse power of electricity will be delivered by the plant of the Niagara Falls Power Company for use in illuminating the buildings and grounds of the exposition. A similar amount of electricity will be generated by a plant upon the grounds. The service, as already arranged for, contemplates the utilization of the water power of Niagara, the use of gasoline, and of gas, both under boilers producing steam and in gas engines producing energy.

The sculptured groups which will ornament the courts, fountains, and grounds of the exposition will be 125 in number. They will be the work of the most famous sculptors of Pan-America, and their aggregate cost will amount to more than $500,000. Already 200,000 hardy perennial flowering shrubs have been planted to adorn the grounds of the exposition next Summer. The great floral display there will include over 500 beds of popular flowers in the courts, with rare tropical and aquatic plants in the Mirror Lakes, Grand Canal, and Lagoons.

It is expected that Canada will be well represented in its manufactures and farm products at the exposition. A short time ago at a meeting of the Board of Trade of Hamilton, Ontario, it was decided that the board should act in concert with other boards in obtaining from the Government whatever aid might be necessary to insure a fitting representation of Canadian products and manufactures. Oregon will also be well represented. A. J. Johnson of Portland, Oregon, paid a visit to the exposition grounds recently. He is a forestry expert.

"The first in importance of the exhibits to be made by Oregon," he said, "is the forestry exhibit. We may have not as great factories in Oregon as you have in other States, but we have forests. We have the largest trees in the Union. At the exposition we will have just 144 different varieties of trees and shrubs. One tree we will exhibit will be 15 feet in diameter and so long that it will require four large flat cars to transport it. We have trees in Oregon 20 feet in diameter, but they are too big to be transported. We will also show 100 different varieties of polished woods, all taken from our forests."

It is expected that Illinois will be one of the States to have a separate State building at the exposition. The National Business League, in session at Chicago, has sent resolutions to the Governor recommending a State building at Buffalo.

The committee in charge of the work of preparing the exhibits from California has already packed up enough material to be sent to Buffalo to make a respectable exhibit of the State's products.

Probably one of the most curious exhibits to visitors at the exposition will come from South America. This is cassareep, a product made from the poisonous juice of the bitter cassava, which is extracted while making tapioca, arrowroot, and other food products. It is used as a relish, and, although little known in the United States, is an important delicacy in South America.

Ten million dollars represents approximately the cost of the Pan-American Exposition, exclusive of exhibits. The authorized capital stock of the exposition is $2,500,000. The authorized bond issue is $2,500,000. The Government appropriation is $500,000. The cost of the Midway is $3,000,000. The New York State appropriation is $300,000, and in connection with the New York Building about $100,000 will be expended by the City of Buffalo and the Buffalo Historical Society. The appropriation from States and foreign countries together with the cost of buildings to be erected on the exposition grounds by the City of Buffalo and by private citizens, will bring the total cost of the exposition up to fully $10,000,000.

AMERICAN CORN IN GERMANY.

The Colonies Want to Grow the $32,000,000 Used in the Fatherland.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—Ernest L. Harris, the United States Consular Agent at Elbenstock, Germany, reports that the German Colonial Association is soliciting the Government to take steps toward introducing and protecting on a large scale the growth of Indian corn in some of the German colonies. The German Empire imports about $32,000,000 worth of corn every year, the major part of which comes from the United States.

The Woermann Line, which plies between Hamburg and Togo, charges $0.50 per ton for freightage between these points. The North German Lloyd charges on the average $2.75 per ton from New York or Baltimore to Bremen. Very often large quantities of corn from the United States are taken gratis as ballast. Until Germany has better shipping facilities with her colonies, the freight on corn will amount to as much as the original price of corn per ton in America.

To make good this difference in a degree the Colonial Association proposes to admit corn from the German colonies free of duty. In 1899 the Government's income from the duty on corn amounted to $7,740,000. The duty on corn imported from the colonies amounted to $1,430.

Ladies with High Foreheads need BANGS

specially constructed to overcome this unpleasantly prominent facial feature. Our Ladies' Skeleton Bang (patented) is so made that the wearer's hair may be freely mingled with it, and in such a manner as to make detection impossible. This bang is so light that it can be properly termed a featherweight.

Ladies Having Thin Hair Are Aided by Our Switches

which make the thin hair assume its natural weight and comely proportions. The "Marie Antoinette" Switch is our specialty and a most graceful creation. Its soft, wavy hair is readily arranged to any style of becoming dress for the head.

Protection from Colds is Amply Afforded by Our WIGS and TOUPEES

Bald or partially bald gentlemen are fully protected from colds in the head and catarrh by our Wigs and Toupees. New Illustrated Catalogue mailed free.

L. SHAW,

54 W. 14TH ST., NEXT TO MACY'S, N. Y. Largest Hair Store in the World.

BIRTH OF THE "UNITED STATES" OF AUSTRALIA

New Commonwealth Created on the Century's Threshold.

COLONIES ARE ALL HOPEFUL

Free Trade Versus Protection the Great Fiscal Issue at the Coming Federal Elections.

Foreign Correspondence NEW YORK TIMES.

WELLINGTON, N. Z., Dec. 4.—On Jan. 1, 1901, the Governor General of Australia is to be sworn in at Sydney, N. S. W., and the new Commonwealth is to be brought into being. All Australia is turning its eyes to the federal future, and the chief topics of discussion are the coming festivities at the new year, the elections for the Commonwealth Parliament, and the projected visit of the Duke and Duchess of York. Current events and provincial politics are overshadowed by national hopes. The general attitude is one of eager expectation, checkered to some extent with doubts and fears. Local party struggles sink into comparative insignificance, and yet no one seems quite sure what will be the issues laid before the federal electors.

Australia is passing through a trying period of transition. Her old divided existence, with its rival States and separate institutions, is passing away. Its death knell has been tolled, but the new polity that is to take its place has not yet been born. Men have lost interest in the old, but they have still to wait for the new. At the beginning of November there was a general election in Victoria, followed by a political crisis which led to the defeat of the Ministry and the return to office of the former Premier, Sir George Turner, but never was an electoral struggle more apathetic or a Government overturned amid such contemptuous indifference. The people evidently felt that the national issue was the real one, and that local politics might well be left to take care of themselves until the effects of the new federal development became apparent.

The politicians of the various federating colonies have not made up their minds as to whether they will seek the federal arena or remain on the provincial stage. Business men are not quite sure how the uniform tariff and other consequences of federation will affect their interests. The mass of the people have a vague sense of approaching nationhood, but they cannot see clearly what the change will mean or how they can best turn it to their advantage. From time to time, too, there are outbursts of provincial jealousy which prove that the old State rivalry still smolders. Victoria accuses New South Wales of trying to monopolize the official celebrations on Jan. 1, and there are other subjects for mutual recrimination occasionally cropping up.

"UNITED STATES" OF AUSTRALIA.

Hope, however, is the dominant note, and fortunately there are strong leaders in all the colonies who are thoroughly imbued with the national spirit and sincerely wish to see their island continent become the future "United States" of the Southern Hemisphere. No one can read the Australian Constitution or listen to the utterances of Australian statesmen without feeling that the United States of America have been ever before the eyes of the framers of that Constitution and the men who are to guide its operation. Australians claim that their Constitution is even more democratic than yours, since the popular chamber will be supreme over all the other branches of Government, and the people will be brought as closely as possible into touch with their representatives in both houses. If the experiment fails, it will, as the Chief Justice of New Zealand said in a recent number of The Forum, prove that democracy is a form of government unsuited to a people of pure British descent.

The inauguration of the Commonwealth will be celebrated twice over. The first set of festivities will centre upon the arrival of the Earl of Hopetoun, the Governor General, and the formal consummation of federation at the new year. The second set will arise out of the Duke of York's arrival and the opening of the first Parliament. Sydney will be the chief theatre of the former, Melbourne of the latter. Melbourne is to be the home of the Federal Legislature until the new federal capital, which must be within New South Wales, but not less than 100 miles from Sydney, has been chosen, whereas Sydney during the same period is to be the residence of the Governor General when the Parliament is not in session. These provisions are obviously the outcome of State jealousy. Their effect, however, is to distribute the inaugural ceremonies between the two chief cities and States of the Commonwealth.

A central committee with multitudinous sub-committees has been appointed in Sydney to organize the festivities. The estimated cost to the Government alone ranges from $100,000 to $500,000, and official and private preparations are being made on a lavish scale. A representative body of imperial troops and contingents from India, Canada, and other parts of the empire are to attend. There are to be processions, reviews, banquets, and sundry other entertainments. It is expected that 10,000 troops will parade in the Domain, the chief public park of Sydney, and that 9,000 local troops will line the route of the procession.

Unfortunately for the would-be celebrators, Lord Hopetoun has been ill in India, and his wife was attacked by fever at Colombo on the way out. His Lordship had to leave her behind for a fortnight, and he cabled last week that he preferred that his official landing should take place on his arrival, Dec. 12, and not be delayed, as was desired, until Jan. 1. The swearing-in of the Governor General must take place on Jan. 1, so the Sydney folk have decided to proceed with their great pageant on that day, whatever may be done on Dec. 12.

Sydney threatens to have its accommodation taxed to the uttermost by the influx of visitors, and already the proposal has been made to erect a canvas town to shelter the guests. The colonial troops are now beginning to return from South Africa, and they will form a prominent feature of the show. The inauguration of the new federation is thus to be made a further occasion for the display of imperial sentiment with a jingoistic accompaniment. Smaller subsidiary celebrations will be held at the same time in other colonies.

PLANS FOR ROYALTY'S VISIT.

The arrangements for the Duke and Duchess of York's visit are still in the stage of preliminary discussion, as no dates are definitely fixed, and their Royal Highnesses' itinerary has not been drawn up. Every town and colony apparently desires to entertain the royal visitors, and in these democratic lands there is every sign of a delirious outburst of loyalty or snobbishness, which you will. Women are ordering frocks of the color and material said to be favored by the Duchess, the local plutocracy is scrambling for Mayoralties and other offices, which may bring their holders under the royalage, and there is much talk of knighthoods and other "honors" at the disposal of crowned heads. The colonial Briton still loves a lord and well-nigh worships a future monarch, and had Thackeray been here he might have added a whole volume to his "Book of Snobs." The imperial authorities have cleverly turned the birth of the Australian Commonwealth into a monster demonstration of imperialism, with soldiers and scions of the reigning family to mark the dependence upon the British Crown. This is intended as an antidote to the semi-republican independence of a large mass of Australians.

An effort is being made to raise at the coming Federal elections the great fiscal issue, free trade versus protection, or, rather, in the form it assumes in Australia, a purely revenue tariff versus a scientific protective tariff. The manufacturers and protectionists on the one hand have met together and drawn up a tariff of their own, which they threaten to submit to candidates, although they have not as yet taken the public into their confidence. The Right Hon. George H. Reid, on the other hand, who captured New South Wales in 1895 on a free-trade ticket, but is now out of office, owing mainly to his "yes-no" policy toward federation, has taken up the free-trade cause and has been stumping the colonies against protection. He has made forcible speeches and evidently hopes to enter the Federal Parliament at the head of a great free-trade party. Mr. Reid is probably the ablest tactician and the best platform speaker in Australia, and he is an accurate reader of the popular barometer.

The tariff must be among the first questions to be faced by the Federal Parliament. Within two years the existing provincial tariffs, except in West Australia, which, owing to special circumstances is to receive a special extension of time, are to be established, and one uniform tariff is to be imposed upon the other five federating colonies at, New South Wales, Victoria, Queensland, South Australia, and Tasmania. By a provision inserted in the Constitution to protect those States, which rely for their revenue almost entirely upon customs, the Federal Government can, during the first ten years of the Commonwealth, retain for its own purposes only one-quarter of the revenue raised by indirect taxation. This means that a very large sum will have to be derived from customs and excise duties. The tariff must, therefore, of necessity be a revenue-producing one. This is granted by both sides and the only question at issue will be whether certain industries are to be protected by duties which will not be revenue-producing, but prohibitive.

Mr. Reid argues that federation is itself an acknowledgment of the virtues of free trade. The chief reason for it was the abolition of the fiscal barriers between the colonies, and, to be logical, the Australians should extend that principle to the outside world as far as the exigencies of the revenue will permit. He quotes American "trusts" and "combines" as the results of a protective policy, and warns the Australian workers against the danger of fostering similar massing of capital in their midst. The protectionists also appeal to the history of the United States, and claim that your industrial greatness is the offspring of judicious protection in the early stages of development. Owing to the inchoate and transitional condition of public opinion in Australia, it is impossible to foretell with any certitude the lines upon which the tariff will be drawn up, but there can be no doubt that the free trade element will be strong in the Parliament.

MERCHANT NAVY AMBITION.

There is one question with regard to this subject that will not improbably be decided upon protectionist principles, and that is the regulation of the coast shipping trade. Australia is anxious to establish a mercantile marine, and hopes ere long to have a large say in the carrying trade of the Pacific. She feels that the first step toward the formation of a merchant navy is the control of her own coast trade. Wages rule very high out here, and local ship owners cannot compete on equal terms with the mail lines unless they are protected. New Zealand has already legislated in this direction, and Australia is not unlikely to follow her example.

Some Federalists—notably Mr. Edmund Barton, who has done more for Australian union than any other living statesman—strongly deprecate the introduction of party issues, such as protection vs. free trade, at this early stage, and urge that the people should send to the first Parliament men whose moral and intellectual worth and whose federal services are their principal qualifications. They contend that the Constitution may be exposed to the assaults of anti-Federalists and that all those who united to secure the federal Commonwealth should reunite, irrespective of fiscal faith, to protect the Constitution they have secured. The spirit of party is, however, strong in all English-speaking countries, and even if party organization does not take place before the elections, it is almost certain to be brought about when the Commonwealth Parliament meets.

There is one result of Australian Federation that will have much more than a local significance, and that is the probable interference, commercial and even political, with the affairs of the Pacific. Although the Pacific islands do not as yet play a large part in international diplomacy, there are several conflicting interests concerned in their future. France, Germany, and the United States have possessions among them, and even before federation the Australian colonies were inclined to promulgate a sort of "Monroe doctrine" of their own with respect to them. They resented the disposal of Samoa, they have been protesting against French "intrigues" in the New Hebrides. This feeling will become accentuated when the new Commonwealth begins to feel its feet. At present a somewhat peculiar development hampers Australian action.

New Zealand, as you are, no doubt, aware, has held studiously aloof from Australian Federation since 1891, although she is one of the colonies mentioned in the Constitution act. Her insular position, with 1,200 miles of sea separating her from the nearest Australian port, has tended to foster a sense of self-importance that forbids her people to look favorably upon any loss of provincial independence. The Premier, Mr. Seddon, who has governed the colony continuously for several years, is a man of extreme self-importance, and very arbitrary character. It would not suit his interests or inclinations to play second to any Australian statesman, so he has carefully kept federation out of the sphere of practical politics. Apparently the final union of Australia came before he expected it, and he feared that New Zealand might be dwarfed by the shadow of her federal neighbor. Accordingly he out-jingoed all other colonial leaders in his devotion to the empire, and then believing that he had gained the ear of the imperial authorities he tried to start a rival federation of his own. New Zealand, according to his programme, was to become the centre of a great Pacific Confederacy. He obtained from a subservient and imperialistic Parliament resolutions in support of his scheme. But New South Wales and other Australian colonies protested against the attempt to "jump their claim." The imperial authorities have ordered a halt; but the idea is fermenting both in New Zealand and in Australia. Whatever be the final conclusion of the present dispute, both are fired with a desire for empire, and both intend to be powers either conjointly or separately in these seas. Whether or not this will introduce a new disturbing factor into international politics remains to be seen.

L. P. HOLLANDER & CO.,

290 Fifth Avenue.

ANNUAL CLEARANCE SALE

Commencing Monday, January 7th.

A WEEK OF GREAT BARGAINS.

In Suit & Cloak Dept
FIRST FLOOR.

Fine Winter Coats, Lined Silk, formerly $25 to $32, now 15.00

EVENING CAPES Light shades of broadcloth, lined quilted silk, formerly $50 to $55, now 25.00

Cheviot Suits, entirely over silk, formerly $35 to $45, now 15.00 and 19.00

Cheviot and Broadcloth Suits, entirely over silk, formerly $45 to $65, now 30.00

Rainy-Day Skirts, reversible materials, formerly $16, now 5.00

Rainy-Day Suits, formerly $25 and $35, now 19.00

A Number of Silk Waists, formerly $10 to $13.50, now 7.50

About 50 Silk Waists, new this season, black and colors, formerly $15 to $20, now 10.00

Flannel Waists, formerly $7.50 to $12, now 3.75 to 7.00

Most Attractive BARGAINS —IN— Dressmaking Dept.
SECOND FLOOR.

Elegant Imported PARIS MODELS Formerly $125 to $250, now $35, $50, $60 and $75

Fancy Winter Coats, Formerly $65 to $150, now $10 to $50

Hand-Made Linen Lawn Waists, imported and also of our own make, formerly $30, now . 10.00

All our new Evening Gowns marked Way Down for this sale only.

A few others slightly soiled or crushed at prices absolutely to close.

Millinery Dept.
HATS from $25 to $50 Now $10 and $15
Head Dresses, $2.50 to $5, Now $1.50

GLOVES Reduced from $1.90 to $1.00

French Underwear.
Night Dresses.
Chemises and Drawers— Formerly $5.75 to $26.00, Now $4.50 to $18.50

Silk Petticoats, In Colors, formerly $10 to $50, now $6.50 to $30

Ladies' Stocks, Formerly $1 to $4, now 25c, 35c and 50c

Fancy Lace Stocks, Formerly $2 to $7, now marked . . 50c to $1.00

IN FOREIGN LANDS.

FOR THE PERMANENT PEACE TRIBUNAL AT THE HAGUE.—Following the appointment by the German Government of Dr. Bingner, President of the Supreme Court; Councilor of Legation Herr von Frantzius, of the Foreign Office; Dr. von Martitz, Professor of Jurisprudence at the University of Berlin, and Dr. von Bar, Professor of Jurisprudence at the University of Göttingen, as members of the permanent Bureau of International Arbitration at The Hague, the Italian Government has sent in its list. The latter includes the names as diplomatic delegates of Count Nigra and Count Tornielli; as judicial delegates, Senator Pagano Guarnaschelli and Signor Zanardelli. Senator Guarnaschelli is First President of the Rome Supreme Court of Appeal, while Signor Zanardelli has repeatedly been Minister of Justice and Keeper of the Seals; he is also well known as the compiler of the Italian Penal Code.

As had been expected in monarchical circles in Rome, the Catholic Curia has not been slow to resent the fact that the Quirinal has completely ignored the Vatican and the supposed prerogative of the Pope by the appointments. A recent number of La Civilta Cattolica, which, with the Osservatore Romano, is frequently the inspired organ of the Curia, contained the following: "One thing we cannot neglect—namely, the investigation of what might and ought to be the relation of the Papacy toward that tribunal. The Papacy is the supremacy of truth in the world—speculative truth regarding the origin and end of things, and practical, or moral, regarding all human actions. This supremacy embraces de jure all peoples and all States; de facto it already comprises the whole civilized world, while the apostles and messengers of Christ daily extend its great sway to the uttermost parts of the earth.

"Moreover, this supremacy [magistero] is infallible; and, through its direct objects are religious truths, natural truths are therein comprehended by virtue of the infinite contact between truths natural and religious. Moral truths, therefore, and the morality of all human actions without exception are subject to that supremacy. The legitimacy and authenticity of this institution [Papacy or Curia?] needs here no proof; an institution founded by the Son of God and, therefore legitimate and authentic, even as the right of God Himself is authentic and legitimate."

As this is even a more formidable expression than that which was supposed to emanate from the Pope on the eve of The Hague Conference of two years ago, it has excited considerable comment in Rome, where, however, the non-clerical press put the query that, since the Papacy or the Curia is supposed to embrace the International Tribunal, "why, then, should the Vatican continue to weep tears over its exclusion from a miserable mundane institution?"

***

NO CHANGE OF GOVERNMENT LIKELY IN CRETE FOR THE PRESENT.—Since the return of Prince George to Crete it has been semi-officially announced in the island that there is no immediate chance of the powers interested agreeing to an extension of the jurisdiction of the Government of the island, which is at present nominally a tributary State of the Porte, ruled by the powers through Prince George of Greece as High Commissioner.

It is further intimated that Great Britain, from which Prince George had hoped to receive encouragement that should shortly lead to the establishment of an autonomous principality, has no encouragement whatever to offer. Apropos of the Cretan intelligence on the subject, it is authoritatively stated in Berlin that there is a decided disinclination among the great powers generally to lend an ear to any suggestion for a change in the relations of Crete toward Turkey, notwithstanding that disturbing complications may arise from the status quo. The moment is considered inopportune for reopening the question, and no action that may eventually be taken by the Cretan National Assembly is deemed likely to induce the powers to depart from their resolve to maintain the status quo. Prince George is represented as being much discouraged over the prospect, as he does not see how Crete can be further developed with conflicts of law and administration constantly arising between his Government and Turkey.

***

THE FATE OF THE YANG-TSUN-SHAN-HAI-KWAN RAILWAY.—Owing to the attack that has been made by the London papers and even by some in Berlin over the occupation of the Yang-tsun-Shan-hai-Kwan Railway by Russia, the Official Messenger of St. Petersburg, in an undoubtedly inspired article analyzes the question and takes up separately the statements made in London and elsewhere that the line is British property; that the Russian possession is illegal, and that the question of surrendering the line to the British is not one which falls within the province of Count von Waldersee.

In the first place, the Russian organ points out, as the road was abandoned by its British guards, only financially speaking England has more ultimate rights than the other powers over the line, while, with the reoccupation of the territory by the allied forces, it fell upon Russia as a military necessity to restore, guard, and work the line, for by the agreement of the allied commanders this work fell within the jurisdiction of the Russian troops.

"Moreover," continues the Official Messenger, "the Russian troops restored communication between Tien-Tsin and Yang-tsun during the most difficult period of military operations, and it was only through the energetic handling of the Russian troops that the line betwen Tang-Ku and Shan-hai-Kwan was saved from total destruction. In five months nearly 100 versts of the line were newly constructed by us, and the repair of the destroyed portions will be completed shortly. Russia having for this purpose spent the not inconsiderable sum of 450,000 rubles."

The article concludes as follows: "The opinion of the English journals that the question of handling the line does not now fall within Count von Waldersee's province is completely incorrect. This line, which Count von Waldersee handed over to us, will once more be placed at his disposal and not handed over to the British, and it will then depend upon him to whom, in place of the Russians, he makes over the railway."

It is denied in London that Russia has repaired the line or laid out any money on it; it is, nevertheless, recognized in financial circles there that if ever the line reverts to British control its surrender will be accompanied with an exorbitant bill of charges, which will make it practically useless to its original owners.

***

THE MALARIA EXPEDITION TO NIGERIA.—Dr. H. E. Annett's expedition to British West Africa to study the malarial conditions there has now sent in its detailed report, a general summary of which was transmitted by cable several weeks ago. The conclusion that malaria was transmitted by mosquitoes was then generally commented on in scientific circles here and abroad. The detailed report contains the result of observations calculated to suggest a prevention of the spread of the fever, which the summarized statement did not impart.

The members of the expedition consider that many of the methods which have been suggested are absolutely impracticable in West Africa—such as the universal dosing of infected persons with quinine for a period, the use of mosquito-proof houses and of mosquito curtains, and the planting of trees of various kinds; although they are of the opinion that such measures among an intelligent and obedient community may be of some efficiency.

The two methods upon which alone any reliance can be placed as measures for prevention are, according to the report, (1) segregation of Europeans from natives of all sorts, at a distance of about half a mile, and (2) complete and efficient surface drainage of the whole district in the immediate neighborhood of European quarters. The adoption of these methods in many of the places visited by the expedition would be, even now, easy, it is said, in others, especially in the larger towns, it would involve considerable difficulty; but in the stations likely to be made in Nigeria in the near future their adoption would lead to the formation of malaria-free habitations.

The expedition found that the examination of the blood of hundreds of native children revealed the fact that between 50 and 80 per cent of those under five years, between 20 and 40 per cent of those between five and ten years, and a small percentage over ten years contained malarial parasites, often in very large numbers, which were conveyed to the whites by the mosquito bite.

***

THE TRIPLE ALLIANCE AND HUNGARY.—For some time the press of Paris has been furnishing statements from its correspondents in Vienna tending toward the establishment of the idea that the Triple Alliance was not looked upon with encouraging eyes by the Hungarian Government, and that at some future date this attitude would form the subject of serious representations to the Government of the dual monarchy.

These statements were recently refuted by the Hungarian Premier, M. Szell, in a speech in the Hungarian Chamber of Deputies. In replying to the accusation of the French press that Austria-Hungary allowed herself to be exploited by Germany, M. Szell positively declared that the Hungarian Government, the bulk of the population, and the overwhelming Parliamentary majority did not share that opinion, but believed that the Triple Alliance was advantageous for Hungary as for the dual monarchy.

He said that it was not only since the conclusions of the Dreibund that Hungary had cultivated friendly and intimate relations with Germany. Ever since 1867 Hungary had regarded such relations as a fundamental principle of her policy. That peace alliance par excellence was eminently calculated to safeguard the interests of the monarchy, more so, indeed, than any other arrangement. It was entirely incorrect, he said, that the Dreibund served exclusively the interests of Germany, and that it was only, so to say, by favor that the participation of Austria-Hungary was tolerated.

Finally it was the opinion of M. Szell that if they departed from their present policy, the importance both of Hungary and Austria would diminish in Europe. For, while he recognized that the economic situation left much to be desired, Germany was accustomed to separate her commercial policy from her general policy, not only in dealing with Austria-Hungary, but also with other States. Hungary should do the same.

New Century's First French Ball.

The French ball will be held in the Madison Square Garden on next Tuesday night, and the managers say that all of the thirty-six similar affairs that have preceded it will be remembered as small compared to this one. With its first carnival in the new century the Cercle Français de l'Harmonie intends to outdo itself. The Garden will be made to represent the Champs Elysée in Paris on a fête night. Music will be provided by Fanciulli's Seventy-first Regiment Band.

OLD YALE BUILDINGS TO GO.

Two of the Three Remaining Structures of the "Old Brick Row" to Be Torn Down Next Summer.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Jan. 5.—The announcement is made by the Yale authorities that two of the remaining three buildings of the Old Brick Row on the college campus will be pulled down next Summer, as will the Treasury Building. The buildings doomed to go are old North College and Lyceum. South Middle, the original building in the row and the oldest Yale structure standing, will be allowed to remain in the southeast corner of the campus, and there is such a general feeling of veneration for the historic dormitory that it will doubtless have a number of more years of grace before it is finally demolished.

With Old North and Lyceum gone, however, there will be little left to tell of the fine old brick row that was for so many generations the college settlement of Yale men. The buildings—Old South, Athenæum, South Middle, Lyceum, North Middle, Old Chapel, and North—were erected at various times from 1750 to 1823. When the college removed from Saybrook to this city, in 1717, a high and commodious struoture was erected at the southeast corner of what is now the college campus, and close to Chapel and College Streets. This building was called Yale College two years following, in honor of Gov. Elihu Yale, in 1750 Connecticut Hall, now South Middle, was erected, and in later years a fourth story was added to it in place of the old French roof. In 1761 Athenaeum was built. In 1793 Union Hall, later named South College, was added south of Connecticut Hall, and the other buildings were erected in the following order: Berkeley Hall, afterward North Middle, in 1800; Lyceum, 1800; North, 1820, and New Chapel, afterward called Old Chapel, 1823.

The removal of the three old buildings is part of the general plan of the Yale officials to make of the campus a modern college quadrangle. Landscape gardeners have already planned to make of the grounds an artistic campus, and new walks and elm trees will be laid out and set out. In the centre of the quad will be statues of famous Yale men.

REMEDY AGAINST MOSQUITOES.

Consul at Maracaibo Says Castor Oil Plant and Seeds Will Keep Them Away from Grounds and Rooms.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—E. H. Plumacher, United States Consul at Maracaibo, has sent the following report to the State Department:

"A simple remedy against mosquitoes has been employed in several places in South America and is equally well adapted to the temperate zone. It consists in planting the castor-oil plant, (Ricinus communis,) or 'pama christi,' around the house and premises.

"In cold and temeprate climates the castor oil

TIMELY TOPICS IN CHICAGO

New Year Noisily Greeted in Spite of the Mayor's Request.

THEATRES DRAW BIG HOUSES.

Organizers of Illinois Democracy Decide Never to Support Mr. Bryan Again.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 5.—The new century was hailed in this city with a noisy welcome. The Mayor had ordered that all saloons be closed at midnight Monday, but little attention was paid to his mandate, either by the saloon keepers, their customers, or the police. Some of the places closed their doors at 12 o'clock upon several hundred people, who kept up the carousal till morning. The remainder kept open house all night, as usual. Nor did the Mayor's request for a quiet end to the old century meet with any better respect. A number of physicians who had nervous patients requested that there be as little noise as possible Monday night. But the usual fanfare went on in spite of this.

There were many watch meetings in the churches and public halls, chief among which was a very large one in the Coliseum under the auspices of the Red Cross Society. It was, of course, undenominational, and all sects were represented on the platform. Messages of good-will were received from many prominent people abroad and at home, and there was music by choirs and orchestras.

The theatres continue to play to unusually good business, and even during the holiday week they were all crowded. Mr. Sothern is giving "Hamlet" at Powers's to fashionable audiences, and he seems to have recovered his health entirely. The breakdown in St. Louis was occasioned by the giving out of his throat from overwork during Christmas week. The New Year's matinee here was very wisely omitted. "Lost River" is packing McVicker's; the Leger Brothers are doing the same for the Illiecis, and the opera is fairly well attended. The audiences would be large for any other place than the Auditorium. Many of the traveling actors and singers are suffering from influenza, as is shown by their work upon the stage. Some are too ill to appear. Much interest is taken in the coming engagements of Mr. Mansfield and the Bernhardt-Coquelin company.

The reckless sacrifice of human life by the steam and railway lines is still one of the blots upon the city's name. During the month of December twenty-three persons were killed by the surface lines at grade crossings in Chicago. The average monthly list of fatalities from this cause is about twenty.

REFORM MOVEMENT FAILS.

The much talked-of Grand Jury investigation of the vice question in Chicago has practically "petered out." Indictments were returned against twenty-one persons, most of whom were owners or managers of saloons. One of these was a State Senator of the Legislature about to assemble at Springfield. Another was the manager of a saloon, who tried to retaliate by having arrested two theatre managers who allowed Sunday performances to take place in their houses. It was thought by a few sanguine persons that Mayor Harrison and Chief Kipley would be among those against whom true bills would be rendered, but they escaped with censure. With a city election coming on, it would have been awkward to have the Mayor and Chief of Police under indictment.

The Harrison Democrats having been beaten in the contest for control of what is left of the State machine, they have decided to revenge themselves upon the Hopkins faction by trying to expel five of the latter from the Executive Committee of the County Committee. These men are John P. Hopkins, Thomas Gahan, Roger Sullivan, William Loeffler, and Michael Byrne. The matter will come up for decision next Monday. It is now conceded that Hopkins has control of the State committee. While the Harrisonites relied on their prestige, Hopkins was quietly going about the State until last week, when he showed his hand with twenty-one of the thirty-one members of the State Committee on his side, and Harrison by no means sure of all of the minority. He carried his point about having the first meeting at Springfield instead of Chicago, and fixed the date two days ahead of the expected visit of Mr. Bryan, on whom the Harrison crowd relied as a referee in deciding who should head the committee. Therefore, when Mr. Bryan arrives here he will find the committee organized by the very men who so strongly opposed him and his theories in 1896, and who were at the best lukewarm supporters last Fall.

There is no doubt that this means that the best fighters and organizers of Illinois Democracy have burned their Bryan bridges behind them and will never again support him or anything for which he stands. It means that although Illinois may be found in the Republican column for many years to come, its Democracy, so far as the State organization is concerned, will not fight under the banner of free silver. Hopkins expects by this means to attract once more many of those Democrats who have been driven to voting for the Republican ticket in the last four or five years. If the present split in Illinois Democracy continues the Republicans are assured of control for many years to come.

The Legislature, which meets next week, is overwhelmingly Republican, and two-thirds of its members are said to be lawyers. The booms of Mr. Cullom, Mr. Tanner, Mr. Hitt, and the tentative candidacies of Dawes, A. J. Hopkins, and others are receiving attention in political circles here and in Springfield. It is generally admitted that Mr. Cullom has an excellent chance to succeed himself, although Mr. Hitt is likely to prove a formidable rival. Besides his popularity and the advantage of his record, however, Mr. Cullom has the support of the Administration, which often counts from five to seven in a ten-point game.

NEW NEWSPAPER BUILDINGS.

Two of the newspapers of this city are to have new homes which promise to be models of what houses for newspapers should be. The Tribune will build on its present site, without disturbing its work meanwhile, a fine building solely devoted to the uses of journalism. Additional ground has been secured to the south which will insure a building far larger than the present one. The published design shows that the building will be an architectural credit to the city. The Inter Ocean is building a fine structure on the site of the late Columbia Theatre on Monroe Street.

The plan to improve the Chicago River to a uniform width of 200 feet at a cost of $12,000,000, has been rejected by the citizens' committee, which has been considering it. Instead of this, the committee proposes to substitute bascule bridges of the old-fashioned centre pier turning affairs now in use, and to lower the tunnels. The bridges, the committee believes, can be built a few at a time without increases in the tax rate.

Members of the Municipal Street Railway Commission have begun to draft a bill that they expect will give Chicago a subway system that will lead the world. It is the intention of the Aldermen to ask the Legislature to make it optional through the medium of a referendum, whether the city itself should undertake the task or give the right to some corporation, as was the case in New York. The bill will not pretend to offer a solution to the overcrowded condition of transit in the business part of the city. That will be left to a corps of competent engineers in the service of the city. This action will be taken no matter which of the two courses should be eventually decided upon in order that the rights of the city should be properly guarded. From the north and west sides it is proposed to enter the south side by means of new tunnels under the river, the old subways to be abandoned. There would be four such tunnels. That the traction roads would be glad to avail themselves of an underground ordinance has been shown by the offer of the Chicago Union Traction Company to furnish half the money for the enterprise, in return for valuable concessions from the city. It was the favor with which the underground proposition was received by the street railway companies that prompted the commission to go into the Council and ask for an extension of its powers.

R. B. P.

Their Golden Wedding Celebrated.

HEMPSTEAD, L. I., Jan. 5.—Mr. and Mrs. William M. Akley celebrated their golden wedding at their home on Front Street last evening. Mrs. Akley before her marriage was Miss Julia Ann Carman. She was married to Mr. Akley in New York, where her family resided. Mr. Akley was for years identified with the local Fire Department and was its Chief for seven years. The couple have had nine children, three of whom are now living.

SIMPSON, CRAWFORD & SIMPSON.

JANUARY SALES OVERLEAP ALL RECORDS

The Path of the Builders MUST Be Cleared.

We wield a mighty selling weapon in these combined Sales. The January feature is a host of itself. The Re-building feature doubles that force. The two together put all departments on their mettle—to outclass and hopelessly distance any known Special Sales in qualities, quantities, varieties and extremity of price lowness.

Clearing Millinery.

One Hundred Trimmed Hats and Toques, that were undeviatingly 12.00 to 19.00, to close..... 7.50

Eighteen Hundred Black Fur Felt Untrimmed Hats, comprising Dress Shapes and Turbans, all through December were 95c. to $1.35—January price. 25c

Two Hundred and Fifty Draped Velvet Hats, in fine Miroir Velvets—universal value 2.50—now..... 1.75

VELVET DEPT.

Imported Figured Panne Velvets, on light grounds, clearest 2.00 values—reduced to..... 98

Lyons all Silk Black Reflet Velvet, particularly adapted for dressmaking—unqualified 3.45 value..... 2.50

Clearing Waists.

Every line that falls short of absolute completeness, whether in size, color or style; whether in Silk or Flannel, now carried to Special Sale Counters, and sold at prices without parallel.

SILK MODELS.

France's finest and smartest, no two alike nothing choicer,

25.00 and 50.00.

AMERICAN WAISTS.

Best of silks, most charming effects and trimmings,

3.48, 5.95, 12.50.

FLANNEL WAISTS.

Emphatic bargains in staple styles and high novelties—value utterly ignored—

1.75, 2.48, 3.48.

More New Coats, Capes and Suits.

No ordinary preparations could have coped with last week's selling—we met all demands. Now come new hundreds of splendid new garments, placing us in a position to withstand the greater call that is bound to set in to-morrow.

JACKETS.

$10.50 Oxford Cloth Jackets, semi-fitting back, satin lined; also in black Kersey; taffeta silk lined . . . 7.25

$15.00 Kersey Jackets, satin or silk lined; Cheviot Jacket, double breasted, taffeta lined, faced with peau de soie 10.00

$16.50 Oxford and Black Montagnac Cloth Jacket, plain, satin and fancy silk linings 11.75

$18.00 Oxford Cloth Jacket, silk lined, peau de soie facing, 21 inch style; also in extra three-quarter length coat, satin lined, or in black Kersey . 14.75

$25.00 Raglan three-quarter Coats, fine Oxford, best style and tailoring . . . 19.75

NOTE—We have made a great reduction in all our High Class Coats in black and colors, plain and trimmed—only one or two of a kind.

CAPES.

$8.75 Golf Capes, all wool plaid backs, new colorings, with hood . . . 6.75

$13.75 Steamer Cape, extra length, strapped, nicely tailored, black, Oxford, and blue . . . 10.00

$19.75 Velour Blouse, excellent material, satin lined, plain or with Persian lamb edging . . . 15.00

$25.00 Evening Wraps, fur trimmed, three-quarter length, nicely lined, limited quantity . . . 15.00

$25.00 Velour Blouse, good velour, lined with satin; also Liserine Coat, semi-fitting back, satin lined . 19.75

$37.50 Liserine and Velour Coats, collar and revers of Alaska Sable or Persian lamb, satin lined . . 29.75

High-Class Long Garments Reduced One-third.

Skirts and Furs.

250 more $7.50 fine Tailored Skirts, for Walking, Skating or Stormy weather, Oxford, brown and blue, cannot be duplicated after this lot is sold..... 4.75

$18.00 Pebble Cheviot Suit, black only, tight fitting or loose front, coat silk lined, skirt on mercerized lining..... 12.00

$25.00 to $35.00 Tailored Suits, cheviots or smooth finish materials, of some styles only two or three—also a few more Bodice Suits—at..... 19.50

Tremendous Cut in Prices of Our High Class Fur Coats.

Persian Coats, Leipsic dye, Chinchilla Collar and Revers, $175.00 value.... 97.50

Electric Coats, XXXX quality, plain or with Alaska Sable or Baum Marten trimming, only a few to close, at..... 47.50

Remarkable Purchase and Sale of Women's Real Swiss Ribbed Vests.

The term "Swiss" is often grievously misused. These Vests were made in Switzerland, not America—interpret the values accordingly!

Swiss Ribbed White Merino Vests, low neck (sleeveless or short sleeves), high neck, with short sleeves—regular 88c. vests—special..... 59c

Swiss Ribbed White Silk and Wool Vests, low neck (sleeveless or short sleeves), high neck and short sleeves—regular 1.50 vests—special..... 95c

Swiss Ribbed Spun Silk Vests, white and colored, same neck and sleeve styles as above—regular 1.50 vests—special..... 95c

Swiss Ribbed pure Silk Vests, white and colors, hand crocheted round shoulders and bust, pink, sky, Nile, lavender, helio and black—regular 2.00 vests—special 1.25

"Morley" Silk Underwear.

Somewhat size broken, but offering to women, all the same, advantages and inducements of price that amply compensate for any such trivial deficiencies.

Vests and pants—gauze to 12 thread—worth 4.75 to 9.50, now . . 2.25 to 4.25

Decided Glove Bargains.

Women's 2-clasp full pique Dogskin Gloves, medium weight, black and self embroidered backs. Assorted shades of tans and reds; also in black and white . 85c

Sales of French and Domestic MUSLIN UNDERWEAR of Extraordinary Interest, Scope and Importance.

Urged by press of increasing business, this Department is removed to our Main Floor, and occupies the full length (both sides) of an entire aisle.

At no time in our history have we carried, displayed and offered such enormous lines of high grade garments or quoted such prices as follow below. Poorly sewn and shaped underwear (cheap in finish, look and trimmings) has no place here. Perfection in every detail from finest fabrics to tiniest stitch stamps these stocks. Amplest sizes, daintiest trimmings are characteristic features. New, fresh, immaculate goods will alone be found at incomparably lowest prices.

In French Underwear.

French Hand Made Model Garments—Grey, lace and scallop effects, French hand made boned between tucks; finest novelty embroid French Gowns, hand embroidered and herring-bone; Chemise, of fine linen, real Valenciennes trimming. French hand-made Drawers, in novelty tucks, ribbon and lace insertion. Choice..... 5.75

French Hand Made Chemise—Lace yoke, lace on skirt; also Corset Cover effect; medallions of lace, or Handkerchief effects in lace..... 3.98

French Drawers—Regular and extra sizes, very elaborate trimmings of laces, embroidery, beading, and hemstitching..... 2.98

A 1.49 Group—French hand made Chemise, narrow shirrings of fine Valenciennes; Chemise de Bal, with ribbon shoulders. French Hand Made Corset Covers, bolero style, hand embroidered scallop embroidery and Val. edge. French Hand Made Drawers, Val. edge ruffle, also fine embroidery scallop.

A 98c LOT—French Hand Embroidered Chemise, vines and scallop edge. French Hand Embroidered Drawers, scalloped ruffle.

In Silk Underwear.

Silk Night Gowns, 7.50 Silk Chemise, 3.98 Silk Drawers, 1.98

IN DOMESTIC UNDERWEAR.

GREAT 98c. SALE, beyond doubt surpassing in values any yet placed on this market.

GOWNS — In nainsook and cambric, empire yoke in rows of lace, tucks and hemstitching, yoke with 4 rows of insertion—hemstitched ruffles—square neck and ribbon beading. Fifteen other styles.

CHEMISE — Ribbon holding band, lace edge; entire tucked front of nainsook; open pattern of embroidery to admit ribbon; lace trimming on skirt—chuny lace on circular yoke.

CORSET COVERS — 4 rows of fine torchon, bayadere—insertion back and front—entire top of lace for ball wear—entire back and front tucked.

SKIRTS — Cambric, with tucked lawn ruffle—very deep hemstitched tucked flounce—rows of hemstitching.

DRAWERS — Embroidered scallop edge, tucks clustered in squares—Val. and torchon lace insertion and edge—very full umbrella, lace flounce—extra and regular sizes.

DRAWERS — Hemstitched hem and tucks, deep hem; good muslin—also Corset Covers..... 19c

Choice of above, 98c.

CORSET COVERS — Lace and embroidery trimmed, square and round yokes, embroidery trimming..... 25c

EMPIRE GOWNS — Tucked and embroidered yokes..... 39c

WHITE PETTICOATS — Newest shapes, fitted tops, flounces of lace, lace and embroidered ruffles..... 1.49 and 2.25

January Hamburg Embroidery Sale.

GENERALLY—the importations already to hand show a marked departure from and improvement on past designs. Artists have taken more license; as a consequence previously unattained results are shown in leaf, flower and novelty figures.

SPECIALLY—to keep the department first and foremost in the public eye, we make such price concessions as cannot follow later—high-class embroideries from full stocks.

Edges and Insertions a third below the prevailing retail market . . . . . 5c, 8c, 12½c, 15c and 20c

Allovers, lace and tucked and embroidered, for early waists, yokes and guimpes . . . . . 85c, 1.10 and 1.35

Advance novelties in Bandings, Flouncings and Allovers.

Special Wash Dress Sale.

Girls' Percale Dresses in guimpe styles, with round or square collar of pique, finished with ruffle or bands of material, full skirt, 4 to 14 years . . . 95c

Girls' Russian Blouse Dresses of corded madras, with collar, cuffs and belt of white pique, 4 to 12 years . . 3.25

Girls' fine Zephyr Gingham Dresses, with yoke of pique, rows of beading around yoke, finished with ruffle, 4 to 14 years 1.95

Girls' Chambray Sailor Suits, all colors, with sailor collar, embroidered shield, 4 to 10 years . . . 2.50

Shirt Sales Are Immense.

An accurate tally of what has been sold in Unlaundered Shirts since December 31st shows surprising figures. Once a year we break prices upon our famous brands. They positively cannot be bought again during that year for less than full regular rates.

"Columbia" Unlaundered Shirts—6 for 2.50—each . . . 44c

"Yale" Unlaundered Shirts—6 for 3.75—each . . . 64c

"Harvard" Unlaundered Shirts—6 for 4.35—each . . . 75c

"Premier" Unlaundered Shirts—6 for 5.00—each . . . 85c

"Dartmouth" Unlaundered Shirts—6 for 4.10—each . . . 70c

"Cornell" Unlaundered Shirts—6 for 5.25—each . . . 90c

Mail orders for Shirts must give collar size and name of brand desired.

NIGHT SHIRTS.

In fancy cotton, extra muslin, fancy trimmed fronts, pockets and cuffs, sizes 12 to 18 . . . 39c

In heavy twill muslin, extra full and long, full felled seams, collars and pockets, sizes 14 to 18 . . . 42c

COLLARS—16 new styles in 4-ply Pure Irish Linen, standing and turn down—6 for . . . 48c

CUFFS—9 styles (link or button) in 4-ply Pure Irish Linen—6 prs. for . . . 95c

More Half Price Fancy Shirts.

Boys' and Men's Fancy Percale Shirts, open front and back, separate cuffs, made to sell for $1.00..... 50c

Men's Fine American Madras and Percale Shirts, over 50 styles, made to retail at $1.25, $1.50 and $1.75, now six for $3.75—singly..... 65c

Men's Fancy Percale Shirts, negligee bosoms, separate cuffs, would be splendid value at 35c..... 50c

Finest American and Imported Scotch Madras, made by Anderson, to retail at $1.50 and $2.00, now six for $5.25—singly..... 90c

Rare Dress Goods Items.

52-inch all-wool Camel Hair Homespuns, brown, blue, light, medium and dark Oxford 55c

50 to 54-inch black and colored Broadcloths, the regulation $1.50 to $2.00 fabrics; special 95c

Our last lot of 75c Zibeline Plaids in 7 tasteful combinations, all wool, shaggy face 50c

THE JANUARY SALE OF HOUSE LINENS is the Climax of Value.

No hotel, boarding house or housekeeper (no matter how well supplied) should ignore its opportunities. Huge piles of Table Cloths, Napkins, Towels, Sheets and Pillow Cases are here—bought far back before wholesale rates began to soar. Not a line, not a piece can we duplicate at those prices to-day, and our present figures can only hold good until these assortments are sold.

Table Napkins of Pure Bleached Damask at These Remarkable Prices.

19 inches square, 89c dozen. 20 inches square, 1.35 dozen.
22 inches square, 1.45 dozen. 24 inches square, 1.89 dozen.

Matched Table Cloths and Napkins, Exceptionally Choice Designs, Satin Finished Bleached Linen Damask.

Cloths, 2 yards long, 1.45 Napkins, 20 inches sq., dozen, 1.65
Cloths, 2½ yards long, 1.75 Napkins, 20 inches sq., dozen, 1.95
Cloths, 3 yards long, 2.15 Napkins, 24 inches sq., dozen, 2.35

Sheets and Pillow Cases.

54 x 90 Sheets, 28c 90 x 90 Sheets, 46c 45 x 36 Cases, 10c
63 x 90 Sheets, 32c 90 x 99 Sheets, 52c 50 x 36 Cases, 11c
72 x 90 Sheets, 37c 90 x103 Sheets, 55c 54 x 36 Cases, 12c
81 x 90 Sheets, 41c

SPLENDID 25c. Towels.

Very large, strictly pure linen huck, handsomely hemstitched, or pure linen Damask, extra large—either is fully worth and sells for 39c.

All linen hemmed Huck Towels . . . . . 12½c and 15c

ANNUAL JANUARY SALE OF NOTIONS.

Of Utmost Concern to Dressmakers and Home Sewers.

Time and time again this announcement has appeared;—to introduce New York's greatest buying opportunity in our annual unmatched offering of best goods at tiniest prices. More room, more notions; a greater Sale than ever begins the New Century. No one will miss it who appreciates true economy.

DRESSMAKING SUPPLIES.

Double Satin Belting, fine quality, usually 95c. piece . . . 69c

Silk Moire Belting, usually 1.00 . . . 69c

Double Silk Serge Belting, usually 64c. piece . . . 48c

Sewing Silk, Richardson Silk Co's "Perfect" brand, ½ oz. spools, regular price 30c . . . 19c

Sewing Silk, S., C. & S. "Perfection" brand, 1 oz. spool; usual price 50c . . . 37c

Whalebone, pure shell, 36 inch, 8c. piece; dozen . . . 87c

Taffeta Binding, our regular 14c. superfine quality, 10c piece: dozen . 1.15

Silk Prussian Binding, our regular 19c. superior quality, 14c. piece; dozen . . . 1.55

S, C. & S. Basting Cotton, 500 yards, usually 50c. dozen . 39c

S., C. & S. Hercules Hooks and Eyes, with spring backs, usually 19c. gross; sale price . . . 12½c

Improved Hooks and Eyes, with spring backs, per gross . . . 5c

S., C. & S. Leader Dress Shields.

	No. 3.	No. 4.	No. 5.
Per dozen..	80c	1.00	1.20

S., C. & S. "Perfect" Dress Shields, perfect in shape, perfect in quality. The most practical and satisfactory shield on the market. Designed and patented by us; on sale exclusively in our Notion Department. A full reduction of one-third in prices during this sale.

Rubber lined, light weight and double covered.

	Size A.	Size B.	Size C.
Per pair...	18c	22c	25c
Per box...	1.00	1.25	1.40

(6 pairs in a box.)

S. H. & M. Shell Edge Binding Braid and S. H. & M. Brush Edge Braid, regular price 7c. per yard; sale price, 5 yards for . . . 15c

Wound bobbins of Machine Thread, package containing 48 bobbins. . . . 39c

Double Bone Casing, silk stitched, super quality piece . . . 5c

SMALLWARES.

Needle Cases, 25c. lines reduced to 10c and 48c. lines to . . . 25c

Silver Thimbles, usually 20c. . . . 12½c

Tayler's Mourning Pins, 2 boxes for . . . 10c

American Pins, best quality, 3 papers for . . . 10c

Nickelled Safety Pins, 5 papers, assorted sizes, for . . . 10c

Alcohol Lamps, 5c. and . . . 15c

Hose Supporters, super cotton, all sizes, per pair . . . 8c

Hose Supporters, with satin belts, usually 39c. . . . 25c

Hose Supporters for children, with shoulder straps . . . 15c

Darning Worsted, 10 cards for . . . 5c

Silk Corset Laces, 5 yards . . . 15c

Steel Scissors, usually 25c. to 38c., sale price . . . 19c

Corset Steels and Corset Protectors . 5c

Featherstitch Braid, 3 pieces of 6 yards, for . . . 10c

Darning Worsted, dozen cards for . 5c

Corset Steels and Protectors, for . 5c

BOOKS HAVE BUT A FEW DAYS TO CLEAR.

Prices Fall to Lowest Known Points.

Herewith begins the closing scene of our 1900-1901 Book Season. Not a shred nor vestige of regular prices remain; values are lost sight of in face of the immediate selling-urgency.

MISCELLANEOUS BOOKS.

Over 60,000 volumes (covering the field of Literature) still remain and must be sold at once. In some cases only one or two copies—in others 5, 10 or 20 of each work. This grand aggregation will be divided into 5 lots at prices that represent the Greatest Sacrifice in New and Desirable Books New York Has Known.

At 10c.

Handy Classics in dainty bindings, Story Books for boys and girls in cloth, and Children's Story Books; were 15c. to 25c. each.

At 20c.

Standard works in extra cloth bindings, broken Library Sets, Popular Books for boys and girls, &c., were 38c. to 50c.

At 35c.

Poets in very choice editions, Biographies, Histories and odds and ends in Books of every description; formerly selling up to 75c. and $1.00.

At 49c.

Extra editions of Famous Books, Art Publications, Handsome Gift Books, Standard Works in English half calf, &c.; were $1.00 to $1.50.

At 69c.

All remaining $1.25, $1.50 and $2.00 Copyright Books.

FINE LIBRARY SETS.

The collection is unusually rich and comprehensive. A few of the bargain gems:

At 69c.

Motley's Dutch Republics, 3 vols.; History of America and Civil War, 2 vols.; McCarthy's History of Our Own Times, 2 vols.; Prescott's Mexico, Peru, Ferdinand and Isabella, each in 2 vols., and other standard works in 2, 3 and 5 vol. sets per set, 69c.; were 95c. to $1.40.

At 95c.

Green's History, 2 vols.; Leather Stocking, 5 vols.; Sea Tales, 5 vols.; Josephus, 3 vols.; Plutarch, 3 vols.; Macaulay's England, 5 vols., and other standard sets; were $1.50 to $2.25—95c.

Waverley Novels, 12 vols., fine edition . . . 2.95

Thackeray, 10 vols., high class library edition . . . 3.85

Memoirs of the French Court, by Lady Jackson; 14 vols. . . . 9.75

Green's English People; 4 vols.; extra half calf . . . 3.50

Shakespeare, Gollanz edition; 10 vols., extra cloth . . . 3.90

Green's English People; 4 vols., very fine edition, cloth . . . 1.75

Balzac, Saintsbury unexpurgated edition; recognized as the best translation of the works of the world's greatest novelist; in 16 vols.

Half Leather . . . 9.75 } Other season's prices
English half Calf . . . 14.50 } $30.00 and $40.00.

Nineteenth Street. SIXTH AVENUE. Twentieth Street.

HARMSWORTH PRIZE WINNER.

Writer of Letter First Picked from Pile in The Daily Mail Office Received Twenty £5 Notes.

At noon yesterday Alfred Harmsworth entered the New York office of The London Daily Mail, in the American Tract Society Building, and picked up a single letter from the top of a pile that was three feet deep in the corner of the room and extended five or six feet out over the floor. This mass of communications had come in reply to Mr. Harmsworth's request for opinions regarding his experiment of publishing The New York World in tabloid form on New Year's Day and his offer to pick at random one of the replies and give the writer £100.

Mr. Harmsworth hurriedly tore open the letter which he had picked up. A look of surprise at once showed itself on his countenance, and he exclaimed:

"My, but this is strange—won by a man right here in this building—Herbert L. Baker, General Manager of the Unitype Company, 150 Nassau Street. I'm afraid the public won't think this was conducted on a fair basis."

There can be no complaint on this score, however, as before Mr. Harsmworth made the drawing a dozen newspaper men who were present turned the pile of letters upside down again and again, in compliance with Mr. Harmsworth's instructions for them to "have a good stir at it."

A messenger was sent for Mr. Baker, and in a few moments the lucky man was in The Daily Mail office. After greeting the winner, Mr. Harmsworth felt called upon to explain that he had been unable to get a hundred-pound note, but that he had secured instead twenty five-pound notes. This slight change, however, in the form in which the prize would be awarded did not cause Mr. Baker any noticeable discomfort, and he gracefully held out his right hand, while Mr. Harmsworth counted into it one by one the twenty pieces of crisp paper.

Mr. Baker's letter was as follows:

The World, in its tabloid form, does not seem to have much in it. I like its form very much, but then I don't care for scare heads, long-winded stories, &c.

A little inspection of the pile of letters by Mr. Harmsworth was perhaps the most entertaining feature of the ceremony. There was absolutely no limit to the variety, and every conceivable sort of an attempt at novelty had been made in the hope of attracting the London editor's eye as he approached the pile. One man—Frank Hyde—had sent his views of the tabloid World scratched on a large slab of slate, perhaps two feet long by a foot wide, and ended his inscription with: "My letter does not weigh quite 100 pounds, but I hope it will prove strong enough to 'lift' your £100."

Others sought to attract attention by sending their letters in immense envelopes. Still another ingenious correspondent, not satisfied alone with an envelope of huge proportions, made an additional bid for favor in the manner of addressing it. He did not write Mr. Harmsworth's name, but instead had pasted on the envelope the latter's portrait, clipped from some publication. Some had sought to prevail through the number of their communications, and one man must have used up a dollar's worth of postal cards, hoping that at least one of them would land at the lucky place in the pile. The red envelope fiend was also in evidence, and as the pile was overturned the flashes of red showed that he had done his work thoroughly, but in vain.

Born and Christened at Sea.

When the Red Star liner Kensington arrived yesterday she had one more saloon passenger than when she sailed for New York from Southampton. Adam Roberts Beringer was the passenger in question. Last Tuesday at noon his advent was announced by the physician of the Kensington, Dr. Williams. The young man was christened at sea, the Rev. Victor Day, one of the cabin passengers, officiating at the important ceremony. He was named Adam in honor of his father and Roberts in honor of Capt. Roberts, the Kensington's commander. His parents, who are natives of Belgium, come to the United States to visit the country.

MR. PHILBIN'S FIFTH REMOVAL.

All of the Assistant District Attorneys Who Opposed the General Sessions Judges Are Now Out.

Deputy Assistant District Attorney John Schwarzkopf yesterday resigned at the request of District Attorney Philbin. Mr. Schwarzkopf's resignation is the fifth Mr. Philbin has demanded from his deputies. Only two deputies have been appointed by him, and it is said that no more will be. The retirements already announced will save to the city $10,000 a year.

Mr. Schwarzkopf's salary was $2,000 a year. He was appointed by Col. Gardiner, and was assigned to the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court, with John F. McIntyre, Forbes J. Hennessy, and C. E. F. McCann. They had all important murder cases placed on the Supreme Court calendar, and took sides against the General Sessions Judges. Mr. Schwarzkopf is the last of the four to resign, and in the Criminal Courts Building the habitues profess to "see the fine Italian hand" of Recorder Goff in the retirements.

District Attorney Philbin also announced yesterday that Moses Herrmann would be retained in his position of Deputy Assistant District Attorney, at a salary of $4,500 a year. Valentine Carleton, indictment clerk, who served under Henry W. Unger and drew a salary of $2,000, was dismissed.

FLIRT CAUSES A SUICIDE.

Youth Shoots Himself Because His Fiancee Played a Jest on Him.

UTICA, N. Y., Jan. 5.—Frank Follett, aged nineteen, of South New Berlin, went to a surprise party last evening as the escort of Miss Blanche Sargent, to whom he is said to have been engaged. While at the party Miss Sargent thought she would have a little fun with Follett, and she flirted rather ardently with another fellow.

Follett took the matter seriously, and, after standing it as long as he could, he went to an upper room in the house, placed the muzzle of a revolver to his head, and blew out his brains.

His death caused the party to break up in great excitement, and the girl who had caused the suicide was prostrated by the occurrence.

MARTYR TO LOVE FOR FLOWERS.

Chicago Philanthropist Contracts Consumption in Hot Conservatories.

CHICAGO, Jan. 5.—Martyr to a love for flowers, Nathan M. Freer, attorney, philanthropist, and member of one of Chicago's oldest families, has died of consumption in Pasadena, Cal., aged fifty-six years.

While watching over the delicate tropical plants in his conservatories in this city he contracted the disease from the humid hothouse atmosphere nearly four years ago.

Mr. Freer gave largely to charities. Only two weeks ago a fifty-thousand-dollar nurses' dormitory given by him was dedicated at the Provident Hospital, an institution for colored people.

CUNNINGHAM CASTLE BURNED.

Owner Was Perfecting Plans to Put Old House in Shape for Occupancy.

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., Jan. 5.—The Cunningham Castle, which was built at Irvington thirty-five years ago by James Cunningham, was destroyed by fire early this morning. The building is said to have originally cost half a million dollars. A short time ago the old castle was purchased by John S. Huyler, and it was his intention to renovate it and put it in shape for occupancy.

Mr. Huyler, in company with an architect, visited the old house yesterday for the purpose of deciding what alterations should be made. As the weather was intensely cold a fire was started in an open grate to take the chill off the room, and it is said the fire was still burning in the grate when Mr. Huyler and the architect went away. The amount of the insurance is not known.

SOME HAPPENINGS IN GOOD SOCIETY.

Congratulations may be extended this week on the anniversaries of their weddings to

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin A. S. Lewis, (Miss Alice Stuart Walker,) Jan. 7, 1899.

Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Watson, (Miss Eliza Watson,) Jan. 12, 1897.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Whitney McVickar, (Miss Maude Robbins,) Jan. 10, 1891.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Barbey, (Miss Mary Lorillard,) Jan. 12, 1895.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Phelps Dodge, (Miss Lunt.) Jan. 14, 1900.

***

With the New Year's holidays well in the past, the Winter season may now be said to be in full swing. There is now not a morning without a luncheon, an afternoon without receptions, teas, or days "at home," or an evening without a dance, even if this last is simply the meeting of a dancing class, while dinners and theatre parties are constantly occurring. These conditions will continue for the next six or seven weeks, for the Winter's social programme has never been so full.

***

The week which opens to-day will bring two balls and a dinner dance, all of which will be important events. The first ball will be Mrs. Astor's annual affair, which will take place to-morrow night at her town house, 842 Fifth Avenue. The invitation list has been extended, and many of the older and non-dancing set who were on Mrs. Astor's list have been invited. Mrs. Astor will probably receive alone in the long salon at the left of the main entrance. Craig Wadsworth and Harry Lehr will lead the cotillion, which will be danced in the picture gallery after the supper. Mrs. Ogden Mills's cotillion on Friday, Jan. 11, will be the usual beautiful and well appointed affair.

***

The dinner dance to be given on the evening of Jan. 9 by Amadée de Pau Moran at his residence, 17 West Fifty-sixth Street, will be in honor of his débutante daughter, Miss Rosalie Moran. Several dinners are to be given on that evening, notably one by Mrs. Oliver Harriman, Jr., from which the guests will go to this dance.

***

Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish has issued cards for a large dinner, to be given on Friday evening next, from which most of her guests some forty in number—will go to the cotillion to be given on that night by Mrs. Ogden Mills. Mrs. H. Mortimer Brooks also has cards out for a large dinner on Monday evening, from which the guests will go to the Astor ball. Mrs. Lucas P. Wilmerding has cards out for the evening of Jan. 19 for a dinner, to be followed by dancing. This is to be in honor of her débutante daughter, Miss Caroline Wilmerding, for whom Mrs. W. Bayard Cutting, a sister of Mrs. Wilmerding, recently gave a dance.

***

Dr. W. Seward Webb and Mrs. Webb gave at their residence, 680 Fifth Avenue, yesterday afternoon, a large reception, to formally introduce their daughter, Miss Frederica Vanderbilt Webb. Mrs. Webb was gowned in wine colored velvet, and the débutante was in white silk, with raised dots, the skirt trimmed with entredeux of lace. The bodice was trimmed with the same lace. Miss Webb was assisted in receiving by the Misses Pauline Robinson, Katherine Dix, Therese Iselin, and Mary Herriman. Lander's Orchestra was stationed in the hall and played throughout the reception. The guests were many and notable, owing to the large family connection of the Webbs and Vanderbilts and their prominence in New York society.

***

Mrs. Isaac L. Kip's luncheon yesterday in honor of Miss Elisa Strong, the fiancée of Mrs. Kip's son, William V. R. Kip, was a large and handsome affair. The table decorations were of violets and lilies of the valley, and the guests included the Baroness de Selliere, and Mesdames Jules Reynal, William Rhinelander, Benjamin Knower, George Eastwick, Amory S. Carhart, John R. Harris, Philip Livingston, Richard S. Dana, Dallas B. Pratt, William H. Tillinghast, Warren G. Beach, Philip Rhinelander, Percival Kuhne, Henry W. McVickar, John H. Bradford, Newbold Edgar, and Miss Della Gurnee.

***

Mrs. William R. Sands gave a large and handsome luncheon at the Metropolitan Club Annex yesterday. On Thursday next Mrs. Sands will give another luncheon in the annex for her niece, Miss Lilian G. Tyler.

***

Among the weddings announced during the week for the future is that of George M. Woolsey, son of the late Edward Woolsey of Astoria, and Miss Esther Hunt, daughter of the late Richard M. Hunt. This is to be celebrated at 178 Madison Avenue, the residence of Mrs. Richard M. Hunt, on Thursday, Feb. 14. Charles Dewar Simons, Jr., and Miss Jessie B. Vanderbilt McNamee are to be married on Tuesday, Feb. 12.

***

Easter week will probably bring the wedding of Stephen H. Pell and Miss Sarah Gibbs Thompson; Lucius Tuckerman Gibbs and Miss Angela Duer, the latter of Hawkhurst, Weehawken, and Henry T. Barclay, Jr., and Miss Rosalie Paul, daughter of Gen. L. Paul of Philadelphia.

***

To-morrow will bring a number of teas, receptions, and "at homes," including those to be given by Mrs. Frederic Neilson and Miss Kathleen Neilson at 100 Fifth Avenue, Mrs. William M. B. V. Hoffman of 25 West Fifty-first Street, Mrs. Robert Ralston Crosby of 21 East Seventy-eighth Street, and the first of three receptions by Mrs. Henry F. Dimock of 25 East Sixtieth Street.

***

On Tuesday there will be, in addition to the dancing class meeting in the evening, receptions to be given by Mrs. George Crocker and the Misses Rutherford of 1 East Sixty-fourth Street, by Mrs. James Wilson Clark and Miss Clark of 46 East Fifty-third Street, by Mrs. Charles Belmont de Saulles and Miss de Saulles of 2 West Thirty-sixth Street, and by Mrs. Berkeley Mostyn and her daughter, Miss Helen White Stevens, of 60 West Fifty-eighth Street.

***

On Wednesday there will be receptions by Mrs. Clarence Pell, Mrs. Edward M. Knox, Mr. and Mrs. Ramsay Turnbull, and Mrs. J. Campbell Smith, and a large reception with tousic to be given by Mrs. Daniel Butterfield. In the evening there will be the dinner dance for Miss Rosalie Moran and two important dinners—those of Dr. W. Seward Webb and Mrs. Webb for Miss Frederica V. Webb, and of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Parish for Capt. Cowles and Mrs. Cowles. (Miss Roosevelt.)

***

The third meeting of Mrs. Dallas Bache Pratt's débutante class was held last night at Sherry's. The cotillion was led by Walton Oakley, who danced alone, and the favors included cigarettes and fancy cornucopias for the girls and large sleigh bells and card cases for the men. This class includes most of the débutantes of this Winter, among them the Misses Eleanor Morris, May Gallatin, Helen Stevens, Helena Ely, Katherine Pratt, and others.

***

Mrs. Talbot Olyphant and the Misses Olyphant will receive on Mondays in January at their residence, 30 West Seventieth Street. To-morrow Miss Helen Olyphant, who is a débutante of the season, will be assisted by the Misses Helen White Stevens, Edith Carpender, Alice Van Doren Ripley, and Amy Olyphant.

***

Mr. and Mrs. Talbot Olyphant have sent out cards for two dinners in honor of Miss Helen Talbot Olyphant, which are for Mondays, Jan. 7 and 14.

***

M. and Mme. Theobald Chartran gave the first of two receptions yesterday afternoon at M. Chartran's new atelier, 10 West Thirty-third Street. Mme. Chartran received and there were many callers. A number of M. Chartran's recently completed paintings were on the walls. Notable among these was the picture of Cardinal Richelieu. The famous canvas, "Signing of the Peace Protocol," was also seen. Among M. Chartran's recent portraits shown to his guests yesterday were those of Mme. Edward Brandus and Mrs. Everett Mallory Culver. The guests included Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Johnston, Mr. and Mrs. Jules Montant, Mrs. James Harriman, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence, Mr. and Mrs. George Burroughs Torrey, Mme. Grau, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Livingston, Mrs. Jules Bache, and Miss Elsie de Wolfe. M. and Mme. Chartran will give a second reception at the studio on Jan. 19.

***

The Saturday Evening Class, organized by Mrs. Sands but managed this season by Mrs. Charles R. Huntington, had its third meeting at Delmonico's last night. Alexander M. Hadden led the cotillion, dancing alone. The favors were fancy tape measures for the girls and silk pincushions, in the shape of apples, for the men. Mrs. Charles R. Huntington, assisted by Mrs. Sackett Barclay and Mrs. James J. Higginson, received. Among the members of this class, which has only a handful of débutantes, it being for the older set, are the Misses Julia Delafield, Edith Weeks, Laura Satterlee, Marie Mosle, Mary Jay, Katharine Leverich, Alice Post, Eleanor Lewis, Marie Hamilton, and Grace Herrick, and Messrs. Thomas Richardson, Burnett Ruggles, Charles H. Sherrill, Montgomery S. Strong, Howard Sherwood, H. A. Schroeder, Francis K. Stevens, Benjamin F. Tilton, Theodore L. Bogert, J. H. Williams, G. F. Tiffany, G. S. Walker, Howard and Jesse Slade, Russell Landale, John Jay, and Alfred Boardman. The next meeting of the class will be held at Delmonico's on Jan. 19.

***

There are to be numerous dancing class meetings this week. Tuesday brings the Tuesday Assembly at Delmonico's and the second of the Junior Cotillions at Sherry's, and also the third Fortnightly at the Astoria. On Friday evening there will be the Friday Evening Dancing Class at Sherry's, the second of the four cotillions, also at Sherry's, and a meeting of Mrs. O'Conor's class at Delmonico's.

***

The private dances of the week include not only Mrs. Astor's annual ball, and Mrs. Mills's cotillion, but a dinner dance for Miss Rosalie Moran, given by her father, Amadée de Pau Moran, at his residence, 17 West Fifty-sixth Street, and the second of Mrs. Frederic Gallatin's dinner dances for her debutante daughter. Miss May Gallatin, at which Philip Birkhead will lead the cotillion.

***

Edward Walker Scott, Jr., of Virginia and Miss Adeline Pierson, younger daughter of Gen. Frederic F. Pierson, are to be married on Wednesday, Jan. 9, at the residence of the bride's parents, 20 West Fifty-second Street. As announced in this column the bridesmaids will be the Misses Julia Pierson, Marie Hamilton, Josephine Isham, and Laura Lee. Miss Pierson will have no maid of honor. Mr. Scott's ushers will be John F. Walker of Washington, D. C.; James R. Pierson, a brother of the bride; C. B. Antrim, and George C. Scott, an uncle of the bridegroom. George Cole Scott will be his brother's best man. It will be an afternoon wedding, and Dean Robbins of All Saints' Cathedral, Albany, will perform the ceremony. The wedding will be a quiet affair, and relatives and a few intimate friends only will receive invitations.

***

The wedding of C. V. Brokaw, son of William V. Brokaw, and a brother of Mrs. James E. Martin and Mrs. Bramhall Gilbert, and Miss Nannie W. Inman, daughter of the late John H. Inman, will be celebrated on Tuesday afternoon, Jan. 8, at the bride's residence, 42 West Fifty-seventh Street.

***

Two cars filled with plants, flowers, palms, and other materials for the decorations to be used for the marriage service at St. John's Church, where the wedding of Miss Elsie French to Mr. Alfred G. Vanderbilt will occur at high noon on Jan. 14, have been sent to Newport from New York, and in the meantime the Christmas decorations used in the church where the wedding is to take place will have been removed. With the cars will come a small army of decorators from New York, whose work it will take almost a week to complete at both the church and the house. Some of the largest palms in this country will be used at the church. The decorations will be elaborate, both at the church and house. The lawn and the approach to Harbourview, the home of the bride's mother, where the reception and wedding breakfast will be served, have already passed out of the hands of the house gardener and his assistants, who have planted over 400 evergreen trees about the lawns and driveways. Everything inside the altar rails will be of white, while about the altar will be placed enormous crosses of white lilies. The entire altar will be decorated with white roses, lilies of the valley, and white orchids. Everything outside of the altar rails will be of pink. Torches will be made for the pews holding large bell-shaped baskets of the new begonia La Gloire de Touraine. Each torch will be six feet high, and one of these will be placed at each end of the centre aisle pews.

***

A partial idea of the number of the flowers to be used at the church at the Vanderbilt-French wedding at Newport may be gleaned from the fact that 35 cases of smilax and 5,000 pink and white roses alone have been ordered. The decorations for the house will represent an old English rose arbor. The entrance to the villa will therefore consist principally of holly and mistletoe. The reception hall will be elaborately decorated, with a rustic summer house, under which the bride and bridegroom will receive the congratulations of their relatives and friends. The flowers used here will consist principally of pink orchids, pink roses, and begonias, interspersed with white roses. The wedding breakfast table will be decorated with the new Golden Gate rose, orange blossoms, which are being shipped from the South; white orchids, and lilies of the valley. On the other round tables the flowers will be set to match the room the tables are placed in, this color being red. In the yellow room, where Mrs. F. O. French will receive, will be carried out a decorative scheme of yellow flowers, principally of yellow orchids, while the room directly opposite will be decorated in red. The fireplaces in each room will be arranged with foliage plants and small, delicate palms, and the conservatory effect intended will be carried out in faithful detail. In the ballroom the same system of decorations will prevail as in the other rooms, with the addition of large tree ferns and specimen palms, with hanging baskets of orchids and vines. The gifts to the bride are being received in very large numbers, and they already fill two very large chests, which are stowed in the large safety vault in the Aquidneck Bank, where a special watchman is on duty each night since the presents arrived. Miss French, with her mother, visits the vault daily to inspect the gifts and to rearrange them. Mr Vanderbilt has already paid two visits to the vault with Miss French.

SOCIETY NOTES.

The engagement is announced of Louis Wormser and Miss Edna C. Friend, niece of Mrs. August Smith.

Mrs. David Young Swainson of 49 West Seventy-third Street receives on Mondays in January, afternoon and evening.

The engagement is announced of Miss Maud Olden Dunham of Hancock Street to Mr. William M. Welant of Brooklyn.

At a dinner party on New Year's Day Mrs. Marie Durel of 107 West Sixty-fourth Street announced the engagement of her daughter, Stella C., to Mr. Irving Rodney Parsons.

Invitations are out for the wedding of Miss Harriet Estelle Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Brown, and Dr. William Hoggens Haines of Pittsburg. The wedding will take place at the Church of the Incarnation, Madison Avenue and Thirty-fifth Street, on Wednesday evening, Jan. 9, and will be followed by a reception to relatives and intimate friends at the home of the bride's parents, 110 East Fortieth Street. The bridesmaids will be Miss Florence Brown, sister of the bride, and Miss Grace Watt. Miss Natalie Hitchcock, the bride's niece, will be the maid of honor. The ushers will be the Messrs. Allen, Blakeley, Penrose, and Weldon. The bridegroom's brother will be the best man.

Marquis Francisco de Souza Continho, the Portuguese baritone who arrived in this country last week, has already been the recipient of many courtesies. He is the cousin of the wife of Viscomte de Santo Thyrso, the Portuguese Minister at Washington, who hastened to New York to meet him on his arrival. Aside from the dinners given de Souza by the Minister he was the guest of honor at an elaborate dinner given by Richard Stevens, at Castle Point, Hoboken, where the Viscomte and Viscomtess de Santo Thyrso were also present. De Souza has many friends among the foreign diplomats at Washington, so that it has been almost definitely decided that he shall début there, after which New York will have an opportunity to hear him.

Lieut. Commander and Mrs. Fiske gave a reception at their residence, 309 West One Hundred and Sixth Street on Friday afternoon. The house was decorated with tapestries and bronzes from Egypt, India, China, and Japan, and with trophies of the Spanish war, gathered in the Philippines. Among the invited guests were Bishop and Mrs. Andrews, Admiral and Mrs. Barker, Mr. and Mrs. Park Benjamin, Medical Director and Mrs. Bloodgood, Medical Director and Mrs. Bogart, Mr. and Mrs. William R. Barr, Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Dutton, Mrs. David Low Dodge, Admiral and Mrs. Erben, the Misses Elmer, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence C. Earle, Mr. and Mrs. John P. Faure, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fairchild, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Leicester Ford, Admiral Gherardi, Dr. and Mrs. Egbert Guernsey, Mr. Andrew H. Green, Lieut. Commander and Mrs. Hall, Lieut. Hobson, Mrs. Joseph W. Harper, Mr. and Mrs. James Thorne Harper, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Harper, Mr. and Mrs. William A. Harper, Mr. and Mrs. William D. Harper, Leigh Hunt, Gen. and Mrs. Rush Hawkins, President and Mrs. Seth Low, Commander and Mrs. J. D. J. Kelley, Major and Mrs. Kingsbury, Gen. Horatio C. King, Miss Virginia Niles Leeds, Mr. and Mrs. Rollin Harper Lynde, Prof. and Mrs. H. S. Munroe, Capt. and Mrs. Mahan, Lieut. Commander Morrell, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Nast, Mr. and Mrs. William Barclay Parsons, Mr. and Mrs. William E. Peck, Justice and Mrs. Pryor, Prof. Pupine, Mr. and Mrs. Whitelaw Reid, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob A. Riis, Mr. and Mrs. Roswell Skeel, Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Clarence Stedman, Prof. and Mrs. Mayo-Smith, Miss Emma Thursby, Prof. and Mrs. Van Amringe, W. C. Whitney, R. W. Van Boskerck, Capt. and Mrs. Wildes, Capt. Zalinski, and the Chinese Consul at New York.

New Year's Dinner for Miss Barnard.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Russak gave a dinner New Year's Eve in honor of Mrs. Russak's sister, Miss Sydnia Barnard of San Francisco. The souvenirs of the dinner were views of Switzerland and the Paris Exposition, photographed by Mrs. Russak and mounted on decorative menu cards, with appropriate lines for each guest. Miss Barnard, after a visit to Washington and Chicago, will return to her home the middle of January.

GAY WEEK AT LAKEWOOD.

Subscription Dance at the Country Clubhouse Follows the New Year Festivities.

Special to The New York Times.

LAKEWOOD, N. J., Jan. 5.—Society has begun a very active campaign of pleasure, the first of the important events having occurred last night in the subscription dance given in the clubhouse of the Country Club of Lakewood. The patronesses were Mrs. Charles D. Kingdon, Mrs. George Jay Gould, Mrs. William Arthur Hamilton, Mrs. Henry Lloyd Herbert, Mrs. Dwight Miller Harris, Mrs. Frank Morgan Freeman, Mrs. Frederic R. Coudert, Mrs. Robert C. Morris, Mrs. James Converse, Mrs. Arthur B. Claflin, Mrs. Albert Edward Kennedy, Mrs. Ernest C. La Montagne, Mrs. J. Russell May, Mrs. Charles L. Lindley, Mrs. Francis D. Beard, Mrs. Joseph H. Outhwaite, Mrs. Francis Albert Walthew, Mrs. Thomas L. Watson, Mrs. George B. M. Harvey, and Mrs. Charles Henry Converse. The holly and evergreen trimmings about the ballroom were made radiant by the introduction of colored electric bulbs through them, and flags of all nations and yacht signals were artistically arranged about the room, which made a fitting setting for the elaborate gowns of the ladies.

The New Year's balls at the leading hotels—the Lakewood, the Laurel, and the Laurel in the Pines—were very gay. The New Year's Eve ball at the Laurel in the Pines was a regular crush. The ballroom and the house had been beautifully decorated, and the gowns were magnificent, but the crowd was so great that dancing was almost impossible.

The same night Mr. and Mrs. James Converse gave a poster party. About twenty of their friends, dressed like notorious posters and advertisements, sang and danced farewell to the old century and greeted the new. Among them were Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Hamilton, Dr. Paul T. Kimball, Mr. and Mrs. Walthew, Mr. Woodman, Miss Rene Coudert, Miss Clarise Coudert, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert, Mr. Brookfield, Miss May, Miss Suydam, F. W. Jones, and Mr. and Mrs. Bacon.

The ballroom at the Laurel was too small for the crowd which tried to dance there Tuesday night, but the holiday spirit prevailed and all enjoyed themselves, even if a few gowns suffered.

Mrs. Charles D. Kingdon and her daughter, Mrs. George Jay Gould, had charge of the tea and chocolate table during the tea and musicale in the Gould Casino on Thursday afternoon and evening, for the benefit of the Women's Auxiliary of All Saints' Memorial Church. Mrs. David B. Plumer and Mrs. Albert M. Bradshaw attended to the musical attraction, while the tables of cake, confectionery, and fruit were in charge of Mrs. William A. Hamilton, Mrs. Henry Lloyd Herbert, and Mrs. W. Rush Bynner, assisted by Mrs. Frank M. Freeman, Mrs. Reginald Canning, Mrs. Andrew Jackson Smith, Miss Leslie May, Mrs. Donald Tod, Miss Edith Ambrose, and Miss Mabel Park.

Mrs. William Bateman Leeds, assisted by her daughter, Miss Elizabeth Whitewright Leeds, entertained a number of friends over New Year's at their Winter home, The Peak, on Madison Avenue. Among the party were Miss Susan Van G. Murray of Englewood, N. J.; Miss Lillian Fraser, Miss Mary J. Stuart, and Miss Elizabeth Ellsworth of New York; Miss Margaret Hamilton of Saratoga, and Miss Cornelia Schwartz of Lakewood.

The combination of beautiful moonlight nights and an excellent sheet of ice on Lake Carasaljo has afforded lovers of skating much enjoyment during the week. Noticed among the crowds on the ice and among the spectators were Miss Rhinelander, Irving Brokaw, Miss Palms, Mrs. W. S. Prentice, the Misses Coudert, Miss Park, E. M. Dalley, Miss De Peyster, Kingdon Gould, Miss Park, Jay Gould, the Misses Tiford, and Miss Kemble.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY NOTES.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—The Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. Gage to-night opened the series of dinners in honor of the President and Mrs. McKinley. In addition to the guests of honor, the company included the Chief Justice and Mrs. Fuller, the Secretary of War and Mrs. Root, the Secretary of the Navy and the Attorney General, the Secretary of the Interior and Mrs. Hitchcock, the Postmaster General and Mrs. Smith, the Secretary of Agriculture and Miss Wilson, Gen. and Mrs. Fairbanks, Mrs. Daniel Manning, and Miss Lucy Page.

The Minister from Austria and Mme. Hengelmuller gave a large dinner party for young people in honor of their guest, Miss Ruth Snyder of Philadelphia, the niece of Charlemagne Tower, Ambassador to Russia. The additional guests were Mr. and Mrs. Crackanthorpe, Mr. and Mrs. Anderson, the Hon. Sybil Pauncefote, Miss Alice Hay, daughter of the Secretary of State; Miss Root, daughter of the Secretary of War; Miss Ffoulke, Count Montgelas and Count von Hacke, both of the German Embassy; Lieut. von Pflugl, the nephew of the Minister, who is on a short visit to Washington, and his companion, Lieut. Hardt, of the Austrian Army; Baron Alliotti of the Italian Embassy, and Baron Ambrozy of the Legation of Austria-Hungary.

The Saturday evening receptions of the Baroness Hengelmuller for the winter will be continued through the season.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Spalding entertained at dinner in honor of Capt. and Mrs. Samuel Reber of Governors Island, who are the guests of Mrs. Reber's parents, Gen. and Mrs. Miles.

Mr. and Mrs. Richardson entertained young people at a complimentary dinner to their guest, Miss Elizabeth Van Rensselaer of New York. The company included the Count and Countess de Quadt of the German Embassy, the Hon. Audrey Pauncefote, Miss Margaret Hitchcock, Miss Esther Hunt of New York, Mr. Norman of the British Embassy, Mrs. Winthrop, John Woolsey, and Charles Richardson.

THE NEWS OF NEWPORT.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., Jan. 5.—The roof has been set on the new villa of Mrs. Richard Gambrill, in Bellevue Avenue, and the stables have all been framed in. The work is being pushed rapidly, and it would seem now as if Mrs. Gambrill would be able to occupy her new house next Summer.

The first story of E. Rollins Morse's house on the same thoroughfare is in position, and work on the second story has begun.

John Bolt, who is to superintend the erection of the large villa for Arthur T. Kemp on Harrison Avenue, has gone to New York to consult with Mr. Kemp.

Mr and Mrs. Louis L. Lorillard, who have been visiting here, have returned to New York. They will occupy a cottage here next Summer.

The wardens and vestrymen of Emmanuel Church have voted to accept the offer of Mrs. John Nicholas Brown to build a memorial church to her late husband, who for many years was one of its vestrymen. The church officials also extended to Mrs. Brown a vote of thanks in appreciation of her gift.

Commodore Elbridge T. Gerry will open his villa Seaverge for the use of his family and several guests for the Vanderbilt wedding. Robert L. Gerry, one of the ushers at the wedding, will entertain several of his friends at Seaverge, which is to be opened on Thursday next.

The Breakers will be ready on Tuesday for the reception of Mrs. Vanderbilt and her family and the guests who are to come to Newport with her.

Amateur Theatricals at Chatsworth.

LONDON, Jan. 5.—The most aristocratic amateur theatricals England has seen for a long time will be given by the Duchess of Devonshire at Chatsworth on Jan. 11 and 14, in aid of charity. A brilliant audience, including the Prince of Wales, will be present, while the performers will have among their number Count Mensdorff, a cousin of the Queen; Lady Maud Warrender, F. B. Mildmay, M. P.; Miss Muriel Wilson, and others of the fashionable world.

A New Jersey Engagement.

PLAINFIELD, N. J., Jan. 5.—The engagement is announced of Miss Martha W. Borsum, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Borsum of this city, to William C. Fiedler, son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. F. Fiedler of Newark, N. J.

THIS YEAR'S CHARITY BALL.

Promises to be One of the Most Brilliant Ever Given.

The big Charity Ball—the Charity Ball which is one of the oldest annual affairs in the city and has been connected in past days with the names of many of the most prominent people of the city and State—is to be held in the big ballroom of the Waldorf-Astoria in the first year of the new century on Jan. 29. The officers and managers of the Nursery and Child's Hospital, for which it is given, promise that it shall be one of the most brilliant balls in a history of balls which has been remarkable. The magnificence in this big annual ball is always to be found in the brilliant assembly of people and the magnificence of the gowns worn, no money being diverted from the good work which is its object for decorations. The one word, "Charity," placed at one end of the ballroom in large letters, is the only decoration allowed.

The hospital, which was started in 1854 for the sick mothers among the poor and their babies, has largely increased in the size and scope of its work in recent years. During the past year 375 women and 844 children have been nursed and tended at the hospital. The work is non-sectarian, and with its increasing labors there is need of increased financial aid. The repairs on the hospital building are hardly covered each year by the returns from the ball. The endowment fund is very small, and the allowance per capita from city and State has been reduced with that of other private institutions. The fund for the hospital work is so small as to be ineffective, and large donations are required to carry on the work, which is of the greatest benefit to many of the poorest and most unfortunate of the population.

A hospital for destitute babies and children, lying-in ward for destitute mothers, instruction of mothers in branches of domestic service, a home for destitute children, training for young physicians and post-graduate courses for nurses in obstetrics and children's diseases, training young women for nursery maids, and the maintenance of a home on Staten Island where the feeble babies are sent during the Summer and the older children find a home with healthful surroundings and an opportunity for an education are some of the lines of work carried on by the hospital. From 200 to 300 of the older children are maintained in the home, which has farm lands where are raised many of the hospital supplies. The officers of the hospital are:

Mrs. Algernon S. Sullivan, First Directress, 16 West Eleventh Street; Mrs. William M. Kingsland, Second Directress, 116 Fifth Avenue; Mrs. William C. Egleston, Third Directress, 19 West Fifty-sixth Street; Mrs. Frederick N. Goddard, Treasurer, 2 East Thirty-fifth Street; Mrs. Henry Mills Day, Assistant Treasurer, 6 East Forty-fourth Street; Mrs. Edward Bothout, Secretary, 48 West Ninth Street; Miss Caroline H. Patterson, Assistant Secretary, 20 Fifth Avenue.

LAST YEAR'S GERMAN VINTAGE.

Wine Growers Well Satisfied with Half a Full Crop.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—Walter Schumann, United States Consul at Mainz, has sent to the State Department a report on the vintage of 1900 in Germany. He says that on the whole the wine growers may well be satisfied with this year's vintage, both as to quantity and quality. About half of a full crop has been harvested, and the quality promises to be a good "middle wine," ranging between the vintages of 1895 and 1897.

In Rhenish-Hesse, more than half of a full crop was harvested. The sales in small wines were very brisk; middle and better grades, however, being held for better prices. The Rheingau, which yields the finest rhine wines, will only yield about one-third of a full vintage. On the Middle Rhine the quantity is satisfactory. The vintage on the Nabe River was completed by the end of October. The quantity was larger than expected. The quality varied considerably. The vineyards of the Moselle River yielded only a scant one-fourth of a full vintage. The prices demanded by these wine growers are simply exorbitant—higher than they have ever been—and do not appear to be warranted, considering the quality.

On the River Ruhr, a tributary of the Moselle, the result of the vintage is one-fourth to one-half of a full crop. On the Saar River the conditions were similar. In the Haardt Hills, the gathering of the crop was completed by the middle of October. The quantity was greater than expected, and the prices, which were at first too high, have weakened, and consequently buying is brisk. Alsace-Lorraine has had an exceedingly good vintage. However, there are still many wine growers who do not give rational treatment to their vineyards, and consequently their wine is small and inferior. Baden has also had a very satisfactory vintage. Both quality and quantity came up to expectations, and trading has been very brisk. In Würtemberg, the quantity harvested was larger than expected, because the grapes were exceedingly juicy, and as the prices offered were acceptable, trading was very brisk. In the vineyards of Franconia that were well cultivated the result of the vintage was satisfactory.

Mrs. Slote, Centenarian, Dead.

Mrs. Anna J. Slote, born in the last year of the eighteenth century, died Wednesday night at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Josephine Tershaw, 322 Throop Avenue, Brooklyn, after living two days into the twentieth century. Mrs. Slote celebrated the one hundredth anniversary of her birth on July 12 last. She was a native of Ireland and had been in America ninety-three years. She was the mother of ten children, four of whom, Henry L., Alonzo, and Julien Slote and Mrs. Tershaw, survive her.

French Masquerade Ball.

At the twenty-ninth annual masquerade ball of the Société Français de l'Amitie, which will be held at Terrace Garden Thursday evening, on the programme will be a grand quadrille, "Le Vingtieme Siècle," (twentieth century,) and a battle of confetti. In the grand "Ballet de l'Exposition" 100 chorus girls selected from the Metropolitan Opera House and various theatres will figure. Prizes for the neatest and oddest costumes will be distributed by President Schlessinger.

A. Simonson

933 Broadway, 21—22 Street.

The new Coiffure par excellence for 1901.

"Transformation"

A beautiful and perfect masterpiece in the art of ARTIFICIAL HAIR GOODS; perfect in fit and a perfect imitation of nature.

You are respectfully invited to inspect this new Coiffure, and also other numerous beautiful styles of HAIR GOODS and HAIR ORNAMENTS.

No Branch Stores. No Agents.

A. SIMONSON,

933 Broadway, 21—22 Street.

THE CABINET'S COMPLAINT

Dread of the Official Dinners Given at Washington.

Embezzlement Cases of Capt. Howgate and F. J. Kieckhofer—Street Names in the Capital.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—A friend of a member of the Cabinet of President McKinley, one of those who expect to remain a part of the next Administration, was amused and astonished a few days ago by hearing a Cabinet friend suggest that the official family of the President might be changed materially by the dread on the part of those who have consented to remain of going through "four years more" of Cabinet dinners. The outside public that does not know Washington intimately, and only reads occasionally about the giving of dinners by Cabinet officers to Cabinet officers, can scarcely appreciate the trial that these official functions impose upon those who must bear them. Early in the season—this season opened on Wednesday last—the President gives a dinner to his Cabinet. Everybody is expected to be there with his wife or some lady of his family. After a short interval the Secretary of State gives a dinner to the President and his associates in the Cabinet. Then in their order of precedence all the Secretaries follow with similar dinners. Before the season is over the President and his advisers have dined together nine times. In four years they dine together thirty-six times, and a double term will produce for those who remain a record of seventy-two dinners.

These feasts are conducted variously, according to the taste and ability of the givers of the dinners. A philosophical member of the President's family who talked about this practice a day or two ago said the first dinner was cheerful enough; the second was apt to seem a little perfunctory; the third developed some signs of weariness on the part of all concerned, and when about the fourth was reached evidences of strain were abundant. But about at this stage of the series of dinners almost everybody braced up to make the best of it and to count off the dinners yet to come before there would be release and the liberty to remain quietly at home or mingle with the people who are not obliged to dine formally and officially. After the half-way post has been reached entertaining abilities begin to be developed, and something like a sense of humor is revealed where it had been unsuspected under the cloak of gloom that had settled down upon the circle. By the time the turn of the Secretary of Agriculture is reached, absolute merriment is indulged in, and the last dinner of the series is in all respects a holiday occasion.

***

One result of the obligatory dining of nine such prominent persons together at more or less regular intervals between New Year's and the beginning of Lent is the creation of an unwillingness on the part of Cabinet officers to make dinner engagements during the season. Cabinet officers and army and navy officers of prominence as well as Ambassadors and Ministers are in demand for dinners. Persons of experience here know that all dinner givers understand the aversions of sought-for guests and make up their guest lists very early in the season—sometimes as much as four months ahead. Even with early engagements there are disappointments, for unprincipled but distinguished persons have sometimes accepted invitations only to follow their acceptances with regrets at a late and embarrassing day.

There are many invitations extended to Cabinet officers and other prominent persons from New York and other out-of-town places. Nearly all of them are declined. About the only exceptions are invitations to dinners of obligation, from which escape is impolitic or impossible. A very recent revelation of the anxiety of a Cabinet officer to escape a dinner was given in the declination of the officer in question to add one more strain to the draft upon his energy imposed by the obligation to attend dinners almost nightly in Washington, with scarcely an opportunity to enjoy the luxury of dining privately with his family.

"It is not only the dinners," said this gentleman wearily and seriously, "but it is the dinners added to the receptions. At the White House, there are four in the season, and again at the Cabinet houses there is one a week, at which the head of the family is expected to be seen, and if he is responsive to the expectations of official society he must also honor the fellow-members of the Cabinet by dropping in at the receptions given by their wives. Then there are diplomatic gatherings, very nice in their way, until one has met the same circle of acquaintances a few dozen times and then the round suggests the interminable repetition of the airs of a barrel organ. These functions are more exhausting than the round of routine business."

***

Henry W. Howgate, once a Captain in the United States Army and at the head of the Weather Bureau, who was recently released from Albany Penitentiary after serving a term for embezzlement of Government funds, advertised his return to this city by giving a long and apparently full account of himself during the fourteen years after his escape from prison while he was awaiting trial. He is now seventy years of age, but in spite of a life of hardship as a refugee from justice and with a troubled conscience, he is talking cheerfully of making a new beginning. After keeping a book shop in Tenth Street, New York, for many years, and doing a remunerative business, he was found by Drummond, formerly at the head of the Secret Service.

Howgate says there was no reason why, if the Government had wanted him for trial, that he should not have been arrested many years before he was finally captured. Many Government officers, including Assistant Attorney General Colby, knew where he was, and Howgate had gone hunting with Colby in Florida on hunting trips on one or two occasions. Howgate says his business card was on Colby's desk in Washington for years. He was sent to Albany for eight years, but was released at the end of five, having won time by good behavior. As he was made librarian, and spent most of his time in reading, he admits that he found his service there "in some respects agreeable." Still, he does not advise an ambitious or aspiring young man to seek service even in the Albany Penitentiary.

Howgate returns without any of the money he secured by his embezzlements, he says, all his property having been attached to satisfy the demand of the Government and his bondsmen. As he found bookselling agreeable and remunerative, he may go into it again in New York, for which city he expresses a liking. He has had no opportunity to see Washington since he first went to jail here to be tried for his crimes.

***

The trial may soon come on of another officer charged with embezzlement of Government funds. Something like four years ago it was discovered that the accounts of Francis J. Kieckhofer, disbursing officer of the Department of State, were irreconcilable with strict rules of business and honesty. He was suspended, an investigation was made, and it was asserted that his deficiencies amounted to something like $140,000. Indictments were found, and announcements were made of the intention of the prosecuting officers to bring him to trial. Skillful counsel was employed, and from time to time it was briefly announced that the proceedings had been continued, which means that prosecution was deferred. Some interest has been manifested to know what influence it was that promoted the parleying and fencing over the proposed trial.

A great many persons besides Kieckhofer are said to be interested in the matter, and anxious that the trial shall be so long put off that a motion to quash the indictments will be granted. If there is any public sentiment demanding that a trial be accorded to a man under such serious charges, it has not been conspicuously manifested. There is apt to be indifference here in such matters, an almost Oriental lack of sensitiveness about the getting of money out of the Treasury having been evinced in this and in other cases, notably that of Ottman, who was prominent years ago as the recipient of a large bundle of money stolen from the Treasury, his case being "settled" years after without discomfort to the offender. From some intimations that have been thrown out about Kieckhofer's case it may be expected that he will make revelations in his own defense that will subject others to part of the reprobation that seems to be now entirely

SPARKS FROM THE MAGAZINES

EXCERPTS IN PROSE AND VERSE FROM CURRENT LITERATURE.

A Wilderness Lullaby.

Purple and gold in the sunset glow,
The undulant prairie rolls
Its waves to the west,
Where cloudlets rest
Like the Islands of Happy Souls.

Dusky and still as the pointed sails
Beclamed at the river's bend,
Stand Indian homes
On grassy domes,
And the camp fires' wreaths ascend.

Cradling a wilderness babe to rest,
A little gay hammock swings,
Like New Moon's boat
In air afloat,
While the mother her lullaby sings.

"Hi-sunk nink ha-mo-o nigajé,
Ho chin-chin pin nink,
Ha-mo-o, ha-mo-o,

"Oh, hush thee now, little Brother,
Thy bright eyes droop
So low, so low."
—HELEN W. LUDLOW in Harper's Magazine.

Smokeless Cannon Powder.

Hudson Maxim in The Forum.

All modern smokeless powders consist either of nitro-cellulose of some special degree of nitration, or of a mixture of different grades, either with or without the addition of nitro-glycerine. Tri-nitro-cellulose, or guncotton of the highest nitration, is too difficult to work and shrinks too badly to permit of its being used alone. Mixed, however, with 10 per cent. of the more soluble gelatin-guncotton, the resulting compound may be worked with but very little solvent. Upon this compound a slight rise of temperature has the peculiar effect of increasing its plasticity, which enables perfect granulation with an exceedingly small amount of solvent. When 10 per cent. of nitro-glycerine is employed there should be used at first, in the material in the incorporating machine, about twice the quantity of solvent that will be required in granulation, the excess being removed by working between steel rolls, such as those used in the manufacture of celluloid. Powder made by this formula does not warp or crack in drying, and internal stress is reduced to a minimum.

Pyro-nitro-cellulose is now used exclusively by the Government in the manufacture of smokeless powder; and while it shrinks considerably in drying, still the grains are so tough, hard, and horn-like that, in spite of any internal stress, they are capable of standing a higher pressure than when made of a more brittle compound, even though greater care be exercised to avoid shrinkage. No nitro-glycerine is used in the present service powder, and the compound is so poor in oxygen that a grain burned in the air leaves a large quantity of unconsumed carbon. Burned in a gun, however, under service pressures, most of the carbon combines with the oxygen to produce carbonic oxide instead of carbonic acid. The products of combustion of this material are practically all gaseous, and therefore smokeless, and consist mainly of carbonic oxide, free nitrogen, and free hydrogen. The immense volume of the products of combustion of this powder, owing to the exceeding lightness of these gases, gives it a very high ballistic value, while at the same time the temperature is much lower and the erosive action upon the gun is less than with smokeless powders rich in nitro-glycerine, which owe their high ballistic value to the great expansive power due to high temperature.

The Helpful Woman.

From The Century.

There was once a Woman whose Husband Depended on the State of the Market for his Daily Toast. One Day he Appeared before Her with a Sad Countenance.

"All is Over, my Dear," said he. "Wheat is 'Way Down, and I doubt if after To-morrow we shall have More than Ten Thousand a Year to Live On. I am Sorry that I Married you to Drag you Down to This, but I must Tell you Sooner or Later. I am a Ruined Man."

"Nay, do not Lose Heart," said his Wife. "Can you not Speculate Further?"

"I cannot," he replied, "for I have Lost my Nerve. My Friends Urge me to Throw what I Have into Copper, but I Dare Not. Five Thousand a Year would Hardly buy Croquettes for Two. I would Better Keep what I have Saved from the Smash."

"At any rate," said she, "come Out and Have some Lunch. Let us Go to Sherry's and get a Nice Little Bird; then you will Feel Better."

"Bird!" exclaimed her Husband. "Unhappy Woman, if you see anything better than Broiled Chicken and Beef à la mode for the Rest of Your Life, you will Do Well. In my present Frame of Mind I would Suggest a Night Lunch Cart."

"You have One Good Meal, at least," urged his Wife, "before we Die to the World. I have Twenty Dollars in my Purse. I will Buy our Lunch with that, After that the Night Lunch."

"Very Well, for the Last Time," replied her Husband.

They then went to an Expensive Restaurant and Ate a more than Satisfactory Luncheon. At the end of it her Husband said:

"I think Better of that Copper than I Did."

Then he went Back to Wall Street and Made Sixty Thousand Dollars in Thirty-eight Minutes.

This teaches us that Digestion is the Better Part of Valor.

An Old Mathematical Papyrus.

From The Popular Science Monthly.

Among the records of the most remote antiquity we find little to lead to the conclusion that geometry was known or studied as a branch of mathematics. The Babylonians had a remarkably well-developed number system and were expert astronomers, but so far as we know their knowledge of geometry did not go beyond the construction of certain more or less regular figures for necromantic purposes. The Egyptians did better than this, and Egypt is commonly acknowledged to be the birthplace of geometry. It was a poor kind of geometry, however, from our point of view, and should rather be designated as a system of mensuration. Nevertheless it served as a beginning, and probably was the means of setting the Greek mind at work upon the subject. Our knowledge of Egyptian geometry is obtained from a papyrus in the British Museum known as the Ahmes Mathematical Papyrus. It dates from about the eighteenth century B. C., and purports to be a copy of a document some four or five centuries older. It is the counterpart of what to-day is called an engineer's handbook. It contains arithmetical tables, examples in the solution of simple equations, and rules for determining the areas of figures and the capacity of certain solids. There is no hint of anything in the nature of demonstrational geometry, nor any evidence of how the rules were derived. In fact, they could not have been obtained as the result of demonstration, for they are generally wrong. For example, the area of an isosceles triangle is given as the product of the base and half the side, and that of a trapezoid as the product of the half sums of the opposite sides. These rules give results which are approximately correct so long as they are applied to triangles whose altitude is large compared with the base, and to trapezoids which do not depart very far from a rectangular shape. Whether the Egyptians ever came to realize that these rules were erroneous we cannot say, but it is known that long after the Greeks had discovered the correct ones they were still in use.

Heart Burials.

From Chambers's Journal.

It has been ascertained by examination of monuments containing heart burials that a small metal vase, or jar, or box, about five or six inches in diameter, has served as the depository for the organ so generally considered the seat of the affections. They are usually furnished with lids or covers. The material varies; some are of lead, one has been noticed of iron, and the hearts of persons of high degree have been placed in tiny caskets made of silver. In taking down a wall in Waverley Abbey, a heart was found between two leaden dishes which were soldered together in many instances a cavity has been made in the centre of a stone and the receptacle placed in it and covered by another stone.

Some churches appear to have been specially preferred in this matter. Ludlow Church, for instance, was chosen for the resting place of the heart of Prince Arthur, son of Henry VII.; and when Sir Henry Sidney died, though his body was buried at Penshurst, in Kent, his heart was sent to Ludlow and placed in the tomb that held the remains of his daughter Ambrosia; a third heart buried here was that a member of the Vaughan family of Merioneth. Queen Eleanor's heart was buried in Blackfriars Church, where that of her son Alphonso had previously been interred, though her body, brought with so much pageantry and ceremony from Lincolnshire, was entombed with every solemnity in Westminster Abbey. Two heart burials have been noticed as having taken place in Waverley Abbey and two in Ely Cathedral. The Church of the Greyfriars in London was also chosen for this purpose on several occasions.

Sir John Tenniel.

From The Review of Reviews.

John Tenniel was born in London in 1820. He was educated at a private school, and early developed a taste for drawing and painting. He never studied art, however, in any regular way, but was self-taught, like most of our American cartoonists. While in the twenties he painted some creditable pictures in oil, but his taste for illustrating and for line-work drawing developed very early, and although he has long been a member of the Royal Institute of Painters in Water Colors, his real life work is to be found in the files of Punch. At one time he drew charming illustrations for books, and showed a decided aptitude for fairy pictures. He was the original illustrator, for instance, of "Alice in Wonderland" and its sequel.

He joined the staff of Punch to take the place of Doyle, who was leaving the staff just at the end of 1850; and after some smaller and more incidental bits of drawing his first important political cartoon appeared in February, 1851, on a page facing a cartoon by Leech, his great predecessor and contemporary. John Leech had been on the staff of Punch for nearly nine years when Tenniel joined it, and his brilliant and varied work continued to enliven its pages until his death, in October, 1864, when in his twenty-third year on the staff of the paper. From the death of Leech, John Tenniel, whose reputation was already well established, came naturally into a still greater prominence.

His political grasp is wide and vigorous, and his cartoon work has always been enriched by his familiarity with literature, and especially with Shakespeare. Thus he has been enabled, on occasions almost innumerable, to supply a Shakespearean quotation to a current event in a manner exceedingly apt and felicitous.

Since the invention of photo-mechanical methods of reproduction, the work of most pen-and-ink draughtsmen is no longer reproduced by wood engraving. But Tenniel has to this day persisted in his old-fashioned plan of making his drawings directly on the boxwood blocks; and for a great many years the engraving has been done by the familiar hand of J. Swain. Thus, in the right-hand lower corner of all Tenniel's drawings appears his familiar monograph, which looks a little like a Chinese character; and in the left-hand lower corner appears the equally familiar "Swain, Sc." This method gives the reproduced work a peculiar sharpness, and it also helps to keep the artist faithful to his idea of giving the highest possible value to the fewest possible lines.

How He Does It.

From Harper's Bazar.

"In the first place, what is the harm in asking men for things in the way they like best? They have favors to grant; naturally they grant the best ones to those who please them. 'Ask for it pretty,' is what nurses say to children, and practically what men say to us. No one likes to be approached at unreasonable times and in objectionable ways. You have admitted that yourself in telling of the girls you don't like. Sex has nothing to do with that part of it, men and women are the same in that. But men generally hold more favors in their hands than we, and that is why we must be adepts in asking for them. But there comes a time when a man wants a favor of a woman."

"He takes it without asking," retorted the Girl, thinking of her brothers.

"The supreme favor of all—how does he ask for that?"

"You mean when a man asks a girl to marry him?"

"Yes. Doesn't he go about that in the most diplomatic way possible? He is months preparing the way, scattering candy, books, flowers, cotillion favors with a lavish hand. His flattery is the most delicate and lingering; he is too amiable to be disturbed; he uses every wile, both honest and evasive, to lead up to the asking. And we like it! We like it so well that we put off the asking to prevent the end of the gratifying play. When the question does finally come, we feel amiable enough to answer favorably."

Daddy Do-Funny.

"Ole Daddy Do-funny,
How you come on?"
"Po'ly, thank Gord, honey,
Po'ly dis morn.
My ole spine it's sort o' stiff,
An' my arms don' 'fuse to lif',
An' de smizry's in my breas',
An' I got de heart-distress,
An' de growin'-pains dey lingers
In my knee-j'ints an' my fingers,
But I'm well, praise God, dis mornin'."

"Ole Daddy Do-funny,
What cuyus talk!
How is you well, when you
Can't even walk?"
"Hush, you foolish chillen, hush!
What's dat singin' in de brush?
Ain't dat yonder blue de sky?
Feel de cool breeze passin' by!
Dis ole painful back an' knee,
Laws-a-mussy, dey ain't me,
An' I'm well, praise God, dis mornin'."
—RUTH McENERY STUART in St. Nicholas.

Hop Pickers.

Sir Walter Besant in The Century.

It requires a great many hands, and has to be carried through quickly. As soon as the time arrives the East Londoners by the thousand give up their work and take the train to the hopping. Then they have the finest time imaginable. They are quite free from any interference; no one watches over them; all day long they are out in the fields. They are paid, and paid well, by the basket; therefore they work hard. In the evening they have games entirely of their own devising. There is no lady to watch the girls, no young university man good with fists let loose upon the lads; money is plentiful, suppers are copious, beer flows in streams, they dance and sing at their own sweet will. The farmers, so long as they do no mischief to the crops and orchards, do not interfere. At night the girls sleep in one barn and the lads and men in another. When hopping is over they come back to town. Like Bottom, they are transformed: their cheeks, which were pasty-colored, are now rosy and sunburnt; they are no longer the children of the curb; they have been adopted for the time by the field. How they get back to work I do not know, but I believe that in many factories the employers look forward to the hopping desertions and make arrangements accordingly.

Better Service, Better Paid.

From The Atlantic Monthly.

What is the cause of the greatly increased burden imposed upon the average modern citizen for the expense of government? Is it the result of reckless extravagance by public officials, and the needless multiplication of useless offices, or does it afford substantial benefits to the community? Such a question is not capable of an unqualified answer. There is without doubt extravagance and needless multiplication of offices in the great machines which constitute modern governments. It is in the very nature of Government service to be less flexible, less efficient, and more costly than private service. The controlling reason is the absence of competition. Methods which would bankrupt a private establishment are the usual methods of Governments, partly because of the recognized necessity for greater formality and more strict accountability, but largely also because the Government has no competitor in those fields which it enters. In assuming control of the Postal Service it legislates against private Post Offices. In assuming charge of the police it practically prohibits rival police companies, except for special and private services. In regulating the coinage of money it prohibits private mints. In all these fields, the Government service is not self-supporting, but substitutes forced levies upon the pockets of the taxpayers for the favorable balance sheet, which is the vital necessity of private business.

This statement of the evils inherent in Government methods does not, however, touch the question whether such methods are becoming worse under modern conditions than they were a century ago or a generation ago. The fact in most cases is that these methods are becoming better; that public servants render better service; that their compensation is being brought more closely in harmony with that in private business, and in many positions of honor and scientific skill far below that in private business, and that the pressure of public opinion is bringing public services into closer harmony with private methods. The reason for the great increase in public expenditures must be sought, therefore, in other sources than the corruption of the service or its lack of efficiency. Examination of the facts will show that it is found in new and better services performed by the State for the community.

The Wolf.

The wolf came sniffing at my door,
But the wolf had prowled on my track before,
And his sniff, sniff, sniff at my lodge door-sill
Only made me laugh at his devilish will.

I stirred my fire and read my book,
And joyed my soul at my ingle-nook.
His sniff and his snarl were always there,
But my heart was not the heart of a hare.

I cursed the beast and drove him away,
But he came with the fall of night each day,
And his sniff, sniff, sniff the whole night through
I could hear between the winds that blew.

And the time came when I laughed no more,
But glanced with fear at my frail lodge door,
For now I knew that the wolf at bay
Sooner or later would have his way.

The Fates were three, and I was one.
About my life a net was spun;
My soul grew faint in the deadly snare,
And the shrewd wolf knew my heart's despair.

A crash, and my door flew open wide.
My strength was not as the beast's at my side.
That night on my hearthstone cold and bare
He licked his paw and made his lair.
—JOHN H. BONER in The Century.

Lord Roberts at Pretoria.

Winston Spencer Churchill in The World's Work.

The scene was a memorable one; the site was spacious and imposing. Within the quadrangle of high red sandstone buildings crowds of people had gathered, everywhere held back by thin brown lines of soldiers. Under the shadow of the old Dutch church, Lord Roberts, his Generals, the great staff, and the foreign attachés, a fine cavalcade, sat on their horses, while the victorious army defiled. For four hours the stream of khaki and steel—light glinting on muddy waters—flowed unceasingly. The sun blaze, refracted from the red houses, threw a golden glitter upon everything. The jaunty merry music of the marches, the bursts of cheering, the continuous pulsating concussions of the drums, and under all yet above all, the monotonous rhythm of marching feet produced a profound impression on the mind. And when the old flag flickered up to the top of the Parliament House, what with the memory of twenty years of shame and bitterness, "Remember Majuba, you dirty English," and the memory of 30,000 good men and true scattered behind, dead, wounded, or diseased along the track of invasion, even the dullest, heaviest souls were powerfully stirred, and all men felt this was an hour to live.

Some one—a staff officer—turned to Lord Roberts when all was over.

"You must be a happy man to-day, Sir."

"No," replied the Field Marshal, with a momentary expression of intense weariness, "not happy—thankful."

And the officer remembered the grave in Natal which had swallowed up a father's hope and pride.

The Chinese Cuisine.

From Blackwood.

Though Chinese cuisine has been credited with some utterly fabulous dishes—such as white mice served alive, which add piquancy by their squeak as they dive down the gullet—curiosities in the edible line do form a considerable list. Bird's-nest soup, for instance; a clear soup made from the refined gluten with which a certain species of swallow fasten their nests beneath the rocks; stewed "sea slugs"—another nasty-sounding dish, but transcending in flavor the Aldermanic green turtle fat. There may be, too, on first introduction, some prejudice against fried grasshoppers. But courage in this instance is rewarded by a deliciously crisp, brown mouthful, of a delicate nutty flavor. It is a fallacy to suppose that pork forms a constant article of diet in China. As a matter of fact, it is too expensive, and is only eaten on high days and holidays, or at restaurants. Neither do milk, beef, or game enter much into Chinese cookery, the first two being tabooed on religious grounds. Dog flesh is eaten in the south—but rarely, and by only the poorest of the poor.

Moors Changing Their Nationality.

From The Monthly Review.

To escape the extortionate demands of the Moorish authorities, many Moors are only too glad to abandon their own nationality and become the protected subjects of some foreign Government that has Consular representation in the country. All that is requisite is to persuade some foreign subject domiciled in Morocco to nominate him as partner or agent in some trading or agricultural enterprise, obtain a certificate from the foreigner's Consul to that effect and pay the annual fee. The Moor is then amenable only to the Consulate authorities that extend him such "protection," and is no longer liable to the domination of the Sultan, or any of his Kaids or Bashas. To secure this immunity, he will readily pay a very heavy premium to the foreigner, either in cash down or on the basis of a percentage of his profits. The latter sometimes amounts to as much as one-half of his income, the foreigner investing no capital and running no risk, financial or otherwise. It is notorious that many foreigners domiciled in Morocco have no other source of income than that derived from the practice of indiscriminate protection. Great Britain alone puts a check upon this abuse by restricting its subjects to one "partner" and two "agents" of Moorish origin, but by France the system has been extensively fostered. The result is that the populations of the whole districts are now under French jurisdiction. This is, of course, more particularly the case among the tribes bordering on the Algerian frontier, of which the districts of Oudjda, El Mahala and El Amur may be cited. In Wazzan, too, on the road to Fez, the French have obtained a very considerable foothold, and in the Riff hundreds of the inhabitants have not only sought refuge under the color, but have actually crossed the frontier and joined some regiment of Spahis in Algeria. There is not the slightest doubt that the same policy is being pursued further south, in the region of Tafilet, so that the Sultan has lost his hold over a large number of the inhabitants dwelling on the eastern frontier from the Mediterranean to Sus.

Troubles of an Explorer.

Dr. A. Donaldson Smith in the Geographical Journal.

Marching in as straight a line as possible from Berbera, El Dere may be considered to be 750 miles by road and the same distance from the Nile. Three long marches from El Dere to Le lead us through a very wooded and broken country, where elephants abound and man is a rare visitor. There are many mountains scattered about, principally of limestone rock, and the deep wells at Le I now believe to have been originally formed by the disintegrating effects of water on chalk, in which the natives have actively assisted. My Somalis gave me infinite trouble and annoyance. They were never satisfied unless they had over ten pounds of camel meat or mutton a day per man, and when food was scarce I had to be constantly on the alert to prevent them from poisoning my transport animals, so that they could eat the meat, or from stealing sheep, but they were not, however, as miserable petty thieves as most of my Indians. All but four of them mutinied at a place called Gof on Nov. 4, and remained out over night, putting me in a decidedly disagreeable situation. If I call my Somalis howling hungry humbugs, I describe some bad points of their character, but it would be unjust in me not to mention their superb physical condition, swift-footedness and endurance, and their intelligence, which made them compare favorably with the Indians. Of my nine Gurkhas, five only were pure-blooded men from the backwoods of Nepal, and these were among the best men in camp. The other four Gurkhas had Rajput or other blood in their veins, and it is with regret that I look upon them as human beings These latter, and as many more Sikhs, continually strove to commit suicide by hiding if the march was long, and gave me and the Somalis infinite trouble in hunting them up. Two Indians were cunning enough to evade the Somalis search parties sent after them at different points on the journey, and were never heard from again. Whenever the march was protracted over five hours, either my assistant or I fell back far to the rear of the caravan to protect tired Indians from themselves.

"The Queen's Regulations."

From The National Review.

What is really wrong in the English service is the awful "system" under which the soldiers live and die. The "system" is a truly terrible monster peryading everything, smothering everybody with pipe clay, and binding them hand and foot with red tape, shedding a blight on the whole army. Whoever invented the army system nobody knows—whether it was the much-abused civilian War Office clerk or a staff officer, but there it is, irremediable and awful. The effect of the system is to reduce all officers, whether they began by possessing brains or not, to a dead level of dull mediocrity, to stamp out as unprofessional and almost insubordinate any approach to originality or freedom of thought, speech, or action, and to occupy them almost exclusively, not in any useful or practical soldiering, but in profitless detail, and the writing and answering of endless "memos."

They may be found at length in that most extraordinary volume, "The Queen's Regulations for the Army," a book which contains 2,196 regulations and thirteen appendices, all of which every officer is supposed to know by a sort of intuition. Of these, no less than seventy-one apply to questions of dress, while four apply to musketry, and one to field training, (the two things most needed in view of real fighting,) and need I say that in all the seventy-one dress regulations there is no allusion whatever to the costume in which the British soldier actually fights his battles? This ridiculous disproportion between pipe-clay and practice is faithfully reflected in actual service. By the one regulation relating to field training, four weeks in the year are devoted to it by the four regulations relating to musketry, another four weeks are devoted to it—a total of eight weeks of really useful work out of fifty-two! Yet every day the men are had out and inspected by their officers to see if they have got all their straps on! or that there is not one spot of grease on their pipe-clayed pouches! or that they shaved this morning and not last night! And immaculate Generals, bred and born in the system, come round and judge regiments by their "appearance," and, perhaps, by a ceremonial parade, but whether they can shoot or know how to take cover is of no consequence at all until they get within 500 yards of the Boers, and then? Well, then we turn round and abuse the Government for not having sent out more men similarly trained a month or two earlier!

Basque Customs.

From The Gentleman's Magazine.

If the Valley of Aspe was famous for its wailing women, that of Ossau had no less a reputation for funeral baked meats. The wakes there were so splendid that De Gassion, a Bishop of Oloron in the seventeenth century, directed his clergy to put them down with a strong hand, while the Jurats of the valley co-operated by imposing a fine of 20 little écus in all cases of grave excess. Among the Basques festivities were kept up, not only after the funeral, but also for eight days more, and on New Year's Day, when they were repeated. In their case this was a purely religious ceremonial observance, even if it originated in pagan days. For religion has entered into and still pervades the funeral rites of the Basques to a degree now hardly conceivable. The deceased, who, if the head of the family, probably belonged to the third religious order, was usually buried in the appropriate dress of that order. The funeral was presided over by the Sérore, who was a sort of nun. This probably, as O'Shea says, came down from the time when women held high ecclesiastical positions among the Basques. The very feasts were relics of days when an offering of meat, bread, and wine was wont to be brought into the church or churchyard, not only at the funeral, but every day for two years afterward, for the supposed benefit of the deceased, and really for that of the clergy. Up to 1766, in Guipuzcoa, on the occasion of a funeral, an ox was taken to the church door, and then killed and subsequently eaten, a survival, of course, of pagan sacrifices in primitive times. In whatever way the habit of taking the deceased to the church on an open bier arose, there can be no question but that the fire lit at the nearest crossroads, and the obligatory Peter à l'intention du défunt is of deeply religious origin, and both in deed and in truth appeals to each neighbor to pray for the soul of a departed brother.

Buried in Woolen.

From Chambers's Journal.

In 1679 an act was passed requiring the dead to be buried in woolen, the purpose being to lessen "the importation of linen from beyond the seas and the encouragement of the woolen and paper manufactures of this kingdom." A penalty of £5 was inflicted for a violation of this act; and as frequently people preferred to be buried in linen, a record of the fine appears—for example, at Gayton, Northamptonshire, where we find in the register: "1708. Mrs. Dorothy Bellingham was buryed April 5, in Linnen, and the forfeiture of the Act payd, fifty shillings to ye informer and fifty shillings to the poor of the parishe."

Pope wrote the following lines on the burial of Mrs. Oldfield, the actress, with reference to this custom:

"Odious! in woollen! 'Twould a saint provoke,
(Were the last words poor Narcissa spoke,)
"No; let a charming chintz and Brussels lace Wrap my cold limbs and shade my lifeless face."

Fata Morgana.

Dear, if I ate of red pomegranate seed—
What would I wish for? Ah, believe me, this:
The comradeship which I should sorest miss
If fate dealt niggardly with word or deed,
Given for aye into my hold; the need
Of struggle for my gladness gone; and mine
The inmost recess of your heart's sweet shrine,
Where tremblingly I learned to tell love's creed.
And if fulfillment came—if this might be—
Strong in the knowledge that I stood above
All fear of loss; in blessed certainty
Of life worth living—then, indeed, dear love,
I feel that I could conquer worlds without
That one great haunting dread—the dread of doubt!
—CHARLOTTE BECKER in Harper's Bazar.

Honors for Japanese Soldiers.

From Scribner's.

To the little brown soldiers of the Mikado such honors as this inglorious war has to bestow must, by common consent, fall. Unpleasantly surprising as it undoubtedly will be to Western nations, there is no gainsaying this. The Japanese have, of all the nationalities engaged in this business, shown to the best advantage. They came to the work intelligently equipped, in understanding of the situation, with its many requirements, and meahs to deal with it. They have consistently employed, from the beginning, both understanding and means. Because of these things their success has been conspicuous among nations which have heretofore arrogated to themselves, in invincible conceit, the crown of superiority.

Vaudeville Performers.

From Alnslee's Magazine.

The weekly bill of a vaudeville theatre usually represents a fair proportion of striking individual turns to a balance of general variety. Dramatic sketches or acrobatic acts which require the full stage alternate with monologists and singers that need only the space of the first entrance. In this way changes of scene are made without delay. For from the moment the house has an audience—and there is always a crowd waiting before the doors are opened—until the last picture is shown on the biograph at night, some act is going on. A bill contains sixteen turns, only eight of which appear in the supper show. Here is an outline of the contents of an average bill:

Two dramatic sketches.
Two teams of acrobats.
Two vocalists, (one in character, one straight.)
Three or four song-and-dance comedy duos, if sufficiently varied.
One or two monologists.
Two single singers.
Two teams of talking comedians.
Two teams of musical specialists.

The average cost of such a bill is $2,200 for the week. If a manager is spending $2,500 a week for acts, he must do a rushing business. At $2,200 he is safe from worry. One of the best-known vaudeville theatres has a seating capacity of 1,200. On ordinary days the house is filled in the afternoon and in the evening. The supper show audiences run much lighter.

"In the lightest business we do," said the manager, "we turn the house over twice and a half. In heavy business we turn it over three and a half times. On Saturdays and on holidays we have four and five full houses."

No seats are sold, only admission, and you are entitled to a seat when the usher can find one. Admission costs from 25 cents to a dollar, according to the part of the theatre. It is not hard to see how the manager may safely invest $2,200 a week in the selection of his bill. This theatre is open every day in the year except Sunday.

The Setting Sun.

One radiant outflash of surpassing splendor,
And with the perfect peace of self-surrender,
Without a tear,
Without a fear,
Like some high spirit summoned from our sight,
The sun steps down into the unknown night.
—GRACE DENIO LITCHFIELD in The Bookman.

Church Building.

From The Saturday Review.

A certain amount of cant is prevalent about bricks and mortar being less important than the living agent, and as to barn-like buildings being none the less homes of spiritual activities. Doubtless a cathedral ought to be a radiating centre of learning and leadership in good works throughout a whole diocese, as well as a noble edifice and a pattern of dignified worship. But it is in what strikes the eye that it influences the imagination, and this, in an age of absorption in material interest when the things of this present world and the life of the moment press ever more heavily upon us, is what is now and will be increasingly of supreme value. Ours is not an idealizing age in the sense that even the early Victorian period was idealizing. We need more than any preceding generation these standing reminders of another world. Pulpit protests against "other worldliness" are in this day but so much cant, to which we need the spire's "silent finger" as antidote. Yet this is the time which has been chosen for pulling down the city churches, on the plea that "God's quarter acres" are worth so much a foot, and that suburban Londoners cannot be expected to build churches for themselves.

At Birmingham the other day a church was sold for £5, and the consecrated site is now dedicated to Mammon. It had no architectural interest, but the London churches have much, and if the wealthy laity of the Church of England cannot extend her borders without recouping themselves by destroying the creations of Wren and Inigo Jones, it is a confession that her day is over. In any case, beautiful or not, a church ought not to become "old materials." "The building," said the Bishop of London last February, "might be a small thing in itself, but it was something. It was useful to thousands of people who never set foot within its walls; it preached them a sermon every time they passed it, for it reminded them, in the midst of all their activity and thoughtlessness of higher things, that the world was God's world after all."

The Smothering Scene.

From The Gentleman's Magazine.

As to stage appointments, there were no plush or velvet curtains or couches draped with satin in early days. The furniture was as unpretentious as the costumes; indeed, on one occasion, when a lady was playing Desdemona to her husband's Othello, a disastrous, and at the same time ludicrous, effect (though, of course, unrehearsed) had been imminent through the lack of even a nail or two to make an old stool steady.

It was the smothering scene, and the couch was made up of two chairs and a rickety stool, covered, of course, with the simplest draperies—a red merino curtain trimmed with yellow worsted fringe. Imagine a Desdemona endeavoring to recline gracefully, all the while feeling portions of her couch sliding from under her. This is how the scene was played out:

Desdemona—Kill me to-morrow; let me live to-night. (I'm falling, dear!)
Othello—Nay, if you strive— (Keep quite still.)
Desdemona—But half an hour. (Oh, hold me!)
Othello—Being done, there is no pause. (I'll push the stool under.)
Desdemona—But while I say a prayer. (Do be quick, Robert, it is slipping.)
Othello—It is too late!

Which, indeed, it was, for the bed collapsed and Desdemona's body lay upon the floor, her head upon the sole chair which stuck to its post faithfully.

The Carnival.

From The Fortnightly Review.

As the carnival is always held on the last three days before the beginning of Lent, its date shifts somewhat from year to year, but it invariably falls either in February or March. Now, if the Saturnalia, like many other seasons of license, was always observed at the end of the old year or the beginning of the new one, it must, like the carnival, have been originally held in February or March at the time when March was the first month of the Roman year. So strong and persistent are the conservative instincts of the peasantry in respect to old custom, that it would be no matter for surprise if, in rural districts of Italy, the ancient festival continued to be celebrated at the ancient time long after the change of the calendar had shifted the official celebration of the Saturnalia in the towns from February to December. Latin Christianity, which struck at the root of official or civic paganism, has always been tolerant of its rustic cousins, the popular festivals and ceremonies which, unaffected by political and religious revolutions, by the passing of empires and of gods, have been carried on by the people with but little change from time immemorial, and represent in fact the original stock from which the State religions of classical antiquity were comparatively late offshoots. Thus it may very well have come about that while the new faith stamped out the Saturnalia in the towns, it suffered the original festival, disguised by a difference of date, to linger unmolested in the country; and so the old feast of Saturn, under the modern name of the carnival, has reconquered the cities, and goes on merrily under the eye and with the sanction of the Catholic Church.

The Haunted Oak.

"Pray, why are you so bare, so bare,
O bough of the old oak tree;
And why, when I go through the shade you throw
Runs a shudder over me?"

"My leaves were green as the best, I trow,
And sap ran free in my veins,
But I saw in the moonlight dim and weird
A guiltless victim's pains.

"I bent me down to hear his sigh;
I shook with his gurgling moan;
And I trembled sore when they rode away
And left him here alone.

"They'd charged him with the old, old crime,
And set him fast in jail;
Oh, why does the dog howl all night long,
And why does the night wind wail?

"I feel the rope against my bark,
And the weight of him in my grain,
I feel in the throe of his final woe
The touch of my own last pain.

"And nevermore shall leaves come forth
On a bough that bears the ban.
I am burned with dread, I am dried and dead,
From the curse of a guiltless man."
—PAUL DUNBAR in The Century.

Interpolation in Memory.

From The Contemporary Review.

The expert violinist who has a feeling for correct intonation, who has a "good ear," in common parlance, has to adapt his fingering to each strange instrument—aye, and to each fresh string; for the intervals are never mathematically true, and vary with each fiddle and with each string. The pianist has to graduate differently the minute variations of touch to the varying resistance and resonance of each instrument. A brilliard player may have learned something of the laws of reflection of moving bodies, and possibly have a hazy glimmer of the subjects of friction and spin and imperfect elasticity, though these involve such high mathematical powers for conscious solution that it is doubtful whether any champion has mastered them. But even had he done so, he would require for their application to each table, each ball, each cue, a preliminary investigation into their several "constants"; and given all these, such problems are not to be worked out in the limited time an expert spends between two successive strokes of a break. Nor could he thereby, after trying a few strokes on a new table, allow, at once, as he does, for its "fastness," resiliency, and truth, different from any he has known.

"With Hard Labor."

From The Forum.

The absolute necessity of labor as a remedial agent, both physical and moral, is universally recognized by all penologists. Those who are most positive in their convictions on this subject are the prison wardens. They have found that the hardest prison to conduct, with reference to the physical and moral welfare of the prisoners, is one in which the men languish in idleness, leading to insanity and bodily degeneration. The sentence to a penitentiary "with hard labor" has an aspect of severity which is misleading. Although labor is sometimes believed to be a curse, as a fact it is a divine blessing—a necessary element in all development, a condition of moral and physical health. The cruelty is not in the sentence to hard labor, but in a sentence to isolation without it. No principle of prison administration is better established than that which insists on a sufficient amount of labor. There is a vast difference between the mental and moral effect of labor which is productive or educative and that which is simply aimless drudgery. A serious defect of the English prison system was the use for a long time of the treadmill and the crank. A man was set to turn a flywheel with a register attached which recorded the number of revolutions. His task was perhaps 10,000 turns a day. There was no danger that this drudgery would compete with any labor outside, but it made the man a part of the machine he turned. From the standpoint of political economy, it was foolish to waste in this way a man's energy which might have been turned to the advantage of the State or to the advantage of the man or his family. A thorough investigation by a Parliamentary commission about five years ago condemned this fruitless labor, and it is now abolished. The report of the United States Industrial Commission on the subject of prison labor, submitted to Congress last Spring, says: "Every interest of society and consideration of discipline, economy, reformation, and health demands that prisoners should be kept employed at productive work. Manufacturers, wage earners, and all who have given the subject any consideration are practically unanimous in this conclusion."

"Stand the Racket."

From Notes and Queries.

"Stand" in this phrase is evidently an abbreviation of "withstand," and a "racket" is a noise resembling that produced by playing the ball with the racket in the game of tennis. Hence it has apparently acquired the meaning, not only of endurance or resistance of tumultuous noises, as confused talk, superabundant street noises, &c., but also that of bearing any specific burden, such as financial responsibility. It would perhaps be futile to seek its exact origin, further than assuming it to be contemporaneous with the adoption of the racket in the national pastime of tennis. In former times the French, who seem to have been the first to use the racket, played with the naked hand, then with a glove, which in some instances was lined; afterward they bound cords and tendons around their hands to make the ball rebound more forcibly, and hence the racket derived its origin. (See "Essais Historiques sur Paris," Vol. I., Page 160, quoted in Strutt's "Sports and Pastimes," &c.)

Travelers' Guide—Railroads.

PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD.

STATIONS FOOT OF WEST TWENTY-THIRD STREET AND DESBROSSES AND CORTLANDT STREETS.

☞The leaving time from Desbrosses and Cortlandt streets is five minutes later than that given below for Twenty-third Street Station, except where otherwise noted.

7:55 A. M.—FAST MAIL.—Limited to two Buffet Parlor Cars New York to Pittsburg. Sleeping Car Pittsburg to Chicago. No coaches to Pittsburg.
9:25 A. M.—FAST LINE.—Pittsburg and Cleveland.
9:55 A. M.—PENNSYLVANIA LIMITED.—Pullman Compartment Sleeping, Dining, Smoking, and Observation Cars. For Chicago, Cleveland, Toledo, Cincinnati, Indianapolis, Louisville, St. Louis.
1:55 P. M.—CHICAGO AND ST. LOUIS EXPRESS.—For Toledo, Nashville, (via Cincinnati and Louisville,) Indianapolis, Chicago, St. Louis. Dining Car.
5:55 P. M.—ST. LOUIS EXPRESS.—For Pittsburg, Indianapolis, Louisville, St. Louis. Dining Car.
3:55 P. M.—WESTERN EXPRESS.—For Chicago. For Toledo, except Saturday. Dining Car.
7:55 P. M.—PACIFIC EXPRESS.—For Pittsburg and Chicago. For Knoxville, daily, via Shenandoah Valley Route. Connects for Cleveland except Saturday.
8:25 P. M.—CLEVELAND AND CINCINNATI EXPRESS.—For Pittsburg, Cleveland, Cincinnati.

WASHINGTON AND THE SOUTH.
7:55, 9:25, 8:55 10:10 (Desbrosses and Cortlandt Streets, 10:20) (Dining Car,) 10:55 (Dining Car) A. M., 12:55, 12:55 (Dining Car,) 2:10 (Desbrosses and Cortlandt Streets, 2:20,) (3:25, "Congressional Lim.," all Parlor and Dining Cars,) 3:25, 4:25 (Dining Car,) 4:55 (Dining Car,) 9:25 P. M., 12:10 night Sunday, 8:25, 8:55, 10:55 (Dining Car) A. M., 12:55, 12:55 (Dining Car,) (3:25 "Congressional Lim.," all Parlor and Dining Cars,) 3:25, 4:25, (Dining Car,) 4:55, (Dining Car,) 9:25 P. M., 12:10 night.
SOUTHERN RAILWAY.—Express, 3:25, 4:25 P. M., 12:10 night daily.
NORFOLK AND WESTERN RAILWAY.—For Memphis and New Orleans, 3:25 P. M. daily.
ATLANTIC COAST LINE.—Express, 8:55 A. M. and 9:25 P. M. daily.
CHESAPEAKE & OHIO RAILWAY.—8:55 A. M. and 4:55 P. M. daily.
SEABOARD AIR LINE.—Express, 12:55 P. M. and 12:10 night daily.
ATLANTIC CITY.—9:55 A. M. and 2:55 P. M. week-days. Through Vestibuled Trains, Buffet Parlor Cars, and Standard Coaches.
CAPE MAY

The New York Times.

"All the News That's Fit to Print."

PUBLISHED EVERY DAY IN THE YEAR.

NEW YORK, SUNDAY, JAN. 6, 1901.

OFFICES:

NEW YORK:
Publication Office.....41 Park Row
All American District Telegraph Offices.
WASHINGTON.....515 Fourteenth St.
SWITZERLAND, Geneva: P. Drehmann, Librairie Nouvelle, Rue du Mont Blanc.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.
BY MAIL, POSTAGE PAID.

DAILY, per Month	$0.50
DAILY, per Year	6.00
DAILY AND SUNDAY, per Year	7.50
SUNDAY, per Year	1.50
MONDAY, with Financial Supplement, per Year	1.00
DAILY AND SUNDAY, per Month	0.65
THE NEW YORK TIMES SATURDAY REVIEW, per Year	1.00

For postage to foreign countries add 80 cents per month.

TWENTY-SIX PAGES.

THE REAL FIGHT.

On Friday The Evening Sun published a long and detailed statement of the conditions in the Eighth Assembly District. The following is the introductory summary, and the facts recited minutely in the body of the article fully sustain the astonishing assertions of this summary:

Imagine, if you can, a section of the city territory completely dominated by one man, without whose permission neither legitimate nor illegitimate business can be conducted; where illegitimate business is encouraged and legitimate business discouraged; where the respectable residents have to fasten their doors and windows Summer nights and sit in their rooms with asphyxiating air and 100-degree temperature, rather than try to catch the faint whiff of breeze in their natural breathing places, the stoops of their homes; where naked women dance by night in the streets, and unsexed men prowl like vultures through the darkness on "business" not only permitted but encouraged by the police; where the education of infants begins with the knowledge of prostitution and the training of little girls is training in the arts of PHRYNE; where American girls brought up with the refinements of American homes are imported from small towns up-State, Massachusetts, Connecticut, and New Jersey, and kept as virtually prisoners as if they were locked up behind jail bars until they have lost all semblance of womanhood; where small boys are taught to solicit for the women of disorderly houses; where there is an organized society of young men whose sole business in life is to corrupt young girls and turn them over to bawdy houses; where men walking with their wives along the street are openly insulted; where children that have adult diseases are the chief patrons of the hospitals and dispensaries; where it is the rule, rather than the exception, that murder, rape, robbery, and theft go unpunished—in short, where the premium of the most awful forms of vice is the profit of the politicians.

At the meeting of the City Club on Friday evening Bishop POTTER related how he was approached, before sending his letter to the Mayor, by a man who said that he represented RICHARD CROKER, and asked him if he would be satisfied with the discharge of Capt. HERLIHY and Inspector CROSS, to which the Bishop very properly replied that he and those who were working with him did not think it a question of men. "These men," said the Bishop, "did but the bidding of those above them, and those above them in their turn were the creatures of those still higher. I told him that it was a system we were opposing, not a man or men, for he knew as well as you and I that the policeman does not hold his place through devotion to duty or honesty, but wholly and solely by the favor of those above him, who are responsible for the system."

It cannot too often be repeated that the real fight in which the aroused citizens of New York are enlisted is not to abolish vice entirely, which is hopeless, but to abolish police and political protection for vice, which is entirely practicable if all energies are concentrated and directed to that end. The first process is one of exposure. It is to this that the Committee of Fifteen and the Committee of Five must address their first efforts. We note, in passing, that Mr. BALDWIN, the Chairman of the former committee, is reported to have said that his committee may also take up the abuse of "tax-dodging." We trust that he has been misunderstood, or that he expressed no definite intention. It will be ample time to take up tax-dodging or any other abuse when vice is no longer licensed by the police, and the police can no longer be compelled by any political force to license vice. Until that time the Committee of Fifteen can properly have no more to do with questions of taxation than with questions of food adulteration or dress reform. The utmost that that committee, in co-operation with all the organizations which it invites to work with it, can do will be none too much for the task that presents itself.

We are aware that the process of exposure is not an easy or quick one. There is, of course, ample evidence available to the Commissioners of Police and to the Mayor to justify and demand decisive action on their part. If they were honest, and if they were free to do their duty honestly, the police force would promptly be made to cut all connection with vice, and the men responsible for past corruption would be disciplined, dismissed, and started on the way to State prison. This indeed would have been done long ago, before the evil reached its present portentous extent. That it was not then done is proof that it will not be done now, unless a compelling public opinion can be brought to bear. To bring public opinion to bear there must be explicit, convincing, and impressive facts made known. If evidence could be secured on which Police Captains, Inspectors, or the Chief could be indicted and sentenced to imprisonment, it would have a great and probably decisive effect. The offer of a reward of sufficient amount, at the proper stage, might secure such evidence. Doubtless this is a measure already considered by the Committee of Fifteen. The co-operation of the District Attorney's office with energy and in good faith is now to be counted on, and that is an immense advantage. One legal conviction for corruption would bring the responsibility home to those behind the police, and the people can be trusted to do the rest.

THE DUTY OF THE RICH.

Mr. ABRAM S. HEWITT has of late been giving some plain and emphatic advice to his wealthy fellow-citizens. He is convinced that as a body they do not do their full duty toward the poor. He recognizes, and cordially, the value of the work that is being done in the quarters of the city where the poor dwell, but he thinks that it is not near what is needed and not near what the wealthy men of the city could afford to do if they chose.

It is a somewhat delicate subject of discussion, but certainly Mr. HEWITT speaks with peculiar authority in regard to it. He has given much of his own money and very liberally of his time and energy to the fruitful work of Cooper Institute, founded and in part endowed by the father of his wife. He has had especial facilities for knowing at once what can be done in the way of intelligent benevolence and the need that exists for the utmost that such benevolence can do. Doubtless he would not assume to pass judgment on the conduct of any individual in the class to which he addresses himself and to say how much of that individual's means should be devoted to aiding the unfortunate. Still less would he undertake to say what particular form such aid should take. These are matters as to which the individual must decide for himself. But we do not think that many, even of the class criticised, would deny that, as applied to the class, the criticism is just. It is not easy to fix the ratio in which appropriations from private income should be made to improve the condition and the prospects of the poor, but it would be a hardy man indeed that would venture to say that the present ratio is surely ample.

On the very day that Mr. HEWITT made his latest public utterance on this subject the Premier of Great Britain, Lord SALISBURY, made an address to his political followers on a like matter, the wretched housing of a very large part of the population of London. The account in brief, given by The Spectator, is as follows:

His chief point was to insist that if the Conservatives were to keep their hold on London they must take up the housing question. "They should devote all the power they possess to getting rid of that which is really a scandal to our civilization—the sufferings which many of the working classes have to undergo in the most moderate, I might say, the most pitiable, accommodation." They must not be frightened away from the remedies for social evils by the fact that they are made a cover or pretense for attacks upon property and other institutions. "You must repel these attacks, but at the same time you must not allow your attention to be diverted from the stern necessities which the vast social changes of our time are imposing upon all who cherish the prosperity of this country.

To which The Spectator remarks:

We sincerely trust that this means that Lord SALISBURY intends to take up the slum question in earnest. It is a vital problem. Unhappily, there are at this moment thousands of children growing up in London and the great towns under conditions which do not allow them to become good citizens, morally and physically. Unless that state of things is stopped, and we cease to produce a slum population, the State is in danger of an invasion of the worst possible kind—the invasion of an unfit and demoralized population, not from outside, but from within. No doubt the destruction of slums is costly, but remember that the essential thing for getting rid of slums is not money, but care and trouble and keeping watch that England is not fouled by recklessness or laziness.

These, it will be noted, are the arguments mainly from the point of view of party and referring to Governmental action. It will, we hope, be a long time before a responsible party leader in this city will approach the subject from that side. But surely Mr. HEWITT's appeal to the wealthy to take it up with greater earnestness and energy and generosity is greatly reinforced by the conditions disclosed in London. There are parts of New York more densely crowded than any parts of London. All the kinds of evil and misery that excite the alarm of Lord SALISBURY exist here. If the proportion is not yet so large and the outlook not so threatening, there is too much reason to believe that time will change this, and for the worse. It is to the sane and needful work of prevention that Mr. HEWITT invites his wealthy fellow-citizens to address themselves.

CHURCH STATISTICS.

The Independent is out with its usual church statistics, which still are somewhat unusual, for some items that are eagerly looked for by those who have a passion for figures are omitted. There is but one total in all the five pages. The reasons given by the compiler, who writes under his own name rather than under the shelter of an editorial, may or may not be deemed sufficient. They at least have the merit of leaving others to make up their totals to suit themselves. The orthodox can leave out the Roman Catholics, Unitarians, and Universalists, as well as the Christian Scientists, while these are equally at liberty to include themselves in the forces that are making or unmaking society.

Taking our own liberty, we find that the Roman Catholics lead, in appearance at least, with 8,500,000, while the Methodists come next, with, including the evangelical bodies, which are described as really Methodist, over 6,000,000. It appears, however, that the Roman Catholic figures include all baptized members of Roman Catholic families over nine years of age, while the Methodist figures are limited to actual church membership. If a common basis for the two could be found, probably the Methodists would lead in actual numbers. When we look, however, at the rate of increase the Roman Catholics far outstrip the Methodists, showing 38 per cent. of gain in ten years and 2.2 per cent. in one year against 2.1 per cent. in ten years and .7 per cent. in one year for the strongest Methodist body. It must be said, however, that the two leading bodies of colored Methodists show 4.8 and 5.3 per cent. for ten years and 1.4 per cent. for one year. As the statistics of colored communities are, however, proverbially uncertain, these figures are not as significant as they would be for the white population.

The most important figures, regarded from the standpoint of the general welfare of the country, it will be generally conceded, are those of the bodies which represent the most of education, wealth, and general culture—the Episcopalian, Presbyterian, Reformed, Congregational, and Baptist bodies. These furnish the great majority of students in our colleges and universities, the most influential element in our cities. The vital question in regard to them is not so much how do they compare with each other, but what relation do they bear to the growth of the population of the country? The last census gives that growth at something over 13,000,000, or about 21.8 per cent., during the ten years. If, now, we look at the different bodies referred to, we find that the Protestant Episcopal Church has grown 34.5 per cent., the Presbyterian (North) 23.5 per cent., the Reformed 15.5 per cent., the Congregational 23 per cent., and the two Baptist bodies, North and South, 23.5 per cent. It becomes evident thus that there has been a steady although meagre gain, a fact which may well deserve the attention of those who claim that the Church is losing its hold.

Undoubtedly some will be disturbed at the phenomenal figures given for the Christian Scientists. They are evidently the enthusiastic returns of some ardent admirer of the new cult, and may probably be taken with several grains of allowance. There is no substantial basis for permanency in that body, any more than in the Salvation Army, which apparently clings with nervous grasp to the figures of two or three years ago to hide its decadence. Such mushroom growths are indicative of reaction against some undue development of religious or philosophical theory rather than of any genuine hold upon new truth. The rigidity of orthodox creeds on the one hand and crass materialism on the other have both, from opposite extremes, contributed to Christian Science, while the institutional Christianity of such churches as St. Bartholomew's, St. George's, and others have, on the one hand, cut the ground out from under Gen. BOOTH's autocracy, and on the other gained a lead for their church far ahead of those which are centred with the distinctive intellectualism of the Westminster and kindred confessions.

On the whole, the showing is good, but not good enough to give much cause for self-gratulation to those who count themselves the "sweet elected few." They are holding their own so far, but if they are going to continue to do so, still more inherit the earth, they have, in the parlance of the street, got to hustle. The first essential in hustling is recognition of the actual situation. That is before the Churches. Next week is to be the week of prayer. With no irreverence we would recommend the Churches to precede that exercise with a pretty careful stocktaking. They are, most of them, just within the limits of bankruptcy. That may or may not be subject for encouragement; it can hardly be one for gratulation. They may well remember the old motto, "Laborare est orare," and remember that work comes before prayer.

THE APPALACHIAN NATIONAL PARK.

Perhaps the public attention has not been sufficiently drawn to the purposes and progress of the Appalachian National Park Association. It was formed only late in 1899 by citizens mainly of North Carolina, but including also representatives from South Carolina, Georgia, Virginia, West Virginia, Kentucky, and Tennessee. Its object, as may almost be inferred from its name, is to induce the Government to reserve a sufficient tract of land near and including the chief ridges of the Great Smoky Range, to protect the forests, and the water supply which depends upon them, and to establish a park which shall be an attractive Summer resort for the people within a radius of twenty-four hours' travel. This includes the population within the line beginning at Boston and passing by the lakes and the Mississippi to New Orleans. Apparently the park itself would be mainly if not altogether in North Carolina, which contains the tallest mountain east of the Rockies. But it would conserve the water supply which flows from the Appalachian chain to the Atlantic, the Mississippi, and the Gulf.

It is of course for the preservation of the forests that the public ownership of the tract is most urgently demanded. The increasing scarcity of timber, due to past improvidence, and the consequent advance in price, have sent the lumbermen to wildernesses in the mountains which only a few years ago were still virgin forests. The result is already reported in freshets and droughts in regions in which they had before been unknown. It is said that on the slopes of the mountains water powers which had sufficed for the primitive milling of the region, both in grain and timber, have already lost all value.

We have lately come to recognize that the wholesale destruction of forests is almost irreparable and entails injuries which are entirely so. The preservation of the forests is thus a matter properly of National importance. But it does not follow that the investment would be unremunerative because the forests would not be destroyed as fast under public control as when they are left to private ownership and the shortsightedness of personal interest. "Deboisement" is as much a part of good forestry as "reboisement." The great forest of Fontainebleau, besides being a priceless National possession, pays for its own maintenance. And the receipts from the French National forests altogether were about twice their expenses in the last year for which the returns are accessible.

The urgency is in this case greater than it was in the case of the Yellowstone Park, when that was laid out. Certainly no American citizen now grudges the expense of that public possession. We can command, in the officers and soldiers of the army, as faithful custodians of the Appalachian Park as of that, with an equal although very different scenic attractiveness, an easier accessibility, and equal attractions for the sportsman, if it turns out to be possible to permit sport without conniving at poaching and pothunting. It is worth noting that Asheville, which is the headquarters of the Park Association, has been found the most eligible place in the United States for perhaps the costliest country seat they contain.

The commission appointed by the Secretary of Agriculture last year in pursuance of a law of Congress will no doubt present data from which a trustworthy judgment may be formed of the probable cost of the proposed reservation. Certainly, on the face of it, the application deserves a candid and friendly investigation.

HASTEN THE PUBLIC LIBRARY.

A private owner who allowed a piece of ground so costly as the Fifth Avenue front of Bryant Park to lie unused would be regarded as guilty of great extravagance. All the more if he had excavated a hole upon the site and then omitted to go on with his building.

The case is not altered when it is the city which owns the ground, and when the return that is to come from it is to come, not in money, but in money's worth, by the erection of a structure that is to add to the attractiveness of the city and its means of civilization. The New York Public Library is now doing its beneficent work under great disadvantages. Otherwise there would be no need of the new building at all. And it is evident that these disadvantages are increasing with the increase of its collections, now so cramped for proper means of storage and exposition as to lessen their attractiveness and value to students.

There should be no hesitation in the granting of as much money as may be needed to carry on the work of building at the highest attainable rate of speed. Delay and parsimony here would be the reverse of true economy. Time enough has elapsed since the project was undertaken and the use of the ground authorized to have completed the building, which is not yet even begun. It is to be hoped that the Board of Estimate will take prompt measures to hasten the time when the city shall be relieved of the reproach of having no library building nor any single library which can be compared with those of smaller or younger municipalities.

GENERAL NOTES.

Do chicken hawks kill chickens? Ex-Gov. Glick of Kansas says very emphatically that in his opinion they do not.

* * *

The Baltimore American claims to be the only daily newspaper "which has seen the light of three centuries." The first issue of the paper was in 1773.

* * *

Dr. W. E. Grimm of West Virginia, who went over on call to attend some smallpox patients in Cumberland County, Md., when no local physician could be obtained, is under arrest on the charge of practicing medicine in Maryland without that State's license.

* * *

The Board of Trustees of Washington and Lee University will probably take action at a meeting to be held in Lexington, Va., on Tuesday, 15th inst., looking to the filling of the vacancy in the office of President of that university caused by the lamented death of the Hon. William L. Wilson.

* * *

Every ship loading at New Orleans with mules or horses under British contracts for use in South Africa is being carefully watched to prevent the placing on board of infernal machines or other destructive instruments in behalf of the Boers' cause. The coal especially is subjected to careful scrutiny.

* * *

President Hardy of the Mississippi Agricultural and Mechanical College says there is not a boy in the institution who smokes cigarettes, and there are 400 students there. Six months ago more than half of them smoked, but he convinced them of the evil results, and they gave up the practice.

* * *

A public school principal in New Orleans says that the ability to decipher more or less obscure handwriting quickly and accurately is, in his opinion, one of the best possible tests of general intelligence. He uses it quite frequently in his school, without letting the pupil suspect what he is after.

* * *

Though storm and flood did their terribly destructive work in Galveston, Texas, only such a little while ago, The Galveston News shows in its special New Year's Day number that the undaunted citizens of the stricken town have done much toward restoring it to its former good condition. Especially for a Southern town is its rehabilitation already somewhat marvelous.

MAKING FUN OF THE CONSTITUTION.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Permit a regular reader a few words concerning your editorial of to-day charging ex-President Harrison with "making fun of the Constitution" in his article in The North American Review.

The article in question, so far from making light of the Constitution, is evidently prompted by the highest regard and reverence for it, and tends to produce the same feeling in the candid reader. Its very object is manifestly to defend and exalt the Constitution. True, the article does show the ridiculous extremes to which a disregard of the Constitution might be carried if certain theories concerning it were accepted as correct; but such a reductio ad absurdum is certainly a valid and allowable test to apply to such theories in a popular address or article. To use such a method in this case is not making fun of the Constitution, whatever its effect may be on the theories mentioned and their advocates.

As you will remember, the article in The Review goes on to say, concerning the law outlined as "possible" under the theories in question: "No one supposes that Congress will ever assemble in a law such shocking provisions." The extreme case is supposed in the article in order to show broadly and strikingly what might be done if the unlimited extra Constitutional power of Congress in our outlying possessions were asserted and accepted as beyond dispute. It is no answer to this to say that nobody has ever dreamed of asserting such unlimited power. The question is whether such power is not necessarily involved in the new doctrines which have been propounded, and whether such power may not be exercised if such doctrines are accepted as a part of our fundamental law.

Mr. Harrison's argument on this question has not been answered, and it seems to the present writer to be unanswerable.

Your picture of Mr. Harrison trembling with nervous excitement communicated to him from the "septic literature of anti-imperialism" is decidedly amusing in an article solemnly setting out to rebuke the making fun of anything or anybody in a discussion. The particular condition in which you describe him to be is also entertaining. The chief crime that used to be charged against him was his "coldness." Now, it seems, he has gone to the other extreme. This is blowing first cold and then hot, with a vengeance, on the part of his accusers. If he must be found guilty on one of the counts, it may be as well to let the older charge stand. There may be some virtue, even in a cold thing—for instance, in this address of Mr. Harrison's. It has swept over the country like a clear, crisp, bracing Northwest wind, driving before it the fogs and vapors of imperialism that have so long benumbed the sensibilities and blinded the eyes of our people, and showing them the path of higher duty in the bright sunlight of liberty.

T. V. V.

New Haven, Conn., Jan. 4, 1901.

BEVERIDGE AND BRYAN.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have noticed the letter of "Diogenes" in your paper of last Sunday and cannot allow its statements to go unchallenged. I have known Senator Beveridge for eighteen years, since he became a sophomore in college, and a more unfair comparison than that of your correspondent could not be made. His slur at "small Western colleges" is on a par with the rest of his letter. If there is one place in the country today where sound thinking and direct utterance are taught, it is in these same "small Western colleges." Evidently "Diogenes" does not know that the men who are leaders in his Eastern schools are almost without exception men who have learned to think in Western colleges. I have been much amused since I came East by attending your great political meetings and seeing your political leaders read their addresses from manuscripts. Such a thing would not be tolerated in the West, and this, by the way, illustrates the differences between your Eastern and your Western man. The manuscript of your Eastern speakers indicates the encyclopaedic origin of their speeches and information. The Western man talks facts, and is so full of them that he needs no manuscript to prompt him. That which has raised New York out of the rut of insufferable commonplaceness is the emigration here of Western men.

But to the comparison between Bryan and Beveridge, or rather, the contrast. In the first place, Bryan, after leaving college, attempted to practice law and made a failure of it, but being a man with a voice, he went into politics, because that profession offered the best rewards for his gifts. Beveridge won his oratorical contests by the merit of his orations. There is nothing in his delivery to attract attention from the subject matter of his speech. His oratory is simply the earnest effort of a sound thinker to convince, and as you listen to him, you are impressed with the absolute sincerity of the man, and the truth of what he says.

Beveridge has always been a student, a man of thought, and since leaving college he has been a tireless worker, and most successful in the practice of law. When elected to the Senate he had built up a large and remunerative practice, and was retained in most of the important cases of his State. In striking contrast with Mr. Bryan, the great characteristic of Beveridge is his carefulness of utterance. He never talks at random as does Mr. Bryan. No matter how small the case or insignificant the occasion, Beveridge never appears without having made thorough preparation. The State Librarian of Indiana once said that Beveridge spent more time in the Law Library than any other two lawyers in the State. Beveridge makes it a point to know what he is talking about and no man has ever successfully contradicted his statements of fact. Beveridge is one of our best students of the Constitution. His address on "Constitutional Interpretation," delivered some years ago before the Bar Association at Pittsburg, is one of the most masterly that has ever been given, and I want to tell "Diogenes" now, that before Beveridge leaves the Senate he will be recognized as the greatest interpreter of the Constitution since Webster.

"Diogenes" wants men who think, and act, and accomplish. This is just what Beveridge is. In 1897 the Indiana State Republican Convention gathered in gloom and foreboding. The party leaders believed that they were beaten in advance. Beveridge was simply known as a brilliant young lawyer. In an address before the convention he struck a new note, and outlined the policy of expansion which has since become National. The party has found a new leader, and during the campaign which followed Beveridge spoke in every county of the State. It was admitted by all that the great Republican success in that State that Fall was due to his efforts. When the Legislature gathered Beveridge was without support and opposed by the machine; when the county officers over the State heard that he desired the Senatorship, nearly all of them, feeling that they owed their election to Beveridge's efforts, came down to the capital almost in a body. After that the Senatorship was not in doubt. That is what Mr. Beveridge accomplished in his thirty-sixth year.

Bryan is a pessimist, hampered by fear, by distrust of the people, and by the limitations of his own mind. Not being a student he does not know and cannot see, and he thinks that all others are in the same condition. But Beveridge is an optimist, confident of the future, a student of history and law, he knows what has been accomplished, recognizes the principles on which our progress is based, and sees a glorious future unfolding before us if we adhere to them. He trusts himself and the genius of the American people, and we who are finding opportunity limited by our development at home should be thankful that there is such a leader in the Senate, who believes in saving and making an opportunity for American young men wherever it can be found. One more contrast. At forty Mr. Bryan is a has-been; Beveridge has just begun.

GUY MORRISON WALKER.

New York, Jan. 4, 1901.

TABLOID JOURNALISM AND TIME-SAVERS.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It is not surprising that Mr. Alfred Harmsworth has run away from tabloid journalism in London to seek solace in a pastime which will impose on him the other extreme—for fishing cannot be enjoyed in tabloid form; fish are not progressive.

"The twentieth century will be a time-saver," he says. Brevity will be its motto in journalism. Well, there is brevity and brevity. He declares that he gives the news of this big, active world in his London paper in a space that requires only a sixty seconds' reading. But a few bare outlines of events referring one to several columns elsewhere, that may take up an hour or three, is not giving the news in sixty seconds. More than ten years ago Jules Simon, a noted Frenchman, in a speech at Paris, said: "The nations have now entered on a period of haste in commercial affairs. In the United States the people are always on the double-quick." And it was true, even then. Our insane asylums were only half full at that time, and were not so numerous as now, when they are overcrowded, 4,000 persons being in some State institutions. Larger ones must be built in the century for some of the overbusy men and women, victims of the wildcat pace which is now upon us. This pace has been introduced into our vaunted public schools. The children are so loaded down with lessons, impossible to be grasped, that they are too nervous to sleep quietly. At the Normal College the girls have fifteen minutes at each lesson, one following rapidly on the other. Flats having narrow, dark rooms, and thin walls that crash in a strong wind, and often without one, are built for the homes of the majority of the people of New York.

An editor of a city paper said, some time ago: "Our civilization is a chromo civilization." This editor was considered one of the ablest in Manhattan.

The skillful craftsman has disappeared, and we have the machine tender. Now comes Mr. Harmsworth with tabloid journalism. "The twentieth century must be a time-saver." It will boil down the wine of life "till the mere lees are left this vault to brag of." Mr. Harmsworth proposes to boil down literature—the works of the best writers—into a skeleton that will give the busy man, in a newspaper column two or three times a week, the substance of two hundred volumes a year to assimilate. In this delightful way the busy man can enjoy three or four fleshless and bloodless feasts every week without any waste of time, except while reading.

The old saying "There is no royal road to learning" will be blotted out by the benevolent assimilation process of Mr. Harmsworth—for what benevolence can be greater than that of employing a corps of literary experts to reduce the brains of genius to tabloid form, for the convenience and enlightenment of the busy man, thus giving him leisure to go to his club for the evening or to fishing by daylight? And what a blessed boon to the lazy reader, who "skips" three chapters of every four. Mr. Harmsworth gives not a thought to the poor authors. He does not ask if disemboweling in this summary style would be agreeable to them. Nor does he trouble himself to inquire if this skeleton literature would be satisfying even to the busy man.

If the twentieth century gives us tabloid journalism, why not tabloid eating, drinking, and wooing? The busy man, instead of going to a restaurant at noon could carry all sorts of meats and vegetables in tabloid form in his pocket. He could bear about with him his whisky or cognac, while his employe, the workman, could exchange capsules of cocktails with his comrades without going to saloons. Women could discharge their cooks and enjoy a meal from their handbags, while devoting the day to an examination of Paris fashions.

And the busy or the nervous lover! He could boil down his sighs, groans, pleadings, &c., to a single sentence, short, but full of meaning—indeed, much more than Mr. Harmsworth's tabloid sixty-second news. And this brief but expressive sentence is ready-made to his hand or, rather, his lips. "Barkis is willin'" has become famous. We know he said no more in getting the hand and heart of a bride. Barkis used tabloid speech. Now, if it once became the custom—and why could not Mr. Harmsworth suggest boiling down lawmaking as well as literature?—what a time and nerve saver it would be! "Quibbs is willin'" would convey as much rapturous sweetness and light as the most eloquent and passionate declaration. Time and space are endless; but what of that? Let us busily bend our lives to saving both.

"Hitch your wagon to a star," Monsieur! Hitch your carry-all to a tabloid. DEL.

New York, Jan. 2, 1901.

REFORM IN PHILADELPHIA.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

This city has reformed with a vengeance. The old antiquated and superannuated blue laws passed in 1795, which for nearly a century have lain dormant and moulding with public contempt, have been resurrected and are now being enforced. One of these I ran up against in trying to get shaved on Sunday. To my surprise I found all the barber shops were closed and the employes out watching for violations of the law. These they report to the Law and Order Society for prosecution, the fine being usually $5 to $10.

Then the excise law is rigidly enforced, not a saloon is open, even hotels are not allowed to furnish guests with liquor in their rooms, or serve wine at dinner, and I am told that it is against the law for a citizen to treat a friend in his own house. This is what ex-President Harrison calls a government of unlimited or executive power, and un-American. Of course this insidious underwear of bigotry and Puritanical intolerance is a good thing for the Pennsylvania Railroad, for it produces a stampede among strangers for New York on Saturday. Thus the hotels on Sunday look as lonesome as a family graveyard on a hundred acre farm. Further efforts are now being made to include cigar and newspaper stands, and the next in line will be against dressing, washing, and arranging the toilet on Sunday.

These all require manual labor, which can be avoided by lying in bed or going to bed on Saturday night with your clothes on. All this piety appears to be on the surface, for when Monday comes the evidence of hypocrisy breaks through the satined film and the gambling resorts and poolrooms are wide open, and women of a certain class ply their calling on the public thoroughfare.

The municipality is Republican, with only two Democrats in each of the legislative bodies, and if a tithe of the stories are true, these Republican officials could give Tammany cards and spades and then beat them two to one at the game of spoils and public plunder.

Philadelphia is unquestionably an interesting city to visit, but a desirable place to get out of on Sunday by all those who regard personal liberty of any value.

A NEW YORKER.

Philadelphia, Jan. 2, 1901.

Plain Biblical Truth.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In regard to the started Gospel campaign, Mr. Ernest C. Saunders points to the important confession of shortcomings of the Church in practicing the teachings of Christ. I agree with him, and believe that ought to be the first step to be taken.

But I also believe that there is another matter belonging to this first step, and that is confession of negligence in preaching the plain Biblical truth. If the extracts of sermons appearing in the daily papers are true, it seems to me that the old Gospel is, in too many cases, pressed in the shade, and preaching about political, social and literary matters is substituted in its place. The consequences are that the ordinary people, who constitute the great majority of the population, are growing more and more ignorant of the Bible teaching and sinking down in apathy, of which a deal of complaining was done lately in your valuable paper.

Self-reproaching, sin-burdened, afflicted souls—souls asking the most important of all questions—"What shall I do to be saved?"—these the minister of the Gospel should meet in some way by every sermon. If he does not, he is astray from his calling, and his sheep shall perish for want of proper advice, spiritual food and nursing. Is really a Church (the ministers included) not seeking the lost and not meeting the need of the burdened and afflicted entitled to bear the name of "the Church of Christ?"

If we now start the new century with a Gospel campaign, confessing our errors and shortcomings, and with the fixed resolution to open the Bible in the pulpit and give the people a full measure of Bible teaching, then we have reason to expect a much needed revival of spiritual interest and a deepening of Christian conviction and life.

If, on the other hand, the Bible teaching may seem to be exhausted, or for some reason not to give satisfaction, and consequently other themes deemed to be the demand of the day—then, by all means, give the preaching the fair name of "lectures," not of sermons.

GABRIEL FEDDE.

New York, Jan. 4, 1901.

Likes the Governor's Message.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

When last Fall I read in your columns a letter from Dr. Lyman Abbott, in which he enthusiastically commented upon the many godlike qualities of the Republican nominee for Governor, I feared that the esteemed doctor had lost his balance, and had foolishly allowed his distinguished neighbor to so enchant and delude him that the otherwise well-balanced divine had quite lost his keen sense of reason and discrimination.

That Mr. Odell is a shrewd, clever, able politician nobody doubted; but that he was a statesman, a wise, conscientious, far-seeing scholar, nearly everybody doubted. Recent developments have proved that Dr. Abbott made no mistake. The Governor's message, if nothing else, almost proves the doctor's contention; it has the ring of true metal. The hand that penned that message is not the cunning hand of a selfish, scheming politician, and the heart and brain that prompted it define a man of unusual worth.

Gov. Roosevelt did not come up to my expectation—no, I cannot say that, for he did a little better than I at first thought, because I had not much confidence in a man who seemed to live on vanity and notoriety, and whose ambition led him to forget his early vows against bossea and in favor of independence in politics. Nevertheless, Gov. Roosevelt has made a record of which the people of our State may well be proud, yet he did not have quite the courage to seize the several opportunities offered to make his name immortal in State annals.

Gov. Odell begins his career in a manner at once encouraging and astonishing, and I am surprised and pleased beyond measure. Dr. Abbott, I take off my hat to you!

EUGENE V. BREWSTER.

Brooklyn, Jan. 3, 1901.

Orange County Governors.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your esteemed paper of this date B. B. Odell, Sr., is quoted as saying that Gov. Odell is not the first of New York's Governors to come from Orange County, but that Gen. George Clinton, the last Colonial Governor and first Constitutional Governor of this State, was born in New Windsor, Orange County.

I should like to add that Orange County gave New York two other Governors famous for their ability—De Witt Clinton, who was born near what is now Little Britain, and William H. Seward, who was born in the little town of Florida, same county, in 1801, and lived there until he went to college.

My impression has always been that Gen. George Clinton, uncle of De Witt Clinton, was born in Ulster County.

PAUL CANFIELD.

Wurtsborough, N. Y., Jan. 5, 1901.

The Spitting Habit.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The letter from "H. A. C." in your paper of Jan. 4 in respect to the "spitting nuisance," which may be termed the spitting crime since this violation of decency has been made also a violation of law, describes what everybody sees who rides on the Sixth Avenue Elevated. Frequent violations of the law may be expected on the Second Avenue line; but it is chiefly on Sixth Avenue that the man who looks like a gentleman, but acts like a beast, is ever with us.

The remedy, however, is simple, although disagreeable to ladies and gentlemen, who would ordinarily prefer to overlook the offensive acts of their neighbors rather than complain. Let every gentleman who suffers from the spitting crime call the offender's attention to the sign forbidding it, or to the fact that the act is a crime; and let every lady who likewise suffers slowly rise from her seat and draw her skirts carefully about her person, meanwhile transfixing the offender with a hard-boiled eye, and then reseat herself with equal care. Spitting will soon vanish before a public opinion which so indicates its resentment toward the outrage.

Some invertebrate citizens may doubt whether a "real lady" or "true gentleman" will do as I have suggested. Let such be reassured. I have seen it done by the genuine type, and can also testify to the effectiveness of the remedy. Have not we all a public duty, too, in this matter? What truer manhood and womanhood can there be than in helping to make our city clean and keep it so?

A. S. B.

New York, Jan. 4, 1901.

How to Treat Spitters.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I wonder that "H. A. C." had the courage to tell the story of his experience in a case of spitting by a fellow-passenger, as related in his letter of Jan. 4. Instead of weakly calling on others to abate the nuisance for him, "H. A. C." should take a hand himself. Then it will be in order to call for help. A gentleman known to me, whenever he finds himself sitting near a public spitter on public floors, makes a point of calling the offender's attention mildly but firmly to the public regulations. This treatment always proves effective. If more men were really men in courage to do their part in abating evils, both small and great, the beastly nuisance "H. A. C." weakly retreated from would show a rapid decline.

J. M. W.

New York, Jan. 4, 1901.

Kitchener's South African Policy.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I find in to-day's TIMES cable from London the following paragraph given as a part of Lord Kitchener's speech in Pretoria to a meeting of the burghers:

He asserted that it was imperative to clear the country of inhabitants and of food, because so long as food remained the commandoes would be able to continue in the field. He could not be responsible for stock unless it was brought in, adding that he hoped at the end of the war to be able to divide the remaining stock among the various sufferers.

Since the meeting, orders have been issued against burning farmhouses unless it should be proved that the actual inhabitants have committed misdeeds.

The first districts cleared under Lord Kitchener's plan were Jagersfontein and Fauresmith, whose inhabitants were laagered at Fauresmith.

This report, the cable adds, was let through by the censor, and is practically official. This is the reconcentrado system of Weyler, in its worst form—much worse than Weyler, because the climatic conditions at this time of year are worse than in Cuba during Weyler's reign.

Why is there not a cry of horror from the civilized world at such outrages against humanity? Why is the press, that went into spasms over Weyler, complacent toward the equal infamy of Kitchener? I speak as a Christian when I say that such work will call down the vengeance of God upon the perpetrators. As an American citizen, I answer the questions above by saying that our national conscience may be deadened by our own bloody and inhuman work in the Philippines.

When will this orgy of crime of the English-speaking peoples stop? Destiny and empire has a terrible bill in loss of honor, blood, and money.

JOHN J. ROONEY.

New York, Jan. 4, 1901.

A Plea for Common Honesty.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Our new Governor loudly proclaims that what we want here in New York to-day is "economy," and that is what he is going to give us. Now, it is nothing of the sort that we want, and how can we be so blind? What we want is common honesty, and nothing else, and it is the lack of that that has brought us to our present pass. Give us that, and "economy" will take care of itself.

EASTMAN JOHNSON.

New York, Jan. 3, 1901.

NUGGETS.

Proud Record.

"Speaking of progress," said the snail, "I traveled a mile last year."—Indianapolis Press.

Need Not Complain.

"Maud suffers so much with her eyes."

"Well, she need not complain. She would probably suffer a great deal more without them."—Baltimore Jewish Comment.

Recognized the American.

Judge Hicks of Minneapolis, being in London, inquired his way of a policeman. "You're from Hamerica?" "Yes, Sir." "You can't 'ide the haccent."—Boston Christian Register.

No Use.

"You can always tell an Englishman," began the Britisher, boastfully.

"But it would only be a waste of breath," interrupted the Yankee, "because he thinks he knows it all."—Philadelphia Catholic Standard and Times.

Bound to Make Trouble.

First Waiter—That man over at the corner table is an awful kicker.

Second Waiter—Yes; he complained the other day because there were no pearls in his oysters.

First Waiter—And now he wants to know what we mean by removing the diamonds from his diamond-back terrapin.—Philadelphia Record.

The PSALM OF THE BELLS.

Millie W. Carpenter in Springfield Republican.

An artist wrought at his loved bell tones,
And his heart was burdened with care;
For song and laughter and sorrow's moans,
The rush of battle and dying groans,
All must find expression there;
The bells with their daily chime must tell
Of all that lies twixt heaven and hell.

The sigh of the weary for labor done,
The rush of the rain to meet the breeze,
The laughter of children out in the sun,
The midnight chant of the fasting nun,
Oh, but the bells they must tell of these;
The endless conflict of clashing souls
Shall be its psalm when the great sound rolls.

A baby laughed far up in the sky;
It was going back to its home with God;
And a maiden sobbed that she soon must lie—
'Tis the pitiless law Youth too may die—
With her sweet face covered under the sod:
For sorrows and joys akin like these
O bells! are you given your harmonies!

A sinner cursed at his feet the Love
Pleading with him with tears for its fall—
Stor

Letters From Readers on Various Timely Topics

THE GOVERNOR AND THE POLICE.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The recommendation of Gov. Odell in his message that the present Board of Police Commissioners and the office of Chief of Police be abolished and a single-headed commission (which is certainly a misnomer) be substituted, the new Commissioner to act as Chief of Police, thereby placing the responsibility upon the shoulders of one individual, will no doubt receive the indorsement of every citizen who takes an interest in the good government of this city and entertains a hope for the betterment of the vice conditions that obtain at the present time. So much has been said and printed in the press relative to the "red light" district, the gambling and poolroom "protection" by the police, the maladministration of the District Attorney's office, and the looting of the city by Tammany Hall, that the public will grab with avidity anything that may be offered by the Legislature which, apparently, offers an amelioration of the conditions as they exist, without asking whether the new conditions would be an improvement on the old or not.

The recommendation of the Governor certainly bears the stamp of frankness and possesses the merit of being in line with the idea of abolishing a system that permitted vice to obtain the foothold in this city that it is reputed to have. However, before the new order of affairs goes into operation; indeed, before the Legislature takes any action on the recommendation, would it not be well for some one to examine and determine just exactly what the duties of the proposed Commissioner would be and the likelihood of finding a man to fill the bill to the satisfaction of the public?

To one who is not familiar with the details of the Police Department it might appear a simple matter to appoint a Commissioner to figure at the head of the seven thousand and odd men who make up the force of the metropolitan police, and let subordinates do the work of the office and the Commissioner draw the salary, but the rules that obtain in the department will not permit of any such condition. Let us, then, go over, in a general way, what the duties of the new officer will be when he takes office.

Every article that is purchased in the department, from a lead pencil to a patrol wagon, must be passed upon by him before purchase and inspected by him after purchase; the disbursements of the department, reaching into the millions every year, must receive his stamp of approval before a dollar can be paid out; the pension fund, which involves the expenditure of hundreds of thousands of dollars yearly, must receive his personal supervision, as he will be held responsible for its proper disbursement; his correspondence, nine-tenths of which will be marked "personal," will occupy a large portion of his time; all offenders on the force will have to be tried before him; he will be expected to visit the different stations occasionally to see that precinct and district officers perform their duty; he must go over the Inspectors' reports, examining them in detail, and be ready at any time to answer to the Mayor or Governor any questions relative to the conduct of the department, and incidentally any spare time he may have he can spend with his family.

If the term of office of the proposed Commissioner be not fixed by the Legislature, and will depend upon the incoming or outgoing of any political party, then demoralization of the force is sure to follow his appointment; every political leader in the city will be pulling wires in the interest of friends on the force, and in order to maintain his political friendships for the future, he will succumb to their blandishments without a doubt. If he goes into office honestly intending to do his duty, and resists the attacks of politicians he will be politically damned. If, however, the tenure of office be set for a term of years and he follows the line as intended by the Governor in his recommendation, then he must be a man of strong intellect and will power and should have had a police training fitting him for the position of Chief, otherwise he will be imposed upon by his subordinates, and will be a figurehead held up to scorn by his men, and the public will be just as badly off as ever.

The concentration of the work of five men so that one man can perform the labor satisfactorily is as yet an untried experiment. It is a possibility, perhaps, but who can tell? Is it not much easier to corrupt one man than five? Is the fault really with a bi-partisan commission, or does it lie in the fact that the Mayor is powerless to remove the Commissioners he appoints, by a provision of the charter of New York?

Would it not be a more simple way out of the dilemma to restore to the Mayor the power of removal and hold him, the chief magistrate of the city, responsible for its condition; and if vice, in all its hideous forms, should prevail without any curtailment under his administration, then call on the Governor to exercise his power of removal.

D'NALRAG.

New York, Jan. 5, 1901.

DIFFERENCE BETWEEN PARTIES.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

When in 1878 I became a citizen and was invited to join either one of the dominant parties I earnestly, as well as diligently, inquired of men who were active and high in the councils of these parties to point out clearly in what essentials both these parties differed from each other. But so crude and vague were the replies I got that I joined the Prohibition Party, as being at that time the only party which, to my mind, presented a clear and reasonable principle.

For the war of secession was past, and with it the State rights question, an essential question, in the main settled. Neither could the everlasting tariff question arise to the height of a principle, as the Democratic platforms were never burdened by free trade, and neither could a vacillating per cent. pendulum be fashioned into a political principle. One might be hailed even as a stanch Democrat and at the same time be a rabid protectionist, as, for instance, Congressman S. J. Randall. Thus I continued my research for a reasonable division line between the two great parties, having found in the single tax in the meanwhile a clear-cut and satisfactory political principle. I have hunted for this division line in books, newspapers, in political meetings, but found instead high-sounding phrases. You will, therefore, understand how much I was gratified at the attempted explanation of the "principles of true Democracy" by Mr. Robert B. Roosevelt in your issue of Jan. 3.

Here at last was an honest endeavor by a distinguished and representative Democrat to explain his political creed, in contradistinction to so-called Democratic leaders who vouchsafe no further explanation than "I am a Democrat." Now, if Mr. Roosevelt will concede that there are good Republicans, who have also the people's welfare in view by fostering and agitating their so-called Republican principles, does there remain in his explanation a single clause out of which a basic principia could be construed?

To my mind, the differences between the so-called Democratic and Republican Parties of to-day consist in the simplest kind of quibbling and hair splitting. There is, however, an essential and historical difference between them, consisting of widely divergent principles. The Republican Party stands for centralization, the Democratic Party for decentralization. Of the principles of Jefferson, so often quoted in political meetings, I know one only which, to my mind, formulates a political creed—"I hold that the earth belongs in usufruct to the living."

GEORGE BRUNSWICK.

New York, Jan. 4, 1901.

THE OLD AND THE NEW.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

At the close of every year many of us subject ourselves to rigid self-examination. It is not a comfortable ordeal, but it is necessary. Most of us are aware of our faults and shotcomings. Our conscience tells us when we err. It is to our credit that we are sorry for our sins of commission and of omission. None of us is so good that he has no need to turn over a new leaf. Our resolutions for 1901 should be kept. Our visit to the old homestead will strengthen our will power. What changes we have witnessed! Father gone since our last annual holiday; mother sad but full of hope; the old place can never be the same again. The wind moans through the trees, the voice of mirth and of laughter is hushed, the collie dog cries at night in the heart-rending way that only a collie can. His liquid eyes are full of grief and of sympathy. He knows his master is no more. The moon shines down upon the hillside, but its effulgence does not dispel the gloom of home. Only the eye of Providence penetrates the cloud of affliction; only the blessed assurance of immortality gives consolation.

There is a lesson in this. The better lives we live the better we shall be prepared to die, and the better we shall be able to bear the departure of those nearest and dearest to us. The more good we do to our fellowmen the more happiness we shall have here and the more hope of happiness hereafter. We all have opportunities to do good. We do not need to search for them; they are constantly in our path. Let us embrace them. If "Jim" did not return that five-dollar bill, be charitable. He will repay you later, and his explanation of the delay will make you sorry you judged him so harshly.

Much is not expected of those who have little. The rich have the greatest responsibility; they do good, but only a mere fraction of what they ought to do. Their efforts to improve the condition of their fellow-men are often misdirected. Free libraries are useful, but they are not absolutely necessary. A man with an empty stomach needs bread, not a book. Those who have no money to spare can yet be helpful to the less fortunate. Young man, do you see that aged woman trudging along with a bundle too heavy for her? She is weak. You are strong. Relieve her of her burden. She will bless you; the angels will smile on you. You will feel more of a man than ever you did before. By bearing her load you will lift yourself nearer God and nearer heaven. We cannot all be rich or great or powerful or learned, but we can all be helpful to one another in our respective spheres. May we act in 1901 so that self-examination of our record at the close of the year may cause us satisfaction and not remorse.

RUS.

New York, Jan. 2, 1901.

TO CONQUER THE TAGALS.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I want to know something. I am little better than a common civilian, but cannot help thinking and theorizing, and I have been compelled to criticise the conduct of our forces in the Philippines. I want to find out whether I have been an idiot or the military managers have been idiots. The boot is on one foot or the other.

When Dewey captured Cavite and, with the aid of the Filipinos, shut the Spanish up in Manila, I began to take notice. I got hold of all the information possible about those islands, Luzon in particular. I knew something of the Malay character and apprehended trouble. I saw in Luzon many different peoples, all under the predominance of the vain, false, ambitious, and unscrupulous Tagals. It seemed to me that the Tagals were the point of attack, and that we should need all the help we could get, in the islands and outside.

I learned that the Tagals, fortunately for us, were hated by several of the most manly and warlike of the other tribes. I found that the enemies of the Tagals dwelt mostly to the northward in a country of hills and mountains. I believed that the northern ports were used by the Filipinos for the entry of their supplies. I expected as a matter of course that our first real operations against them would be based on a northern port and would be backed up by a stringent blockade of all the northern end of the island. It seemed to me that it would be advantageous to take our unacclimated men to the healthier places to begin their work, and that our task would be easier if we started it among people who were either friendly or could be made so. I thought we would make such a place as Aparri, for example, (supposing it to have a harbor suitable,) our first base, and that from there we should stretch southward, making allies as we advanced, and occupying each square mile permanently.

I supposed that we would treat the natives very kindly and respectfully, buying everything for cash and recognizing property rights fully; that we would organize them on our side as we advanced; that we would accept and utilize any local Government that we found in operation, and especially that we should avoid interference with religions and local customs. I imagined that in every town we occupied our first object would be to enroll the fighting men under our colors, and that such native troops would be our dependence for information and for scouting. It seemed likely that such action would be guilty of crucifying and would require constant watching and repression but it was, to my mind, certain that the only way to fight the devil is with fire. I knew the Tagals to be very devilish, and I remembered that war is hell.

I supposed that we should make our forward movement with deliberation, keeping only a bare possession of Manila, and leaving the southern blockade loose to encourage the tendency of the Tagals to fall back into the low lands where they live. It occurred to me that it would be a short cut for us to build a good railroad from our northern base as we advanced.

It was a fine picture that I saw. The advancing wave of our forces, small and pure white when it first rolled up the northern beach, grew big and brown as it swept further into the island, and the while crest became thinner and thinner as we spread our good men out in numerous native commands. Behind us we left everywhere native friends, glorying in their striped banner and in the distinction of our uniform. Before us the swarms of Tagals continually fell back into their own country, losing revenue and elbow room at each retrogression, and finally crowding on the food supplies. As we made the north end of the island our own, the need of the strict blockade would shift its locale; the northernmost vessels would be always changing station to the south end of the line, both on the east and west coasts, with the effect of constantly shutting up more of the Filipino ports of supply and steadily compressing them to the southward. The blockade, and the damp climate, and stealage, and loss in fights would diminish the number of their military rifles. Eventually they would be so packed and jammed in the south end of the island that we could use Manila itself as a base, and from the time we got a solid line across from Manila to the Pacific, the Tagals' sunset would be in sight.

Then they would have surrendered, and then only did it seem to be in order to go about the domination of the immense archipelago. I thought that when we were ready for that work, we should have a fine and sufficient force of Tagals to do it for us, thus obtaining an outlet for the natural brigands and the disappointed ambitions of the chiefs. This idea embraced the active co-operation of the navy in a swarm of native light-draught gunboats, able to run into the rivers and to land anywhere along the coast. I believed that the Tagals were smart enough to know that they did not really need harbors to land supplies in good weather, and that an efficient blockade required large numbers of small vessels commanded by active young Captains.

Now, we have done, or tried to do some of these things, but there has been no single thought-out plan. Have we done the best we could? Would not Miles have had some general plan and have worked it out by this time if he had been given command and a free hand? If we can judge by his pretty campaign in Porto Rico, when he landed at the right place and herded the Spaniards before him toward the San Juan corral, he would have had a plan in Luzon. What is the reason a soldier like Miles is kept in the background, anyhow?

Suppose that Dewey had been given all the little boats that he wanted, would he not have shut off the supplies of the enemy? As it was, the army had to get up a navy of its own, and it did a good job. It must have been humiliating to the navy to see those lubbers doing their own water work in such good style because the navy could not do it. If that fighting man, McCalla, had been put in charge of all that coast, he would have made it lively for the natives, for he is determined to have a scrap all the time. We have plenty of good brains in both services, but we have not used them.

Why did we not try to take advantage of the intense hatred of the natives for the rich orders of the Catholic Church? Why should we not have sent a private embassy to the General of the Jesuits, who is one of the greatest monarchs on earth, and have offered him the Church property in Luzon? We are going to take these lands away from the Dominicans, for they have betrayed their trust. We do not wish to rob the Church; we do not want the property. We wish you to take charge of the education of youth in the island, for you are respected by the people. The income from the lands will support your schools and lighten taxation."

I fancy that a way would have been found to accept the property, and that one stroke would have converted the mass of the native clergy from implacable enemies into friends. The Filipinos are not likely to give up as long as their priests tell them they are fighting in a holy war.

Perhaps I am the idiot in this matter, but maybe not. I am old enough to remember a war here at home that was a genuine one. Perhaps I learned a little in those days from experience. Of course there is no use in talking now, but shall a man never grumble at offenses because they are in the past? I have not had my money's worth. I have seen good American blood flow uselessly. I am paying big taxes yet for a job that should now be done. I am not satisfied.

MANILA.

New York, Dec. 29, 1900.

LAND RIGHTS OF FILIPINOS.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In a recent editorial you confessed to being in the dark as to the reason of our difficulty in dealing with the Filipinos. I believe the difficulty to be that we have shown no disposition to secure for the Filipinos the objects they have at heart. It is very easy to discover what these objects are, because they have been stated repeatedly by the natives themselves. I do not refer to their desire for an independent government. A form of government is not an ultimate good; indeed, it is not a good in itself, but is merely an agency through which benefit can be secured and preserved. What the Filipino people really want is economic opportunity. In other words, they want the chance to acquire wealth. We shall generally find that where there is any prolonged political disturbance in a country the root difficulty is an economic one. For instance, in the recent outbreak in China the first Chinese to burn and kill were the boatmen on the Peiho River, who had been thrown out of work by the railroad built from Tien-Tsin to Peking.

The trouble in the Philippine Islands is likewise an economic one. Until we remedy this trouble we are likely either to be at war with the Filipino people or to have to hold them in subjection by a large military force. Specifically, their economic wishes are expressed in the rebel edicts of 1896, where they first demand the expulsion of the friars, and then the return of the lands, which the friars have appropriated, to the individual owners from whom the lands were taken, or, if they cannot now be found, to the municipalities. The expulsion of the friars is not the demand of religious intolerance. It is made by the natives, who are Catholics and who expect to continue Catholics. Their complaint is not against the religion of the friars, but against the robbery and tyranny of the friars which have prevented the Filipino people from keeping or from acquiring the wealth that naturally they should possess in such rich islands from the labor which they have already bestowed.

In brief, to restore order in the Philippine Islands, the United States has only to carry out the just demands of the Filipino people. Not necessarily in terms of Government. But in terms of what it was expected a free national government would execute—the expulsion of the friars and the restoration of their lands to the Filipino people. The treaty of Paris does not prevent it. The treaty does prevent confiscation of ecclesiastical land, but not the acquisition of ecclesiastical land by just processes—by condemnation and purchase.

If a commission were to promise guaranteed titles to those who could prove ownership, I believe much land would fall to the Government from lack of true ownership. Fifteen years ago the Church frustrated a proposition for a land registry office and Government titles given to those who could prove ownership. This is all the more important in the Philippine Islands, because, as in all Asiatic countries, the land must bear the burden of taxation. Our Government is in a very awkward position if it does not deal justly with the Filipinos. If we do not return the lands to the Filipino people, but permit the existence of an ecclesiastical or other landlord class, the land will not pay sufficient tax to support the Government. The United States Treasury then will have to make up the difference, and I think the American people will object to spending money for the benefit of those whose title to the land is at least questionable.

If the United States undertakes to secure revenue by our American method of a tariff, the cost of living will be very much increased in the Philippine Islands, and, consequently, the cost of labor. Indeed, since the American occupation, the price of labor has already advanced. The wealth of the Philippines can only be produced by cheap labor. A tariff, therefore, which increases the cost of labor would be suicidal to an agricultural country. Here is the dilemma, then. To leave the land in the hands of the present owners who are called robbers by the natives, will result in a deficit in taxation, which will have to be made up out of the United States Treasury. To impose a tariff on imports will increase the cost of labor to the point of destruction of agricultural pursuits. Our only escape from this dilemma is to deal justly—to give the people their lands.

America has artlessly taken over the insurrection which began in 1896 under Aguinaldo against Spanish authority, because Spanish authority sustained economic oppression at the hands of the friars. So far as the Filipinos are concerned in terms of bread and butter, which is at the basis of this whole question, the United States is no better than Spain, and we have done nothing to intimate that we propose in the future to remedy the great grievance that incited them five years ago to arms.

PERCY STICKNEY GRANT.

New York, Jan. 2, 1901.

TOTAL ABSTINENCE.

WORTHY OF MENTION.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

After having enjoyed your editorial pages of New Year's Day with very great zest, I trust you will permit me to call attention to one more enterprise so peculiar to the nineteenth century and which so intimately concerns the prosperity of the masses as to deserve at least a passing notice. I refer to the total abstinence aspect of the temperance movement. This is often lost to sight among the more showy co-operative and political movements, so that the great gain in the number of total abstainers seldom receives comment. Doubtless there have been some such abstainers in existence from the times of the ancient Nazarites, but since art and commerce have so increased the cheapness and the accessibility of alcoholic drinks the abstainers have often been so few as rarely to be discovered. My venerated father was born in this State in 1800, and I have heard him say that when he was twenty years old apparently everybody within his range of vision drank more or less. Horace Greeley made a similar statement concerning the rural population of Vermont of about the same period. Of course, the greater the number of tipplers, the greater the number of resulting drunkards, with the usual financial results. Farms were mortgaged, estates ruined, families scattered, and lives sacrificed, and in the emphatic words of an early promoter of organized work in 1808, 'they seemed lost by all "to become a community of drunkards."

The early steps of progress were slow. It was 1836 before there was any general adoption of the total abstinence pledge. More recently its use was largely promoted through the training of the children. Within about twenty years this has taken the form of a healthy movement, with the teaching of physiology and hygiene in the public schools, as required by law in all but two of the States and Territories of this country; the exceptions being those of Utah and Georgia. Sustained by this and by sturdy American common sense, vast numbers of women, of business men, and of workingmen, are practically total abstainers, whether they have formally taken the pledge or not. There is no census of their numbers here, but about ten years ago those best capable of judging estimated that there were at least seven millions. In Great Britain they are known to number more than that, while in neither country at the beginning of the century were there enough to be worth counting or estimating.

Now vast numbers of business men consider total abstinence an essential element of prosperity. They prefer level heads to make bargains properly, as well as to guard their money and personal effects from pickpockets and their homes from burglars. Railroads, fire companies, merchants, and many others often require total abstinence from their employes. Doctors and hospitals are even beginning to discard the drug in the treatment of their patients; Insurance companies often give better rates to total abstainers. Financiers are beginning to realize that a billion of dollars cannot be wasted out of the annual income of the country (even though the payment is supposed to come largely from the individual drinkers) without all sorts of interests suffering from it. And now that we have this movement set on a physiological and common-sense basis that bids fair to decide it upon its true merits, we think it may well be recognized as one of the most decided steps of progress in the great nineteenth century.

JULIA COLEMAN.

New York, Jan. 2, 1901.

W. C. T. U. MEMBER'S DEFENSE.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A letter from James A. Harvey in THE TIMES of Dec. 23 on the Woman's Christian Temperance Union gives so many mistaken and prejudicial statements in regard to the Woman's Christian Temperance Union that one of its members asks THE TIMES in the interest of fair judgment to give space for a few words in regard to that organization and its work. I wish that I could produce letters that I have read in ordinary newspapers from the private soldier in regard to the canteen, its influence upon the younger soldiers, its absorption of the soldiers' wages often so much needed in their homes, and its general evil. These letters would at least show that there are two sides to the question.

The Woman's Christian Temperance Union has been called the organized motherheart of our Nation. It is surely natural that mothers should protest against Government sanction of even "light beers," which, as The Evening Post, one of our most conservative papers, says, is often but a stimulus to the desire for more alcoholic drinks." But I have not time, and will not ask space now to discuss the canteen.

I would, however, ask all persons influenced by Mr. Harvey's statements or actuated by similar prejudices, to study the work of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union. The annual minutes of our own State would show an amount of practical philanthropic endeavor that would justify its name and existence, if no general temperance work were on record. I have known in one rural community several men and boys pledged and reformed through efforts of its members, young girls saved from vice, families suffering from the intemperance of their breadwinner clothed and fed, the sale of liquor stopped in the county fair, (an act which led directly to the present State law forbidding it on all fair grounds,) and many other helpful deeds, including the maintenance for some years of a free reading room.

In larger towns infinitely more has been done. In Chicago day nurseries, shelter for young girls, and many other modern charities, are in their hands. These women belong to different churches, and bring unsectarian effort to local charities and improvements, and in my experience as a member I have seen in its ranks a growth in personal Christian character and unselfish endeavor that must let it count as a vital uplifting force.

It is in its local work in no sense political; its National convention affirms its sympathy with the only party which denounces the saloon, that great source of wrong and crime and sorrow; that gloomy shadow over the home.

But no member is of necessity influenced in her political standing. The local work is now, as ever, practical, sympathetic, and followed from earnest Christian purpose.

So will any temperance worker who joins this organization find abundant opportunity for loving, helpful, Christian service in many fields. She will not be forced in to any political action, nor be called upon to repudiate God's law of love, and appeal to man's law of force. These women live indeed for the time when His "law of love" shall dominate "man's law of force," for then a fairer day shall dawn.

A MEMBER OF THE W. C. T. U.

New York, Dec. 31, 1900.

THE CANTEEN SYSTEM.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Replying to charges against the Women's Christian Temperance Union in a recent communication in THE NEW YORK TIMES, I desire to say that:

1. It is not true that the brewers and the Women's Christian Temperance Union have joined hands in opposing the canteen. The National Brewers' Association at their last convention indorsed the sale of beer in the post exchange as a temperance measure. As their object is to promote the beer industry, naturally they favor what promotes the sale of beer.

2. It is not true that the sale of beer in the army canteen prevents men in the camps or soldiers' homes from patronizing the places outside.

A visit to any of the saloons in proximity to the forts in the vicinity of New York will convince any fairminded reporter that, notwithstanding the canteens sell large quantities of beer, the outside places are well patronized by soldiers wearing the United States uniform.

For the result at soldiers' homes read the report of the committee of investigation appointed by the State Board of Charities to examine into the condition of affairs at the Soldiers' Home at Bath. There are fourteen saloons in Belfast Street, the approach to the home, all of which are patronized by the inmates.

3. It is true that the young soldier is more likely to learn to drink with the canteen in the midst of the camp, and that the use of beer and wines leads to stronger drinks. That the presence of the canteen, and the fact that beer is supplied with dinner to all the soldiers in some, at least, of the forts and camps on holidays, does make it hard for a man to be a total abstainer.

It is almost impossible for men who have formed the appetite for liquor to resist the temptation, when it is so constantly before them.

4. It is true that the Women's Christian Temperance Union would take away from the men their reading room, or place of recreation. All we ask is that the sale of beer and wines be prohibited in the interest of the men themselves. The reading and assembly room can, of course, be maintained.

5. It is true that army life is degenerating in its influence on the private soldier, and the presence of the canteen makes it more so.

With all the restraints of home life removed, the canteen adds to the demoralizing influence.

6. It is true that the Women's Christian Temperance Union is opposed to the sale of liquors in the army canteen. Its members have a right to their opinion. As many men will return from the army, with the appetite for liquor formed, the wives and mothers will be the sufferers.

A wrecked manhood, made so by the sanction of the Government will be the price paid because of the army canteen, and whether the Senate amendment to the House bill which permits the sale of beer passes or not, the Women's Christian Temperance Union will continue to stand opposed to the sale of beer or wine, and will stand for a clean soldiery protected from drink and impurity, and we call upon every one who believes in the highest type of manhood, uncorrupted by drink or impurity, to stand with us. A government like ours needs clean, strong, sober men, and it ought to use military discipline if necessary, to make and keep them so.

ELLA A. BOOLE,
President N. Y. State W. C. T. U.

Brooklyn, Jan. 3, 1901.

THE BELLEVUE SCANDAL.

A PLEA FOR THE NURSES.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In this enlightened day, the dawn of the twentieth century, let us, before we sit in harsh judgments on the apparently cruel acts of others, be sure we are informed as to the facts on both sides of the case, so that we can be more fair in our judgments, before we convict, in our minds, those who have been accused of cruelty and, perhaps, of murder.

We are not so many centuries removed from the heathen's idea of the diseases of the body, considering them as "possessions of the devil," or for witchcraft, to be exorcised by burning at the stake of the one supposed to be the witch.

When we have people at large in our own land acknowledged to know nothing of the scientific study of the body or its diseases, not only asserting their rights to heal, but practicing their belief on our helpless victims of disease and of their faith. They boldly assert that there is no disease except in the mind. And yet we let these "faith curists," or "healers," (?) cause the death of innocent people. Yet the "healer" (?) goes free. Can we be so ready to condemn possible mistakes of others who, at least did something to help suffering to the best of their ability?

In the case of the present agitation at Bellevue Hospital, according to our newspapers, the courts must have allowed the report of one newspaper man to counterbalance the testimony of all others, most of whom, from their experience, must have known more about the case in question than one not having that opportunity.

It has been the history of all reforms that literary exposure of wrongs has been the most effectual means, along with the stage, of bringing to light their existence and consequent remedy. For this we owe much to our newspapers and writers of novels on such subjects, as well as the freedom of the press.

But sometimes, from lack of correct information or a thorough understanding of the subject on which they desire to bring about the information, errors may be committed that lead to the condemnation of comparatively innocent persons.

Until very recent years the diseases of the mind (insanity) were not only almost entirely misunderstood by the people at large, but by the medical profession as well. And, although in the last half century much has been done in the way of improving the physical care of the insane, there remains yet a wide field for improvement in the difficult scientific treatment of this, most unfortunately, increasing disease, as a result of our modern social system.

While the medical profession, in a great degree, realizes the difficulties to be combated, the people have not been educated to a realization of either the methods of prevention or care of the nervous diseases that are wrecking the minds of so great a number of our citizens every year.

The way in which we live—the ambitions and struggles for money, position, and power, and their consequent strain on the nervous system—is too little understood, or it could in many cases be avoided in time to prevent that giving way called "nervous prostration," and finally insanity, unknown among savage peoples.

No one not having had personal experience in the handling of the insane can judge of the terrible care and responsibility imposed on those who are in such positions. And few outside of the medical profession can understand the importance of selecting as nurses to the insane men and women of the widest learning and experience, who possess unlimited patience and conscientiousness.

Certainly such men and women deserve to be paid in proportion to their capabilities, and the numbers required to handle the patients in a proper manner far exceed the number allowed by the present system.

The same applies to alcoholism. When the public can be brought to understand that persons suffering from alcoholism, hysteria, or more violent forms of nervous diseases, are alike not responsible for their actions, they will condemn alike the brutality of a policeman's beating of the unfortunate and the rough handling they may receive by the attendant. Because we are accustomed to the rough handling the police give to such unfortunates, we overlook in them what we judge in the nurse with severe condemnation. And the former is not only better paid, but does not meet the requirements asked of the average nurse in every way.

Could our newspapers hire men or women who understand these things from experience, and place them in the position of the nurse of the insane and alcoholic, they would be in a position to give to the public facts that might prove a benefit to this unfortunate class of people as well as to those who have their care.

When this is done the money will be forthcoming to employ a superior class of men and women to those now drawn to the work.

"ONE WITH EXPERIENCE."

New York, Jan. 4, 1901.

An Ex-Interne's Testimony.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

If New Yorkers were not sensational we should not experience the periodical shocks that we receive from at intervals uncovering the sins of our neighbors. Why should we be surprised and horrified at revelations of police or other infamy or Bellevue revelations, except that we like the sensation? We know the conditions perfectly; we elect the men who will commit the sins, and then excite ourselves over developments. Has any one supposed that from Commissioner to scrubwoman—healers and heelers—one person in the Department of Charities looks upon the great buildings, the hordes of attendants, the money outlay for the city poor and sick, as really for these wards of the city?

We know that the system is all for jobs in the different lines, and any man who was led to believe the whole system was planned and the money paid by the Board of Apportionment for the poor wrecks occupying these hospitals and almshouses, if he held a place in them, would receive a distinct shock, having been grounded in the belief the system was invented to provide him a job.

The medical organizations that hold the places are a ring that oust the former incumbent physicians and surgeons on the plea that they are college teachers, and the hospitals furnish schools for students, if college men are the visiting officers.

This was done by political influence, and the conditions show what part the patients take in the arrangement.

The students are instructed the college men attract, students whose fees fall to them, and leave nurses to do their duties.

The young house staff and the ambulance surgeon is this system in its flower, and the nurses copy their indifference.

The bluster of the medical staff that their duties have not been done by some one is an effort to find a scapegoat.

EX-INTERNE.

New York, Jan. 3, 1901.

LABOR AND PIETY.

THE CHURCH AND THE WORKINGMAN.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your issue of the 30th ult. "Workingman" has a communication which, because it voices a certain grievance of his class, merits careful consideration. He makes the following statements:

1. That thousands of workingmen and their wives are ceasing to attend church because they are convinced that the Church is no longer on the side of the working people and their interests and does not properly represent the teachings of Christ.

2. That the Church and her teachers are mainly against the working people in the fierce industrial battle now raging.

In regard to the statement that many working people are ceasing to attend church because of the supposed indifference of the Church to their welfare, there is no evidence to support it. Of late years, many people have ceased to attend church from various causes. The readjustment of religious ideas consequent upon the acceptation of the doctrine of evolution, coupled with the failure of many of the clergy to keep pace with the growing intelligence of their congregations; the modification of our theories of future punishment; the relaxation of the former strictness of Sabbath observance; the attractions of cheap literature, Sunday excursions, bicycles, golf, &c., have all had their influence in drawing away many from their old allegiance to the Church. Of these, doubtless, a due proportion are workingmen.

It is also probably true that a very few workingmen of intellectual and spiritual capacity to feel deeply the wrongs of their class and to appreciate the lofty teachings of Christ have believed that the Church had in her practice fallen short of these ideal precepts and have forsaken her services instead of trying to hold her to her faith. Their alienation and the occasion of it are most regrettable, but it should not be exaggerated. There are but few of such men either in or out of the Church or in the ranks of labor. It is but a small minority of the whole body of workingmen who are sufficiently interested in their class cause to exert themselves or make sacrifices to advance it. The real labor problem is to arouse, enthuse, and interest those who labor to think and work for their own interests. The majority of workingmen will not even leave their political parties to advance the interests of labor.

To say that "the Church and her clergy are no longer on the side of the working people" implies that at some past time this was the case, and that the Church and clergy have lately foresaken a former interest in the welfare of labor. This is directly contrary to all the facts. At no time in the past have the Church, her clergy, and laity been so deeply interested and so deeply concerned in all that appertains to the betterment of social conditions and the doing of justice to those who toil. This is not saying that the Church is doing her full duty nor that particular congregations and clergymen do not fail lamentably to appreciate the situation, but that the leaders and most representative men in the Church are conscientiously trying to find a solution to the pressing problems of labor is incontestable.

"Workingman" says that his class believes that the Church and her teachers are mainly against them in the fierce industrial battle now raging, and says ample reasons can be given for this belief. He gives but one supposed instance, a letter of Dr. Cuyler's objecting to Mr. Cutting's proposed plan for a municipal campaign. He adds that a religion that produces three such men as Dr. Muhlenberg, Phillips Brooks, and Father McGlynn cannot be effete. Now, in common fairness, why are not these last three as much entitled to be taken as representative of the attitude of the modern Church as Dr. Cuyler (supposing that Dr. Cuyler's letter really showed an antagonism to the cause of labor?) Do not workingmen allow themselves to be prejudiced by hasty conclusions from a few cases and statements, and ignore their many friends in the churches, and the many efforts that are made in the common cause by representatives of the Church? It would be invidious to name any among the great multitude of clergy and laity who are to-day in our city doing all that in them lies to better social conditions and solve social problems, and it seems not only ungracious but the worst possible policy for labor leaders to disregard all this and indulge in general denunciation of the Church and her workers because there may be among them some few who offend.

If any sincere and unprejudiced person will read the latest and most helpful works upon social science and note how many are written by ministers or laymen; will examine the current periodicals of the different denominations and note how much space and attention is given to social problems; will attend the services of really representative churches and note the careful consideration to all that relates to social welfare, and finally will make a list of all those who are thinking, working, writing, and speaking for juster conditions and more equitable distribution of wealth, and will note what proportion of these are of the clergy and the laity of the Church, he will satisfy himself that there is neither warrant nor justification for general denunciation of the Church by ill-advised labor leaders. Self-interest should prompt harmony and conciliation instead of recrimination, union and agreement instead of the stirring up of strife.

Take the occasion of all this discussion as an illustration point. Mr. Cutting is at the head of the Citizens' Union, an organization for the one purpose of "securing the honest and efficient government of the City of New York." There is a class of citizens who believe in this object, but do not believe in municipal ownership of public utilities. There is another class who believe that we should have an honest and efficient city government and then have municipal ownership. The writer is this class. There is a third class who believe we should have an honest and efficient city government and that the advocacy of municipal ownership will be a means to this end. Mr. Cutting and "Workingman" belong to this last class. These three classes are thus agreed on the necessity for honest and capable city government, but are not agreed as to other plans. Mr. Cutting says that the movement should declare for municipal ownership. This at once antagonizes those who do not believe in municipal ownership. Dr. Cuyler feels called upon to denounce Mr. Cutting for his announcement, and "Workingman" is stirred up to denounce Dr. Cuyler, the Church, and the "capitalistic press."

Is all this helpful to either cause? Does it advance the one immediate purpose of the Citizens' Union—an honest and efficient government of our city? Cannot workingmen see for themselves that the good government of the city is the first step to municipal ownership? Is it not self-evident that "boss" rule, partisan politics, and the spoils system must be taken out of the road before we can make the first move to municipal socialism? Would it not have been better for Mr. Cutting, considering his position in the Citizens' Union, to have let others say whatever was necessary to reassure the workingmen in regard to the future of municipal ownership? "Workingman" has ability for strong and yet not discourteous statement. If he would employ this to promote harmony and understanding between the working people and the Church and between all of us who would better social conditions, would it not be infinitely better than to promote and prolong a misunderstanding founded on a complete misconception of the facts?

THOMAS CONYNGTON.

New York, Dec. 31, 1900.

THE REV. DR. CUYLER AND "WORKINGMAN."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In the letters published by you, written by the above, it seems to me that the latter was very much more considerate to Dr. Cuyler than the preacher seems to appreciate.

Unfortunately, Dr. Cuyler seems to miss the point. If he will inquire among his workingmen friends, of whom he claims to have a great many, he will find that they are not satisfied with the mere prospect of turning one lot of men out and putting another lot in, and that the cry that taxes must be very radically reduced has very little attraction for them. They want to know not merely that new men are to be put in, and the rascals put out, but also who the new men are and, more important still, what they stand for. According to some men this may be very unwise, but whether it is or not, it is what the leaders of the workingmen are thinking about, of which fact any one can easily inform himself.

The talk of Dr. Cuyler and his friends is virtually this: "Hush, don't say anything about candidates!" "Turn the rascals out!" is the cry. "Leave the rest to us, and we will do what is right." But thinking men are not satisfied with that. They want to be assured that after reform, after the rascals are turned out, and that is necessary re-form-ation, there shall be progress, especially in the line of betterment of the conditions of life of the workingman; that is, the majority of the community who live on daily wages.

Not only are the wage earners bitterly complaining of the conditions under which the majority of them have to live, but Abram S. Hewitt has recently, in startling language, told the rich that if they do not do more for their less fortunate fellow-men they may have to face a revolution and anarchy. It is of little use to talk to the people on abstract questions, especially to men who do not know where to-day's dinner or to-morrow's breakfast is coming from. But the other day a friend of mine, a young married man, with a wife and children to support, and one of the best of citizens, a skilled mechanic, told me he was about to start tramping over the country to secure work. Stone cutting and stone setting he could not secure in this city, where he is well known and an officer in a powerful labor union.

The majority of our plain people have got it pretty clearly into their heads that they produce the wealth and other men get it, and an appeal to these men to turn Tammany down must carry with it pretty substantial assurance that the so-called reform government will do all it humanly and legally can do to better their conditions, especially in the line of tenement houses, which includes the question of rapid transit to the suburbs, where a man might get a comfortable home at a moderate rental and plenty of air and sunlight for his wife and family.

CITIZENS' UNION.

New York, Jan. 4, 1901.

THE SUBSIDY BILL.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

No more important subject is touched upon than the article in this week's issue of The Saturday Evening Post, entitled "The Merchant Marine," by the President of the International Navigation Company and of the American Society of Naval Architects and Marine Engineers. He says:

Two important questions are before the country. First, What should the Government do to upbuild its merchant marine and foreign trade? Second, Why should it do it? The answer to the first question, in my judgment, is simple. A bill introduced by Senator Frye of Maine and Representative Payne has been reported favorably to both branches of Congress, and at this writing awaits action. The bill follows the lines recommended in several successive reports of the Secretary of the Treasury, and has been indorsed, in general form, by the President of the United States, and in the last Republican National platform. The bill was first drafted nearly three years ago by a body of representative American shipbuilders, ship owners, legislators, admiralty lawyers, merchants and manufacturers, aided by the advice of the ablest counsel in questions of Constitutional and International law whom the committee could secure, the Hon. George F. Edmunds of Philadelphia. The committee, made up at the request of Senator Frye, was drawn from all sections of the country, and from both of the two great political parties. One of its most earnest advocates before Congress was the late Hon. Arthur Sewall of Bath, Me. In the preparation of the bill, these gentlemen have had the assistance of expert knowledge in all branches of the shipping industry. They have studied carefully the shipping systems

AT THE THEATRES

"Mrs. Dane's Defence" and Some Other New Plays—Ada Rehan and Viola Allen.

Amid the verlest riot of melodrama, of the most childish and pictorial sort, which has temporarily taken the place of horse-play farce as the chief theatrical staple, comes "Mrs. Dane's Defence," a play by Henry Arthur Jones, which has all the technical merit of a play by Pinero, and nearly as good an average of literary merit. To the student of modern drama it appeals strongly as a coherent, well-constructed piece of workmanship, in which the stale tricks of the playwright are avoided, and life is so well represented that one derives from the performance a perfect illusion. There are no "asides" or soliloquies, there are no curtain pictures, the time represented in each act is not measurably longer than the exact time required by the action. The characters are intelligible studies from life, with not more than justifiable exaggeration, not even that in most cases, though the complacency of the Canon, the frank malice of Mrs. Bulsom-Porter, and the quick surrender of the Detective may, for the sake of argument, be admitted to be concessions to dramatic effect.

The play deals with the effort of a woman who has sinned to reinstate herself in society and to marry a good young man by means of a series of daring lies, and it ends with her defeat and humiliation. Though one sympathizes with the woman, it is only because one is, after all, human, and she is to be pitied; but she is not glorified or held up to admiration any more than Hedda Gabler is or Nora Helmer. She is not a stage "adventuress," of course, and she is hot set up for gallery boys to hiss at. Nor is the inevitable attitude of organized society against the fallen sister ridiculed or attacked in the play. Indeed, it is one of the few plays which uphold that attitude as just and fair. Sir Daniel Carteret, lays down the law in a speech in Act. IV., just as Sir Kit Dearing laid down the law in a speech in Act IV. of Mr. Jones's former play, "The Liars."

Mr. Richman does not deliver this speech, it seems to me, in the right key. He is, at once, too trivial and too cold. But he utters all the words Mr. Jones has written for him. Mr. Richman is notably good only in the examination scene. Miss Anglin, however, is competent and something more, in every scene. There is good acting by others in the cast at the Empire Theatre, too, by Miss Millward, Mr. Standing, Mr. Wheelock, and Miss Ethel Hornick, who, it seems, is still a member of Daniel Frohman's company, and has been temporarily transferred to the Empire.

With Viola Allen and Ada Rehan in town, each provided with a play full of showy pictures, and made up of the stuff that pleases the children and the unthinking; with showy "Janice Meredith" drawing big crowds at Wallack's and Mary Mannering, lovelier than ever, going on every night as its heroine; with Annie Russell still doing the innocuous and really charming "Royal Family," and Chauncey Olcott returning to wear the costume of 1812 and sing ballads, there is surely enough in town to satisfy the people for whom such good and true plays as "Mrs. Dane's Defence" are not written.

Miss Rehan, whose acting is full of variety, vitality, and charm, like Miss Crosman at the Savoy, impersonates a lady who in real life was, indeed, "a thing of naught," but, no matter; one who knew history only through those two plays would never guess that the lady was not admirable.

The devices of melodrama predominate in the new plays at the Knickerbocker Theatre and the Theatre Republic, though Mr. Kester's piece in which Miss Rehan is the star has the saving grace of humor. Its comic scenes are indisputably amusing and are well done. On the other hand, the piece founded on Crawford's novel, "In the Palace of the King," by Lorimer Stoddard, is well acted in every part, which is more than can be said of "Sweet Nell of Old Drury." The equipment of Miss Rehan is vastly superior to that of Miss Allen, who carries her Glory Quayle manner, which was simply an exaggeration of her "Under the Red Robe" manner, through all the scenes of her new play and is rarely in repose.

But Miss Allen has good support from actors as capable as Eben Plympton, who can lend to melodrama its appropriate tone and yet seem reasonable; Edgar Davenport, Clarence Handyside, Robert Haines, a comely actor for young lovers, and Marcia Van Dresser, who only needs to acquire a larger knowledge and mastery of the art of speech.

Miss Rehan gains much this time in popular support because she has been so long out of the public mind and eye that her appearance and acting have something of the charm of novelty. A dramatic artist kept in New York all the season every year and always acting principal parts in one playhouse labors under a great disadvantage here in this fickle era. Our public soon gets tired of its favorites. Miss Rehan was before it too long in her old guise of leading lady in a stock company. Now, after an absence of nearly two years, her return is welcomed with vehemence.

One of the obstacles to the establishment of the London system of "actor-management" in New York is this fickleness, this lack of loyalty to its favorites, that distinguishes our playgoing public. It is perhaps an indication of the juvenility of the taste of the people, but it cannot be cured, it seems. Perhaps it is not an unmixed evil. The field is large, and there is more money and more fame for the successful actor now than there ever was before.

The first week of the year was a busy week in New York theatricals, but only the advent of "Mrs. Dane's Defence," which has merit far beyond the ordinary, made it memorable. Mr. Willard's return was cordially welcomed, and his acting in "David Garrick" and "The Professor's Love Story" did not lack appreciation. A new burletta, "The Burgomaster," has been proclaimed the successor to "1492," which ran some thousands of nights, I believe. Nothing in the reception to the new piece at the Manhattan Theatre every night indicates that it will not run quite as long. Fun and melody and pretty pictures make up the entertainment, and that sort of thing satisfies many thousands.

Moreover, "Quo Vadis" has come to town, with a cast which includes Wilton Lackaye as the Arbiter of Elegance, Aubrey Boucicault as the love smitten young Pagan, and Elita Proctor Otis as the Empress. The pictures with which this drama of Pagan glory and debauchery, Christian persecution, and the saving power of pure love is set on the big stage of the Academy are all new and were painted in London, though that does not make them better. They are good pictures, though.

The return of Chauncey Olcott is always one of the great theatrical incidents of the year. There are probably as many worthy folks who never go to the theatre except to see Olcott down the villain and to hear him sing "The Pretty Colleen and Her Milking Pail," as there are folks who ignore all actors except Joseph Jefferson. He will have a prodigious welcome to-morrow night, and here's hoping his new play, "Garrett O'Magh," will be up to the mark.

An agreeable incident of the week will be the return of Edna May, while Willard will act Dickens's Tom Pinch and Herbert Kelcey and Effie Shannon will produce a new play.

E. A. D.

AT THE VAUDEVILLE SHOWS.

Continuous vaudeville is flourishing and few unfamiliar names are found among this week's contributors. At Proctor's Twenty-third Street Theatre vaudeville, devoid of dramatic trimmings, will be offered, the leaders being the Nesuky troupe of Russian dancers and John Kerwell, the Irish comedian in a new monologue act. Among the others are the Finneys, natatorial experts from London; Al Leech and the Three Rosebuds, in Joe Hart's skit, "Examination Day at School"; Press Eldridge, Olympia Quartet, singing four; Caswell and Arnold, novel acrobatics, and Falke and Semon, musical comiques.

Proctor's Fifth Avenue Theatre presents the Four Cohans, who will bid farewell to vaudeville after this week in New York, and hereafter will tour the country as stars of their own farce comedy company in "The Governor's Son." Papinta, the myriad dancer, and Jean Marcel's bas-reliefs and art reproductions will continue, while other notable specialties are; Lillian Burkhart, in the first production in this city of "Captain Suzanne"; Charles R. Sweet, the musical burglar; Carroll Johnson, the minstrel; Yorke and Adams, the two Hebrews; Ethel Levey, Zeno, Carl & Zeno, Hawaiian Queens, Johnny Johns, and a dozen more features. At Proctor's Palace John W. Albaugh, Jr., and his company in "Trenton, '76"; Desbosq, an equestrienne; Charley Grapewine and Anna Chance in the sketch "Above the Limit"; Singer Midgley and Gertie Carlisle, John Wilson and Bertha Waring, and many others make up a most attractive programme. At Proctor's One Hundred and Twenty-fifth Street Theatre Marie Wainwright will make her first and only Harlem appearance and will be seen in "Lady Di's Escapade"; Staley and Birbeck, the musical blacksmiths, in their transformation act, are also prominent in the bill. Others are; Three Muscagnos, a European acrobatic novelty; Review Comedy Four, singing comedians; Johnnie Carroll, a favorite entertainer; Linton and McIntyre in "The Doctor's Patience"; McCale and Daniels, the Irish knockabouts, and Gaspard Brothers, Mexican axe juggiers.

Mrs. Katherine Bloodgood, the contraito, will return to Keith's on Monday, after an exceedingly successful tour of the Keith circuit. In Boston, specially, where she is well known as a concert and oratorio singer, she drew fashionable and critical audiences. James Thornton, the monologuist, will be in the bill, as well as Grant and Norton, John E. Camp, and Frances Keppler, the dainty dancer. The Todd Judge family and the three Fidardys will provide some remarkable acrobatic work, and a feature will be made of Tschernoff's dogs, which are regarded as the most wonderful animal performers in the world.

Lole Fuller enters upon the second week of her engagement to-morrow night at Koster & Bial's. She will supplant her new effects, "The Dance of Heaven," "The Fire Dance," "The White Rose Dance," and "The Dance of the Lily," with a new terpsichorean brilliancy never before offered anywhere. Blockson and Burns, Annie Hart, Irving Jones, Casey and Le Claire, Irish comedians; Edward Reynard, ventriloquist; Gus Williams, Fields and Ward, Milton and Dollie Nobles, Willet and Thorne Company in "The Up-Town Flat," Violet Friend, the Westons, and Irene Hammersley, are included in the new olio, commencing Monday afternoon.

There will be an abundance of good vaudeville at Hurtig & Seamon's. Joe Hart and Carrie De Mar will offer their original vaudeville skit entitled "The Quiet Mr. Gay." Etta Butler will give her excellent imperiations of celebrated stage favorites, while Streator's Zouaves, seventeen in number, will show some highly interesting manoeuvres and military drills, and Smith and Campbell, black and white faced comedians; Dixon, Bowers, and Dixon, in their grotesque comedy act; Henry C. Stanley, assisted by Doris Wilson, in their musical comedy, "Before the Ball"; McBride and Goodrich, in Irish songs and dances, and the Brothers Gloss will be other features.

At Huber's Museum Manager Huber announces a troupe of trained dogs that will be seen here for the first time, and are known as Prof. Miett's Educated Canines. Leah Kay, a giantess, 7 feet 4 inches in height, is another new feature; Yucca, the strong woman; Signor Farretti's troupe of trained rats, J. Paige, the clay modeler; the Le Roys, clawhammer and wire-haired couple; M. Barriel and his mysterious cabinet, and Allen's Punch and Judy also are billed. In the theatre there will be a new departure, in the production of a farce comedy, entitled "Troubles of My Own."

THIS WEEK'S PLAYBILLS.

The only brand-new plays ready for the New York stage to-morrow night are the musical comedy, "The Girl from Up There," with Edna May in the leading rôle, at the Herald Square Theatre, and Chauncey Olcott, who will begin his annual engagement at the Fourteenth Street Theatre in the new romantic Irish comedy called "Garrett O'Magh," by Augustus Pitou. Mr. E. S. Willard will present "Tom Pinch" at the Garden Theatre every evening this week, and in response to many requests will repeat "David Garrick" at the Wednesday and Saturday matinées. On Tuesday evening at the Madison Square Theatre Herbert Kelcey and Effie Shannon will present Madeline Lucette Ryley's comedy entitled "My Lady Dainty."

It is almost an assured fact that no other piece than "Mrs. Dane's Defense" will be required while the Empire Stock Company is at the Empire. The fitness of Miss Allen and the principal members of her company for their parts "In the Palace of the King" is among the elements which go to make this play at the Theatre Republic interesting and entertaining. Clean in its motive and melodious in its music is "The Burgomaster" at the Manhattan Theatre. At the Lyceum "A Royal Family" holds in high favor, where it is given nightly in the manner of its original showing five months ago. William H. Crane, with his original "David Harum," is well on his way toward the two hundredth performance of the play. The performances of the "Gay Lord Quex," which will be given at the Criterion Theatre this week, are the last opportunities which New York theatregoers will have of seeing John Hare. Owen Hall and Leslie Stewart's musical comedy "Florodora" proved so thoroughly popular during the holidays that the management at the Casino was compelled to place extra chairs back of the orchestra and on the buffet floor to supply the demand. The play will undoubtedly continue up to March, and all report of another musical comedy taking its place in the near future is absolutely without foundation. The success of "Fiddle-dee-dee," with the interpolated burlesques of "The Gay Lord Quex" and "A Royal Family," has been so marked that Weber & Fields have for the time ceased to consider burlesquing anything else. Though at the height of her popularity and still crowding the Savoy Theatre, it is announced that Miss Henrietta Crosman, in "Mistress Nell," will begin the last three weeks of her engagement to-morrow night. The one hundredth performance has already been reached. "A Royal Rogue" will last two weeks longer at the Broadway, and until the end of his term Jefferson De Angelis will no doubt retain his vogue with people who like musical comedy. Stanislaus Stange's dramatization of "Quo Vadis" at the Academy of Music has met with substantial success.

The third week of Marie Dressler and her comedians in "Miss Prinnt," at the Victoria Theatre, will introduce for the first time in the third act a thirty-minute comic opera entitled "The Village Beauty, or Aristocracy," by Bronson Howard, will be the revival by the Donnelly Stock Company at the Murray Hill Theatre, and another "Quo Vadis" play will be offered by the stock company at the American Theatre. The Royal Lilliputians in their farce entitled "The Merry Tramps," will be at the Metropolis Theatre this week, and the spectacular play called "Down Mobile" will be offered at the Third Avenue Theatre. Louis Mann and Clara Lipman return to this city after many months' absence with their comedy "All on Account of Eliza," which will be offered at the Grand Opera House. The Dewey Theatre will have for its attraction the Utopian Burlesquers. The success of the pantomime "Humpty-Dumpty" at the Eden Musée has been so great that it will be continued another week. Moving pictures are shown hourly, and they include many humorous subjects as well as tales of mystery. The afternoon and evening concerts continue to please, and the wax groups are at their best. In view of the success which Blumenthal & Kadelburg's comedy, "Die Strengen Herren," ("Strict People,") scored at the Irving Place Theatre, Mnnager Conried has decided to continue it until further notice. The second of Manager Conried's "Lectures on German Poets and Their Language" will take place on Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock, at the Irving Place Theatre, the subject for this lecture being "Goethe's Life and His Poems."

Mary Mannering, in one of the most popular plays on Broadway, "Janice Meredith," enters upon the fourth week of her engagement, and Miss Ada Rehan, with "Sweet Nell of Old Drury," bids fair to furnish the most entertaining comedy-drama seen at the Knickerbocker Theatre in some time. "Lady Huntworth's Experiment" has settled down at Daly's for an indefinite run, and Peter F. Dailey in "Hodge, Podge & Co.," the musical farce, returns to fill a week's engagement at the Harlem Opera House. "The Giddy Throng," with a long vaudeville programme, continues the attraction at the New York Theatre. May Irwin, with "Madge Smith, Attorney," will terminate her engagement Jan. 12 at the Bijou Theatre.

AMONG MUSICIANS

Wagner and "Der Fliegende Holländer"—The Sources of the Story.

The revival of Wagner's "Der Fliegende Holländer" at the Metropolitan Opera House on Wednesday night fell on the fifty-eighth anniversary of the first performance of the opera in Dresden on Jan. 2, 1843. Although it is true that this work begins to sound antiquated because of the naïveté of its music, it must nevertheless continue to have a deep historical interest for the student of Wagner. At any rate this seems a fitting time to review the creation of this unique art product, the starting point of the career of the future maker of music dramas. The work was written at Meudon, near Paris, in the Spring of 1841. All except the overture was completed in seven weeks. In "The Flying Dutchman" the poetic ability of the master was first exhibited. He ceased to be a mere librettowriter and became a dramatic poet. His version of the famous old legend is a lovely one, and much of its increased beauty is the product of his own genius. It was, as he himself said in the oft-quoted "Communication," the "first folk-poem that forced its way into my heart, and called on me as man and artist to point its meaning, and mold it in a work of art."

It was while in Riga that he made his first acquaintance with the story. "Heine takes occasion to relate it," he says, "in speaking of the representation of a play founded thereon, which he had witnessed—as I believe—at Amsterdam. This subject fascinated me, and made an indelible impression upon my fancy; still it did not as yet acquire the force needful for its rebirth within me." The story of Heine was in "The Memoirs of Herr Schnabelewopski." It is not certain whose play it was that Heine meant. Francis Hueffer in his "Richard Wagner" expresses the belief that the play was that of Fitzball, which was running at the Adelphi Theatre in 1827, when Heine visited London. Mr. Hueffer bases his argument largely on the fact that two features of Fitzball's play, both additions to the old legend, are mentioned by Heine as appearing in the drama which he saw. These are the picture of the Dutchman on the wall of Daland's house, and the taking of a wife by the wandering seaman.

Mr. Hueffer adds: "Here, however, his indebtedness ends. Fitzball knows nothing of the beautiful idea of woman's redeeming love. According to him the Flying Dutchman is the ally of a monster of the deep, seeking for victims. Wagner, further developing Heine's idea, has made the hero himself to symbolize that feeling of unrest and ceaseless struggle which finds its solution in death and forgetfulness alone. The gap in Heine's story he has filled up by an interview of Senta with Eric, her discarded lover, which the Dutchman mistakes for a breach of faith on the part of his wife, till Senta's voluntary death dispels his suspicion." It should be noted that Mr. W. Ashton Ellis, whose translation of Wagner's prose works has been so often quoted, wrote a paper to disprove the theory of Mr. Hueffer as to the play having been Fitzball's. The matter, after all, is not one of great importance. Wagner got his materials from Heine's book, which contained a version of a very old legend, and, in making the text of his lyric drama, he altered and improved that material as Mr. Hueffer has indicated.

The late Mr. John P. Jackson, formerly musical editor of The New York World, in the admirable introduction to his translation of the text of this opera, at one time used at the Metropolitan Opera House, says that the Fitzball play was founded on a version of the legend printed in Blackwood's Magazine in May, 1821. That version runs thus: "She was an Amsterdam vessel and sailed from port seventy years go. Her master's name was Van der Decken. He was a stanch seaman, and would have his own way in spite of the devil. For all that, never a sailor under him had reason to complain; though how it is on board with them nobody knows. The story is this, that in doubling the Cape they were a long day trying to weather the Table Bay. However, the wind headed them, and went against them more and more, and Van der Decken walked the deck, swearing at the wind. Just after sunset a vessel spoke him, asking him if he did not mean to go into the bay that night. Van der Decken replied, 'May I be eternally damned if I do, though I should beat about here till the day of judgment.' And to be sure, he never did go into that bay, for it is believed that he continues to beat about in these seas still, and will do so long enough. This vessel is never seen but with foul weather along with her."

This is practically the original story of the "Flying Dutchman." It is no new tale, but like nearly all myths a development. In the literature of Greece we find the wanderer in the person of Ulysses, yearning for hearth and home and the joys of domestic love. In the early period of Christianity the myth entered and gave us the gloomy figure of the Wandering Jew, accursed and hopeless of all save the end in oblivion. With the Dutch the legend in the Middle Ages was easily transferred to their own favorite element, the sea, whereon at that time they were among the most daring and skilful. The struggle of the Dutchman against contending winds and waves typified their own battles with the powers of old ocean, and their determination to conquer at all hazards.

Later writers than those of the dark ages endeavored to give this legend an end. In its original form it stands suspended with the Dutchman, a creature without hope. Capt. Marryatt, in his "Phantom Ship," releases the wanderer from his ceaseless journeyings by means of an amulet, or religious charm. Sir Walter Scott's version of the tale—wherever he found it—is a curiously poor one. According to him, the vessel was laden with precious metal. A murder was committed on board, and as a punishment for it a plague fell upon the crew. No port would permit the ship to enter, and it was doomed to float about aimlessly forever. There is no poetry and a total absence of the personal tragedy in that version. The idea of the salvation of the wanderer through the self-sacrificing love of woman, an idea to be found in literatures much older than this, was introduced into the story before Heine saw the play of which he wrote. It is quite possible that Heine never saw such a play, yet the fact remains that in the Fitzball drama the Dutchman did take a wife, only, however, to make an offering of her to a sea monster—a grotesque and utterly unpoetical idea.

Wagner got his beautiful ending from Heine. Mr. Hueffer has taken the trouble to retail the story as told in "The Memoirs of Herr von Schnabelewopski." The sentence of Van der Decken is that he shall wander till doomsday unless he shall be released by a woman faithful unto death. The Devil does not believe in the existence of women of that sort, and therefore allows the wanderer to go ashore once every seven years to see if he can find such a one. [How was if that the Devil was so often mistaken about women?] He meets with failure after failure, till finally he falls in with a Scotch merchant, whose daughter has already learned his story and formed a romantic attachment for him. She has his picture in her room, and when her father, having accepted the Dutchman's offer for her hand, brings him home, she at once recognizes him and determines to sacrifice herself to save him. Just at this point Herr von Schnabelewopski is called away for a short time, and when he returns he sees the Dutchman about to sail away without his wife. He loves her and would save her from his fate. But she, true to her vow, ascends a high rock, whence she throws herself into the sea. The spell is broken and the united lovers enter eternal rest. The reader will now see that it was the void occasioned by the temporary absence of von Schnabelewopski which Wagner filled with the interview between Senta and Eric. Except for the introduction of this character, a tenor, necessary to afford both dramatic and musical contrast to the story, Wagner has followed Heine closely, as lovers of the dramatist's works will at once perceive.

Out of this material Wagner constructed a drama which at the time of its production was as novel as "Tristan und Isolde" was in later years. In it we first meet with this master's remakable power of concentrating in each scene the emotional moods and pouring them out to us in the music, while in those portions of the score devoted to musical description, such as the sea music and the sailors' choruses, we may note his ability to make dramatic atmosphere. How these powers reveal themselves to us in the grand duo of the last scene of "Siegfried" and the "Waldweben"! It is worth while hearing "Der Fliegende Holländer" occasionally, if only to study the embryonic Wagner.

W. J. HENDERSON.

THE KNEISEL QUARTET.

Prospectus of the Second Concert, to be Given Tuesday Night.

The second evening concert of the Kneisel Quartet will be given in Mendelssohn Hall on Tuesday evening at 8:15 o'clock, with the following programme:

Quartet for strings, E flat, Op. 51.....Dvorsk
Quintet, for pianoforte and strings, F minor..
Cesar Franck
Quartet for strings, C major, Op. 59, No. 3..
Beethoven

In Cesar Franck's quintet the pianoforte will be played by Mr. George Proctor of Boston. Dvorak's quartet has been heard in New York more than once within the last year. It is stamped with strongly marked Bohemian national characteristics, which are especially striking in the second movement, which is a "dumka" or ballade-like song of elegiac character, which Dvorak has developed as an interesting contribution to the sonata form; and in the last allegro, which is written in the energetic rhythm and spirit of the polka, a dance native to Bohemia, though of comparatively recent origin there.

The quintet is an important addition to the list of Cesar Franck's works that have been made known to New York in recent years, in such numbers as to silence the reproaches of the French composer's admirers because of what they have called the undeserved neglect of an original and individual talent. It is the third of his chamber compositions that Mr. Kneisel has produced at his concerts, the others being the string quartet and the sonata for violin and piano. This quintet, which is dedicated to Saint-Saëns, discloses some of the most characteristic and ingenious features of Franck's workmanship. It is in three movements, the first allegro being preceded by a slow introduction which recurs again before the close; and running through all three the attentive listener will discern the same melodic material used repeatedly in those varied transformations and elaborations of form and complications of chromatic harmony to which Franck delights in submitting a theme of almost bald simplicity. He is one of those composers who have made most frequent use in recent times of the device known as "community of theme" as a means of enhancing the unity of the different movements of compositions in the sonata form.

The Beethoven quartet is the third of the famous set of three dedicated to Count Rasonmoffsky, the Russian Ambassador at Vienna during a large part of Beethoven's life there, a noted amateur of music, and the supporter of a widely known quartet party in which he himself played the second violin. Beethoven wrote the set in 1806, the year of the fourth symphony, the violin concerto, and the G major pianoforte concerto, in the ripest period, that is, of his so-called second style. No works of Beethoven as his biographer, Thayer, informs us, had a more discouraging reception from musicians. One of the critics of the day called them "very long and difficult, deeply thought out, and admirably constructed, but not generally intelligible, except perhaps the third, which must win the favor of every friend of music by its individuality, melody, and harmonic strength." But Count Rasonmoffsky's musicians, when they first played them over, burst out laughing and thought that Beethoven must have meant them for one of his jokes and that they could not be the ones promised to the Count. Another musician, Radicati, finding a copy of them soon after their publication at a well-known English amateur's house, observed that it was generally believed that Beethoven was music mad, these quartets were not music at all, and added, "Beethoven showed them to me in manuscript; I played them for him, and told him he certainly could not consider such things music; whereupon he answered, 'Oh, no, they are not for you; but for a later time.'"

THE PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY.

The programme of the fourth public rehearsal of the Philharmonic Society at Carnegie Hall on Friday afternoon and the ensuing concert on Saturday night is as follows:

"A Faust Overture".....Wagner
Concerto for violin, (first movement)...Beethoven
Maud Powell.
Symphony No. 3, F major.....Brahms
Fantaisie de Concert, B minor, Rimsky-Korsakoff
Maud Powell.
Overture, "Carnival Romain".....Berlioz

Miss Powell will reappear after an absence in Europe of two years, and the Rimsky-Korsakoff composition will be heard for the first time in this country.

Mr. Franko's Symphony Concerts.

Sam Franko's third and last concert, which takes place at the Lyceum Theatre on Jan. 15, at 3:30, should attract all true lovers of music, not only because of the excellence of the programme selected, but from the fact that this music, new to this country, is so delightfully rendered by the American Symphony Orchestra. There can be no question but that Mozart's Sinfonia Concertante for oboe, clarinet, horn, and bassoon will in itself more than compensate all those who attend.

By these concerts Mr. Franko has demonstrated how deficient we are, musically, when he can bring to life in the twentieth century, for the first time in this country, such charming and delightful music written so long ago as 1756-91. The programme will be as follows:

Overture—"L'Hotellerie Portugaise"..
Maria Luigi Cherubini, (1760-1842.)
(First time in America.)
Sinfonia Concertante..
Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart, (1756-1791.)
For oboe, clarinet, horn, and bassoon, with accompaniment of orchestra. (First time in America.)
Airs de Ballet—From "Cephale et Procris,"..
André Ernest Modeste Gretry, (1741-1813.)
(First time in America.)
Suite—Op. 49.....Camille Saint-Saens, (1835—)

Mr. Bispham's Song Recital.

Mr. David Bispham will give a song recital at Mendelssohn Hall on Tuesday afternoon, Jan. 15. The programme:

Let the Dreadful Engines.....Purcell
Von ewiger Liebe } Mein Maedel } .....Brahms
Der Hidalgo.....Schumann
Aus meinen grossen Schmerzen } Staendchen } .....Franz
Genesung }
I'm a Roamer.....Mendelssohn
An die Entfernte } Der Abend } Der Mueller } (first time).H. H. Wetzler
When I Sleep I Dream }
The Joyful Widowar }
Prospice.....Stanford
Lend Me Thy Fillet, Love.....Brockway
Tears, Idle Tears } O, Swallow, Swallow } (first time)....Sullivan
Wedding Song }
How Deep the Slumber of the Flooda } Edward }...Loewe

Attractive Charity Concert.

The following is the programme that has been arranged by Mr. Henry Wolfsohn for the annual concert for the benefit of the Workingman's Home and the District Nursing Department, which is to be given in Carnegie Hall on Monday evening next, Jan. 7. Seats are now on sale at the hall. Both of these charities are under the protection of the Society for Ethical Culture.

Andante and Variation from Sonata Op. 47, Beethoven
Dohnanyi and Kreisler.
Duets from "Joseph".....Méhul
From "Richard Coeur de Lion".....Grety
Mr. and Mrs. Henschel.
Mignon's Song.....Liszt
Nussbaum.....Schumann
Where be Goin'.....Old Cornish
Mrs. Henschel.
Barcarole.....Rubinstein
Valse, "Nalia".....Delibes-Dohnanyi
Ernst von Dohnanyi.
The Ruined Mill.....Lowe
Das Wandern.....Schubert
Mr. Hanachel.
Theme Religioso.....Thome
Fritz Kreisler.
Duet, "Don Pasquale".....Donizetti
Mr. and Mrs. Henschel.

The Henschel Recitals.

Two song recitals at Mendelssohn Hall Jan. 8 and 10, by Mr. and Mrs. Georg Henschel are announced. The programme of the first is this:

Duet from "I Traci Amanti".....Cimarosa
Mr. and Mrs. Henschel.
Bee, and air from "Jephtha".....Handel
Arietta—"Quel Ruscelleto" (1710).....Paradies
Couplets from "Rose et Colas".....Monsigny
Mrs. Henschel.
Five songs from the cycle, "Die Winterreise": "Der Lindenbaum," "Die Krahe," "Letzte Hoffnung," "Das Wirthshaus," and "Der Leiermann".....Schubert
Mr. Henschel.
Ballad—"Goldschmied's Tochterlein".....Loewe
"Lithauisches Lied".....Chopin
"Leis Bewegt," (from Op. 20).....Davidoff
Mrs. Henschel.
Duets—"Ueber der Donkeln Haide," "Lass Dich Nicht Gereu'n," (from Op. 33)..Henschel
Mr. and Mrs. Henschel.
Saul's Dream—Scene from "King Saul"..
C. Hubert H. Parry
Mr. Henschel.
"No More," (new,) and A Lullaby....Henschel
Irish Folk-song.....Arthur Foote
Mrs. Henschel.
Two Biblical songs, (from Op. 99).....Dvorak
Ballad—"Verrath," (from Op. 105).....Brahms
Mr. Henschel.
Duet from "Mignon".....Ambr. Thomas
Mr. and Mrs. Henschel.

The Pittsburg Orchestra.

The Pittsburg Orchestra of seventy-five players, Victor Herbert, conductor, will give concerts in Music Hall on the evenings of Tuesday, Jan. 22 and Feb. 12. The début of the orchestra in New York last season will be pleasantly remembered. The orchestra, as is well known, is supported by public-spirited men of Pittsburg and directly traceable to Mr. Carnegie's gift of a library and music hall to that city in 1895. At the concert of Jan. 22 Mrs. Dorothy Harvey, soprano, of New York City, will make her first public appearance. Additional interest is commanded by the fact that the programme will include a new work by Victor Herbert, the symphonic poem, "Hero and Leander," to be heard in New York for the first time. In point of scope this work is on artistic lines similar to Mr. Herbert's "Suite Romantique," which New Yorkers heard last year through the medium of the Pittsburg Orchestra.

Sousa and His Band.

Sousa and his band will be heard at Carnegie Hall to-night. The programme:

Overture, "Isabella".....Suppé
Trombone solo, "The Patriot," (new)....Pryor
Mr. Arthur Pryor.
Ballet suite, "The History of a Pierrot,"
(new).....Marlo Costa
Soprano solo, "Where Is Love?" (new)...Sousa
Miss Blanche Duffield.
Grand scene, "Oh, Fatal Stone, (Aida)..Verdi
Intermission.
Invitation a la Valse.....Weber
Concelt, "In the Soudan," Dervish chorus,
(new).....Sebek
March, "Hail to the Spirit of Liberty,"
(new).....Sousa
(Composed for the dedication of the Lafayette Monument, Paris, July 4, 1900.)
Violin solo, "Adagio and Moto Perpetuum"..Ries
Miss Bertha Bucklin.
Czardas, "Ritter Pasman," (new).....
Johann Strauss

The Leipsic Philharmonic.

The entire Philharmonic Orchestra (75 pieces) of Leipsic, under the direction of Hans Winderstein, will arrive in America toward the end of February for a sixty-day tournée under the management of Mrs. Norma Knupfel. The first concert will take place on Friday evening, March 1, at Carnegie Hall, New York, after which all the leading cities throughout the country will be visited. The principal soloist who will appear in conjunction with the Leipsic Philharmonic Orchestra will be the Polish pianist Josef von Slivinski, who will be remembered as having paid us a visit a few seasons ago. The entire orchestra, together with Messrs. Winderstein and Slivinski, will sail from Bremen Feb. 19 on the Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse, and will return to Europe on or about May 1. Mr. Winderstein's engagement with his orchestra at the Doina, in Warsaw, which begins about the middle of May, limits the American tournée to sixty days.

Josef Hofmann to Return.

The famous pianist, Josef Hofmann, who has been making such great successes in Russia during the last two months, has been engaged for fifteen concerts in Eastern cities of the United States during the months of March and April by Ralph Emerson Burnham, who has just returned from Moscow, where he had been in order to make the contract with Hofmann. Mr. Burnham had great difficulty in securing Hofmann, as his successes have been so phenomenal both in musical and financial results in Russia. Rubinstein proclaimed Hofmann his successor, not only before the Czar, but in all of the great cities; consequently the people worship him, and he is there exactly what Paderewski is in our country. Mr. Hofmann will give his first recital on March 5, in the afternoon, in the great Carnegie Music Hall.

Berlin's Cosmopolitan Concerts.

BERLIN, Jan. 5.—The January concerts here show the international character of this city as a musical centre. Those who will perform comprise four French artists, two Russians, two Poles, one Finn, one Roumanian, one Hungarian, two Scandinavians, one Bosnian, four Italians, four Dutch, one Englishman, and three Americans. The last named are L. Godowsky, Estelle Liebling, and Wilma Sanda. Godowsky on Jan. 16 plays four of his own compositions.

THE WEEK AT THE OPERA.

The programme for the fourth week of the season of opera at the Metropolitan Opera House is as follows:

MONDAY—"Aida," Mmes. Gadski and Homer, Messrs. Jean and Edouard de Reszke, Scotti, and Journet.
WEDNESDAY—"Lohengrin," Mmes. Nordica and Schumann-Heink, Messrs. Jean and Edouard de Reszke, Bispham, and Muhlmann.
FRIDAY—"La Boheme," Mmes. Melba and Scheff, Messrs. Saleza, Campanari, Gilbert, Journet, and Dufriche.
SATURDAY AFTERNOON—"Faust," Mmes. Melba and Bridewell, Messrs. Jean and Edouard de Reszke and Scotti.
SATURDAY NIGHT—"Tannhaeuser," Mmes. Ternina and Strong, Messrs. Van Dyck, Bertram, Blass, and Bars.

The regular Sunday evening concert will take place to-night. The soloists will be Misses Adams, Maryili, and Bridewell, Messrs. Saleza and Plancon. Mr. Damrosch will conduct.

NOTES OF MUSICAL DOINGS.

Martinus Sieveking, the Dutch pianist, now in this country, will give a recital at Mendelssohn Hall Jan. 18.

The Marquis Francesco De Souza Continho, the Portuguese baritone, will make his New York debut at Carnegie Hall Jan. 24, with orchestra.

Rosa Olitzka, one of the contraltos of the Metropolitan Opera Company, is to give a song recital in Mendelssohn Hall on Thursday afternoon, Jan. 24, at 3 o'clock.

Miss Avice Boxall, who is to give a harp recital in Mendelssohn Hall on Friday afternoon, Jan. 25, will have the assistance of Gwylm Miles, baritone, and Bruno S. Huhn, pianist.

The Morgan String Quartet will give a concert at Mendelssohn Hall on Thursday evening, at 8:15. The programme will consist of Mozart's Quartet in B flat, Kochel 458, and Beethoven's Quartet in F major, Op. 59, No. 1.

The Walter Damrosch piano lectures on "The Ring of the Nibelungen" at Daly's Theatre will take place on the Fridays and Tuesdays of Jan. 18, 22, 25, and 29. Mr. Damrosch will treat in succession of "The Rheingold," "The Walküre," "Siegfried," and "Gotterdämmerung."

Miss Carrie Bridewell, the favorite young contralto of the Maurice Grau Opera Company, and Mr. Heinrich Meyn will give a joint song recital at Mendelssohn Hall, Tuesday evening, Jan. 15, under the management of Mr. L. M. Ruben.

The third private concert this season of the Manuscript Society will be given at the Carnegie Chamber Music Hall, on Tuesday evening, Jan. 15, 1901. Special attention has been devoted this time to the preparation of an interesting programme, which will include several important works in manuscript.

The third Symphony Concert for Young People, under the direction of Mr. Frank Damrosch, will be given in Carnegie Hall on Saturday afternoon next at 2:30 o'clock, with the following programme: Prelude to "Hansel and Gretel," Humperdinck; Siegfried Idyll, Wagner; Nutcracker Suite, Tschaikowsky.

Ossip Gabrilowitsch gives his fourth piano recital at Mendelssohn Hall next Saturday afternoon, Jan. 12, at 3 o'clock. The following programme is announced: Beethoven, Sonata Op. 27, C sharp minor, (Quasi una fantasia;) Schumann, Faschingsschwank aus Wien, Op. 26; Chopin, Nocturne, B major, Op. 9; Valse, C sharp minor, Op. 64; Polonaise, A flat, Op. 53; Tschaikowsky, Chanson Triste; Gabrilowitsch, Petite Serenade; Schubert-Tausig, March Militaire.

Harold Bauer, the pianist, who has won such exceptional success in America without the customary aid of flamboyant press heralding and extravagant advance praise, will give his second and third recitals in New York on Friday afternoon, Jan. 11, and Thursday afternoon, Jan. 17, at Mendelssohn Hall. A great deal of social attention has been paid to Mr. Bauer in New York and Boston, which has resulted in his being heard privately on several occasions.

Mme. Lillian Blauvelt was a passenger on the steamer Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse, which sailed for Southampton this week. Mme. Blauvelt's tour was an immense success. She more than renewed her former successes, and was everywhere enthusiastically received. Before sailing Mme. Blauvelt arranged with her manager, Mr. Henry Wolfsohn, to return again to this country in the last week in March, and will remain here until the middle of May. Mme. Blauvelt opens her European tour in Liverpool on the 12th of this month.

Miss Amelia Stone, the young American prima donna, who arrived last Saturday in order to fill the principal rôle of Johann Strauss's operetta, "Vienna Life," has now attended several rehearsals, and is perfect in the American adaptation of the work. The arrangements for the production are fast drawing near completion, and it will be a most gorgeous representation. The white and gold scene, by Ernest Albert, promises to be a revelation in scenic effect. A special feature of the production is the grand military parade and gavoute, which will engage over seventy people. The opera will open on Jan. 21 at the Broadway Theatre.

The Children's Theatre

ANNOUNCEMENTS OF DRAMATIC AND MUSICAL ENTERTAINMENTS.

PROCTOR'S

Five Beautiful Play Houses
Devoted to High Class Continuous Vaudeville—A Policy Established in 1883.
By F. F. PROCTOR, Sole Proprietor & Manager. J. Austin Fynes, General Manager.

23D ST.
12:30 to 10:45 P. M.
TO-MORROW AND ALL WEEK.
THE FINNEYS
Wonderful Swimming Act.
PRESS ELDRIDGE, CASWELL & ARNOLD, FALK & SEMON.
JOHN KERNELL,
The Irish Demosthenes.
AL. LEECH & 3 ROSEBUDS, RAMZA & ARNO, YAMAGOTA BROS.
NEWSKY TROUPE,
8 RUSSIAN DANCERS.
OLYMPIA QUARTET, FRANK URBAN, BROS. MARTINE, HORNMANN, the KALATECHNOSCOPE, etc.
PRICES ALWAYS: 50, 25 & 15c. BOX SEATS, $1.00.
Continuous Concert To-day.
Geo. W. Monroe, Staley & Birbeck, Clifford & Huth, Grapewin & Chance, Ralph Johnstone, etc.

5TH AV.
Broadway and 28th St.
12:30 SHARP to 10:45 P. M.
TO-MORROW AND ALL WEEK.
4 COHANS
Last Week in Vaudeville.
CARROLL, JOHNSON, ETHEL LEVEY, HAWAIIAN QUEENS.
Continued Triumph of the Great
PAPINTA.
CHAS. R. SWEET, YORKE & ADAMS, JOHNNY JOHNS.
Second Month of
JEAN MARCEL'S
Living Statuary and Bas Reliefs.
ZENO, CARL & ZENO, RUSCO'S TERRIERS, the KALATECHNOSCOPE, etc.
BROADWAY'S LOWEST PRICES, 25 AND 50c. BOX SEATS, $1.00.
Continuous Concert To-day.
Rose Coghlan & Co., Papinta, Marcel's Living Statuary, The Finneys, Lew Hawkins, etc.

PALACE.
58th St. and 3d Av.
2 to 10:45 P. M.
TO-MORROW AND ALL WEEK.
American Début
MLLE. DELBOSQ,
Famous European Equestrienne.
CHARLEY GRAPEWIN & ANNA CHANCE, WILL F. DENNY,
J. W. ALBAUGH, JR.
and Stock Co.
BANKS & WINONA WINTERS, VERNON, JEFFERSON,
MIDGLEY & CARLISLE,
Juvenile Skit, "After School."
WILSON & WARING, YOUNG AMERICA QUINTET, MAY EVANS, the KALATECHNOSCOPE, etc.
BARGAIN PRICES:—AFTERNOONS, 15 & 25c. EVENINGS, 15, 25, 50c.
Continuous Concert To-day.
Russell Bros., Lew Sully, Banks & Winona Winters, John E. Camp, Mimic Four, etc.

125TH ST.
2 to 10:45 P. M.
TO-MORROW AND ALL WEEK.
Only Harlem Engagement.
Marie Wainwright
In "Lady Di's Escapade."
JOHNNIE CARROLL, FLORINNE, the KALATECHNOSCOPE.
STALEY & BIRBECK,
The Musical Blacksmiths.
LINTON & M'INTYRE, GASPARD BROS., BRENNAN & SINNOTT.
THREE MASCAGNOS,
European Acrobats.
M'CALE & DANIELS, M'CLOUD & MELVILLE, etc.
HARLEM'S LOWEST PRICES:—AFTERNOONS, 15, & 25c. EVENINGS, 15, 25, & 50c.
Continuous Concert To-day.
Russell Bros., Lew Sully, Banks & Winona Winters, John E. Camp, Mimic Four, etc.

WALLACK'S
B'way & 30th St. Evenings at 8:30.
Matinées Wednesday and Saturday.
FRANK McKEE PRESENTS
MARY MANNERING
IN
"JANICE MEREDITH"
Dramatized by Paul Leicester Ford & E. E. Rose.
SEATS ON SALE 4 WEEKS IN ADVANCE.

KNICKERBOCKER THEATRE, B'way & 38th St.
AL. HAYMAN & CO. ..... Proprietors
"It was a great night for Ada Rehan."—Sun.
ADA REHAN { SWEET NELL OF OLD DRURY.
PAUL KESTER'S COMEDY.
MANAGEMENT KLAW & ERLANGER.
Evenings at 8:25. Saturday Matinee, 2:15.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC, 14th St. & Irving Pl.
THE ORIGINAL LONDON PRODUCTION.
QUO VADIS
Wilton Lackaye, Elita Proctor Otis, Aubrey Boucicault, Bijou Fernandez, & 200 others.
Prices, 25, 50, 75, $1.00. Mats. Wed. & Sat., 2. Eve'g, 8.

HAMMERSTEIN'S Victoria Evgs. 8:30. Mat. Sat. 2:15
42d St., 8th & 7th Aves. Gen. Adm., 50c.
THIRD SUCCESSFUL WEEK.
DRESSLER In the Vaudeville Surprise,
MISS PRINNT & BURLESQUE OPERA BOUFFE.

Children's Theatre
CARNEGIE LYCEUM 57th STREET AND 7th AVENUE.
Every Afternoon at 3:30.

AMERICAN 42D ST. AND 8TH AVE.
MATINEE DAILY (Except Mon.) 25c.
QUO VADIS
To-night—Big Sun. Concert—Great Bill.

BROADWAY THEATRE, 41st St. & B'way. Evgs., 8:15. Sat. Mat., 2:15.
JACOB LITT. ..... Proprietor
The Sun says: "If you go to the Broadway for fun you will GET YOUR MONEY'S WORTH."
JEFFERSON
DE ANGELIS
and Company in Klein & Francis's extremely funny Operatic Comedy,
A ROYAL ROGUE

THEATRE, TELEPHONE 2210-38. REPUBLIC 42nd St., just west of B'way.
Evgs. 8:15. Matinées Wednesday & Saturday, 2:15
The Hit of the New Century.
VIOLA ALLEN
In Lorimer Stoddard's dramatization of F. Marion Crawford's novel,
IN THE PALACE OF THE KING
Liebler & Co., Managers.

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN.
Grand Masquerade Ball
of the
Cercle Francais de L'Harmonie
TUESDAY, JANUARY 8TH.
Boxes and tickets at Clubhouse, 24 West 26th St., and principal hotels.

THE NEW YORK THIS AFT'N AT 2. TO-NIGHT AT 8:15
IMMENSE SUNDAY CONCERT ALL SEATS (NO HIGHER) 50C
BIG ALL-STAR BILL!!
To-morrow Night and Mats. Wed. & Sat.
New Special Features, Followed by Ballet & Vaudeville, Rosenfeld & Sloane's Review & Burlesque, THE GIDDY THRONG, STAR CAST.

WEBER & FIELDS' MUSIC HALL. Evgs. 8:15, Sharp. Mats. Tues., Sat., 2.
FIDDLE-DEE-DEE and Burlesques of Gay Lord Quex and a Royal Family.

METROPOLIS THEATRE, 142d St. & 3d Av. Ev'gs, 8:15. Mats. Wed. & Sat.
"THE ROYAL LILLIPUTIANS."

CASINO Broadway and 39th Street.
SIRE BROS. ..... Mgrs.
Every Eve. at 8:15. Matinées Saturday & Holidays.
FLORODORA
3D MONTH
Dunne, Ryley & Fisher's
Beautiful, Dashing, Tuneful
Great Star Cast.
WILLIE EDOUIN, EDNA WALLACE-HOPPER, CYRIL SCOTT, FANNIE JOHNSTON, H. E. GRAHAM, MAY EDOUIN.

ADMISSION 25c. SUNDAYS.
WORLD IN WAX
EDEN MUSEE
—NEW TO-DAY—
SPECIAL GROUPS AND FIGURES.

This Afternoon and Evening.
THE NEW TROUBADOURS AND ORCHESTRA.
Commencing To-morrow. Last Week,
HUMPTY DUMPTY.
Extra Cinematograph.
CINDERELLA'S Glass Slipper.

THE DEWEY EAST 14TH ST. BETWEEN 3RD & 4TH AVS.
TO-NIGHT!
"GREAT POP."
Pop. Prices, 25 & 50c.
NAT. M. WILLS, STINSON & MERTON, FIELDS & WARD, FLORENCE BINDLEY, BLANCHE RING, GALLAGHER & BARRETT, HOWARD & BROS. WILLIAMS & HOOD, COOK & LESTER, Robt. Recker's Harmonists.
Coin. To-morrow, Monday, Mat. and all week,
VICTORIA BURLESQUERS.
NEW LIVING PICTURES.

SAVOY B'way, 34th St., 8:20 P. M.
THREE LAST WEEKS. Matinées Wed. & Sat. 2:15.
HENRIETTA CROSMAN
in the Merry Play, MISTRESS NELL.

HARLEM OPERA HOUSE. Evgs. 8:15. Matinée Saturday 2:15.
Peter F. Dailey in the Big Musical Comedy, HODGE, PODGE & CO. Including the Marvelous Agoust Family
Jan. 14th—JOHN HARE, "The Gay Lord Quex."

DALY'S B'way & 30th, at 8:15. Dan'l Frohman, Mgr. Mats. Wed. & Sat.
"A credit to Daly's."—Press.
"So good a play sure to last."—Times.
Lady Huntworth's Experiment.
By H. C. Carton, Author Lord & Lady Alky
WALTER DAMROSCH PIANO RECITALS and Lectures on The Ring of the Niebelungen Operas Fridays and Tuesdays, Jan. 18, 22, 25, 29. 2:30 P. M. Prices 1.00 to 25c. Seats ready.

LYCEUM 4th Av. & 23d. ..... At 8:30
ANNIE RUSSELL in Daniel Frohman ... Manager. Matinées Thurs. & Sat., 2:15
A ROYAL FAMILY. A ROYAL FAMILY.

EMPIRE THEATRE. Bway. & 40th St. Evgs., 8:20. Matinées, 2:15.
"Decided success."—Herald. Mats. Wed. & Sat.
Empire Theatre Company in MRS. DANE'S DEFENCE.

HERALD SQUARE THEATRE Management Sam. S. Shubert. 36th St. & B'way.
TO-MORROW (MONDAY) AT 8 SHARP.
THE BIG BURLESQUE FESTIVAL
Charles Frohman's Musical Comedy Co., WITH EDNA MAY
Presenting Morton & Kerker's The Girl From Up There with more comedians, singers, dancers than ever presented together on one stage.
MATINEES WEDNESDAY & SATURDAY

CHARLES FROHMAN'S JOHN HARE CRITERION THEATRE B'way & 44th St.
Last 6 Nights. Last Mat. Sat.
THE GAY LORD QUEX.
MONDAY, JAN. 14—JULIA MARLOWE.
"When Knighthood Was in Flower."

GARRICK THEATRE. 35th St. & Bway.
Eve'gs at 8:15. Matinées, 2:15.
Matinées Wednesday and Saturday.
WM. H. CRANE as DAVID HARUM

GARDEN THEATRE, 27th St. & Madison Av.
Mr. E. S. WILLARD Every Evg. this & next week,
Matinées Wed. & Sat. TOM PINCH. DAVID GARRICK

MADISON SQ. THEATRE, 27th St., nr. Bway.
Theatre closed Monday Night for rehearsal.
Tues. Evg., Mats. Wednesday & Saturday,
HERBERT KELCEY, EFFIE SHANNON MY LADY DAINTY

14TH ST. THEATRE Near 6th Av. Mats. Wed. & Sat.
J. WESLEY ROSENQUEST ..... Manager
Reserved Seats, Orchestra Circle & Balcony, 50c.
To-morrow Night,
ANNUAL ENGAGEMENT OF
"The Sweetest Singer on the Stage,"
Mr. Chauncey
OLCOTT
in HIS NEW PLAY (first time here) by Manager Augustus Pitou, GARRETT O'MAGH.
HEAR OLCOTT'S NEW SONGS.

HURTIG & SEAMON'S CHURCH ST. NEAR 27TH
TO-NIGHT. Daniel E. BANDMAN & CO. MAUDE NUGENT, GUS WILLIAMS, The Great NEVAROS, Edward F. Reynard, D'Meera Sisters, Vitag'ph
NEXT WEEK. HART & DE MAR, STANLEY & WILSON Dixon, Bowers & Dixon Streator's Zouaves SMITH & CAMPBELL, McBride & Goodwin, Gloss Bros., others.
Mr. & Mrs. SIDNEY DREW ETTA BUTLER.
HELLO! SUNDAY MATINEES, COMMENCING JANUARY 13th

BIJOU B'way & 30th St. Mat. Sat. Tel. 2224 Mad. Ev'g, 8:20.
GOOD BYE Engagement Ends Sat. Night, Jan. 12th.
Last chances for the best laugh of the season.
MAY IRWIN, MADGE SMITH.
In Her Merriest Play by Ramsay Morris.
TUESDAY, JANUARY 15th
AMELIA BINGHAM PRESENTS COMPANY
In Clyde Fitch's Latest Play, HER THE CLIMBERS.
SEATS ON SALE TUESDAY, JANUARY 8TH.

IRVING PLACE THEATRE. Eve. at 8:15. Sat. Matinée.
2ND WEEK. Every Evening and Blumenthal & Kadelburg's Roaring Farce, "DIE STRENGEN HERREN" (Strict People.)

TOSELLI
The most eminent of Italian pianists.
First appearance in America.
CARNEGIE HALL,
Tuesday Evening, January 15.
Sale of Seats opens to-morrow at Schuberth's, Union Square.
The Knabe Used.

KEITH'S
CONTINUOUS PERFORMANCE. E. F. ALBEE - - - General Manager.
ALWAYS THE BEST VAUDEVILLE SHOW IN NEW YORK.
MRS. KATHERINE BLOODGOOD, the Celebrated Contralto. JAMES THORNTON. TSCHERNOFF'S WONDERFUL PERFORMING DOGS.
TODD JUDGE FAMILY of Marvelous Acrobats. GRANT & NORTON, JOHN E. CAMP. TOBINS, Instrumentalists. THREE FIDARDYS, Acrobats. FRANCES KEPPLER, Dainty Dancer. MARTINETTI & SUTHERLAND, Acrobatic Comedy & Dancing. BIOGRAPH.
FYNES & DANDY, Comedy Acrobatics. MARDO, Juggler.

KOSTER & BIAL'S
25c. Mats. This Week, Tues. & Thurs. Evgs. 25-50-75-1.00.
25c. Sunday Mat. To-day—To-ngt. ORC. 50c.
Bert Coote & Co., Josie Sabel, Francis T. Bryant, The Holloway Trio, Kita di Lorenza, Fauyette Twin Sisters, Halliday & Quinn, Fred Clarenze Quintette, The Great August, Ford & Cantwell, John R. Harty, Nellie de Veaux, Kelly, Yeager & Kelly, others.
FULLER MATINEES, Mon., Wed., Fri., Sat. Ore. 25c., 50c. No Higher.
LA LOIE FULLER. FULLER. FULLER.
25c. Daily Matinée Monday and All Week. Milton and Dollie Nobles, Blockson & Burns, Gus Williams, Willett Thorn Co., J. C. Medway, Annie Hart, Violet Friend, Irving Jones, Casey & Le Clair, The Famous 3 Westons, Prevost & Prevost, Edward Reynard, Meredith Sisters, others, and HUBER'S 14TH ST. MUSEUM 10c. TO ALL.

Best Show Always. Something New Daily.
20—BIG STAR FEATURES—20
Visit Early Shows and Avoid the Crowds.

First Appearance,
PROF. MIETT'S DOGS,
the only animal performing on flying trapeze.
First time Leah May,
CANADIAN GIANTESS,
tallest woman in the world; 7 feet 4 inches in stocking feet. Success and re-engagement of MME. YUCCA.
Lifts horse weighing 1,300 pounds. Sig. Farrell's trained rats; J. Paige, clay modellef; Le Roys, clawhammer and wire-haired couple; M. Barriel, mysterious cabinet; Allen's Punch.
THEATRE—2 Co.'s. Farce Comedy. "Troubles of My Own." Vaudeville. Ada Jones, Marion & Tremor, The Bernards, Edison's Projectoscope and others.
SUNDAY CONCERTS.

MURRAY HILL THEATRE, Lex. Av. & 42d St. Evgs. at 8:15. Mats., 2.
One Block East of Grand Central Depot.
3rd YEAR YEAR YEAR YEAR YEAR MATINEE 25c. EVERY DAY HENRY V. DONNELLY STOCK CO.
THIS WEEK
Aristocracy
By Bronson Howard
EVENING PRICES ..... 25, 35, 50c.
Week of Jan. 14th, THE MAN FROM MEXICO

GRAND OPERA HOUSE Prices: 25c., 50c., 75c., $1. Matinées Wed. & Sat., 2:15. Pop. Wed. Mat., 25c., 50c.
LOUIS MANN—CLARA LIPMAN
All on Account of Eliza.
TO-NIGHT 10c., 25c., 50c. CHUCK CONNORS & CO., Dixon, Bowers & Dixon, The Great Clivette, Dooling & Bandy & others.

1884. 1900.
THE AMERICAN ACADEMY OF THE DRAMATIC ARTS and EMPIRE THEATRE DRAMATIC SCHOOL.
Franklin H. Sargent, President. A practical training school in connection with Mr. CHARLES FROHMAN'S Empire Theatre and traveling companies. Apply to E. P. STEPHENSON, Gen'l Mgr., Room 145, Carnegie Hall.

MANHATTAN THEATRE, 33d & B'way. Ev'gs, 8:15. Mats. Wed. and Sat.
"Received with immense enthusiasm."—Ev. World
THE BURGOMASTER
"Potpourri of nonsense and melody."—Journal.

3D AVENUE THEATRE. Matinée Monday.
Great Sensation Drama—DOWN MOBILE.

CARNEGIE HALL
Monday Evening, January 7, at 8:15.
Grand Concert
In aid of the Workingmen's School.
Soloists:
MR. AND MRS. GEORG
HENSCHEL
(Their first appearance this season.)
MR. FRITZ
KREISLER
Violin.
MR. ERNST VON
DOHNANYI
Piano.
ADOLF GLOSE ..... Accompanist
Prices, $1 to $5, on sale at Box Office.

METROPOLITAN OPERA HOUSE
GRAND OPERA SEASON 1900—1901
Under the direction of Mr. Maurice Grau.
TO-NIGHT at 8:15 o'clock.
THIRD GRAND SUNDAY NIGHT CONCERT.
Soloists: Mmes. Suzanne Adams, Maryll, and Bridewell; MM. Salezа, Campanari, and Plancon. Conductor, Mr. Damrosch.

Mon. Ev'g, Jan. 7, at 8—AIDA. (In Italian.) Mmes. Gadski and Homer; MM. Jean and Ed. de Reszke, Journet, and Scotti. Conductor, Flon.
Wed. Ev'g, Jan. 9, at 8—LOHENGRIN. (In German.) Mmes. Nordica and Schumann-Heink; MM. Jean and Ed. de Reszke, Muhlmann, and Bispham. Conductor, Damrosch.
Fri. Ev'g, Jan. 11, at 8—LA BOHEME. (In Italian.) Mmes. Melba and Fritzi Scheff; MM. Saleza, Gilibert, Journet, and Campanari. Conductor, Mancinelli.
Sat. Aft., Jan. 12, at 2—FAUST. (In French.) Mmes. Melba, Bauermeister, Bridewell; MM. Jean and Ed. de Reszke, and Scotti. Conductor, Mancinelli.
Sat. Ev'g, Jan. 12, at 8—At Popular prices, TANNHAUSER. (In German.) Mmes. Ternina, Olitzka, and Susan Strong; MM. Van Dyck, Blass, and Bertram. Conductor, Damrosch.
WEBER PIANOS USED.

CARNEGIE HALL
To-night at 8:15.

SOUSA AND HIS BAND
BLANCHE DUFFIELD ..... SOPRANO
BERTHA BUCKLIN ..... VIOLINIST
POPULAR PRICES.

CARNEGIE HALL.
PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY of New York.
EMIL PAUR ..... Conductor
FRIDAY, January 11, at 2 P. M.
SATURDAY, January 12, at 8:15 P. M.
Program:
"A Faust Overture" ..... Wagner
Concerto for Violin (first movement) ..... Beethoven
MISS MAUD POWELL.
First appearance in New York this season.
Symphony, No. 3, F major, ... Brahms
Fantasie de Concert, B minor (new) ..... Rimsky-Korsakoff
MISS MAUD POWELL.
Overture, "Le Carnaval Romain" ..... Berlioz
Tickets now on sale at Carnegie Hall, Tyson's, and Rullman's. Seats, 75c. to $2; boxes, $12 and $15. Admission, $1.
AUG. ROEBBELEN, Secretary.

MENDELSSOHN HALL
Tuesday Afternoon, January 8, at 3.
Thursday Afternoon, January 10, at 3
MR. and MRS. GEORG
HENSCHEL
VOCAL RECITALS
Res. Seats $1 & $1.50, at Schuberth's, 23 Union Sq.
Management ..... HENRY WOLFSOHN.
The Piano used is the Chickering.

CARNEGIE HALL.
Tuesday evgs., January 22 & February 12,
Pittsburgh Orchestra
VICTOR HERBERT, Conductor. Soloist, First Concert, Mrs. Dorothy Harvey.
Seats, 75c. to $1.50. Boxes, $12 & $15. On sale Jan. 14 at Schuberth's, Tyson's, Rullman's, box office.

Symphony Concert
FOR YOUNG PEOPLE
FRANK DAMROSCH ..... Director
SATURDAY AFT., Jan. 12, Carnegie Hall.
Prelude to "Hansel and Gretel," Humperdinck; "Siegfried" Idyl, Wagner; "Nutcracker" Suite, Tschaikowsky.
MISS KATHERINE HEYMEN, SOLOIST.
Tickets at office of Society, 388 Fifth Ave. (36th Street.)

MENDELSSOHN HALL.
Tuesday afternoon, January 15, at 3,
David Bispham's
SONG RECITAL, assisted by
Hermann Hans Wetzler.
Reserved seats, $1.50, at Schuberth's, 23 Union Sq.

MENDELSSOHN HALL
Saturday Afternoon, January 12th, at 3.
FOURTH PIANO RECITAL.
GABRILOWITSCH
TICKETS $1.00 AND $1.50.
On Sale at Schuberth's.
EVERETT PIANO USED.

MENDELSSOHN HALL
Second Concert ... Tues. Ev'g, Jan. 8, at 8:15
KNEISEL QUARTET
Assisted by Mr. GEORGE PROCTOR, Piano.
Programme: DVORAK, Quartet, E flat major, Op. 51; CAESAR FRANK, Quintet for Piano, two Violins, Viola, and Violoncello, F minor; BEETHOVEN, Quartet, C major, Op. 59, No. 3.
Res. seats $1.50 at Schuberth's, 23 Union Sq.

MENDELSSOHN HALL
Morgan String Quartet
Thursday Evening, January 10, at 8:15.
Seats at Schuberth's, 23 Union Square.

Mendelssohn Hall, Two Piano Recitals Jan. 11 at 3. Jan. 17 at 3.
Mr. Harold Bauer
Res. Seats $1, $1.50, on sale at Schuberth's.
Management ..... LOUDON G. CHARLTON

KREISLER
WIZARD OF THE VIOLIN.
Available January and February. Address WOLFSOHN, 131 East 17th St.

SKATING ON VERONA LAKE

Harry McDonald Won Two of the Four Races at Montclair.

ICE IN EXCELLENT CONDITION

James Wray Won the Two-Mile Handicap from a Long Mark—See and Sinnirud Beaten.

Harry McDonald, the brilliant young skater whose skill and speed on the ice have made him a marked man among experts on the steel runners, was the winning hero of the day yesterday in the initial races held by the Verona Lake Skating Club, near Montclair, N. J. These races were to have been run off on Christmas Day, but the fitful weather did not give sufficient ice at the time to stand on, and after suffering a postponement on New Year's Day, they were at last successfully given yesterday.

Somewhat over 1,000 persons assembled at Verona Lake, many of them attracted, not so much by the races, as from a desire to use the ice for their own practical enjoyment, and during the afternoon the scene was one of perpetual gayety and keen enjoyment. It was the biggest skating day of the season on the lake, and those who were studious enough to evade the paying of admission, mounted the fairly lofty height of a miniature "Spion Kop" overlooking the entire lake, and so enjoyed the fun, although it was rather cold exercise.

There were four races in all, and of these Harry McDonald won two, getting first in the half-mile scratch and the one-mile handicap. In the latter he refused to accept the allowance of twenty-five yards given him, and starting from the scratch mark in company with Le Roy See, one of the New York Athletic Club cracks, he won after a spirited contest by about ten feet. James Wray of West Farms, who was given forty yards, got second place, passing See on the last quarter of a lap, and the latter came in third, only a few inches behind Wray. See and McDonald kept close together for the greater part of the race, each man saving his strength for the finish, and the end was a very pretty exhibition of graceful and speedy skating.

In the half-mile scratch event, with which the sport of the day was opened, there were seven starters, but the race narrowed down to McDonald, Wray, See, and Peter Sinnirud, the foreign crack from Copenhagen, who has been a successful competitor in several local events recently. The latter, however, could not do better than third place. See set the pace from the start and held it until the men turned down the stretch on the last half of the final lap. The track was six laps to the mile, and it was marked out on the lake by a picturesque border of barrels, each of which was surmounted by a United States flag.

McDonald spurted to the front like a meteor, 100 yards from the finishing line, and won by a good lead of five yards, his time being one minute and thirty-two seconds. Wray finished second, Sinnirud third, and See came in fourth. A little later the foreign visitor skated an exhibition half mile, which he did in very good time, but it was one-fifth of a second in excess of McDonald's winning time. The other starters in the half mile were Arthur Y. Sarony, William M. Swan, both of the New York Athletic Club; A. G. Stolz, and Frank Letts.

The final heat of the one-mile novice race was the closest of the entire series. Louis Cox, a lively young sprinter from Tarrytown, and A. G. Stolz, a worthy rival, finished in a dead heat in the final, the event being run in two heats. The last 100 yards stirred the enthusiasm of the crowd to fever heat, and a mighty wave of applause greeted the two men as they crossed the line. This finish necessitated a run-off between the men, and it was won by Cox, in 4:16, much slower time than either of the heats, but due to the fact that the contestants loafed for three-quarters of the distance, and only put genuine speed into the final lap. They made a hot finish, and the young man from Tarrytown only got his victory by barely a foot. The dead heat was run in the fastest time, being 3:43. Some of the other competitors were Fred Radcliffe, Theodore Johnstone, George W. Lyon, Arthur Letts, W. A. Wareing, J. A. Scott, M. R. Browne, A. F. Young, Jr., Walter Lee, John Mulligan, W. H. Luther, Jr., W. E. Mosher, and T. W. Richardson. Third place was secured by Wareing.

The two-mile handicap brought out eleven starters. See and McDonald being the scratch men. They hung closely together until the last lap, when McDonald was forced to quit, his former victories having completely used up his sprinting powers. James Wray, who was allowed 110 yards, won the event, in the very fair time of 6:40 2-5. Frank Letts of Hoboken was second and Arthur Sarony was third. Wray won by ten yards, and the others were well bunched.

S. D. See started the contestants, and other officials who contributed to the success of the Verona Club's first racing contest were Max Hornfeck, F. M. Gwinn, Jr., H. Sarony, Arthur G. Keane, E. Waddock, Frank Clarke, and D. H. Slayback. The second racing contest will be held on Jan. 26. The summaries are:

Half Mile, Scratch.—Won by Harry McDonald, Heffley School, Brooklyn; James Wray, West Farms, second; Peter Sinnirud, Copenhagen, third; Le Roy See, New York A. C., fourth. Time—1:32.

One-Mile Novice, Scratch.—First Heat—Won by A. G. Stolz, New York A. C.; W. A. Wareing, Hoboken, second; M. R. Browne, Lyndhurst, N. J., third. Time—3:50. Second Heat—Won by Louis Cox, Tarrytown; John Barry, New York, second; W. Glirchmann, New York, third. Time—3:40 1-2.

Final Heat—Dead heat between A. G. Stolz and Louis Cox; W. A. Wareing, Hoboken, third. Time—3:45. Tie between Cox and Stolz won by Cox by 1 foot. Time—4:16.

One-Mile Handicap.—Won by Harry McDonald, Heffley School, Brooklyn, (scratch;) James Wray, West Farms, (140 yards,) second; Le Roy See, New York A. C., (scratch,) third. Time—3:50 1-5.

Two-Mile Handicap.—Won by James Wray, West Farms, (110 yards;) Frank Letts, Hoboken, (100 yards,) second; Arthur Sarony, New York A. C., (120 yards,) third. Time—6:40 2-5.

Half Mile Exhibition by Peter Sinnirud of Copenhagen. Time—1:32 1-5.

STATE LIQUOR TRAFFIC PAYS.

South Carolina's Profits on Dispensary Nearly $500,000.

COLUMBIA, S. C., Jan. 5.—The Directors of the State Dispensary have made public the annual financial statement of the liquor dispensary system. An exact comparison with former years cannot be made, as the fiscal year 1900 comprised merely the first eleven months, while heretofore the calendar and the fiscal year have been the same. Not including December, the heaviest trade month of the year, the sales for 1900 amounted to $2,481,840, nearly $750,000 in excess of the entire year 1899. For the twelve months of 1900 the increase will be $1,000,000.

The State receives 10 per cent. net profit, which amounted to $176,012. This will be pro rated among the counties of the State for the public schools. The profits accruing to towns and cities in addition to the State's profit is $298,166. This amount is divided equally between the respective towns and counties in which dispensaries are located. The grand total of profits is $474,178, or 26 per cent. of the sales.

There are ninety-three liquor dispensaries and twenty-three beer dispensaries. The dispensary started in business in 1894, with $50,000 appropriated by the State. This has been refunded, an equal amount invested in real estate, and a stock of $250,000, paid for, is carried constantly. The dispensary now claims to be the largest whisky bottling establishment in the world.

ON LOCAL BOWLING ALLEYS

Changes in Standing as a Result of the Week's Games.

NEWSPAPER SERIES BEGUN

Oriental Team First in National League, Fidelias Second—Triple Tie in Greater New York League.

The regular games in the Greater New York bowling tournament were concluded last week, with a triple tie for first place between the Palace, Queer, and Empire teams, each with ten games won and four lost, and a double tie for fourth place between the Imperial and Arlington teams, with nine won and five lost. These ties, together with two postponed games, will be decided during the coming week.

The National tournament, which will also finish during the coming week, is already decided as far as first and second places are concerned. The Oriental team, with twenty-five games won and eight lost, wins first prize, and the Fidelias, with twenty-four games won and nine lost, are second. Had the latter team won all three matches with Our Council, Royal Arcanum, on Friday night, it would have tied the Orientals and would have had another chance for first place. The Roseville Athletic Association of Newark, with twenty-two games won and eleven lost, is assured of third place in this series.

Fewer changes than usual were made in the standing of the clubs during the week on account of the many games omitted because of the holidays. In the Columbia League the Belvideres, by virtue of two victories during the week, moved from seventh to fifth place. The Berkeleys move up one place in the National League, and the Audubons dropped three places in the Harlem League.

The team of Victor & Achelis made its first appearance in the Commercial League, and immediately took first place in that tournament. In the Brooklyn Royal Arcanum Tournament Bedford Council won two victories, and is now tied with Philadelphos Council for second place.

The tournament of the Morning Newspaper League was begun during the week, the first four matches resulting in a tie between the four competing teams, each winning one game and losing one.

The standing of the clubs in the principal local tournaments is as follows:

NATIONAL BOWLING LEAGUE.

	Won.	Lost.	High Score.
Oriental Bowling Club	25	8	1,014
Fidelia Bowling Club	24	9	977
Roseville Athletic Association	22	11	981
Metropolitan Bowling Club	14	10	1,011
Golden Rod Bowling Club	14	10	1,002
New York Athletic Club	16	14	972
Our Council, Royal Arcanum	12	15	986
Berkeley Bowling Club	13	20	952
Corinthian Bowling Club	11	22	965
Spartan Bowling Club	10	20	987
America Bowling Club	9	18	914
Germania Bowling Club	11	23	925

COLUMBIA BOWLING LEAGUE.

	Won.	Lost.	High Score.
Corinthian Bowling Club	15	1	957
Dolando Bowling Club	14	2	983
Bank Clerks' Bowling Club	12	4	947
Royal Arcanum Wheelmen	11	5	937
Belvidere Bowling Club	11	5	940
Cyclone Bowling Club	12	6	931
Rosedale Bowling Club	11	7	908
Oriental Bowling Club	8	7	946
Phoenix Bowling Club	8	6	913
Lotus Bowling Club	8	8	930
Standard Bowling Club	8	8	959
Grove Hill Bowling Club	8	8	854
Empire City Bowling Club	9	11	944
Yonkers Council, Royal Arcanum	9	11	892
Enterprise Bowling Club	7	9	945
Audubon Bowling Club	6	12	844
Friendship Bowling Club	4	12	875
Linwood Bowling Club	4	14	896
Owl Bowling Club	4	12	841
Century Wheelmen	3	13	882
Wang Bowling Club	4	16	832

HARLEM BOWLING LEAGUE.

	Won.	Lost.	High Score.
Belvidere Bowling Club	14	2	974
Knickerbocker Bowling Club	13	3	964
Empire Bowling Club	11	3	943
Phoenix Bowling Club	10	4	988
Morris Club Bowling Club	11	5	978
Corinthian Bowling Club	11	5	975
Lotus Bowling Club	13	5	970
Standard Bowling Club	9	5	944
Lafayette Bowling Club	9	7	951
Friendship Bowling Club	9	9	979
Century Wheelmen	7	7	924
Central Park Bowling Club	8	8	911
Audubon Bowling Club	7	9	948
Eclipse Bowling Club	6	8	928
New Rochelle Bowling Club	10	6	869
Cyclone Bowling Club	6	11	884
Grove Hill Bowling Club	5	11	893
Hyperion Bowling Club	4	10	865
Harlem Wheelmen	4	14	840
Premier Bowling Club	3	13	898
Colonial Bowling Club	0	16	842

AMERICAN NATIONAL TOURNAMENT.

	Won.	Lost.	High Score.
Columbia Bowling Club	13	3	940
Metropolitan Bowling Club	11	3	1,010
Fidelia Bowling Club	12	4	998
Monarch Bowling Club	12	4	1,013
Corinthian Bowling Club	12	4	983
Manhattan Bowling Club	10	4	933
Rosedale Bowling Club	10	6	954
Spartan Bowling Club	12	8	977
Arlington Bowling Club	12	8	942
Bleecker Bowling Club	7	7	918
American Owl Bowling Club	9	9	917
Golden Rod Bowling Club	7	9	881
Germania Bowling Club	7	9	861
Palace Bowling Club	7	11	909
Central Bowling Club	7	11	931
Orchard Bowling Club	6	12	951
Bank Clerks' Bowling Club	5	11	884
E. M. Bowling Club	5	13	987
Empire Bowling Club	6	14	930
Surprise Bowling Club	5	15	939
Glendale Bowling Club	4	14	895

NORTH SIDE BOWLING LEAGUE.

	Won.	Lost.	High Score.
Morris Wheelmen	16	6	950
Hyperion Bowling Club	15	6	921
Knickerbocker Bowling Club	14	7	949
Hooker Bowling Club	11	7	918
Prospect Bowling Club	13	8	887
Bronxdale Bowling Club	11	10	932
Clarendon Bowling Club	11	10	882
Home City Bowling Club	8	16	853
Liberty Bowling Club	5	10	874
Tremont Bowling Club	4	17	824

BANK CLERKS' LEAGUE.

	Won.	Lost.	High Score.
Bank of Manhattan Company	5	1	829
Mercantile National Bank	5	1	794
Kountze Brothers

FINANCIAL.

Hanover National Bank
Capital $3,000,000. Surplus and profits, $5,000,000.
9 and 11 Nassau St.

Central National Bank
320 Broadway.

The Nassau Bank
Corner Berkman and Nassau Streets.

Colonial Trust Company
CAPITAL, SURPLUS, AND UNDIVIDED PROFITS, $1,800,000.00.
ST. PAUL B'LD'G. 222 B'way.

Washington Trust Company
Stewart Building, 280 Broadway.

Bankers' Cards.

C. Sidenberg & Kraus,
BANKERS & BROKERS,
20 BROAD ST., NEW YORK.
Members N. Y. Stock Exchange.
Orders Executed for Stocks and Bonds for cash or on margin.
INTEREST ALLOWED ON DEPOSIT.
Investment Securities.

KOUNTZE BROTHERS,
BANKERS,
Broadway & Cedar St., NEW YORK,
BUY AND SELL
Investment Securities.
Receive accounts of Corporations, Firms and Individuals on favorable terms.
Make loans against approved collateral.
LETTERS OF CREDIT.

DOUGLAS & JONES,
Members New York Stock Exchange.
ESTABLISHED 1886.
24 Broad St., New York City.
STOCKS AND BONDS BOUGHT AND SOLD ON COMMISSION AT THE NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE AND CARRIED ON MARGIN.
Daily Market Letter on Application.
CORRESPONDENCE INVITED

HENRY CLEWS & CO.,
BANKERS.
11, 13, 15, and 17 Broad St.
MEMBERS N. Y. STOCK EXCHANGE.
Orders executed for investment or on margin. Interest allowed on deposits, subject to check at sight. Act as Financial Agents for Corporations and Investors. Industrial Combinations Organized. Government and other Investment Bonds bought and sold.
BRANCH OFFICES:
22 W 33d St., cor. Waldorf. 202 5th Av., cor. 25th St.
487 B'way, 31lk Ex. Bldg. 56 Worth & 39 Thomas St.
87 Hudson St., Merc. Ex. 16 Court St., Brooklyn.

Henry L. Wardwell. Edward L. Adams.
Telephone 3243 Broad.

WARDWELL & ADAMS,
STOCK BROKERS.
16 BEAVER ST., NEW YORK.
Members N. Y. Stock Exchange.
Stocks, Bonds, & Investments

SIMON BORG & CO.,
BANKERS,
No. 20 Nassau St., New York
INVESTMENT SECURITIES.

I. F. MEAD. T. H. CURTIS.
I. F. MEAD & CO.,
44 & 46 BROADWAY, N. Y.
Twenty-five years' membership in N. Y. Stock Exchange.
STOCKS AND BONDS
Bought and Sold for Cash or on Margin.

P. J. Goodhart & Co.,
Dealers in
Bank & Trust Co. Stocks
Members N. Y. Stock Exchange.
38 WALL STREET.

JACOB BERRY & CO.
MEMBERS CONSOLIDATED STOCK EXCHANGE,
14 and 16 Broadway, New York.
ESTABLISHED 1865.
STOCKS, BONDS, GRAIN, COTTON.
A commission house working in the interest of clients, executing all orders upon the exchange and giving names of Brokers with whom transaction is made in every instance. We issue upon request a book describing accurately the above markets and influences governing them. Also monthly fluctuation sheets and market reports.
COMMISSION 1-16. MODERATE MARGINS.

Established 1868. Tel. call 2385 Cortlandt.
FRED. H. SMITH,
STOCK BROKER, 8 BROAD ST., N. Y.
Member New York Con. Stock Exchange.
Stocks, Bonds and Grain.
Bought, sold, and carried on margin.
COMMISSION 1-16TH.
Book of Railway Statistics upon application.

Stoppani & Hotchkin,
Members New York Consolidated Stock Exchange,
66 BROADWAY, N. Y.
Telephone, 3078 Cortlandt.
Orders executed for investment or on margin.
STOCKS, BONDS, GRAIN, COTTON.
Branch Office: N. E. cor. Broadway and 30th St.

FINANCIAL.

INVESTMENT SECURITIES.

Tarrytown, White Plains & Mamaroneck
1st Mtge. 5% Bonds, due March 1, 1928.
Norfolk Terminal & Transportation
1st Mtge. 5% Bonds, due Feb. 1, 1948.
Easton & Amboy
1st Mtge. 5% Bonds, due May 1, 1920.
Hoboken Ferry
1st Cons. Mtge. 5% Bonds, due May 1, 1946.
Consumers' Gas Co. (of Jersey City)
6% Bonds, due May 1, 1904.

SUTRO BROS. & CO.
BANKERS.
56 BROADWAY, NEW YORK.
Members New York and Phila. Stock Exchanges.

TAX EXEMPT
$400,000
New York City
3½ % GOLD STOCK.
Farson, Leach & Co.,
35 Nassau St., New York.

FINANCIAL. | FINANCIAL.

High Grade Bonds.

$200,000
New York, New Haven & Hartford . Convertible Debenture 4s

$50,000
New York, New Haven & Hartford . 50-year Debenture 4s

$25,000
Old Colony Railroad Co. . . . . Registered 4s

$150,000
Lake Shore & Michigan Southern Railway . Refunding Mtge. Gold 3½s

$150,000
Rome, Watertown & Ogdensburg . Consolidated Mortgage 5s

$50,000
United New Jersey Railroad and Canal Co. . Gen. (1st) Mtge. Gold 4s

$130,000
Cleveland & Pittsburg R. R. Co. . Gen. (1st) Mtge. Guar. Gold 3½s

$500,000
Erie & Pittsburg Railroad Co. . Gen. (1st) Mtge. Guaranteed Gold 3½s

$25,000
Pittsburg, Ft. Wayne & Chicago . 1st & 2d Mtge. Guaranteed 7s

$100,000
Allegheny Valley R'way Co. . 1st & Gen. Mtge. Guaranteed 7s & 4s

$250,000
Chicago & Northwestern Railway Co. . Consolidated (1st) Mtge. 7s

$75,000
Northwestern Union Railway Co. 1st Mortgage Sink'g Fund Gold 7s

$150,000
Minnesota & Iowa R'way Co. (Ch. & Northwest) . 1st Mtge. Gold 3½s

$100,000
Boyer Valley Railway Co. (Ch. & Northwest) . 1st Mtge. Gold 3½s

$40,000
Buffalo, New York & Erie Railroad Co. . 1st Mtge. Gold 7s

$50,000
New York, Pennsylvania & Ohio . Prior Lien Gold Mtge. 4½s

$500,000
Chicago, Mil. & St. Paul Railway Co. . General Mtge. Gold 3½s

$250,000
Chic., Milwaukee & St. Paul R'y Co. . General Mortgage Gold 4s

$250,000
Chic., Milwaukee & St. Paul R'y Co. (Chic. & Pac., West Div.) 1st Gold 5s

$75,000
Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul R'y Co. . Dubuque Div. 1st Gold 6s

$40,000
St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba R'y . 2d (now 1st) Mtge. Gold 6s

$500,000
St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba R'y Co. . Consol. Gold 4½s & 6s

$125,000
Cleveland, Columbus, Cincinnati & Ind. . Consol. (now 1st) Mtge, 7s

$150,000
Chicago, St. Louis & New Orleans R. R. Co. . Consol. Guar. Gold 5s

$40,000
Mobile & Ohio Railroad Co. . . . . 1st Mtge. Gold 6s

$160,000
Southern Pacific Railroad of California . Series "A" & "E" 1st Gold 6s

$500,000
Southern Pacific Railroad of Arizona . Series "A" & "B" 1st Gold 6s

$75,000
Saint Louis Bridge Company . . . 1st Mortgage Gold 7s

$100,000
Chicago & Eastern Illinois . General Consolidated 1st Mtge. 5s

$60,000
Third Avenue Railroad Co. . . . 1st Mortgage Gold 5s

FOR SALE BY
Goldman, Sachs & Co.,
BANKERS,
31 NASSAU STREET, NEW YORK.
60 State St., Boston. 205 La Salle St., Chicago.

THE TRUST CO. OF AMERICA,
149 BROADWAY.
CAPITAL, $2,500,000. SURPLUS, $2,745,894.13.
Statement December 31st, 1900.

RESOURCES.		LIABILITIES.
United States Bonds	$2,313 75	Capital Stock	$2,500,000 00
New York City Bonds	2,131,265 96	Surplus	2,500,000 00
Railroad Bonds and Stocks at Cost	3,051,148 96	Undivided Profits $333,394 13
Bonds and Mortgages on Real Estate	182,500 00	Less Dividend No. 1 87,500 00	245,894 13
Amount Loaned on Collaterals	11,175,034 83	Gen'l Deposits and Deposits in Trust	12,584,286 35
Bills Purchased	210,337 18	Rent Accrued	2,916 66
Interest Accrued	107,048 21	Interest Accrued on Deposits	24,286 93
Due from Trusts	10,720 91
Internal Revenue	941 68
Furniture and Fixtures	30,000 00
Cash on Hand and in Banks	956,072 59
	$17,857,384 07		$17,857,384 07

Appointed by the State Bank Superintendent a Depository of Lawful Money Reserve for the Banks of the State of New York. Named as a Depository of the Moneys of the City of New York. Designated as a Depository of the Cotton, Coffee and Produce Exchanges of New York on contracts. INTEREST ALLOWED ON DEPOSITS.

OFFICERS:
ASHBEL P. FITCH, Pres. WM. BARBOUR, V. Pres.
WM. H. LEUPP, V. Pres. H. S. MANNING, V. Pres.
R. J. CHATRY, Sec. T. C. CLARKE, Jr., Asst. Sec.
A. L. BANISTER, Treas. W. HUNT HALL, Asst. Treas.
LAWRENCE O. MURRAY, Trust Officer.

DIRECTORS:
Ashbel P. Fitch, Emerson McMillin, Anson R. Flower, Edward F. Cragin,
William Barbour, James M. Donald, Henry S. Redmond, George Blumethal,
H. S. Manning, George Cracker, Jno. R. Hegeman, Frank Jay Gould,
Samuel A. Maxwell, Edward C. Schaefer, C. I. Hudson, Willard Brown,
Myron T. Herrick, S. C. T. Dodd, Joel F. Freeman, William A. Clark.
Charles F. Cutler, William E. Spier, Philip Lehman,

A NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE HOUSE desires to secure the services of a cashier who thoroughly understands his business. Must be capable, experienced, and must have highest references. No one who has not filled this position to another Stock Exchange House need apply. D., Box 103 Times.

BROWN BROTHERS & CO.,
NO. 59 WALL ST.,
ISSUE INTERNATIONAL CHEQUES, COMMERCIAL and TRAVELERS' CREDITS AVAILABLE IN ALL PARTS OF THE WORLD.

MORTON TRUST CO.
38 NASSAU STREET.
Capital, Surplus & Undivided Profits, $5,000,000
Levi P. Morton, President. Thomas F. Ryan, V.-Pres.
James K. Corbière, 2d V.-P. H. M. Francis, Sec.
W. Redmond Cross, Treas. H. B. Berry, Trust Officer.

UNLISTED MARKETABLE SECURITIES
A SPECIALTY.
DAVID PFEIFFER, 18 WALL ST.

FINANCIAL. | FINANCIAL.

SECURE A FORTUNE
.....BY INVESTING IN OIL

THE PACIFIC OIL CO., LTD., CAPITALIZED AT $350,000, DIVIDED INTO 350,000 SHARES OF $1.00 PAR VALUE EACH, offers to Capital, large or small, the safest and most promising investment of the new century.

50,000 shares are held as Treasury stock, and fully 100,000 shares additional have already been subscribed for, leaving a balance approximately of 200,000, a portion of which is now offered for public subscription at 85 CENTS PER SHARE, full paid and non-assessable. We are actually making in net returns from the output of the numerous wells on our property MORE than is required for the one per cent. monthly dividends which are being regularly paid in cash. Therefore, practically

15% ANNUAL DIVIDENDS ARE GUARANTEED
FROM NET RETURNS

on your actual investment. This is not a mere computation, but a statement based on facts as demonstrated by past results, and a guarantee to this effect is forwarded to every purchaser of stock with receipt for his remittance. No risk, no uncertainty, no guesswork such as attends investment in a mere "prospect," for our property is splendidly developed and lies in the heart of the wonderfully productive California Oil Belt.

In subscribing for stock make checks payable to undersigned. Prospectus on application.

ROSS TAYLOR & COMPANY,
66 BROADWAY..... NEW YORK.

TO THE FIRST MORTGAGE BONDHOLDERS OF THE Fort Worth and Denver City Railway Company.

The interest on the first mortgage bonds of the Fort Worth and Denver City Railway Company, which, by agreement of October 12th, 1895, between a Committee of the Bondholders and the Union Pacific, Denver and Gulf Railway Company and its Receiver, was reduced for a time to four per cent., will, after December 1, 1900, accrue and be payable at the original rate of six per cent.

The control of the Company through stock ownership is in the Colorado and Southern Railway Company, and it appears from published reports that the present earnings of the property are not sufficient to pay the full interest on the bonds. Under these circumstances it becomes essential that the bondholders unite in securing all the consideration to which they are entitled, and, if need be, enforcing their rights under the mortgages and otherwise protecting their interests.

The undersigned have been requested by the principal bondholders to act as a bondholders' committee, and in order to confer upon the committee necessary authority, the bondholders are respectfully urged to deposit their bonds at once with the United States Trust Company under a bondholders' agreement lodged with it.

Engraved certificates of deposit will be issued by the Trust Company, and application will be made to the New York Stock Exchange to list the same.

Copies of the agreement can be obtained either from the Trust Company or from the Committee.

HENRY K. McHARG, 40 Wall St.
SIDELL TILGHMAN, 40 Wall St.
FRANKLIN B. LORD, 120 Broadway.
LORD, DAY & LORD, Counsel.

Savings Banks.

EMIGRANT
INDUSTRIAL SAVINGS BANK,
51 Chambers St., New York.
New York, Dec. 19th, 1900.

DIVIDEND.—The Trustees of this Bank have ordered that interest be paid to Depositors entitled thereto for the six and three months ending December 31st, 1900, at the rate of Three and One-Half Per Cent. per annum on all deposits up to the limit of Three Thousand Dollars, ($3,000.) Interest will be credited under date of January 1st, 1901, and will be payable on and after Monday, January 21st.

JAMES McMAHON, President.
DAVID LEDWITH, Comptroller.

The Bowery Savings Bank,
128 AND 130 BOWERY,
NEW YORK, Dec. 20, 1900.

A semi-annual dividend at the rate of FOUR PER CENT. per annum has been declared and will be credited to depositors on all sums of $5.00 and upward and not exceeding $3,000 which shall have been deposited at least three months on the first day of January next, and will be payable on and after Monday, January 21, 1901.

Money deposited on or before January 10, 1901, will draw interest from January 1.

JOHN D. HICKS, President.
HENRY A. SCHENCK, Comptroller.

Siegel-Cooper & Co., Bankers,
6th Ave., 18th and 19th Sts.

Interest at the rate of 4 per cent. per annum credited to depositors on January 2, 1901, for the three and six months ending December 31, 1900.

Deposits made before the 10th day of any month draw interest for full month.

Banking hours 9 A. M. to 5:30 P. M.

THE FRANKLIN SAVINGS BANK,
656 and 658 Eighth Av., corner 42d St.
EIGHTY-FIRST
SEMI-ANNUAL DIVIDEND.

On and after January 21st, 1901, interest at the rate of THREE AND ONE-HALF per cent. per annum will be paid to depositors entitled thereto on all sums from $5 to $3,000. Money deposited on or before the 10th of January will draw interest from the 1st. Bank open from 10 A. M. to 3 P. M., and Monday from 6 to 8 P. M., holidays excepted. Closes at 12 M. on Saturday.
Assets, $10,320,000. Surplus, $920,000.
A. TURNER, President.
WM. G. GONKLIN, Secretary.

CITIZENS' SAVINGS BANK,
56 and 58 BOWERY, COR. CANAL ST.
51ST SEMI-ANNUAL DIVIDEND.

The Trustees have ordered that interest at the rate of THREE AND ONE-HALF (3½) PER CENT. per annum be paid to depositors on and after January 14th on all sums of $5 and up to $3,000 which have remained on deposit for the three or six months ending December 31, 1900, in accordance with the by-laws and rules of the bank. Money deposited on or before January 10th will draw interest from January 1st. HENRY HASLER, President.
CHARLES W. HELD, Secretary.
HENRY SAYLER, Assistant Secretary.

NORTH RIVER SAVINGS BANK
260 West 34th Street, (Near Eighth Avenue.)
70th SEMI-ANNUAL DIVIDEND.

The Board of Trustees have directed that interest be credited depositors on Dec. 31st, 1900, at the rate of THREE AND ONE-HALF PER CENT. per annum on sums of $5.00 to $3,000. Deposits made on or before January 10th will draw interest from January 1st.

SAMUEL D. STYLES, President.
ALEXANDER C. MILNE, Treasurer.
IRVING M. SHAW, Secretary.

Dividends.

UNITED STATES RUBBER COMPANY,
9-15 Murray St., New York, January 3, 1901.

The Board of Directors of the United States Rubber Company has this day declared a dividend of ONE PER CENT. on the Preferred Stock of this Company as the second quarterly dividend from the net earnings for the fiscal year beginning April 1st, 1900, to stockholders of record at 3 P. M., January 15th, 1901, payable January 31st, 1901.

The Preferred Stock Transfer Books will close at 3 P. M. January 15th, 1901, and reopen at 10 A. M. February 1st, 1901.

CHAS. R. FLINT, Treasurer.

THE NEW YORK TIMES.
"All the News That's Fit to Print."

OIL—INVEST IN OIL—Greatest opportunity to make a great amount of money from small investment in Oil since the days of Pennsylvania Oil excitement. We have 1,900 acres of Oil lands near the great 7,000 barrel gushers in the wonderful Sand Fork Oil Fields, in Lewis County, W. Va. Portion of our stock offered at 5c. on the dollar. Money to be used in drilling wells. Property all paid for and non-assessable. For further particulars address SAND FORK OIL & GAS CO., Peabody Building, Wheeling, W. Va.

Meetings and Elections.

New York Produce Exchange Bank.
Notice is hereby given that the annual meeting of the stockholders of said corporation will be held at the New York Produce Exchange Bank, in the Borough of Manhattan, in the City of New York, on TUESDAY, the 8TH DAY OF JANUARY, 1901, at one o'clock P. M., to elect twelve Directors to serve as such during the ensuing year, also to act upon the proposition to amend the Articles of Association so as to authorize the opening and maintaining of one or more branch offices for the purposes permitted by Chapter 410 of the Laws of 1898, and of amending the several sections of the Articles of Association relative to the number and qualification of Directors, and to change the time of the annual election to correspond with existing laws. Also for such other business as may lawfully be brought before such meeting.
WM. A. SHERMAN, Cashier.

OFFICE OF
WM. A. MILES & CO.,
55, 57, and 59 Chrystie Street.
Established 1828.
New York, Dec. 28th, 1900.

To the Stockholders of Wm. A. Miles & Co.:

Take notice that the regular annual meeting of the stockholders of this company and the regular annual election of its Directors will be held at the office of the company, at 57 Chrystie St., on Monday, the 14th day of January, 1901, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon of that day, and that the transfer books will be closed, for the purpose of said election, at the close of business on the 31st day of December, 1900, and opened on the morning of Jan. 15th, 1901.

JAS. W. TAYLOR, President.

CONSOLIDATED GAS COMPANY OF NEW YORK, 4 Irving Place.—December 31st, 1900.—The Annual Meeting of the stockholders of this Company for the election of the Trustees to serve during the ensuing year will be held at this office Monday, Jan. 21st, 1901. Polls open from 12 M. to 1 P. M. Transfer books will close Saturday, January 5th, at 12 M., and reopen Tuesday, Jan. 22d, 1901.

O. F. ZOLLIKOFFER, Secretary.

GERMAN EXCHANGE BANK, N. Y.
New York, December 14th, 1900.

The annual election for Directors of this Bank will be held at the banking house, 330 Bowery, on Thursday, January 10th, 1901, between the hours of 12 o'clock M. and 2 o'clock P. M.

CHAS. L. ADRIAN, Cashier.

The Lawyers' Surety Company of New York,
No. 32 Liberty Street.
New York, December 28th, 1900.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of this Company will be held at this office on January 8th, 1901, at 12 M. for the election of Directors and the transaction of such business as may come before it.

JOEL RATHBONE, Secretary.

Lincoln National Bank,
32-42 East Forty-second Street,
New York, December 24, 1900.

The annual meeting of the shareholders of this bank for the election of Directors for the ensuing year will be held at the banking house on Tuesday, January 8, 1901, between the hours of 12 M. and 1 P. M.

W. T. CORNELL, Cashier.

The Bank of America.
New York, December 24th, 1900.

The Annual Election of Directors and Inspectors of Election of this bank will be held at the banking house on Tuesday, January 8th, 1901. The polls will be opened at 1 o'clock P. M. and will close at 2 o'clock P. M.

The transfer books will be closed from January 5th to January 9th. W. M. BENNET, Cashier.

The Western National Bank
OF THE CITY OF NEW YORK,
7th December, 1900.

The Annual Meeting of the stockholders of this Bank, for the election of Directors, will be held at the Banking House, No. 15 Nassau Street, on TUESDAY, January 8th, 1901. The Polls will be open from 12 M. to 1 P. M.

H. A. SMITH, Cashier.

National Broadway Bank,
NEW YORK.
December 10th, 1900.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of this bank for the election of Directors for the ensuing year will be held at the banking house, 237 Broadway, on Tuesday, January 8th, 1901.

Polls will be open from 12 o'clock M. until 1 o'clock P. M. CHAS. J. DAY, Cashier.

The Bank of New York,
National Banking Association.
New York, December 7th, 1900.

The annual election for Directors of this bank will be held at the banking house, No. 48 Wall Street, on Tuesday, January 8th, 1901.

The polls will be open from 12 M. to 1 o'clock P. M. CHAS. OLNEY, Cashier.

Office of the Eagle Fire Co.,
NEW YORK, December 22, 1900.

The Annual Election for Directors of this Company and for Inspectors will be held at the Company's office, No. 71 Wall Street, on TUESDAY, JANUARY 8, 1901, commencing at 12 o'clock M., and closing at 1 o'clock P. M.

THOS. J. GAINES, Secretary.

Continental National Bank,
7 Nassau Street,
New York, December 7th, 1900.

The annual election for Directors of this Bank will be held at the Banking House on Tuesday, January 8th, 1901.

Polls open from 12 M. to 1:00 P. M.

A. H. TIMPSON, Cashier.

The Mechanics' National Bank
of the City of New York,
Dec. 8th, 1900.

The annual election for Directors of this Bank will be held at the banking house, No. 33 Wall St., on Tuesday, January 8th, 1901, between the hours of 12 M. and 1 P. M.

G. W. GARTH, Cashier.

The Hanover National Bank
OF THE CITY OF NEW YORK,
New York, December 7th, 1900.

The annual election for Directors of this Bank will be held at the banking house, 9 and 11 Nassau Street, on Tuesday, January 8th, 1901, between the hours of 12 o'clock M. and 1 o'clock P. M. WILLIAM LOGAN, Cashier.

The National Citizens' Bank of the City of New York.
New York City, Dec. 21st, 1900.

The annual election for Directors of this bank will be held at the banking house, No. 401 Broadway, on TUESDAY, Jan. 8th, 1901, between the hours of 12 M. and 1 P. M.

W. M. WOODS, Cashier.

Pacific Bank.
New York, Dec. 12th, 1900.

The annual election of Directors of this bank will be held at the banking house, No. 470 Broadway, on Tuesday, January 8th, 1901, between the hours of 12 M. and 1 P. M.

S. C. MERWIN, Cashier.

The Plaza Bank,
New York, December 28th, 1900.

The annual election for Directors of the Plaza Bank will be held at the Banking House, 5th Avenue and 58th Street, on Tuesday, January 8th, 1901. Polls open from 12 M. to 1 o'clock P. M. C. W. PARSON, Cashier.

Mechanics' and Traders' Bank.
New York, December 31, 1900.

The annual election of Directors of this Bank will be held at the banking house, 480 Broadway, on Tuesday, January 8th, 1901, between the hours of 12 M. and 10 o'clock P. M.

A. M. DEDERER, Cashier.

THE FINANCIAL SITUATION

The first business week of 1901 is the phenomenal week of New York Stock Exchange history. New records have been made every day, many of them extraordinary. In volume of transactions past business has been far outreached, the tickers of the Stock Exchange being on several days unequal to the task of quoting anything like the actual volume of the trading. It has been, however, in the news developments of the week and the security market sequels that what is most important has taken place.

Finally, the great banking syndicates seem ready to make disclosure of the far-reaching plans which for more than a year they have been rounding out for the betterment of the railway situation of the country. A deal, involving hundreds of millions of capital, and, directly and indirectly, tens of thousands of miles of railway, is semi-officially acknowledged—the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul system being brought into alliance (practically a consolidation) with the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific properties. Complete official announcement follows of absorption by the Reading Company of the Central Railway of New Jersey. These two events, tremendous as are the interests they involve, are (according to trustworthy authorities) relatively small beside others that impend. The anthracite coal industry is forthwith to be brought into actually concentrated ownership. And the Eastern trunk line situation is to be benefited by still further consolidations. In the Vanderbilt properties of the Central West developments are likely to be announced soon, various systems being brought into closer operating relations. In the Southern and Southwestern field negotiations aiming at important results are progressing.

That we have entered upon a corporation consolidation era is no longer a matter of theory merely.

Progress of the negotiations in the St. Paul-Great Northern-Northern Pacific deal has been attended by an increase of 30 points and more in the market price of St. Paul common stock. It gained over 10 points during the past week. A guarantee of future dividends and the immediate distribution of aggregated surplus are promised. This is the deal of J. P. Morgan and James J. Hill. The progressing coal deal is underwritten by Mr. Morgan, W. K. Vanderbilt, and A. J. Cassatt. Standard Oil millions are advancing Rock Island developments, some current reports having it that Mr. Rockefeller proposes a Southwestern combination which will join the Rock Island and Missouri, Kansas and Texas mileage. Mr. Rockefeller's announcement that he is an important holder of Rock Island stock has occasioned considerable Wall Street surprise, and is taken to be more than superficially significant.

It is the confident anticipation of interested financiers that profitable results will quickly follow the execution of the new policy of concentration. They count upon substantial reduction in cost of operation. The elimination of special expenses made necessary by competition will provide vast economies. What will be more productive of net profits will, however, result from the ability of the railroads to advance traffic rates and to make rates stable. What this means for the great properties of the country is too much for ready calculation. Without making new rates which can be considered extortionate, without imposing burdens upon the public, net results, (so interested bankers calculate,) material increase, will be shown in funds available for dividends. It is not sentiment that promotes these new consolidations. It is all business.

Though Wall Street has had such a week of buoyancy, the average professional speculator on the Stock Exchange has not much profited. The room trading contingent has been fighting the market ever since it started its November advance; and early during the past week—on the very eve of the sensationally helpful developments—most of the "talent" of the Street plunged on the short side. On Thursday the market was pounded all day long by the professionals. They sold the whole list. Conspicuous commission houses were given heavy selling orders to promote the impression that liquidation was in progress. Similar sales were made on the London Exchange before business began here, and that was supplemented by the use of arbitrage firms later in the day, rumors being given wide circulation that trouble abroad was inducing both London and Berlin to throw American stocks overboard. Quotations receded, in some quarters substantially; and these same tactics being repeated in Friday's early foreign market lent courage to the raiders who, as soon as the New York Stock Exchange opened, increased their line of shorts extensively. They enjoyed the feeling of triumph for as much as thirty minutes. Then it was of a sudden disclosed that not only had the stocks sold in such free and easy fashion been taken by the strongest interests known to Wall Street, but that the same buyers were intent upon yet further and more vigorous buying. Hints of the St. Paul deal circulated, suggestions of the Reading-Jersey Central coup were mooted, the Standard Oil plans in Rock Island and the Vanderbilt programme for Canada Southern, Three C.'s, and Nickel Plate were broached. The bear contingent fought stubbornly for a while, but the contest was between giants and pigmies. Pessimism has seldom suffered a more expensive twenty-four hours.

In yesterday's market wild buoyancy at the opening was followed by considerable irregularity. In some stocks—notably the iron and steel group—there semed to be indication of plans to induce a short interest.

Money market conditions as reflected in the weekly Clearing House statement seem wholly at ease.

NO GOLD EXPORTS LIKELY.

Wall Street was more or less concerned for a time last week because of the advance in sterling exchange, followed by intimations in certain quarters where best information was not obtainable, that gold exports were not unlikely in the near future. A canvass of the foreign exchange houses, however, discloses the fact that there is no warrant for any belief in gold exports for weeks to come, if, indeed, even then.

A member of the firm of Lazard Frères, discussing the matter, said: "It is absurd, ridiculous, to talk of exports at these figures, for they could not be made without considerable loss. So far as I can see there is no prospect whatever of any exports for some considerable time, though undoubtedly London would like some of our gold. When rates go about 2 per cent. higher and the Bank of England offers some special inducements for the shipment, then you may see exports, but that is a long time off."

SATURDAY.

Stocks irregular.

STOCK TRANSACTIONS.

	Shares.
Jan. 5	1,154,934
To date this year	5,971,860
Corresponding date last year	2,821,866

BOND TRANSACTIONS.

Jan. 5	$2,479,000
To date this year	$13,235,150
Corresponding date last year	$7,808,100

Money rate: Collateral loans on call, 4@5 per cent.; at three months, 4¼ per cent.; at six months, 4½ per cent. Commercial paper, sixty to ninety days, 4¼@4¾ per cent.

***

Net changes in stocks of one-half of 1 per cent. or more were:

Stocks Advanced.

Am. Ice pf.	1½	Kan. City South.	1
Am. Tin Plate pf.	1⅞	Kan. City So. pf.	2¾
Balt. & Ohio	3⅜	Lake Erie & West.	⅛
Balt. & Ohio pf.	½	Louis. & Nash.	¾
Chi. & Alton pf.	½	Minn. & St. L.	⅞
Chi. & East. Ill.	2¼	Mo., K. & Texas	¾
Chi. & E. Ill. pf.	1	Missouri Pacific	1⅛
Chi. G. W. deb.	½	National Salt, pf.	½
Chi., M. & St. P. pf.	2	N. J. Central	2¾
Chi. & N. W.	⅞	N. Y., C. & St. L.	1
Chi. & N. W. pf.	2¼	N. Y., C. & St. L. 1st pf.	¾
Chi., St. P., M. & O.	1	Pac. Coast 1st pf.	1⅜
Chi., St. P., M. & O. pf.	9⅜	Pacific Mail.	⅞
Col. So. 2d pf.	1	Pressed Steel Car.	⅛
Cont. Tobacco pf.	1	Reading	4¼
Del. & Hudson	2¼	Reading 1st pf.	2
Del., L. & West.	1⅜	Reading 2d pf.	2¼
Erie	1⅛	St. L. & S. F. 1st pf.	½
Erie 1st pf.	2	St. L. & S. F. 2d pf.	⅝
Erie 2d pf.	2¼	St. L. S. W.	½
Glucose Sugar pf.	2½	Union Bag & P.	2
Great North. pf.	⅝	U. S. Express	2
Hocking Valley	½	U. S. Leather pf.	½
Hock. Valley pf.	1

Stocks Declined.

Am. C. & F. pf.	⅝	Glucose Sugar	⅛
Am. Linseed pf.	⅜	Illinois Central	½
Am. Smelt. & R. pf.	1⅜	Int. Paper	1
Am. Steel Hoop	⅞	Iowa Central	1
Am. Steel & Wire	⅞	Manhattan	1¼
Am. Sugar Ref.	2⅞	Met. Street Railway	2⅜
Am. Sugar Ref. pf.	⅝	National Biscuit	2½
Am. Tin Plate	⅝	National Steel	⅝
Anaconda Copper	½	National Tube	1¼
Ann Arbor pf.	½	N. Y. Central	1⅜
At., T. & S. F.	1¼	N. Y., Ont. & W.	½
At. T. & S. F. pf.	⅞	North. American	1½
Brooklyn Rapid Tr.	1⅜	Northern Pacific	⅝
Chi. & Alton	⅝	People's Gas	3
Chi. Great West.	1	Rep. Steel	½
Chi., G. W. pf., B.	1½	Sloss-Sheff. pf.	1
Chi., Ind. & L.	½	Tenn. Coal & Iron	4⅜
Chi., M. & St. P.	1½	Union Pacific pf.	½
C., C., C. & St. L.	½	U. S. Rubber	1⅛
Col. Fuel & Iron	⅝	U. S. Rubber pf.	⅝
Consol. Gas	1	Wabash	½
Federal Steel	1¼	Wis. Cent. pf.	1¼
General Electric	½

***

Net changes in bond quotations of 1 per cent. or more were:

Bonds Advanced.

C., B. & Q. Co. of Ga. 5s	1	Mo. Pac. coll. 5s	1
		Stand. R. & T. 6s	1

Bond Declined.

Gen. Elect. deb. 5s 2

CONFIDENCE IN THE MARKET.

Notwithstanding the enormous rise in prices in the stock market in recent weeks, members of conservative, representative Stock Exchange houses are looking for still higher prices—believe, in fact that in some market lines prices have but begun to advance. Herewith are presented opinions along these lines, merely representative of what generally is heard.

A. A. HOUSEMAN—I think that the present market is the greatest in the history of the country, and that before the upward movement culminates prices will be very much higher all through the list. Of course there will be more or less irregularity, not for instance as there was to-day when the very high opening invited to realizing and bear attacks. But in the end higher values will assert themselves, for the reason that conditions warrant them. The big railroad deals already consummated or being perfected must have highly beneficial effect. I believe, too, that the industrials are in for a big rise, and that when it comes it will be very quick and very decided.

C. M. MINZESHEIMER—The market has had a tremendous advance, and yet, in spite of this, I look for higher prices. The great prospects completed or under way, the work of the leading financiers and capitalists of the country, will have far-reaching and wonderfully stimulating effect. This is an age of consolidation, or, if not that, then of community of interest. Great economies will be worked, rate cutting and price cutting will be ended, this harmony meaning greater profits to the companies and greater returns to the stockholders. The outlook was never so favorable, and prices are bound to advance—always, of course, allowing for natural reactions.

M. W. DOMINICK—The very high opening to-day invited profit-taking, but because the market reacted from these high figures that is not to say it will not go still higher. As a matter of fact, reactions are natural and healthful, and improve the general tone of the market by shaking out weak holders. I think the Erie stocks are now among the best on the list, while if St. Paul is really to be guaranteed 7 per cent. it will go much higher.

JOHN H. DAVIS—The market has had such a phenomenal advance that it is a difficult matter to give an opinion that will be a reasonable and safe guide. Undoubtedly there has been very large profit taking, and therein the market has been improved. Of course present conditions are wonderful. All the dangerous isms, political and otherwise, are now out of the way, the country was never so prosperous, and the large financial interests are working in complete accord. Allowing for natural reactions, the market should go higher.

DANIEL O'DELL—I do not see why the market should not go much higher. The conditions are all favorable. The country generally is prosperous, with merchants, manufacturers, and railroads making money. It is only reasonable to expect that this prosperity should be reflected in higher values in the stock market.

S. V. WHITE & CO.—We certainly are not bearish on the market. Rather, we think it will go higher, particularly the good railroad stocks.

HAVEN & STOUT.—Although the market had a reaction this week, the factors which govern its course continue favorable to a continuance of its upward progress and to the maintenance of bullish speculation. During the last days of 1900 the actual events outran even the most sanguine anticipations. This movement continued when the market reopened on Wednesday, all the indications being that banking and railroad interests were actively engaged upon the bull side, and that the public is still coming in. Favorable conditions in the money market, the absence of unsettling factors and the intimations of arrangements between great corporations and the financiers identified with them, have had their influence in leading the Street to conclude that no culmination of the rise is yet to be apprehended, unless some unforeseen event should change the entire situation.

H. H. HOLLISTER.—This is not a market of wild speculation, but merely of bankers' deals, which are not yet completed. Prices will go higher.

HENRY CLEWS—After two months of unparalleled activity, in which prices had advanced on an average fully 25 points, it was a question whether the first week of the new year, with its usual buying for the reinvestment of interest and dividends, would not be turned to account as an opportunity for realizing the large and tempting speculative profits. The more prudent operators reasoned for some days past that, after such a great rise in prices and with such large profits within reach, further holding was risky, and consequently realized heavily in advance. There proved to be as many buyers as sellers, however, and, since the reinvestment demand set in, prices have been well sustained, although the wants of investors had been to a consider of enormous traffic which the roads are in physical condition to handle more economically than ever before. With the large earnings that must thereby accrue, and with the present favorable condition of the country, it is puerile to believe that any depression in the prices of railroads can be maintained for any length of time.

THE BANK STATEMENT.

The bank statement issued yesterday shortly before the close of business was generally about what had been expected, and made a favorable showing. Surplus reserves increased $2,624,175, notwithstanding an increase of $16,760,900 in deposits, requiring therefore an additional reserve of over four millions. There was an increase in cash holdings of nearly seven millions, specie increasing $3,108,100 and legal tenders $3,706,300. Loans increased $7,532,400, the increase in large measure reflecting the great activity in the stock market.

***

Previous to the publication of the statement the market had been strong but erratic. When the figures were made public recent buyers took advantage of the favorable exhibit to take profits, causing declines from the high figures.

***

The week's averages of the banks compare as follows with the same date one and two years ago:

	1901.	1900.	1899.
Loans	$802,989,600	$677,797,000	$713,803,800
Deposits	870,950,100	748,953,100	826,881,700
Circulation	30,982,500	16,341,000	18,858,200
Specie	164,827,800	144,091,700	175,442,100
Legal tenders	47,059,800	54,394,300	56,808,700
Total res.	$231,887,600	$198,986,000	$230,250,800
Reserve req'd	217,737,525	187,238,275	206,720,425
Surplus res	$14,150,075	$11,757,725	$23,530,375

MONEY MARKET OUTLOOK.

An officer of one of the prominent National banks, discussing the money market situation, said yesterday:

"I all along contended that there was no fear of any money stringency, and now that the January disbursements have been provided for I look for relatively easier money. It may not have been generally noticed, but it is a fact, nevertheless, that interior money is beginning to come back to the city in no inconsiderable volume, and I expect the inflow to be materially greater in the next few weeks. That signifies that, despite the active business demand for money, there will be plenty to spare, and that we could even send gold [illegible] without in the least being embarrassed."

MR. LOWRY'S OPTIMISM.

Ex-Gov. Thomas F. Lowry of Minnesota grows more optimistic with the progress of time. He says:

"Bright as was the outlook toward the close of the year, all the promises and all the expectations now are of even better things. The prosperity of the country is exceptionally substantial, and, to my mind, there is no doubt of its continuance. Everywhere you go you see the signs of the times. The farmer, the artisan, the merchant, the manufacturer, the transportation men—all are doing well; all are confident.

"In my opinion, the getting together of the big financiers and railroad men is one of the most significant happenings of the time, and will do much toward stability, not only in railroad, but in other lines."

RAILWAY RECEIVERSHIPS.

According to The Railway Age, the number and extent of railway bankruptcies in the United States last year was a little greater than in 1899, but with that exception they were very much less than in any year since 1887. In all but perhaps two or three instances, the financial troubles began some years ago, and are not to be attributed to conditions existing in the past year. Sixteen roads, with 1,165 miles of line and over $78,000,000 of bonds and stock, were placed in the charge of receivers in 1900, as will be seen by the following table:

ROADS PLACED UNDER RECEIVERS IN 1900.

Road.	Miles.	Bonded Debt.	Capital Stock.
Omaha, K. C. & East.	39	$1,428,000	$1,428,000
Omaha & St. Louis	145	2,378,000	2,592,000
K. C. & North. Con.	91	2,974,000	3,500,000
Chic. & Grand Trunk	227	11,437,000	6,600,000
Coos Bay, Roseb. & E.	28	625,000	2,000,000
Vicks., Shreve. & Pac.	55	1,765,000	1,891,000
New York & Ottawa	56	2,360,000	2,540,000
Eureka & Palisade, (3 ft)	84	1,000,000	1,000,000
Wash. & Potomac	23	*2,000,000	4,000,000
Shelby., Bloom. & Ohio.	26	250,000	10,000
St. P. & Grand Canyon	55	1,000,000	2,000,000
Kan. City Sub. Belt	16	4,750,000	500,000
Union Terminal	7	2,000,000	2,000,000
K. C. & Indp. Air Line	7	300,000	500,000
Gulf & Inter-State	70	829,000	71,000
Cerrillos Coal Railroad	6	748,000	2,500,000
Total	1,165	$41,142,000	$37,082,000
Total bonds and stock			78,234,000

*Estimated.

***

The accompanying summary of receiverships for the twenty-five years in which The Railway Age has kept the record shows that a very large proportion of the railways in this country have been bankrupt, while the decreased figures of late years give reason for a hopeful outlook:

SUMMARY OF RECEIVERSHIPS FOR TWENTY-FIVE YEARS.

	No. of Roads.	Miles.	Bonds and Stocks.
1876	42	6,662	$467,000,000
1877	28	3,637	220,284,000
1878	27	7,252	192,385,000
1879	12	1,102	33,367,000
1880	13	885	140,295,000
1881	5	110	7,742,000
1882	12	912	39,074,000
1883	11	1,960	108,470,000
1884	24	4,753	211,703,000
1885	44	8,386	385,400,000
1886	13	1,739	70,346,000
1887	9	1,046	90,318,000
1888	22	3,270	186,814,000
1889	22	3,803	99,664,000
1890	25	2,963	105,607,000
1891	26	3,159	84,479,000
1892	36	10,508	357,682,000
1893	74	23,340	1,781,046,000
1894	38	7,025	295,791,000
1895	31	4,089	369,075,000
1896	34	6,441	275,597,000
1897	14	1,577	92,999,000
1898	18	2,069	138,701,000
1899	10	1,019	52,285,000
1900	16	1,165	78,234,000
Total in 25 years	634	113,275	$6,389,270,000

***

The record of foreclosure sales for last year, although considerable, is also encouraging, being the smallest in all respects in the seven past years, indicating that the material in the receivers' offices has been pretty well worked over. During 1900 there were 24 sales, involving 3,477 miles, and an apparent capitalization of $190,000,000. The Kansas City, Pittsburg and Gulf fiasco made up about one-fourth of the entire mileage and capitalization in the list. The Toledo, St. Louis and Kansas City, Chicago and Grand Trunk, Louisville, Evansville and St. Louis, Peoria, Decatur and Evansville, and the Chicago, Peoria and St. Louis and its associate, five important enterprises, account for 50 per cent. more of the entire mileage, leaving the remaining one-quarter represented by seventeen roads of comparatively small extent. The detailed list for the year is as follows:

ROADS SOLD UNDER FORECLOSURE DURING 1900.

Road.	Miles.	Bonded Debt.	Capital Stock.
Chicago, Peo. & St. L.	166	$6,840,000	$5,000,000
St. L., Chi. & St. P.	102	3,046,000	1,500,000
Ind., B. & W.	112	2,000,000	1,700,000
Zanesville & Ohio R.	72	2,000,000	2,000,000
United Verde & Pac. (three feet)	26	300,000	300,000
Peo., Dec. & Evansv.	234	4,845,000	8,400,000
Marion & Rye Val.	6	65,000	100,000
Stuttgart & Ark. Riv.	41	575,000	500,000
Shelbyville & Bloom.	27	250,000	10,000
St. L., Peo. & Nor.	148	2,322,000	5,000,000
Kan. C., Pit. & Gulf.	840	24,561,000	23,000,000
Tol., St. L. & K. C.	451	10,000,000	17,000,000
Newark, Som. & Str.	46	800,000	1,025,000
Roma & Carrollton	22	150,000
Nash., Flor. & Shef.	94	2,000,000	2,000,000
Centralia & Chester	96	1,478,000	948,000
Wheel. Bdg. Ter. Ry.	10	3,500,000	1,500,000
Kan., Ok. Cent. & S.	56	*500,000	*1,000,000
Washington & Potom.	23	2,000,000	4,000,000
Sal. & S. W., (3 ft)	35	540,000	288,000
Solomon R.R., (U.P.)	57	575,000	1,108,000
Kansas Midland	106	2,680,000	3,000,000
Everett & Monte C.	53	*1,000,000	*2,000,000
Columbus & N. W.	41	545,000	1,000,000
Tacoma & Col. River	12	250,000	3,000,000
Chicago & Grand Tr.	332	11,437,000	6,000,000
Louisv., Ev. & St. L.	359	10,583,000	4,247,000
Total, 24 roads	3,477	$94,747,000	$95,627,000
Total bonds and stock			$190,374,000

*Estimated.

TREASURY GOLD, $480,709,005.

Amount on Hand Breaks All Records, Treasurer Roberts Says.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—"The gross gold in the Treasury to-day," said Ellis H. Roberts, United States Treasurer, "is $480,709,005, breaking all records. At the end of March, 1889, the Treasury held $328,293,901, which was the largest sum accumulated during any Administration in recent years until within the last two or three years. Our immense gold holdings are due, of course, to the great prosperity of the country, to the increased production of gold in all directions, and in large part to the fact that the United States is now the creditor Nation of the world."

Mr. Roberts thought that for the present at least there would continue to be an increase in the Treasury holdings of gold, but it might be reduced somewhat should the reduction of the war revenue taxes be so heavy as to run the expenditures close to the receipts.

COLORADO FUEL'S EARNINGS.

The Colorado Fuel and Iron Company yesterday put out another phenomenal statement of earnings, in detail as follows:

Month of November, 1900	$225,467.05
Month of November, 1899	219,251.38
Increase	$6,215.67
Five months ended Nov. 30, 1900	$1,145,486.94
Five months ended Nov. 30, 1899	753,373.63
Increase	$392,113.31
Net earnings five months ended Nov. 30, 1900, as above	$1,145,486.94
Bond interest, taxes, and preferred stock dividend for the entire year to June 30, 1901	601,790.00
Surplus over all charges for the entire year	$543,696.94

TOP PRICE IN CHICAGO WHEAT.

May Jumps to 79½, the Highest Figure of Present Season.

CHICAGO, Jan. 5.—The course of wheat to-day was ruled by sentiment, May closing 1¾@1⅞ over yesterday. At the beginning and at the end of the session in the wheat pit, bullishness of a decidedly strenuous order made the market an exciting one, while the period between these extremes was marked by great nervousness. The market was almost entirely a creation of sentiment based on the stock activity and rumors of Wall Street interest in the local grain market. But at that, with the news legitimately influential in determining prices eliminated, May wheat boomed to the top price of the present season. It opened 1 to 1¾ higher, at 78½ to 79¼ under heavy buying pressure, which was quickly followed by large offers to secure profits.

Trade became more quiet, but ruled nervous for the next hour. May rallied to 78⅞, but dropped back again. Offerings were light, and the price was gradually worked up again to 79. At this mark more profit taking, together with some short selling, was attempted. Meanwhile commission houses had received more buying orders. The readiness with which offerings disappeared into this quarter alarmed the short interest, and in a sharp burst of activity May jumped to 79¾, the high price of the present season. A reaction to 79⅛ followed this, but the market was aggressively strong and the close was 1¾@1⅞ higher at 79¼@79⅝. Cash bids were out of line with the advance, and more business was accepted.

MONEY AND EXCHANGE.

Money on call, 4@5 per cent.

Time money, 4¼ per cent. for thirty days, 4¼@4½ per cent. for longer periods. Mercantile paper, 4½@4¾ per cent. for sixty to ninety days' indorsements, 4¾@5 per cent. for choice four to six months' single names, and 5@6 per cent. for others.

Clearing House statement: Exchanges, $319,846,302; balances, $10,475,697; Sub-Treasury debit balance, $1,138,259.

Money on call in London, 3@3½ per cent. Rate of discount in the open market, 4⅛@4⅜ per cent. for both short and three months' bills.

Foreign exchange was strong. Nominal rates were $4.82½ for sixty days and $4.87 for demand. Rates for actual business closed as follows: Sixty days, $4.82⅛; demand, $4.86⅛@$4.86¼; cables, $4.87; commercial bills, $4.81@$4.82¼.

Continental exchange was quoted as follows: Francs, 5.18¾, less 1-16@5.18¾ and 5.17½ less 1-16; reichsmarks, 94½@94 9-16 and 95⅛@95 3-16, and guilders, 40⅛ and 40⅜.

Exchange on New York at domestic centres: Chicago—10c premium. Boston—Par @ 5c premium. New Orleans—Commercial, 50c discount; bank, par. San Francisco—Sight, 15c premium; telegraphic, 17½c premium. Charleston—Buying, par; selling, 1-10c premium. Savannah—Buying, ⅛c discount; selling, par. Cincinnati—Between banks, 14½@15c premium; over the counter, 50c premium.

THE BANK STATEMENT.

The weekly bank statement of the New York City banks showed an increase in the surplus reserve of $2,624,175. The banks now hold a surplus of $14,150,075 above the legal requirements.

The following is a comparison of the statement issued yesterday with that of the previous Saturday:

	Dec. 29.	Jan. 5.	Increase.
Loans	$796,457,200	$803,989,600	$7,532,400
Deposits	854,189,200	870,950,100	16,760,900
Circulation	31,040,800	30,982,500	*58,300
Legal tenders	63,353,500	67,059,800	3,706,300
Specie	161,719,700	164,827,800	3,108,100
Reserve	225,073,200	231,887,600	6,814,400
Res. required	213,547,300	217,737,525	4,190,225
Surplus	11,525,900	14,150,075	2,624,175

*Decrease.

The following shows the surplus reserve at this time for a series of years:

1901	$14,150,075	1896	$27,183,100
1900	11,757,725	1895	35,862,050
1899	23,530,375	1894	33,796,650
1898	11,757,725	1893	8,342,450
1897	43,901,450	1892	18,961,125

CLEARING HOUSE RETURNS.

The Clearing House returns for the week ended Jan. 5, telegraphed to The Financial Chronicle, make the following showing:

	1900.	1899.	P. C.
New York	$1,271,671,991	$912,806,126	+39.3
Boston	136,272,413	118,669,735	+11.5
Philadelphia	86,307,523	81,281,626	+ 6.2
Baltimore	18,708,291	10,526,296	+ 4.3
Chicago	119,015,245	115,369,204	+ 3.2
St. Louis	34,792,342	28,399,440	+19.0
New Orleans	9,261,791	8,460,998	+ 9.5
Seven cities, 5 days	$1,676,029,596	$1,284,515,424	+30.5
Other cities, 5 days	225,107,413	167,648,491	+10.4
Total, all cities, 5 days	$1,901,137,009	$1,222,383,706	+27.7
All cities, 1 day	415,526,481	342,665,762	+20.1
Total, all cities, for week	$2,316,663,490	$1,565,049,468	+26.3

Complete returns for the week ended Dec. 29 show, compared with the corresponding week in 1899, a gain of 20.5 per cent., with the same week in 1898 a gain of 24.4 per cent., and with 1897 an increase of 55.2 per cent. Outside New York the increase, as compared with 1899, was 6.7 per cent., the excess over 1898 reaches 15.2 per cent., and, making comparison with 1897, the increase is seen to be 31.2 per cent.

TREASURY BALANCES.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—To-day's statement of the Treasury balances in the general fund, exclusive of the $150,000,000 gold reserve in the Division of Redemption, shows:

Available cash balance	$139,401,778
Gold	93,756,696
Silver	10,581,936
United States notes	10,908,704
Treasury notes of 1890	128,006
National banknotes	8,709,739
Total receipts this day	2,356,060
Total receipts this month	7,714,479
Total receipts this year	299,556,340
Total expenditures this day	1,815,000
Total expenditures this month	6,745,000
Total expenditures this year	279,639,165
Deposits in National banks	68,686,856

The condition of the Treasury Divisions of Issue and Redemption at the beginning of business to-day was as follows:

RESERVE FUND.

Gold coin and bullion	$150,000,000

TRUST FUNDS, DIVISION OF REDEMPTION.

Gold coin	$264,038,379
Silver dollars	427,482,000
Silver dollars of 1890	4,723,082
Silver bullion of 1890	56,357,918
United States notes	1,560,000
	$754,521,379

DIVISION OF ISSUE.

Gold certificates outstanding	$264,038,379
Silver certificates outstanding	427,482,000
Treasury notes outstanding	61,081,000
Currency certificates outstanding	1,560,000
Total	$754,521,379

GENERAL FUND.

Gold coin and bullion	$66,689,626
Gold certificates	27,087,070
Silver coin and bullion	5,245,185
Silver certificates	5,339,751
United States notes	10,908,704
Other assets	13,962,990
Total in Treasury	$129,200,328
Deposits in National banks	98,686,856
Total	$227,887,185
Current liabilities	88,485,407
Available cash balance	$139,401,778

OUTSIDE SECURITIES.

Very little life showed in the market for outside securities yesterday. As for some days past, interest was centred in the Stock Exchange market, and securities traded in on the curb received little or no attention. A few issues developed some slight activity, and here and there substantial advances appeared, but, all told, the day's transactions brought little change in the general position in the market. One or two bank stocks which for several days past have been very quiet showed some activity, but naturally supplied no very large transactions.

***

CRUCIBLE STEEL recovered from the decline of a day or two ago, and on light transactions rose to 21¾. There were no changes of importance in any other of the steel stocks, and in none of them were transactions much above the small average which prevailed.

***

BUFFALO GAS bonds, which for a short while past have shown much strength, advanced still further, and the fact was developed that very few of the bonds are offered near yesterday's price. At the close 73½ was bid, a net gain of 1 point.

***

CONSOLIDATED EQUIPMENT advanced sharply on very light transactions. Only a very few shares changed hands, but the price advanced to 13⅞. Reports in regard to the business of the company continued to be to the effect that the conditions surrounding it are very favorable and that much progress is being made.

***

UNITED RAILWAYS OF ST. LOUIS 4s continued to show strength, and were traded in to the extent of $50,000 at 86½. The stocks also advanced fractionally, but trading in them was very light. Within the last few days the preferred stock, as well as St. Louis Transit, has shown considerable irregularity, but the bonds have continued strong.

***

RUBBER GOODS advanced fractionally for the common, and the preferred stock showed a net gain of one point. These advances were not accompanied by any large trading.

***

STERLING COPPER. It is stated that the stock of the Sterling Copper Company will during the coming week be traded on the curb. The company is incorporated under the laws of West Virginia, and is capitalled at $1,000,000, divided into shares of the par value of $25. The property of the company is said to consist of 240 acres of mining land, which is owned free and clear.

***

STANDARD OIL sold at 795, and was offered there at the close. It showed a net loss of 5 points for the day.

***

Closing quotations yesterday, compared with those of Wednesday, were as follows:

Industrial and Miscellaneous.

	Jan. 5. Bid.	Asked.	Jan. 4. Bid.	Asked.
Am. Agricultural Chem.	30	32	30	32
Am. Agricult. Chem. pf.	80	82	80	82
American Banknote	50	53	50	53
American Bicycle	5½	6½	5½	6½
American Bicycle pf.	26	27¼	25¾	27
American Bicycle bonds	73	75	73	75
American Bridge	45	45¼	45	45¼
American Bridge pf.	94½	95	95	95½
American Chicle	83	88	83	88
American Chicle pf.	76	81	76	81
Am. Hide & Leather	10	11	10	11
Am. Hide & Leather pf.	35½	39	35½	39
Am. Hide & Leather 6s	90	90½	90	90½
*American Thread pf.	4	5	4	5
Am. Typefounders	57	62	57	62
Anthracite Coal	8½	9	8½	9
Arlington Copper	4	5	4	5
British Columbia Copper	22⅜	22⅝	22¼	22½
British Exch. 3s	98½	99	98¾	99
California Copper	1½	1¾	1½	1¾
Cast-Iron Pipe	5¼	0	5	6
Cast-Iron Pipe pf.	33	35	32½	34
Central & So. Am. Tel.	102	104	102	104
Central Firework's	22	25	22	25
Central Fireworks pf.	70	75	70	75
Compressed Air	40	45	40	45
Con. Ry. N. & E.	13½	14	13	13¾
Con. Rubber Tire	2½	4	2½	4
Con. Rubber Tire pf.	23	32	23	32
Continental Tobacco	104	106	104	106
Crucible Steel	21¾	22½	20	21
Crucible Steel pf.	79½	81	79½	81
Cramps' Shipyard	82	84	82	84
Dist. Co. of Am. tr. rcts.	7	7½	7	7½
Dist. Co. of Am. pf. tr. rcts	31	32	31	32
Electric Boat	29	29½	29	29½
Electric Boat pf.	49	50	49	50
Electric Vehicle	17	18	17	18
Electric Vehicle pf.	40	44	40	44
Electric-Pneumatic	2⅞	3	2⅞	3
Empire Steel	6	7	6	..
Empire Steel pf.	38	50	38	..
Flemington Coal & Coke	21	23	21	23
General Carriage	3¾	4¼	3¾	4
General Chemical	60	65	60	62
General Chemical pf.	97	98½	97	98½
German Treasury 4s	100¾	100⅝	100¾	100⅝
Havana Commercial	10	12	10	12
Havana Commerical pf.	43	44½	43	44½
Hudson River Tel.	117	119	117	119
Illinois Transportation	¾	1	¾	1
International Silver pf.	45	50	45	50
Inter-State Oil	10	15	10	15
Iron Steamboat	3	8	3	8
Iron Steamboat bonds	55	65	55	65
Joseph Ladue Mining pf.	½	1	½	1
Lorillard pf.	100	105	100	105
†Markeen Copper	1½	3	1	3
Mex. Nat. Construct. pf.	13½	14	13½	14
Nat. Enamel & Stamp	17	20	17	20
Nat. Enam. & Stamp. pf.	80	84	80	84
National Gramophone	5	12	5	12
Nat. Sugar pf.	100	102	100	102
New England Transport.	3¼	3⅝	3¼	3⅝
New York Transportation	6	7	6¼	7
Otis Elevator	29	30	29	30
Otis Elevator pf.	90	91¾	90	91¾
Peo., Dec. & Evans.	⅞	1¼	1	1¼
Pitts., Bess. & L. Erie	28½	29½	28½	29½
Retsof	22	..	22	..
Roof bonds	78	85	78	85
Royal Baking Powder pf.	94	95	94	95
Royal Copper	11	12	11	12
Rubber Goods Mfg.	29⅞	30⅝	29½	30½
Rubber Goods Mfg. pf.	80	80½	79	80½
Safety Car Heating	113	118	113	116
St. Louis Transit	19	20	19	19½
Seaboard Air Line 4s	71	73	71	73
Seaboard Air Line	10	11	10	11
Seaboard Air Line pf.	27	28	27	28¼
Sheet Steel pf.	16½	17	16½	17
Singer Mfg	260	275	250	275
Southern Light & Trac.	32	35	32	35
Standard Coupler	33	38	33	38
Standard Coupler pf.	120	125½	120	125⅛
Standard Oil of N. J.	790	795	795	803
Storage Power	10	12½	10	12½
Tennessee Copper	16½	17½	16½	17½
Tel., Tel. & Co. of A., $15 paid	7	8	6½	7½
Tranton Potteries	5	8	5	8
Trenton Pot. pf.	55	60	55	60
Tubular Dispatch	23	32½	22½	32½
Union Copper	4¾	5	4¾	5
Union Typewriter	37	38	37	38
Union Typewriter 1st pf.	112	114	112	114
Union Typewriter 2d pf.	112	114	112	114
United Rys. of St. L. 4s	86⅝	86⅝	86	86⅝
United Rys. of St. L. pf.	69	69¼	67½	68¼
Va. Coal, I. & C.	5	7	5	7
Va. Coal, I. & C. bonds	37	39	37	38
Westinghouse Air Brake	370	380	370	380
Worthington Pump pf.	111	114	111	114

*Selling dollars per share. Par value $5.
†Selling dollars per share. Par value $10.

Street Railways.

Broadway & 7th Av.	230	235	230	235
Broadway & 7th Av. 1st	102½	102¾	102½	102½
Broadway & 7th Av. 2d	110	113	110	113
Broadway Surface 1st 5s	115	116	115	110
Broadway Surface 2d	102½	103½	102½	103¼
Brooklyn City R. R.	232	234	231	233
Brooklyn R. & W. E. 5s	101½	102	101¼	103
Cent. Park, N. & E. R.	200	202	199½	201
Cent. Park, N. & E.R. 7s	104½	105½	104½	105½
Columbus Railway	34	37	32½	35
Columbus Railway pf.	90	92	89	92
Con. Traction of N. J.	58	60	58	60
Con. Traction 5s	108	109	108	108
Eighth Avenue Railroad	390	400	390	400
42d St., M. & St. N. Av. 1st	113½	115	113½	115
42d St., M. & St. N. A. 2d	99	100	99	100
Grand Rapids St. Ry.	27½	30	27	30
Grand Rapids St. Ry. pf.	80	..	76	80
Jersey City, Hob. & Pat.	20	21¼	20	21¼
Jersey C., H. & P. 4s	82½	83	82½	83
Nassau Electric 4s	86½	89	87	90
New Orleans Traction	22	..	22	..
New Orleans Traction pf.	94	98	94	98
9th Av. R. R.	194	205	198	205
North Jersey St. R.R. 4s	83½	84½	83½	84½
North Jersey St. R. R.	24	25	24	25
Orange & Pas. V. bonds	93	95	93	95
Second Av. R. R. consols	118	118	118	119
Sixth Av. R. R.	200	210	200	210
Staten Isl'd Ry. Co. 1st 6s	116½	118	116½	118
Syracuse Rapid Transit	15	20	15	20
Syracuse Rap. Transit pf.	37	43	39	43
28th & 29th St. 5s, 1996	113¼	114½	113¼	114½
Union Ry. 1st 5s	111	113½	111	113½
United Traction, Providence	110	111	109	111
United Traction bonds	113½	115	113½	115
Worcester (Mass.) Trac.	33½	35½	33½	35½
Wor. (Mass.) Trac. pf.	107	108	107	108

Gas Companies.

Bay State Gas	1¼	1⅜	1¼	1⅜
Buffalo (N. Y.) Stock	8	9	8	9
Buffalo (N. Y.) 1st	73½	75	72½	75
Central Union 5s, gtd.	108½	109½	108½	109½
Columbus Gas 5s	106	107	108	107
Con. Gas of Newark	55	..	55	..
Con. Gas of New'k bds.	104	106	104	106
Con. Gas of New Jersey	10	15	10	15
Con. Gas bonds of N. J.	80	85	..	80
Con's'rs Gas (J. C.) bds.	105½	106	105½	106
Denver Gas	18½	20	18½	20
Denver Gas 5s	61	63	61	63
Essex & Hudson Gas	35	40	35	40
Indianapolis Gas	50	60	50	60
Indianapolis Gas bds. 6s	89	91	89	91
Mutual Gas of N. Y.	296	299	295	299
Madison (Wis.) stock	70	75	70	75
New Amsterdam Gas	109½	110	109¾	109¾
N. O. Gas & Coke	14	15	14	15
N. E. Gas & Coke 5s	70	71	70¾	72
N. Y. & E. R. Gas Co. 1st	112½	114	111	114
N. Y. & E. R. Gas Co. con.	108	109	106	109
Northern Union 5s	105½	106	105½	106
Nor. Hud. L. H. & P. Co.	55	56	55	56
Nor. M. L., H. & P. Co. bds.	107	109	107	109
Peo. Gas & El. (Oswego)	25	30	25	30
Peo. G. & E. (Ga.) 5s, 1930	90	101	90	101
St. Joseph (Mo.)	21	23	21	23
St. Joseph (Mo.) 6s	91	92	91	92

Ferry Companies.

St. Paul Gas stock	..	50	..	50
St. Paul Gas bonds	75	80	75	80
Standard Gas, New York	131	133	130	136
Standard Gas, N. Y., pf.	151	153	150	153
Standard Gas 1st	115	117	115	117
Syracuse Gas stock	8	10	8	10
Western Gas	96	100	96	100
Western Gas 1st 5s	107	109	107	109

Ferry Companies.

Brooklyn Ferry	18	19	18	19
Brooklyn Ferry 5s	85	86	85	86
East River Ferry	68	71	69	71
East River Ferry 5s	96	98	96	98
Hoboken Ferry con. 5s	94⅝	95	94⅝	95
Hoboken Ferry 1st	110½	112½	110½	112½
Hoboken Ferry	80	81	80	81
Metropolitan Ferry 5s	108	110	108	110
Union Ferry	30	31½	30	31½
Union Ferry bonds	91	92	91	92

BOSTON STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Jan. 5.—Boston had an active market, with free realizing, but there were some strong specialties, and as a whole the market held well. Tamarack ran up 25, to 350, closing at 340, on sales of 440 shares; Erie Telephone fell 5, to 85, against 100 last Saturday, and highest of 132 in 1900; Massachusetts Electric gained ¾, to 26¾, over 3,000 shares selling; Old Dominion was off ⅝, at 30⅞; Montana lost from 320 to 310, rallying to 319, on sales of 723 shares; Agricultural Chemical touched 33, receding to 31½, with preferred up to 81¼; American Telephone was active at 156½@155½, closing at 156; American Woollen was in demand, rallying ½, to 21⅛; Stock Yards was off 1, at 145, closing at 145½; Maine rose 1, to 196; Bingham was up ⅝, at 16¾; British Columbia ⅝, at 23½; Butte held at 80; Centennial lost 1½, to 24; Mohawk touched 27½, closing at 26½; Osceola receded from 86 to 84; Utah lost ¾, to 32½.

At the local Clearing House to-day money between the banks loaned at 2½@3 per cent., and New York funds soldeat par @5c discount. Call money is in good supply to the strongest borrowers at 4 per cent. on both call and time. When the security is not of the choicest grade money on call ranges from 4½ to 5 per cent., and the same on time. Banks prefer long to short maturities. List:

Mining Stocks.

	Bid.	Asked.		Bid.	Asked.
Adventure	10	10½	Mohawk	26	26½
Allouez	3	3½	Old Colony	3½	4½
Arcadian	19	20	Old Domin.	30½	31
Arnold	4¾	5¼	Osceola	82	84
Ash Bed	.25	.50	Parrot	49½	.50
Atlantic	28½	28¾	Quincy	172	175
Baltic	35¼	35½	Rhode Island	4½	5
Bost. & Mon.	315	319	Santa Fé	6¾	7¼
Butte & Bos.	..	80	Shoe	31¾	32
Cal. & Hec.	828	835	Tamarack	340	345
Centennial	24	24½	Utah Cons.	33	34
Franklin	18¼	18½	Washington.	.50	1
Humboldt	.50	1	Winona	6	..
Isle Royale	38	..	Wolverine	49	49½

Railroad Stocks.

| | | | |

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE.

Complete Bond Transactions.

Virginia Funded Debt 2-3s	10,000		67½
	10,000		67¾
5,000	96⅞	Mo. K. & T 2d 4s
Virginia 6s, defer, ctfs	10,000		76⅝
	1,000		76½
50,000 S	2,000		77
	3,000		76⅝
Adams Express 4s	15,000		76½
22,000	104⅝		76
Am Spirits M 6s	10,000		76¼
1,000	85		76
Atch, Top & Santa Fe gen 4s	Mo Pac 1st con 6s
	10,000		120
500	103	Mo Pac trust 5s
3,000	102⅞	1,000	102
2,000	102⅝	25,000	103½
3,000	102¾	21,000	102½
Adjustment 4s	Mo Pac 1st col 5s
25,000	87½	25,000	104
7,000	87¾	Mob & O gen 4s
36,000	87½	1,000	87½
Balt & Ohio 4s		5,000	88
50,000	101¼	Mob & Ohio, Montg Div 5s
35,000	101⅛
5,000	101⅜	1,000	110½
Balt & Ohio 3½s		1,000	110
1,000	95⅞	N Y Gas, El L, H & P purchase money 4s
10,000	95⅝
10,000	95⅞	5,000	95
B'klyn Un El 1st		N Y, S & W gen 5s
1,000	99½	1,000	105
2,000	99⅝	Nor & W gen 4s
Canada So 1st		12,000	100⅜
1,000	106½	North Pac 4s
4,000	106⅝	2,000	104⅝
Cent R R & Bkg Co of Ga col 5s		North Pac gen 3s
	71⅛	10,000	71⅛
3,000	98	500	71⅜
Cent of Ga con 5s		2,000	71½
20,000	96⅞	10,000	71⅝
1,000	100	Ore R & N con 4s
Cent of Ga 1st inc		1,000	104
20,000	61½	Ore Sh L 1st 6s
Cent of Ga 2d inc		2,000	125⅝
5,000	21	2,000	125⅞
Cent of N J gen 5s		Ore Sh Line 1st con 5s
2,000	127⅞
5,000	127⅝	1,000	115½
5,000	127⅜	4,000	115¼
Cent Pac gtd 5½s		Panama 1st 4½s
3,000	84	9,000	104
Ches & O gen 6½s		Pen & E inc 4s
1,000	104⅞	10,000	49½
Chi & Alton 3½s		Reading gen 4s
10,000	84¼	20,000	94
7,000	84	186,000	94¼
4,000	84¼	15,000	94
8,000	84½	15,000	94¼
Chi, M & St Paul con 7s		60,000	94
	141⅝	30,000	94⅛
21,000	186	2,000	94
Chi, R I & P gen 4s		5,000	94⅜
	93⅝	3,000	93⅝
5,000	107½	5,000	93⅝
Chi Term Trans 4s	92½	Rio Gr West 1st
8,000		5,000	99¼
Col Mid 1st 5-6s		St L, I M & So unify & ref 4s
5,000	78⅞
Col & South 1st 4s		9,000	86
10,000	84¼	5,000	85⅝
10,000	84½	St L S W 1st
Denver & Rio Gr Imp 5s		2,000	96¾
	107½	1,000	96⅝
25,000		10,000	96
Det, Mac & Mar land grant 5½s		9,000	96¼
	81½	St L S W 2d
3,000		20,000	72⅞
Erie 1st con 4s		5,000	72⅝
150,000	97⅛	5,000	72¾
10,000	97⅝	5,000	72⅝
100,000	97⅞	St Paul, M & M 1st con 6s
100,000 20f	97½
50,000	97⅛	15,000	141½
5,000	97⅜	St P & Sioux City 1st
1,000	97½
25,000	97	4,000	130
Erie 1st gen 4s		San A & A P 4s
16,000	85⅞	10,000	78½
15,000	85⅝	South Pac 4s
2,000	85⅞	5,000	83⅞
26,000	85⅞	4,000	83⅝
15,000	85⅛	12,000	83⅞
50,000	85⅞	278,000	84
50,000 20f	85⅞	6,000	84¼
30,000	85⅞	50,000	84
5,000	85⅞	So Pac of Cal con 5s, stamped
40,000	85⅞
55,000	85⅞	10,000	107½
38,000	85⅛	Southern Ry 1st 5s
3,000 20f	84½	2,000	112
Ft Worth & D C 1st		2,000	112⅝
	118⅝	5,000	112⅜
2,000	78	Standard R & T 6s
7,000	77	1,000	72½
14,000	78	Standard R & T inc
Gal, H & San A 1st P Div 5s		2,000	11½
	100⅞	Tex & N O con 5s
10,000		10,000	104⅛
Gen Elec deb 5s		6,000	104¾
11,000	155	Third Av 4s
Hock Val 1st 4½s		2,000	104⅝
1,000	104	Union Pac 1st 4s
Int & Gt Nor 1st 6s		10,000	105⅜
2,000	125⅞	Wabash 1st 5s
Inter Paper 6s		1,000	118½
5,000	109	Wabash deb B
Kan City So 3s		5,000	41⅜
10,000	67½	10,000	41⅝
L & W B gtd 4½s		10,000	41⅝
5,000	103	25,000	41¾
Louisville & Nashv unified 4s		3,000	41½
	95	Wab, Des M Div 4s
6,000	100½	10,000
Mex Cent 1st inc		West N Y & Penn gen 5s
20,000	28½		94⅛
Mex Cent 2d inc		10,000	95
10,000	13¾	3,000	95¼
10,000	13½	Wheeling & L E 1st con 5s
Mid N J 1st 6s
1,000	117½	10,000	90½
Mo, K & T 1st 4s		25,000	90⅝
1,000	97⅝	Wis Cent gen 4s
		10,000	86⅛

Total sales $2,179,000

COLORADO MINING STOCKS.

Special to The New York Times.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Jan. 5.—Gardner & Co. report closing quotations as follows:

	Saturday. Bid.	Asked.	Friday. Bid.	Asked.
Acacia	28½	28¾	28¾	28⅝
Alamo	11	12	11	11¾
Argentum	27	28	27	28
Anaconda	41	42½	44½	45
Anchoria	95	100	95	100
Battle Mountain	22	22½	21¾	22
Blue Bell	14¼	14½	14¼	14½
C. C. Cons	12¾	12½	12½	12¾
C., C. & M	9	9½	9⅝	10
Columbine Victor	10⅜	11	10⅝	11½
Coriolanus	18⅜	18⅝	18¼	18⅝
Dante	9	9½	9	9½
Damon	15¾	15⅞	15⅞	16
Doctor Jackpot Con.	98	99	97	99
Elkton	186¾	187½	188	189
El Paso	50	50½	50¾	51
Findlay	12¼	12½	12	12½
Golden Fleece	23	25	23	25
Gibson	20	22	20	22
Gold King	100	102	100	102
Gold Knob	11¼	11⅝	11	11½
Gold Coin	450	550	450	550
Gold Dollar	24½	24⅝	25	25½
Garfield	7	9	7	9
Gold Sovereign	8	8¾	8¾	8¼
Gould	31	32	31½	35
Hart	16	17	15½	17
Ida May	23	24	23	24
Ingham	21¾	22	21½	21¾
Isabella	69¾	69¾	69	69¾
Independence	35	36	35	36½
Jackpot	69	71	70	73
Keystone	12½	15	13	15
Last Dollar	65	70	65	70
Lexington	12¾	12¾	12	12½
Mount Rosa	39	42	39	41
Matoa	14	20	15	20
Mary Cashen	12¾	12½	12	12½
Mona Anchor	29	30	29	30
National	10	10¾	10	10¾
New Haven	8	8½	8⅜	8¾
Nugget	23	25	23	24
Ophir	35	40	35	40
Orphan	15	15½	15	15½
Pharmacist	9	9½	9	9¼
Pinnacle	17	18	17	18
Portland	335	340	335	340
Rose Nicol	11	11½	11¼	11½
Rawlings	19	20	19	20
Vindicator	125	128	120	129
Work	20½	21¾	20¾	21½

MINING STOCK QUOTATIONS.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 5.—The official closing quotations for mining stocks to-day and yesterday were as follows:

	Saturday.	Friday.
Alta	.05	.05
Alpha Con	.02	.03
Andes	.09	.08
Belcher	.11	.11
Best & Belcher	.33	.32
Bullion	.03	.02
Caledonia	.78	.65
Challenge Con	.20	.18
Chollar	.21	.20
Confidence	.60	.60
Con. Cal. & Va	2.45	2.35
Con. Imperial	.01	.01
Crown Point	.12	.12
Gould & Curry	.56	.52
Hale & Norcross	.20	.20
Julia	.01	.01
Justice	.02	.02
Kentucky Con	.01	.01
Lady Washington Con	.03	.03
Mexican	.44	.42
Occidental Con	.02	.03
Ophir	.82	.85
Overman	.15	.15
Potosi	.19	.19
Savage	.22	.19
Sag Belcher	.02	.02
Sierra Nevada	.37	.39
Standard	3.60	3.60
Syndicate	.11	.11
St. Louis	.06	.06
Union Con	.35	.32
Utah Con	.06	.05
Yellow Jacket	.20	.17
Silver bars	63¾	63¾
Mexican dollars	50⅛ @ 50¾	50⅛ @ 50¾
Drafts, sight	.15	.15
Telegraph	.17½	.17½

NEW CORPORATIONS.

George Hauck & Sons Brewing Company of Kingston; capital, $30,000. Directors—George Hauck, John L. Hauck, Adam Hauck, Kingston.

East Venice Hall Association of East Venice, Cayuga County; capital, $500. Directors—L. O. Taylor, D. R. Kimball, and R. L. Doty, East Venice.

Tioga Dairy Company of Tioga Centre, Tioga County; capital, $5,500. Directors—J. C. Lattimer, Frank Smith, and W. D. Stitter, Tioga Centre.

Bennett Cigar and Tobacco Company of Oneida, Madison County; capital, $5,000. Directors—J. E. Bennett, R. A. Hill, and G. W. Lounsbury, Oneida.

World's Life Protecting Car Fender Company of Brooklyn; capital, $20,000. Directors—Montgomery Queen, H. D. House, and George Haring, Brooklyn.

New York Bag Company of New York City, to deal in leather goods; capital, $20,000. Directors—Adolph Lowry, Leopold Lowry, and Adolph Bechs, New York City.

Pioneer Development Company of Buffalo, to conduct concessions at fairs; capital, $10,000. Directors—Nelson S. Hallett, A. G. Striker, and F. T. McDonald, Buffalo.

Writers' Press Association of New York City, to publish books, papers, and periodicals and to disseminate news in the form of biographical and character sketches of prominent and successful people to the principal newspapers of the United States; capital, $1,000. Directors—William J. Hartford, Harry L. Sparrow, and Daniel E. O'Brien, New York City.

NEW YORK CLEARING HOUSE BANK STATEMENT.

The following is the New York Clearing House bank statement in detail:

*Capital.	*N't Pr'f't's	Banks.	Loans.	Specie.	Legals.	Deposits.	Cir'l't'n.
$2,000,000	$2,074,300	Bk. N.Y.,N.B.A.	$15,028,000	$2,874,000	$980,000	$14,652,000	$499,800
2,050,000	2,114,400	Bk. of Man. Co.	13,724,000	3,713,000	2,304,000	22,692,000	.....
2,000,000	1,190,900	Merchants' Nat.	13,214,400	2,649,000	1,503,200	15,447,400	.....
2,000,000	2,251,400	Mechanics' Nat.	11,406,000	2,131,000	573,000	11,650,000	.....
1,500,000	2,980,900	Bank of America	22,233,800	5,087,300	1,952,200	26,206,500	.....
1,000,000	241,300	Phenix National	4,408,000	1,374,000	146,000	4,899,000	48,900
10,000,000	5,490,300	National City	103,492,300	29,020,400	5,651,100	119,570,900	4,283,800
300,000	6,851,700	Chemical Nat.	24,070,200	4,851,100	2,225,900	24,402,500	.....
600,000	224,600	Mer. Exch. Nat.	5,004,900	1,128,100	567,800	5,911,800	45,900
1,000,000	1,873,300	Gallatin Nat.	8,138,700	835,800	885,200	9,304,700	987,400
300,000	85,500	Nat. Butch. & D.	1,082,600	317,900	55,000	1,248,100	43,900
400,000	124,800	Mech. & Traders'	2,474,000	357,000	265,000	2,798,000	.....
200,000	173,600	Greenwich	951,200	104,300	209,200	812,800	.....
600,000	496,100	Leath. Mfs. Nat.	4,744,300	3,145,500	375,300	7,067,000	488,700
300,000	216,400	Seventh Nat.	3,280,300	433,700	438,300	4,296,900	299,300
1,200,000	543,300	Bk. State N. Y.	4,639,600	230,800	234,100	3,915,200	.....
5,000,000	2,940,100	Am. Exch. Nat.	28,725,000	4,527,000	1,595,000	22,836,000	4,944,000
10,000,000	6,936,000	Nat. Bk. of Com.	63,241,800	4,419,600	5,869,100	49,155,700	7,537,500
1,000,000	1,603,900	Nat. Broadway	5,819,500	960,800	298,100	4,501,600	199,200
1,000,000	1,239,200	Mercantile Nat.	13,120,400	1,826,300	1,543,400	13,402,300	994,000
422,700	484,700	Pacific	2,719,100	217,400	508,600	3,544,100	.....
1,500,000	1,140,800	Nat. Bk. of Rep.	16,867,100	4,298,700	979,700	18,828,500	1,452,500
450,000	994,500	Chatham Nat.	5,910,100	908,800	949,800	6,038,300	50,000
200,000	337,300	People's	1,944,700	225,300	700,900	2,895,300	.....
1,000,000	734,900	Nat. Bk. of N. A.	11,671,700	2,179,800	914,100	12,307,700	732,600
3,000,000	5,178,900	Hanover Nat.	46,248,600	8,732,300	4,466,500	50,004,700	2,740,100
500,000	453,100	Irving Nat.	4,257,000	357,600	575,500	4,502,300	240,300
600,000	407,200	Nat. Citizen's	3,136,500	741,600	212,800	3,464,800	296,500
500,000	274,900	Nassau	2,815,300	441,300	284,100	3,402,500	.....
300,000	1,647,500	Mark. & F. Nat.	6,243,000	1,109,300	776,700	6,024,000	231,800
1,000,000	206,800	Nat. Shoe & L.	3,762,400	858,700	193,200	4,153,200	50,000
1,400,000	1,807,200	Corn Exchange	18,737,000	3,480,000	2,089,000	22,260,000	.....
1,000,000	518,400	Continental Nat.	4,367,300	1,134,000	494,200	6,462,900	338,400
500,000	401,000	Oriental	2,053,000	181,000	555,000	2,241,000	.....
1,500,000	6,107,800	Imp. & T. Nat.	24,267,000	5,160,000	991,000	23,153,000	49,300
2,000,000	3,568,600	National Park	44,697,000	12,480,000	3,453,000	56,321,000	49,300
250,000	161,100	East River Nat.	1,239,100	333,100	212,700	1,588,000	50,000
3,000,000	2,467,400	Fourth Nat.	23,209,300	4,106,300	2,165,000	24,749,200	50,000
1,000,000	557,500	Central Nat.	9,208,000	2,610,000	1,298,000	13,270,000	90,000
200,000	888,700	Second Nat.	9,212,000	1,544,000	1,020,000	10,244,000	290,600
750,000	66,800	Ninth Nat.	2,987,500	748,000	227,500	3,566,300	49,400
500,000	9,220,600	First Nat.	37,991,300	7,425,900	1,775,500	37,535,300	495,900
300,000	109,500	N. Y. Nat. Ex.	2,918,700	622,000	332,500	3,102,900	257,400
250,000	724,700	Bowery	3,289,000	385,000	387,000	3,675,000	.....
200,000	386,600	N. Y. Co. Nat.	3,173,700	614,200	207,200	3,996,900	50,000
750,000	390,000	Ger.-American	3,788,300	797,300	263,400	3,841,000	.....
1,000,000	2,110,500	Chase National	35,564,100	9,647,100	1,891,400	43,132,100	800,000
100,000	1,326,700	Fifth Avenue	8,514,600	2,055,100	450,100	9,561,900	.....
200,000	638,900	German Exch.	2,280,200	245,200	993,800	3,630,500	.....
200,000	818,500	Germania	2,888,500	403,700	638,900	4,387,800	.....
300,000	919,700	Lincoln National	11,505,900	2,101,800	1,598,900	13,834,800	240,700
300,000	1,025,200	Garfield National	6,619,500	1,514,800	518,100	7,564,200	49,800
200,000	348,000	Fifth Avenue	2,118,200	440,200	142,800	2,187,500	191,500
300,000	1,018,200	Bk. of the Met.	7,035,300	1,238,200	550,900	7,562,500	.....
200,000	426,400	West Side	2,677,000	342,000	369,000	2,927,000	.....
500,000	813,800	Seaboard Nat'l	13,156,000	2,369,000	1,490,000	15,821,000	470,000
2,100,000	1,871,700	Western Nat'l	33,352,000	8,233,200	2,257,100	39,855,800	50,000
500,000	1,000,900	1st Nat., B'klyn	4,114,000	454,000	708,000	4,396,000	75,000
500,000	694,100	Liberty National	6,675,900	1,389,200	425,000	6,856,300	495,000
1,000,000	379,200	N. Y. Pro. Ex.	4,002,300	591,900	332,500	3,786,300	.....
250,000	414,800	Bank of N. Am.	4,781,400	572,600	739,400	5,427,200	.....
350,000	296,400	Astor National	4,234,200	859,300	249,700	4,449,000	320,000
500,000	325,100	Hide & L. Nat.	2,801,700	679,600	59,400	2,328,300	380,000
62,800,000	$76,872,500	Total, Nat. bks.
11,422,700	15,385,000	Total, State bks.
74,222,700	92,257,500	Total	563,039,600	164,827,300	67,059,800	870,950,100	20,982,500

*As per official reports: 44 National Banks, Dec. 13, 1900; 19 State Banks, Dec. 4, 1900.

STATUS OF NEW YORK CITY NON-MEMBER BANKS.

[SPECIALLY COMPILED BY THE NEW YORK TIMES.]

The following is the statement in detail for the week ended Jan. 5, of a majority of the banks not members of the Clearing House Association, but which clear through some of its members, the figures having been obtained direct from the banks by THE NEW YORK TIMES:

Banks.	Capital.	Loans.	Specie.	Legals.	Deposits with Clearing House Agent.	Deposits with other Banks and Trust Comp'nies.	Net Deposits.
N. Y. CITY, Borough of Manhattan.
Colonial	$100,000	$1,437,261.00	$36,345.00	$128,887	$171,269.00	.....	$1,601,178.00
Columbia	300,000	1,984,000.00	156,000.00	100,000	195,000.00	$203,000.00	2,248,000.00
Eleventh Ward	100,000	1,651,441.63	40,133.66	55,411	283,810.51	.....	1,307,189.09
Fourteenth St.	100,000	1,201,600.00	55,500.00	64,900	205,500.00	.....	1,446,200.00
Gansevoort	200,000	680,515.15	4,450.77	22,222	73,925.55	61,154.12	683,177.51
Hamilton	200,000	1,202,400.00	95,300.00	95,300	79,200.00	.....	1,412,200.00
Mount Morris	250,000	2,170,600.00	125,800.00	99,700	157,000.00	51,500.00	2,662,400.00
Mutual	200,000	1,876,109.15	42,691.98	119,451	163,969.69	232.32	1,389,637.86
19th Ward	100,000	1,393,331.00	21,587.00	140,180	244,347.00	5,118.00	1,826,328.00
Plaza	100,000	2,276,000.00	135,000.00	127,000	248,000.00	.....	2,378,000.00
Riverside	100,000	957,444.92	14,019.01	59,011	91,201.24	.....	965,335.89
State	200,000	3,057,000.00	304,000.00	138,000	165,000.00	230,000.00	3,678,000.00
Twelfth Ward	200,000	1,153,200.00	57,800.00	204,400	86,400.00	13,000.00	1,646,800.00
Union Square	200,000	2,083,466.80	55,978.28	249,437	450,216.33	.....	2,791,443.41
Washington	100,000	425,726.92	8,829.00	22,615	40,680.00	4,926.81	396,007.60
Yorkville	100,000	1,465,100.00	58,100.00	115,100	124,200.00	10,000.00	1,504,400.00
Borough of Brooklyn.
Bedford	150,000	1,070,707.00	15,051.00	86,010	154,665.00	100,000.00	1,206,890.00
Broadway	100,000	1,454,735.41	18,872.79	92,093	330,380.99	.....	1,679,719.40
Eighth Ward	100,000	334,800.00	13,400.00	24,300	49,500.00	1,000.00	293,800.00
Fifth Avenue	100,000	604,500.00	30,400.00	27,200	67,300.00	25,400.00	656,700.00
Mfrs.' Nat.	252,000	2,601,000.00	318,700.00	207,800	491,400.00	.....	3,343,400.00
Mech. & Trad.	100,000	985,348.01	19,884.00	55,238	85,907.41	8,128.13	903,321.01
Merchants'	100,000	575,600.00	6,900.00	38,400	27,100.00	.....	514,500.00
Nassau National	300,000	3,800,000.00	150,000.00	255,000	675,000.00	26,000.00	4,318,000.00
National City	300,000	2,552,000.00	150,000.00	316,000	416,000.00	155,000.00	3,094,000.00
North Side	100,000	922,188.62	13,204.11	52,714	35,981.12	8,093.44	831,360.67
People's	100,000	842,000.00	44,860.00	71,600	33,800.00	79,200.00	809,600.00
17th Ward	100,000	467,717.00	11,462.00	12,709	68,967.00	45,232.00	445,930.00
Schermerhorn	200,000	597,201.00	13,937.00	27,850	97,408.00	15,183.00	602,980.00
Sprague Nat.	200,000	1,095,600.00	107,200.00	10,000	265,000.00	228,000.00	1,298,000.00
26th Ward	100,000	474,893.00	18,770.00	27,933	38,834.00	4,979.00	451,704.00
Union	100,000	561,925.00	24,777.00	47,555	56,565.00	34,600.00	610,259.00
Wallabout	100,000	727,600.00	44,200.00	12,000	46,800.00	49,700.00	732,800.00
Borough of Richmond.
Bank of S. I.	25,000	542,300.00	16,470.00	20,615	127,425.00	24,260.00	650,900.00
First Nat., S. I.	100,000	720,237.41	31,329.00	17,000	100,078.61	.....	690,000.63
JERSEY CITY.
First National	400,000	5,100,700.00	260,300.00	224,400	1,023,200.00	318,500.00	6,596,700.00
Hudson County	250,000	2,002,497.00	93,935.00	77,457	370,587.00	150,174.00	2,054,764.00
Second Nat.	250,000	1,255,500.00	88,000.00	18,700	329,100.00	.....	1,254,400.00
Third Nat.	200,000	939,770.63	41,511.63	52,505	136,590.28	64,916.29	957,331.72
HOBOKEN.
First National	110,000	2,038,800.00	128,800.00	27,200	143,800.00	65,600.00	1,793,200.00
Second Nat.	125,000	881,341.00	52,556.00	32,130	77,500.00	15,900.00	903,100.00

GLASSWARE MEN COMBINE.

Twenty Manufacturers Said to Have Signed Agreement in Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 5.—A number of glassware manufacturers of Pennsylvania and the Eastern States have held daily meetings here within the past week, looking to a combination in the trade. Joseph P. Whitney of the Whitney Glass Works is said to be the leader of the movement. Twenty of the largest concerns are said to have signed an agreement regulating the business.

The signers are the large bottle, demijohn, and goblet manufacturers of the United States, and the combination is to stop the fight in prices and to establish uniform rates for the different grades of products in this line. A joint effort, it is said, will be made to get the Southern and Western freight carriers to make a reduced traffic rate, and to guard against competition tending toward cut rates of all glassware manufactured by the firms in the combination.

The concerns thus far in the combination represent more than $20,000,000, and if all the big firms join, $50,000,000 will be represented.

ROBERT W. ELLIOTT RESIGNS.

Hudson County Gas Company's General Manager Financially Embarrassed.

Considerable surprise was created in financial circles in Jersey City yesterday by the announcement that Robert W. Elliott, General Manager of the Hudson County Gas Company, had resigned. No reason was given, but later it was announced that Mr. Elliott was financially embarrassed.

It was learned that he was indebted to Christ Hospital, of which he is Treasurer, in the sum of $5,000, and that he had given a chattel mortgage on his furniture, at 34 Bentley Avenue, including nine valuable paintings, to secure the payment of the money within a week. It was also learned that the Carteret Building and Loan Association had begun foreclosure proceedings against Mr. Elliott, on account of two mortgages, one on his dwelling and one on 134 Bentley Avenue, occupied by his brothers. The necessary payment on the latter was made yesterday by Mr. Elliott's relatives, and a brief extension in the other case was given to him.

Mr. Elliott's troubles are due to the fact that he has made large advances to his brothers and to Dr. Stockton of East Orange, his father-in-law, who is heavily interested in the Sterling Manufacturing Company of Newark, which recently became involved and of which Judge Guild was appointed receiver. Mr. Elliott has been connected with the gas company since 1885.

COAST STEAMER WRECKED.

The Iaqua Fast on the Duxbuy Reef Near San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 5.—In some unexplained manner the coast steamer Iaqua, which left this port yesterday for San Diego, with seventeen persons aboard—two passengers and a crew of fifteen men—ran upon the Duxbury reef twenty miles north of this port last night.

Only one life was lost, that of a sailor, who was killed trying to land with a small boat. The remaining sixteen persons were still aboard the wreck this morning, but rescue was momentarily expected through the life savers en route to the scene in a tug from this city. The steamer lies in an upright position on the reef, with the marooned sailors lashed to the works.

It is believed the steamer will be a total loss.

LEGAL NOTES.

PROXIMATE CAUSE OF AN EXTRAORDINARY ACCIDENT.—While a boat of the Forty-second Street and Weehawken Ferry was entering the slip, on the New Jersey side, it struck with such violence against the north side of the rack of the slip that Stephen Cash, Jr., a boy six years old, who, with his mother and child slater, was a passenger, was thrown to the deck flat upon his back. The boat careened so that the side upon which the boy was standing was lower than the other side, and in some manner he slipped through the opening space, called a cleat, and the tip of his foot was caught between the vessel and the slip. He was so injured that the foot had to be amputated between the ankle and the knee. In a suit brought by the boy's guardian against the New York Central and Hudson River Railroad Company, the owner of the ferry, for damages, the mother testified that the hard blow which was caused by the boat striking the slip threw the passengers forward against the boy, and he fell, breaking his hold of her hand. In appealing to the Appellate Division from the judgment on a verdict in favor of the boy the railroad company claimed that, even though its negligence be conceded, that was not the proximate cause of the accident; that it was not the blow that threw the boy down, but the surging of the people against him. Justice Hatch, giving the unanimous opinion of the Appellate Division, upholding the judgment below, says upon this point: "This was a question of fact for the jury, and it would be equally a proximate cause if the force of the blow caused the people to lose their equilibrium and fall against the boy, when, by proper management of the boat, this would not have occurred. The blow was followed by the swaying of the people; as a natural consequence, the fall of the boy followed in continuous succession, and one was so linked with the other as to cause a natural whole. The producing cause of the whole was the blow, and it is, therefore, the proximate cause. What the boy did after the fall in the endeavor to regain his feet cannot be held to be either an act of negligence or as destructive of the act of the defendant as a proximate cause. An instinctive effort to avoid danger does not avail to shield a wrongdoer responsible for the position in which the person has been placed, unless such act was utterly inexcusable and unjustifiable."

STREET CAR PASSENGERS ON FRONT PLATFORMS.—The Metropolitan Street Railway Company has failed in its appeal to the Appellate Division from judgment recovered against it by Robert Lucas, in a suit for damages from personal injuries. The case illustrates the responsibility of street railroad companies for accidents to passengers while standing upon platforms of cars. The testimony on either side was in direct contradiction as to what occurred. Lucas and his two witnesses testified that on boarding a crowded north-bound car at Thirtieth Street, on May 2, 1898, he remained on the front platform, where other passengers were standing. The conductor, on collecting the fares, made no objection to his remaining there. No warning was given of the approach of the car to the curve at Fifty-third Street, nor was its speed slackened. The care went around the curve at a "terrible speed," in consequence of which his hands were wrenched from the rail upon which he was holding, and he was thrown from the car to the street. The testimony for the defendant was that the car was not full; that warning was given to the pasengers as the car rounded the curve at no more than the usual rate of speed, and they were advised to "hold fast." Justice McLaughlin, giving the unanimous opinion of the Appellate Division, says that the jury, to whom the questions of fact were fairly presented, having found for the plaintiff, the verdict cannot be disturbed. "The defendant having permitted the plaintiff to go upon its car and taken his fare, obligated itself to exercise extraordinary care to transport him to the point of his destination without injury. It could not expose him to unreasonable danger, even though he stood upon the platform of the car. When it was about to run its car around the curve at the speed set out in the record, it owed the plaintiff a duty of informing him of the fact or indicating to him in some way that he must exercise at that point increased care for his own safety."

INJURIES FROM A FALLING BRICK.—Alexander Jack, a boy about eight years old, while playing upon some sand in the street, was struck by a brick which came from a building then being constructed. In a suit brought by the boy's guardian against Grace L. McCabe, as administratrix of William J. McGinley, who erected the front walls of the building and built the scaffold for that purpose, the child testified that he did not see the brick that struck him, nor did he know where it came from; but another witness said he heard the brick come tumbling down the scaffold. The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court has reversed a judgment given on the verdict of a jury for $5,000 in favor of the boy. Justice Ingraham, giving the opinion, concurred in by Presiding Justice Van Brunt and Justice McLaughlin, says the case is controlled by that of Wolf against the American Tract Society, where the accident was caused by the fall of a brick in the

SUNDAY, THREE CENTS. DAILY, ONE CENT.

"All the News That's Fit to Print."

The New York Times.

THE WEATHER. Occasional rains, brisk southwesterly winds.

COPYRIGHT, 1901, BY THE NEW YORK TIMES COMPANY.

VOL. L...NO. 15,912. NEW YORK, MONDAY, JANUARY 7, 1901.—Twelve Pages and Supplement. ONE CENT In Greater New York, Jersey City, and Newark. Elsewhere, TWO CENTS.

CAPE COLONY DUTCH IN THE BOER RANKS

One Burgher Commando Is Led by Colonials.

It Is Feared First Slight Victory of Invaders May Be Signal for a Dutch Rising.

LONDON, Jan. 6.—This morning's news from Cape Town is again unsatisfactory. Martial law has been proclaimed at Malmesbury, and would have been proclaimed in other districts but that the Cabinet meeting called Saturday was unable to agree as to its advisability.

The vagueness of the information concerning the movements and position of the invaders has sent a fresh cold fit over the Colonists, and Cape Town calls loudly for strong reinforcements from England on the ground that the greater part of Lord Kitchener's available force is employed in protecting the lines of communication and the Rand mines, the latter extending for a distance of fifty miles.

It is asserted by one Cape Town correspondent that unless the forces in Cape Colony are increased a most undesirable state of affairs may result, as the success in arms of the invaders, however slight, might be the signal for a Dutch rising. As it is, many British residents have had to leave the Dutch villages near Cape Town, their lives being unbearable.

According to a native report, a hundred men, either Boers or local farmers, have just passed through Clanwilliam District in the direction of Malmesbury.

The Cape Town correspondent of The Daily Mail, who calls for 40,000 fresh troops, says:

"Prominent Afrikander loyalists declare that the rebellious colonists will construe the colonial call to arms as a challenge, and that the ominous silence of the pro-rebels, combined with the fact that members of the pro-Boer junta in Cape Town have been touring in the disaffected districts, emphasizes the necessity for martial law. The necessity was never more acute for dispatching reinforcements. Already there is proof that colonials are leading one commando."

The military movements reported are quite unimportant, though Portugal is sending reinforcements to Lorenzo Marques.

Dr. Leyds, according to The Hague correspondent of The Daily Mail, is recruiting in Holland, Belgium, France, and Germany, and his recruits will be sent out to Namaqualand, ostensibly as emigrants, each man receiving £50 down on starting.

The Cape Town correspondent of The Times, who confirms the reports of the multiplicity of the Boer commandoes, says:

"Nearly five-sixths of the British troops are employed to guard the lines of communications and to garrison towns, leaving a very small number, partly unmounted, to pursue the enemy. Large reinforcements are advisable, and these would be cheaper in the end.

"The damage which the Boers did to the Kleinfontein mine is officially estimated at £210,000."

In a letter to The Times this morning the Earl of Dunraven, emphasizing the "very grave situation in South Africa," warns the country to distrust the opinions of experts on the spot, and to be ready for the unexpected. He complains of the "inertia of the authorities," and urges the necessity of large reinforcements.

NO HYPNOTIZED CRIMINALS.

A Person Cannot Be Forced to Do Wrong, Prof. Angell Says.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 6.—For a conscienscious person to do anything morally wrong while in a hipnotic trance is quite impossible, according to Prof. J. R. Angell. In a lecture at the Fine Arts Building, he said that many cases had been brought up in the courts in which it was alleged that hypnotic powers were directly responsible for wrong or criminal act. He did not believe this view could be sustained in any ordinary case. He made a strong appeal for laws prohibiting the practice of hypnotism except for medical or scientific purposes.

"The idea is often expressed that people with weak wills or abnormal minds are the most easily susceptible to the influence of hypnotism," he continued. "This statement can be refuted when it is taken into consideration that idiots, insane people, and very young children cannot be subjected to the influence. The fact remains that it requires considerable mental ability to focus the mind and control curiosity so that the condition of acting at the will of the operator can be obtained."

W. C. CARNEGIE'S HOME BURNED.

Fine Place on Cumberland Island, Fla., Destroyed—Loss Over $60,000.

Special to The New York Times.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Jan. 6.—The fine home of W. C. Carnegie at Stafford Place, on Cumberland Island was destroyed by fire late yesterday afternoon. The residence was of old English architecture and richly furnished throughout, the furnishings alone costing $50,000. Very little was saved, especially on the first floor, where the library, parlor, drawing rooms, &c., were situated. The loss to the owner is estimated between $60,000 and $75,000. The cause of the fire is unknown, but as it occurred late in the afternoon when members of the family were around the estate it is not believed that it was of incendiary origin. The owner was on his golf links when the alarm was given.

W. C. Carnegie is a son of Mrs. Lucie Carnegie, whose estate at Dungenness, five miles distant, is one of the finest in the South. He is a nephew of Andrew Carnegie, and has a National reputation as a golf expert. The Stafford Place links are among the most famous in the State. It was on these links that young Thomas Hutchinson of Scotland, the professional golfer, was thrown from his pony and killed six weeks ago. Hutchinson was Mr. Carnegie's private trainer.

TO-DAY, TWELVE PAGES, WITH FINANCIAL REVIEW AND QUOTATION SUPPLEMENT.

INDEX TO DEPARTMENTS.

Amusements.—Page 7.
Arrivals at Hotels and Out-of-Town Buyers.—Page 3.
Court Calendars.—Page 8.
Marine Intelligence and Foreign Mail.—Page 9.
Real Estate.—Page 11.
Weather Report.—Page 3.
Yesterday's Fires.—Page 3.

GOV. ODELL'S ECONOMY PLAN.

Each Legislator to Have But One Appointment—Much Dissatisfaction at Albany.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 6.—It is a foregone conclusion that there will be greater dissatisfaction than usual on Wednesday night when the Legislative appointments are announced. The order of economy suggested by Gov. Odell in his message has been promulgated by Chairman Dunn of the Republican State Committee, and is in effect that no legislator shall have more than one appointment, be he page boy at $2 a day or clerk at $1,500 to his credit this year.

The plan does not suit the legislators at all, especially those who come from strong Republican districts and expected several apointments, who must put up with the same treatment as a colleague who comes from a close district. Objection also comes from districts where the Republicans put up a stiff fight and lost, for they believe that they are entitled to some patronage for their expenditure of labor and money.

Despite all the scolding Chairman Dunn is obdurate, and the party managers are confident that with 105 members in the House and 35 in the Senate there will be no danger of a revolt, and that all the grumblers will be easily whipped into line.

SEVERE COLD IN EUROPE.

St. Petersburg Schools Closed—Snowfall in Rome—Deaths in Paris.

LONDON, Jan. 7.—Severe cold has suddenly set in throughout Europe. In England it is accompanied by a northeasterly wind, amounting to a gale over the Channel. At Dover a boat was capsized, four persons being drowned, and probably other accidents will be reported.

On the Continent the weather is still more severe. Snow has fallen as far south as Naples, and in St. Petersburg the cold is so intense that the police in the streets have had to be frequently relieved, and the schools to be closed. At Moscow the temperature is 30 degrees below zero, Fahrenheit.

Tremendous gales are blowing over the Adriatic. Terrible blizzards are reported from Austria and Southern Russia, extinguishing signal lights and resulting in the derailing of the Orient Express at Altpazau.

The storm caused a collision between passenger trains at Mikola, near Szatmar, Hungary, six persons being killed.

Nine people were frozen to death on a high road in Transylvania. Odessa is completely snowbound. The harbor is frozen over and trains are unable to enter or depart in consequence of the drifts.

PARIS, Jan. 6.—Severe cold is reported throughout France and Italy. A foot of snow fell at Marseilles last evening, and the mercury shows 18 degrees of frost in Paris to-day. There have been a number of deaths in the streets. Trains are greatly delayed.

Snow has fallen even in Southern Italy, and the city of Rome and surrounding country are snow-clad for the first time in many years. Crowds assembled on the Pincio to witness the rare panorama.

ANOTHER LETTER TO CUDAHY.

This One Contains an Offer to Give Information as to the Abductors —Its Terms Accepted.

OMAHA, Neb., Jan. 6.—A letter has been turned over to Chief Donahue of the Omaha Police Department in which an offer is made to deliver certain information to him regarding the abductors of Edward Cudahy, Jr., upon his compliance with certain conditions. The Chief and Mr. Cudahy evidently considered the letter authentic and of enough importance to justify a reply, because the following advertisement appeared in the colums of a local paper this morning.

"Your request asked for in letter mailed at Lincoln on Jan. 4, to be answered before Jan. 7, will be granted. E. A. Cudahy, J. A. Donahue."

Both Mr. Cudahy and Chief Donahue declined to-night to say what the contents of the letter were, or to refer to the conditions prescribed therein. It is stated that the letter is from a man who knows every man of the gang which kidnapped Eddie Cudahy.

Further, it is stated positively that the revelations to be made by the writer of the letter will involve a well-known man in this city who has been suspected, but against whom no positive evidence could be obtained.

The acceptance of the offer of the unknown writer leads to the belief that he has placed a price on his knowledge of the crime and has taken this means to protect himself from discovery, as he gave no address in his letter, advising an advertisement be inserted if his propositions were considered favorably.

TWO FIREMEN'S NARROW ESCAPE.

Paterson Chemical Engine in Collision with Trolley Car.

PATERSON, N. J., Jan. 6.—Two firemen narrowly escaped losing their lives last night while responding to an alarm for a small fire. The men are Louis Hasser, the driver, and Thomas Hallowell, a pipe man of Chemical Engine No. 1. The chemical was driven down Main Street by Hasser with George Muth in the seat with him, while Hallowell stood on the back step.

When the engine approached Broadway its wheels were within the tracks on Main Street, and as a trolley car stood near the corner, Hasser gave the horses a sharp pull to the right, hoping to swing his engine between the car and the curb. The front wheels cleared the tracks, but the hind ones stuck in between them. A collision was inevitable. Hasser held pluckily to his lines and gave the horses another quick jerk, but to no purpose. The rear of the engine crashed into the trolley car.

Both Hasser and Muth were strapped to their seats, but the force of the collision snapped the strap which held them in place and Hasser was thrown head first and with much force to the pavement. His head and shoulders struck squarely on the roadbed, but he wore a heavy fire helmet, which broke the force of the fall, and probably saved his life. He was slightly hurt about the shoulders. Hallowell was tossed against a ladder on the side of the engine nearest the trolley and bounded into the gutter, striking the back of his head against the curb. He escaped with a sprained thumb and a few bruises.

Muth braced himself on the front seat, and although his strap waa broken, he managed to stay on. The horses bounded down Main Street at a dangerous gait, but Muth, although he could not reach the lines, devoted his entire attention to a break, which he applied with all his strength. In their flight the horses dragged the engine against a farmer's wagon, slightly damaging the rear wheel. Muth stopped the horses at Hamilton Avenue.

Panic at a Mexican Bullfight.

Special to The New York Times.

AUSTIN, Texas, Jan. 6.—A dispatch from Monterey, Mexico, says that the bullfighting arena at San Luis Potosi was the scene to-day of another tragic exhibition of the brutal sport. While the fight was in progress one of the vicious bulls jumped the stone barrier that separates the fighting ring from the spectators. The animal landed in the midst of the crowd, and instantly charged upon the men, women, and children. The people fled for the exits panic-stricken. One persons waa killed and a number of othera were wounded.

Railway Prospects for the Century
Are indicated by the progressive strides of the Pennsylvania Railroad in improved operating methods and superior equipment.—Adv.

BIG LINER SMASHES LITTLE SCHOONER AT SEA

Kaiserin Maria Theresia Sweeps On, Ignorant of Pavia's Plight.

Puts Back When Distress Signals Are Shown and a Boat's Crew Effects a Gallant Rescue.

Six men, composing the crew of the little Nova Scotian schooner Pavia, three of them being part owners in the diminutive ocean-going craft, arrived in New York on the North German Lloyd liner Kaiserin Maria Theresia yesterday. Their ship is adrift on the high seas as a result of a smashing she received from the stern of the great liner last Tuesday morning.

They had set sail from their home on the La Have River, in Lunenburg County, Nova Scotia, a few days previous to the accident that made their desertion of the ship necessary, with a cargo of frozen herring for Boston. Shortly before 4 o'clock Tuesday morning Seaman Wanbeak, who was on watch, made out the mast lights of the liner. The rest of the men—Capt. E. V. Parks, Daniel Parks, his brother; Gabriel Parks, the steward, his cousin; and Ulrich and Victor Smidt—were below and had no idea of the impending danger until the warning cry of "She will be into us!" brought them all hurrying up the hatchways to ascertain the cause of the alarm.

The great steamship was heading for them at full speed and the torch that had been lighted, but which only flickered slightly, was wildly waved from the stern of the schooner by Wanbeak. The signal of danger was sighted by the Kaiserin's watch just as she was about to crash into the smaller vessel, and the engineers were instantly signaled to starboard the helm of the liner. As quick as a flash the command was executed and the Kaiserin sheered off in time to prevent running down the sailing vessel, but not to prevent dealing a death blow to her with her helm. The liner swept on, her officers having no idea that they had touched the Pavia, the concussion not having been felt on the larger vessel.

The Kaiserin was three or four miles away and logging at a seventeen-knot rate when her watch made out a dim blue light —the marine signal of distress—astern, and informed Capt. Richter that there was evidently something the matter with the schooner. The Kaiserin then reversed and steamed back to the schooner, to find that her helm had crushed in the Pavia's port side, carrying away the rigging, dislocating and rendering useless and beyond repair the forestaysail, and otherwise damaging the schooner to such an extent as to render her absolutely helpless and at the mercy of the rough seas then prevailing.

Capt. Richter ordered lifeboat 5, with Second Officer Tonni and six men, to be lowered and the rescue of the crew attempted. But when the boat splashed into the water the sailors were unable to get away from the side of the Kaiserin, the seas being too high and rough, and the boat with its crew was once more hoisted aboard, and Capt. Richter gave orders that the Kaiserin lay by till morning, when the rescue would again be attempted.

Morning dawned shortly, and the boat with Officer Tonni and his original crew was again let down, and after several attempts managed to get away and headed for the drifting schooner. When the rescuers came up under the little ship the Pavia's men were ordered to jump for the boat, which they lost no time in doing, and rescuers and rescued were soon on board the liner, where the rescuers were congratulated by the passengers and officers for the dispatch and efficiency with which they had fulfilled their errand of mercy. The rescued crew were taken below and warm North German Lloyd blouses and trousers were given them to replace the wet and frozen clothes they wore.

Capt. Parks yesterday was much depressed over the loss of his vessel, of which he was a principal owner, but spoke only in the highest terms of his rescuers, especially Capt. Richter, who, he said, had left nothing undone to help him.

Capt. Parks and his men lost everything they had on the vessel, including, he says, several hundred dollars in money. A Newfoundland dog nmed "Watch" was forgotten in the excitement, and tears welled into the Captain's eyes as he reproached himself for leaving the animal to its fate. "Some one may investigate the wreck, though," he said, hopefully, "and take poor Watch off."

Capt. Richter of the Kaiserin Maria Theresia said that the passengers made up a handsome purse for the rescued men and also for the Kaiserin's sailors who manned the resulting boat. To Officer Tonni they presented a gold watch.

The wrecked schooner was a vessel of 97 tons, and was insured, Capt. Parks said, for about half her actual value.

MRS. PRUNIER'S VERDICT.

Judgment of $15,000 Against Mrs. Lillian Ash Campbell Affirmed.

Special to The New York Times.

BURLINGTON, Vt., Jan. 6.—Mrs. Frederick J. Prunier has received news that the United States Court of Appeals has confirmed the verdict of $15,000 awarded her in the lower court against Mrs. Lillian Ash Campbell of Fishkill for alienation of her husband's affections.

MRS. LEASE TO STOP LECTURING.

Will Withdraw Divorce Suit and Live in Kansas with Her Husband.

Special to The New York Times.

TOPEKA, Kan., Jan. 6.—Mrs. Mary E. Lease has written friends at Topeka from New York that she will withdraw her suit for divorce and return to Kansas to live with her husband.

She quits the lecture field and will devote the remainder of her life to an endeavor to make a happy home for her husband and children.

READY TO WELCOME BRYAN.

Chicago Democrats Plan a Greeting on His Arrival Tuesday.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 6.—Preparation for welcoming William J. Bryan, who is to attend the banquet to be given at the Sherman House, Tuesday night, by the League which bears his name, were made to-day by several members of organizationa in the city. It has been planned to make the affair a big one and 4,000 of his followers in this city are expected to greet him. There will be no friction in the effort to do the Nebraskan homage, and all who cast a vote for him are invited to call on their leader.

A large delegation of Democrats will await his arrival here. His reception will be enthusiastic. Mr. Bryan will be presented to the Democrats at their Cook County headquarters, where a levee will be held that is expected to exceed the feast at the Sherman House as far as the number of men that will shake hands with Mr. Bryan is concerned. Mayor Harrison, it is expected, will be at the railroad station to greet Mr. Bryan.

Royal Blue Line to be Kept Up.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Jan. 6.—President Cowen of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad tonight stated that the deal between the Reading and Jersey Central Railroads will not in the least affect the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad's connection with New York. The latter, he says, has for many years had a traffic arrangement with both the Reading and Jersey Central, and the present conditions will not be changed under the new management.

En Route to California.
The Pennsylvania Limited between New York and Chicago affords excellent facilities for transcontinental travelers.—Adv.

The ANNUAL FINANCIAL SUPPLEMENT,

TWO PARTS.

Part I.—32 pages.

Part II.—8 pages.

Accompanies this issue of

The New York Times

IT CONTAINS:

Elaborate tables of quotations for listed and unlisted securities for the past year;

The incorporations for 1900;

A series of authoritative special articles on finance, trade, agriculture, and commerce;

A review of the world's outlook in business;

Special reports on trade prospects from different cities of this country;

The year's promise in foreign lands as it affects American business and opportunity, and

The past week's quotations.

MUTINY OF CHINESE TROOPS.

Feng-Tse-Tsai Sent Into Kan-su to Suppress Tung Fuh Hsiang and 14,000 Rebels.

LONDON, Jan. 7.—"Reports have been received here from Sian-Fu," says the Shanghai correspondent of The Standard, "that Gen. Tung Fuh Hsiang's 14,000 troops have mutinied at Ku-Yuen-Chou, in the Province of Kan-Su, and that Gen. Feng-Tse-Tsai's army has been sent from the Province of Yun-Nan to suppress the rebellion."

SHANGHAI, Jan. 6.—It is reported from Sian-Fu that the Empress Dowager has ordered Gen. Feng-Tse-Tsai, commander in the Province of Yun-Nan, to proceed with his army to the Yang-tse Valley, and from that section to move northward. His force is said to consist of 15,000 men, armed with modern weapons.

Count Von Waldersee, it is asserted, has arranged with Prince Ching and Li Hung Chang that the allied troops are not to operate in the prefectures of Shun-Te, Huang-Ping, and Ta-Ming, in the province of Chi-Li.

RUSSIA'S PLANS IN MANCHURIA.

LONDON, Jan. 7.—"The outlines of the Russo-Chinese agreement regarding Manchuria was settled with Li-Hung-Chang in December, 1899," says the Vienna correspondent of The Daily Telegraph, "and prior to that Russia had concluded treaties with the Emirs of Bokhara and Khiva and the Shah of Persia, arranging for neutrality or for military assistance in the event of difficulties arising between Russia and any Asiatic power. In fact, all the steps toward the practical acquisition of Manchuria had been carefully prepared."

Dr. Morrison wires from Peking to The Times that "China is now endeavoring to negotiate at St. Petersburg a revision of the Russo-Chinese Manchurian agreement."

The Vienna correspondent of The Daily Chronicle asserts that Russia, in her agreement with China, undertakes to defend the latter against any attack on her forts.

EFFORT TO CHANGE JOINT NOTE

LONDON, Jan. 7.—"Chang Chin Tung, the Wu-Chang Viceroy, wired the Chinese envoys strenuously urging them to delay the signing of the note," says Dr. Morrison, wiring to The Times yesterday from Peking, "until several clauses had been amended and that portion of the preamble had been expunged which charges the imperial Court with the responsibility for the attacks upon the legations.

"He further urged the imperial personages not to return to Peking, on the ground that the joint note permits the powers to maintain 10,000 troops between Peking and the sea.

"An imperial decree was issued to delay the affixing of signatures, but the Chinese plenipotentiaries replied that it was impossible to recall the assent already given."

British Expedition Returns.

PEKING, Jan. 6.—The British punitive force under Col. Tulloch, which left last Thursday for Kao-Li-Ying, from which place shots had been fired at a patrol, returned to-day to Peking. Col. Tulloch reports that he found Kao-Li-Ying submissive and that the officials had fled.

COMMERCE ON INLAND LAKES.

Tonnage for 1900 Will Exceed That of Any Previous Year—Record of the Larger Ports.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6.—The commerce of the great lakes for 1900 seems likely to show a larger tonnage movement than in any preceding year. Chicago was in the lead as a receiving port for hard coal, a total of 678,094 tons having been unloaded on her docks. Milwaukee ranks second, with receipts of 476,502 tons, and then come South Chicago and Duluth. About two-thirds of the hard coal moved was sent from Buffalo, the shipments from that port aggregating 1,208,727 tons. Erie, Penn., the only other shipping port of any prominence, moved 488,758 tons.

West Superior is at the head of the list of receiving ports for soft coal, with a record of 1,170,183 tons. Milwaukee comes second, with 726,044 tons, and Duluth is third.

There were transported by lake carriers up to Dec. 1, a total of 1,177,850 tons of flour. The heaviest shipments have been from Duluth, which sent out 331,449 tons, and from West Superior with a total of 322,590 tons. Of the entire shipment of flour 930,793 tons were unloaded at Buffalo.

Buffalo nearly monopolizes the unloading of the grain moved by lake vessels. The receipts at Buffalo aggregated to Dec. 1, a total of 43,814,019 bushels of wheat, 54,175,069 bushels of corn, 26,133,424 bushels of oats, and 9,412,457 bushels of barley.

In the shipment of iron ore two harbors will hold the year's record. Up to Dec. 1 Buffalo had shipped 3,652,236 tons, while Duluth had sent forward 3,570,787 tons, and Escanaba 2,876,298 tons. Ashtabula, one of the greatest ore unloading ports in the world, has receipts of 3,473,676 tons, and Cleveland a total of 3,036,717 tons. At Conneaut, Ohio, 2,388,293 tons were received, and at South Chicago, where the ore can be unloaded direct from vessels to furnaces, there were handled 2,022,292 tons.

Almost every port on the upper lakes has this year made fairly heavy shipments of lumber, Duluth alone sending out 359,264,000 feet. Almost half of the total lumber movement was directed to either Chicago or Cleveland. The former city received 538,246,000 feet, and the latter port 430,320,000 feet.

Of the leaders in the movement of unclassed freight Buffalo shipped 647,645 tons, and Chicago 402,889 tons. Duluth had receipts of 793,909 tons, and Buffalo 652,872 tons.

BISHOP POTTER REBUKES THE SPIRIT OF CASTE

It Is the First Mischief Mixed in Our Lives, He Says.

Tells of a "Gutter-snipe" Who Became a Governor Saved by a Touch of Kindness When He Had Been Abandoned.

Bishop Potter preached a special sermon to men at the services last night under the auspices of St. George's Men's Club, in St. George's Church, Stuyvesant Square. Women were admitted only to the galleries of the church. Invitations had been sent to all the clubs and labor organizations in New York.

The sermon did not touch on the so-called vice crusade, as had been expected, and only once did Bishop Potter graze the subject of vice. This was when he said in the course of his remarks that not long ago a man had come to him to tell him that the clergy of New York were deficient in knowledge of the social problems agitating the city. Further than saying that he admitted this statement, Bishop Potter did not enter on the subject of purifying New York.

"If there is one thing harmful that exists," the Bishop said: "if there is a first mischief which is mixed within our lives, it is the spirit of caste which has gained foothold in our communities, neighborboods, churches and states. Caste, as it exists, a certain maligant contempt of others less fortunate and therefore less favorably treated by the world than ourselves. I wonder has this attitude of the human mind spread internationally, toward foreigners for instance. Do we scorn or belittle foreigners, perhaps, because they have a manner different from our own? If so, remember that the first offering to the Church of God came not from the hand within, but from pagan hands without. The fact that three pagans, aliens, came first of all to bring offerings ought to long ago to have put an end forever to the spirit of caste."

He was proud that two clergymen of his own Church, F. D. Maurice and Charles Kingsley, were the first men of modern times to strike against the spirit of caste, and for the brotherhood of men, in matters connected with the relations of capital and labor.

He added: "But with all the power of the Church we must remember that it is not so much in organization as in the individual that force is effective. That is the one thought that at this beginning of the year and of the century we need to be reminded. We are a nation given to organization, of capital and of labor, to mechanism, to combination. But however perfect may be our combination, it is only half of what is needed, and in it alone there is no note of hope.

"A year or two ago a gentleman came into my study and asked me about a certain relative of mine. I told him that good brother was dead. His countenance fell, and he said: 'I came across the continent to see him, and to thank him for what he did for me. My father was a longshoreman and a drunkard. He beat me, and I ran away, and lived as best I could. I was what you call, I believe, a "gutter snipe." One day, in the park, a gentleman put his hand on my shoulder and asked me what I was doing there. Through him and the Children's Aid Society I was sent to a good home in Indiana, and I finally got a college education.' And, he added modestly neough, 'I am now a Governor of a Western Territory.' And it is that personal touch on the shoulder, without which all the perfection of organization is as naught. We will never make New York what it ought to be without that personal touch."

EXPIRED IN A CAB.

S. J. Brown of Tuckahoe Found to be Dead by Friend Who Was with Him.

Special to The New York Times.

MOUNT VERNON, N. Y., Jan. 6.—Solomon J. Brown, fifty-one years of age, a well-known resident of Tuckahoe, died in a cab while being driven from Mount Vernon to his home in the former place at midnight last night. George Johnson, the driver, did not know that he had been driving a corpse until Tuckahoe had been reached, when a companion of Brown, who was riding home with him, attempted to assist him to the ground. Then he discovered that he was cold in death.

Policeman Reilly saw Brown assisted in the cab on North Fourth Avenue, and when he asked what was the matter he was told that Brown was ill.

Coroner Banning of Mount Vernon was notified and began an investigation. Dr. Dana of Bronxville, who was also called, said he believed that Brown had died of heart disease. The Coroner, however, will hold an inquest to-morrow.

TO BUILD NEW CLUBHOUSE.

Many Visitors at Ruins of New York Athletic's Travers Island Home.

Special to The New York Times.

MOUNT VERNON, N. Y., Jan. 6.—The Board of Governors and about 500 members of the New York Athletic Club inspected to-day the ruins of the Summer home of the club on Travers Island, which was destroyed by fire on Saturday, and discussed the plan of building a new clubhouse.

People visited Travers Island in motor vehicles, four-in-hands, and other traps, and many carried away a piece of a china plate or charred timber as a relic of the fire. Among the visitors were President John R. Van Wormer, Vice President Colfax, Fred Vilmar, Chief Mayhew W. Bronson of the Larchmont Fire Department, and many members of the Larchmont Yacht Club. The only treasure taken out of the ashes to-day by searchers was a pair of rare antique andirons which were in the main hallway.

It was learned to-day that the club proposes to immediately clear away the site of the old structure, so that the work of erecting a new clubhouse can be begun. Superintendent Kerwin says that the building will probably cost $100,000, and will be modern in all its appointments.

TELEGRAPH WIRE AT A BARGAIN.

Singer's $1 Purchase of Postal's Property Valued at $1,500.

The two miles of Postal Telegraph wire sold for unpaid taxes in Union Hill, N. J., to Charles Singer, was inspected by an expert engaged by the purchaser Saturday. Singer paid $1 for the wire. The expert valued it at $1,500. A bill of sale will be made out to-day, and formal demand will be made on the company to stop using the wire. Singer says he does not wish to cripple the company's service in the town, but that unless it pays for the use of the wire he will have it cut down and sold.

Warrants for the arrest of the officials of the company have been issued, and if they show face in Union Hill they will run chances of being taken into custody and held until the tax arrearage has been paid.

Shrinkage in Kansas Bank Deposits.

Special to The New York Times.

TOPEKA, Kan., Jan. 6.—Bank Commissioner Breidenthal says the close of the year shows a decrease in Kansas bank deposits, the first time in three years. The reason is the existence of car famine and consequent inability of farmers to market their wheat. The cars are in use in the South moving the great cotton crop.

RAMAPO STOCKHOLDERS' GRAB.

Mr. Coler Says They May Capture a Reform Committee for Their Own Purposes.

Controller Coler delivered an address last evening at St. Peter's Protestant Episcopal Church, State Street, Brooklyn, on "Public Office and the People."

"A Commissioner came into office when I did," said Mr. Coler, "succeeding the late George E. Waring. He resisted the pressure of a great organization to remove the men under him, notwithstanding the fact that the press and the public were against him. People said that the streets of New York were not as clean as before, although they were being cleaned by the same men. He resisted all the pressure brought to bear upon him and went to his grave a hero. I refer to James McCartney, Street Cleaning Commissioner.

"That man is great who can stand up against everything. With me it has not been difficult, because I have had the press and public with me at almost all times, but McCartney did not, and the only encouragement he received was when he called at my office or when I called on him.

"I am not an extremist against corporations or capital, but the time is coming when men in the financial world must stop making the earth their plaything. The worst citizen is the man who uses great knowledge and great wealth to take away the rights of the people for personal ends. I think the time is coming when the great franchises must come back into the hands of the people.

"On the various committees formed recently in New York, you will find few new names. On one reform committee are the names of two of the largest Ramapo stockholders, who are evidently on the committee to capture it for their own purposes.

"We cannot have any better government than the average intelligence of our citizens. You may put one boss out and another boss in, but you will not get a better government until you develop your individual citizen. I do not think there is a cosmopolitan city in the world which is in so good a state socially as New York. The wonder is not that it is so bad, but that it is not worse. The great problem of modern civilization is to be fought out in this city, State, and Nation, and you should give a public officer credit for doing a good thing, even if you disagree with him in politics. In New York we have many things which are a blot on civilization, but when we advertise them we should do it in a way that shall not bring them before the young. The great problem of the country is in the city, and New York is the greatest city of the greatest State of the greatest country on earth."

John S. Crosby followed the Controller with an address on "Civic Righteousness." Mr. Crosby urged the [illegible] and what members of it he referred to in his remarks about Ramapo are unknown, but he declined to be more specific in his accusations.

GIFT IN DAUGHTER'S MEMORY.

Grace Choir (Orange) Receives a Piano—Parish House Memorial.

Special to The New York Times.

ORANGE, N. J., Jan. 6.—The choir of Grace Church, Orange, has just received a $1,200 piano as a gift from Mr. and Mrs. Jonathan J. Broome of Prospect Street, East Orange, as an appreciation of the manner in which the choir sang at the funeral of their daughter, Miss Alice Broome, who died last Summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Broome have purchased a plot of ground adjoining the church and will erect a parish house as a memorial to their daughter. The land cost $10,000 and the house will cost $25,000.

A MEDICAL MISSIONARY'S WORK

Orange Woman Doctor's Hopeful View of Her Labor in the Philippines.

Special to The New York Times.

ORANGE, N. J., Jan. 6.—Dr. Alice Byram Condict, who left this city a year ago for India, intending to spend the remainder of her life there as a medical missionary, is now in Manila doing medical missionary work. She left Bombay three months ago, after exhausting herself caring for the famine sufferers, and has begun her medical work across the river from the walled city. In writing to a friend in Orange Dr. Condict says that when she called upon Judge Taft of the Philippine Commission he declared that there was nothing that will give the Filipinos a more correct idea of what the Americans want to do than to begin medical work for women.

The doctor says that the news of the re-election of President McKinley has had the effect of reassuring everybody, and that it is thought it will not be long before travel about the islands will be safe. She says that in the past year over 800 natives have united with the Presbyterian and Methodist missions.

MERCHANT WEDS TYPEWRITER.

Marriage of C. G. Evans of Paris to South Orange Girl Made Known.

Special to The New York Times.

SOUTH ORANGE, Jan. 6.—The announcement of the marriage of Miss Rose Gertrude Rosenbusch of 433 Meeker Street, South Orange, to Caleb Gaskell Evans, a clubman of Paris and New York, discloses an interesting romance.

Miss Rosenbusch was formerly employed by the firm of Faulkner, Page & Co. of New York as a typewriter. While there she met in a business way Mr. Evans, who is the principal owner of a large print works. In the course of time Mr. Evans was accepted by Miss Rosenbusch.

Mr. Evans says that Paris is his legal residence, and as there is a French law which requires that the marriage service shall be civil, it was therefore out of the question to have it performed by a minister. While the young couple were in this quandary, Justice of the Peace Willard E. Sargent agreed to perform the ceremony, which was accordingly done on Nov. 24, in the presence of a large gathering of the relatives and friends of the young people. Neither bride nor bridegroom was attended. Martin E. Waldstein of Hartford Road, South Orange, and Gilbert Rosenbusch, brother of the bride, were the legal witnesses. Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Evans sailed for Paris, where they now are. Mrs. Evans's family is well known in South Orange.

MAY TRY CITY OWNERSHIP.

North Plainfield Council Incensed at High Rates for Electric Light.

Special to The New York Times.

PLAINFIELD, N. J., Jan. 6.—Exasperated at the high charges made by the Plainfield Electric Light Company for service in lighting the streets, the North Plainfield Borough Council has taken up the subject of municipal ownership of an electric light plant, and Mayor Smalley has appointed Councilmen Valiant, Rogers, and Lee a committee to investigate the subject, as to advisability and expense, and report back to the Council.

The high rates charged by the Plainfield Water Supply Company, owned by United States Senator John Kean, have also prompted discussion of the project of a city water supply plant, but no formal action has been taken along this line as yet.

Yale Student Dies from Overwork.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 6.—Arthur Edgar Ely, a Yale Medical School freshman, died this afternoon at the New Haven Hospital from brain fever, brought on by overwork in the school. Ely graduated from the academical department last Spring and entered the medical school last Fall. He has not been well since last Summer and the unusual work of preparing for the examinations brought on brain fever, which terminated in his death. He was twenty-four years old and came from East River, Conn.

PHILIP D. ARMOUR IS DEAD

Chicago Millionaire Passes Away After Two Years' Illness.

Sought Health at Home and Abroad—Began to Sink with the Commencement of Winter—His Wealth Estimated as High as $50,000,000.

CHICAGO, Jan. 6.—Philip Danforth Armour—philanthropist, financier, and multi-millionaire, head of the vast commercial establishment that bears his name—died at his home, 2,115 Prairie Avenue, at 5:45 o'clock this afternoon.

A muscular affection of the heart, known to the medical profession as myocarditis, was the immediate cause of death. He had been slowly recovering from pneumonia that for three weeks had threatened his life.

At 9 o'clock this morning his heart gave way under the strain of his recent illness, his pulse running up to 103. That was the beginning of the end. Mr. Armour was surrounded by his family when he died. Those at his bedside were his wife, Mrs. Philip D. Armour, and Mr. and Mrs. J. Ogden Armour, his son and daughter-in-law; Mrs. Philip J. Armour, Jr., widow of his son, and the Rev. Frank W. Gonsaulus. The millionaire retained consciousness until within an hour of his death.

During the day he had realized that death was near. To those around him he had said: "I know I am very sick, and am ready for death when it comes."

Soon after luncheon, and just before the physician forbade his taking more, Mr. Armour in feeble tones said that he would like to hear the Lord's Prayer read. One of the trained nurses who had been attending him drew a chair to the bedside and slowly read from the Bible the prayer for which the dying man had asked. It was read sentence by sentence, and each was repeated by Mr. Armour. When the "Amen" had been repeated by him he sank back on the pillow and closed his eyes restfully. It was the last word the great financier spoke, except feeble farewells to his family a little later.

The end came after two years of illness, during which time Mr. Armour visited German baths, passed the cold months in Southern California, and devoted himself largely to an attempt to restore his health, which, however, had been broken never to be regained.

For several weeks the millionaire had been living at the old family home in Prairie Avenue, the usual trip to Southern California not having been taken this Winter. He came down to the office in the Home Insurance Building but seldom, and as the cold increased he did not come at all. It was understood in the office that he had an incipient attack of pneumonia, but it was given out no later than a week ago that he was on the road to recovery. It was noted, however, thar the constant attendance of Dr. Frank Billings, the family physician, at the bedside of the sick man did not corroborate the favorable reports at the down-town office.

For several days death had been feared as the outcome by the close associates of the great captain of industry. They realized that the decline from day to day did not cease, and that there could be but one end.

Mr. Armour had lost strength steadily from day to day since the commencement of the Winter. The pneumonia was checked, but strength was not regained. The firm grip he had so long maintained upon the business of Armour & Co., whether at the office or thousands of miles away, slowly relaxed. Reports no longer interested him as they were wont to do during the first months of his declining health. The sudden death of his son and namesake nearly a year ago hung heavily on him during the closing months of his life. In fact, he never recovered from the shock he experienced from that event. It stopped his progress toward recovery in his Winter home at Pasadena, and its sorrow remained fresh until the end.

His treadmill of work and his firm grip on affairs were maintained until the Spring of 1899. Then the machine began to show signs of breaking. Mr. Armour was reported to be a sick man, and these reports were confirmed when he sailed for Germany to take baths at Bad Nauheim. He spent most of the Summer at the baths, and was sufficiently restored in health to take a trip to Switzerland, where he remained a month among the mountains. When he returned to Chicago that Fall he looked well, and his friends hoped his recovery was the only difference between him and his companions was that he was a little broader-shouldered and sturdier than the broad-shouldered and sturdy youths among whom he worked. His father was Dunforth Armour, who in 1825 married Julia Brooks, in Connecticut, and soon afterward moved with his bride to this State. Both were of old American stock, Mrs. Armour tracing her ancestry back to early Puritan days.

But if "Phil" Armour's training—he was "Phil" Armour from babyhood to old age—had been that of the average farmer's son of the forties, his ambition was very different from that of his associates. He was born in 1832, and even when a boy at school had made up his mind that he would go out into the world as soon as his father would allow him to do so. When he was seventeen years old he heard some of the tales of the El Dorado of the West and begged for permission to go out to California, but his father could not spare him. Danforth Armour's family was, however, a large one. Philip had five brothers and two sisters, and in 1852 the other brothers were big enough to be of use on the farm. So Mr. Armour gave permission to Philip to leave the homestead, and in the Spring of that year Philip was one of a party of thirty people which left Oneida for the wonderful land in the West.

Four years later he returned home with some thousands of dollars in his pocket as the result of hard labor as a miner on the Pacific Coast. "Phil's" old companions expected that he would buy a farm for himself, but he had other aspirations, and in a short time he again went West, this time for good. He had decided to invest his little capital in some business in what was then the Middle West, and after some consideration decided to settle in Milwaukee, as to the future of which he had formed an optimistic opinion.

IN BUSINESS FOR HIMSELF.

It was in Milwaukee in 1863 that Philip Armour planted the seed of a business which has grown to be one of the most stupendous enterprises in the United States—which at the present time provides employment for 20,000 persons, of which the ramifications extend all over this continent, and the products of which are sold in every corner of the globe. In 1856, Mr. Armour had formed a partnership in Milwaukee with Frederick B. Mills, in a commission business for the handling of grain and farm produce. The partnership was dissolved in 1863, but in the meantime Mr. Armour had seen the possibilities in the packing industry, and when his relations with Mr. Mills were severed he formed another partnership with John Plankinton of Milwaukee, a pioneer packer.

A year previous to this Mr. Armour married Miss Belle Ogden, daughter of Jonathan Ogden of Cincinnati. He had made her acquaintance in Cincinnati when he was casting about for a suitable location to set up in business. When the couple were married Mr. Armour was rated as one of the most prosperous young men of Milwaukee. At the time he became Mr. Plankinton's partner he was, it was said, worth $500,000.

It is said that he hesitated for a time as to whether to go into the packing or lumber industry, and that the facts that two of his brothers—Herman O. Armour and Joseph F. Armour—were in business together in Chicago, and that the future of Chicago as the centre of the pork-packing trade was then plain. The two Armours in Chicago were not in the packing business, but had established a commission house. However, Philip impressed upon his brothers the possibilities in the pork trade, and induced them to take it up. A partnership was later formed under the trade name of Armour & Co., the Chicago grain commission business being continued under the name of H. O. Armour & Co.

INVADES NEW YORK.

Philip D. Armour's capital was increased by something like $2,000,000 at the time of the civil war. In the Winter of 1865 pork was selling at $40 a barrel, with an upward tendency. Although an immense trade in pork was then done in Chicago, New York was the real centre of the business, and most of the packers and operators were buying liberally for future use, being firm believers in the continuance of high prices. Mr. Armour saw things differently. He saw that the war was nearing its end, and that when the Confederacy fell pork prices would fall with it. He made up his mind, as he always did, instantaneously.

One day the New York operators were amazed at the simplicity of a young man from Milwaukee who came among them and offered all the pork they would take at $40 a barrel. They were amazed still more when there was a sudden break and the price sagged down to $20. But even at that price Armour kept on selling. Soon Petersburg fell and Richmond was evacuated. Then pork collapsed. Mr. Armour began to deliver the goods he had sold at from $30 to $40 at $18. There was a panic among the bulls, and some of them went the length of repudiating, or rather trying to repudiate, their contracts. Even Mr. Armour's brokers turned against him, but he employed other brokers and, remaining in New York ninety days, pressed his debtors and forced them to settle.

Thereafter the business of Armour & Co. grew so rapidly that even to describe its growth in outline would be impossible in limited space. In 1875 Mr. Armour moved to Chicago, where he had ever since then lived. A remarkable feature of the growth of the business is the manner in which all the Armour brothers worked together. One of the six enlisted in the Union Army and was killed in the civil war. The other five were, sooner or later, all engaged in the quickly ramifying concerns of the firm.

In 1871 it was necessary for the Armours' business that one of them look after the New York work, and Herman O. accepted that duty and removed to New York City. While Herman went to New York to watch the markets, guard the Armour credit, and oversee the distribution of grain and packing products, Simeon B. was learning the business in Chicago, and in the Fall of 1871 he appeared in Kansas City, where the Armour foresight placed him and began turning trade into the Armour channels. One brother was left on the farm—the youngest, Andrew Watson Armour. It was not until 1879 that the elder brothers called him to their aid. They needed a bank at Kansas City. It was necessary that an Armour give his attention to it. Joseph F. had died in Chicago, and Philip D. had to give his personal attention to the big main plant. Simon was tied down at the Kansas City house and Herman O. was immersed in the New York end of the business. So Andrew was taken from the old homestead and installed in the office of bank President at Kansas City. Andrew died in 1893. Simeon B. in March, 1899.

DEALS OF TWENTY YEARS AGO.

In 1879 Mr. Armour engaged in a deal that, it was said, netted him no less than $4,000,000. Operators on the Chicago Board of Trade thought it a good year in which to sell pork, and the bear movement was engaged in by men who had never speculated in pork before. The Armours were turning out their products on a larger scale than ever before. Other packing houses joined the bear movement, and Mr. Armour was forced to support the market for months at a great loss. However, he foresaw that the tide would turn, and took all the pork that was offered. The tide did turn, and he recovered all his losses, together with the millions of aded profit.

Mr. Armour was a great speculator, but he often declared that his great "deals" were the result of circumstances rather than of desire to profits by others' losses. His desire to save several old friends led him into the memorable wheat operation of 1882. He took all the wheat offered, and for months kept the price in Chicago higher than in any other market in the world. He ended by realizing a large profit.

At the present time the development of the firm of Armour & Co. has extended to almost every industry connected with the provision, manufacture, and carriage of food products. Armour & Co. own the cars that carry the refrigerated beef and pork and the many different kinds of preserved, canned, and cured food. The firm owns the steamers that take its products to the markets of the world. Its grain interests are of great importance in the grain trade of the West.

HOW THE BUSINESS GREW.

When Mr. Armour first engaged in the packing business pork was shipped to the markets from near-by farms, the killing and dressing taking place on the farm. The bulk of the shipments were made in the cold season, for refrigeration was then in its infancy. One of the first things Mr. Armour turned his attention to was the shipment of live hogs. He had to fight against the prejudices of the farmer and commission man and the lack of proper railroad facilities; but in a year or two hogs began to enter Chicago in larger numbers than pork carcasses.

The next great improvement was the introduction of canned products. Then, in 1880, experiments were begun in shipping dressed beef in refrigeration. At the same time the Armours started to buy their own cars and establish their own distributing plants in the great cities of the East. The head of the firm at the same time turned his attention to the export trade. Refrigerated pork and beef were sent by ship to England, and afterward to France and Germany, until now the Armour products go all over the world. A multitude of inventions for saving waste products and using them in various ways had been introduced, and these also added to the ever-growing volume of business done by the firm.

Add to all these an immense trade in grain—a trade which at the present time is said to reach $30,000,000 a year—and one has even then only a very small idea of the interests which centred in the brain of the man who died yesterday. It was in an office on the first floor of the Home Insurance Building, La Salle and Adams Streets, Chicago, that Philip D. Armour used to hear every day the reports from his sixty-odd confidential men on his myriad enterprises.

Visitors to Chicago went to see the giant stock yards; heard the name of Philip D. Armour ever quoted by Board of Trade men; saw the names of Armour & Co. on cars on the railroads; saw the great charitable institutions founded by the head of the firm, and then, when they learned that these were only a part of the enterprises engaged in by this man, who found time to personally succor the afflicted and attend to the needs of his employes, they went away, wondering—or skeptical.

THE ARMOUR WEALTH.

Mr. Armour's wealth is a subject that may never be accurately known. It is estimated to be not less than $30,000,000, and by some to exceed $50,000,000. The combined wealth of the Chicago Armours is fixed at $80,000,000. In one sense the total is the wealth of Philip D. Armour, but just how much has been carried in his own name and how much in the name of his sons is unknown. He had not been a borrower. He had always been able to pay cash for his purchases and he had never asked a customer to discount a bill.

In his great wheat deals he had always had ready cash. In times of panic he had shown vast resources in spot cash. In 1893, when a run was made upon the banks of Chicago and the credit of the city and the fate of the Exposition was hanging in the balance, Philip D. Armour bought half a million of gold in Europe and offered help to the big institutions of the city from his cash resources in Chicago.

Mr. Armour was a heavy owner in the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railroad Company and in the reorganized Baltimore and Ohio. He was interested largely in the Illinois Trust and Savings, Metropolitan National, and National Trust Banks of Chicago, and in the Armour Bank of Kansas City. He was a Director of the Northwestern Life Insurance Company, and was a heavy stockholder in the company which controls the street railways of Kansas City, Mo., and Kansas City, Kan.

MR. ARMOUR'S CHARITIES.

Mention has elsewhere been made of the conferences held by Mr. Armour every day with his confidential men. Sometimes many days passed between the visits of any particular one of these heads of departments. But never a day passed that Mr. Armour was not closeted for a considerable time with the Rev. Dr. Frank Gunsaulus, who advised him regarding all his charities.

The greatest of the many philanthropic institutions founded or assisted by Mr. Armour is the wonderful Armour Institute of Technology, in Dearborn Street, Chicago. This was established in 1893, with the object of providing industrial training of a superior character. But Mr. Armour's enterprises had a habit of developing into things of far wider scope than was originally intended, and the institute has been no exception. It is now furnishing instruction for all classes of society, and its aim is to afford educational opportunities second to none in the United States. New courses are being added continually, and the merging into it of other institutions has greatly increased the efficiency of its teaching.

Almost directly after it was founded it was discovered that it was not alone the people for which it was intended who were profiting by the instruction given at the institute. One of the cookery instructors discovered that she was teaching almost as many society women as domestics. Another man might have proceeded to make stringent rules in order to prevent this sort of thing in the future, but not so Mr. Armour. Instead, he enlarged the scope of the cookery classes, and other classes by which women might profit, such as those in millinery and dressmaking, were provided.

The institute was founded by Mr. Armour with an endowment fund of $500,000 and the gift of a piece of land valued at $250,000. He has been making additional gifts ever since. The endowment fund now reaches nearly $4,000,000.

As to his private benefactions, it is impossible to give any idea of their amount, because Mr. Armour was not in the habit of letting his left hand know—in regard to charity—what his right hand was doing. Only by the relations of others has any idea been obtained of his ever-active work on behalf of the suffering and afflicted. He had less trouble with his employes than almost any great employer of labor in this country, for the reason that those who worked for him loved and admired him as few of those who have amassed great fortunes are loved and admired. Here is a sample anecdote of Mr. Armour's treatment of his men:

One day, on going into his office, he found a policeman in the corridor.

"What are you doing here, Sir?" he asked.

"I am here to serve a paper," was the reply.

"What kind of a paper?" asked Mr. Armour.

"I want to garnishee one of your men's wages for debt," said the policeman.

"Indeed," replied Mr. Armour; "and who is the man?" He thereupon asked the policeman into his private office and ordered that the debtor come in. He then asked the clerk how long he had been in debt. The man replied that for 20 years he had been behind and that he could not catch up.

"But you get a good salary," said Mr. Armour, "don't you?"

"Yes," said the clerk, "but I can't get out of debt. My life is such that somehow or other I can't get out."

"But you must get out," said Mr. Armour, "or you must leave here. How much do you owe?"

The clerk then gave the amount. It was less than $1,000. Mr. Armour took his check book and wrote out a check for the amount.

"There," said he, as he handed the clerk the check. "There is enough to pay all your debts. Now I want you to keep out of debt, and if I hear of your again getting into debt you will have to leave."

The man took the check. He did pay his debts and remodeled his life on a cash bssis.

And here is another story out of the thousands which have come to light about Mr. Armour's benefactions to strangers: On a certain occasion when travelling to the East he became deeply interested in a colored boy—a sleeping-car porter—whom he saw trying to read a book. In his genial way he called the boy "General Forest."

"General," said he, "I'll give you $5 if you will read one line of that book without stopping to spell out the words."

The astonished boy grinned, but accepted the offer and read a line without hesitation. He not only received the $5, but on further questioning disclosed a hungering and thirsting after knowledge that caused Mr. Armour to propose a way for his education. The "General" was taken from the sleeping-car service and sent to Oberlin College, where he was educated at Mr. Armour's expense. He left college to enter the ministry.

Another characteristic anecdote may be quoted, as an instance of Mr. Armour's broad-mindedness as well as of his benevolence.

One day a pastor called on him and applied for help for a poor woman in his parish who just become a mother. The minister went away with an ample sum, to be devoted to the immediate wants of the sufferer, and was asked to see that anything necessary was supplied. The matter had passed out of Mr. Armour's mind, when the same clergyman returned.

"I have brought your money back, Mr. Armour," he said.

"What does that mean?" inquired Mr. Armour.

"Well," was the reply, "I am sorry to say that when I applied to you I knew of the case only by hearsay. I have since investigated it personally and have found that the woman is of bad character. I could not conscientiously give her the money, and therefore return it."

Mr. Armour informed the pastor in emphatic terms that he did not approve of his sort of charity, and told him to get out of the office at once. He then sent a special message to Mrs. Armour, asking her to go and see the woman and see that her wants were supplied. This was one of the few cases he discussed afterward, but he only referred to it to condemn the pastor. "A minister of the Gospel," he said, "should have shown mercy. If the woman was in sin he should have been the first to reach forth a hand to lift her out and start her on the right road."

THE SURVIVING SON.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 6.—By the death of P. D. Armour, a new power has arisen in the world of commerce. Jnnathan Ogden Armour, aged thirty-five, is in control of the Armour millions and an army of 20,000 employes. This means control of the enormous business of the firm, which reaches around the world and amounts to $150,000,000 a year.

The death of P. D. Armour, Jr., left the elder son the sole surviving representative of this generation of Armours. His is a marked personality in many ways. Of medium height, slender, almost delicate figure, and light hair, there is little outward appearance for the capacity for work that is in him. Yet for fifteen years he has been working ten hours a day in all the departments in which the Armour business is systematized.

He knows the packing house as well as any man in the country; the great grain gathering and elevator systems are conducted under his direction; the vast dressed beef interest and the big export sales of provisions are in his personal care.

J. Ogden Armour's life is divided between business and home. He does not care for society and is not a clubman. After business hours he remains in his beautiful home at Thirty-seventh Street and Michigan Avenue.

Mr. Armour married Miss Lola Sheldon in 1894. He is the father of a girl of nearly four years. The little one is now sole heiress to fully $30,000,000.

ENGEL AND SULLIVAN OUT?

Discredited Rumor that They Have Been Asked to Retire as Tammany Leaders.

The story was current in Democratic circles last night that Lewis Nixon, Chairman of the Vice Committee of Tammany Hall, had formally requested Senator Timothy D. Sullivan and Martin Engel, leaders respectively in the Sixth and Eighth Assembly Districts, to retire from the organization.

Mr. Nixon is ill at his home at 15 West Thirty-ninth Street, and refused to see reporters.

Mr. Warley Platzek, another member of the committee, said he knew nothing of the alleged request.

Senator Sullivan is at Hot Springs, Ark.

Martin Engel said last night that he had long been desirous of relinquishing the leadership. He knew nothing, he said, of any request to him to retire, and he declared he would not get out under fire. He treated the whole matter as a joke.

Several members of Tammany Hall discussed the matter, saying the leaders from the Sixth and Eighth Districts have not made a proper accounting of protection money. They also said that neither Sullivan nor Engel feared Croker or Tammany Hall, and would laugh at either if requested to resign.

It is well understood in Tammany circles that Senator Sullivan has repeatedly refused financial aid to Tammany in election matters.

BLAZE ON THE SAVOY STAGE.

Started Among Scenery, but Caused Little Damage—The Rival Nell Gwynn Plays for Philadelphia.

A small fire was discovered at noon yesterday in a pile of scenery on the stage of the Savoy Theatre, Thirty-fourth Street, near Broadway. The blaze was discovered by the watchman, who, with the help of some stage hands, had the fire out by the time the department responded to the alarm that was sent out.

The damage was slight, and so far as could be learned none was done to the effects of Miss Henrietta Crosman, who on Saturday night appeared before the curtain and announced that there would be no performance of "Mistress Nell" because of alleged persecution on the part of the manager of the theatre.

Maurice Campbell, Miss Crosman's husband and manager, yesterday reiterated his charges that Manager Alfred Aarons of the theatre, probably at the instigation of the theatrical trust, had subjected him and Miss Crosman to continual annoyance. Regarding his present plans, he said that he and his wife would rest for a week and then open in some country town, before going to Philadelphia, where the play is scheduled for the 28th inst.

Manager Aarons again denied Mr. Campbell's allegations, and repeated that Miss Crosman's action was the outcome of the quarrels of her company with his own representatives arising out of frequent breaches of the rules by the former. He added that no arrangements had been made for reopening the theatre this week.

It was announced last night that Miss Ada Rehan probably will go to Philadelphia earlier than was at first intended, opening there with her rival play, "Sweet Nell of Old Drury," on the 21st, a week before Miss Crossman is due there with "Mistress Nell."

PENN'S CREW PROSPECTS.

Rowing Candidates Have Been Ordered to Report Jan. 15.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 6.—Coach Ward and Capt. Flickwir of the University of Pennsylvania crews have called upon all new candidates to report for practice on the machines Jan. 15. Members of last year's crew will not be expected to begin training until after the mid-year examinations, which occur the last week in January.

The race for second crews will this year be rowed on Lake Cayuga. The Ithacans have felt the need of a stimulus for rowing at their university, and it was at their request that the race will take place at Cornell. The date, May 30, will remain the same as last year, and the same crews, Pennsylvania, Cornell, and Columbia, will take part. It is almost certain that Harvard will not send their weid crew to the race.

Annapolis and Pennsylvania hold their annual races on the Severn on May 11. This date was found mutually convenient by the Cadets and Quakers, and the arrangements have all been satisfactorily completed.

Capt. Flickwir to-night stated that the prospects for rowing at Pennsylvania were never brighter. Only three of last year's eight have left college, and the candidates for their places are eager and plentiful. Snover, Kintzing, and Stehl are among the missing, but Henderson of the four, and Eisebray of the freshmen, are two already strong bidders for seats in the big boat. Capt. Flickwir said that the presence of John Gardiner at stroke is almost in itself sufficient to assure a first-class crew. All the old men are in good physical condition, and only anxious to begin training.

While Capt. Flickwir is certain that Pennsylvania will have a first-class crew, he is just as sure that it will have to be a record breaker to beat Wisconsin this year. Flickwir has just returned from his home in Illinois, where he spent the Christmas holidays, and while in the West he had a chance to observe the loyalty and enthusiasm which was manifest everywhere for the Wisconsin crew. Everybody is praising them for their game struggles of the last two years at Poughkeepsie, and there will be no trouble this year in raising funds for the Eastern trip. This fact, coupled with the presence of most of last year's 'Varsity and the phenomenal freshman crew of last season to draw from, makes the Badgers strong bidders for the intercollegiate rowing cup.

BOATHANDS SAVED HIM.

Pueblo Man Tried Suicide in the River —Now in Bellevue.

Frank Micklick of Pueblo, Col., attempted to jump from one of the West Shore ferryboats from Weehawken yeaterday afternoon, in an endeavor to commit suicide. Deckhands grappled with the man, and saved him from leaping overboard. He was turned over to the police of the steamboat squad and sent to the Hudson Street Hospital, where he was treated for some slight burns on his hands. Later he was taken to the Bellevue Hospital insane pavilion.

Cornelius Young, a clerk in a hotel at 75 Clarkson Street, where Micklick had been stopping, told the police the man was not sound mentally. He said he came to him a day or two ago and said he had been robbed of $1,000, but was not able to give any satisfactory account of the robbery.

Micklick has a ticket to Paris on one of the French line steamers. He talks incoherently and acts irrationally.

Insurance Man Charged with Forgery.

CHICAGO, Jan. 6.—Henry M. Hook, agent for the Knights Templars and Masons' Life Indemnity Association of Chicago, is under arrest at the Central Police Station on a telegram from Washington, which stated that he was wanted in that city on a charge of forgery. The arrest was made in Hook's office in the Masonic Temple. It was the result of a message received from Chief of Police Sylvester of Washington, stating that Hook had been indicted in that city and that a bench warrant had been issued for his arrest.

DEFIES THE HEALTH BOARD

Dr. Leverson Repeats that He Has Not Reported Smallpox Cases.

Fears Interference Would Lessen Chances of His Patients' Recovery, He Says—Officials Skeptical.

Something of a sensation has been caused in medical circles in Brooklyn by a statement made by Dr. Montague R. Leverson of Bay Ridge to the effect that he has treated thirty smallpox patients without reporting one of the cases to the Board of Health, as is required by law of all physicians. This statement, made by Dr. Leverson at a meeting of the Anti-Compulsory Vaccination League at the Brooklyn Library on Saturday night, has stirred up the local health authorities and caused widespread talk in the borough.

Dr. Leverson has been before the public on several occasions heretofore. Last August he was exploited in the newspapers because of his avowed brotherly feeling for Aguinaldo, the Filipino chieftain. The doctor lives on Ninety-sixth Street, near Shore Road, Bay Ridge, near the home of the late Henry George, of whom he was a close friend and follower. At the meeting of the Anti-Compulsory Vaccination League, of which he is the President, Dr. Leverson said, among other things, that vaccination was an iniquitous practice, and that the people should resist with force the vaccinators who invaded their homes. He had cured all his patients, he said, but had not reported a single one of them to the Board of Health, fearing that interference from that quarter would greatly lessen the patient's chance of recovery. The doctor stood by his statement when seen last evening.

"I will repeat," he said, "that I have treated about thirty cases of smallpox without reporting a single case to the Board of Health. I never will report a case of the disease to the health authorities as long as the present system of treating such cases prevails in that department."

"Where were the cases you treated?" he was asked.

"Most of them in Brooklyn and Manhattan, and some in Jersey City; the first one in June, 1895, and the others since then."

"Have you treated any cases of smallpox since consolidation, cases which the present city Board of Health would have authority to deal with?"

"I must refuse to go into details with regard to the cases I have treated for certain reasons," replied the doctor. "The law makes it a misdemeanor on the part of a physician to fail to report to the Board of Health within twenty-four hours of the time of his discovery of the same any case of smallpox or other contagious disease. I am fully alive to this fact; but I feel that in not reporting such a case to the authorities, in view of the present method of handling these cases, I am doing something morally right, if it is not legal. My first duty is to my patient. If I reported a case of smallpox to the Board of Health, it would step in, remove the patient, and the patient's relatives for life would become fully 50 per cent. less.

"I have been vaccinated myself twice. The first time when I was a boy. It was successful; that is, it 'took.' One year later I was taken down with smallpox in a virulent form.

"Up to 1894, however, with other physicians, I believed in vaccination. In that year I again had myself vaccinated. Then I began to make a close study of vaccination. I was led to make this study by finding many children, children of parents whose blood had always been in a perfectly healthy condition, afflicted with a degrading disease resulting from the injection of virus into their veins. I was not long then in reaching the conviction that vaccinating was an evil practice."

Dr. Leverson said that his friends were trying to locate some of the negroes in the Gwinnett Street district of Brooklyn who were swooped down upon recently in their homes by Health Department physicians and made to submit to vaccination. Efforts would be made, the doctor said, to get these negroes to bring suits against the city.

Dr. Robert A. Black, Sanitary Superintendent of the Brooklyn Health Department, was not inclined to discuss the statements made by Dr. Leverson when seen with regard to them.

"What the man says is preposterous," he said. "He said something of the kind once before and it was disproved. Unless he is more definite and specific in his statements, I can give them no serious attention."

Dr. F. A. Jewett, Chief Inspector of Contagious Diseases of the Brooklyn Health Department, said last night that he "took no stock" in the statement of Dr. Leverson to the effect that he had treated thirty smallpox cases without reporting them to the Board of Health.

"I don't think the man ever treated a smallpox case in his life. I don't believe he would know a smallpox case if he saw one," said Dr. Jewett.

President Murphy of the Board of Health says he will submit to the board at its meeting to-day the published statements made by Dr. Leverson, with a view to deciding whether an investigation should be made.

THE NATIONAL SHOE COMBINE.

R. F. Wolfe Says the New Company Is Assured.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Jan. 6.—R. F. Wolfe, one of the leading promoters of the National Shoe Company, returned from the East to-day.

"The new company is assured," said Mr. Wolfe. "It is not a trust, but is almost in direct opposition to the accepted idea of a trust. The factories which will be interested in the company will retain their independent existence and the new company will act as a distributing agent for their product. Our aim is not so much to put factories into the company as to keep them out.

"We want only those plants which have an established line of goods and those which are recognized by the trade as being the leading ones in their line. The factories interested in the new company will manufacture practically dissimilar lines of goods, and a dealer can fit out his entire store from one of our depots."

A meeting of the men interested in the new company will be held in Boston this week, at which time the organization will be effected. Several large tanning companies have been asking for admission into the company, but it has not been decided as yet to let them in. They wish to use the shoe depots as distributing points for their goods.

The company will be incorporated under the laws of Delaware with a capital stock of $3,500,000.

The Manchesters at Natchez.

NATCHEZ, Miss., Jan. 6.—The Duke and Duchess of Manchester, accompanied by Eugene Zimmerman, father of the Duchess, reached this city this evening at 7:30 o'clock. The party was met at the station by Mrs. Ellen Yznaga, grandmother of the Duke, and proceeded to a hotel, where apartments had been reserved by Mrs. Yznaga. They will remain here until Tuesday, when the entire party will leave on a steamer for L'Argent, La., whence they will go to Ravenswood, the plantation home of Mrs. Yznaga.

Mr. Carnegie Gives Seattle $200,000.

SEATTLE, Washington, Jan. 6.—Andrew Carnegie has promised Seattle a gift of $200,000, to be expended in the construction of a new public library. He requires a yearly guarantee of $50,000 for maintenance and improvement.

FEED THE MOTHER

Better, than starting the baby on other food, is to feed the mother with Scott's emulsion of cod-liver oil, to nurse her strength and enrich her milk. It is the natural way.

We'll send you a little to try if you like.
SCOTT & BOWNE, 409 Pearl street, New York.

WATCHES.

Our 14kt. gold Waltham Watches are exceptionally advantageous. Ladies' Watches, $20.00; heavier cases $25.00 to $50.00.
For Gentlemen, in open face, $32.00.
Hunting case, from $35.00 to $100.00.
Also many new designs in imported Enameled Chatelaine Watches.

A. Frankfield & Co.
Jewelers and Importers,
52 WEST 14TH ST.

THIRTY-SEVEN BOYS CAUGHT IN A RAID

Rounded Up in an Eighth Avenue Billiard Room.

Nearly as Many More Escape Through Windows—Lively Scenes at a Police Station.

Between fifty and sixty boys and young men, ranging in ages from fifteen to twenty-five years, and a few of them colored, were corralled in the pool and billiard room of Albert Canfield, on the second floor of the building, at 291 Eighth Avenue, in a raid last evening, by the police of the West Twentieth Street Station. Canfield, the reputed proprietor, and thirty-seven of the boys were arrested and locked up. The others escaped by way of the rear windows, and eluded the police stationed on the outside by creeping out of dark areaways.

Canfield gave his age as thirty years, and said he lived at 169 Washington Avenue, Newark, N. J. The boys arrested in many instances gave fictitious names and addresses, and all will be arraigned this morning in the Jefferson Market Police Court, the proprietor being charged with running a pool and billiard room on Sunday, and the others with being frequenters and players.

The place has been only recently opened, and is over a retail store. There were six pool tables and two billiard tables in the room, and all of them were in use.

About six o'clock last evening Detectives Keogh and Pearson, of the West Twentieth Street Station walked down Eighth Avenue. As they passed the open door of the hallway leading up stairs in the building at the number given, they heard a murmer of voices and the click of the ivory pool balls. They went up stairs and ascertained the nature of the place. Then they went to the station house and got their instructions from Capt. Moynihan to raid the place.

Detective Pearson at once returned and stood guard at the door, taking a couple of officers with him to watch the rear of the building in case any of the inmates of the room should attempt escape that way. In the meantime the reserves of the West Twentieth Street Station were turned out, patrol wagons summoned from adjacent precincts, and in a few minutes a force of fifteen policemen with three patrol wagons reached the scene. The wagons backed up to the sidewalk in front of the entrance to the hallway, and the policemen ascended.

In some manner the frequenters of the place had gotten wind of the fact that the police were closing in on them. A scramble ensued in an effort to escape. The boys found their exit by way of the stairs cut off by Detective Pearson, who stood guard with a night stick. Then the rear windows were raised, and about twenty-five scrambled out, hung on to the window ledge a moment, one by one, and dropped to the ground, a distance of about fifteen feet. So far as known, none of them was injured.

While this was going on the reserve force crowded into the doorway, and Canfield was the first to be arrested. Then thirty-seven of the boys, all that were left of the original number, were handed over, two at a time, to Detective Keogh and marched out of the doorway, down stairs, and handed into the patrol wagons and locked up in the station house.

Although many of them gave fictitious names and addresses, massages were sent to parents or relatives, and as a result the West Twentieth Street Police Station House, at 10 o'clock last night, was a perfect bedlam of family troubles. Fathers, whose expressions bore no pleasing assurance to the sons as they were released, gave the bail required, and took them home. Mothers and sisters also appeared in number, and in many instances broke down and cried when they were told they would have to schedule property before their sons or brothers would be released.

Two Sergeants were behind the desk up to midnight attending to inquiries made by the parents of the prisoners, and the entire reserve force of the station was kept busy notifying relatives that the boys had been arrested.

THE TRIER'S ROUGH VOYAGE.

Liner Arrives After Thirty-seven Days Out—Disabled by Fierce Gales.

After having consumed thirty-seven days in crossing the storm-swept Atlantic, the North German Lloyd steamship Trier reached her dock in Brooklyn at noon yesterday. The steamer had encountered every imaginable kind of bad weather, and in plowing through it her engines broke down several times as a result of the terrific strain; her steering gear also broke and was rendered useless, the centrifugal pumps got out of order, and lesser injuries were inflicted upon other portions of her machinery, making the trip practically a record breaker for hard luck so far this season.

Before she put into Punta del Gorda for repairs, news of which fact was cabled to New York, the Trier went through an experience which her officers say a ship is seldom called upon to confront. From Dec. 6, the day when the gales began to gather, until she reached Punta del Gorda, the story of the voyage is a continuation of accidents and mishaps from beginning to end. The winds time and again reached a velocity in excess of eighty miles. On the 12th the steam steering gear broke and was rendered useless, and a hand gear had to be rigged up. Oil was poured on the water on this day and the ship had to "heave to." When the day ended, instead of making headway, the Trier had lost forty-four miles.

The weather continued to get worse and the passengers became panic stricken, and many spent their time in prayer or in beseeching the officers to stand and take some port, fearing that the vessel would go down, so fierce were the gales, which never abated in their fury for a moment. When the centrifugal pumps got out of order, and the starboard engine was disabled, and other lesser injuries quickly followed, Capt. Meyerhelne called a council of his officers, at the conclusion of which it was announced that the ship would head for Punta del Gorda, in the Azores. After four days of tossing in the rough seas the harbor was made, and on the morning of Christmas the Trier once more cleared her dock and headed for New York.

The repairs in the Azores were very unsatisfactory, however, and several times on the voyage from the Azores to New York the eccentrics became heated, compelling the ship to stop. One death occurred on the voyage, a two-months-old baby, Sara Schwartz, dying between Bremerhaven and the Azores. The health otherwise of the passengers, of which there were 607 in the steerage and 22 in the cabin, was good.

The Trier will go to Erie Basin for examination as soon as she discharges her cargo.

Illegal to Sell Game in New Jersey Now.

HACKENSACK, N. J., Jan. 6.—President H. P. Frothingham of the State Commission on Fish and Game has notified all game protectors and wardens to personally notify all meat dealers that they are violating the law by selling rabbits, quail, partridges, and pheasants, after Dec. 31.

Ullman Collamore & Co.

Beg to announce that during their annual Stock-taking, commencing Monday, 7th inst., they will make reductions of from 10 to 33⅓ per cent. on a great number of Dinner Sets, Plates, Cups and Saucers, Bric-a-Brac, &c., &c. and also on

Glass in Sets, odd dozens and single pieces.

Fifth Avenue and Thirtieth Street.

A Consolidation Sale THAT MEANS BUSINESS

We have decided to give up our Park Row Branch and consolidate our business in our Broadway Store. This means a massing of goods beyond our power to accommodate. That's where your opportunity comes in.

For the next sixty days all the famous Loftus goods, never made before for less than $15.00, and on which we've made our reputation, will be marked down to the quick-selling price of

The Same LOFTUS QUALITY OF GOODS
The Same LOFTUS QUALITY OF WORK
THE SAME LOFTUS FIT AND STYLE
$12.50 SUIT or OVERCOAT.

No occasion for you to be a "ready-made-man" when this great opportunity is before you, for our stock embraces all the fashionable, popular fabrics of this season's productions. No matter what your taste may be in suitings or overcoatings, you will find the latest styles here, which we will make to order, to measure and to fit, for sixty days only, at the extraordinary price of $12.50.

Sale Begins To-day at Both Stores.

W. C. LOFTUS & CO.

Sun Building, near Brooklyn Bridge. 1191 Broadway, near 28th St.

PAN-AMERICAN EXPOSITION.

Those who are supervising preparations for the Pan-American Exposition in Buffalo say that all the buildings, grounds, electrical displays, and other adjuncts of the great fair will be entirely completed before the date set for the formal opening of the exposition. This will be on May 1. If the Directors accomplish such a feat they will have been the first to do so, for in not a single instance in the past has a big exhibition of this kind been wholly ready for opening on the day set.

The New Year has found the exposition grounds and buildings in a far advanced state of preparation. A year ago the Rumsey tract of land, whereon the fair is to be held, was nothing but a bare expanse. Within twelve months there have been constructed fountains, artificial lakes, light and heat plants, artistic hills and valleys of the landscape gardener's fashioning, and beautiful buildings. Of the latter five are finished. They are the Machinery Building, 175,000 square feet; Electricity Building, 15,000 square feet; Agricultural Building, 75,000 square feet; Graphic Arts Building, 22,500 square feet, and Mines Building, 22,500 square feet.

Two restaurants, one forming the entrance of the Midway and the other at the entrance of the Stadium, are also completed, as are the conservatories, which form the connection between the Horticultural Building and that devoted to mining interests. In all of the finished structures steam heat apparatus has been adjusted, and as fast as the other buildings are completed similar apparatus will be placed in them.

Of the buildings that are nearing completion the Horticultural is furthest advanced, the staff workers on it having almost reached the topmost point of the roof. It is now in a condition for the reception of exhibits.

The Manufacturers' Building, construction on which was last to begin, has its walls up, and the skylights and roofing are being put on. Carpentry work on the Music Building is all done, and the Ethnology Building has reached the stage of receiving its mural ornamental work. The Electric Tower, which is to be 375 feet in height, is expected to be finished in a month. It has already reached 300 feet, and the great flanking wings are beginning to take on shape. Work on the Women's Building, the Government pavilions, and the Stadium is going on steadily.

Everything in the line of sewers, water connections, underground electric conduits, subways for electric and telegraph wires, high-pressure fire lines, and natural gas mains is completed. Finished also are the Mirror Lakes. From these of decorative plants, trees, shrubs, vines, and hothouse flowers have been provided, but are being kept on the exposition grounds in nurseries and greenhouses.

Newcomb Carlton, Director of Works, speaking of the opening of the fair the other day, said: "Barring the coming of some great calamity, such as a cyclone or a fire, we shall certainly be ready to open on May 1."

SCHOOL CHILDREN USE TOBACCO.

Riverhead Board of Education Notifies Parents and Moral Wave Follows.

RIVERHEAD, L. I., Jan. 6.—The Riverhead Board of Education and Principal George A. Brown last week sent out this circular to many parents in this village:

"Our teachers and the Board of Education are very sorry to learn that your son uses tobacco on the streets and in the presence of the school children. We are agreed that tobacco has a bad effect on the mind and body of a growing boy. The influence is so bad we cannot permit it in public places. Will you kindly assist us in stopping it? We call your attention to the following law from the penal code, which we think ought to be enforced:

